(c) There was a Printed Sheet, Licenſed Novemb. 1. 1688. entitled, An Account of the late Viſitation at St. Mary Magdalen College in Oxford, by the Right Reverend Father in God, Peter Lord Biſhop of Winton, on Thurſday, Octob. 24. 1688. With the Names of the Preſident, Fellows and others, reſtored by Him.

of

of the Prince of Wales was to be brought over in the Dutch Fleet. To ſtifle this News, the Privy Council was aſſembled; where were likewiſe preſent, by His Majeſty's Deſire and Appointment, the Queen-Dowager, and ſuch of the Peers (both Spiritual and Temporal) as were in Town, as alſo the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of London, and the Judges, and ſeveral of Their Majeſties Council Learned in the Law; and then the Ladies, Lords, and others that were preſent at the Queen's Labour, did appear there, and declar'd upon Oath, what they knew of the Birth of His Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales: Of all which, a full and particular Relation was made publick, and was enroll'd in Chancery, to very little Purpoſe.

The King labours to wipe off the Suſpicion.

Places and Honours.

Under this Affrightment, His Majeſty was pleas'd to make the Earl of Derby Lord Lieutenant of the Counties of Cheſter and Lancaſter, the Earl of Oxford Lord Lieutenant of Eſſex, and the Earl of Feverſham Lord Lieutenant of Kent: (a) The Duke of Berwick and the Duke of Ormond were honour'd with Garters; and the former, who was a little diſcontented becauſe he did not command the Fleet, was made Governor of the Tower, in the room of Sir Edward Hales, a Roman-Catholick. And on Octob. 28. His Majeſty was pleas'd to conſtitute the Right Honourable the Lord Viſcount Preſton one of His Principal Secretaries of State, upon the Removal of the Earl of Sunderland from that Office (b), whom the King diſcover'd (as he did other Things) too late, to be inclinable to the expected Revolution.

Prince of Orange prepares for England;

(c) While King James was under theſe Diſtractions at Home and Abroad, the Prince of Orange was embarking his Troops with extraordinary Diligence; and to juſtify his Undertaking to the whole World, publiſh'd a Declaration, dated Octob. 10. N. S. divided into Six and Twenty Articles, which may be reduc'd to Three Principal Heads.

Publiſhes a Declaration.

"The Firſt contain'd an Enumeration of the Grievances of the Engliſh Nation, particularly his Majeſty's arrogating to himſelf a Diſpenſing Power; his advancing Papiſts to Civil, Eccleſiaſtical, and Military Employments, and allowing them to ſit in the Privy-Council: His ſetting up an illegal Commiſſion for Eccleſiaſtical Affairs, (in which there was one of his Majeſty's Miniſters of State, who made publick Profeſſion of the Popiſh Religion, and who, at the Time of his firſt profeſſing it, declar'd, That for a great while before, he had believ'd that to be the only True Religion;) and by which not only the Biſhop of London was ſuſpended, but the Preſident and Fellows of Magdalen-College arbitrarily turn'd out of their Freeholds, contrary to that expreſs Proviſion in Magna Charta, That no Man ſhall loſe Life or Goods, but by the Law of the Land: His allowing Popiſh Monaſteries and Colleges of Jeſuits to be created: His turning out of publick Employments, all ſuch as would not concur with his Majeſty, in the Repeal of the Teſt and Penal Laws: His invading the Privileges, and ſeizing on the Charters of moſt Corporations, and placing Popiſh Magiſtrates in ſome of them: His ſubjecting the Courts of Judicature to his Arbitrary and Deſpotick Power, and putting the Adminiſtration of Juſtice into the Hands of Papiſts: His not only arming the Papiſts, in Contempt of the Laws, but likewiſe raiſing them up to the greateſt Military Truſt, both by Sea and Land, Strangers as well as Natives, and Iriſh as well as Engliſh, that he might be in a Capacity to enſlave the Nation: His putting the whole Government of Ireland into the Hands of Papiſts: His aſſuming an Abſolute and Arbitrary Power in the Kingdom of Scotland; from which it was apparent, what was to be look'd for in England.

Secondly, "His Highneſs alledg'd, That thoſe great and inſufferable Oppreſſions, and the open Contempt of all Law, together with the Apprehenſions of the ſad Conſequences that muſt certainly follow upon it, had made the Subjects to look after ſuch Remedies, as are allow'd of in all Nations, and in the moſt Abſolute Monarchies; all which had been without Effect: His Majeſty's Evil Counſellors having endeavour'd to make all Men apprehend the Loſs of their Lives, Liberties, Honours, and Eſtates, if they ſhou'd go about to preſerve themſelves from this Oppreſſion by Petitions and Repreſentations; an Inſtance of which, was the Proſecution of the Seven Biſhops: That a Peer of the Realm was treated as a Criminal, only becauſe he ſaid, That the Subjects were not bound to obey the Orders of a Popiſh Juſtice of Peace; though 'tis evident, That they being by Law render'd incapable of all ſuch Truſts, no Regard is due to their Orders: That both he, and his Conſort the Princeſs, had endeavour'd to ſignify, with Terms full of Reſpect to the King, the juſt and deep Regret which all theſe Proceedings had given them, and declar'd what their Thoughts were, touching the Repealing of the Teſts and Penal Laws; but that theſe Evil Counſellors had put ſuch ill Conſtructions on their good Intentions, that they had endeavour'd to alienate the King more and more from them. That the laſt and great Remedy for all theſe Evils, was, the Calling of a Parliament; which cou'd not yet be compaſs'd, nor cou'd be eaſily brought about: For thoſe Men apprehending, that a Lawful Parliament wou'd bring them to Account for all their open Violations of Law, and for their Conſpiracies againſt the Proteſtant Religion, and the Lives and Liberties of the Subjects; they had endeavour'd, under the ſpecious Pretence of Liberty of Conſcience, firſt to ſow Diviſions between thoſe of the Church of England and Diſſenters, with Deſign to engage Proteſtants, who are equally concern'd to preſerve themſelves from Popiſh Oppreſſion, into mutual Quarrellings; that ſo, by theſe, ſome Advantages might be given to them to bring about their Deſigns; and that, both in Elections of Members of Parliament, and afterwards in the Parliament it ſelf: That they had alſo made ſuch Regulations as they thought fit and neceſſary, for ſecuring all the Members that were to be choſen by (a) Mr. Echard obſerves, that the Duke of Newcaſtle, the Earls of Lindſey, Derby, Pembroke, and Aylesbury, and the Lords Faulconberg and Jermyn, with ſome few more of the Nobility, offer'd their Service to his Majeſty; whereupon the King gave Commiſſions to the Duke of Newcaſtle to raiſe a Regiment of Foot; to the Lord Brandon, Son to the Earl of Macclesfield, and to the Marquis of Miremont, Nephew to the Earl of Feverſham, each a Regiment of Horſe; to Colonel Henry Gage, and Colonel Solomon Richards, Two Regiments of Foot. —— And the young Duke of Ormond offered to ſerve as a Volunteer in the Army, &c.

(b) The Earl of Sunderland tells us in his Letter of March 23. 1689. —— At laſt, Accuſations of High-Treaſon were brought againſt me, which with ſome other Reaſons relating to Affairs Abroad, drew the Kings Diſpleaſure upon me, ſo as to turn me out of all, without any Conſideration; and yet I thought I eſcaped well, expecting nothing leſs than the Loſs of my Head, as my Lord Middleton can tell, and I believe none about the Court thought otherwiſe; nor had it been otherwiſe, if my Diſgrace had been deferred a Day longer. All Things being prepared for it, I was put out the 27th of October; the Roman-Catholicks having been Two Months working up the King to it, without Intermiſſion; beſides the ſeveral Attacks they had made upon me before, and the unuſual Aſſiſtance they obtained to do what they thought ſo neceſſary for the carrying on their Affairs, of which they never had greater Hope than at that Time, as may be remembred by any who were then at London.

(c) The Prince had certainly an Invitation in Writing, ſubſcribed by ſeveral Peers and Gentlemen, the firſt Draught was ſaid to be drawn by Thomas Wharton, Eſq; and when approv'd and ſign'd, it was thought to be carried over by the Earl of Shrewsbury.

1688. 4 Jac. II. "the Corporations; by which Means they hop'd to "avoid the Puniſhment they had deſerv'd; though "it was apparent, that all Acts made by Popiſh "Magiſtrates were null and void of themſelves: "So that no Parliament cou'd be Lawful, for which "the Elections and Returns were made by Popiſh "Magiſtrates, Sheriffs, and Mayors of Towns; "and therefore as long as the Magiſtracy was in "ſuch Hands, it was not poſſible to have a Free "Parliament, legally call'd and choſen. That there "were great and violent Preſumptions, inducing "his Highneſs to believe, that thoſe Evil Coun-"ſellors, in order to the gaining the more Time for "the Effecting of their ill Deſigns, had publiſh'd, "That the Queen had brought forth a Son; though "there had appear'd, both during the Queen's pre-"tended Bigneſs, and in the Manner wherein the "Birth was managed, ſo many juſt and viſible "Grounds of Suſpicion, that not only he himſelf, "but all the good Subjects of this Kingdom, did "vehemently ſuſpect, That the pretended Prince of "Wales was not born of the Queen. And though "many both doubted of the Queen's Bigneſs, and "of the Birth of the Child; yet there was not any "one Thing done to ſatisfy them, or put an End to "their Doubts. That ſince his Conſort the Prin-"ceſs, and likewiſe he himſelf, had ſo great an In-"tereſt in this Matter, and ſuch a Right as all the "World knew to the Succeſſion of the Crown; ſince "all the Engliſh did in the Year 1672, when Hol-"land was invaded with a moſt unjuſt War, uſe their "utmoſt Endeavours to put an End to that War, "and that in Oppoſition to thoſe who were then in "the Government; ſince the Engliſh Nation had "ever teſtify'd a moſt particular Affection and E-"ſteem both to his Highneſs's deareſt Conſort, and "to himſelf, he could not excuſe himſelf from "eſpouſing that Intereſt, in a Matter of ſuch high "Conſequence, and from contributing all that in "him lay, for the maintaining both of the Prote-"ſtant Religion, and of the Laws and Liberties of "theſe Kingdoms: To the doing of which, his "Highneſs was moſt earneſtly ſolicited by a great ma-"ny Lords, both Spiritual and Temporal, and by "many Gentlemen, and other Subjects of all "Ranks.

Laſtly, (a) "His Highneſs declar'd, That for the "forementioned Reaſons, he has thought fit to go "over to England, and to carry with him a Force "ſufficient to defend him from the Violence of thoſe "Evil Counſellors. That his Expedition was in-"tended for no other Deſign, but to have a Free "and Lawful Parliament aſſembled, as ſoon as it "was poſſible; and that in order to this, all the "late Charters, by which the Elections of Burgeſſes "were limited, contrary to the ancient Cuſtom, "ſhou'd be conſider'd as null, and of no Force. "That to this Parliament, he wou'd refer the En-"quiry into the Birth of the Pretended Prince of "Wales, and of all Things relating thereto, and to "the Right of Succeſſion. That he wou'd concur "in every Thing that might procure the Peace and "Happineſs of the Nation, under a Juſt and Legal "Government. That he wou'd keep the Forces "under his Command under all the Strictneſs of "Martial Diſcipline; and promis'd, that he would "ſend back all thoſe Foreign Forces, as ſoon as the "State of the Nation wou'd admit of it. That "therefore, he invited and required all Perſons "whatſoever to come and aſſiſt him, in order to "the executing his Deſign, againſt all ſuch as ſhou'd "endeavour to oppoſe him. That he wou'd like-"wiſe take Care that a Parliament ſhou'd be call'd "in Scotland, for reſtoring the Ancient Conſtitution "of that Kingdom, and for bringing the Matters of "Religion to ſuch a Settlement, that the People "might live eaſy and happy. That he wou'd alſo "ſtudy to bring the Kingdom of Ireland to ſuch a "State, that the Settlement there might be religi-"ouſly obſerv'd, and that the Proteſtant and Bri-"tiſh Intereſt there might be ſecured". And con-cludes thus; "That he wou'd endeavour, by all "poſſible Means, to procure ſuch an Eſtabliſhment "throughout all the Three Kingdoms, that they "might all live in a happy Union and Correſpon-"dence together; and that the Proteſtant Religion, "and the Peace, Honour, and Happineſs of theſe "Nations might be eſtabliſhed upon laſting Foun-"dations.

This Declaration was ready to be ſent over to England, with another to the ſame Purpoſe for Scotland; when his Highneſs being inform'd, that King James, by granting moſt of the Biſhops Demands, had taken Meaſures to render it ineffectual, caus'd the following Addition to be made to it.

"After we had prepar'd and printed our Decla-"ration, we have underſtood, that the Subverters "of the Religion and Laws of theſe Kingdoms, "hearing of our Preparations to aſſiſt the People "againſt them, have begun to retract ſome of the "Arbitrary and Deſpotick Powers that they had aſ-"ſum'd, and to vacate ſome of their Unjuſt "Judgments and Decrees. The Senſe of their "Guilt, and the Diſtruſt of their Force, have in-"duc'd them to offer to the City of London, ſome "ſeeming Relief from their great Oppreſſions; "hoping thereby to quiet the People, and to divert "them from demanding a Re-eſtabliſhment of their "Religion and Laws, under the Shelter of our "Arms: They did alſo give out, That we do intend "to conquer and enſlave the Nations; and there-"fore it is we have thought fit to add a few "Words to our Declaration.

"We are confident, that no Perſons can have "ſuch hard Thoughts of Us, as to imagine we "have any other Deſign in this our Undertaking, "than to procure a Settlement of the Religion, "and of the Liberties and Properties of the Sub-"jects, upon ſo ſure a Foundation, that there may "be no Danger of the Nation's relapſing into the "like Miſeries at any Time hereafter. And as the "Forces we have brought along with us, are utter-"ly diſproportion'd to that wicked Deſign of Con-"quering the Nation, if we were capable of in-"tending it; ſo the great Numbers of the Principal "Nobility and Gentry, that are Men of Eminent "Qualities and Eſtates, and Perſons of known In-"tegrity and Zeal both for the Religion and Go-"vernment of England, many of them being alſo "diſtinguiſh'd by their conſtant Fidelity to the "Crown, who do both accompany us in this Ex-"pedition, and have earneſtly ſolicited us to it, will "cover us from all ſuch malicious Inſinuations: For "it is not to be imagin'd, that either thoſe who "have invited us, or thoſe who are already come "to aſſiſt us, can join in a wicked Attempt of "Conqueſt, to make void their own Lawful Titles "to their Honours, Eſtates and Intereſts.

"We are alſo confident, that all Men ſee how "little Weight there is to be laid on all Promiſes "and Engagements that can be now made, ſince "there has been ſo little Regard had in the Time "paſt to the moſt ſolemn Promiſes. And as that "imperfect Redreſs that is now offer'd, is a plain

(a) Don Pedro de Ronquillo the Spaniſh Ambaſſador at London delivered out the Prince's Declarations himſelf; and it was pleaſant afterwards to obſerve the miſtaken Zeal of the Populace, who fell upon that Miniſter's Houſe for being a Papiſt, thinking he had been an Enemy to the Cauſe, which he had done what he could to advance; they plundred it, as they did the Popiſh Chapels: But ample Satisfaction was given him after the Kingdom was ſettled under King William and Queen Mary.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

" Confeſſion of thoſe Violences of the Government " that we have ſet forth; ſo the Defectiveneſs of it " is no leſs apparent: For they lay down nothing " which they may not take up at Pleaſure; and " they reſerve entire, and not ſo much as mention " their Claims and Pretences to an Arbitrary and " Deſpotick Power; which has been the Root of " all their Oppreſſion, and of the total Subverſion " of the Government. And it is plain, that there " can be no Redreſs, no Remedy offer'd, but in " Parliament, by a Declaration of the Rights of " the Subjects that have been invaded, and not by " any pretended Acts of Grace, to which the Ex- " tremity of their Affairs has driven them. There- " fore it is that we have thought fit to declare, that " we will refer all to a Free Aſſembly of this Nation, " in a Lawful Parliament.

K. James's Proclamation.

King James (a), by a Proclamation dated Nov. 2. endeavour'd to keep the Prince's Declaration from the Knowledge of the People; but it was the more induſtriouſly ſpread: So that the Court it ſelf thought fit it ſhou'd be printed, with ſome ſpecious Animadverſions upon it. And about the ſame Time, this Letter of the Prince to the Engliſh Army was likewiſe printed.

The Prince of Orange's Letter to the Engliſh Army.

Gentlemen and Friends,

" WE (b) have given you ſo full and true an " Account of our Intentions in this Expe- " dition in our Declaration; that as we can add no- " thing to it, ſo we aſſure our ſelves you can deſire " nothing more of us. We are come to preſerve " your Religion, and to reſtore and eſtabliſh your " Liberties and Properties: And therefore we cannot " ſuffer our ſelves to doubt, but that all true Eng- " liſhmen will come to concur with us, in our De- " ſire to ſecure theſe Nations from Popery and Sla- " very. You muſt all plainly ſee, that you are on- " ly made uſe of, as Inſtruments to enſlave the Na- " tion, and ruin the Proteſtant Religion: And when " that is done, you may judge, what you your ſelves " ought to expect, both from the caſhiering of all " the Proteſtants, both Engliſh Officers and Soldi- " ers in Ireland, and by the Iriſh Soldiers being " brought over to be put in your Places; and of " which you have ſeen ſo freſh an Inſtance, that we " need not put you in mind of it. You know how " ill many of your Fellow-Officers have been uſed, " for their ſtanding firm for the Proteſtant Religion, " and to the Laws of England; and you cannot " flatter your ſelves ſo far, as to expect to be better " uſed, if thoſe who have broke their Word ſo oft- " en, ſhou'd, by your Means, be brought out of " thoſe Straits to which they are reduc'd at preſent. " We hope likewiſe you will not ſuffer your ſelves " to be abus'd, by a falſe Notion of Honour; but " that you will, in the firſt Place, conſider what " you owe to Almighty God, and your Religion, to " your Country, to your Selves, and to your Poſte- " rity; which you, as Men of Honour, ought to " prefer to all private Conſiderations and Engage- " ments whatſoever. We do therefore expect, that " you will conſider the Honour that is now ſet be- " fore you, of being the Inſtruments of ſerving " your Country, and ſecuring your Religion: And " we will ever remember the Service you will do us " upon this Occaſion; and will promiſe unto you, " That we ſhall place ſuch particular Marks of our " Favour on every one of you, as your Behaviour " at this Time ſhall deſerve of us, and the Nation " In which we will make a great Diſtinction of " thoſe that ſhall ſeaſonably join their Arms with " ours: And you ſhall find us to be,

Your Well-Wiſhing

and aſſured Friend,

W. H. P. O.

Letter of Admiral Herbert to the Engliſh Fleet.

This Letter was ſpread (under-hand) through the whole Army and Militia, and had a ſtrange Effect upon the Minds of them; for they now at leaſt reſolv'd never to draw their Swords againſt his Highneſs, till the Religion and Liberties of England were ſecured: And Admiral Herbert, from on-board the Leyden at the Goree, wrote a Letter to the Engliſh Fleet, that had the like Influence upon the Seamen, concluding thus; I, as a true Engliſhman, and your Friend, exhort you to join your Arms to the Prince, for the Defence of the Common Cauſe, the Proteſtant Religion, and the Liberties of your Country. It is, what I am well-aſſur'd, the major and beſt Part of the Army as well as the Nation will do, as ſoon as Conveniences offer. Prevent them, in ſo good an Action, whilſt it is in your Power; and may it appear, That as the Kingdom hath always depended on the Navy for its Defence; ſo you will yet go farther by making it as much as in you lies, the Protection of her Religion and Liberties; and then you may aſſure your ſelves of all Marks of Favour and Honour ſuitable to the Merits of ſo great and glorious an Action.

Speech of the Prince of Orange to the States-General.

The Prince was now ready to embark, and therefore on the 26th of Oct. N. S. he went into the Aſſembly of the States-General to take his Leave of them, and deliver'd himſelf to this Effect; " That " he was infinitely oblig'd to them, and was ſorry " he had no Opportunity to ſhew his Inclination, " Love and Affection unto them as they had done " to him: That he had hitherto been encouraged " and ſupported by their Aſſiſtance, which they had " ſo abundantly contributed to him, both by Coun- " ſel and otherwiſe: That it was needleſs for him " to recapitulate the Reaſons which induced him " to leave his Native Country: That he hop'd and " pray'd, That God would endue him with Wiſ- " dom, Foreſight and Courage, and not withdraw " his Arm from him in Time of Need: That he

(a) By the King. A Proclamation forbidding to publiſh, diſperſe, repeat, or hand about any treaſonable Papers or Declarations. Given at Whitehall, Nov. 2. 1688. Reg. 4.

(b) It has not been yet obſerv'd, that what gave the Prince of Orange the greateſt Advantage, was the quarrelling of King James's Miniſters among themſelves. In Ireland there was a deadly Feud between Tyrconnel the Governor, and Shendon Secretary of State, proſecuted by Letters, Remonſtrances, and even Iriſh Ambaſſadors (as they call'd 'em) ſent over to the King and Council. And in England the Miniſtry was breaking all to pieces. Father Petre had been ſtriking at Chancellor Jefferies, for being too cold and ſlow in the Caſe of Magdalen-College; and towards the End of December, 1687. it was reſolv'd in the Cabinet, that Jefferies ſhould be remov'd, and that Three of the Lords of the Treaſury ſhould be made Commiſſioners of the Broad Seal. The Earl of Caſtlemain by Father Petre's Intereſt, and even a Letter from the Pope in his Behalf, was to be Lord Treaſurer. But that Scheme was broke, to the greater Rupture among the Miniſters; and then Caſtlemain was to go over Lieutenant of Ireland, which ſtill rais'd the greater Jealouſies and Hatreds; becauſe it appear'd plain that the French King was for keeping in Tyrconnel, whom the Engliſh Popiſh Lords Bellaſis and Powis would have turn'd out. Of the other Engliſh Miniſters, the Earl of Sunderland was every Day more and more ſuſpected of oppoſing the French Intereſt, and of keeping Correſpondence (at leaſt by his Lady) with the Prince of Orange's Court; turn'd out of his Preſidentſhip of the Council, Octob. 28. and as he himſelf ſoon after declar'd, he had not eſcap'd without the Loſs of his Head, if his Diſgrace had been deferr'd a Day longer. The Earl of Mulgrave, Biſhop Sprat, and others, were only thinking of making Apologies for what they had already done. Others were ſuing out Pardons before the Meeting of a Parliament, as Lord Chancellor Jefferies, Sir Nicholas Butler, the Biſhops of Durham and Cheſter, and about Twenty more.

" cal-

1688. 4 Jac. II.

"called God to Witneſs he did not undertake ſuch "an arduous Affair, but for his Glory: That his "only Aim was for the Honour of God, the Welfare of their Country, and of the Chriſtian Religion; and that therefore he hoped God would "beſtow his Bleſſing on it, and if by the Bleſſing of "God he ſhould attain his Ends, to ſet the States "at greater Liberty, and free them from the Fear "of their Neighbours, and the haughty Tyranny "of thoſe that would enſlave them: That he had "left the Care of the Army to Prince Waldeck, and "earneſtly deſir'd the States to aſſiſt him, and to be "Unanimous among themſelves". Here he ſeem'd to ſtop, and after ſome Pauſe he paſſionately recommended one Thing more to them, "That as he did "not know how God might diſpoſe of him, ſince "he had put on his Sword, and knew not when he "ſhould put it off: But in Caſe God ſhould let "that befal him, which had happened to many "others, and that he ſhould loſe his Life in the "Expedition; They would then take the Princeſs, "his Wife, under their Protection, who was as "well-affected to that Country and the Proteſtant "Religion, as he himſelf was; and he was ſatiſfy'd ſhe could no where find ſuch a ſecure Place as "under the Wings of the States: That he had but "one Thing more to deſire, which was, That they "would always remember him in their publick and "private Prayers, as in his own he ſhould have the "ſame Regard for them". With which the Tears ran down his Face, and the Penſionary return'd him an Aſwer in a very affectionate Manner.

The Prince Embarks.

On Oct. 20th (a), the Dutch Fleet, conſiſting of 52 Men of War, 25 Frigots, as many Fire-Ships, with near 400 Victuallers, and other Veſſels for Tranſportation of 3560 Horſe, and 10692 Foot, ſail'd frome Flats near the Brill, with the Wind S. W. S. The Prince embark'd on a Frigot of about 30 Guns, and with him Count Naſſau, General of the Horſe; Colonel De Soames, Colonel of his Foot Guards; Count Stirum, Monſieur Auverquerque, Monſieur Bentinck, and Monſieur Zeuleſtein. In the other Ships were many of the Nobility and Gentry of England, of which the Chief were, the Earl of Shrewsbury, the Earl of Macclesfield, Viſcount Mordant, the Earl of Argyle, the Lord Wiltſhire, the Lord Pawlet, the Lord Elan, Son to the Marquis of Hallifax, and the Lord Dunblaine, Admiral Herbert, Mr. Henry Herbert, Mr. Sidney, Mr. Ruſſel, Sir Rowland Gwyn, Major Wildman, Mr. Harbord, Dr. Burnet, Mr. Liſter, and many others. And among Foreigners were the Great Mareſchal Schomberg, with his Son, Count Charles Schomberg; Monſieur Calimote, Son to the Marquis De Ruvigni, and Two or Three Hundred French Officers, who had left their Country for their Religion. Admiral Herbert had the Van of the Fleet, Vice-Admiral Everſon brought up the Rear, and the Prince placed himſelf in the main Body, carrying a Flag with Engliſh Colours, and their Highneſſes Arms with this Motto, The Proteſtant Religion, and the Liberties of England. And underneath it, the Motto of the Houſe of Naſſau, Je maintein drai. The Fleet were all under Sail, when the Wind coming more Weſtwardly, there aroſe ſuch a violent Storm in the Night, which continu'd with ſo much Fury for Twelve Hours, that they were forced to return to Helvoet-Sluice, or put into other Harbours.

The Dutch Fleet driven back by a Storm.

This a great Joy to the English Court.

This Diſaſter was a mighty Joy to the Papiſts, and Care was taken to aggravate the Loſs in the Engliſh Gazette; That 400 Horſes had been thrown over-Board, and ſeveral dead Men, one of their Men of War ſtranded, and another diſabled (b). And then again, That the Damage ſuſtain'd by the Dutch Fleet did appear to be much greater than was at firſt reported: That there were 1500 Horſes dead and unſerviceable; the Prince of Orange had loſt moſt of his own, and the Mareſchal Schomberg the beſt of his Horſes; his Son, Count Charles, was in great Danger, the Ship he was in having ſpent her Main-Maſt; a Captain of Horſe in the Sieur Bentinck's Regiment was miſſing, with his whole Troop; and Two Captains of the Foot-Guards were likewiſe miſſing, with their Companies, &c. The ſame aggravating Reports were induſtriouſly ſpread in Holland, with a different Deſign for to make the Engliſh Court more remiſs in their Preparations; the Harlem and Amſterdam Gazettes were order'd to make a lamentable Relation of the great Damages the Dutch Fleet and the Army Aboard them, had ſuſtain'd. Nine of the Men of War loſt, beſides others of leſs Value; 1000 Horſes caſt over-board; Dr. Burnet and ſeveral Engliſh Gentlemen drown'd; what an ill Opinion the States-General had of the Expedition; and that it was next to an Impoſſibility, that the Prince could be in a Condition to purſue his Deſign till the next Spring.

In the mean Time, Captain Langham, who belong'd to one of the Engliſh Regiments in Holland, and was juſt arrived from thence, was ſeized upon Suſpicion; and in his Portmanteau were found a Bundle of the Prince of Orange's Declarations, which were the firſt that were brought over. When that Expreſſion came to be read, That the Prince was moſt earneſtly invited hither, by divers of the Lords both Spiritual and Temporal, and by many Gentlemen and others; the King ſent for the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and Two or Three more who were then in Town; and asked them, Whether the Contents of the Prince's Declaration, relating to their inviting Him hither, were true? The Biſhops were cautious in their Anſwer, and would only promiſe their faithful Allegiance to His Majeſty, and that they would own no other King. His Majeſty then required a Paper under their Hands, in Abhorrence of the Prince's intended Invaſion; which they ſeem'd readily to comply with, after they had conſulted with their other Brethren; and therefore deſir'd Time to conſider of it, which His Majeſty allow'd.

The King queſtions the Archbiſhop and Biſhops.

Their Anſwer.

He requires a Paper under their Hands:

(a) The Account is thus given by an eminent Prelate, who came over with the Prince. "We ſet out firſt on the 19th of "October, in fair Weather, but next Day we had a violent Storm, "which with we ſtruggled Three Days in no ſmall Danger, "conſidering the great Number of the Ships of War and "Tranſport. After Three Days we came into Port, without "the Loſs of any one Veſſel, and but of one Man. Ten "Days after that, we had a more proſperous Navigation: The "late Duke of Leeds and other Lords, who had preſs'd the "Prince moſt to this Undertaking, mov'd for his Landing in "the Mouth of the Humber. This was oppos'd by all the Seamen, "but inſiſted on with ſo poſitive a Vehemence from England, "that the Prince reſolv'd to comply with it. A ſtrong Eaſt "Wind made this impracticable; ſo we ſail'd into the Channel, deſigning to land at Dartmouth, or in Torbay. But a "ſtrong Gale and a bold Pilot carried us beyond thoſe Ports; "and on the Fifth of November when Day-Light ſhew'd us the "Coaſt, we ſaw our Danger, and apprehended we might be "forc'd to ſail on to Falmouth, which gave us a very melancholy Proſpect. But in the Minute in which we ſaw this "Danger, the Wind turn'd to the South, and with a ſoft Gale "carried us into Torbay, and we happen'd to land at the moſt "convenient Place for landing a Body of Horſe, that perhaps "is to be found round the whole Iſland; ſo that in Three "Hours Time above Seven Thouſand Horſes were landed, and "the Diſpatch was ſuch, that the Day after we came into "Torbay, we were in full March by one a Clock. Now our "Fleet was ſecur'd and well cover'd from Weſt Winds, which "did blow out the next Night into ſuch a Storm, that the "Lord Dartmouth who was following us with the King's Fleet, "and if he had come up, would very probably deſtroy'd our "Fleet, where our Artillery, Arms, and Ammunition did ſtill "lie: He, I ſay, was ſo ſtopp'd by theſe Weſterly Winds, that "he could keep out at Sea no longer, but was forc'd to go into Portſmouth.

(b) And yet there was, By the King, a Proclamation to reſtrain the ſpreading of falſe News. Given at Whitehall, Octob. 26. in the Fourth Year of our Reign.

Some

They refuſe to give it.

Some few Days after the Prince's Landing, the Biſhops were call'd upon to perform what the King call'd their Promiſe: They anſwer'd, "That the "Prince of Orange had in his Declaration given out "that He was invited by the Lords Spiritual and "Temporal; and therefore, They being but Five "or Six in Number, could not ſigh a Paper which "concern'd not only the whole Epiſcopal Order, but "alſo all the Peers in England; and therefore de"ſir'd His Majeſty to refer that Matter to a Free "Parliament." The King was highly diſſatisfied with this Anſwer; and the Lord Preſton, who was then with the King, told the Biſhops, His Majeſty expected more from their Loyalty, and from the Principles of their Church. The Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who came only with the Biſhops of London, Rocheſter and Peterborough, ſeeing the Biſhops of Cheſter and St. David's in the King's Chamber, told the Lord Preſton, That if His Majeſty would have him ſpeak, He ſhould be pleaſed to command thoſe Two of their Brethren to withdraw: Which being granted, The King ask'd them again, if they had brought their Declaration of Abhorrence, according to Promiſe? They anſwer'd, They had never promiſed any ſuch Thing poſitively, but only to conſider of it; which the Lord Preſton confirm'd. They proceeded to ſay, That it was contrary to their Peerage and their Profeſſion, to promote War againſt a Prince ſo nearly allied to the Crown: However, if their Verbal Diſowning of the Allegations of the Prince of Orange, relating to the Spiritual Lords, could be of any Service to His Majeſty, they conſented it ſhould be printed; tho' they could not give it under their Hands, for the Reaſons abovementi on'd. The King reply'd, That People would never give Credit to any ſuch Printed Declaration without Names: But perceiving they continued firm in their Refuſal to ſubſcribe, (a) His Majeſty (with ſome Indignation) left them abruptly, and told them, He would truſt to his Army. From this Time, the Biſhop of Durham would appear no more at the Council-Board, but is ſaid to have told the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, That He was ſorry for having ſo long concurr'd with the Court; and deſir'd now to be reconcil'd to his Grace, and the other Biſhops.

The King is angry.

Their further Anſwer.

Biſhop of Durham comes over.

The King expected the Prince ſhould land in the North,

The King expected that the Prince of Orange would have Landed at Burlington-Bay, or at leaſt at ſome other Part in the North of England; and therefore He had ſent a ſtrong Detachment of his Army that way. He was the more ſurpriz'd to hear by ſeveral Expreſſes, that the Dutch Fleet was ſeen off of Dover, on the Third of November, ſteering their Courſe Weſtward: That on the 4th they lay near Portſmouth and the Iſle of Wight; and that on the 5th they landed at Torbay. His Majeſty likewiſe expected, that the Lord Dartmouth, his Admiral, would have attack'd the Dutch Fleet, according to his Orders; and therefore was the more concern'd to hear, that he never ſtirr'd from the Gun-Fleet near Harwich, where he rode with Thirty ſeven Men of War, and Seventeen Fireſhips. Whether a Fog interpos'd between the Engliſh and Dutch Navy, or whether the Lord Dartmouth found his Officers and Seamen ready to deſert him, or whether his Lordſhip himſelf was unwilling to hinder the Deliverance of his Country, is yet unknown. Whatever it was, there was a particular Providence, that the Prince of Orange found no Interruption at Sea, and loſt but Three little Veſſels of all his prodigious Fleet.

And expected that his Engliſh Fleet ſhould attack the Dutch.

The Duke of Berwick is ſent to Portſmouth.

Upon this Alarm of the Prince's Landing, the Duke of Berwick was ſent down to Portſmouth, with ſeveral Troops to ſecure that important Place, and to prevent (if poſſible) the People's running in to the Prince; and the reſt of the Forces, juſt before increaſed by the coming over of 4000 Iriſh, were order'd to march with all Speed towards Saliſbury-Plain, where the King propoſed to have an Army of 30000 Men, and to command 'em in Perſon. At the ſame Time, all Endeavours were uſed to repreſent the Prince and his Army contemptible in the Sight of the People, by Printing a falſe Liſt, and giving out, that but Nine of the Nobility and Gentry, and a few of the Rabble appear'd for him: And the King himſelf did appear ſo confident of his own Strength, that when He was inform'd that the City of London, and the Counties of York and Kent deſign'd to Addreſs Him for ſome Accommodation with the Prince of Orange; His Majeſty declar'd in Council, That He look'd upon all thoſe as his Enemies, who ſhould pretend to adviſe Him to Treat with the Invader of His Kingdoms. And thereupon He caus'd a Proclamation to be iſſued out, on Novemb. 6. declaring, (b) "That He could "not Call a Parliament, till his Kingdoms were "deliver'd from this Invaſion: And that He could "no ways doubt, but that all his Faithful and Lo"ving Subjects would readily and heartily con"cur and join with Him, in the entire Suppreſ"ſion and Repelling of thoſe his Enemies, and Re"bellious Subjects, who have ſo injuriouſly and "diſloyally invaded and diſturb'd the Peace and "Tranquility of theſe his Kingdoms.

The Prince of Orange repreſented as contemptible.

The King declares againſt any Treating with the Prince;

And calls upon all his Subjects to oppoſe him.

The Progreſs of the Prince.

The Prince, upon Landing, went to the Houſe of Sir William Courtney, and reſted there Two or Three Nights; and then march'd with his Army towards Exeter; whither Dr. Burnet was ſent before, to prepare Quarters for His Highneſs in the Deanery. On Friday, November 9th, His Highneſs enter'd the City of Exeter in a Glorious and Triumphant Manner, and went directly to the Cathedral Church, to thank God for his ſafe Arrival. After Prayers, Dr. Burnet began to read His Highneſs's Declaration: At which ſome of the Choir were ſo afraid, that they immediately left their Seats, and went out with ſome Buſtle: However, the Doctor continu'd reading, and at the Concluſion ſaid, God ſave the Prince of Orange: To which the major Part of the Congregation anſwer'd, Amen, Amen. As for the Biſhop, Dr. Lamplugh, as ſoon as he heard that the Prince was marching toward that City, he thought fit to leave his Palace, and to go directly for London, to pay his Duty to the King, and to receive His Majeſty's farther Commands. Which Prudence, or Timorouſ-

He enters into Exeter.

The Biſhop flies to London.

(a) One has added, That the King did ſo much inſiſt, argue, and expoſtulate with their Lordſhips, that they never ſaw him more vehement in his Speech, and tranſported in his Expreſſions than at that Time.——At laſt—His Majeſty parted with great Indignation. And thereupon the Jeſuited Party at Court were ſo openly enrag'd againſt them, that (as they were credibly inform'd) one of the Chief of them adviſ'd in a Heat, They ſhould All be impriſon'd, and the Truth ſhould be extorted from them by Violence.—— This, however, did demonſtrate, that there were Common Letters of Invitation; tho' the Prince of Orange, a True Maſter of Secrets, would never ſuffer them to be ſhewn to the World.

There was a good Appearance of the Nobility and Gentry in Arms toward the Northern Coaſts, to have receiv'd and join'd the Prince upon his Landing. The Earl of Danby, with Lord Fairfax, &c. had ſurpriz'd York, and Col. Copley, Hull. The Earl of Devonſhire at Nottingham; the Lord Delamere in Cheſhire, &c. where they made Speeches, and ſet forth Declarations, to oppoſe King James by Force: The E. of Devonſhire declaring, We own it a Rebellion to reſiſt a King that governs by Law; but He was always accounted a Tyrant, that made his Will the Law; and to reſiſt ſuch a one, we juſtly eſteem no Rebellion, but a neceſſary Defence.—— The Lord Delamere declaring, in like manner, I am of Opinion, that when the Nation is deliver'd, it muſt be by Force, or by Miracle: It would be a great Preſumption to expect the latter; and therefore our Deliverance muſt be by Force; and I hope this is the Time for it, &c.

(b) See the Intrigue laid by the Marquis of Powys and Mr. Chefinch, and confirm'd by the King himſelf, to ſend down Mr. Hugh Speke as a Spy into the Weſt, with Blank Paſſes, to give Account of the Motions and Deſigns of the Prince of Orange, &c. as related by Mr. Speke, in his Secret Hiſtory of the Revolution. 1715. 8vo.

neſs,

neſs, the King took for Loyalty, and immediately gave him the (a) Archbiſhoprick of York, which had been long kept vacant for a very ill Deſign.

Engagement of the Nobility and Gentry.

While His Highneſs was at Exeter, the Noblemen and Gentlemen there with him, enter'd into this Engagement : (b) "We do engage to Almighty "GOD, and to His Highneſs the Prince of Orange, and with one another, to ſtick firm to this "Cauſe, and to one another in the Defence of it ; "and never to depart from it, until our Religion, "Laws and Liberties are ſo far ſecured to us in a "Free Parliament, that they ſhall be no more in "Danger of falling under Popery and Slavery. And "whereas we are engaged in the Common Cauſe, "under the Protection of the Prince of Orange, by "which means his Perſon is expos'd to Danger, "and to the deſperate and curſed Deſigns of Papiſts, and other bloody Men ; We do therefore "ſolemnly engage to GOD, and to one another, "That if any ſuch Attempts be made upon Him, "we will purſue not only thoſe that made them, "but all their Adherents, and all we find in Arms "againſt us, with the utmoſt Severity of juſt Revenge, in their Ruin and Deſtruction : And that "the Executing any ſuch Attempt, (which GOD, "of his infinite Mercy, forbid) ſhall not deprive us "from purſuing this Cauſe which we do now undertake, but it ſhall encourage us to carry it on with "all the Vigor that ſo barbarous an Attempt ſhall "deſerve.

The Prince finds his Reception too cold.

The Prince expected, that upon his firſt Landing, all the Gentlemen of the Weſt would join Him ; but he found, that for Nine Days together, ſcarce any Perſon of Note had dar'd to come in ; and He perceiv'd, that the Mayor and Aldermen of Exeter came to viſit Him rather out of Fear than Affection ; That He wanted Recruits, and began more to want Money ; and therefore He was under ſome melancholy Doubts for the Succeſs of his Expedition. He held a (c) Council of War, and ſuffer'd it to be propos'd to Him to reimbark for Holland. But by this Time, the Gentlemen of Somerſetſhire and Dorſetſhire, in conſiderable Numbers, found the way to Exeter. The Prince, on Novemb. 15. receiv'd them in a Body, and ſpoke thus to 'em :

The Prince his Speech to the Gentlemen.

"THough We know not all your Perſons, yet "We have a Catalogue of your Names, and "remember the Character of your Worth and Intereſt in your Country. You ſee, We are come "according to your Invitation, and our Promiſe. "Our Duty to GOD, obliges Us to protect the "Proteſtant Religion ; and our Love to Mankind, "your Liberties and Properties. We expected, you "that dwelt ſo near the Place of Our Landing, "would have join'd Us ſooner : Not that it is now "too late, nor that we want your Military Aſſiſtance ſo much as your Countenance and Preſence, "to juſtify Our declared Pretenſions, rather than to "accompliſh Our Good and Gracious Deſigns. "Tho' We have brought both a good Fleet, and a "good Army, to render theſe Kingdoms happy, by "reſcuing all Proteſtants from Popery and Slavery, "and Arbitrary Power ; by reſtoring them to their "Rights and Properties eſtabliſh'd by Law, and "by promoting of Peace and Trade, which is the "Soul of Government, and the very Life and Blood "of a Nation ; yet We rely more on the Goodneſs "of GOD, and the Juſtice of Our Cauſe, than on "any Human Force and Power whatſoever. Yet "ſince GOD is pleas'd We ſhall make uſe of "Human Means, and not expect Miracles for "our Preſervation and Happineſs ; let Us not neglect making uſe of this Gracious Opportunity, "but with Prudence and Courage put in Execution "Our ſo Honourable Purpoſes. Therefore, Gentlemen, Friends, and Fellow-Proteſtants, We bid "You and all your Followers moſt heartily Welcome to Our Court and Camp. Let the whole "World now judge, if Our Pretenſions are not "Juſt, Generous, Sincere, and above Price ; ſince "We might have ev'n a Bridge of Gold to return "back : But it is Our Principle and Reſolution, rather to die in a Good Cauſe, than live in a Bad "one ; well knowing, that Virtue and True Honour "is its own Reward ; and the Happineſs of Mankind, Our Great and Only Deſign.

Many others come in to the Prince.

Theſe Gentlemen having broken the Ice, were ſoon follow'd by ſeveral other Perſons of greater Note : The Lord Colcheſter (Son to the Earl of Rivers, Lieutenant to the Lord Dover's Troop of Guards) waited upon His Highneſs, accompany'd by Thomas Wharton, Eſq; Colonel Godfrey, James How, Eſq; ſome Life-Guards of his Troop, and about Threeſcore more on Horſeback. The Lord Cornbury (Colonel of the Royal Regiment of Dragoons) pretending an Order from the King to go and beat-up one of the Enemies advanc'd Poſts, carry'd off with him his own Regiment, and the Royal Regiment of Horſe, and the Duke of St. Alban's Regiment, commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Langſton, and with the major-part of them went in to the Prince at Exeter ; where, the Day before, came in the Lord Abingdon, Mr. Ruſſel, Captain Clargis, and many others : And indeed, moſt of the Nobility and Gentry were forming themſelves into Parties in every County of England, to be ready for the Prince's Service, as ſoon as they cou'd have Opportunity to join him. The Lord Lovelace was the only Perſon intercepted, as he was going with that Deſign, with about 60 or 70 Horſe-Men, who too boldly took their Lodging at Cirenceſter, while the Militia of that County were there in Arms, by whom, after an obſtinate Oppoſition, they were taken Priſoners, and ſent to Glouceſter. The Court was extremely pleas'd with this Apprehenſion of the Lord Lovelace ; but ſo mortify'd preſently upon it, with the News of my Lord Cornbury's Deſertion, that at firſt the Trains of Artillery, the King's Equipage, and the reſt of the Troops that were moving towards Saliſbury, had Orders to ſtop their March, it being now uncertain whether the King wou'd go to the Army or not : However, after ſeveral Conſultations, which the Earl of Feverſham held with the General Officers, and at which the Count De Roy aſſiſted, it was

Ld. Lovelace intercepted.

The King in Suſpenſe.

(a) It was publickly declared in the Gazette to be His Majeſty's Pleaſure, to tranſlate the Lord Biſhop of Exeter to the Archbiſhoprick of York, and the Lord Biſhop of Briſtol to the See of Exeter. It ought to have been remember'd, that the Ceremonies of the Tranſlation of the Biſhop of Exeter to York, were perform'd at Lambeth, and Homage done to King James, Decemb. 9.

(b) The like Engagement, or Aſſociation, was readily ſubſcrib'd by Multitudes of People in ſeveral Places ; even in Oxford, by the higheſt Profeſſors of Church-Loyalty, Dr. Jane, Dr. Finch, &c. While the Prince of Orange was in the City of Exeter, [rather in the Road from thence] there came to Him a Head of a College, who invited Him thither in the Name of that Univerſity, [nay, and made an Offer of the Publick Plate, for the Service of his Highneſs ;] and his Highneſs deſign'd to go to that City, had not King James's Flight from London call'd him thither, when He was got as near Oxford as Abingdon. However, the above-mention'd Aſſociation was carry'd to the Univerſity, and ſign'd by the Heads of the Houſes, and others, with Expreſſions of the greateſt Zeal in this Reſiſting Cauſe ; 'That their Hearts went with their Hands. Secret Hiſt. of Europe, P. XI. p. 193.

(c) It is certain, that the Prince's Landing in the Weſt was a Second Diſappointment, greater than the Storm at Sea : For before He ſet out from Holland, all the Motions of his Friends were toward the North, as they began now to be Weſtward ; where there having been no Expectance, there could be no manner of Preparation : And the firſt that mov'd that way, the Lord Lovelace, was taken on the Road. And yet poſſibly, the ſtrong Eaſt Winds that drove him to Torbay, were the Breathings of Providence upon him : For as He had no Help, He met with no Reſiſtance ; as He might have ſuffer'd in the North, where the King's Forces were ſent down, the Gariſons were better fill'd, and the Scots were near.

thought

1688. 4 Jac. II.

thought neceſſary, That the King ſhou'd haſten his Departure, that he might, by his Preſence, keep thoſe firm who begin to ſtagger.

At this Juncture, moſt of the Proteſtant Lords who were then in London, (viz.) the Archbiſhops of Canterbury and of York, the Biſhops of St. Aſaph, Ely, Rocheſter, Peterborough, and ev'n of Oxford, the Dukes of Grafton and Ormond, the Earls of Clare, Clarendon, Burlington, Angleſey and Rocheſter, Viſcount Newport, and the Lords Paget, Shandois and Oſſulſton, drew up a (a) Petition; wherein they told the King, "That in the deep Senſe of the "Miſeries of a War, now breaking out in the "Bowels of this Kingdom, &c. they did think "themſelves bound in Conſcience, and out of the "Duty they owe to GOD, their Holy Religion, "his Majeſty, and their Country, moſt humbly to "offer to his Majeſty, That, in their Opinions, "the only viſible Way to preſerve his Majeſty and "his Kingdom, wou'd be, the Calling of a Parliament, Regular and Free in all Reſpects: That "therefore they did moſt earneſtly beſeech his Majeſty, That he wou'd be pleas'd, with all Speed, "to call ſuch a Parliament, wherein they ſhou'd be "moſt ready to promote ſuch Counſels and Reſolutions of Peace and Settlement in Church and "State, as might conduce to his Majeſty's Honour "and Safety, and to the Quieting the Minds of his "People; and likewiſe, they did moſt humbly beſeech his Majeſty, in the mean Time, to uſe ſuch "Means for preventing the Effuſion of Chriſtian "Blood, as to His Majeſty ſhould ſeem moſt meet "and proper." (b) The Duke of Norfolk, the Marquis of Halifax, the Earls of Oxford and Nottingham, and the Lord Carbery, who were at the drawing up of this Petition, would have a Clauſe inſerted, That the Peers who had join'd the Prince, might Sit in that Free Parliament for which they Petition'd His Majeſty; but the other Lords thought this Clauſe needleſs. This Petition was preſented to the King on Saturday, Novemb. 17. by the Two Archbiſhops, and the Biſhops of Ely and Rocheſter. His Majeſty, who was adviſ'd by the Popiſh Lords about Him, to rely on His Army, rather than truſt Himſelf with a Parliament, gave 'em this Anſwer: That what they ask'd of Him, He Himſelf moſt paſſionately deſir'd: That therefore He promis'd them, on the Faith of a King, that He would have a Parliament, and ſuch an one as they ask'd for, as ſoon as ever the Prince of Orange had quitted this Realm; but, in the mean time, it was not poſſible a Parliament ſhould be Free, whilſt an Enemy was in the Kingdom, and could make a Return of near an Hundred Voices. By this Anſwer, however plauſible it was, the King entirely ruin'd his Intereſt; for the leaſt diſcerning Perſon cou'd not but perceive, that the Prince of Orange's Army, was the only Human Security the Nation had for the Calling of a Free Parliament; and that if King James ſhould force His Highneſs to leave the Kingdom, all their Laws and Liberties muſt become precarious, and lie at the Mercy of the Conqueror.

Petition of the Lords to the King.

The King's Anſwer not Gracious.

On the ſame Day, November 17. the King began his Journey towards Saliſbury; and juſt before his ſetting out, He call'd ſome of the Officers who were then about him, (the Duke of Grafton, the Lord Churchill, Colonel Trelawney, and Colonel Kirk) and ſpoke to 'em in this manner: According to the Lords Petition, I have engaged my Royal Word to call a Free Parliament, as ſoon as ever the Prince of Orange has quitted the Kingdom; and am reſolved to do all that lies in my Power, to quiet the Minds of my People, by Securing their Religion, Laws and Liberties. If you deſire any Thing more, I am ready to grant it: But if after all this any of you is not ſatisfied, let him declare himſelf: I am willing to grant Paſſes to all ſuch as have a Mind to go over to the Prince of Orange, and ſpare them the Shame of deſerting their Lawful Sovereign. At the ſame Time, His Majeſty recommended the Care of the City to the Lord-Mayor, telling him, He left a ſufficient Number of Troops for their Defence: That upon any Exigence, he ſhould apply himſelf to the Privy-Council; aſſuring him, That if He return'd Victorious, He would punctually perform what He had already promiſed, for the Security of their Religion and Liberties. The King committed the Adminiſtration of Affairs (in his Abſence) to the Lord Chancellor, the Lords Arundel, Bellaſis, Preſton and Godolphin; which was not at all to the People's Satisfaction. In the mean Time, Father Petre, who had been the great Author of theſe Dangers to the King, run away from them, and went over to France, under the Protection of the Lord Walgrave, who was ſent thither in the Room of Colonel Skelton.

The King goes to Saliſbury.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

His Speech to his Officers;

And to the Lord-Mayor.

(c) The King arriv'd at Saliſbury on Monday-Night, Nov. 19. and took up his Lodging in the Biſhop's Palace. The next Day, He was going out to view Part of his Army, when his Noſe fell a bleeding in ſo violent a manner, that nothing could ſtop it but the breathing a Vein; which hinder'd His Majeſty from going the next Day to Warminſter, the moſt advanc'd Poſt of his Army. Upon this little Interruption, moſt of the Chief Officers apply'd themſelves to the Earl of Feverſham, deſiring him to aſſure His Majeſty, That upon any Occaſion, they would be ready to ſpill the laſt Drop of their Blood in his Service; yet they could not in Conſcience fight againſt a Prince, who was come over with no other Deſign than to procure the Calling of a Free Parliament, for the Security of their Religion and Liberties. By this, the King might very well perceive, how little he was to depend upon his Army; and the General, the Lord Feverſham, might well underſtand, that none of the Chief Officers would ſtand by him. The Lord Churchill was more eſpecially ſuſpected by the General, who conjur'd His Majeſty to have him ſecur'd, for a Terror to the reſt; but could not prevail with His Majeſty to do it: So the next Day the Lord Churchill went over to the Prince, with as many as were willing to follow him; amongſt whom were, the Duke of Grafton, Colonel Berkley, and Four or Five Captains of his Regiment of Dragoons. Upon his going off, the Lord Churchill ſent this Letter to the King.

The King comes to Saliſbury.

(a) This Petition of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal was preſented to the King by the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Archbiſhop of York Elect, the Biſhop of Ely, and the Biſhop of Rocheſter: Of which the latter ſoon told the World; "Having mention'd this Petition for a Free and Regular Parliament, I hope it will not be thought Preſumption in me, "if I ſuggeſt, I had the Honour to have it conſider'd, agreed "on, and ſign'd at my Houſe at Weſtminſter: And that I was "one of the Four Biſhops, (the Two Archbiſhops and my "Lord of Ely being the other Three) who ventur'd to deliver it to the King, after we heard He had proteſted, He "would take it highly ill of any Man, that ſhould offer him a "Thing of that Nature. Nevertheleſs we did it, and thought "our ſelves bound, in Duty to God and Man, ſo to do." Biſhop's Second Letter to the Earl of Dorſet.

(b) The Jeſuits were ſo enraged at this Petition, and the Fear of a Parliament, that they publiſh'd a Paper with this Title; Some Reflexions upon the Humble Petition to the King's moſt Excellent Majeſty, of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal who ſubſcribed the ſame; Preſented Novemb. 17. 1688. Extremely angry with the Biſhops for deſiring the Call of a Parliament, which, ſay they, will now be one of the Principal Cauſes of much Miſery to the Kingdom, &c.

(c) It has been ſince obſerv'd, that King James took a Proteſtant Chaplain along with him, the better to ſhew an Affection for the Church of England; Mr. Archdeacon Chetwood, who, by his own Account, bravely caus'd the Romiſh Prieſts to remove out of the Biſhop's Chapel at Saliſbury, which had been appointed for the King's Uſe, and had it daily crowded with thoſe of the Eſtabliſh'd Religion;——and was to have the Biſhoprick of Briſtol, upon the Tranſlation of Sir Jonathan Trelawney to Exeter.

Lord Churchill's Letter to the King.

SIR,

"SInce Men are ſeldom ſuſpected of Sincerity, when they act contrary to their Intereſts: And tho' my Dutiful Behaviour to Your Majeſty in the worſt of Times, (for which I acknowledge my poor Services much overpaid,) may not be ſufficient to incline You to a Charitable Interpretation of my Actions; yet, I hope, the great Advantage I enjoy under Your Majeſty, which I can never expect in any other Change of Government, may reaſonably convince Your Majeſty and the World, that I am acted by an higher Principle, when I offer'd that Violence to my Inclination and Intereſt, as to deſert Your Majeſty, at a Time when your Affairs ſeem to challenge the ſtricteſt Obedience from all your Subjects; much more from one, who lies under the greateſt Obligations imaginable to Your Majeſty. This, Sir, could proceed from nothing, but the inviolable Dictates of my Conſcience, and a neceſſary Concern for my Religion, (which no good Man can oppoſe) and with which, I am inſtructed, nothing ought to come in Competition. Heaven knows, with what Partiality my Dutiful Opinion of Your Majeſty, has hitherto repreſented thoſe unhappy Deſigns, which inconſiderate and ſelf-intereſted Men have fram'd againſt Your Majeſty's true Intereſt, and the Proteſtant Religion: But as I can no longer join with ſuch, to give a Pretence, by Conqueſt, to bring them to Effect; ſo I will always, with the Hazard of my Life and Fortune, (ſo much Your Majeſty's Due) endeavour to preſerve Your Royal Perſon, and Lawful Rights, with all the tender Concern, and dutiful Reſpect that becomes, &c.

The King leaves Saliſbury.

King James finding himſelf deſerted by his beſt Friends, and being falſly alarm'd, as if Duke Schomberg (the Prince's General) was marching with all Speed to fight him, left (a) Saliſbury in great Precipitation, after he had publiſh'd a Proclamation, Nov. 22. at his Court at Saliſbury, promiſing a free and abſolute Pardon to all his Subjects, who have taken up Arms, and join'd with the Prince of Orange; provided they quit and deſert him, within the Space of Twenty Days. In his Return, the King had this further Mortification, to ſee himſelf forſaken at Andover, by his Royal Highneſs Prince George of Denmark, the Duke of Ormond, Sir George Hewitt, and others. The Prince wrote this Letter to His Majeſty.

The Prince of Denmark's Letter to the King.

SIR,

"WIth an Heart full of Grief, am I forc'd to write, what Prudence would not permit me to ſay to your Face; and may I e're find Credit with your Majeſty, and Protection from Heaven, as what I now do is free from Paſſion, Vanity or Deſign, with which Actions of this Nature are too often accompanied. I am not ignorant of the frequent Miſchiefs wrought in the World by factious Pretences of Religion; but were not Religion the moſt juſtifiable Cauſe, it would not be made the moſt ſuperior Pretence. And your Majeſty has already ſhewn too intereſted a Senſe of Religion, to doubt the juſt Effects of it in one, whoſe Practices have, I hope, never given the World Cauſe to cenſure his real Conviction of it, or his Backwardneſs to perform what his Honour and Conſcience prompt him to. How then can I longer diſguiſe any juſt Concern for that Religion, in which I have been ſo happily educated, which my Judgment truly convinceth me to be the beſt, and for the Support of which I am ſo highly intereſted in my Native Country? And is not England now, by the moſt endearing Tye, become ſo?

"Whilſt the reſtleſs Spirits of the Enemies of the Reformed Religion, back'd by the cruel Zeal, and the prevailing Power of France, juſtly alarm and unite all the Proteſtant Princes of Chriſtendom, and engage them in ſo vaſt an Expence for the Support of it; can I act ſo ungenerous and mean a Part, to deny my Concurrence to ſuch worthy Endeavours, for the diſabuſing your Majeſty, by the Reinforcement of thoſe Laws, and Re-eſtabliſhment of that Government, on which alone depends the Well-being of your Majeſty, and of the Proteſtant Religion in Europe? This, Sir, is that irreſiſtible and only Cauſe, that could come in Competition with my Duty and Obligation to your Majeſty, and be able to tear me from you, whilſt the ſame affectionate Deſire to ſerve you continues in me. Could I ſecure your Perſon by the Hazard of my Life, I ſhould think it could not be better employ'd. And would to God theſe your diſtracted Kingdoms might receive that ſatisfactory Compliance from your Majeſty, in all their juſtifiable Pretenſions, as might, upon the only ſure Foundation, (that of the Love and Intereſt of your Subjects) eſtabliſh your Government, and as ſtrongly unite the Hearts of all your Subjects to you, as is that of, &c.

March of the Prince of Orange.

Upon the News of King James's being come to Saliſbury, the Prince of Orange march'd out of Exeter with his Army, leaving only Sir John Guyſe with his new-rais'd Regiment, to guard that City. On November 20. there was a Skirmiſh at Wincanton, between a Detachment of Seventy Horſe, and Fifty Dragoons and Grenadiers commanded by Gleſford, Sarsfield and Webb, and Twenty five of the Prince of Orange's Men, commanded by one Campbel, a Lieutenant in Mackay's Regiment. Theſe latter, tho' ſo unequal in Number, fought with ſuch undaunted Bravery, that they maintain'd their Ground for a conſiderable Time; and when they were like to be overpower'd, a Miller coming accidentally that way, alarm'd the King's Party, by telling 'em, He had overtaken a ſtrong Detachment of the Prince's Army, who were juſt entring the Town; whereupon they retreated in great Confuſion, leaving ſeveral of their Men kill'd, and Cornet Webb wounded. This ſmall Action ſtruck a Terror into the Minds of King James's Army, who were otherwiſe little inclin'd to Fighting: And beſides, it was every where magnify'd ſo much above the real Truth, that it clearly ſhew'd, how much the whole Nation were for the Succeſs of the Prince of Orange; who was ſoon after inform'd of His Majeſty's retiring to London; and the broken Remains of his Army to Reading; which being confirm'd by Prince George, and the Duke of Ormond, who join'd him at Sherborn-Caſtle (a), his Highneſs march'd with a numerous Attendance into Salisbury, where he was receiv'd with much more Joy than the King had lately been.

(a) The King's flying into France, was now at Saliſbury reſolv'd upon as the laſt Reſort of Popiſh Counſels; thinking his Abſence would create horrible Confuſions, and thoſe Confuſions would raiſe a Neceſſity of the Nation's Recalling Him. There was ſoon after the Revolution, A Letter to a Biſhop, written by a good Hand, and affirming thus: "Whilſt the King was buſied at Saliſbury, the Popiſh Party ſeeing their Affairs grew every Day more deſperate, began to employ all their Politicks to invent ſome Remedy for them; and then firſt contriv'd the King's withdrawing to France; which the Lord Dover and Mr. Brent made no Secret of frequently ſaying, The King would withdraw himſelf out of the Kingdom, a Fortnight before He did. Nor were thoſe Perſons the only Two in the Secret, and of this Opinion; but a Letter was ſent to the King while He was there, (which can be produc'd) wherein he was told, It was the Unanimous Advice of all the Catholicks at London, That He ſhould come back from thence, and withdraw himſelf out of the Kingdom, to leave it in Confuſion: Aſſuring him, That within Two Years, or leſs, it would be in ſuch Confuſion, that He might return, and have his Ends of it. This Divulging the Secret beforehand, did much abate the Wonder of it, when it happen'd, and diſpos'd the Peers to a more ſpeedy Reſolution of ſecuring the Nation from the Confuſion they deſign'd; and is a ſtrong Proof that the King withdrew voluntarily, and upon a Deſign of having his Ends of us."

The King at Whitehall.

The King came to Whitehall on Monday Night, Nov. 26. where his firſt Step again was very falſe and fatal to him; for he appointed Colonel Bevil Skelton to be Lieutenant of the Tower of London: But to do a more popular Thing, on Nov. 28. his Majeſty gave Order to the Lord-Chancellor for Iſſuing out Writs for ſummoning a Parliament to meet at Weſtminſter, the 15th Day of January next; and on Nov. 30. the King publiſh'd a Proclamation for the ſpeedy Calling of a Parliament, ending with theſe good Words: And for the Security of all Perſons both in their Elections and Service in Parliament (b), We do hereby publiſh and declare, That all our Subjects ſhall have free Liberty to elect, and all our Peers, and ſuch as ſhall be elected Members of our Houſe of Commons, ſhall have full Liberty and Freedom to ſerve and ſit in Parliament, notwithſtanding they have taken up Arms, or committed any Act of Hoſtility, or been any way aiding or aſſiſting therein. And for the better Aſſurance hereof, We have graciouſly directed a General Pardon to all our Subjects, to be forthwith prepar'd to paſs our Great Seal; and for the reconciling all publick Breaches, and obliterating the Memory of all paſt Miſcarriages, We do hereby exhort, and kindly admoniſh all our Subjects to diſpoſe themſelves to elect ſuch Perſons for their Repreſentatives in Parliament, as may not be byaſs'd by Prejudice or Paſſion, but qualify'd with Parts, Experience and Prudence, proper for this Conjuncture, and agreeable to the Ends and Purpoſes of this our Gracious Proclamation.

Calls a Parliament.

But ſee the Effect of ill-timing Things: Had this been done before the King went down to Salisbury, it had been Acceptable, and in all Probability ſucceſsful. But it was now too late; beſides, it was extorted from his Majeſty by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal then in London, who being ſummoned to give their Counſel about the preſent Exigencies, did agree in theſe following Advices.

Advice of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal.

Firſt, To grant a general Pardon to all thoſe, that were either come over with the Prince of Orange, or had join'd with him ſince his Landing: Secondly, To depute ſome of the Lords to attend the Prince, and to treat with him about a Suſpenſion of Arms, and to endeavour to bring Matters to an Accommodation: Thirdly, To turn immediately all Papiſts out of their Employments, to convince the World that his Majeſty acted a ſincere Part. His Majeſty took that Night to conſider of their Advice, and the next Day reſolv'd in Council to call a Parliament; and further declar'd, That he would grant a Pardon, and name Commiſſioners to treat with the Prince of Orange: But as to that Part of the Lords Advice, relating to the Roman-Catholicks; his Majeſty was unwilling to grant it, and only ſaid, He would leave that Matter to be debated in Parliament.

The Princeſs of Denmark retires.

When the King came back to London, he found his Daughter the Princeſs Anne of Denmark gone away the Night before; and when ſhe was firſt Miſſing, the People were ſo enrag'd, that they would have Torn the Popiſh Party to Pieces, upon a Surmiſe, that they had either made away with her, or confin'd her to the Tower, if this Letter of her Royal Highneſs to the Queen had not been produc'd.

Writes a Letter to the Queen.

MADAM,

" I Beg your Pardon, if I am ſo deeply affected " with the ſurprizing News of the Prince's " being gone, as not to be able to ſee you, but to " leave this Paper to expreſs my humble Duty to " the King, and your ſelf; and to let you know " that I am gone to abſent my ſelf, to avoid the " King's Diſpleaſure, which I am not able to bear, " either againſt the Prince, or my ſelf; and I ſhall " ſtay at ſo great a Diſtance, as not to return before " I hear the happy News of a Reconcilement. And " as I am confident the Prince did not leave the " King with any other Deſign, than to uſe all poſ" ſible Means for his Preſervation; ſo I hope you " will do me the Juſtice to believe, that I am not " capable of following him for any other End. Ne" ver was any one in ſuch an unhappy Condition, " ſo divided between Duty and Affection to a Fa" ther and a Husband, and therefore I know not " what to do, but to follow one, to preſerve the " other. I ſee the general falling-off of the Nobi" lity and Gentry, who avow to have no other End " than to prevail with the King to ſecure their Re" ligion, which they ſaw ſo much in Danger by the " violent Counſels of the Prieſts; who, to promote " their own Religion, did not care to what Danger " they expos'd the King. I am fully perſuaded that " the Prince of Orange deſigns the King's Safety " and Preſervation, and hope all Things may be " compos'd without more Bloodſhed, by the calling " of a Parliament. God grant a happy End to theſe " Troubles, that the King's Reign may be proſpe" rous, and that I may ſhortly meet you in Peace " and Safety: Till when, let me beg you to conti" nue the ſame favourable Opinion that you hither" to had of, &c.

Journey of her Royal Highneſs.

The King was ſoon after inform'd, That her Royal Highneſs, with the Lady Churchill, and the Lady Berkley, had privately taken Coach at the Biſhop of London's Houſe in Alderſgate-Street; from whence they went directly to Nottingham, attended by that Prelate, the Earl of Dorſet, and about Forty Horſemen. At Nottingham, the Earl of Devonſhire gave her a Guard of Two Hundred Men, by whom ſhe was ſafely conducted to Oxford, where Prince George ſoon after met her, with a Detachment of the Prince of Orange's Forces.

Perſons appointed to treat with the Prince of Orange.

The Perſons appointed to treat with the Prince of Orange, were the Marquis of Hallifax, the Earl of Nottingham, and the Lord Godolphin, all Men of Addreſs and Application; the Earl of Rocheſter was propos'd to be one of that Number, but his Lordſhip, and the Marquis of Hallifax not being able to act together with any right Underſtanding, he got himſelf Excus'd. A Trumpeter was immediately diſpatch'd by the Earl of Feverſham, with a Letter to his Highneſs, to demand the neceſſary Paſſes. On Sunday, Decemb. 2. The Commiſſioners began their Journey, and came the next Day to Reading, where (a) It was here at Sherborn-Caſtle, that a Paper was dated November 28. 1688. call'd, The Prince of Orange's Third Declaration; which did great Service to the Prince's Cauſe, tho' it was done without his Knowledge; and the doing of it has ſince been owned by Mr. Hugh Speke, who has given a particular Relation of it, in his Secret Hiſtory of the Happy Revolution, dedicated to King George; 1715. 8vo.

(b) Had this Proclamation been the King's own voluntary Act upon the Prince's Landing, or a gracious Compliance with the late Petition of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, it might have prevented or retarded at leaſt the Courſe of the Revolution. But every body now ſaw it was a forc'd Put, upon no Deliberation; and even contrary to his own declared Reſolution, that he would have no Parliament till the Prince of Orange was withdrawn.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

they met with the Trumpeter, with the Paſſes deſir'd from the Prince. The Day before the Departure of the Commiſſioners, the Earl of Clarendon went over to the Prince of Orange, which gave many occaſion to think, that he was gone before 'em, either to baffle the Negotiation, or at leaſt to give the Prince a Jealouſy of the Marquis of Halliſax, whom he thought an irreconcileable Enemy to his Family. On Dec. 6. The Three Commiſſioners acquainted the King, that they were to meet the Prince of Orange that Night at Amesbury: But the next Day, they inform'd his Majeſty, that his Highneſs had made a new Appointment to meet at Hungerford (a), and had ſent to them the Earls of Oxford and Clarendon, to deſire 'em to make their Propoſals in Writing. This Meſſage of the Prince of Orange was thought an Evaſion of all Manner of Treaty, and the King began now to think it high Time to provide for the Safety of his Perſon, and his Family. Upon the News of the Prince's Forces advancing towards Reading, the King's Army that Quarter'd there, was order'd to March nearer London, and to fix their Head-Quarters at Colebrook: But on Dec. 8. the Court being inform'd that it was only a Detachment of his Highneſſes's Horſe that was advanc'd to Newbury, the Royal Forces were remanded to their old Poſt, and the ſame Day the Earl of Feverſham return'd to Maidenhead, his Head-Quarters. The People of Reading, who had very much ſuffer'd by the King's Army Quartering amongſt them, had upon their firſt withdrawing, invited ſome of the Prince of Orange's Forces that lay not far off, to take Poſſeſſion of that Poſt, to ſecure themſelves againſt the univerſal Alarm of the Iriſh. Upon the unexpected Return of the King's Forces, Colonel Lanier, who commanded the Royal Detachment, taking Re-poſſeſſion of the Town, poſted ſome Companies of Iriſh Dragoons to defend a Bridge, over which his Highneſs's Troops were to paſs, and drew up in Battalia in the Market-Place a Scotch Regiment of Horſe: Upon the Approach of a ſmall Party of the Prince's Cavalry, the Iriſh fir'd, and run away; the Scotch, who had no Inclination to Fight, fled likewiſe in Diſorder, and complain'd that the Town's-People ſhot at 'em behind from their Windows, whilſt the Prince's Horſe charg'd them before. Maidenhead-Bridge was alſo fortify'd, and its Defence committed to the Iriſh, but ſome of the Town's-Men Beating a Dutch March in the Night, in order to Alarm them, this Stratagem took ſo well, that the Iriſh abandon'd their Poſt in Confuſion, leaving their Cannon behind 'em.

The Earl of Clarendon goes in to the Prince.

Motions of the Two Armies.

Skirmiſh at Reading.

Things being come to this deſperate Paſs, the Popiſh Cabal, and particularly Monſieur Barillon the French Ambaſſador, and Count Lauſzun, preſs'd the King to ſend away the Queen and Prince into France, and to follow her as ſoon as poſſible. Upon this Reſolution, on Dec. 10th, the Queen in diſguiſe, with the Prince of Wales, and his Governeſs the Marchioneſs of Powis, with her Husband the Marquis, the Counteſs Dalmont, Signior Montecuculi, Signior Turini, under the Conduct of Riva an Italian, and Labady a Frenchman, the Wet and Dry-Nurſes, and a Woman or two more, ſtole by the Privy-Stairs to the Water-Side, croſs'd the Thames in a Dark Stormy Night, and being got on the other Side, waited under a Wall, till the Coaches were got ready in the next Inn. When the Queen and her Retinue had taken Coach, ſhe was attended by a ſtrong Guard to Greenwich, and ſo to Graveſend, where ſhe was to embark in a Yacht that lay ready to carry Count Lauſzun to France. Mrs. Labady, who was acquainted with the Captain, amus'd him for a while, till the Queen (who paſs'd for an Italian Lady, returning to her Native Country, with all her Family) was got into the Cabin which was prepar'd for her. Three Iriſh Captains embark'd at the ſame Time, being appointed by the King to have an Eye upon the Captain, in Caſe of Diſcovery or Suſpicion (b): But without any Danger, they had a very quick Paſſage, and landed ſafely at Calais.

Queen goes to France with the Prince of Wales.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

Immediately after the Queen's Departure (c), his Majeſty, to cover his Deſign of following her, ſaid publickly, That he wou'd return to the Head of his Forces, and Fight the Prince of Orange: But he privately order'd the Broad-Seal to be thrown into the Thames, and the Parliament-Writs to be burnt, and a Caveat to be enter'd againſt making uſe of thoſe few that were ſent out already; and then he wrote this Letter to the Earl of Feverſham.

The King in Deſpair:

My LORD,

" THings being come to that Extremity, that I " have been forc'd to ſend away the Queen " and my Son the Prince of Wales, that they might " not fall into the Enemy's Hands, which they " muſt have done, if they had ſtaid; I am oblig'd " to do the ſame Thing, in hopes it will pleaſe " GOD, of his infinite Mercy to this unhappy " Nation, to touch their Hearts again with true " Loyalty and Honour. If I cou'd have rely'd on " all my Troops, I might not have been put to the " Extremity I now am in; and wou'd, at leaſt, have " had one Blow for it: But though I know there " are many valiant and brave Men among you, both " Officers and Soldiers; yet you know, that both " you, and ſeveral of the General Officers and Soldiers, and Men of the Army, told me, It was no " ways adviſeable for me, to venture my ſelf at " their Head, or think to fight the Prince of Orange " with 'em.

He writes to his General.

" And now there remains only for me, to thank " you, and all thoſe, both Officers and Soldiers, " who have ſtuck to me, and been truly Loyal; I " hope you will ſtill retain the ſame Fidelity to me. " And though I do not expect you ſhall expoſe your " ſelves, by reſiſting a foreign Army, and a poiſon'd " Nation; yet I hope your former Principles are ſo

(a) Biſhop Burnet in the Preface to ſome Sermons publiſh'd 1713. tells us, King James's Conduct amazed all the World. When he ſaw the Turn the Nation was making, and the disjointing of his own Troops, he ſent Three Lords to the Prince at Hungerford, to ask him what he demanded. To this the Prince, by the Advice of the Lords who had come into him, anſwered, That he deſired the Law might take place every where; That a free Parliament might be call'd, and that no Army ſhould come within Thirty Miles of London; and that a Branch of the Revenue might be ſet off to pay his Troops. Theſe were immediately ſent to the King, who, when he read them, ſaid, They were better than he expected.

(b) Here ſeemed a Providence in thus hurrying away the young Child for a French and Popiſh Education. For in the following Debates of the Lords and Commons, about the Throne being vacant, and the filling up that Vacancy; it ſeems very probable, that had the Child been in Engliſh Hands, there would have been ſome mention at leaſt of an Engliſh Proteſtant bringing up.

(c) As ſoon as the King had received the Prince's Propoſals of, 1. Removing from all Employments all Papiſts and Perſons not qualified by Law. 2. Recalling all Proclamations againſt the Prince. 3. Putting the Tower into the Hands of the City, &c. He ſeem'd inclinable to comply with them, and held an extraordinary Council that Night, calling the Lord-Mayor, Sheriffs, and ſeveral Lords about Town. Among whom was the old Lord Bedford, to whom the King, (as Mr. Echard tells us) under ſome Diſtraction of Mind, earneſtly apply'd himſelf, ſaying, My Lord, you are a good Man, and have a great Influence; you can do much for me at this Time. To which his Lordſhip anſwered, I am an old Man, and can do but little. —— Then adding with a deep Sigh. I had once a Son [Lord Ruſſel] that could now have been very ſerviceable to your Majeſty. Which Word ſtruck the King half dead with Silence and Confuſion.

" in-

1688. 4 Jac. II.

" in-rooted in you, that you will keep your ſelves " free from Aſſociations, and ſuch pernicious Things. " Time preſſeth, ſo that I can add no more.

JAMES REX.

After writing this Letter, on Monday Evening, Dec. 10th, the Life-Guards were order'd to be ready, to attend his Majeſty to Uxbridge; but inſtead of going to the Army, the King took Water at Whitehall Privy-Stairs, at Two of the Clock in the Morning, accompany'd only by Sir Edward Hales, Mr. Sheldon, and Labady. As ſoon as the King's Departure was publickly known, the Duke of Northumberland, with his Troop of Guards, declar'd for the Prince: And his Example was followed by the Marquis of Miremont; and the other Principal Officers of the Army about Town, who met at Whitehall, and ſent an Expreſs to the Prince of Orange, to acquaint him with the King's going away, and to aſſure him (a), That they wou'd aſſiſt the Lord-Mayor to keep the City quiet, till his Highneſs's Arrival.

The King goes away privately.

Upon this Inter-Regnum, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in and about the Cities of London and Weſtminſter met at Guildhall; where having ſent for the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen, they drew up a Declaration, in this Form and Title:

The Declaration of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in and about the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, aſſembled at Guildhall, Dec. 11. 1688.

Declaration of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal.

" WE doubt not but the World believes, That " in this great and dangerous Conjuncture, " we are heartily and zealouſly concern'd for the " Proteſtant Religion, the Laws of the Land, and " the Liberties and Properties of the Subject: And " we did reaſonably hope, that the King having Iſſued his Proclamation and Writs for a Free Parliament, we might have reſted ſecure, under the " Expectation of that Meeting: But his Majeſty " having withdrawn himſelf, and, as we apprehend, " in order to his Departure out of this Kingdom, " by the pernicious Counſels of Perſons ill-affected " to our Nation and Religion; we cannot without " being wanting to our Duty, be ſilent under theſe " Calamities, wherein the Popiſh Counſels which ſo " long prevail'd, have miſerably involv'd theſe " Realms: We do therefore unanimouſly reſolve " to apply our ſelves to his Highneſs the Prince of " Orange, who with ſo great Kindneſs to theſe " Kingdoms, ſo vaſt Expence, and ſo much Hazard " to his own Perſon, hath undertaken, by endeavouring to procure a Free Parliament, to reſcue " us, with as little Effuſion as poſſible of Chriſtian " Blood, from the imminent Dangers of Popery " and Slavery.

" And we do hereby declare, That we will, with " our utmoſt Endeavours, aſſiſt his Highneſs in the " obtaining ſuch a Parliament with all Speed, where- " in our Laws, our Liberties and Properties may be " ſecured, the Church of England in particular, with " a due Liberty to Proteſtant Diſſenters, and, in " general, the Proteſtant Religion and Intereſt over " the whole World may be ſupported and encourag'd, to the Glory of GOD, the Happineſs of " the Eſtabliſh'd Government in theſe Kingdoms, " and the Advantage of all Princes and States in " Chriſtendom, that may be herein concern'd.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

" In the mean Time, we will endeavour to preſerve, as much as in us lies, the Peace and Se- " curity of theſe great and populous Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and the Parts adjacent, by " taking Care to diſarm all Papiſts, and ſecure all " Jeſuits and Romiſh Prieſts, who are in and about " the ſame.

" And if there be any Thing more to be perform'd " by us, for promoting his Highneſs's generous In- " tentions for the publick Good, we ſhall be ready " to do it as Occaſion ſhall require.

W. Cant.	Fran. Eli.	Rocheſter.
Tho. Ebor.	Tho. Roffen.	Newport,
Pembroke,	Tho. Petriburg.	Shandois,
Dorſet,	P. Wharton,	Mountague,
Muſgrave,	North and Grey,	T. Jermyn,
Thanet,	Craven,	Vaughan. Carbery,
Carliſle,	Aylesbury,	Culpeper,
Weymouth,	Burlington,	Crewe,
P. Winton,	Suſſex,	Oſſulſton.
W. Aſaph,	Berkley,

" Whereas his Majeſty hath privately this Morning withdrawn himſelf; we the Lords Spiritual " and Temporal, whoſe Names are ſubſcribed, being " aſſembled at Guildhall in London, having agreed " upon and ſign'd a Declaration, Entituled, [The " Declaration of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, " in and about the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, aſſembled at Guildhhall, Dec. 11. 1688.] " Do deſire the Right Honourable the Earl of Pembroke, the Right Honourable the Lord Viſcount " Weymouth, the Right Reverend Father in God, " the Lord Biſhop of Ely, and the Right Honourable the Lord Culpeper, forthwith to attend his " Highneſs, the Prince of Orange, with the ſaid " Declaration; and at the ſame Time to acquaint " his Highneſs with what we have further done at " that Meeting.

Dated at Guildhall, Decemb. 11th, 1688.

The Lords, at the ſame Time, ſent for Colonel Skelton, Lieutenant of the Tower, and demanded the Keys of him; which he willingly reſigning, they beſtow'd the Government of it upon the Lord Lucas, a Man of Honour, and a Lover of his Country; which Choice was afterwards confirm'd by the Prince of Orange. The ſame Day, the Lieutenancy (b) of the City of London made an Addreſs to the Prince of Orange, to thank him for expoſing his Perſon to ſo many Dangers, by Sea and Land, for the Preſerva-

The Lords commit the Government of the Tower to the Lord Lucas.

Addreſs of the Lieutenancy of London to the Prince of Orange.

(a) Biſhop Burnet has obſerv'd, That upon the late King's deſerting the Government, the Mob was indeed the Maſter for ſome Days, but immediately after the Prince came to London, all that was quieted. And there was not the leaſt Diſturbance during the reſt of the Winter. Biſhop of Sarum's Vindicat. 1696. 8*vo*.

Theſe were then the Sentiments of all our great Men, and particularly of our Two Archbiſhops, Biſhops of Wincheſter, St. Aſaph, Ely, Rocheſter, and Peterborough, [Four of thoſe who would be afterwards depriv'd for refuſing Allegiance to King William and Queen Mary] who ſigned that Declaration; and the Biſhop of Ely was one of thoſe employed in carrying it to the Prince, and in acquainting him with what had been farther done at that Meeting. As obſerved by Mr. Marſhall in Defence of our Conſtitution, 8*vo*.

(b) The firſt Salute and Call to the People on Shore before the Prince's Landing, was by a Clergyman of the Church of England. " The People flock'd in great Numbers to the Sea " Shore in Torbay, when coming very near, before any Land- " ing, a certain Chaplain on Board the Golden-Sun, from the " Top of the uppermoſt Cabin, flouriſh'd a Bible, and with a " Voice loud enough to be heard by the People, cry'd out " for the Proteſtant Religion, and maintaining the Goſpel in " Truth and Purity. We are all by the Goodneſs and Provi- " dence of God come hither, after ſo many Storms and Tem- " peſts. It is the Prince of Orange that is come, a zealous " Defender of that Faith, which is truly Ancient, Catholick, " and Apoſtolical, who is the Governor of this Great Fleet.

tion

1688. 4 Jac. II.

tion of the Proteſtant Religion, and the Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom; without which unparallel'd Undertaking, they muſt probably have ſuffer'd all the Miſeries that Popery and Slavery cou'd have brought upon them: They therefore humbly deſire, That his Highneſs wou'd pleaſe to repair to this City, with what convenient Speed he can, for the perfecting the great Work which his Highneſs had ſo happily begun, to the general Joy and Satisfaction of them all.

With this Addreſs, Sir Robert Clayton, Sir Baſil Firebrace, Sir William Ruſſel, and Charles Duncomb, Eſq; were order'd to attend his Highneſs. At the ſame Time, the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen and Commons of the City of London, drew up alſo the following Addreſs, which was preſented to the Prince of Orange by Four Aldermen, and Eight Common-Council Men, concluding thus; We preſume to make your Highneſs our Refuge, and do, in the Name of this Capital City, implore your Highneſs's Protection, and moſt humbly beſeech your Highneſs to vouchſafe to repair to this City, where your Highneſs will be receiv'd with univerſal Joy and Satisfaction. Though the Train'd-Bands were now in Arms, yet the Mob of the City was preſently up, and pull'd down the Maſs-Houſes in the City and Suburbs; and yet were ſo well diſpos'd and ſo well commanded by their Leaders, that they did no Miſchief to any but the Papiſts.

Addreſs of the Lord-Mayor, &c.

Proceedings of the Commiſſioners:

The King's Commiſſioners returning to London, the ſame Day his Majeſty had left his Palace, were much ſurpriz'd to hear of his ſudden Departure; becauſe they had brought with 'em ſuch an Anſwer from the Prince, as might have encourag'd him to ſtay, and of which they had already inform'd his Majeſty, by an Expreſs he receiv'd Two or Three Hours before he left Whitehall. The Propoſals deliver'd to his Highneſs at Hungerford, Dec. 8th, by the Commiſſioners were theſe:

Their Propoſals to the Prince.

SIR,

"THE King commanded us to acquaint you, "That he obſerveth, all the Differences and "Cauſes of Complaint, alledged by your Highneſs, "ſeem to be referr'd to a Free Parliament.

"His Majeſty, as he hath already declar'd, was "reſolv'd, before this, to call one; but thought, "that in the preſent State of Affairs, it was adviſeable to defer it till Things were more compos'd; "yet ſeeing that his People ſtill continue to deſire "it, he hath put forth his Proclamation in order to "it, and hath iſſued his Writs for the Calling of "it.

"And to prevent any Cauſe of Interruption in "it, he will conſent to every Thing that can be reaſonably required, for the Security of all thoſe "that come to it.

"His Majeſty hath therefore ſent us to attend "your Highneſs, for the adjuſting of all Matters "that ſhall be agreed to be neceſſary to the Freedom of Elections, and the Security of Sitting; "and is ready to Enter immediately into a Treaty "in order to it.

"His Majeſty Propos'd, That in the mean Time, "the reſpective Armies may be return'd within ſuch "Limits, and at ſuch Diſtance from London, as "may prevent the Apprehenſions that the Parliament may be in any Kind diſturb'd; being deſirous that the Meeting may be no longer delay'd, "than it muſt be by the uſual and neceſſary Forms.

Hallifax, Nottingham, Godolphin,

The Prince his Anſwer.

The Prince having receiv'd this Paper, continu'd his March towards London; and being arriv'd at Littlecot, did the next Day, with the Advice of the Lords and Gentlemen with him, make theſe following Propoſals, in Anſwer to them.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

"WE, with the Advice of the Lords and Gen- "tlemen aſſembled with us, have, in An- "ſwer, made theſe following Propoſals.

1. "That all Papiſts, and ſuch Perſons as are not "qualify'd by Law, be diſarm'd, disbanded, and "remov'd from all Employments Civil and Military.

2. "That all Proclamations that reflect upon us, "or any that have come to us, be recall'd: And if "any Perſons, for having aſſiſted us, have been "committed, that they be forthwith ſet at Liberty.

3. "That for the Security and Safety of the City of London, the Cuſtody and Government of "the Tower be immediately put into the Hands of "the ſaid City.

4. "But if his Majeſty ſhou'd think fit to be in "London, during the Sitting of the Parliament, "that we may be there alſo, with an equal Number of our Guards: And if his Majeſty ſhall be "pleas'd to be in any Place from London, whatever "Diſtance he thinks fit, that we may be at the "ſame Diſtance; and that the reſpective Armies "be from London Forty Miles; and that no further "Forces be brought into the Kingdom.

5. "And that, for the Security of the City of "London, and their Trade, Tilbury-Fort be put into the Hands of the City.

6. "That a ſufficient Part of the Publick Revenue be aſſign'd us, for the Support and Maintenance of our Troops, until the Sitting of a Free "Parliament.

7. "That, to prevent the Landing of the French, "or other Foreign Troops, Portſmouth may be put "into ſuch Hands, as by his Majeſty and us ſhall "be agreed on.

Earl of Feverſham Disbands the Army.

The Earl of Feverſham, and the other General Officers, going to Uxbridge to attend the King's pretended coming thither, receiv'd his Majeſty's Letter, which was the ſame Day read aloud to the Troops, and drew Tears from moſt of 'em. Hereupon they held a Council of War, and concluded from the Words of the Letter, That ſince the King did not expect they ſhould reſiſt a Foreign Army, his Intention was, That the reſt of the Army ſhould be disbanded; and accordingly 4000 Men, the Earl had then with him, were immediately diſmiſs'd: After which he ſent the following Letter to the Prince of Orange, ſubſcrib'd by himſelf and Three General Officers.

The Earl of Feverſham write to the Prince.

SIR,

"HAving receiv'd this Morning a Letter from "His Majeſty with the unfortunate News "of his Reſolution to go out of England, I thought "my ſelf oblig'd, (being at the Head of his Army, "and having receiv'd his Orders, to make no Oppoſition againſt any body,) to let your Highneſs "know it, with the Advice of the Officers here, "ſo ſoon as was poſſible, to hinder the Effuſion of "Blood. I have order'd already to that Purpoſe all "the Troops that are under my Command, which "ſhall be the laſt Order, they ſhall receive from Feverſham, Lanier, Fenwick, Ogletborp.

Cenſure on the Earl of Feverſham.

The Trumpeter ſent to the Prince with this Letter return'd without an Anſwer, which ſhew'd his Highneſs did not approve of that Conduct; and indeed moſt of the Lords in London, look'd upon that haſty Disbanding, to be a raſh and unadviſed Action.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

Panick Fear throughout England.

Action. A Panick Fear which next Day alarm'd the City of London, contributed much to the Cenſure paſs'd on the Earl of Feverſham; for ſome Country-Fellows, arriving about Midnight at Weſtminſter, cauſed a ſudden Uproar, by reporting that the Iriſh in a deſperate Rage were advancing to London, and putting all before 'em to Fire and Sword. This not only rais'd the Trained-Bands and Regular Troops, but moſt People left their Beds, placed Lights in the Windows, and ſtood to their Arms; and what's very ſtrange, this univerſal Terror ſpread it ſelf that very Night over the whole Kingdom. An effectual Stratagem, commonly aſcribed to the Duke of Schomberg. (a)

Lord Chancellor Jefferies apprehended at Wapping.

The Day before this Conſternation, Dec. 12. Chancellor Jefferies, whom every body thought to have been gone with the King, having diſguis'd and abſconded himſelf in a little Houſe at Wapping, in order to his Eſcape beyond Sea, as he was looking out of the Window in a Seaman's Cap, was diſcover'd by a Clerk in Chancery, that accidentally paſſed by. Whereupon he was immediately apprehended, and after a fair Deliverance from the Mob, that would have torn him to pieces, he was carried before the Lord-Mayor, who fell into a Fit of an Apoplexy, whilſt he was asking him ſome Queſtions, and died ſoon after. On the ſame Day the Peers, aſſembled at Whitehall with ſome of the Privy-Council, committed him to the Tower, where, to drown the Conſcience of his Crimes, or the Cowardice of his Nature, he fell to intemperate Drinking, which put him into a Fever that took away his Life. In the mean while the Prince of Orange was advanc'd as far as Henly with the greateſt Part of his Army, and finding the King's Troops now without an Head, committing many Diſorders, he put out this Declaration.

Declaration of the Prince of Orange.

"WHereas we are informed, That divers Re"giments, Troops and Companies have "been encourag'd to diſperſe themſelves in an un-
"uſual and unwarrantable Manner, whereby the "Publick Peace is very much diſturbed; we have "thought fit hereby to require all Colonels and "Commanders in Chief of ſuch Regiments, Troops
"and Companies, by Beat of Drum or otherwiſe,
"to call together the ſeveral Officers and Soldiers
"belonging to their reſpective Regiments, Troops
"and Companies, in ſuch Places as they ſhall find
"moſt convenient for their Rendezvouz, and there
"to keep them in good Order and Diſcipline. And
"we do likewiſe direct and require all ſuch Officers
"and Soldiers forthwith to repair to ſuch Places as be "appointed for that Purpoſe, by the reſpective Co-
"lonels and Commanders in chief, whereof ſpeedy
"Notice is to be given unto us for our further Or"ders.

Given at our Court at Henly, Dec. 13. 1688.

Prince of Orange.

At the ſame Time the Prince ſent a Letter to the Earl of Danby, to deſire him to come to him, and order'd the Secretary of War, Mr. Blaithwate, to bring him an Account of the King's Army. He alſo diſpatch'd the Lord Churchill to London, to reaſſemble his Troop of Horſe-Guards, and directed the Duke of Grafton to go and take Poſſeſſion of Tilbury-Fort, with his Regiment of Foot Guards. And the next Day the Peers and Privy-Council, in Purſuance of the Prince's Directions, made this Order.

Order of the Peers and Privy-Council.

"WE the Peers of this Realm, aſſembled
"with ſome of the Lords of the Privy-
"Council, do hereby require all Iriſh Officers and "Soldiers to repair forthwith to their reſpective Bo-
"dies to which they do or did lately belong; and do
"hereby declare, that behaving themſelves peacea-
"bly, they ſhall have Subſiſtence paid them, till
"they ſhall be otherwiſe provided for or employed.
"And the ſaid Officers and Soldiers are to deliver "up their Arms to ſome of the Officers of the Ord-
"nance; who are to diſpoſe the ſame in their Stores
"in the Tower of London. And we do require and "command all Juſtices of the Peace, Conſtables,
"and other Officers whom it may concern, that they "apprehend and ſeize all ſuch Soldiers as ſhall not "repair to their reſpective Bodies, and that they be "dealt with as Vagabonds.

Given at the Council-Chamber at Whitehall, the 14*th of* December, 1688.

Tho. Ebor,	Dorſet,	Rocheſter,
North and Grey,	Hallifax,	Craven,
N. Dunelm.	J. Trevor,	Carliſle.
Nottingham,	P. Winton.	J. Titus.

This was all on Suppoſition, that His Majeſty had left the Kingdom; but it ſo happen'd, that the King with his Three Followers having croſs'd the Thames at Whitehall, went by Land to a certain Place near Feverſham, where he embark'd aboard a Smack commanded by Captain Sanders, who was to carry him to a Frigot commanded by Mackdonnel, an Iriſh Captain, who by Concert waited for His Majeſty at Margate. Whilſt they were waiting to go on Board, Hales ſent his Footman to the Poſt-Office in Feverſham: A Gunner belonging to Dover-Caſtle, whom Hales had formerly caſhier'd, knew the Footman by his Livery, and dogging him to the River-ſide, he ſaw him make Signs to ſome People that were aboard a Smack. Hereupon he got a Rabble together, and carry'd them to the Water-ſide, and immediately boarded the Veſſel, and ſoon diſcover'd Sir Edward Hales, who was well known, and much hated in that Country. As for the King, who was in a plain Suit, and a Bob Wig, they took him to be a Popiſh Prieſt, and ſuppoſed him to be Hales's Chaplain, for which Reaſon they put many groſs Indignities upon him; and ſearching him, they found 400 Guinea's, ſeveral valuable Seals, and other Jewels about him. But ſeveral other People crowding into the Veſſel, there was (amongſt the reſt) a Conſtable who knew the King's Face, and fell preſently at his Feet, begging His Majeſty to forgive the Rudeneſs of the Mob, and bidding the Fellows return what they had taken from him; but the King would only receive the Jewels, and gave the Gold amongſt them. His Majeſty then told the Conſtable, He hoped he would uſe him well: And when He ſaw every body paying the Reſpect due to him, he earneſtly endeavoured to be gone: But the (b) People brought him by a ſort of a Force to a Publick Inn in the Town; from whence His Majeſty ſent for the Earl of Winchelſea

The King taken at Feverſham.

2

(a) The Honour of this Stratagem has been ſince aſcribed to Mr. Hugh Speke, who in his Secret Hiſtory of the Revolution dedicated to King George, 1715. 8*vo.* ſays, "This Matter was "ſolely contriv'd and manag'd by himſelf, which was a Myſtery to the greateſt Politicians of thoſe Times, and long contiuu'd to be ſo; and yet was at that Time of ſuch eminent "and ſignal Service to the Proteſtant Intereſt in this Nation, "that from that Day forward, the Popiſh Faction and their "Emiſſaries never durſt attempt to lift up their Hands, or "hardly to ſhew their Heads, &c.

(b) Mr. Thomas Napleton, a Gentleman of Feverſham, went away to the Prince of Orange, to acquaint his Highneſs with this ſtopping of the King in his Paſſage to France, which he thought would be very acceptable to his Highneſs; but he found cheiſea, whom he made Lord Lieutenant of the County, and Governor of Dover-Caſtle, who prevail'd with His Majeſty to return toward London.

Reflections on this ſtrange Adventure.

This ſtrange Adventure did variouſly affect the Prince of Orange, and the People of England. The Prince ſeems to have deſir'd, that he ſhould not have been ſtopt, nor brought back; but moſt of the People were rather glad of an Opportunity, to convince the King that there was no ill Deſign againſt his Perſon. The Peers and Privy Council met, and after ſome Debates, they appointed Four of their Members, viz. the Earls of Middleton, Aylesbury, Yarmouth and Feverſham, to wait upon His Majeſty, and invite him to his Palace at Whitehall; to which, tho' at firſt he ſhew'd ſome Reluctance, yet at laſt he condeſcended. The Peers alſo diſpatch'd an Expreſs to the Prince of Orange, to acquaint him that the King was ſtill in England: Whereupon his Highneſs came to Windſor, Dec. 14. and lodged in the Prince of Denmark's Apartment, which was prepared for his Reception; where he held a Conſultation with the Chief of the Nobility and Gentry about him, and by their Advice, he diſpatch'd Monſieur de Zuyleſtein to the King, to deſire him to continue at Rocheſter; but he miſs'd him by the way; for His Majeſty left that Place on Sunday Morning, Dec. 16. and about Four in the Afternoon enter'd the City of London, as it were in Triumph, and went on to (a) Whitehall, with great Acclamations, Ringing of Bells, and Bonfires, with all other Proofs, that the People who hated Popery, loved the King.

The King comes back to Whitehall;

The Night before the King left Rocheſter, he diſpatch'd the Earl of Feverſham with a Letter to the Prince, to invite him to St. James's, with what Number of Guards and Troops his Highneſs ſhould think convenient to bring along with him; that they might perſonally and amicably confer together about the Means of Redreſſing the Publick Grievances.

And invites the Prince to S. James's.

The Earl arrived on Sunday Morning at Windſor, and having deliver'd his Meſſage to the Prince, he was ſurpriz'd, when inſtead of an Anſwer, Monſieur Bentinck demanded his Sword; being order'd by his Highneſs to arreſt him, and ſecure him, for his late Act of Disbanding the Army, without Orders.

The Earl of Feverſham arreſted.

Then the Prince referr'd the Conſideration of the King's Letter to the Peers about him; who concluded, That the Royal Palace of Whitehall being ſtill crowded with Iriſh Papiſts, Prieſts and Jeſuits, his Highneſs could not be ſafe at St. James's, unleſs His Majeſty was remov'd within a reaſonable Diſtance from London. Several Places were propoſed, but at laſt Ham, a Houſe belonging to the Dutcheſs of Lauderdale, was pitch'd upon; and, by their Advice, his Highneſs ſubſcribed a Paper in theſe Words:

The Prince of Orange's Meſſage to the King.

"WE deſire you, the Lord Marquis of Halifax, the Earl of Shrewsbury, and the "Lord Delamere, to tell the King, That it is "thought convenient, for the greater Quiet of the "City, and the greater Safety of his Perſon, That "He do remove to Ham, where he ſhall be attended "by his Guards, who will be ready to preſerve him "from any Diſturbance.

Given at Windſor, 17. Dec. 1688.

W. P. de Orange.

When His Majeſty came to Whitehall, he aſſembled his Council that Night, and made this Order, as the Laſt Publick Act of his Royal Authority.

At the Court at Whitehall, the 16*th* Day of December, 1688.

PRESENT,

The KING's Moſt Excellent Majeſty,

Duke of Hamilton,	Lord Viſcount Preſton,
Earl of Craven,	Lord Godolphin,
Earl of Berkley,	Maſter of the Rolls,
Earl of Middleton,	Mr. Titus.

Laſt Order of Council.

"HIS Majeſty being given to underſtand, That "divers Outrages and Diſorders are committed in ſeveral Parts of the Kingdom, by Burning, "Pulling down, and otherwiſe Defacing Houſes "and other Buildings, and Rifling and Plundering "the ſame, to the great Terror of His Majeſty's "Subjects, and manifeſt Breach of the Peace; His "(b) Majeſty in Council is pleaſed to direct and "command all Lords-Lieutenants, Deputy-Lieutenants, Juſtices of the Peace, Mayors, Conſtables, "and all other Officers whom it may concern, to "uſe their utmoſt Endeavours for the preventing all "ſuch Outrages and Diſorders for the future, and "for the ſuppreſſing all Riotous and Tumultuous "Meetings and Aſſemblies whatſoever.

W. BRIDGEMAN.

found it rather a Diſtaſte to him. Upon which Mr. Napleton had ſuch an Impreſſion of Diſcontent, as hardly ever went off from him; and he was reported to have ſaid ſomewhat on that Occaſion to the Diſadvantage of Dr. Burnet; who (when Biſhop of Sarum) in his Vindication, 8vo. p. 128. ſaid thus of a virulent Writer againſt him: "He brings in a Hearſay Sto-"ry, of a Dialogue that paſs'd between Mr. Napleton and my "ſelf, the Importance of which is, That I wiſh'd they would "have left the late King to be torn in Pieces by the Mob. This "Story has been in One or Two of their Books, that have ap-"pear'd of late: It has been kept up as a Secret Five or Six "Years, and now it is made an Ornament in ſeveral of their "Libels. I never ſaw that Gentleman before nor ſince that "Time; ſo I do not know, whether he owns, or diſowns it: "Nor can I pretend to give an Account of a Diſcourſe almoſt "Seven Years old. Another worthy Gentleman, Mr. Chad-"wick, was Witneſs to all that paſs'd between us. I am ſure, "I was deeply concern'd at the Misfortunes of that Prince: "I immediately went about the procuring an Order to be "ſpeedily given, to take care of his Preſervation. All that I "can remember, is, That when he told me, that upon the "Gentlemen of the Country's coming to Feverſham, they had "brought the People to ſhew more Reſpect; and that the late "King was very deſirous to proſecute his Voyage beyond "Sea; I thought they ought to have help'd him in it."—— In a Poſtſcript, the Biſhop adds: "After I had ſent this to "the Preſs, I received Two Advertiſements from the Hands of "one of my Reverend Brethren: He tells me, that Dr. Gee "met with Mr. Napleton this Summer at Tunbridge, and among "other Things, this Story came to be talk'd of. ——Mr. Na-"pleton ſaid, That I did indeed ask him ſeveral times, Why "they did not let King James go? And that he did anſwer, "The Mob would have torn him in Pieces. That within a little "while I ask'd him the ſame Queſtion again; and that there-"upon he ask'd me, Would I have had him torn in Pieces? To "which he added, that I replied, God forbid; I abhorr'd the "Thoughts of it. This laſt Part, which explains the whole, was "ſuppreſſed, to repreſent me as one that would have had him "torn in Pieces."

(a) The Prince was at Windſor, when the News of the King's Return to Whitehall came to him; and upon that, he ask'd the Opinion of the Lords about him. Some, who afterwards engag'd violently in the Jacobite Intereſt, adviſ'd the Sending the King over to Holland a Priſoner, and keeping him in the Caſtle at Breda, till the War both in England and Ireland was at an End: I could name Perſons, for the Prince himſelf nam'd 'em to me. His Anſwer was, That tho' He could appear againſt the King at the Head of an Army in this Quarrel, yet that now he had him in his Power, he could not put him under any Reſtraint; and he knew the Princeſs could never enjoy her ſelf, if any ſuch Thing were done. So he rejected theſe Suggeſtions with Indignation, and indeed, with an Averſion to thoſe who made them. Biſhop Burnet's Preface to ſome Sermons, 1713. 8vo.

(b) In London there was a Reigning Mob, that fell upon th[e] Popiſh Chapels, and ſome few of their Houſes: They demo[-]liſh'd the Convent and Chapel at St. Johns's, the Co[nvent an]d Chapel in Lincolns-Inn-Fields, the Popiſh Chapels in Limeſtre[et] in Bucklersbury, at Wild-Houſe, &c. The Order in theſe Tu[-]mults was very wonderful: No Place was aſſaulted, but wha[t] was mark'd out; if they fell upon any other by Miſtake, thei[r] Captain, at a word, could recal them. Powis-Houſe in Lin-coln's-Inn-Fields, was ſav'd by a Stratagem of writing up, Tha[t] it was kept for the Service of one who came over with th[e] Prince.

Th[e]

The King had heard on Sunday Night, That the Earl of Feverſham, his Meſſenger to the Prince, was put under Confinement at Windſor; upon which His Majeſty was full of Perplexity and Irreſolution: Yet on Monday Morning, Dec. 17. he ſent the Earl of Mulgrave, with another Compliment to the Prince of Orange; who was by this Time advanc'd as far as Sion Houſe, and his Guards were come as far as Kenſington and Chelſea, where they were order'd to quarter that Night; but ſoon after, they received freſh Orders to march, and take Poſſeſſion of all the Poſts about Whitehall and St. James's, either by fair Means, or open Force. Count Solmes, who commanded 'em, being come for that Purpoſe, His Majeſty ſent for him about Nine a Clock at Night, and deſir'd him to let him have his own Guard at Whitehall only for that Night; but the Count alledging his Poſitive Orders to relieve all the Poſts, His Majeſty bad him do his Office. At Ten of the Clock the Dutch Guards enter'd into St. James's Palace; and towards Eleven, thoſe who were commanded to Whitehall, mov'd thither thro' the Park. The Lord Craven, who was directed by the Prince to order the King's Guards to retire upon Approach of his Highneſs's Troops, ſuppoſing this was not to be executed till the next Day, had given no Orders for that Purpoſe; and the Engliſh ſeeming unwilling to diſlodge, the Prince's Guards march'd up to them with lighted Match, and in a fighting Poſture; but at laſt the King's Guards were perſwaded to withdraw.

The King ſends the Earl of Mulgrave to the Prince.

The Prince orders his own Guards at St. James's, and Whitehall.

The Dutch being thus poſted at Whitehall, the Three Lords who came from the Prince, ſent in this Note to Secretary Middleton: My Lord, There is a Meſſage to be deliver'd to His Majeſty from the Prince, which is of ſo great Importance, that We, who are charg'd with it, deſire We may be immediately admitted; and therefore deſire to know, where we may find your Lordſhip, that you may introduce, my Lord, your - - - - Halifax, Shrewsbury, Delamere.

Meſſage to the King.

The King was before this in Bed; but the Earl of Middleton introduc'd them to His Majeſty's Bedſide, about One in the Morning: And after a ſhort Apology, for breaking in upon His Majeſty's Repoſe at ſo unſeaſonable an Hour, they deliver'd him the Prince's Paper; which the King read, and ſaid, He would comply with it. Whereupon the Lords humbly deſir'd, He would remove ſo early, as to be at Ham-Houſe by Noon, to prevent meeting the Prince in his way to London, where he was to come the ſame Day. His Majeſty readily agreed to this too, and ask'd, Whether He might not appoint what Servants ſhould attend him? To which the Lords reply'd, That it was left to His Majeſty to give Order in that as he pleas'd; and ſo took their Leave. When they were gone as far as the Privy-Chamber, the King ſent for 'em again, and told 'em, He had forgot to acquaint 'em with his Reſolutions before the Meſſage came, to ſend my Lord Godolphin next Morning to the Prince, to propoſe his going back to Rocheſter; He finding by the Meſſage Monſieur Zuyleſtein was charg'd with, that the Prince had no Mind he ſhould be at London, and therefore he now deſir'd he might rather return to Rocheſter, than go to any other Place. The Lords reply'd, That they would immediately acquaint the Prince with His Majeſty's Deſire, not doubting of ſuch an Anſwer, as would be to His Majeſty's Satiſfaction. Accordingly they ſent to the Prince, who was then at Sion-Houſe, who yielding to the King's Deſign of leaving the Realm, order'd Monſieur Bentinck to write a Letter, (which came before Eight a Clock next Morning) agreeing to His Majeſty's Propoſals of returning to Rocheſter. Thereupon the King having taken his Leave of the Lords, the Ambaſſador of Spain, and other Perſons there preſent, His Majeſty went into his Barge, attended by the Earls of Aylesbury, Litchfield, Arran, and Dunbarton, Six of his own Yeomen of the Guard, and about One Hundred of the Prince's Forces; and arriv'd about Nine a Clock at Night at Graveſend, where he met ſome Troops of Horſe, who the next Day guarded him by Land to Rocheſter.

Conference between the King and Meſſengers from the Prince.

The King deſires to return to Rocheſter,

Which is granted by the Prince.

The ſame Day, Decemb. 18. about Three in the Afternoon, the Prince, with a Magnificent Equipage, and a Noble and Numerous Retinue, came to St. James's; where he receiv'd the Congratulations of the Nobility and Gentry, and the Acclamations of the People in a very extraordinary manner. On the 20th, the Aldermen and Common-Council of the City of London waited on the Prince; and the Lord-Mayor being indiſpos'd, the Recorder, Sir George Treby, made an Eloquent Speech to his Highneſs, concluding thus: Great Sir, When we look back to the laſt Month, and contemplate the Swiftneſs and Fulneſs of our preſent Deliverance, aſtoniſh'd, we think it miraculous! Your Highneſs, led by the Hand of Heaven, and called by the Voice of the People, has preſerv'd our deareſt Intereſts; The Proteſtant Religion, which is Primitive Chriſtianity, reſtor'd; Our Laws, which are our Ancient Title to our Lives, Liberties and Eſtates, and without which this World were a Wilderneſs. But what Retribution can we make to your Highneſs? Our Thoughts are full charg'd with Gratitude. Your Highneſs has a laſting Monument in the Hearts, in the Prayers, and in the Praiſes of all good Men amongſt us: And late Poſterity will celebrate your Ever-glorious Name, till Time ſhall be no more. The Ambaſſador of Spain, and the Reſident of Venice, did likewiſe compliment his Highneſs in private, and deſir'd Protection to themſelves, and other Foreigners, who were in great Danger of being inſulted by the Mobile; upon which the Privy-Council iſſued out an Order, That all Foreigners ſhould be allow'd to leave the Kingdom; and the Prince ſent his Paſſes to the Pope's Nuncio, and to the Envoys of Poland, Savoy, and Modena. The Lords Langdale and Montgomery were ſet at Liberty; but the Earls of Peterborough and Saliſbury were kept in Cuſtody, with a great many Popiſh Prieſts and Jeſuits.

The Prince comes to St. James's.

Foreign Miniſters addreſs the Prince.

On Decemb. 21. the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, about Seventy in Number, waited on the Prince at St. James's; who deſir'd them to conſider of the beſt Methods to call a Free Parliament, and to purſue the Ends of his Declaration, which he left to be purſu'd by their Lordſhips; and ſo withdrew from 'em. After the Reading of the Declaration, the Lords voted their Thanks to his Highneſs for coming over: And the better to conſider of the moſt effectual Means to obtain the Ends of his Highneſs's Declaration, and to ſettle a Form of Government; They reſolv'd to aſſemble for the future in the Parliament-Houſe at Weſtminſter, where they met accordingly the next Day, and firſt made an Order to appoint Francis Gwynne, Eſq; to ſign and ſubſcribe ſuch Orders as ſhould be from Time to Time made by 'em. Then they came to a Reſolution, That Five of the moſt able Lawyers, Sir John Maynard, Mr. Holt, Mr. Pollexfen, Mr. Bradford, and Mr. Atkinſon, ſhould aſſiſt 'em in their important Conſultations, in the room of the Judges, who were moſt of 'em abſent from London. It was afterwards propos'd, That the whole Aſſembly ſhould ſign the ſame (a) Engagement, or Aſſociation, which

The Prince conſults with the Peers.

Their Advice and Reſolutions.

(a) Mr. Echard ſays, that all agreed to the Propoſal of Signing the Aſſociation, except the Duke of Somerſet, the Earls of Pembroke and Nottingham, the Lord Wharton, and all the Biſhops, ſave that of London, who ſet his Hand to the Aſſociation. The main Objection of the Biſhops, was upon the Account of the Unchriſtian word Revenge; which being afterwards chang'd for that of Puniſhment, they were better ſatisfy'd.

1688 4 Jac. II. the Nobility and Gentry had already ſubſcrib'd at Exeter ; to which all the Lords agreed, excepting Four or Five.

The King reſolves to go to France. The King at Rocheſter ſoon heard of theſe Proceedings, and was the more determin'd by 'em to purſue his former Reſolution of going over to France : And therefore on (a) Sunday, Dec. 23. about Three in the Morning, His Majeſty privately withdrew himſelf, without communicating his Deſign to any body ; (b) no, not to the Earl of Dunbarton, who lay in the King's Chamber, and who did not awake till after His Majeſty was gone. This Forlorn Prince (taking only with him the Duke of Berwick, Mr. Sheldon, and Monſieur Labbedy) went on Horſeback as far as the Place appointed at the River-ſide, where Captain Mackdonnel waited to receive him in a ſmall Frigot ; and having immediately put to Sea with a favourable Wind, they ſoon landed at Ambleteuſe in France, from whence His Majeſty took Poſt for St. Germains. The Earl of Middleton, who had come down to Rocheſter to reſign his Seal, found the next Day upon the Table one of His Majeſty's Letters, deſiring him to gratify the Captains of the Prince's Troops, that were appointed to guard him, with an Hundred Guinea's a-piece, the Lieutenants and Enſigns with Fifty ; and to reward ſome others that had attended him, in Proportion. The King left alſo behind him a Paper wrote with his own Hand, and afterwards printed by his Order, in this Form : He leaves a Paper at Rocheſter.

His Majeſty's Reaſons for withdrawing Himſelf from Rocheſter.

" THE World cannot wonder at my withdrawing my ſelf now this Second Time. " I might have expected ſomewhat better Uſage after what I writ to the Prince of Orange, by my " Lord Feverſham, and the Inſtructions I gave him. " But inſtead of an Anſwer, ſuch as I might have " hop'd for, what was I to expect, after the Uſage I " receiv'd, by the making the ſaid Earl a Priſoner, " againſt the Practice and Law of Nations? The " ſending his own Guards at Eleven at Night, to " take Poſſeſſion of the Poſts at Whitehall, without " advertiſing me in the leaſt Manner of it : The " ſending to me at One of the Clock at Midnight, " when I was in Bed, a Kind of Order by Three " Lords, to be gone out of my Palace before " Twelve the ſame Morning. After all this, how " could I hope to be ſafe, ſo long as I was in the " Power of One, who had not only done this to " me, and invaded my Kingdoms, without any " juſt Occaſion given him for it ; but that did, by " his own Declaration lay the greateſt Aſperſion on " me that Malice could invent, in the Clauſe of it " which concerns my Son ? I appeal to all that " know me, nay, even to himſelf, that in their " Conſciences, neither he, nor they, can believe " me in the leaſt capable of ſo unnatural a Villany, " nor of ſo little common Senſe, to be impos'd on " in a Thing of ſuch a Nature as that. What had " I then to expect, from One, who, by all Arts, " hath taken ſuch Pains to make me as Black as Hell to my People, as well as to all the World " beſides ? What Effect that hath had at Home, all " Mankind hath ſeen, by ſo general a Defection in " my Army, as well as in the Nation, amongſt all " Sorts of People. 1688. 4 Jac. II.

" I was born free, and deſire to continue ſo : " And though I have ventur'd my Life very frankly, " on ſeveral Occaſions, for the Good and Honour of " my Country ; and am as free to do it again, " (and, which I hope I ſhall yet do, as old as I am, " to redeem it from the Slavery it is like to fall under) yet I think it not convenient to expoſe my " ſelf to be ſo ſecured, as not to be at Liberty to " effect it ; and for that Reaſon, to withdraw, but " ſo as to be within Call, whenſoever the Nation's " Eyes ſhall be open'd, ſo as to ſee how they have " been impos'd upon, by the ſpecious Pretences of " Liberty and Property. I hope it will pleaſe " GOD to touch their Hearts, out of his infinite " Mercy, and to make them ſenſible of the ill " Condition they are in, and bring them to ſuch a " Temper, that a Legal Parliament may be call'd ; " and that, amongſt other Things which may be " neceſſary to be done, they will agree to Liberty of Conſcience for all Proteſtant Diſſenters ; and " that thoſe of my own Perſuaſion may be ſo far " conſider'd, and have ſuch a Share of it, as they " may live peaceably and quietly, as Engliſhmen " and Chriſtians ought to do, and not be oblig'd to " tranſplant themſelves ; which would be very " grievous, eſpecially to ſuch who love their Country. And I appeal to all Men, who are conſidering Men, and have had Experience, whether " any Thing can make this Nation ſo great and " flouriſhing, as Liberty of Conſcience ? Some of " our Neighbours dread it.

" I could add much more, to confirm what I " have ſaid, but now it is not the proper Time.

Rocheſter,
Dec. 22. 1688.

When the Prince was inform'd of (c) His Majeſty's Departure, he reſolv'd not to act without a Concurrence of the Lords and Commons ; and therefore he publiſh'd this Order, ſuitable to the preſent Exigence :

" WHereas the Neceſſity of Affairs does require " ſpeedy Advice ; We do deſire all ſuch Perſons as have ſerv'd as Knights, Citizens or Burgeſſes, in any of the Parliaments that were held during the Reign of the late K. Charles II. to meet " Us at St. James's, upon Wedneſday the 26th of " this Inſtant December, by Ten of the Clock in the " Morning. And We do likewiſe deſire, That the " Lord-Mayor and Court of Aldermen of the City of " London would be preſent at the ſame Time : And " that the Common-Council would appoint Fifty of " their Number to be there likewiſe. And hereof " We deſire 'em not to fail. The Prince his Order.

Given at St. James's, the 23*d of* December, 1688.

W. H. Prince of Orange.

(a) On the ſame Day was preach'd, and publiſh'd, A Sermon preach'd in the Chapel of St. James's, before His Highneſs the Prince of Orange, Decemb. 23. 1688. By Gilbert Burnet, D. D. Chaplain to His Highneſs. Printed by His Highneſs's Special Command ; for Rich. Chiſwell, 1689. 4to. —— " I had not the " Honour (ſays Biſhop Burnet in his Vindication, 8vo.) to be " the Prince's Chaplain, till the Night before we left the " Hague.

(b) Mr. Hugh Speke, in his Secret Hiſtory of the Happy Revolution, 8vo. takes to himſelf the Honour of adviſing K. James to withdraw from Rocheſter. He writes thus : " King James, " upon his Return out of Kent to Whitehall, went forthwith " for Rocheſter, having a Troop of Horſe of the Prince's to attend him thither ; from whence, after he had conſider'd " ſome Time with himſelf, and being in great Concern what " Method he had then beſt take ; he writ to Mr. Speke by " Mr. Collins, whom he ſent from Rocheſter Expreſs, to know " Mr. Speke's Sentiments, Whether he thought it fitteſt for " him to remain in England, or to follow his Queen into " France ; aſſuring Mr. Speke, that he would rely entirely on " his Opinion and Judgment therein. —— Mr. Speke took " Coach, and went directly to St. James's, to the Prince of " Orange, and deliver'd the Letter receiv'd from the King, and " told his Highneſs what Anſwer he intended, &c.

(c) See Reflections on a Paper, entitled, His Majeſty's Reaſons for withdrawing himſelf from Rocheſter. Publiſh'd by Authority. Said to be written by Dr. Gilbert Burnet ; beginning— " There is a Paper ſpread about the Town, which might be " confuted in every Particular, not only with Clearneſs, but " with Severity too, if there was not a Reſtraint put upon the " full Liberty of anſwering any thing that goeth under a Name, " to which Reſpect will ſtill be paid, even by thoſe to whom " it is denied, &c."

1688.
4 Jac. II.

In the mean Time, on Tueſday, Decemb. 25th, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal aſſembled in their Houſe at Weſtminſter, and made this Addreſs to the Prince:

Addreſs of the Lords.

“WE the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, aſſembled in this Conjuncture, do deſire your Highneſs to take upon you the Adminiſtration of the Publick Affairs, both Civil and Military, and the Diſpoſal of the Publick Revenue, for the Preſervation of our Religion, Rights, Laws, Liberties, and Properties, and of the Peace of the Nation. And that your Highneſs will take into your particular Care, the preſent Condition of Ireland; and endeavour, by the moſt effectual Means, to prevent the Dangers threatning that Kingdom. All which, we make our Requeſt to your Highneſs to undertake and exerciſe, till the Meeting of the intended Convention, the 22d of January next. In which, we doubt not, ſuch proper Methods will be taken, as will conduce to the Eſtabliſhment of theſe Things upon ſuch ſure and legal Foundations, that they may not be in Danger of being again ſubverted. (a)

Dated at the Houſe of Lords, Weſtm. Dec. 25. 1688.

Then their Lordſhips proceeded to conſider of the moſt effectual Way for ſummoning the ſaid Convention, and drew up their Opinions, in this other Addreſs to the Prince.

Opinion of the Lords, for a Convention.

“WE the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, aſſembled at Weſtminſter in this extraordinary Conjuncture, do humbly deſire your Highneſs to cauſe Letters to be written, ſubſcribed by your ſelf, to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal (being Proteſtants;) and to the ſeveral Counties, Univerſities, Cities, Boroughs, and Cinque-Ports of England, Wales, and Town of Berwick upon Twede. The Letters for the Counties, to be directed to the Coroners of the reſpective Counties, or any one of them; and in default of the Coroners, to the Clerk of the Peace of the reſpective Counties: And the Letters for the Univerſities, to be directed to every Vice-Chancellor: And the Letters to the ſeveral Cities, Boroughs, and Cinque-Ports, to be directed to the Chief Magiſtrates of each reſpective City, Borough, and Cinque-Port; containing Directions for the chuſing, in all ſuch Counties, Cities, Univerſities, Boroughs, and Cinque-Ports, within Ten Days after the Receipt of the reſpective Letters, ſuch a Number of Perſons to repreſent them, as are of Right to be ſent to Parliament: Of which Elections, and the Times and Places thereof, the reſpective Officers ſhall give Notice, within the Space of Five Days at the leaſt. Notice of the intended Elections for the Counties, to be publiſh'd in the Churches, immediately after the Time of Divine Service; and in all Market-Towns within the reſpective Counties: And Notice of the intended Elections for the Cities, Univerſities, Boroughs, and Cinque-Ports, to be publiſh'd within the ſaid reſpective Places. The ſaid Letters, and the Execution thereof, to be return'd, by ſuch Officer and Officers who ſhall execute the ſame, to the Clerk of the Crown in the Court of Chancery; ſo as the Perſons ſo to be choſen, may meet and ſit at Weſtminſter, on the Two and twentieth Day of January.

Dated at the Houſe of Lords, Weſtm. Dec. 25. 1688.

Both theſe Addreſſes were ſign'd by all the Lords Spiritual and Temporal then aſſembled; and preſented to his Highneſs the Prince of Orange, the ſame Day, at St. James's: Who ſuſpended his Anſwer, till he had heard whether the Commoners, who were to meet the next Day, wou'd concur in the ſame Advice.

Meeting of the Commons of the two laſt Parliaments.

On Wedneſday the 26th of December, divers of the Members of the Parliament in the Reign of the late King Charles II. and the Aldermen and Common-Council of the City of London, purſuant to his Highneſs the Prince of Orange's Deſire, met together in the Palace of St. James's; to whom his Highneſs ſpoke as follows.

The Prince his Speech to the Commons.

“YOU Gentlemen that have been Members of the late Parliaments, I have deſir'd you to meet me here, to adviſe the beſt Manner how to purſue the Ends of my Declaration, in calling a Free Parliament, for the Preſervation of the Proteſtant Religion, and the Reſtoring the Rights and Liberties of the Kingdom, and ſettling the ſame, that they may not be in Danger of being again ſubverted.

“And you the Aldermen and Members of the Common-Council of the City of London, I deſire the ſame of You. And in regard your Numbers are like to be great, you may, if you think fit, divide your ſelves, and ſit in ſeveral Places.

They form themſelves into an Houſe.

Upon which, they immediately agreed to go to the Commons-Houſe at Weſtminſter; where being ſeated, they choſe Henry Powle, Eſq; their Chairman. The firſt Queſtion they debated, was, What Authority they had to aſſemble? Upon which, it was agreed, That the Requeſt of his Highneſs, was a ſufficient Warrant. Then a Queſtion was ſtarted by Sir Robert S——, How his Highneſs cou'd take upon him the Adminiſtration of Affairs, without a diſtinguiſhing Name or Title? To which Mr. Serjeant Maynard anſwer'd, That the Aſſembly wou'd loſe a great deal of Time, if they waited till Sir Robert cou'd conceive how that was poſſible: And ſo that Queſtion dropp'd. Then one Member propos'd, to offer the Government to his Highneſs for a Month; and another, for a whole Year: But it was anſwer'd, That it wou'd be Time enough for the Convention to conſider of that Matter. After this, it was mov'd, That the Aſſociation, that had been ſign'd by the Lords, might likewiſe be ſubſcrib'd by this Aſſembly: But it was carry'd, That the ſaid Aſſociation ſhou'd be left upon the Table, and every one be at liberty to ſign it, or not. After theſe previous Debates, they reſolved upon Heads for an Addreſs to be made to his Highneſs, and appointed Perſons to draw up and prepare the ſame; and in the Afternoon it was done accordingly, and read, and approv'd, in this Form:

Addreſs of the Commons to the Prince.

“WE who have ſerv'd as Members of the Parliaments during the Reign of the late King Charles II. together with the Court of Aldermen, and Members of the Common-Council of the City of London, aſſembled at your Highneſs's Deſire (in this extraordinary Conjuncture,) do, with an unanimous Conſent, tender to your Highneſs our humble and hearty Thanks, for your coming into this Kingdom, and expoſing your Perſon to ſo great Hazards, for the Preſervation of our Religion, Laws, and Liberties, and reſcuing us from the Miſeries of Popery and Slavery: And deſire your Highneſs, That (in Purſuance of thoſe Ends, and for the Preſervation of

(a) At this Juncture ſome were for treating with King James, and even calling him back to a Treaty and Settlement. Upon which Occaſion there was now publiſhed in December 1688. An Enquiry into the Preſent State of Affairs, and in particular, Whether we owe Allegiance to the King in theſe Circumſtances? And whether we are bound to treat with him, and call him back again, or not?. Publiſhed by Authority. Said to be written by Dr. Gilbert Burnet.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

" the Peace of the Nation) your Highneſs will take " upon you the Adminiſtration of Publick Affairs, " both Civil and Military, and the Diſpoſal of the " Publick Revenue.

" We do alſo deſire, That your Highneſs will " take into your particular Care, the preſent Con- " dition of Ireland; and endeavour, by the moſt " ſpeedy and effectual Means, to prevent the Dan- " gers threatning that Kingdom.

" All which, we deſire your Highneſs to un- " dertake and execute, untill the Meeting of the " intended Convention, the 22d Day of January " next.

" We do likewiſe deſire your Highneſs to cauſe " Letters to be written and ſubſcribed by your " Highneſs, to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal " (being Proteſtants;) and to the ſeveral Counties, " Univerſities, Cities, Boroughs, and Cinque-Ports " of England, Wales, and to the Town of Berwick " upon Twede.

" The Letters for the Counties, to be directed to " the Coroners of their reſpective Counties, or any " one of them; and in Default of Coroners, to the " Clerk of the Peace of the reſpective Counties: " And the Letters to the Univerſities, to be direct- " ed to the reſpective Vice-Chancellors: And the " Letters to the ſeveral Cities, Boroughs, and Cinque- " Ports, to be directed to the Chief-Magiſtrate of " each reſpective City, Borough, and Cinque-Port; " containing Directions for the Chuſing, in all ſuch " Counties, Cities, Univerſities, Boroughs and Cinque- " Ports, within Ten Days after the Receipt of the " ſaid reſpective Letters, ſuch a Number of Perſons " to repreſent them, as are of Right to be ſent to " Parliament. That for ſuch Elections, and the " Times and Places thereof, the reſpective Officer " ſhall give Notice, in Manner following: (That is " to ſay,) As to the Elections of the Counties, No- " tice to be publiſh'd in all Market-Towns in the " reſpective Counties, by the Space of Five Days " at leaſt before ſuch Election: And Notice of the " Elections for the Cities, Univerſities, Boroughs, " and Cinque-Ports, to be publiſh'd in the reſpe- " ctive Places, by the Space of Three Days before " at the leaſt.

" That the ſaid Letters, and the Execution there- " of, be return'd, by ſuch Officer and Officers who " ſhall execute the ſame, to the Clerk of the Crown " in the Court of Chancery; ſo as the Perſons ſo to " be choſen, may meet and ſit at Weſtminſter, on " the Twenty Second Day of January next.

" This we humbly offer your Highneſs, as our " beſt Advice, in this Exigency of Affairs, for at- " taining the Ends of your Highneſs's Declaration; " and as the beſt Means tending to ſuch an Eſta- " bliſhment, as that our Religion, Laws, and Li- " berties, may not be in Danger of being again ſub- " verted.

His Highneſs having appointed to receive this Ad-dreſs the next Morning, he was then attended by a Body of them; and the Addreſs was preſented, and read by Mr. Powle, to his Highneſs: Who was pleas'd to declare, That it being a Matter of Weight, he wou'd conſider thereof, and give his Anſwer the next Day.

Accordingly, on Friday-Morning, Dec. 28th, his Highneſs gave the following Anſwer to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, at St. James's.

My LORDS,

Anſwer of the Prince to the Lords.

" I Have conſider'd of your Advice; and, as far " as I am able, I will endeavour to ſecure the " Peace of the Nation, until the Meeting of the " Convention in January next; for the Election " whereof, I will forthwith Iſſue out Letters, ac- " cording to your Deſire. I will alſo take care to " apply the publick Revenue to the moſt proper " Uſes that the preſent Affairs require: And like- " wiſe endeavour to put Ireland into ſuch a Condi- " tion, as that the Proteſtant Religion, and the " Engliſh Intereſt, may be maintain'd in that King- " dom. And I further aſſure you, That as I came " hither for the Preſervation of the Proteſtant Re- " ligion, and the Laws and Liberties of theſe King- " doms; ſo I ſhall always be ready to expoſe my " ſelf to any Hazard, for the Defence of the " ſame.

And in the Afternoon, his Highneſs was pleas'd to give the ſame Anſwer to the Commoners.

The Prince profeſſes himſelf a Member of the Church of England.

On Sunday, Dec. 30th, his Highneſs receiv'd the Holy Sacrament in the Royal Chapel of St. James's, from the Hands of the Biſhop of London, and heard the whole Service read by Dr. Burnet, and an excellent Sermon preach'd by the Biſhop of St. A-ſaph; which open profeſſing himſelf a Member of the Church of England, gain'd him the Tongues and Hearts of many People. On Monday Morning, his Highneſs publiſh'd a Declaration (being the firſt Act of his Adminiſtration of Publick Affairs) for authorizing all Sheriffs, Juſtices of Peace, and other Officers and Miniſters, not being Papiſts, that were in ſuch Offices, on the Firſt Day of December laſt, to act in their reſpective Places, till the meeting of the ſaid Convention, or other Order to the contrary.

The Prince's Civilities to the Queen Dowager.

The ſame Monday Evening, his Highneſs paid a Viſit to the Queen Dowager, and amongſt other Queſtions, ask'd her Majeſty, How ſhe paſs'd her Time, and whether ſhe play'd at Baſſet? The Queen took this Opportunity to ſpeak at a Diſtance, in Favour of the Earl of Feverſham, and anſwer'd his Highneſs, That ſhe had not play'd at it ſince the Abſence of her Chamberlain, who us'd to keep the Bank. The Prince of Orange took the Hint, and aſſur'd her Majeſty, That he would not by any means divert her Majeſty's Diverſions, and would therefore Order the Earl to be ſet at Liberty, which was done the next Day.

Circular Letters for calling a Convention.

The Prince having diſpatch'd his Circular Letters for the Meeting of the Convention, he publiſh'd an Order, Jan. 5. ſtrictly charging and requiring all Regiments, Troops or Companies, to march out of the Quarters, where any Election was to be made (the ſeveral Gariſons only excepted) the Day before the ſame be made, That ſuch Elections might be carry'd on with the greater Freedom, and without any Colour of Force or Reſtraint. And becauſe the Prince was inform'd, That divers Soldiers, contrary to his Intention, and the Laws of the Land, were quarter'd in private Houſes, he ſent out an Order, dated Jan. 8. That none of the Forces, of what Nation or Quality ſoever, ſhould preſume to Quarter in any Private Houſe, without the free and voluntary Conſent of the Owner.

The City lends Money to the Prince.

The ſame Day, the Court of Aldermen and Common-Council being aſſembled, a Letter was deliver'd unto 'em, from his Highneſs the Prince of Orange, ſetting forth the great Occaſion there was for an immediate Supply of Money, beyond what the preſent Condition of the Revenue could furniſh, for ſupporting the Charge of the Navy, paying off a Part of the Army, and ſending a ſpeedy Relief for the Defence of the Proteſtant Intereſt in Ireland; and propoſing that for the anſwering theſe great Ends, ſuch a Sum of Money, ſhould be advanc'd by way of Loan, as they could conveniently ſpare, which ſhould be ſecur'd in the beſt Manner that could be adviſ'd, and repaid with full Intereſt at the End of Six Months: Whereupon a Vote immediately paſs'd with all Chearfulneſs and Unanimity, That they would ſupply his Highneſs with Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds. The next Day, a Committe of the ſaid Court, attended his Highneſs, and gave him an Account of their Compliance with his Deſire, and the whole Sum was rais'd in Four Days. One ſingle Man having ſubſcrib'd Sixty Thouſand Pounds towards it.

On

1688. 4 Jac. II.

On Jan. 16. (a) The Prince publiſh'd a Declaration to ſatisfy the Seamen, That as well their Arrears, as their growing Wages, ſhould be fully made good to 'em, according to the known Methods of the Navy, ſo ſoon as the Ships ſhould be brought in, and laid up. And on Jan. 19. The Prince publiſh'd another Order for the ſatisfying and making good to every Officer and Soldier their full Pay and Arrears due to 'em until the firſt Day of this Inſtant January, and for the making conſtant and punctual Payment of the Subſiſtance-Money; and Clearings of the Army in the uſual Method, without any the leaſt Diminution of the former Pay.

Meeting of the Convention.

On Tueſday, Jan. 22. The Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons aſſembled at Weſtminſter: The Lord Marquis of Hallifax, executed the Place of Speaker in the Houſe of Lords, and the Commons choſe Henry Powle, Eſq; to be their Speaker. After which, this Letter from the Prince of Orange was read in Both Houſes on the Occaſion of their Meeting.

My Lords and Gentlemen:

The Prince's Speech to them.

"I Have endeavour'd, to the utmoſt of my Power, to perform what was deſir'd from me, in order to the publick Peace and Safety, and I do not know that any Thing hath been omitted, which might tend to the Preſervation of them, ſince the Adminiſtration of Affairs was put into my Hands. It now lieth upon you to lay the Foundations of a firm Security for your Religion, your Laws, and your Liberties.

"I do not doubt, but that by ſuch a Full and Free Repreſentative of the Nation, as is now met, the Ends of my Declaration will be attained: And ſince it hath pleas'd GOD hitherto to bleſs my good Intentions wth ſo good Succeſs; I truſt in him, that he will compleat his own Work, by ſending a Spirit of Peace and Union, to influence your Counſels, that no Interruption may be given to an happy and laſting Settlement.

"The dangerous Condition of the Proteſtants in Ireland, require a large and ſpeedy Succour; and the preſent State of Things Abroad, oblige me to tell you, That next to the Danger of unſeaſonable Diviſions amongſt your ſelves, nothing can be ſo fatal, as too great a Delay in your Conſultations. The States, by whom I have been enabl'd to reſcue this Nation, may ſuddenly feel the ill Effects of it, both by being too long depriv'd of the Service of their Troops, which are now here, and of your early Aſſiſtance againſt a powerful Enemy, who hath declar'd War againſt them. And as England is by Treaty already engag'd to help them upon ſuch Exigencies, ſo I am confident, that their chearful Concurrence to preſerve this Kingdom with ſo much Hazard to themſelves, will meet with all the Returns of Friendſhip and Aſſiſtance, which may be expected from you as Proteſtants and Engliſhmen, whenever their Condition ſhall require it.

After the Reading this Letter in the Houſe of Commons, the Speaker repreſented to the Aſſembly, "The dangerous State of the Nation, and the fatal Conſequences of Anarchy, the deplorable Condition of the Proteſtants in Ireland, and how much England might be affected by the Loſs of that Kingdom: And laſtly, the Growth of the Exorbitant Power of France, and the vaſt Deſigns of that aſpiring and turbulent Monarch, not only the Perſecutor of the Proteſtant Religion, but the ſworn Enemy of England, &c. This Speech was receiv'd with univerſal Applauſe, and was ſeconded by ſeveral Members. Then Both Houſes reſolv'd upon an Addreſs to be preſented to his Highneſs, and agreed that Thurſday, the 31ſt of Jan. ſhould be appointed for a Day of Publick Thankſgiving to Almighty God, in the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and Ten Miles diſtant, for having made his Highneſs the Prince of Orange the glorious Inſtrument of the great Deliverance of this Kingdom from Popery and Arbitrary Power; and that Thurſday (b), the 14th of February, ſhould be appointed for a Day of like Publick Thankſgiving throughout the reſt of the Kingdom. Then the Lords and Commons went in a Body to preſent the foremention'd Addreſs to his Highneſs in theſe Words.

Day of Thankſgiving.

Addreſs of Lords and Commons.

"WE the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons aſſembled at Weſtminſter, being ſenſible of the great Deliverance of this Kingdom from Popery and Arbitrary Power; and that our Preſervation is next under GOD, owing to your Highneſs, do return our moſt humble Thanks and Acknowledgments to your Highneſs, as the glorious Inſtrument of ſo great a Bleſſing. We do farther acknowledge the great Care your Highneſs has been pleaſed to take in the Adminiſtration of the Publick Affairs of the Kingdom

(a) Before the Opening of this Convention, ſome of the Clergy who had wiſh'd a Deliverance from Popery, and yet had been ſo addicted to Principles of unlimited Right and Obedience, that they were not willing to part with a Popiſh King; began to expreſs their Fears of too great a Change. In particular, there was publiſh'd, A Letter to a Member of the Convention, by Dr. Sh——ck. Thrown again into an Appendix to the Life of King James II. arguing much againſt the accepting the Prince of Orange for King, as altering the eſſential Conſtitution of the Engliſh Government, by changing an Hereditary into an Elective Monarchy, &c.

(b) Ordered by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, aſſembled at Weſtminſter, that the Lord Biſhop of London (Dr. Compton) the Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter, (Dr. Sprat) the Lord Biſhop of Norwich (Dr. Floyd), the Lord Biſhop of Ely (Dr. Turner), the Lord Biſhop of Chicheſter (Dr. Lake), the Lord Biſhop of Glouceſter (Dr. Frampton), the Lord Biſhop of Bath and Wells (Dr. Ken), the Lord Biſhop of Peterborough (Dr. White), the Lord Biſhop of Lincoln (Dr. Barlow), the Lord Biſhip of Briſtol (Sir J. Trelawney), and the Lord Biſhop of St. Aſaph (Dr. Lloyd), be and are hereby deſired to draw up a Form of Prayer and Thankſgiving to Almighty God for having made his Highneſs the Prince of Orange the glorious Inſtrument of the great Deliverance of this Kingdom from Popery and Arbitrary Power. —— And Six Days after, the Lords made another Order, whereby it was recommended to the ſame Lords the Biſhops to whom was referr'd the drawing up the Prayers for a Day of Thankſgiving, &c. that they draw up a particular Prayer for his Highneſs the Prince of Orange to be inſerted in that Form. —— All which was done in very ſuitable Expreſſions of Gratitude to God for their Mighty Deliverer. —— And yet 'tis very obſervable, that out of the Eleven Biſhops thus employ'd, and who had hitherto acted in the Revolution and Convention, Six of them were afterwards deprived for refuſing to take the Oaths, which they had made neceſſary and lawful by their own Proceedings thus far.

The Archbiſhop of Canterbury had not appeared in the Houſe of Lords, to oppoſe any Proceeding, or to make any Motion, and he did as much decline the holding any Conſult with his Brethren, or intimating any Reaſon of diſſenting from them. Whether this was owing to his natural Reſervedneſs and timerous Jealouſy, or to any Promiſe made to King James, or to his being too much a Stranger to the Prince, or waiting only the Event of uncertain Things, we cannot well determine. But Mr. Echard is pleas'd to ſay right enough, "Among the many that waited upon the PRINCE, the Archbiſhop of Canterbury had hitherto declin'd that Particular, tho' he had ſhewn himſelf as ready as any in joining with and ſubſcribing the Lords Invitation at Guild-Hall. This was by many aſcribed to his Indiſpoſition of Body; but by others, who ſeem'd to judge more rightly of the Matter, to the ſame Reaſon which obliged the Biſhops not to ſign the Aſſociation. However, his Grace did ſoon after ſend a Compliment to the Prince, and with Seven or Eight Biſhops more ſubſcrib'd the Aſſociation; having ſoften'd ſome Words in it, that ſeem'd to bear upon the Principles of Chriſtianity, whereof one was that of Revenge, which they chang'd into that of Puniſhment". To which ſome will ſay they did well to humour them in the Change of that Word, becauſe they did not mean any private Revenge, but a publick exemplary Puniſhment on the Enemies of the Nation.

"to

1688. 4 Jac. II.

"to this Time. And we do moſt humbly deſire "your Highneſs that you will take upon you the "Adminiſtration of the Publick Affairs, both Civil "and Military; and the Diſpoſal of the Publick "Revenue, for the Preſervation of our Religion, "Rights, Laws, Liberties, and Properties, and the "Peace of the Nation; and that your Highneſs "will take into your particular Care the Preſent "State of Ireland, and endeavour by the moſt Spee-"dy and Effectual Means to prevent the Dangers "that threaten that Kingdom. All which we make "our Requeſt to your Highneſs to undertake and "execute, till further Application ſhall be made "by us, which ſhall be expedited with all con-"venient Speed: And we ſhall alſo uſe our ut-"moſt Endeavours to give Diſpatch to the Mat-"ters recommended to us by your Highneſs's Let-"ter.

On the next Day, Jan. 23. His Highneſs ſent this Anſwer to Both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen:

The Prince his Anſwer.

"I Am glad that what I have done has pleaſed "you; and ſince you deſire me to continue the "Adminiſtration of Affairs, I am willing to accept "it. I muſt recommend to you the Conſideration "of Affairs Abroad, which makes it fit for you to "expedite your Buſineſs, not only for making a "Settlement at Home, upon a good Foundation, "but for the Safety of Europe.

The Commons debate on the Throne being Vacant.

On Monday, Jan. 28. the Commons reſolved themſelves into a Committee of the whole Houſe, to take into Conſideration the State and Condition of the Nation, and Mr. Hamden took the Chair. Mr. Dolben began in a Speech to prove that the Throne was Vacant, becauſe King James, both by his Violation of the Laws, and his Voluntary Deſerting theſe Kingdoms, had forfeited his Right, and Abdicated the Government. Several Members argued againſt the Throne being Vacant, as a Poſition new and unknown to the Engliſh Conſtitution. Sir Richard Temple ask'd, If the Throne were not Vacant, what Buſineſs they had in that Place, and what Need or what Power there was for Calling this Convention? and then proceeded to confirm Mr. Dolben's Aſſertion. After Four Hours Debate, Mr. Hamden reported this Reſolve of the Committee, to which the Houſe Agreed.

Reſolution.

Reſolved,

"That King James the Second, having endea-"voured to ſubvert the Conſtitution of the King-"dom, by breaking the Original Contract between "King and People: And by the Advice of Jeſuits "and other wicked Perſons, having violated the "Fundamental-Laws, and withdrawn himſelf out "of the Kingdom, hath abdicated the Government, "and that the Throne is thereby vacant.

The Lords make Amendments.

Mr. Hamden, by Order of the Houſe, carried up this Reſolution to the Lords for their Concurrence; and on Saturday, Febr. 2. this Meſſage was brought from the Lords. Mr. SPEAKER, The Lords have conſidered of the Vote of this Houſe of the 28th of January laſt to which they concur with Amendments, unto which Amendments they deſire the Concurrence of this Houſe. The Two Amendments were, l. 8. inſtead of the word Abdicated, read Deſerted. l. 9. leave out theſe Words, And that the Throne is thereby Vacant. The Commons having conſider'd theſe Amendments, diſagreed by a great Majority, and appointed a Committee, who drew up theſe Reaſons why the Houſe could not concur with their Lordſhips.

Diſagreed to by the Commons.

Their Reaſons.

"To the firſt Amendment propoſed by the Lords, "inſtead of the word Abdicated, to inſert the word "Deſerted, the Commons do not agree; becauſe "the word Deſerted doth not fully expreſs the Con-"cluſion neceſſarily inferred from the Premiſſes, "which your Lordſhips have agreed to: For your "Lordſhips have agreed, That King James the Second "hath endeavoured to ſubvert the Conſtitution of the "Kingdom, by breaking the Original-Contract be-"tween King and People, and hath violated the Fun-"damental Laws, and withdrawn himſelf out of the "Kingdom. Now the word Deſerted reſpects only "the withdrawing, but the word Abdicated reſpects "the whole; for which Purpoſe the Commons made "Choice of it.

"The Commons do not agree to the Second A-"mendment to leave out the words [illegible] that the "Throne is thereby Vacant.

"1. Becauſe they conceive, That as they may "well infer from ſo much of their own Vote, as "your Lordſhips have agreed unto, That King "James the Second has Abdicated the Government, "and that the Throne is thereby Vacant: So that if "they ſhould admit your Lordſhips Amendment, "that he hath only Deſerted the Government; yet "even thence it would follow, that the Throne is "vacant as to King James the Second, Deſerting "the Government being in true Conſtruction deſert-"ing the Throne.

"2. The Commons conceive, they need not prove "unto your Lordſhips, that as to any other Perſon, the "Throne is alſo vacant: Your Lordſhips (as they "conceive) having already admitted it, by your "Addreſſing to the Prince of Orange, the 25th of "December laſt, To take upon him the Adminiſtrati-"on of publick Affairs, both Civil and Military; "and to take into his Care the Kingdom of Ireland, "till the Meeting of this Convention. In purſuance "of ſuch Letters, and by your Lordſhips renewing "the ſame Addreſs to his Highneſs (as to Publick "Affairs, and the Kingdom of Ireland) ſince you "met, and by appointing Days of Publick Thankſ-"givings to be obſerved throughout the whole King-"dom. All which the Commons conceive to imply, "that it was your Lordſhips Opinion, that the "Throne was Vacant, and to ſignify ſo much to the "People of this Kingdom.

"3. It is from thoſe who are upon the Throne "of England (when there are any ſuch) from whom "the People of England ought to receive Protection; "and to whom for that Cauſe they owe the Allegi-"ance of Subjects: But there being none now from "whom they expect Regal Protection, and to whom "for that Cauſe they owe the Allegiance of Sub-"jects, the Commons conceive the Throne is Va-"cant.

Diviſions among the Lords.

Intrigues of the French Ambaſſador.

The better to underſtand the Diviſions in the Houſe of Lords, it muſt be remembred, that while the King was the laſt Time at Rocheſter, Monſieur Barillon, the French Ambaſſador was extraordinary buſy in promoting Diviſions amongſt the Peers; upon which the Prince of Orange, as ſoon as he was informed of the King's Departure, ſent an Order to that Miniſter, to leave the Kingdom in Four and Twenty Hours. Monſ. Barillon demanded more Time; which being refuſed, he parted from London with the Marquis Rangoni, Envoy of Modena, to whom the Prince had granted a Guard, and was conducted to Dover by Monſ. de L'Etang, a French Refugee, and Lieutenant of his Highneſs's Horſe-Guards; from whence he embark'd for Calais. Soon after, King James wrote a Letter from St. Germains, directed to the Lords, and others of his Privy-Council, dated Jan. 5. importing, "That he had ta-"ken away, not only all juſt Cauſes, but even Pre-"tenſions of Diſcontent, and redreſs'd all thoſe "Things that were ſet forth as the Cauſes of the "Invaſion: That the Prince of Orange ſeeing all "the Ends of his Declaration anſwer'd; the Peo-"ple beginning to be undeceiv'd, and returning to "their Duty, and well fore-ſeeing that if a Free

Letter of K. James.

"Par-

1688. 4 Jac. II.

“ Parliament ſhould Meet at the Time appointed, “ ſuch a Settlement in all Probability would be “ made both in Church and State, as would totally de-“ feat his ambitious Deſigns, reſolv’d by all means “ poſſible to prevent the Meeting of the Parlia-“ ment: That to do this the moſt effectual way, “ the Prince thought fit to lay a Reſtraint upon his “ Royal Perſon; for as it were abſurd to call that a “ Free-Parliament, where there is any Force on “ either of the Two Houſes, ſo much leſs can that “ Parliament be ſaid to act freely, where the Sove-“ reign, by whoſe Authority they Meet and Sit, “ and from whoſe Royal Aſſent all their Acts re-“ ceive their Life and Sanction, is under actual “ Confinement: That the Senſe of the Indignities “ he had ſuffered, both in his own, and the Per-“ ſon of the Earl of Feverſham, and in the juſt Ap-“ prenſion of further Attempts, by them who al-“ ready endeavour’d to murther his Reputation by “ infamous Calumnies (as if he had been capable “ of ſetting up a Suppoſititious Prince of Wales;) “ together with a ſerious Reflection on a Saying of “ his Royal Father, when he was in the like Cir-“ cumſtances, that there is little Diſtance between “ the Priſons and the Graves of Princes, (which “ afterward prov’d but too true in his Caſe) could “ not but perſuade him to make uſe of that Right, “ which the Law of Nature gives to the meaneſt of “ his Subjects, of freeing himſelf from that unjuſt “ Confinement: That this he did not more for the “ Security of his own Perſon than that thereby he “ might be in a better Capacity for tranſacting and “ providing for every that might contribute to the “ Peace and Settlement of his Kingdoms: That as “ no Change of Fortune ſhould ever make him “ condeſcend to any Thing unbecoming his Royal “ Station; ſo neither the Provocation nor Ingrati-“ tude of his own Subjects, nor any other Conſi-“ deration ſhould ever prevail with him to make “ the leaſt Step contrary to the true Intereſt of the “ Engliſh Nation, which he ever did and ever muſt “ look upon as his own: That he requir’d them of “ his Privy Council, to make theſe his Intentions “ known to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and “ the Lord-Mayor and Commons of the City of “ London, and to all his Subjects in general; and “ to aſſure them, that he deſir’d nothing more than “ to return and hold a Free Parliament, wherein he “ might have the beſt Opportunity of undeceiving “ his People, and ſhewing the Sincerity of thoſe “ Proteſtations he had often made, of preſerving “ the Liberties and Properties of his Subjects, and “ the Proteſtant Religion (a), more eſpecially the “ Church of England, as by Law Eſtabliſhed: That “ in the mean Time they ſhould ſend him their “ Advice, what was fit to be done by him towards “ his Returning, and the accompliſhing of theſe “ good Ends; and that he requir’d them to endea-“ vour to ſuppreſs all Tumults and Diſorders, that “ the Nation might receive the leaſt Prejudice that “ was poſſible from the preſent Diſtractions,

This Letter was publickly printed and diſpers’d in London, but being counter-ſign’d by the Earl of Melfort, a profeſs’d Papiſt, and being dictated by the Counſels of France, it had very little Effect upon the People, whatever Impreſſions of Reſerve and Caution it might make upon ſome of the Peers, who deſired or feared the Return of the King. There being no avow’d Anſwer made to it, King James wrote another Letter addreſs’d to the Lords and Commons, dated Feb. 3. N. S. wherein he tells them, “ That he thought himſelf obliged in Con-“ ſcience to do all he could to open his People’s “ Eyes, that they may ſee the true Intereſt of the “ Nation in this important Conjuncture: That “ finding he could no longer ſtay with Safety, nor “ act with Freedom, he had left the Reaſons of his “ Withdrawing from Rocheſter under his own “ Hand: That underſtanding that Letter, which he “ repeated here at length, was not taken to be his, “ but was maliciouſly ſuppreſs’d by the Prince of “ Orange; he writ to ſeveral of his Privy Council “ and directed Copies thereof to divers of them, “ the Peers of the Realm, believing none durſt inter-“ cept or open any of thoſe Letters: That of all “ theſe he had no Account, nor did he wonder that all “ Arts were uſed to hinder them from knowing his “ Sentiments: That he was reſolved nothing ſhould “ be omitted on his Part, that could contribute to-“ wards the Redreſs of all former Errors, or pre-“ ſent Diſorders, or add to the ſecuring the Pro-“ teſtant Religion, or the Property of the Subject; “ intending to refer the whole to a Parliament Legally “ Called, Freely Elected, and held without Conſtraint. “ And that none might deſpair of his Mercy, he “ declar’d on the Word of a King, that his Pardon “ ſhould be extended even to thoſe that betray’d “ him, (ſome few excepted;) reſolving in that Par-“ liament to cover all Faults by an Act of Obli-“ vion.

K. James ſends another Letter.

This Letter the Lord Preſton ſent to the Houſe of Commons, directed to their Speaker; but the Houſe being informed, that it came from King James, they did not think fit to open it, or to take any other Notice of it. A Copy of the ſame Letter was ſent to the Marquis of Hallifax, as Speaker of the Houſe of Lords: Some of the Peers were for opening, others for rejecting of it: It was at laſt reſolved, that the Lord Preſton ſhould be ſent for, who appear’d, and own’d that the Letter was brought to him by a Scotchman; upon which his Lordſhip was order’d to attend the Houſe again with the Bearer on Febr. 4. But his Lordſhip on that Day appointed was never call’d in, nor any farther Notice taken of the Letter.

This Letter ſent to the Two Houſes: Who took no Notice of it.

But however, this Regard to the Perſon of King James, and the old New-Notions of an indefeaſible Right of Hereditary-Monarchy, began to work much upon the Minds of the Peers, and even of thoſe who had been moſt forward to invite or to join the Prince: For on January 29. the Lords began to conſider of the Commons voting the Throne to be Vacant, and reſolv’d into a Committee of the whole Houſe, of which the Earl of Danby was Chairman. The firſt Motion was made, Not to agree with the Commons, that the Throne was Vacant; and yet to ſuppoſe it for the preſent, and paſs to this other Queſtion, Whether the Throne being Vacant, it ought to be fill’d up by a Regent, or a King? The Earl of Nottingham fetch’d many Arguments

The Lords debate about a Regent.

(a) This Appeal to Sincerity was made in Jeſt to the Engliſh People, or if in Earneſt, they lamented ſuch Kind of Proteſtations againſt the Fact of his whole Reign.

That which made the Project of a Regency the more familiar to the Minds of ſo many Peers, was not only the Preſidents of former Times in Minority and Abſence, but that it had been offer’d in a very late Expedient, for ſecuring the Rights and Liberties of the Church upon the Suppoſition of a Popiſh Succeſſor, without Excluſion of him. See the Heads of the Expedients propoſed by the Court Party to the Parliament in Oxford, 1681. in lieu of the Bill for excluding the Duke of York.

1. That the Duke be baniſhed, during his Life, Five Hundred Miles from England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Dominions and Territories to them belonging.

2. That the whole Government both Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, ſhall, upon the Demiſe of the King, be veſted in a Regent for ſuch Time as the Duke of York ſhall ſurvive.

3. That the Regent be the Princeſs of Orange, and in Caſe of her Deceaſe without Iſſue, or with Iſſue in Minority, then the Lady Anne. ——— That by theſe Means the Three Kingdoms might be united in Defence of the Proteſtant Religion, &c.

from

1688. 4 Jac. II.

from our Engliſh Hiſtory, to ſupport his Opinion for a Regency; (a) adding a freſh Inſtance from Portugal, where Don Pedro had only the Title of Regent conferr'd upon him, while his Depoſed Brother was alive. This Speech is ſaid to have had a great Influence on the Houſe, and would have been follow'd by a Majority, had not the Marquis of Halifax and the Earl of Danby ſtrenuouſly oppos'd it; ſo that the Queſtion being put to the Vote, Fifty one were for a King, and Forty nine only for a Regent; viz. the Dukes of Somerſet, Ormond, Southampton, Grafton, Beaufort, and Northumberland; the Earls of Kent, Pembroke, Clarendon, Rocheſter, Craven, Weſtmorland, Scarſdale, Cheſterfield, Litchfield, Yarmouth and Lindſey; Viſcount Weymouth; the Barons Coventry, Brooke, Leigh, Ferrars, Maynard, Chandois, Jermin, Arundel of Treviſe, Dartmouth, Godolphin, Griffin, and Five more; (b) the Archbiſhop of York, the Biſhops of Norwich, Wincheſter, Ely, St. Aſaph, Bath and Wells, Oxford, Gloceſter and Lincoln. The Earls of Huntingdon and Mulgrave did not appear in the Houſe: My Lord Churchill likewiſe kept at Home, upon ſome Indiſpoſition. The Archbiſhop of Canterbury was alſo abſent. And indeed, the Abhorrence of a Depoſing Power, as an Art and Act of Popery, was ſo warm upon the Thoughts of the Clergy, that no Biſhops came in to the Opinion of filling up the Throne, except the Biſhops of London and Briſtol. But Four Dukes were ſoon brought over, viz. the Duke of Ormond, and the Three Natural Sons of King Charles II. Whilſt the Lords were debating that Preliminary Queſtion, the Commons paſs'd a Vote, declaring, That Popery was inconſiſtent with the Engliſh Conſtitution; and therefore, all Papiſts ſhould be for ever excluded from the Succeſſion to the Crown of England: To which the Houſe of Peers gave their Concurrence; and propos'd farther, to add a Clauſe, That no King of England ſhould Marry a Roman-Catholick.

Votes againſt Popery.

Lords Debates of Original Contract;

On the next Day, January 30. the Lords put this Queſtion, Whether or no there was an Original Contract between King and People? In this Diſpute, ſome labour'd to maintain, That Kings held their Crowns by Divine Right; while others did aſſert, That All Power originally belong'd to the Community, and to the King only by Mutual Compact. The Houſe being divided, 53 were for this laſt Poſition, and 46 only for the Negative: By which it appear'd, that the Party that were for a Regency, began to loſe Ground. The next Queſtion was, Whether King James had broke that Original Contract? Which, after a ſhort Debate, was carry'd in the Affirmative.

On Thurſday, Jan. 31. their Lordſhips took into Conſideration the word Abdicated; and (c) concluded, That the word Deſerted was more proper. They next examin'd the word Vacant; and put this Queſtion, Whether King James, having broke that Original Contract between Him and his People, and deſerted the Government, the Throne was thereby Vacant? This Queſtion was debated with more Heat and Contention than any of the former; and upon a Diviſion, it was carry'd in the Negative by Eleven Voices. From this, ſome Peers inferr'd, That if there was no Vacancy, the Crown was devolv'd upon the next Heirs; and mov'd, That the Prince and Princeſs of Orange ſhould be declar'd King and Queen; which was alſo carry'd in the Negative by Five Voices. The next (d) Day, their Lordſhips agreed to communicate their Reſolutions to the Houſe of Commons: But before they roſe, the Marqueſſes of Halifax and Wincheſter, t[illegible] Earls of Denbigh and Devonſhire, and Thirty [illegible] more of the Peers, enter'd their Proteſtations againſt the Vote of the Day before; viz. That the Throne was not Vacant.

And of the Vacancy of the Throne.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

On Feb. 2. it was order'd by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, aſſembled at Weſtminſter, "That the "Day of Thankſgiving, on the 6th of February Inſtant, on which Day the late King James II. came "to the Throne, ſhall not be obſerv'd in this Kingdom." On this ſame Day, they ſent up their Amendments to the Vote of the Houſe of Commons; upon which a Free Conference was appointed in the Painted Chamber.

Conference between the Two Houſes.

On Feb. 5. Mr. Hambden reported from the Conference with the Lords, that the Earl of Nottingham had ſpoke to this Effect: "That the Lords had "deſir'd this Conference, that they might be as "happily united to the Commons in Opinion, as "they were inſeparable in their Intereſt; and that "they were at this Time uneaſy, that they could "not concur with the Commons in every Thing. "That the Lords did inſiſt upon the firſt Amendment; becauſe they did not find, that the word "Abdicated was known to the Common Law of "England; and becauſe, in the moſt common Acceptation of the Civil Law, Abdicated was a voluntary expreſs Act of Renunciation; which was "not in this Caſe. That the Lords alſo inſiſted "on the Second Amendment: For altho' their Lordſhips had agreed, that the King had deſerted the "Government, and therefore had made Application to the Prince of Orange to take upon him the "Adminiſtration of the Government; yet there "could be no other Inference drawn from hence, "but only, the Exerciſe of the Government by "King James II. was ceas'd: So as the Lords were "willing to ſecure the Nation againſt the Return "of the ſaid King into this Kingdom; but not "that there was either ſuch an Abdication by him, "or ſuch a Vacancy in the Throne, as that the "Crown was therefore become Elective. Which "they could not agree to; (1.) Becauſe, by the "Conſtitution of the Government, the Monarchy is "Hereditary, and not Elective. (2.) No Act of the "King can bar, or deſtroy the Right of his Heirs to "the Crown; and therefore, if the Throne be Vacant of King James, Allegiance is due to ſuch

(a) The Diſpute of Regency is thus ſtated by Biſhop Burnet, in his Preface to ſome Sermons, publiſh'd by him in 1713. 8*vo* "Thoſe who either adher'd ſecretly to King James, or "were intangled with ſome received Opinions, propoſed a "Regency with the Regal Power, leaving the Title and Dignity of the King in him: But as this could not be legally "done, unleſs the Act were paſſed by the King, Lords and "Commons, which in this Caſe could not be expected: So "if the Oath of Allegiance was ſtill continued, by which all "his Power and Authority, as well as a Titular Dignity "was to be maintain'd; here was an open Mockery, not without an impious Prophanation, to ſwear to a Prince who was "to be diveſted of his Authority, &c.

(b) Mr. Echard brings the Republicans on the Side of Voting for a Regency. "Some (ſays he) were for making the "Prince of Orange Regent, or Protector, with particular Limitations; and others King, according to the Old Conſtitution. "The firſt ſeem'd to be ſtrengthen'd by the numerous Party "of the Republicans, who hop'd by that Means to make a "great Step towards introducing a Commonwealth.

(c) See a Sermon preach'd in Lincoln's-Inn Chapel, on the 31*ſt of* January, 1688. being the Day appointed for a Publick Thankſgiving to Almighty God, for having made His Highneſs the Prince of Orange the Glorious Inſtrument of the Great Deliverance of this Kingdom from Popery and Arbitrary Power. By John Tillotſon, D. D. Dean of Canterbury. London, Printed for Brab. Aylmer, 4*to.*

There was a Sermon preach'd before the Houſe of Commons, on the 31*ſt of* January, 1688. being the Thankſgiving-Day. By Gilbert Burnet, D. D. Chaplain to His Highneſs. On Pſal. cxliv. 15. Printed for Rich. Chiſwell, 4to.

(d) An Entry in the Journal of the Houſe of Commons, Feb. 1. 1688. "Reſolved, That the Unanimous Thanks of the "Houſe be now given to the Clergy of the Church of England, for the great Services they have done their Religion "and Country, by the Oppoſition they have made to the Execution of the Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſion, and their refuſing to "read the King's Declaration for Toleration." Paſs'd Nemine Contradicente.

"Perſon

1688. 4 Jac. II.

"Perſon as the Right of Succeſſion does belong to." By this way of Reaſoning, it is plain, that the Diſſent of the Lords from the Commons, did not ariſe from any Favour to the Perſon, or the Government of (a) King James, but from a Tenderneſs to the Proteſtant Succeſſion, and the Legal Notions of Hereditary Monarchy.

When Mr. Hambden made his Report of this Conference, the Queſtion was put, Whether the Commons ſhould concur with the Lords? And it was carry'd in the Negative, by a very great Majority: And it was reſolved, That a Free Conference be deſir'd with the Lords, upon the Subject-Matter of the laſt Conference: To which the Lords agreed. This Second Conference was open'd by Mr. Hambden, who ſpoke thus:

Another Free Conference.

Speech of Mr. Hambden.

"My Lords, The Commons have deſir'd this Free Conference from your Lordſhips, upon the Subject-Matter of the laſt Conference; that they may make appear to your Lordſhips, That it is not without ſufficient Reaſon, that they are induced to maintain their own Vote, to which your Lordſhips have made ſome Amendments. --- 'Tis true, my Lords, the preſent Difference between your Lordſhips and the Commons, is only about a few Words: But the Commons think their Words ſo ſignificant to the Purpoſe for which they are uſed, and ſo proper to the Caſe unto which they are apply'd, that, in ſo weighty a Matter as that now in Debate, they are by no means to be parted with.

"The word Abdicated, the Commons conceive is of larger Signification, than the Word your Lordſhips are pleas'd to uſe, Deſert; but not too large to be apply'd to all the Recitals in the beginning of the Commons Vote, to which they meant it ſhould be apply'd. Nor ought it to be reſtrain'd to a voluntary expreſs Reſignation, only in Word or Writing; Overt-Acts there are, that will be ſignificant enough to amount to it.

"My Lords, That the Common Law of England is not acquainted with the Word; it is from the Modeſty of our Law, that it is not willing to ſuppoſe there ſhould be any unfortunate Occaſion of making uſe of it: And We would have been willing that We ſhould never have had ſuch an Occaſion as We have, to have Recourſe to it. Your Lordſhips next Amendment is, That your Lordſhips have left out the laſt Words in the Commons Vote, And that the Throne is thereby Vacant.

"My Lords, The Commons conceive it is a true Propoſition, and That the Throne is Vacant; and they think they make it appear, that that is no new Phraſe; neither is it a Phraſe that perhaps ſome of the Old Records may be Strangers to, or not well acquainted with: But they think it not chargeable with the Conſequences that your Lordſhips have been pleas'd to draw from it, That it will make the Crown of England become Elective. If the Throne had been full, We know your Lordſhips would have aſſign'd that as a Reaſon of your Diſagreement, by telling us who fill'd it; and it would be known by ſome Publick Royal Act, which might notify to the People, in Whom the Kingly Government reſided: Neither of which has been done; and yet your Lordſhips will not allow the Throne to be Vacant.

"My Lords, I am unwilling to detain your Lordſhips longer, from what may be better ſaid for your Lordſhips Satisfaction in theſe Matters, by thoſe whoſe Province it is. I am to acquaint your Lordſhips, That the Commons do agree, it is an Affair of very great Importance. Here are other Gentlemen that are appointed to manage this Conference; and will give their Aſſiſtance to bring it, we hope, to a Happy Concluſion, in the Agreement of both Houſes in this ſo very conſiderable a Point.

Then Mr. Somers ſpoke thus:

Argument of Mr. Somers.

"My Lords, What is appointed me to ſpeak to, is, your Lordſhips Firſt Amendment; by which the word (b) Abdicated, in the Commons Vote, is chang'd into the word Deſerted: And I am to acquaint your Lordſhips, what ſome of the Grounds are, that induced the Commons to inſiſt upon the word Abdicated, and not to agree to your Lordſhips Amendment.

1. "The firſt Reaſon your Lordſhips are pleas'd to deliver as for your changing the Word, is, That the word Abdicated, your Lordſhips do not find it a Word known to the Common Law of England, and therefore ought not to be uſed: And the next is, That the Common Acceptation of the Word, amounts to a voluntary expreſs Act of Renunciation; which (your Lordſhips ſay) is not in this Caſe, nor will follow from the Premiſes.

"My Lords, As to the firſt of theſe Reaſons, if it be an Objection, That the word Abdicated hath not a known Senſe in the Common Law of England; there's the ſame Objection againſt the word Deſerted: For there can be no Authority or Book of Law produced, wherein any determinate Senſe is given to the word Deſerted. So that your Lordſhips firſt Reaſon hath the ſame Force againſt your own Amendment, as it hath againſt the Term uſed by the Commons.

"The Words are both Latin Words, and us'd in the beſt Authors, and both of a known Signification: Their Meaning is very well underſtood, tho' it be true their Meaning be not the ſame. The word Abdicate doth naturally and properly ſignify, entirely to renounce, throw off, diſown, relinquiſh any Thing or Perſon, ſo as to have no further to do with it; and that whether it be done by expreſs Words, or in Writing, (which is the

(a) Mr. Echard has obſerv'd, "That as to the Lords, tho' they were generally for keeping out King James, yet there were a conſiderable Party amongſt them, who, to ſave the Honour of the Church of England, and the Rights and Relicks of Monarchy, were for ſending His Majeſty an Invitation to return into England; but ſtill upon ſuch hard Terms, and with ſuch Reſtrictions, as in all Probability he would never condeſcend to: Of which Party were the Earls of Clarendon, Rocheſter, and Nottingham, and moſt of the Biſhops.—— Yet in the Houſe of Commons, ſays he, the Party of thoſe who were for inviting King James to return upon Limitations, or not for making the Prince of Orange King, did not find themſelves ſtrong enough to cauſe the Houſe to divide. However, the chief of them (ſuch as Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Robert Sawyer, Mr. Finch, Sir Chriſtopher Muſgrave, Sir William Cooke, the Lord Fanſhaw, the Lord Cornbury, &c.) did vigorouſly oppoſe the Paſſing of the Vote of the Throne being Vacant.—— Mr. Echard does again believe, "That the no common Difficulties ariſing in many of that Auguſt Body of the Houſe of Lords, were owing to their having entertain'd Large and Generous Notions of the Church and Monarchy of England:"—— Whereas others will ſay the contrary, That thoſe Difficulties aroſe, only from entertaining Narrow and Servile Notions of the Church and Monarchy of England.

(b) Even Mr. Dodwell, who adher'd to King James, did ſufficiently own the Validity of his Abdication, in his Defence of the Vindication of the Deprived Biſhops, 4to. p 71. "Germanus the Patriarch (ſays he) had ABDICATED, perhaps unwillingly; but that cannot prejudice the Validity of the Thing when done. Multitudes of ſuch Reſignations there have been, both of PRINCES and Biſhops, the Validity whereof was never queſtion'd by Men of the ſevereſt Principles; eſpecially where the Unwillingneſs was not total, but ſuch as was conſiſtent with Conditional Willingneſs. Such a Willingneſs, I mean, as Men rather choſe, than they would abide the Conſequences which were otherwiſe to be expected, in caſe they ſhould prove refractory."—— And elſewhere, in the ſame Tract, he granted, "That a Biſhop [and equally by his Argument, a King] "leaving the Enſign of his Office behind him, and retiring, He needs not ſo much as the Form of a Deprivation, but doth ipſo facto ABDICATE, even tho' he proteſts not to Abdicate; becauſe his Proteſtation is againſt Fact, and therefore Null and Void in it ſelf.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

" Senſe your Lordſhips put upon it, and which is " properly call'd Reſignation, or Ceſſion) or, by do- " ing ſuch Acts as are inconſiſtent with the holding, " or retaining of the Thing : Which the Commons " take to be the preſent Caſe, and therefore made " choice of the word Abdicate, as that which they " thought did (above all others) moſt properly " expreſs that Meaning. And in this latter Senſe " it is taken by others; and that it is the true Signi- " fication of the Word, I ſhall ſhew your Lordſhips " out of the beſt Authors.

" The firſt I ſhall mention, is Grotius, [de Jure " Belli & Pacis l. 2. c. 4. §. 4.] Venit enim hoc non " ex jure civili, ſed ex jure naturali, quo quiſque " ſuum poteſt Abdicare, & ex naturali Præſumptione " qua voluiſſe quis creditur, quod ſufficienter ſigni- " ficavit. And then he goes on, Recuſari Hæreditas " non tantum verbis, ſed etiam re poteſt, & quovis " indicio voluntatis.

" Another Inſtance, which I ſhall mention, to " ſhew that for the Abdicating a Thing, it is ſuffi- " cient to do an Act which is inconſiſtent with the " retaining it, tho' there be nothing of an expreſs " Renunciation, is out of Calvin's Lexicon Juridi- " cum, where he ſays, (Generum Abdicat, qui " ſponſam repudiat;) He that divorceth his Wiſe, " abdicates his Son in-Law. Here is an Abdication " without expreſs Words; but is by doing ſuch " an Act, as doth ſufficiently ſignify his Purpoſe.

" The next Author that I ſhall quote, is Briſonius, " [De Verborum Significatione] who hath this Paſ- " ſage : Homo liber qui ſeipſum vendit, abdicat ſe " ſtatu ſuo; that is, He who ſells himſelf, hath " thereby done ſuch an Act, as cannot conſiſt with " his former Eſtate of Freedom; and is therefore " properly ſaid, Se abdicaſſe ſtatu ſuo.

" Budæus [in his Commentaries ad Legem Se- " cundam, de Origine Juris] expounds the Words " in the ſame Senſe : Abdicare ſe Magiſtratu, eſt " idem quod abire penitus Magiſtratu; that is, He " that goes out of his Office of Magiſtracy, let it be " in what manner he will, has abdicated the Ma- " giſtracy.

" And Grotius [in his Book de Jure Belli & " Pacis, l. 1. c. 4. §. 9.] ſeems to expound the " word abdicare, by manifeſtè habere pro Derelicto; " that is, That he who hath abdicated any Thing, " hath ſo far relinquiſh'd it, that he hath no Right " of Return to it. And that is the Senſe the Com- " mons put upon the Word : It is an Entire Aliena- " tion of the Thing; and ſo ſtands in Oppoſition to " Dicare : Dicat, qui proprium aliquod facit; Abdi- " cat, qui alienat; ſo ſays Pralejus, in his Lexicon " Juris. It is therefore inſiſted upon as the proper " Word, by the Commons.

" But the word Deſerted (which is the Word " us'd in the Amendment, by your Lordſhips) hath " not only a very doubtful Signification, but in " the common Acceptance both of the Civil and Ca- " non Law, doth ſignify only a bare Withdrawing, " a Temporary Quitting of a Thing; and Neglect " only, which leaves the Party at Liberty of return- " ing to it again. Deſertum pro Neglecto, ſays Spi- " gelius, in his Lexicon. But the Difference be- " tween deſerere and derelinquere, is expreſly laid " down by Bartolus, upon the Eighth Law of the " Fifty eighth Title of the Eleventh Book of the " Code; and his Words are theſe; Nota diligenter " ex hac Lege, quod aliud eſt Agrum deſerere, aliud " derelinquere; qui enim derelinquit, ipſum ex pæ- " nitentia non revocat; ſed qui deſerit, intra bien- " nium poteſt.

" Whereby it appears, my Lords, That that is " call'd Deſertion, which is Temporary and Relieva- " ble; that is call'd Dereliction, where there is no " Power of Right to return.

" So in the beſt Latin Authors, and in the Ci- " vil Law, deſerere Exercitum is us'd to ſignify, Sol- " diers leaving their Colours. Cod. lib. 12. §. 1.

" And in the Canon Law, to deſert a Benefice, " ſignifies no more than to be Non-Reſident : So " is Calvin's Lexicon, Verb. Deſert. Secund. Ca- " nones. 1688. 4 Jac. II.

" In both Caſes, the Party hath not only a Right " of returning, but is bound to return again. Which, " my Lords, as the Commons do not take to be the " preſent Caſe, ſo they cannot think that your " Lordſhips do; becauſe it is expreſly ſaid, in one " of your Reaſons given in the laſt Amendment, " That your Lordſhips have been, and are willing " to ſecure the Nation againſt the Return of King " James : Which your Lordſhips would not in Ju- " ſtice do, if you did look upon it no more than " a negligent Withdrawing, which leaves them at Liberty " to the Party to return.

" For which Reaſons, my Lords, the Commons " cannot agree to the firſt Amendment, to inſert the " word Deſerted, inſtead of Abdicated; becauſe it " doth not in any ſort come up to their Senſe of " the Thing; ſo they do apprehend, it doth not " reach your Lordſhips Meaning, as it is expreſs'd " in your Reaſons : Whereas they look upon the " word Abdicated to expreſs properly what is to be " inferr'd from that Part of the Vote to which your " Lordſhips have agreed, That King James II. by " going about to ſubvert the Conſtitution, and by " breaking the Original Contract between King and " People, and by violating the Fundamental Laws, " and withdrawing himſelf out of the Kingdom, hath " thereby renounc'd to be a King according to the " Conſtitution : By avowing to Govern by a De- " ſpotick Power, unknown to the Conſtitution, and " inconſiſtent with it, He hath renounc'd to be a " King according to the Law; ſuch a King, as He " ſwore to be at the Coronation; ſuch a King, to " whom the Allegiance of an Engliſh Subject is due; " and hath ſet up another kind of Dominion, which " is to all Intents an Abdication, or Abandoning of " his Royal Title, as fully as if it had been done by " expreſs Words.

" And, my Lords, for theſe Reaſons the Commons " do inſiſt upon the word Abdicated, and cannot " agree to the word Deſerted.

Mr. Serjeant Holt argued thus : " My Lords, I " am commanded by the Commons, to aſſiſt in the " Management of this Conference, and am to ſpeak " to the ſame Point that the Gentleman did, who " ſpoke laſt to your Lordſhips firſt Amendment. Argument of Serjeant Holt.

" As to the firſt of your Lordſhips Reaſons for " that Amendment, (with Submiſſion to your Lord- " ſhips) I do conceive it not ſufficient to alter the " Minds of the Commons; or to induce them to " change the word Abdicated, for your Lordſhips " word Deſerted.

" Your Lordſhips Reaſon is, That it is not a " Word that is known to the Common Law of Eng- " land. But, my Lords, the Queſtion is not ſo " much, Whether it be a Word as Ancient as the " Common Law? (tho' it may be too.) For that " will be no Objection againſt the uſing it, if it " be a Word of a known and certain Signification; " becauſe that (we think) will juſtify the Commons " making uſe of it, according to your Lordſhips " own Expreſſion.

" That it is an Ancient Word, appears by the " Authors that have been quoted; and 'tis fre- " quently met with in the beſt of Roman Writers, " as Cicero, &c. and by the Derivation from Dico, " an Ancient Latin Word.

" That now it is a known Engliſh Word, and of " a known and certain Signification with us, I will " quote to your Lordſhips an Engliſh Authority; " and that is, the Dictionary ſet forth by our Coun- " tryman Minſhew, who hath the word Abdicate, " as an Engliſh Word; and ſays, that it ſignifies to " Renounce; which is the Signification the Commons " would have of it : So that I hope your Lordſhips

3 " will

1688. 4 Jac. II.

"will not find Fault with their uſing a Word that is "ſo ancient in it ſelf, and that hath ſuch certain "Signification in our own Language.

"Then, my Lords, for that Part of Your Lordſhips Objection, That it is not a Word known to the Common-Law of England, that cannot prevail; for your Lordſhips very well know, we have "very few Words in our Tongue that are of equal "Antiquity with the Common-Law; your Lordſhips "know the Language of England is alter'd greatly "in the ſeveral Succeſſions of Time, and the Intermixture of other Nations; and if we ſhould "be oblig'd to make uſe only of Words then known "and in uſe, what we ſhould deliver in ſuch a "Dialect, would be very difficult to be underſtood.

"Your Lordſhips ſecond Reaſon for your firſt "Amendment in changing the word Abdicated, for "the word Deſerted, is, Becauſe in the moſt common Acceptation of the Civil Law, Abdication is a voluntary Expreſs Act of Renunciation. That "is the general Acceptation of the Word, and, I "think, the Commons do ſo uſe the Word in this "Caſe, becauſe it hath that Signification: But I do "not know, whether your Lordſhips mean a voluntary Expreſs Act, or formal Deed of Renunciation: If you do ſo, I confeſs I know of none "in this Caſe: But, my Lords, both in the Common-Law of England, and the Civil Law, and in "common Underſtanding, there are expreſs Acts of "Renunciation that are not by Deed; for if your "Lordſhips pleaſe to obſerve, the Government and "Magiſtracy is under a Truſt, and any Acting contrary to that Truſt is a Renouncing of the Truſt, "tho' it be not a Renouncing by formal Deed; For "it is a plain Declaration, by Act and Deed, tho' "not in Writing, that he who hath the Truſt, "acting contrary, is a Diſclaimer of the Truſt: "Eſpecially, my Lords, if the Actings be ſuch as "are inconſiſtent with, and ſubverſive of this Truſt; "For how can a Man in Reaſon or Senſe expreſs a "greater Renunciation of a Truſt, than by the conſtant Declarations of his Actings to be quite contrary to that Truſt?

"This, my Lords, is ſo plain, both in Underſtanding and Practice, that I need do no more "but repeat it again, and leave it with your Lordſhips, That the doing an Act inconſiſtent with the Being and End of a Thing, or that ſhall not anſwer the End of that Thing, but quite the contrary, that ſhall be conſtru'd an Abdication, and formal Renunciation of that Thing. (a)

The Lords at laſt agree to the Words Abdicated and Vacant.

The Managers of the Lords, having made their Report to the Houſe; on the ſame Day, February 6th, there was a long Debate, Whether or no they ſhould inſiſt upon their Amendments? By this Time ſeveral of the Chief Members, who were before for a Regency, were come over to the Party that were for filling up the Vacant Throne, which was alſo increas'd by the Arrival of ſome other Lords, inſomuch that the Two Queſtions about the Words, Abdicated and Vacant, were now carry'd in the Affirmative. The Earl of Danby made an excellent Speech, to prove the Vacancy of the Throne, and the Neceſſity of Supplying it by the Prince and Princeſs of Orange, wherein he was ſtoutly ſeconded by the Marquis of Hallifax, who immediately put this Queſtion: Whether their Highneſſes, the Prince and Princeſs of Orange, ſhould be declar'd King and Queen? Upon which, by a Majority of Twenty Voices, It was reſolv'd by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal aſſembled at Weſtminſter, That the Prince and Princeſs of Orange, ſhall be declar'd King and Queen of England, and of all the Dominions thereunto belonging.

Reſolution of the Lords for Settling the Throne.

On Thurſday, Feb. 7. The Lords came to this Declaration of Settling the Succeſſion of the Crown; That the Prince and Princeſs of Orange ſhould be King and Queen of England, &c. for their Natural Lives, and Life of the longer Liver of them; and that the Sole and Full Regal Power be in the Prince only, in the Name of Both: And that after their Deceaſes, the Crown ſhall belong to the Heirs of the Body of the Princeſs; and for default of ſuch Iſſue, to the Princeſs Anne of Denmark, and the Heirs of her Body; and for Default of ſuch Iſſue, to the Heirs of the Body of the ſaid Prince of Orange; and for Default of ſuch Iſſue, to the Perſon that ſhall be nam'd, and in ſuch Manner as ſhall be limited and regulated by Act of Parliament; and for Default of ſuch Limitation and Regulation, to the lawful Heirs of the ſaid Prince of Orange. The Lords ſent up this Declaratory Vote to the Commons, to which, after a ſhort Debate, and ſome little Amendment, the Commons agreed: The ſame Day the Lords ſent a Meſſage to the Commons, That they had agreed to the Vote ſent them up of the 28th of January laſt, without any Alterations. They alſo communicated to the Commons the Oaths which the Lords thought fit to be taken, inſtead of thoſe of Allegiance and Supremacy, which were readily approv'd by the Commons.

Happy Agreement of the Two Houſes.

In the mean Time, a Committee of the Houſe of Commons were employ'd in drawing up a Declaration, containing the Reaſons, why King James had Vacated the Throne, and aſſerting the ancient Rights and Liberties of the People of England; which Declaration being ſent up to the Lords on the 1ſt of February, was after ſome Debates agreed unto the Day following, when the Princeſs of Orange arriv'd at Graveſend, and went directly to Whitehall, amidſt loud Acclamations, and all the Signs of Univerſal Joy. (b)

Arrival of the Princeſs of Orange.

On the next Day, being Wedneſday, February 13. The Prince and Princeſs of Orange, being ſeated on Two armed Chairs, under a Canopy in the Banqueting-Houſe, both Houſes of the Convention waited upon them in a Body, and caus'd the Clerk of the Crown to read with an audible Voice the following Declaration of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons aſſembled at Weſtminſter.

Declaration of the Two Houſes.

"WHereas the late King James II. by the "Aſſiſtance of divers Evil Counſellors, "Judges, and Miniſters employ'd by him, did endeavour to ſubvert and extirpate the Proteſtant Religion, and the Laws and Liberties of this "Kingdom; by aſſuming and exerciſing a Power "of diſpenſing with, and ſuſpending of Laws,

(a) See the Debate at large, between the Houſe of Lords and Houſe of Commons, at the free Conference held in the Painted Chamber, in the Seſſion of the Convention, Anno 1688. relating to the word ABDICATED and the VACANCY of the Throne in the Commons Vote. Printed for J. Wilkins, 1695. 8*vo*.

Mr. Echard infers from this memorable Conference and Debate, that it plainly appears, "That the Opinion was almoſt "univerſal, that King JAMES had abdicated or forfeited his "own Perſonal Right, but the main Difficulty aroſe from the "Regard to his Heirs, and probably from the Prince of Wales "himſelf, about whoſe Title both Lords and Commons ſeem'd "reſolv'd not to have the leaſt Argument. —— To which may be added, That if the Lords and Commons were univerſally of Opinion, that the Perſonal Right of King James was not unalienable, there could be no Indefeaſible Right in his Heirs: However the Prince of Wales was neither in the Argument, nor indeed in the Queſtion; there was no Intimation of his Apparent or Preſumptive Right, but of Proteſtant Succeſſors only.

(b) Her Highneſs ſtopt a little in the River at Greenwich to receive the Prince and Princeſs of Denmark in the Yatcht, and then they all took Barge toward London.

1688. 4 Jac. II.

“and the Execution of Laws, without Conſent of Parliament; by committing and proſecuting divers worthy Prelates, for humbly petitioning to be excus'd from concurring to the ſaid aſſum'd Power; by iſſuing and cauſing to be executed, a Commiſſion under the Great Seal, for erecting a Court call'd, The Court of Commiſſioners for Eccleſiaſtical Cauſes; By levying Money for, and to the Uſe of the Crown, by Pretence of Prerogative, for other Time, and in other Manner, than the ſame was granted by Parliament; By raiſing and keeping a Standing Army within this Kingdom in Time of Peace, without Conſent of Parliament; and Quartering Soldiers contrary to Law: By cauſing ſeveral good Subjects, being Proteſtants, to be diſarm'd at the ſame Time when Papiſts were both arm'd and employ'd contrary to Law: By violating the Freedom of Election of Members to ſerve in Parliament: By Proſecution in the Court of King's-Bench, for Matters and Cauſes cognizable only in Parliament, and by divers other illegal and arbitrary Courſes.

“And whereas of late Years, partial, corrupt, and unqualify'd Perſons have been return'd, and ſerv'd on Juries in Trials; and particularly divers Jurors in Trials for High-Treaſon, which were not Free-Holders: And exceſſive Bail hath been requir'd of Perſons committed in Criminal Cauſes, to elude the Benefit of the Laws for the Liberty of the Subject: And expenſive Fines have been impos'd; And illegal and cruel Puniſhments inflicted: And ſeveral Grants and Promiſes made of Fines and Forfeitures, before any Conviction or Judgment againſt whom the ſame was to be levy'd: All which are utterly and directly contrary to the known Laws and Statutes, and Freedom of this Realm:

“And whereas the late King James II. having abdicated the Government, and the Throne being thereby Vacant; his Highneſs, the Prince of Orange (whom it hath pleas'd Almighty God to make the glorious Inſtrument of delivering this Kingdom from Popery and Arbitrary Power) did (by the Advice of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and divers Principal Perſons of the Commons) cauſe Letters to be written to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, being Proteſtants, and other Letters to the ſeveral Counties, Cities, Univerſities, Boroughs and Cinque-Ports, for the chuſing of ſuch Perſons to repreſent them, as were of Right to be ſent to Parliament, to meet and ſit at Weſtminſter, Jan. 22. 1689. in order to ſuch an Eſtabliſhment, as that their Religion, Laws, and Liberties might not again be in Danger of being ſubverted; upon which Letters, Elections have been accordingly made: And thereupon, the ſaid Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, purſuant to their reſpective Letters and Elections, being now aſſembled in a full and free Repreſentation of this Nation, taking into their moſt ſerious Conſideration the beſt Means for the attaining the Ends aforeſaid, do in the firſt Place (as their Anceſtors in like Caſes have uſually done) for the vindicating their Ancient Rights and Liberties, declare;

“That the pretended Power of Suſpending Laws, or the Execution of Laws by Regal Authority, without Conſent of Parliament, is illegal.

“That the pretended Power of Diſpenſing with Laws, or the executing of Laws by regal Authority, as it hath been aſſum'd and exercis'd of late, is illegal.

“That the Commiſſion for erecting the late Courts of Commiſſioners for Eccleſiaſtical Cauſes, and all other Commiſſions and Courts of the like Nature, are illegal and pernicious.

“That Levying Money, to or for the Uſe of the Crown, by Pretence of Prerogative, without Grant of Parliament, for longer Time, or in any other Manner, than the ſame is, or ſhall be granted, is illegal. 1688. 4 Jac. II.

“That it is the Right of the Subject to Petition the King, and all Commitments and Proſecutions for ſuch Petitioning are illegal.

“That the raiſing and keeping a Standing Army within the Kingdom in Time of Peace, unleſs it be by Conſent of Parliament, is againſt Law.

“That the Subjects being Proteſtants, may have Arms for their Defence ſuitable to their Condition, and as allow'd by Law.

“That the Election of Members of Parliament ought to be Free.

“That the Freedom of Speech, or Debates, and Proceedings in Parliament, ought not to be impeach'd or queſtion'd in any Court or Place out of Parliament.

“That Exceſſive Bail ought not to be requir'd, nor Exceſſive Fines impos'd, nor cruel and unuſual Puniſhments inflicted.

“That Jurors ought to be duly impannell'd and return'd, and Jurors which paſs upon Men in Trials for High Treaſon, ought to be Free-Holders.

“That all Grants and Promiſes of Fines and Forfeitures of particular Perſons before Conviction, are illegal and Void.

“And that for Redreſs of all Grievances, and for the Amending, Strength'ning, and Preſerving of the Laws, Parliaments ought to be held frequently.

“And they do claim, demand, and inſiſt upon all and ſingular the Premiſſes, as their undoubted Rights and Privileges; and that no Declarations, Judgments, Doings, or Proceedings, to the Prejudice of the People in any of the ſaid Premiſſes, ought in any wiſe to be drawn hereafter in Conſequence or Example.

“To which Demand of their Rights they are particularly encouraged by the Declaration of his Highneſs, the Prince of Orange, as being the only Means for obtaining a full Redreſs and Remedy therein.

“Having therefore an entire Confidence, that his ſaid Highneſs, the Prince of Orange, will perfect the Deliverance ſo far advanc'd by him, and will ſtill preſerve them from the Violation of their Rights, which they have here aſſerted, and from all other Attempts upon their Religion, Rights and Liberties:

“The ſaid Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons aſſembled at Weſtminſter, do Reſolve;

“That William and Mary, Prince and Princeſs of Orange be, and be declared King and Queen of England, France, and Ireland, and the Dominions thereunto belonging, to hold the Crown and Royal Dignity of the ſaid Kingdoms and Dominions, to them the ſaid Prince and Princeſs during their Lives, and the Life of the Survivor of them; and that the ſole and full Exerciſe of the Royal Power be only in, and executed by the ſaid Prince of Orange, in the Names of the Prince and Princeſs during their Lives; And after their Deceaſes, the ſaid Crown and Royal-Dignity of the ſaid Kingdoms and Dominions to the Heirs of the Body of the ſaid Princeſs; And for Default of ſuch Iſſue, to the Princeſs Anne of Denmark, and the Heirs of her Body; And for Default of ſuch Iſſue, to the Heirs of the Body of the ſaid Prince of Orange.

“And the ſaid Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, do pray the ſaid Prince and Princeſs of Orange to accept the ſame accordingly.

“And

3

1688. 4 Jac. II.

" And that the Oaths hereafter mentioned, be " taken by all Perſons of whom the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy might be required by Law, " inſtead of them ; and that the ſaid Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy be abrogated.

I A. B. do ſincerely Promiſe and Swear, That I will be Faithful and bear true Allegiance to their Majeſties, King William and Queen Mary.

So help me God.

I A. B. do Swear, That I do from my Heart Abhor, Deteſt, and Abjure as Impious and Heretical, this Damnable Doctrine and Poſition, That Princes Excommunicated or Deprived by the Pope, or any Authority of the See of Rome, may be Depoſed or Murthered by their Subjects, or any other whatſoever ; And I do Declare, That no Foreign Prince, Perſon, Prelate, State, or Potentate, hath or ought to have any Juriſdiction, Power, Superiority, Preheminence or Authority, Eccleſiaſtical or Spiritual, within this Realm.

So help me God.

After the Reading of this Declaration, the Marquis of Hallifax, Speaker of the Houſe of Lords, made a Tender of the Crown to their Highneſſes in the Name of Both Houſes, whereupon the Prince returned this Anſwer.

My Lords and Gentlemen ;

" THIS is certainly the greateſt Proof of the " Truſt you have in me that can be given, " which is the Thing that makes us value it the " more : And as I had no other Intention in coming " hither, than to preſerve your Religion, Laws, and " Liberties, ſo you may be ſure, that I ſhall endeavour to ſupport them, and ſhall be willing to " concur in any Thing that ſhall be for the Good of " the Kingdom, and to do all that is in my Power " to advance the Welfare and Glory of the Na- " tion. — Anſwer of the Prince.

On the ſame Day, being Aſh-Wedneſday, the Prince and Princeſs were ſolemnly Proclaimed King and Queen of England, France, and Ireland, firſt at Whitehall, then at Temple-Bar, and again at the Royal Exchange, each Proclamation being eccho'd with Univerſal Acclamations of Joy. (a) — The Princes and Princeſs proclaim'd King and Queen.

(a) The Proclamation it ſelf deſerves a Place. " Whereas " it hath pleaſed Almighty God in his great Mercy to this " Kingdom, to vouchſafe us a Miraculous Deliverance from Popery and Arbitrary Power ; and that our Preſervation is due, " next under God, to the Reſolution and Conduct of his " Highneſs the Prince of Orange, whom God hath choſen to " be the glorious Inſtrument of ſuch an ineſtimable Happineſs " to us and our Poſterity : And being highly ſenſible and fully " perſuaded of the great and eminent Virtue of her Highneſs " the Princeſs of Orange, whoſe Zeal for the Proteſtant Religion will no doubt bring a Bleſſing along with her upon this " Nation. And whereas the Lords and Commons now aſſembled at Weſtminſter, have made a Declaration, and preſented " the ſame to the ſaid Prince and Princeſs of Orange, and " therein deſired them to accept the Crown, who have accepted the ſame accordingly : We therefore the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons, together with the Lord " Mayor and Citizens of London, and others of the Commons " of this Realm, do with full Conſent publiſh and proclaim, " according to the ſaid Declaration, WILLIAM and MARY, " Prince and Princeſs of Orange, to be KING and QUEEN of " England, France, and Ireland, with all the Dominions and " Territories thereto belonging ; who are accordingly ſo to be " own'd, deem'd, and taken by all the People of the aforeſaid " Realms and Dominions, who are from henceforth bound to " acknowledge and pay unto them all Faith and true Allegiance, beſeeching God, by whom Kings reign, to bleſs King " WILLIAM and Queen MARY with long and happy Years to " reign over us.

THE

THE LIVES and REIGNS OF King WILLIAM AND Queen MARY.

1688. 1 W. M.

New Privy-Council.

ON Thurſday, February the 14th, a Proclamation was iſſued by King WILLIAM and Queen MARY, for continuing in their reſpective Offices and Places all Perſons, (being Proteſtants.) And then his Majeſty's firſt Care was to ſummon a Privy-Council, that conſiſted of theſe Honourable Perſons: His Royal Highneſs Prince George of Denmark, William Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Thomas Earl of Danby (Lord Preſident of the Council,) George Marquis of Hallifax (Lord Privy-Seal,) Henry Duke of Norfolk (Earl-Marſhal of England,) Charles Marquis of Wincheſter, Robert Earl of Lindſey (Lord Great-Chamberlain of England,) William Earl of Devonſhire (Lord-Steward of his Majeſty's Houſhold,) Charles Earl of Dorſet and Middleſex (Lord-Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold,) Aubery Earl of Oxford, Charles Earl of Shrewsbury (His Majeſty's Principal-Secretary of State,) William Earl of Bedford, John Earl of Bath, Charles Earl of Macclesfield, Daniel Earl of Nottingham, Thomas Viſcount Falconberg, Charles Viſcount Mordant, Francis Viſcount Newport (Treaſurer of his Majeſty's Houſhold,) Richard Viſcount Lumley, Henry Lord Biſhop of London, Philip Lord Wharton, Ralph Lord Mountague, Henry Lord Delamere, John Lord Churchil, Mr. Bentinck (Groom of the Stole to his Majeſty,) Mr. Henry Sidney, Sir Robert Howard, Kt. Sir Henry Capel, Kt. Mr. Henry Powle (Speaker of the Houſe of Commons,) Mr. Edward Ruſſel, Mr. Hugh Boſcawen: To whom were added, on Febr. 20th, Thomas Wharton, Eſq; and Sir John Lowther of Lowther, Bar. (Vice-Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold.)

Offices and Honours.

And the Chief Offices at Court were fill'd up with Perſons of the beſt Quality and Merit: Monſieur D'Auverquerque was made Maſter of the Horſe to the King; Marſhal de Schomberg, Maſter of the Ordnance; the Lord Mountague, Maſter of the Great Wardrobe; Monſieur Zeuleſtein, Maſter of the Robes; the Biſhop of London, Dean of the Chapel; the Lord Lovelace, Captain of the Gentlemen-Penſioners; the Duke of Ormond, the Earl of Oxford, the Lords Mordant, Lumley and Churchil, and Mr. Sidney, Gentlemen of the King's Bed-Chamber; the Earl of Wiltſhire, Lord-Chamberlain

2

1688. 1 W. M.

to the Queen; John Howe, Eſq; Vice-Chamberlain; Mr. Villers, Great Maſter of the Horſe; and the Counteſs of Derby, firſt Lady of the Bed-Chamber, and Groom of the Stole to her Majeſty. His Majeſty is ſaid to have offer'd the Great Seal to the Earl of Nottingham, though he had proteſted againſt the Vacancy of the Throne, and had oppos'd the Settlement of the Crown; but the Earl excus'd himſelf from accepting of it, alledging his Unfitneſs for an Employment that requir'd a conſtant Application. The Marquis of Hallifax had the ſame Offer made him, which he likewiſe declin'd. Whereupon the Seals were given (in Commiſſion) to Sir John Maynard, Anthony Keck, and William Rawlinſon, Eſqs; the Two laſt of whom were Knighted by his Majeſty. The Places of High-Admiral and Lord-Treaſurer were likewiſe given to Commiſſioners; the firſt, to Admiral Herbert, the Earl of Carbery, Sir Michael Wharton, Sir Thomas Lee, Sir John Chichley, Sir John Lowther, and Mr. Sacheverel: The other, to the Lord Mordant, the Lord Delamere, the Lord Godolphin, Mr. Hambden, and Sir Henry Capel. As to the Earl of Nottingham, he was at laſt prevail'd with to be one of his Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State. (a) Convention turn'd into a Parliament.

The firſt Time the King adviſ'd with his Privy-Council, he propos'd to 'em, Whether the Convention might be legally turn'd into a Parliament? To which the Majority agreeing, his Majeſty on Monday, Febr. 18th, went to the Houſe of Lords in great Solemnity, and being Seated on the Throne, and the Commons attending at the Bar, with their Speaker, his Majeſty made this Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

The King's Speech.

" I Have lately told you, how ſenſible I am of " your Kindneſs, and how much I value the " Confidence you have repos'd in me: And I come
" hither to aſſure you, That I ſhall never do any " Thing that may juſtly leſſen your good Opinion
" of me.

" I think it neceſſary to acquaint you, That the " Condition of our Allies Abroad, and particularly
" that of Holland, is ſuch, that unleſs ſome ſpeedy

(a) An Order in Council by the King, for Alteration of the Names of the Royal Family in the Common-Prayer, and Publick Offices of Religion. Given at Whitehall the 16th Day of Febr. 1688.

Care

G. Kneller Eques pinx.
Trouvain Sculp.
HONI · SOIT · QUI · MAL · Y · PENSE
KING WILLIAM THE III.rd

QUEEN MARY.

" Care be taken of them, they run a greater Ha" zard than you wou'd have them expos'd to.

" You your ſelves muſt be ſenſible, That the Poſture of Affairs here, require your ſerious Conſideration; and that a good Settlement at Home is neceſſary, not only for your own Peace, but for the Support of the Proteſtant Intereſt, both here and abroad.

" And particularly the State of Ireland is ſuch, that the Dangers are grown too great to be obviated by any ſlow Methods.

" I muſt leave it to you, to conſider of the moſt effectual Ways of preventing the Inconveniences which may ariſe by Delays, and to judge what Forms may be moſt proper to bring thoſe Things to paſs for the good of the Nation, which I am confident are in all your Minds, and which I on my Part, ſhall be always ready to promote.

Bill to prevent Diſputes concerning this Parliament.

This Speech was receiv'd with a general Applauſe, and purſuant to the laſt Clauſe of it, the Lords immediately brought in a Bill to remove and prevent all Queſtions and Diſputes concerning the Aſſembling and Sitting of this preſent Parliament; which they read twice that Afternoon, and having paſs'd it the Day following, they ſent it to the Commons for their Concurrence. Upon which the Commons went into a Committee of the whole Houſe, and Mr. Hambden the Chairman, put this Queſtion, Whether a King Elected and Declared by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons aſſembled at Weſtminſter, Jan. 22d, 1688. coming to and conſulting with the ſaid Lords and Commons, did not make as compleat a Parliament, and Legiſlative Power and Authority, to all Intents and Purpoſes, as if the ſaid King ſhould cauſe new Summons to be given, and new Elections to be made by Writs? This occaſion'd a long and warm Debate; the Party who were for the Negative, headed by Sir Edward Seymour and Sir Thomas Clargis, inſiſted upon the ſtrict ancient Conſtitution. The others argued upon ſeveral Precedents, the lateſt in 1660. When the Lords and Commons convened by the Keepers of the Liberties of England, were upon Reception of King Charles the IId adjudg'd a Parliament; and they more eſpecially urg'd the preſent Neceſſity of Affairs, which would not admit of any Loſs of Time, without infinite Danger Abroad and at Home. The Queſtion was at laſt carried in the Affirmative, and Two Days after the Commons acquainted the Lords that they had agreed to their Bill, with ſome Alterations and Amendments, relating to the Oaths, which by the ſaid Bill were appointed to be taken by Both Houſes with Amendments; being confirmed by the Lords, the whole Bill receiv'd the Royal Aſſent on Saturday, Feb. 23. and ſo the Convention was chang'd into a Parliament. Yet ſome of the Commons had before proteſted that they would neither ſubmit to the Deciſions of ſuch a Parliament, nor ſit in it: And indeed ſome of 'em kept their Word as to this laſt Point, retiring into the Countrey upon frivolous Pretences, which occaſion'd the dilatory Proceedings of this Seſſion, and gave King James an Opportunity to get conſiderable Footing in Ireland, and the Hopes of re-aſcending his Throne. And the diſcontented Party grew ſtronger in the Houſe of Commons; for on Feb. 26. the Queſtion being put, Whether the Revenue was expired by the Vacancy of the Throne, or whether it was devolved on their Majeſties? The firſt Part of the Queſtion was carried in the Affirmative, and a Committee was thereupon appointed to regulate their preſent Majeſties Revenue, and ſome of that Committee contended to have it ſettled on them for Three Years only.

Some Diſcontented Members retire into the Country.

Bill for regulating Trials of Peers.

The Lords brought in a Bill on Feb. 26. for the better Regulating of the Trials of the Peers of England, which occaſion'd great Debates, and at the Third Reading had the Proteſtation of Fifteen Lords againſt it, and when it was ſent down to the Commons, it dropt there through the Influence of thoſe Peers who had oppos'd it. On Febr. 28. upon Information that ſeveral Papiſts continued in the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, the Lords order'd Sir William Waller to ſecure, or cauſe to be ſecured, all ſuch Papiſts or reputed Papiſts, and return their Names to the Committee appointed to bring in a Bill for removing all ſuch from the ſaid Cities, which Bill was accordingly preſented to the Houſe, on March the firſt: On which Day the King ſent Two remarkable Meſſages to the Parliament. The firſt was to the Houſe of Lords, by the Lord Mordant, to this Effect, " That his Majeſty in that Conjuncture, and for the Safety of the Publick, had ſecured ſome Perſons as dangerous to the Government, and thought it might be convenient to ſecure more, but being very tender of doing any Thing not fully warranted by Law, he had given Order that the Lords might be acquainted with what he had thought himſelf oblig'd to do for the Publick Peace and Security of the Government". This Meſſage was occaſion'd by the ſecuring the Earl of Arran, Sir Robert Hamilton, and Two other Scotchmen, who by ſome intercepted Letters from France, had been diſcover'd to plot the Reſtoration of King James, and were thereupon committed to the Tower. The Lords immediately appointed a Committee to prepare an Addreſs to be preſented to the King, upon this Occaſion from Both Houſes, " expreſſing their moſt humble Thanks for his Majeſty's great Care of their Liberties, and for his gracious Communication of this Matter; and humbly to adviſe and deſire his Majeſty to take ſuch extraordinary Care of the Government in this Conjuncture, by ſecuring all diſaffected Perſons, as might prevent any Diſturbance of the Publick Peace, and that ſuch Perſons as were, or ſhould be ſo committed, might be retain'd till the firſt Day of the next Term, if his Majeſty ſhould ſee Cauſe for it". The Commons made ſome Difficulty to give their Concurrence to this Addreſs, which ſeem'd to allow the King a Power of Diſpenſing with the Habeas-Corpus Act; and therefore thought it more legal to bring in a Bill to empower his Majeſty to apprehend and detain ſuch Perſons, as he ſhould find juſt Cauſe to ſuſpect were conſpiring againſt the Government; which went in few Days thro' Both Houſes, and afterwards paſs'd into an Act by the Royal Aſſent.

Meſſage of the King to the Lords.

Addreſs of Both Houſes.

The other Meſſage was ſent to the Commons by Mr. Wharton, who acquainted the Houſe, " That the King being ſenſible what a grievous Burthen the Duty ariſing from Hearth-Money was unto his People, eſpecially to the poorer Sort, his Majeſty was pleaſed to agree, either to the Regulation of it, or to the taking of it wholly away, not doubting but the Commons would take care of his Revenue another Way". This prov'd to be an Act of great Prudence and Popularity, the Commons receiv'd it with an univerſal Satisfaction, and preſented this Addreſs of Thanks for it on March 5.

Meſſage of the King to the Commons.

Addreſs of the Commons to the King.

" WE your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeſſes in Parliament aſſembled, have taken into our ſerious Conſideration your Majeſty's gracious Meſſage, wherein your Majeſty is pleaſed to expreſs your great Goodneſs and Senſe of your People's Condition by your Tender Conſideration, That the Revenue of the Hearth-Money is very grievous to them; and are pleaſed to agree either to the Regulation of it, or to the taking of it wholly away. And as your Majeſty is pleaſed in this to conſider the Eaſe of your People, we acknowledge our ſelves obliged to declare, That your

1688. 1 W. M. " your Majeſty has filled our Hearts with an entire " Satisfaction and Gratitude, by this your moſt gra- " cious and unprecedented Offer. And we humbly " crave Leave to preſent this Aſſurance to your Ma- " jeſty, That we will make ſuch grateful and affe- " ctionate Returns, and be ſo careful of the Support " of the Crown, that the World may ſee, to the " Diſcouraging of your Enemies, and Satisfaction " of all good Men, That your Majeſty reigns in " the Hearts of your People: Which GOD grant " long to continue.

The Second, Fourth and Fifth Days of March, were partly ſpent by both Houſes in taking the Oaths of Fealty, appointed by the late Act, for Removing and Preventing all Queſtions and Diſputes concerning the Aſſembling and Sitting of this preſent Parliament; and in Subſcribing the Declaration, required by an Act of the 30th of Car. II. In the Houſe of Commons, few or none refuſed to take the ſaid Oaths; but in the Upper Houſe, not above Ninety Temporal, and only Eight Spiritual Lords comply'd with the Act. Thoſe Eight Prelates were, the Archbiſhop of York, and the Biſhops of London, Lincoln, Briſtol, Wincheſter, Rocheſter, Llandaff, and St. Aſaph; whoſe Example was afterwards followed by the Biſhops of Carliſle, and even of St. David's. The Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and ſome other of his Suffragans, abſolutely refuſ'd to own the preſent Government, from a Conſcientious Regard they had to the Allegiance they had ſworn to King James: And many other diſcontented Perſons fell in with 'em, from the Hopes or the Fears of his Reſtoration.

Some of the Biſhops refuſe to take the Oaths.

On Feb. 27. the King had acquainted the Houſe of Commons with the certain News of the late King James having ſailed from Breſt, with a conſiderable Number of French Troops, in order to land in Ireland: Whereupon the Commons unanimouſly voted, That they would ſtand by and aſſiſt the King, with their Lives and Fortunes, in Supporting his Alliances abroad, in Reducing of Ireland, and in Defence of the Proteſtant Religion, and Laws of the Kingdom. This Vote was communicated to the Peers, who confirm'd it by entring the ſame into their Journal; and on the 5th Day of March, concurr'd alſo with the Commons in the following Addreſs:

K. James goes to Ireland.

Vote of the Commons to aſſiſt K. William.

Addreſs of both Houſes.

" WE your Majeſties moſt dutiful and faithful Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons aſſembled in Parliament, " being highly ſenſible of our late Great and Signal " Deliverance from Popery and Arbitrary Power, " whereof it has pleaſed ALMIGHTY GOD " to make You the Glorious Inſtrument; and deſiring, to the utmoſt of our Abilities, to expreſs " our Gratitude to your Majeſty for ſo Great and " Generous an Undertaking, no leſs neceſſary to " ſupport the Proteſtant Intereſt in Europe, than " for Recovering and Maintaining the Civil Rights " and Liberties of theſe Nations, ſo notoriouſly invaded and undermined by Popiſh Counſels and " Counſellors; being likewiſe fully convinc'd of " the reſtleſs Spirits and continual Endeavours of " your Majeſty's and the Nation's Enemies, for the " Extirpation of the Proteſtant Religion, and the " Subverſion of our Laws and Liberties; do unanimouſly declare, That we will ſtand by and aſſiſt your Majeſty with our Lives and Fortunes, " in Supporting the Alliances abroad, in Reducing " of Ireland, and in Defence of the Proteſtant Religion and Laws of the Kingdom.

The Lord Great Chamberlain having waited on the King, to know when He would be attended with this Addreſs; His Majeſty anſwer'd, " He was going out of Town, but intended to return the next " Day; and then He would ſignify his Pleaſure, " when both Houſes ſhould wait on him:" And accordingly His Majeſty gave this Anſwer to both Houſes, on Friday, March 8. 1688. 1 W. M.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Anſwer to both Houſes.

" IF any Thing could add to the Eſteem and Affection I have for Parliaments, and particularly for this, they would be much increaſed by " the Kindneſs you ſhew to me, and the Zeal you " expreſs for the Publick Good, in the Addreſs you " have made, which in the Manner as well as the " Matter, has every Thing in it that ought to recommend it to me.

" I will aſſure you, that I will never abuſe the " Confidence you have put in me; being fully perſwaded, that there is no ſure Foundation of a " good Agreement between a King and his People, " but a mutual Truſt; when that is once broken, " a Government is half diſſolved.

" It ſhall be therefore my chief Care, never to " give any Parliament Cauſe to diſtruſt me; and " the beſt Methods I can uſe for that Purpoſe, is, " never to expect any Thing from them, but what " ſhall be their own Intereſt to grant.

" I came hither for the Good of the Kingdom; " and ſince it is your Deſire that I am in this Station, I ſhall purſue the ſame Ends that brought " me.

" GOD has been pleaſed to make me inſtrumental to redeem you from the Ills you fear'd; " and it is ſtill my Deſire, as well as my Duty, " to ſerve you in your Religion, Laws and Liberties, which was the only Inducement that " brought me into England; and to theſe I aſcribe " the Bleſſings that have attended this Undertaking.

" When I ſpoke laſt to you, I told you of the " Neceſſity of Aſſiſting our Allies, and more eſpecially the States of Holland, whoſe Readineſs to " relieve you (at ſo great a Hazard and Expence) " from the Extremities you lay under, needs no " other Argument to move you to the Conſideration of it.

" As I was then a Witneſs of their Zeal and Affection to promote the Expedition, and to ſecond " my Endeavours, even with the Neglect of their " own Safety; ſo I am now ſenſible of the inevitable Ruin they have drawn upon themſelves, in " giving you their Aſſiſtance, if you ſhould not return it to them.

" They have really exhauſted themſelves to ſuch " a Degree, both as to Men and Money, that it is " not eaſily to be imagin'd: And I am confident, " your Generoſity will have as little Bounds towards " them, as theirs had towards you; and that you " will not only enable me to make good the Treaty with them, and repay what they have actually " laid out upon this Occaſion, (of which an Account ſhall be given you;) but that you will farther ſupport them, to the utmoſt of your Ability, againſt the Power of their Enemies; who " muſt be yours too, by their Intereſt and their Religion, and do certainly deſign the Ruin of Holland to be a Step to your Deſtruction.

" I need not take Pains to tell you the Deplorable Condition of Ireland, which (by the Zeal and " Violence of the Popiſh Party there, and by the " Aſſiſtance and Encouragement they have from " France) is brought to that Paſs, that it is not " adviſable to attempt the Reducing of it, but by a " conſiderable Force; which, I think, ought not to " be leſs than Twenty Thouſand Horſe and Foot, " which (by the Bleſſing of GOD) will make " the Work ſhorter, and (in Conſequence) the " Charge eaſier; tho' the firſt Expence muſt of " Neceſſity be very great.

" You are to conſider, That towards the moſt " ſpeedy and effectual Succeſs in relation to Ireland, as well as with a Regard to France, there 1688. 1 W. M. " muſt be ſuch a Fleet as may, in Conjunction " with the States, make us ſo entirely Maſters of " that Sea, that nothing may be ſent from France " to Ireland, or any where elſe, that may give Diſturbance to Us or our Allies.

2 " muſt

" I muſt alſo recommend to you the Conſideration of the Revenue to me, that it may be ſo " ſettled, as that it may be collected without Diſputes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" Theſe Things will amount to a great Sum, and " muſt of Conſequence be a preſent Weight upon " the People: But conſidering, neither your Religion nor your Safety can probably be ſecured without theſe Means, I conclude, Nothing can be too " great a Price for their Preſervation. And I will " engage my Solemn Word to you, That whatever " you ſhall give to theſe Publick Ends, ſhall be " ſtrictly apply'd to them: And that as you ſo " freely offer to hazard all that is dear to you, " ſo I ſhall as freely expoſe My Self for the " Support of the Proteſtant Religion, and the Safety and Honour of the Nation.

General Satiſfaction.

The Parliament's Addreſs, and the King's Anſwer, being made publick, it was a common Satiſfaction to the People of England; and the City of London expreſs'd their ſingular Content and Joy, by an Addreſs of Thanks to the Houſe of Lords; which was very grateful to the Court. But it was no ſmall Diſturbance to the New Government, that there began to be a Defection in the Army, as well as a Diviſion in the Two Houſes: For the Royal Scotch Regiment of Horſe, that was quarter'd at Abingdon, almoſt totally deſerted, marching toward Scotland; as did alſo above Five Hundred of Dunbarton's Regiment, headed by Five Captains, ſteering the ſame Courſe, with Four Field-Pieces. The News of this Defection being brought to Hampton-Court, His Majeſty order'd Mr. Herbert to communicate it to the Parliament: Whereupon both Houſes agreed to an Addreſs, on March 15. humbly beſeeching His Majeſty to take effectual Care for the ſpeedy Suppreſſion of that Rebellion; and to iſſue forth his Proclamation, declaring thoſe Officers and Soldiers, and their Adherents, to be Rebels and Traytors, and requiring all his Subjects to apprehend and proſecute 'em as ſuch. Accordingly the King iſſued out a Proclamation to that Effect; and ſent a ſufficient Force of Horſe and Dragoons, under General Ginkle, who ſoon reduc'd thoſe Mutinous Troops, and brought them to ſubmit to the Mercy of King William, who ſent 'em over into Holland. And to obviate the like Miſchiefs for the future, an Act was paſs'd, for Puniſhing Officers and Soldiers, who ſhould mutiny, or deſert Their Majeſties Service.

Scotch Regiments deſert the Service of K. William.

Addreſs of the Two Houſes on this Occaſion.

On Saturday, March 16. His Majeſty went by Water to the Houſe of Lords, attended with the uſual Solemnity; and being in his Royal Robes, ſeated on the Throne, and the Commons being ſent for up, His Majeſty gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for Empowering His Majeſty to apprehend and detain ſuch Perſons, as he ſhall find juſt Cauſe to ſuſpect are Conſpiring againſt the Government: And 2. to An Act for the annulling and making void the Attainder of William Ruſſel, Eſq; commonly call'd Lord Ruſſel. And then His Majeſty made this Speech to both Houſes:

Acts paſs'd by King William.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

His Majeſty's Speech to the Two Houſes.

" NOW I have the Occaſion of coming hither to Paſs this Bill, which I hope will be " for all our Safeties; I ſhall put you in mind of " one Thing, which will conduce much to our Settlement, as a Settlement will to the Diſappointment of our Enemies

" I am, with all the Expedition I can, filling 1 W. M. 1688. " up the Vacancies, that are in Offices and Places of Truſt by this late Revolution. I hope " you are ſenſible, there is a Neceſſity of ſome Law, " to ſettle the Oaths to be taken by all Perſons to be " admitted to ſuch Places: I recommend it to your " Care, to make a ſpeedy Proviſion for it. And as " I doubt not but you will ſufficiently provide againſt Papiſts, ſo I hope you will leave Room for " the Admiſſion of all Proteſtants, that are willing " and able to ſerve.

" This Conjunction in my Service, will tend to " the better uniting you amongſt your ſelves, and " the ſtrengthning you againſt your common Adverſaries.

Reaſons why the King was jealous of ſome Churchmen; and

The better to underſtand the Clauſe, of leaving Room for the Admiſſion of all Proteſtants, it muſt be remember'd, That the Archbiſhop and Biſhops, and many of the Clergy, had been ſo addicted to the High Notions of Paſſive Obedience, Non-Reſiſtance, and the Divine Right of an Hereditary Monarchy, that they knew not how to reconcile the Revolution to thoſe bigotted Principles. And for that Reaſon, tho' they had earneſtly deſir'd the Prince's coming, and had the Chief of them addreſs'd to Him after He was come, to take the Adminiſtration of Affairs upon him; yet, as if they would have him their Redeemer, without being their Protector, they did not care to pay any Allegiance to him, nor to renounce their Obligations to King James. This Example of the Prelates and Clergy had a great Influence on many other Members of the Church of England; and it was their Diſaffection, that made the King more inclinable to favour the Diſſenters, whom He generally look'd upon as better affected to his Perſon and Title. This prepar'd the King and the Court to deſire, That all Proteſtants (of what Denomination ſoever) might be indifferently admitted to Offices and Employments. Upon this Deſire of the King, firſt ſignify'd to his Privy Council, a Bill was preſented in the Houſe of Lords, on Thurſday, March 14. for Abrogating the former Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, and Appointing other Oaths in their ſtead. Which being read a Second Time, a Select Committee of the Houſe was order'd to draw up Two Clauſes; the one, To explain the Abrogating the ſaid Oaths; and the other, To take away the Neceſſity of Receiving the Sacrament, to make a Man capable of enjoying any Office, Employment, or Place of Truſt. This Clauſe being drawn up, and reported to the Houſe, was rejected by a great Majority, who thought it neceſſary to preſerve the Government in the Hands of thoſe that were of the National Church and Religion. And yet Seven Lords proteſted againſt Limiting Offices by the Sacramental Teſt; the Lords Delamere, Stamford, North and Grey, Cheſterfield, Wharton, Lovelace, and Vaughan, who on March 21. diſſented, for theſe Reaſons: 1. " That an hearty Union among Proteſtants, was a greater Security to the Church and " State, than any Teſt that could be invented. " 2. That an Obligation to Receive the Sacrament " in Churches, was now a Teſt on the Proteſtants, " rather than on the Papiſts; and as long as it was " ſo continu'd, there could not be that hearty and " perfect Union among Proteſtants, as had always " been wiſh'd, and was at this Time indiſpenſibly " neceſſary. And, laſtly, That a greater Caution " ought not to be requir'd from ſuch as were admitted into Offices, than from the Members of " the Two Houſes of Parliament, who were not oblig'd to Receive the Sacrament, to enable 'em to " Sit in either Houſe.

More tender of ſome Diſſenters.

Clauſe of Favour to Proteſtant Diſſenters.

Proteſtation of Seven Lords.

When the Court had loſt this Point, they made another Attempt in Favour of the Moderate Diſſenters; which was, by inſerting a Clauſe in the ſaid Bill, To prevent the Receiving the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, upon any other Account, than in Obedi-

Another Attempt in Favour of the Proteſtant Diſſenters.

1688. 1 W. M.

Obedience to the Holy Inſtitution thereof; And to provide, That any Man ſhould be ſufficiently qualify'd for any Office, Employment, or Place of Truſt, who within a Year before or after his Admiſſion or Entrance thereinto, did Receive the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, either according to the Uſage of the Church of England, or in any other Proteſtant Congregation, and could produce a Certificate under the Hands of the Miniſter, and Two other Credible Perſons But this Clauſe was alſo rejected by a great Majority; tho' Six Lords (Oxford, Lovelace, Wharton, Mordant, Montague, and Paget) enter'd their Diſſent, for theſe Reaſons: 1. "Becauſe it gives a "great Part of the Proteſtant Freemen of England "Reaſon to complain of Inequality and hard Uſage, when they are excluded from Publick Employments by Law: And alſo, becauſe it deprives "the King and Kingdom of divers Men fit and capable to ſerve the Publick in ſeveral Stations; "and that for a mere Scruple of Conſcience, which "can by no means render them ſuſpected, much "leſs diſaffected to the Government. 2. Becauſe "His Majeſty, as the common and indulgent Father of his People, having expreſs'd an earneſt "Deſire of Liberty for Tender Conſciences to his "Proteſtant Subjects; and my Lords the Biſhops "having, divers of them, on ſeveral Occaſions, profeſs'd an Inclination to, and own'd the Reaſonableneſs of ſuch a Chriſtian Temper; we apprehend "it will raiſe Suſpicion in ſome Mens Minds, of "ſomething elſe than the Care of Religion, or the "Publick, and different from a Deſign to heal our "Breaches, when they find, that by confining Secular Employments to Eccleſiaſtical Conformity, thoſe "are ſhut out from Civil Affairs, whoſe Doctrine "and Worſhip may be tolerated by Authority of "Parliament; there being a Bill before us, by Order of the Houſe, to that Purpoſe: Eſpecially "when (without this Excluſive Rigor) the Church "is ſecur'd in all her Privileges and Preferments; "no body being hereby let in to them, who is not "ſtrictly conformable. 3. Becauſe to ſet Marks of "Diſtinction and Humiliation on any ſort of Men, "who have not render'd themſelves juſtly ſuſpected to the Government, as it is at all Times to be "avoided by the Makers of juſt and equitable "Laws, ſo may be particularly of ill Effect to the "Reformed Intereſt at Home and Abroad, in this "preſent Conjuncture; which ſtands in need of the "united Hands and Hearts of all Proteſtants, againſt the open Attempts and ſecret Endeavours "of a reſtleſs Party, and a Potent Neighbour, who "is more zealous than Rome it ſelf, to plant Popery in theſe Kingdoms; and labours with the "utmoſt Force, to ſettle his Tyranny upon the Ruins of the Reformation, thro' all Europe. 4. Becauſe it turns the Edge of a Law (we know not "by what Fate) upon Proteſtants, and Friends to "the Government, which was intended againſt Papiſts, to exclude them from Places of Truſt, as "Men avowedly dangerous to our Government and "Religion. And thus the taking the Sacrament, which "was enjoin'd only as a Means to diſcover Papiſts, "is now made a diſtinguiſhing Duty amongſt Proteſtants, to weaken the whole, by caſting off a "Part of them. 5. Becauſe Myſteries of Religion, and Divine Worſhip, are of Divine Original, "and of a Nature ſo wholly diſtinct from the Secular Affairs of Politick Society, that they cannot "be applied to thoſe Ends; and therefore the "Church, by the Law of the Goſpel, as well as "common Prudence, ought to take care, neither to "offend Tender Conſciences within it ſelf, nor give "Offence to thoſe without, by mixing their Sacred "Myſteries with Secular Intereſts. 6. Becauſe we "cannot ſee how it can conſiſt with the Law of "God, common Equity, or the Right of any freeborn Subject, that any one be puniſh'd without "Crime. If it be a Crime, not to take the Sacrament according to the Uſage of the Church of "England, every one ought to be puniſh'd for it; "which no body affirms: If it be no Crime; "thoſe who are capable, and judg'd fit for Employments by the King, ought not to be puniſh'd "with a Law of Excluſion, for not doing that "which 'tis no Crime to forbear. If it be urg'd "ſtill, as an effectual Teſt to diſcover and keep out "Papiſts; the taking the Sacrament in theſe Proteſtant Congregations where they are Members, and "known, will be at leaſt as effectual to that Purpoſe.

Diſſent of Six Lords.

1688 1 W. M.

State of Scotland.

As to the State of Scotland, the Prince's Declaration (diſpers'd in that Kingdom) had a great Influence upon the Body of the People: But the Biſhops and Epiſcopal Clergy, being the more immediate Creatures of the Court, had been drawn in to a more than ordinary Profeſſion of Adherence to King James: For upon News of the Expedition of the Prince of Orange, they were made to write this following Letter to the King.

Letter of the Biſhops to King James.

May it pleaſe your Moſt Sacred Majeſty,

"WE proſtrate (a) our ſelves, to pay our "moſt devout Thanks and Adoration to the "Sovereign Majeſty of Heaven and Earth, for Preſerving your Sacred Life and Perſon, ſo frequently expos'd to the greateſt Hazards, and as often "deliver'd; and you miraculouſly proſper'd with "Glory and Victory, in Defence of the Rights "and Honour of your Majeſty's Auguſt Brother, and of theſe Kingdoms: And that by his "merciful Goodneſs, the Ragings of the Sea, and "Madneſs of unreaſonable Men, have been ſtill'd "and calm'd; and your Majeſty, as the Darling "of Heaven, peaceably ſeated on the Throne of "your Royal Anceſtors, whoſe Long, Illuſtrious "and Unparallel'd Line, is the greateſt Glory of "this your Ancient Kingdom.

"We pay our moſt humble Gratitude to your "Majeſty, for the repeated Aſſurances of your "Royal Protection to our National Church and Religion, as the Laws have eſtabliſh'd them; which "are very ſuitable to the gracious Countenance, "Encouragement and Protection, your Majeſty was "pleas'd to afford to our Church and Order, whilſt "we were happy in your Preſence among us.

"We magnify the Divine Mercy, in bleſſing "your Majeſty with a Son, and us with a Prince, "whom we pray Heaven may bleſs and preſerve, "to ſway your Royal Sceptres after you; and that "he may inherit, with your Dominions, the Illuſtrious and Heroick Virtues of his Auguſt and "moſt Serene Parents.

"We are amaz'd to hear of the Danger of an "Invaſion from Holland, which excites our Prayers "for an univerſal Repentance from all Orders of "Men, that GOD may yet ſpare his People, preſerve your Royal Perſon, and prevent the Effuſion "of Chriſtian Blood; and to give ſuch Succeſs to "your Majeſty's Arms, that all who invade your "Majeſty's juſt and undoubted Rights, and diſturb "or interrupt the Peace of your Realms, may be "diſappointed, and cloathed with Shame, ſo that on "your Royal Head the Crown may ſtill flouriſh.

"As

(a) The Biſhops in Scotland were the more eaſily manag'd by Orders from Court; becauſe, however high in other Pretences, they held their Biſhopricks from the King (in effect) durante Beneplacito. They had ſeen their Archbiſhops depriv'd by Authority merely Civil, by King and Council: Otherwiſe their Principles were more adapted to an Union with the Preſbyterians, as not inſiſting on the Re-Ordination of Presbyterian Miniſters, nor on the Neceſſity of a Publick Liturgy; and the

1688. 1 W. M.

" As, by the Grace of GOD, we ſhall preſerve " in our ſelves a firm and unſhaken Loyalty; ſo we " ſhall be careful and zealous to promote, in all " your Subjects, an intrepid and ſtedfaſt Allegiance " to your Majeſty, as an Eſſential Part of their Religion, and of the Glory of our holy Profeſſion; " not doubting, but that GOD, in his great Mer- " cy, who hath ſo often preſerv'd and deliver'd your " Majeſty, will ſtill preſerve and deliver you, by " giving you the Hearts of your Subjects, and the " Necks of your Enemies. So pray we, who, in " all Humility, are,

(May it pleaſe your Moſt Sacred Majeſty)
Your Majeſty's moſt Humble, moſt Faithful, and moſt Obedient Subjects and Servants.

Edinburgh, Nov. 3. 1688. Sign'd by

The Ld Archbiſhop of St. Andrews,	Ld Bp of Dunkell,
The Ld Archbiſhop of Glaſgow,	Ld Bp of Brechen,
Ld Bp of Edinburgh,	Ld Bp of Orkney,
Ld Bp of Galloway,	Ld Bp of Murray,
Ld Bp of Aberdeen,	Ld Bp of Roſs,
	Ld Bp of Dunblain,
	Ld Bp of the Iſles.

This Letter fatal to Epiſcopacy in Scotland.

This Letter was fatal, not only to the Scotch Biſhops, but to Epiſcopacy it ſelf in Scotland: For the Diſtinction was very apparent, the Presbyterians fell in with the Revolution, the Epiſcopal-Party did all they could to obſtruct and oppoſe it. Hence upon the News of King James's being withdrawn, the Lord Chancellor reſigned immediately the Great Seal (a), and retired to Edinburgh; and the Populace of that City inſulted not only the Romaniſts, but alſo the Epiſcopal-Party. The Prince being informed of theſe Things, and having firſt diſpatched Major-General Mackey, with ſome Troops under his Command, into that Kingdom, he aſſembled ſuch of the Scotch Lords and Gentlemen, as were in Town, on the 7th of January, and made this Speech to them.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

King William's Speech to the Scotch Lords.

" THE only Reaſon that induced me to under- " go ſo great an Undertaking, was, That I " ſaw the Laws and Liberties of theſe Kingdoms " overturned, and the Proteſtant Religion in immi- " nent Danger: And ſeeing you are here ſo many " Noblemen and Gentlemen, I have called you to- " gether, that I may have your Advice, what is to " be done for ſecuring the Proteſtant Religon, and " reſtoring your Laws and Liberties, according to " my Declaration.

Their Meeting and Conſults.

As ſoon as his Highneſs had retired, the Lords and Gentlemen went to the Council-Chamber at Whitehall, and having choſen the Duke of Hamilton their Preſident, they fell a conſulting what Advice was fit to be given to his Highneſs in this Conjuncture; and after ſome Hours reaſoning, they agreed upon the Materials of it, and appointed the Clerks, with ſuch as were to aſſiſt them, to draw up in Writing, what the Meeting thought expedient to adviſe his Highneſs, and to bring it into the Meeting the next Day in the Afternoon.

Tueſday the Eighth Inſtant, the Writing was preſented in the Meeting, and ſome Time being ſpent in Reaſoning about the fitteſt Way of Convening a general Meeting of the Eſtates of Scotland; at laſt the Meeting came to agree in their Opinion, and appointed the Advice to be writ clean over, according to the Amendments. But as they were about to part for that Time, the Earl of Arran propoſed to them, as his Lordſhip's Advice, That they ſhould move the Prince of Orange, to deſire the King to return and call a Free Parliament, which would be the beſt way to ſecure the Proteſtant Religion and Property, and to heal all Breaches. This Propoſal ſeem'd to diſſatisfy the whole Meeting, and eſpecially the Duke of Hamilton, their Preſident, Father to the Earl; but they preſently parted.

Wedneſday, the 9th of January, they met at Three of the Clock in the ſame Room, where Sir Patrick Hume took notice of the Propoſal made by the Earl of Arran, and deſired to know if there were any there, that would ſecond it; but none appearing to do it, he ſaid, " That what the Earl had " propoſed was evidently oppoſite and inimicous to " his Highneſs, the Prince of Orange's Underta- " king, his Declaration, and the good Intentions " of preſerving the Proteſtant Religion, and of re- " ſtoring their Laws and Liberties expreſs'd in it; " and farther deſired, That the Meeting ſhould de- " clare this to be their Opinion of it". The Lord Cardroſs ſeconded Sir Patrick's Motion: It was anſwer'd by the Duke of Hamilton, Preſident of the Meeting, " That their Buſineſs was to prepare an " Advice to be offer'd to the Prince; and the Advice " being now ready to go to the Vote, there was no " need that the Meeting ſhould give their Senſe of " the Earl's Propoſal, which neither before nor af- " ter Sir Patrick's Motion, any had pretended to " own or ſecond, ſo that it was fallen out of Doors; " and that the Vote of the Meeting, upon the Ad- " vice brought in by their Order, would ſufficiently " declare their Opinion". This being ſeconded by the Earl of Sutherland, the Lord Cardroſs and Sir Patrick did acquieſce in it, and the Meeting voted unanimouſly the Advice following.

Advice of the Scotch Noblemen and Gentlemen to the Prince of Orange.

" WE the Lords and Gentlemen of the King- " dom of Scotland, aſſembled at your " Highneſs's Deſire, in this extraordinary Conjun- " cture, do give your Highneſs our humble and " hearty Thanks for your pious and generous Un- " dertaking for preſerving the Proteſtant Religion, " and reſtoring the Laws and Liberties of theſe " Kingdoms.

---

the beſt of their Prelates being much inclin'd to a Comprehenſion. Biſhop Burnet muſt be allow'd to have had good Knowledge of that Countrey; and 'tis very Inſtructive what he writes in his Vindication, 8vo. 1696. p. 84. The Reflecter reproaches me for joining my ſelf with one of the greateſt and beſt Men that this Age has produc'd, in that which he calls Latitudinarianiſm. This was the ſeconding Dr. Leighton in his great Deſign, for reforming and uniting the Church of Scotland: And it is that which I will never be aſham'd of: I have rather cauſe to glory in it, and to reckon my Knowledge of that Apoſtolical Man one of the greateſt Bleſſings of my whole Life. The Ignorance of our Scribler ſhews it ſelf too groſly here. He reproaches Biſhop Leighton for being willing to take in the ejected Presbyterian Miniſters without Epiſcopal Ordination. The Biſhops of Scotland never requir'd the Presbyterian Miniſters there to take Epiſcopal Ordination; they requir'd them only to join and act with them in Church Judicatories. Even Archbiſhop Sharp himſelf, when he was to be conſecrated Archbiſhop of St. Andrews, ſtood out for ſome Time here in England, before he would ſubmit to take Prieſts Orders. No Biſhop in Scotland, during my Stay in that Kingdom, ever did ſo much as deſire any of the Presbyterians to be Re-ordained. —— He reproaches Biſhop Leighton for accepting the See of Glaſgow, when Archbiſhop Burnet was turned out. But Dr. Burnet had reſigned it, and had accepted of a Penſion. Yet our Author ought not to have mentioned this, for the Sake of a Friend of his own, who in the late Reign [of K. James II.] procured the Archbiſhop of that See to be turned out, only for his Zeal and Actings againſt Popery, and obtained it to himſelf.

(a) One of the Scotch Biſhops took Refuge in France, turn'd Papiſt, and died Poor. The Writer of the Secret Hiſtory of Europe, P. 3. pag. 247. tells us, That after Dr. Granville, late Dean of Durham, was refus'd a Chapel for the Proteſtant Servants, and was forc'd to retire from St. Germains; the only Proteſtant Divine that remain'd there, was Dr. Gordon a Scots Biſhop, who met with worſe Treatment than the other, and was reduc'd to the Neceſſity of abjuring his Religion for Bread, with which he could not be ſupply'd but upon thoſe hard Terms.

1688. 1 W. M. "In order to the attaining theſe Ends, our humble Advice and Deſire is, That your Highneſs take upon you the Adminiſtration of all Affairs, both Civil and Military, the Diſpoſal of the Publick Revenues and Fortreſſes in the Kingdom of Scotland, and the doing every Thing that is neceſſary for the Preſervation of the Peace of the Kingdom, until a general Meeting of the States of the Nation; which we humbly deſire your Highneſs to call, to be holden at Edinburgh the 14th Day of March next, by your Letters or Proclamation, to be publiſh'd at the Market-Croſſes of Edinburgh, and other Head-Boroughs of the ſeveral Shires and Stewartries, as ſufficient Intimation to all concerned, and according to the Cuſtom of the Kingdom: And that the Publication of theſe your Letters or Proclamation, be by the Sheriffs or Stewart-Clerks, for the Free-holders, who have the Value of Lands, holden according to Law, for making Elections; and by the Town-Clerks of the ſaid Boroughs, for the Meeting of the whole Burgeſſes of the reſpective Royal Boroughs, to make their Elections at leaſt Fifteen Days before the Meeting of the Eſtates at Edinburgh, and the reſpective Clerks to make Intimation thereof, at leaſt Ten Days before the Meeting for the Elections; and that the whole Electors and Members of the ſaid Meeting at Edinburgh, qualified as above expreſs'd, be Proteſtants, without any other Exception or Limitation whatſoever; to deliberate and reſolve what is to be done for ſecuring the Proteſtant Religion, and reſtoring the Laws and Liberties of the Kingdom, according to your Highneſs's Declaration.

Dated at the Council-Chamber, the 10*th Day of* January, 1689.

This Addreſs being ſubſcribed by above Thirty Lords, and about Eighty Gentlemen, was preſented "in their Preſence at St. James's, by the Duke of "Hamilton, their Preſident, to his Highneſs the "Prince of Orange, who thanked them for the "Truſt they repoſed in him, and deſired Time to "conſider upon ſo weighty an Affair.

Upon the 14th of January, his Highneſs met again with the Scotch Lords and Gentlemen at St. James's, and ſpoke to them as follows.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

The Prince his Speech. "IN purſuance of your Advice, I will, until the Meeting of the States in March next, give ſuch Orders concerning the Affairs of Scotland, as are neceſſary concerning the Calling of the ſaid Meeting, for the preſerving of the Peace, the applying of the Publick Revenue to the moſt preſſing Uſes, and putting the Fortreſſes in the Hands of Perſons, in whom the Nation can have a juſt Confidence: And I do further aſſure, that you will always find me ready to concur with you, in every Thing that may be found neceſſary for ſecuring the Proteſtant Religion, and reſtoring the Laws and Liberties of the Nation.

The Earl of Crawford deſired of his Highneſs, that himſelf, the Earl of Louthian, and others, who came to Town ſince the Addreſs was preſented, might have an Opportunity to ſubſcribe it, which was accordingly done; after which his Highneſs retired, and all ſhewed great Satisfaction with his Anſwer.

State of Ireland. Ireland was like to be in a bleeding Condition, and the Care of that Kingdom having not only been recommended to the Prince by the Engliſh Lords and Commons, but alſo by an Addreſs of the Nobility and Gentry of that Country, aſſembled for that Purpoſe at the Duke of Ormond's Houſe, who, at the ſame Time preſented his Highneſs with a Draught of the Chief Ports of that Kingdom; the Prince thought fit to ſummon Tyrconnel by a Letter, to ſubmit to the preſent Adminiſtration, and to receive those Troops which his Highneſs deſign'd for the Security of that Kingdom, aſſuring him, the Roman-Catholicks ſhould enjoy the ſame Liberty as they did in King Charles the IId's Time. Colonel Richard Hamilton, a Roman Catholick, was the Perſon entruſted with the Letter and Meſſage, who no ſooner came to Dublin, but he wholly joined with Tyrconnel; which ſo afflicted Mr. Temple, a hopeful Gentleman, that had adviſed the Prince to employ him, that he drowned himſelf upon the News of it. 1688. 1 W. M.

As to the Affairs of the Church in this Year, there needs no diſtinguiſhing View of them; for the Dangers that threatned the Eſtabliſhed Church and the whole Reformation, made up the greateſt Part of thoſe publick Grievances that brought about the wonderful Revolution. So that moſt of the Eccleſiaſtical Matters are already intermix'd with the Civil; Popery and Arbitrary Power can hardly be ſeparated from one another. We need only farther obſerve, that nothing did ſo much exaſperate the Clergy of the Church of England, as the obtruding upon 'em a Declaration to give their People a Liberty of dividing from them. And therefore the whole Body of the Clergy were unanimous in refuſing to read it in their Churches. The Example of Courage began in the City of London, and was induſtriouſly recommended through all Parts of the Kingdom, in a Letter from a Clergyman in the City to his Friend in the Country, containing his Reaſons for not Reading the Declaration, dated May 22d, 1688. The more eminent Biſhops would not ſuffer their Officers to diſperſe the Forms of Delaration as was by Authority requir'd, and ſo ſhelter'd the Clergy from any Puniſhment of Neglect or Contempt, which they were willing to take upon themſelves: And even in thoſe other Dioceſes, where, by the obſequious Order of the Biſhops, or the Cowardice of their inferior Officers, the Declarations were laid in the reſpective Pariſhes, not one Miniſter in Five Hundred would ſubmit to the Reading of it; and even of thoſe who did ſordidly comply, not One in Twenty ſeem'd to do it from any Principle, but that of Fear to offend, or Ambition to pleaſe the Court. And yet it is very obſervable, that Biſhop Cartwright ſo labour'd the Point in his own Dioceſe of Cheſter, That by Threats and Terrors he drew in a ſmall Number of his Clergy, not only to read the Declaration, but to Triumph in the doing of it by this Addreſs to the King.

State of Religion.

The Declaration of K. James generally refuſed by the Clergy.

The Humble Addreſs of the Clergy of the County-Palatine of Cheſter, who publiſh'd the late Gracious Declaration in their Churches for Liberty of Conſcience.

Addreſs of the Clergy of Cheſter. "WE your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, well weighing what we, as ſuch, ought to render to ſo ſacred and gracious a King, reckoned we ow'd this and higher Inſtances of our Obedience; in purſuance of which, and of your Majeſty's Order in Council, we heartily read the Declaration for Liberty of Conſcience; not repining that all other our Fellow-Subjects ſhould with us enjoy a Portion of your Royal Favour. We are well aware that many have well deſerved, and as to the other Number, towards whom you uſe the courteous and nobleſt Way of Conquering, we hope you may be ſucceſsful, or at leaſt your Power will preſerve you ſafe. But if the Matter of the Declaration were not according to our Wiſhes, yet the publiſhing of it is according to our Duty, ſince it is iſſued out from the expreſs Prerogative of your Supremacy over us: And we are required by what is Statute-Law, the Rubrick of our Liturgy, to publiſh what is enjoin'd by the King or our Biſhop, (whoſe Care herein was remarkable) as much as what is pre-

1688. 1 W. M.

" preſcribed in the Rules of this Book : So that we " cannot but with Trouble of Mind hear of the " Proceedings of the Seven Biſhops, who, though they " tenderly promis'd the Diſſenters ſomething, yet " refuſed to do their Part about the Declaration, " leſt they ſhould be Parties to it ; which Reaſon, " we with due Modeſty, (and relying upon a higher " Authority,) eſteem inſufficient, ſeeing the Parliament of 62. did not think the Reading the " Common Prayer was approving of it, without " Aſſent and Conſent, publickly declared.

" We therefore, in all Submiſſion, become earneſt, though too mean, Interceſſors to Your Moſt " Gracious Majeſty, in Behalf of the Church of England, that the Faults of theſe, and others, may " not be laid to her Charge, in whoſe Communion " there are many, and we hope there will be more, " who concur in promoting the Purpoſes of your " Mild Government. We further beg Leave to make " our Congratulations for the happy Birth of the " Young Prince in his Hereditary Succeſſive Kingdom : We in this Palatinate are the Firſt Lot of " Inheritance to the Firſt-Born of our Kings ; and " as we have a greater Part in him, ſo we have a " more plentiful Joy that he is Born to us, praying " a long Life to him, and the Inheriting of his Royal Father's Crowns and Vertues ; we hereby bind " Ourſelves to continue ſtedfaſtly,

Your Majeſty's moſt Devoted, Obedient, and Firm Subjects, and Servants.

Poor Endeavours of the Biſhop of Lincoln.

The ſame Fit of Loyalty came upon ſome other Biſhops, who attempted to poſſeſs their Clergy with the Neceſſity of Obeying the King ; but the Effect of it was only to make the King's Authority and their Own the more contemptible. Among others, the Poor Biſhop of Lincoln having wrote much againſt Popery, was the more afraid of it ; and therefore to make his Peace at Court, He did endeavour to perſwade his Clergy to join with him, in ſome Addreſs of the like Nature : But after all his Sollicitng, He could bring over but One Mean Clergyman, and he of ſo little Reputation, that the Biſhop was himſelf aſham'd of him.

Biſhop of London moſt Inſtrumental in the Revolution.

The Biſhop of London was not only the moſt Inſtrumental in the Revolution, but the moſt Zealous in Promoting the Peace and Settlement of it ; and therefore on Decem. the 21ſt, he waited on His Highneſs, being attended with ſome of his own Clergy; and even with ſome of the Diſſenting Miniſters, and in his own and their Name, made a

His Lordſhip's Addreſs to the Prince.

Speech to the Prince to this Effect ; " That they " came to pay Him their humble Duties, and " grateful Reſpects, for His very great and moſt " hazardous Undertaking, for their Deliverance, " and the Preſervation of the Proteſtant Religion, " with the Ancient Laws and Liberties of this Nation : That they gave up daily many Thankſgivings to Almighty GOD, who had hitherto " been graciouſly pleas'd ſo wonderfully to preſerve " his Perſon, and proſper and favour his good Deſign ; and they promis'd the Continuance of their " moſt fervent Prayers to the ſame GOD, and all " concurrent Endeavours in their reſpective Circumſtances, for the promoting yet farther that Work " which was ſo happily begun ; and alſo for the " perfecting of it, not only in this Kingdom, but " in other Chriſtian Kingdoms". The Biſhop likewiſe ſuggeſted to the Prince, " That ſome of the " Diſſenting Miniſters, and their Brethren, were " there preſent, who having the ſame Senſe of his " Coming hither, with themſelves, had join'd " themſelves with them, by him to render him " their humbleſt and moſt grateful Reſentments.

1688. 1 W. M.

The Prince his Anſwer.

His Highneſs was pleas'd to Anſwer, That He Thank'd them for their Attendance ; and did Aſſure 'em, That the Great End of His Difficult and Chargeable Expedition, was to Preſerve and Secure the Proteſtant Religion (His own Religion, and their Religion ;) and He ſhou'd not think any Thing, (no, not Life itſelf) too Dear to hazard, in Promoting and Perfecting ſo good a Work : And as He Himſelf had offer'd up, with great Devotion, His moſt ſolemn Acknowledgments to Almighty GOD, for His Preſence with Him, and Bleſſing upon his Endeavours and Arms hitherto, ſo He muſt deſire the Continuance of all their Prayers to GOD for Him.

Addreſs of Diſſenting Miniſters.

Thoſe of the Diſſenting Miniſters, who had not waited on the Prince, under the Protection of the Biſhop of London, took another Opportunity of Attending His Highneſs at St. James's, on Wedneſday Jan. the 2d, when they were, to the Number of Ninety, or upwards, Introduc'd by the Earl of Devonſhire, the Lord Wharton, and the Lord Wiltſhire, and Preſented an Addreſs to this Effect : " They " profeſs'd their grateful Senſe of His Highneſs's " Hazardous and Heroical Expedition, which the " Favour of Heaven had made ſo ſurprizingly Proſperous. They eſteem'd it a Common Felicity, " That the Worthy Patriots of the Nobility and " Gentry of this Kingdom, had Unanimouſly Concurr'd unto His Highneſs's Deſign ; by whoſe moſt " prudent Advice, the Adminiſtration of Publick Affairs was devolved, in this Difficult Conjuncture, " into Hands, which the Nation and the World " knew to be apt for the Greateſt Undertakings, " and ſo ſuitable to the preſent Exigency of our " Caſe. They promis'd the utmoſt Endeavour, " which, in their Stations, they were capable of " affording, for promoting the Excellent and Moſt " deſirable Ends for which His Highneſs had Declar'd. They added their continual and fervent " Prayers to the Almighty, for the Preſervation of " His Highneſs's Perſon, and the Succeſs of His " future Endeavours, for the Defence and Propagation of the Proteſtant Intereſt throughout the " Chriſtian World. They ſhould All moſt willingly " have choſen that for the Seaſon of paying this Duty to His Highneſs, when the Lord Biſhop and " the Clergy of London Attended His Highneſs for " the ſame Purpoſe, (which ſome of them did, and " which His Lordſhip was pleas'd condeſcendingly " to make mention of to His Highneſs) had their " Notice of that intended Application been ſo early, " as to make their more general Attendance poſſible " to them at that Time ; Therefore, though they " did now appear in a diſtinct Company, they did " not on a diſtinct Account, but on that only which " was Common to them, and to all Proteſtants. " There were ſome of Eminent Note, whom " Age, or preſent Infirmities, hinder'd from " Coming with 'em, yet They Concurr'd in the " ſame grateful Senſe of this their Common Deliverance.

The Prince his Anſwer.

His Highneſs was pleas'd very favourably to receive this Application, and to Aſſure 'em, That He came purpoſely for the Defence of the Proteſtant Religion, for that was His own Religion wherein He was born and bred, the Religion of His Country and His Anceſtors ; therefore He was Reſolv'd, by the Grace of GOD, (a) always to Adhere to it, and to do

(a) In the laſt Year of King James, ſome Accommodation had been projected; and this juſt Account of it was afterwards given by Dr. William Wake, Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, in his Speech made in the Houſe of Peers, upon the ſecond Article of Impeachment of Dr. Henry Sacheverell, March 17th, 1709. —— The Perſon who firſt concerted this ſuppoſed Deſign againſt the Church, was the late Moſt Reverend Dr. Sancroft, then Archbiſhop of Canterbury ; the Time was towards the End of that unhappy Reign. —— When the Archbiſhop foreſeeing ſome ſuch Revolution, as ſoon after happen'd, began to conſider how utterly unprepar'd they had been at the Reſtoration of King Charles the IId to ſettle many things to the Advantage of the Church, and what an happy Opportunity had been loſt for want of ſuch a previous Care ; as he was therefore deſirous ſhould be now taken for the better and more perfect Eſtabliſhment of it. The Scheme was laid out, and the ſeve-

His

1688. 1 W. M. His utmoſt Endeavours for the Defence of it, and the Promoting a firm Union among Proteſtants.

This a happy Juncture for Uniting all Proteſtants.

It muſt be own'd, that this was a glorious Opportunity, of Reconciling all Moderate Diſſenters to the Communion of the Church of England; which might have been happily effected, if this Extraordinary Juncture had been well managed, and Improv'd. For the Biſhops, and moſt Eminent Clergy, had publickly profeſs'd to King James, their being willing to come to a Temper with their Diſſenting-Brethren; and they had made their Applications to the Prince of Orange, upon the like Aſſurances of Peace and Union, by all proper and lawful Means. And at the ſame time, there was a like amicable Diſpoſition in the Body of the Diſſenters, who took Care to repreſent their Deſires of Accommodation, by the Mouth of Dr. Bates, who being Attended by very many Diſſenting-Miniſters, made theſe following Speeches to Their Majeſties.

To the KING.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty;

Speech of Dr. Bates.

"THE Series of Succeſsful Events that has attended Your Glorious Enterprize, for the "Saving theſe Kingdoms from ſo Imminent and "Deſtructive Evils, has been ſo Eminent and Extraordinary, that it may force an Acknowledgment of the Divine Providence from thoſe who "Deny it, and raiſes Admiration in all who Believe and Reverence it. The Beauty and Speed of "this Happy Work, are the bright Signatures of "His Hand, who creates Deliverance for His People. "The Leſs of Humane Power, the More of the "Divine Wiſdom and Goodneſs has been Conſpicuous in it. If the Deliverance had been obtain'd "by Fierce and Bloody Battels, Victory it ſelf had "been Dejected and Sad, and Our Joy had been "mix'd with Afflicting Bitterneſs: But as the Sun, "aſcending the Horizon, diſpels, without Noiſe, "the Darkneſs of the Night; ſo Your Serene Preſence has, without Tumults and Diſorders, chas'd "away the Darkneſs that Invaded us. In the Senſe "of this Aſtoniſhing Deliverance, We Deſire, with "all poſſible Ardency of Affection, to Magnify the "Glorious Name of GOD, the Author of it, by "whoſe entire Efficacy the Means have been Succeſsful: And We cannot, without a warm Rapture of Thankfulneſs, recount our Obligations to "Your Majeſty, the Happy Inſtrument of it. Your "Illuſtrious Greatneſs of Mind, in an Undertaking "of ſuch vaſt Expence; Your Heroick Zeal, in "Expoſing Your Moſt Precious Life in ſuch an Adventurous Expedition; Your Wiſe Conduct, and "unſhaken Reſolution, in Proſecuting Your Great "Ends, are above the loftieſt Flights of Language, "and exceed all Praiſe. We owe to Your Majeſty "the Two Greateſt and moſt Valuable Bleſſings that "we can enjoy; The Preſervation of the True Religion, our moſt Sacred Treaſure; and the Recovery of the Falling State, and the Eſtabliſhing it "upon Juſt Foundations. According to our Duty, "we promiſe unfainting Fidelity and true Allegiance to Your Majeſty's Perſon and Government. "We are encourag'd by Your Gracious Promiſe, upon our Firſt Addreſs, humbly to deſire and hope, "That Your Majeſty will be pleas'd, by Your Wiſdom "and Authority, to Eſtabliſh a firm Union of Your "Proteſtant Subjects in the Matters of Religion, by "making the Rule of Chriſtianity to be the Rule of "Conformity. Our Bleſſed Union, in the Purity "and Peace of the Goſpel, will make this Church a "Fair and Lovely Type of Heaven, and Terrible to "our Anti-chriſtian Enemies: This will make England the Steady Centre from whence a Powerful "Influence will be deriv'd, for the Support of Reformed Chriſtianity Abroad: This will bring Immortal Honour to Your Name, above the Trophies "and Triumphs of the moſt Renowned Conquerors. "We do Aſſure Your Majeſty, That we ſhall cordially "embrace the Terms of Union, which the Ruling "Wiſdom of Our SAVIOUR has preſcribed in "His Word. ---- We ſhall not treſpaſs farther on "Your Royal Patience, but ſhall offer up our fervent Prayers to the King of kings, that He will "pleaſe to direct Your Majeſty by His Unerring "Wiſdom, and always incline Your Heart to His "Glory, and encompaſs Your Sacred Perſon with "His Favour, as with a Shield, and make Your "Government an Univerſal Bleſſing to theſe Kingdoms.

The King's Anſwer.

His Majeſty was pleas'd graciouſly to make this Anſwer: I take kindly Your Good Wiſhes; and whatever is in my Power, ſhall be employ'd for obtaining ſuch an Union among you. I do Aſſure you of My Protection and Kindneſs.

To the QUEEN.

May it pleaſe Your Majeſty;

Speech of Dr. Bates to the Queen.

"YOUR Happy Arrival in Your Native-Country, and Acceſſion to the Crown, has "diffus'd an Univerſal Joy through this Kingdom. "'Tis an Auſpicious Sign of Publick-Felicity, when "Supreme-Vertue and Supreme-Dignity meet in the "ſame Perſon. Your Inviolable Firmneſs in the "Profeſſion of the Truth, and Exemplary Piety, are "the moſt radiant Jewels in Your Crown. The "Luſtre of Your Converſation, unſtain'd in the "midſt of Tempting Vanities, and adorn'd with "every Grace, recommends Religion as the moſt "Honourable and Amiable Quality, even to thoſe "who are averſe from hearing Sermons, and apt to "deſpiſe Serious Inſtructions and Excitations to be "Religious. ---- We humbly Deſire Your Majeſty "will be pleas'd, by Your Wiſdom and Goodneſs, to "Compoſe the Differences between Your Proteſtant "Subjects, in Things of leſs Moment concerning "Religion. We hope thoſe Reverend Perſons who "conſpire with Us in the Main-End, the Glory of "GOD, and the Publick-Good, will Conſent to the "Terms of Union, wherein all the Reformed-"Churches Agree. ----We ſhall ſincerely Addreſs our Requeſts to GOD, that He will pleaſe "to pour down, in a rich Abundance, His Bleſſings "upon Your Majeſty's Perſon and Government, and "preſerve You to His Heavenly Kingdom.

The Queen's Anſwer.

Her Majeſty was graciouſly pleas'd to Anſwer them thus: I will uſe all Endeavours for the obtaining an Union, that is neceſſary for the Edifying of the Church. I deſire your Prayers.

Church Preferments.

As to Church-Preferments, Dr. Lamplugh, Biſhop of Exeter, flying from that City while the Prince of Orange was Marching to it, was rewarded by King James with the Tranſlation to the Arch-Biſhoprick of York, on Nov. the 16th; and the Ceremonies of his Tranſlation were performed at Lambeth, on Saturday Dec. 8. by his Grace the Lord Arch-Biſhop of ral Parts of it committed, not only with the Approbation but by the Direction of that great Prelate, to ſuch of our Divines as were thought the moſt proper to be intruſted with it. His Grace took one Part to himſelf, another was committed to a then Pious and Reverend Dean, afterwards a Biſhop of our Church, [Dr. Patrick.] The Reviewing of the daily Service of our Liturgy, and the Communion-Book, was referr'd to a ſelect Number of excellent Perſons, two of which are at this Time upon the Bench [Archbiſhop of York, and Biſhop of Ely] &c.

(a) See a Prayer for his Higneſs the Prince of Orange, to be uſed immediately after the Prayer for the Royal Family. By Order of the Lords. Die Lunæ 28 January, 1688.

"A Form of Prayer and Thankſgiving to Almighty God, "for having made his Highneſs the Prince of Orange the Glorious Inſtrument of the great Deliverance of this Kingdom "from Popery and Arbitrary Power; to be uſed in London and "Weſtminſter 31 January, and throughout the Realm on the "14th of Febr. 1688, 4*to*.

Canterbury,

1688. 1 W. M. Canterbury, aſſiſted by the Biſhops of St. Aſaph, Ely, (a) Rocheſter and Peterborough; and the Day after he did his Homage to His Majeſty at Whitehall, and within Two Days after he joined with the Lords Spiritual and Temporal Aſſembled at Guild-Hall, to Invite the Prince of Orange to take the Adminiſtration of the Government upon him. Upon his Tranſlation to York, King James commanded, though he ſtay'd not to compleat, the Tranſlation of Sir Jonathan Trelawney (Lord Biſhop of Briſtol) to the See of Exeter. The Learned Dr. Seth Ward (Biſhop of Saliſbury) having out-liv'd his Memory, and the greateſt Part of his excellent Underſtanding, died in his Houſe at Knightsbridge near London, on Sunday, Jan. 6th. Upon which Dr. Gilbert Burnet (b), who had come over with the Prince, and had ſo highly deſerv'd of him, was promoted to that See, at the Beginning of March; and on the laſt Day of that Month, was conſecrated in the Chapel of the Biſhop's Palace at Fulham, by the Biſhops of London, Wincheſter, Lincoln, Llandaff, St. Aſaph, and Carliſle, by Virtue of a Commiſſion granted to them by his Grace the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who began now to deny the Legality of the new Government, and therefore wou'd not be perſonally concern'd in the Conſecration of Dr. Burnet: Though by the Advice and Importunity of Dr. Woodward (Chancellor of that Dioceſe) his Grace yielded to that Expedient of giving out his Commiſſion; as if he cou'd authorize others to do what he thought cou'd not be lawfully done by himſelf. On Apr. 3. his Lordſhip was ſworn and admitted Chancellor of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter; and was always true and faithful to the King's Perſon, Intereſt and Honour, and very Exemplary in his Dioceſe, for Diſcipline, Hoſpitality and Charity.

1689. 1 W. M. Proceedings in Parliament. We left the Parliament ſitting. The Houſe of Lords had paſſed a Bill for Removing Papiſts from the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and Ten Miles Diſtance from the ſame: To which the Commons, on March 28. added a Proviſo, relating to the Queen Dowager and her Family, by which her Articles of Marriage did ſeem to be infring'd. To this Proviſo the Peers diſagreed; alledging, "That "Her Majeſty had for ſo many Years made ſuch "moderate Uſe of the ſaid Articles, that there had "not been any juſt Occaſion of Complaint in the "Enjoyment of 'em. That it was evident, in the "Time of the late King James, when Her Majeſty "might have been encourag'd to entertain more "Perſons of her own Religion, moſt of her Servants (and thoſe of the moſt conſiderable Places) were continu'd, and alſo others receiv'd into her Family, tho' Proteſtants: And that it "might be of ill Conſequence, if Her Majeſty, by "not living eaſily here, ſhould be oblig'd to retire "into Foreign Parts." On the other ſide, the Commons, on April 8. inſiſted upon the Proviſo added by 'em: 1. Becauſe it was no new Clauſe, and therefore impoſed no new Condition upon Her Majeſty; it being the ſame that was enacted in the 30th of King Charles II. for the more effectual Preſerving the King's Perſon and Government. 2. Becauſe to make an Alteration in the Law as it then ſtood, might look like ſome kind of Countenance to thoſe of that Perſwaſion, at a Time when the Lords themſelves had judged the Reſort of Papiſts to London to be of ſo dangerous Conſequence to the Government, as to make this Act to remove 'em Ten Miles from it. And 3dly, Becauſe the Papiſts were not leſs active in their Deſigns and Practices to diſturb the Peace and Quiet of the Kingdom, than they were in the Thirtieth of King Charles II. And therefore the like Reaſons which induc'd the Parliament to make that Statute, remain'd at this Time, to perſwade the Houſe of Commons to keep the Force of it entire. Upon Conſideration of theſe Reaſons offer'd by the Commons in a Free Conference, their Lordſhips agreed to propoſe, That the Queen Dowager ſhould have Thirty Servants of the King's Engliſh Subjects, provided none of them were Prieſts, Monks, or Fryars; to which Expedient, after ſeveral Conferences and warm Debates, the Commons gave their Concurrence.

The King offers a General Pardon and Oblivion. On Thurſday, March 28. the Earl of Shrewsbury acquainted the Houſe of Peers, "That His Majeſty, out of an earneſt Deſire to deliver his People from the Guilt, Reproaches and Penalties "which many of them may be liable to; and to "put an End to all Controverſies ariſing between "the Subjects, by reaſon of any Diſcord in later "Times, and to take away all Diſtinctions and "Occaſions of Diſcord among them; to the end "that they having an entire Confidence in His Majeſty, and a perfect Union among themſelves, "might be encourag'd in their Duty to his Government, and more fully and ſecurely enjoy "the Benefit of it. And His Majeſty judging, "that the beſt way to render this his Gracious Intentions moſt extenſive and effectual, was to paſs "a Free and General Pardon, Indemnity and "Oblivion; His Majeſty did moſt earneſtly recommend the Conſideration thereof to both "Houſes of Parliament, That with all the Expedition a Matter of that kind would admit, "they might prepare a Bill for that Purpoſe for "the Royal Aſſent; with ſuch Exceptions only, as "to them ſhould ſeem neceſſary, for the Vindication of Publick Juſtice, the Safety of Their Majeſties, and the Settlement and Welfare of the "Nation for the future." At the ſame Time the Earl of Shrewsbury deſir'd Leave of the Houſe, to bring in a Bill for the Naturalizing the Prince of Denmark, whom His Majeſty intended to create a Duke of this Kingdom, and ſo to make him capable of Sitting in that Houſe. Whereupon the Lords order'd the Marquis of Wincheſter and the Earl of Bedford to attend the King, with the Thanks of their Houſe, for His Majeſty's Gracious Meſſage to them concerning the Bill of Indemnity and Free Pardon, and for his Intention of creating His

(a) There was publiſh'd, A Letter from the Biſhop of Rocheſter, to the Right Honourable the Earl of Dorſet and Middleſex, Lord Chamberlain of His Majeſty's Houſhold, concerning his Sitting in the late Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſion. Dated, Weſtminſter, Feb. 21. 1688. Printed by Edw. Jones in the Savoy. 4to.

"My Lord, I think I ſhould be wanting to my ſelf at this "Time, in my own neceſſary Vindication, ſhould I forbear any "longer to give my Friends a true Account of my Behaviour "in the late Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſion; tho' I profeſs, what I "ſhall now ſay, I only intend as a reaſonable Mitigation of the "Offence I have given, not entirely to juſtify my Sitting in "that Court, &c.

The Biſhop publiſh'd a Second Letter to the Right Honourable the Earl of Dorſet; dated, Weſtminſt. March 26. 1689.

(b) The Biſhop of Sarum, in his Vindication, printed 1696. tells us, "When my Election to this See, wherein I ſerve, was "returned and confirmed, the Precept for my Conſecration "went to the Archbiſhop in Courſe. Archbiſhop Sancroft ſaid, "He would not obey it. Some Biſhops tried to perſuade him, "but in vain: The Earl of Nottingham tried, and ſucceeded "no better. The Party got it among them, that he had promiſed them not to do it. But as the Time came on, and he "ſaw that he muſt be ſued in a Premunire, when this was laid "before him, he all on the ſudden order'd Two Commiſſions "to be drawn, both which he Sign'd and Seal'd, and both are "yet extant; One directed to the Archbiſhop of York, and all "the Biſhops of England; the other to the Biſhop of London, "and all the Biſhops of his Province; to execute his Metropolitical Authority during Pleaſure. This laſt was made uſe "of, and purſuant to it I was conſecrated; ſo this was "as much his own Act, as if he himſelf had conſecrated "me." Octavo, p. 23. The Copy of this latter Commiſſion has been ſince printed by Mr. Marſhall, in his Defence of the Conſtitution, Append. Num. I. Robertus Woodward, Legum Doctor, Notarius Publicus & Actuarius, hac vice ſpecialiter aſſumptus, &c.

See a Sermon preach'd at Fulham, in the Chapel of the Palace, at the Conſecration of Gilbert Lord Biſhop of Sarum. By Anthony Horneck, D. D. 4to.

High-

1689. 1 W. M.

Highneſs Prince George, a Duke of this Realm.

On Wedneſday, April 3. His Majeſty came by Water to the Houſe of Lords, attended with the uſual Solemnity; and being in his Royal Robes ſeated on the Throne, and the Commons being ſent for up, His Majeſty gave the Royal Aſſent to the following Acts. 1. An Act for exhibiting a Bill in this preſent Parliament, for Naturalizing the Moſt Noble Prince George of Denmark. 2. An Act for Reviving of Actions and Proceſs, lately depending in the Courts at Weſtminſter, and diſcontinued by the not holding of Hillary-Term; and for ſupplying other Defects relating to Proceedings at Law. 3. An Act for Puniſhing Officers and Soldiers, who ſhall mutiny, or deſert their Majeſties Service.

Acts paſs'd by the King.

Titles and Honours.

His Majeſty, before his Coronation, thought fit to confer ſeveral Titles and Honours. He was pleaſed to create His Royal Highneſs, Prince George of Denmark and Norway, Baron of Oakingham, Earl of Kendall, and Duke of Cumberland; Charles Lord Marquis of Wincheſter, Duke of Bolton; William Bentinck, Eſq; Groom of the Stole to His Majeſty, Baron of Cirenceſter, Viſcount Woodſtock, and Earl of Portland; Thomas Lord Viſcount Faulconberg, Earl of Faulconberg; Charles Lord Viſcount Mordant, Earl of Monmouth; Ralph Lord Mountague, Viſcount Mount-Hermer, and Earl of Mountague; John Lord Churchill, Earl of Marlborough; Henry Sidney, Eſq; Baron of Milton, and Viſcount Sidney, of Sheppey in the County of Kent; Richard Lord Viſcount Lumley, of Waterford in Ireland, Viſcount Lumley, of Lumley-Caſtle in the County Palatine of Durham; Hugh Lord Viſcount Cholmondley, of Kellis in Ireland, Baron Cholmondley of Watchmalbank, alias Namptwich, in Cheſhire. On March 27. the Lord Coote had been ſworn and admitted into the Place of Treaſurer and Receiver-General to Her Majeſty. On April 3. Duke Frederick, Mareſchal de Schombergh, General of His Majeſty's Forces, and Maſter-General of the Ordnance, and William Earl of Devonſhire, Lord Steward of His Majeſty's Houſhold, (in a Chapter held at Whitehall) were elected Knights Companions of the Moſt Noble Order of the Garter; and being firſt Knighted by the Sovereign, were inveſted with the Garter and George with the uſual Ceremony: And on April 5. the Duke of Ormond was inſtall'd Knight and Companion of that Moſt Noble Order, in St. George's Chapel at Windſor. And on Apr. 10. His Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Thomas Pilkington, Eſq; Lord-Mayor of London.

More Acts paſs'd.

On Tueſday, Apr. 9. the King came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave his Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for Eſtabliſhing the Coronation-Oath. 2. An Act for the Naturalization of the Moſt Noble Prince George of Denmark, and Settling his Precedency. 3. An Act for Naturalizing of Frederick Count Schomberg, and others. In the firſt of theſe Acts, the Coronation-Oath was provided (by Directions from the Court) to be adminiſtred either by the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, or the Biſhop of London. The Choice of one of theſe Two Prelates being left to the King, His Majeſty (leſt He ſhould be deny'd by the firſt) thought fit to pitch upon the Second, who accordingly officiated in that Magnificent Ceremony; which, on the Day appointed, April 11. was perform'd at Weſtminſter in (a) Manner following:

Coronation of King William and Queen Mary.

THeir Majeſties being come from Whitehall to Weſtminſter, and the Nobility, &c. being put in Order by the Heralds; they came down in State into Weſtminſter-Hall, where the Swords and Spurs were preſented to them.

1689. 1 W. M.

After which, the Dean and Prebendaries of Weſtminſter having brought the Crowns, and other Regalia, preſented them ſeverally to Their Majeſties; which, with the Swords and Spurs, were thereupon deliver'd to the Lords appointed to carry them.

Then the Proceſſion began in this manner: Drums and Trumpets; Six Clerks in Chancery, Two abreaſt, (as all the reſt of the Proceeding went;) Chaplains having Dignities; Aldermen of London; Maſters in Chancery; Sollicitor and Attorney-General; Gentlemen of the Privy-Chamber; Judges.

Children of Weſtminſter, and of the King's Chapel; Choir of Weſtminſter, and Gentlemen of the Chapel; Prebends of Weſtminſter; Maſter of the Jewel-Houſe; Privy-Counſellors not Peers.

Two Purſuivants, Baroneſſes, Barons, Biſhops; A Purſuivant, a Viſcounteſs, Viſcounts; Two Heralds, Counteſſes, Earls; a Herald, a Marchioneſs; Two Heralds, Dutcheſſes, Dukes; Two Kings of Arms, the Lord Privy-Seal; Lord Preſident of the Council; Archbiſhop of York; His Royal Highneſs Prince George of Denmark; Two Perſons repreſenting the Dukes of Aquitain and Normandy.

Next the Lords who bore Their Majeſties Regalia, viz. the Earl of Mancheſter, St. Edward's Staff; and the Lord Grey of Ruthyn, the Spurs; the Earl of Clare, the Queen's Sceptre with the Croſs, and the Earl of Northampton the King's; the Earls of Shrewsbury, Derby and Pembroke, the Three Swords. Next, Garter King of Arms, between the Uſher of the Black Rod and the Lord-Mayor of London; the Lord Great Chamberlain, ſingle; the Earl of Oxford with the Sword of State, between the Duke of Norfolk, Earl-Marſhal, and the Duke of Ormond, Lord High Conſtable for that Day: Then the Earl of Bedford with the Queen's Sceptre of the Dove, and the Earl of Rutland with the King's; the Duke of Bolton with the Queen's Orb, and the Duke of Grafton with the King's; the Duke of Somerſet with the Queen's Crown, and the Earl of Devonſhire, Lord Steward of His Majeſty's Houſhold, (who was made Lord High Steward of England for that Day) with the King's; the Biſhop of London with the Bible, between the Biſhop of St. Aſaph with the Patin, and the Biſhop of Rocheſter with the Chalice.

Then the KING, ſupported by the Biſhop of Wincheſter, and the QUEEN by the Biſhop of Briſtol, under a Canopy born by Sixteen Barons of the Cinque Ports; His Majeſty's Train born by the Maſter of the Robes, aſſiſted by the Lord Eland, Lord Willoughby, Lord Lanſdown, and the Lord Dumblain; and Her Majeſty's Train by the Dutcheſs of Somerſet, aſſiſted by the Lady Elizabeth Pawlet, Lady Diana Vere, Lady Elizabeth Cavendiſh, and the Lady Harriot Hyde.

After the KING, a Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber, and Two Grooms of the Bed-Chamber; and after the QUEEN, a Lady of the Bed-Chamber, and Two of Her Majeſty's Women.

Laſtly, The Captain of His Majeſty's Guard, between the Captain of the Yeomen of the Guard, and the Captain of the Band of Penſioners; followed by the Officers and Band of Yeomen of the Guard; the Serjeants at Arms going on each Side of the Regalia, and the Gentlemen Penſioners on each Side of the Canopy.

Thus Their Majeſties, in their Robes of Crimſon Velvet, the KING with a Cap, and the QUEEN with a Circlet on her Head, all the Nobility in Crimſon Velvet Robes, with their Coronets in their Hands, and the reſt of the Proceeding in their proper Habits, marched on Foot upon Blue Cloth to Weſtminſter-Abby; all the Way and Houſes on each Side

(a) See an exact Account of the Ceremonial at the Coronation of Their Majeſties King William and Queen Mary, on the Eleventh of April, 1689. Printed by Edward Jones, 1689. 4to.

being

1689. 1 W. M.

being crowded with vaſt Numbers of Spectators, expreſſing their great Joy and Satiſfaction by loud repeated Acclamations.

Being enter'd the Church, and all duly ſeated, the Biſhop of London (who perform'd this Great Solemnity) began with the Recognition, which ended with a mighty Shout. Then Their Majeſties offer'd, and the Lords who bore the Regalia preſented them at the Altar. The Litany was ſung by Two Biſhops; and after the Epiſtle, Goſpel, and Nicene Creed, the (a) Biſhop of Saliſbury preach'd on this Text, 2 Sam. xxiii. 14.

After Sermon, Their Majeſties took the Oath; and being conducted to their Regal Chairs, placed on the Theatre, (that they might be the more conſpicuous to the Members of the Houſe of Commons, who were ſeated in the North Croſs) were anointed, and preſented with the Spurs and Sword, and inveſted with the Palls and Orbs, and then with the Rings and Sceptres: And at Four of the Clock, the Crowns were put upon their Heads; at ſight whereof the People ſhouted, the Drums and Trumpets ſounded, the Great Guns were diſcharged, and the Peers and Peereſſes put on their Coronets.

Then the Bible was preſented to Them, and after the Benediction, They vouchſafed to kiſs the Biſhops. Being Enthroned, firſt the Biſhops, and then the Temporal Lords did their Homage, and kiſs'd Their Majeſties Left Cheeks; while the Treaſurer of the Houſhold threw about the Coronation-Medals.

Next follow'd the Communion; and Their Majeſties having made their Second Oblation, received the Holy Sacrament. Then the Biſhop read the final Prayers; and Their Majeſties retiring into St. Edward's Chapel, and being new array'd in Purple Velvet, return'd to Weſtminſter-Hall, wearing their Rich Crowns of State, and the Nobility their Coronets.

The Nobility, &c. being ſeated at their reſpective Tables, which were all ready furniſh'd before their coming in; the firſt Courſe for Their Majeſties Table was ſerved up with the proper Ceremony, being preceded by the Great Officers, and the High Conſtable, High Steward, and Earl Marſhal: And before the Second Courſe, Charles Dymock, Eſq; Their Majeſties Champion, between the High Conſtable and the Earl Marſhal, perform'd the Challenge: After which, the Heralds proclaim'd Their Majeſties Stiles.

Dinner being ended, and the whole Solemnity perform'd with great Splendor and Magnificence, about Eight in the Evening Their Majeſties return'd to Whitehall.

The next Day Afternoon, the Houſe of Commons (in a full Body) walk'd from Weſtminſter to the Banquetting-Houſe, where they attended Their Majeſties, to congratulate 'em upon their Coronation; which Mr. Powle (their Speaker) perform'd in the following Speech.

Speaker's Speech to their Majeſties.

"YOUR moſt loyal and dutiful Subjects, the "Commons of England aſſembled in this "preſent Parliament, having to their unſpeakable "Joy, ſeen your Majeſties plac'd upon the Imperial Throne of this Kingdom, they have deſir'd "Acceſs at this Time to your Royal Preſence, humbly to congratulate your Majeſties upon this Occaſion, and to wiſh your Majeſties a long and "proſperous Reign, with all the Bleſſings that ever "did attend a Crown.

"We are all ſenſible that your Majeſties Greatneſs is the Security of your Subjects. It is from "your Power that we derive to our ſelves an Aſſurance of being defended from our Enemies; and "from your Juſtice, that we expect a full Enjoyment of our Laws and Liberties: But that which "compleats our Happineſs, is the Experience we "have of your Majeſties continual Care to maintain the Proteſtant Religion; So that we can no "longer apprehend any Danger of being deprived "of that ineſtimable Bleſſing, either by ſecret Practices or by open Violences.

To the King.

"May the ſame divine Providence which hath "hitherto preſerved your Majeſty in the greateſt "Dangers, and ſo often given you Victory over your "Enemies, ſtill crown your Undertakings with Succeſs.

To the Queen.

"And may thoſe unparallel'd Virtues, which "adorn your Majeſty's Royal Perſon, be the Admiration of the preſent Age, and an Example to the "Future.

"And may the Luſtre of both your Names ſo "far out-ſhine the Glory of your Predeceſſors, that "the Memory of their greateſt Actions may be "forgotten, and your People no longer date the Eſtabliſhment of their Laws and Liberties from St. "Edward's Days, but from the moſt auſpicious "King WILLIAM and Queen MARY.

To this Speech his Majeſty made the following Anſwer, both in his own, and in his Queen's Name.

GENTLEMEN;

The King's Anſwer.

WE return you our hearty Thanks, for the Kindneſs that you have, upon all Occaſions, ſhew'd to both of us. We ſhall take care, to the beſt of our Power, of all Things that conduce to the Good of the Kingdom: And I do not doubt, but, by GOD's Aſſiſtance, and yours, we ſhall be able, in a ſhort Time, to make you a flouriſhing People.

Lords Addreſs.

On Apr. 19th, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons in Parliament aſſembled, preſented an Addreſs to his Majeſty, in the Banqueting-Houſe, to render his Majeſty their moſt humble and hearty Thanks, for his gracious Declaration, and repeated Aſſurances, That he will maintain the Church of England, as by Law Eſtabliſh'd: And humbly to pray his Majeſty to ſummon a Convocation of the Clergy of this Kingdom. To which his Majeſty the next Day (b) return'd a moſt gracious Anſwer, (that ſhall be expreſly recited under the View of Religion.)

Acts paſs'd.

On Wedneſday, Apr. 24th, his Majeſty went to the Houſe of Lords, and gave his Royal Aſſent to theſe

(a) See a Sermon preach'd at the Coronation of King William III. and Q. Mary II. King and Queen of England, France, and Ireland, in the Abbey Church of Weſtminſter, Apr. 11. 1689. by Gilbert Lord Biſhop of Sarum, 1689, 4to.

(b) Apr. 20. 1689. Liberty was given to proteſt againſt the Depriving Act; i. e. Act for abrogating the Oaths, &c. in the Houſe of Peers: yet no Proteſt was entred by any one of thoſe who were likely to ſuffer, nor of Ten Biſhops preſent was there a ſingle Biſhop who gave his Negative; and among the Temporal Lords but two Diſſentients. In Archbiſhop Sancroft, there was ſomething very ſingular, either in his Opinion, or in his Temper. Either his Opinion of the preſent Eſtabliſhment differed from his Brethrens, or he had a Fearfulneſs of Temper that neither became his Poſt, nor thoſe Times. He was one of thoſe Lords who met at Guildhall, and ſigned the Invitation to the then Prince of Orange, to come and look to the Preſervation of Religion and of the Nation. When his preſent Majeſty came to St. James's, he neither came to wait on him, nor did he ſend any Meſſage, importing, that the State of Affairs was changed, and that he had thereupon changed his Mind. When the Convention was ſummoned, he would not appear all the while, though his Brethren did, and both ſpake and voted according to their Principles. The Matter ſtuck ſo many Days in the Houſe of Lords, and was at laſt carried upon ſo ſmall an Inequality, that the Weight of an Archbiſhop of Canterbury might have held, if not turned, the Balance. ——— Here was a very unaccountable Behaviour if he thought it was Rebellion or Treaſon that was then in Debate. If he had but once come and declared againſt all that was then in Agitation, and then withdrawn, this would have 1689. 1 W.M. theſe following Acts. (1.) An Act for empowering his Majeſty to apprehend and detain ſuch Perſons as he ſhall find juſt Cauſe to ſuſpect are conſpiring againſt the Government. (2.) An Act for the Abrogating of the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, and appointing other Oaths. (3.) An Act for the amoving Papiſts, and reputed Papiſts, from the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and Ten Miles diſtance from the ſame. (4.) An Act for the taking away the Revenue ariſing by Hearth-Money. (5.) An Act for the Encouraging the Exportation of Corn. (6.) An Act for the explaining and making effectual a Statute made in the Firſt Year of King James the Second, concerning the Havens and Peres of Great-Yarmouth.

There was yet no open War declar'd againſt France: But the Reception of King James in the French Court, and his tranſporting French Forces into Ireland, made it neceſſary to proclaim War againſt that potent Monarch; as was expected Abroad, and deſir'd here at home. Under this Diſpoſition, on Friday, Apr. 26th, the Commons, in a Body, waited on his Majeſty at Whitehall, and preſented this humble Addreſs:

Addreſs of the Commons for a War with France.

"WE your Majeſty's moſt loyal and dutiful "Subjects, the Commons in this preſent "Parliament aſſembled, moſt humbly lay before "your Majeſty, our earneſt Deſire, That your Ma"jeſty wou'd be pleas'd to take into your moſt ſe"rious Conſideration, the deſtructive Methods of "late taken by the French King, againſt the Trade, "Quiet and Intereſt, of this your Kingdom, and "particularly, the preſent Invaſion of the King"dom of Ireland, and ſupporting your Majeſty's "Rebellious Subjects there.

"Not doubting in the leaſt, but that, through "your Majeſty's Wiſdom, the Alliances already "made, with ſuch as may hereafter be concluded, "on this Occaſion, by your Majeſty, may be ef"fectual to reduce the French King to ſuch a Con"dition, that it may not be in his Power hereafter "to violate the Peace of Chriſtendom, nor preju"dice the Trade or Proſperity of this your Maje"ſty's Kingdom.

"To this End, we moſt humbly beſeech your "Majeſty to reſt aſſured, upon this our ſolemn and "hearty Engagement, That when your Majeſty "ſhall think fit to enter into a War againſt the "French King, we will give your Majeſty ſuch Aſ"ſiſtance, in a Parliamentary Way, as may enable "your Majeſty (under that Protection and Bleſſing "GOD Almighty has ever afforded you) to ſup"port and go through with the ſame.

To which Addreſs, his Majeſty gave this gracious Anſwer:

WILLIAM R.

The King's Anſwer.

I Receive this Addreſs, as a Mark of the Confidence you have in me, which I take very kindly; and ſhall endeavour, by all my Actions, to confirm you in it.

I aſſure you, That my own Ambition ſhall never be an Argument to incline me to engage in a War, that may expoſe the Nation either to Danger or Expence. 1689. 1 W.M.

But in the preſent Caſe, I look upon the War ſo much already declar'd, in effect, by France, againſt England; that it is not ſo properly an Act of Choice, as an inevitable Neceſſity, in our own Defence.

I ſhall only tell you, That as I have ventur'd my Life, and all that is dear to me, to reſcue this Nation from what it ſuffer'd; I am ready ſtill to do the ſame, in order to the preſerving it from all its Enemies: And as I do not doubt of ſuch an Aſſiſtance from you, as ſhall be ſuitable to your Advice to me, To declare War againſt a powerful Enemy; ſo you may rely upon me, That no Part of that which you ſhall give, for the carrying it on with Succeſs, ſhall be diverted, by me, to any other Uſe.

Under this Reſolution of a War with France the King publiſh'd, A Declaration for the encouraging of French Proteſtants to tranſport themſelves into this Kingdom; promiſing them not only Protection for themſelves, Families and Eſtates, but alſo ſuch Aid and Aſſiſtance in their ſeveral and reſpective Trades, and Ways of Livelihood, as that their Living and Being in this Realm may be comfortable and eaſy to them: And at the ſame Time, A Proclamation, prohibiting the Importation of all Sorts of Manufactures and Commodities whatſoever, of the Growth, Production or Manufacture of France. The King's Declaration for the French Proteſtants.

The Commons had voted the Yearly Sum of One million two hundred thouſand Pounds for the Support of the Crown; and Six hundred thouſand Pounds for the Maintenance of the Forces to be employ'd in the Reduction of Ireland. They prepar'd a Poll Bill; which having paſs'd both Houſes, his Majeſty came, on May 1ſt, attended with the uſual Solemnity to the Houſe of Lords, where he gave his Royal Aſſent to, (1.) An Act for raiſing Money by a Poll, and otherwiſe, towards the reducing of Ireland. (2.) An Act for preventing Doubts and Queſtions concerning the collecting the Publick Revenue. (3.) An Act to enable Younger Cook, Eſq; to ſell Lands to pay his Debts, and provide for his younger Children. Acts paſſed.

The Speaker, when he preſented the Money-Bill, made this remarkable Speech:

May it pleaſe your Majeſty:

"THE Commons aſſembled in this preſent "Parliament, have taken into their moſt ſe"rious Conſideration, the deplorable Condition of "Ireland, where thoſe fatal Counſels, that did ſo "long govern the Affairs of theſe Kingdoms, have "ſo far prevail'd, that your Arms and Gariſons "there have been taken from your Proteſtant Sub"jects, and put into the Hands of Iriſh Papiſts; "and the Engliſh Proteſtants that remain there, left "naked and defenceleſs in the Power of thoſe Ene"mies, which never yet ſhew'd them any Mercy, "when they had them at an Advantage. Speaker's Speech to the King.

"Nor is it the Strength of the Iriſh Natives on"ly, animated with the Zeal for Popery, and a "longing Deſire to free themſelves from any De"pendency upon the Crown of England, that is become him and his Station. His Chaplains took the Oaths, and were not diſcountenanced by him. Thoſe who knew him beſt, gave it out upon that ſtrange Deportment of his, that he wiſhed well to the Change, only that he himſelf would not be active in it; and this they imputed to ſome Promiſe that they believed he had made to the late King. When King James went to Ireland, and during all the Time of that War, when the Party in England grew bold, and was full of Hopes, he continued in his former Silence and Reſervedneſs, and ſtill kept up his former Friendſhip with thoſe who had taken the Oaths. At that Time ſeveral Clergymen, who had Scruples concerning the Oaths, as they have told my ſelf, went to him and deſired to diſcourſe the Matter, but he declin'd it. When Biſhop Turner's Letters were intercepted, he ſaid to a great many from whom I had it, That he had no Authority from him to write as he did in his Name. After he was deprived he never took on him to act with his Archiepiſcopal Authority. He never required the Biſhops or Clergy of his Province to adhere to him, or to diſown his Succeſſor: And neither Living nor Dying did he publiſh any Thing to the Nation charging theſe Sins upon them, or requiring them to return to their former State, &c. Biſhop of Sarum's Vindication, 8*vo.* 1696. p. 97.

"likely

1689. 1 W. M. "likely to create your Majeſty an Oppoſition there, "but they have likewiſe caſt themſelves under the "Protection of the French King; who will, with-"out doubt, employ that Force, with which, of "late Years, he hath over-aw'd Europe, to ſupport "thoſe your rebellious Subjects; thereby, if poſſi-"ble, to give your Majeſty a Diverſion from oppo-"ſing, in other Parts of the World, his ambitious "Deſigns of an Univerſal Monarchy.

"The Commons therefore, ſeeing ſo evident a "Neceſſity of Reducing that Kingdom under your "Majeſty's Obedience, and the great Expence your "Majeſty muſt undergo, in maintaining ſuch a "War, do now humbly preſent to your Majeſty "their hearty Aſſiſtance, in a Poll-Bill, which they "look upon as the moſt ſpeedy and effectual Way "of raiſing Ready Money on this Occaſion; ſolemn-"ly engaging themſelves to ſupply your Majeſty "with ſuch future Aids, as may be proportionable "to the Charge of the War, as long as it ſhall con-"tinue.

The King, being well-aſſur'd of the Aſſiſtance of the Commons, acquainted the Lords with his Intention, of ſpeedily declaring War againſt France. Whereupon their Lordſhips, on May 7th, unanimouſly reſolv'd to aſſiſt and ſerve his Majeſty therein, to their utmoſt Power. The ſame Day, Their Majeſty's Declaration againſt the French King, was ſolemnly proclaim'd, in a maſterly Form, (ſaid to be drawn up by Mr. Somers.)

WILLIAM R.

Declaration of War againſt France. "IT having pleas'd Almighty GOD to make Us "the Happy Inſtruments of Reſcuing theſe Na-"tions from Imminent Dangers, and to place Us "upon the Throne of theſe Kingdoms; We think "Ourſelves oblig'd to endeavour, to the uttermoſt, "to promote the Welfare of Our People: Which "can never be effectually ſecured, but by prevent-"ing the Miſeries that threaten them from Abroad.

"When We conſider the many Unjuſt Methods "the French King hath, of late Years, taken to "gratify his Ambition: That he has not only in-"vaded the Territories of the Emperor and the Em-"pire, now in Amity with Us, laying waſte whole "Countries, and deſtroying the Inhabitants, by his "Armies; but declar'd War againſt Our Allies, "without any Provocation, in manifeſt Violation "of the Treaties confirm'd by the Guaranty of "the Crown of England; We can do no leſs than "join with our Allies, in oppoſing the Deſigns of "the French King, as the Diſturber of the Peace, "and the Common Enemy of the Chriſtian World.

"And beſides the Obligations We lie under, by "Treaties with Our Allies, which are a ſufficient "Juſtification of Us for taking up Arms at this "Time, ſince They have call'd upon Us ſo to do, "the many Injuries done to Us, and to Our Sub-"jects, without any Reparation by the French "King, are ſuch, that (however of late Years they "were not taken Notice of, for Reaſons well known "to the World, nevertheleſs) we will not paſs "them over, without a Publick and juſt Reſent-"ment of ſuch Outrages.

"It is not long ſince the French took Licences "from the Engliſh Governor of Newfoundland, to "Fiſh in the Seas upon that Coaſt, and paid a "Tribute for ſuch Licences, as an Acknowledgment "of the Sole Right of the Crown of England to that "Iſland: And yet of late, the Encroachments of "the French upon our ſaid Iſland, and our Subjects "Trade and Fiſhery, have been more like the Inva-"ſions of an Enemy, than becoming Friends, "who enjoy'd the Advantages of that Trade only "by Permiſſion.

"But that the French King ſhould invade our "Charibbe Iſlands, and poſſeſs himſelf of our Ter-"ritories of the Province of New-York, and of Hud-"ſon's-Bay, in a Hoſtile manner, ſeizing our Forts, "burning our Subjects Houſes, and enriching his "People with the Spoil of their Goods and Mer-"chandizes, detaining ſome of our Subjects under "the Hardſhip of Impriſonment, cauſing others to "be inhumanly kill'd, and driving the reſt to Sea in a "ſmall Veſſel, without Food and Neceſſaries to "ſupport them, are Actions not becoming even an "Enemy: And yet he was ſo far from declaring "himſelf ſo, that at that very Time he was nego-"ciating here in England, by his Miniſters, a Trea-"ty of Neutrality and good Correſpondence in "America. 1689. 1 W. M.

"The Proceedings of the French King againſt "our Subjects in Europe, are ſo notorious, that we "ſhall not need to enlarge upon them: His counte-"nancing the Seizure of Engliſh Ships by French "Privateers; forbidding the Importation of great "Part of the Product and Manufactures of our "Kingdom, and impoſing exorbitant Cuſtoms upon "the reſt, notwithſtanding the vaſt Advantage he "and the French Nation reap by their Commerce "with England, are ſufficient Evidence of his De-"ſign to deſtroy the Trade, and conſequently to "ruin the Navigation, upon which the Wealth and "Safety of this Nation very much depends.

"The Right of the Flag, inherent in the Crown "of England, has been diſputed by his Orders, in "Violation of our Sovereignty of the Narrow Seas, "which, in all Ages, has been aſſerted by our "Predeceſſors, and we are reſolved to maintain, for "the Honour of our Crown, and of the Engliſh "Nation.

"But that which moſt nearly touches us, is, his "Unchriſtian Proſecution of many of our Engliſh "Proteſtant Subjects in France, for Matters of Re-"ligion, contrary to the Law of Nations, and ex-"preſs Treaties; forcing them to abjure their Re-"ligion, by ſtrange and unuſual Cruelties; and im-"priſoning ſome of the Maſters and Seamen of our "Merchant-Ships, and condemning others to the "Gallies, on Pretence of having on Board ei-"ther ſome of his own miſerable Proteſtant Sub-"jects, or their Effects. And laſtly, As he has for "ſome Years laſt paſt, endeavour'd, by Inſinuations "and Promiſes of Aſſiſtance, to overthrow the Go-"vernment of England; ſo now, by open and vio-"lent Methods, and the actual Invaſion of our "Kingdom of Ireland, in Support of our Subjects "in Arms, and in Rebellion againſt us, he is pro-"moting the utter Extirpation of our good and "loyal Subjects in that our Kingdom.

"Being therefore thus neceſſitated to take up "Arms, and relying on the Help of Almighty "God, in our juſt Undertaking; we have thought "fit to declare, and do hereby declare War againſt "the French King; and that we will, in Con-"junction with our Allies, vigorouſly proſecute "the ſame by Sea and Land, (ſince he hath ſo un-"righteouſly begun it;) being aſſured of the hearty "Concurrence and Aſſiſtance of our Subjects, in "Support of ſo good a Cauſe. Hereby willing and "requiring our General of our Forces, our Com-"miſſioners for executing the Office of High Ad-"miral, our Lieutenants of our ſeveral Counties, "Governors of our Forts and Gariſons, and all "other Officers and Soldiers under them by Sea "and Land, to do and execute all Acts of Hoſtility, "in the Proſecution of this War againſt the French "King, his Vaſſals and Subjects, and to oppoſe "their Attempts. Willing and requiring all our "Subjects to take Notice of the ſame, whom we "henceforth ſtrictly forbid to hold any Correſpon-"dence or Communication with the ſaid French "King, or his Subjects. And becauſe there are re-"maining in our Kingdoms many of the Subjects "of the French King; we do declare, and give our "Royal Word, that all ſuch of the French Nation

1689. 1 W. M.

" as ſhall demean themſelves dutifully towards us, " and not correſpond with our Enemies, ſhall be " ſafe in their Perſons and Eſtates, and free from " all Moleſtation and Trouble of any kind.

Given at our Court at Hampton-Court, the 7th Day of May, 1689. In the firſt Year of our Reign.

Engagement of Engliſh & French Fleets in Bantry-Bay

Some Days before this Proclamation, the War was effectually declar'd, by an Engagement between the Engliſh and French Fleets in Bantry-Bay. Of which this Account was given from on Board their Majeſties Ship the Elizabeth, the 2d of May, 1689. " Admiral Herbert having refitted at Milford- " Haven, the Damages which ſome of his Ships " had ſuſtain'd by ill Weather, on the Coaſt of " Ireland, intended to have gone directly to Breſt; " but the Wind coming Eaſterly, which might " bring the French Fleet out, he ſtood on the 24th " paſt over to Kingſale, which he judg'd the liklieſt " way to meet them. On the 29th our Scouts " made a Signal, that they diſcover'd a Fleet keep- " ing their Wind; which made us likewiſe keep " ours all Night, to hinder their getting into King- " ſale. The 30th, we heard the Enemy weregone " into Baltimore, being 44 Sail; whereupon we " bore away towards that Place, but found there " no Signs of them; but in the Evening our Scouts " got Sight of them again to the Weſtward of " Cape-Clear. We ſteered after them, and found " they were got into Bantry. We lay off of the " Bay all Night, and the next Morning by Break " of Day ſtood in, where we found them at an An- " chor. They got preſently under Sail, and bore " down upon us in a Line, compoſed of Twenty " eight Men of War and Five Fireſhips. When " they came within Muſquet-ſhot of the Defiance, " the Headmoſt of our Ships, the French Admiral " put out the Signal of Battle, which was begun " by them, firing great and ſmall Shot at the De- " fiance, and the reſt as we came in our Line. We " made ſeveral Boards to gain the Wind, or at leaſt " to engage them cloſer; but finding that way of " working very diſadvantageous, Admiral Herbert " ſtood off to Sea, as well to have got our Ships " into a Line, as to have gained the Wind of the " Enemy; but found them ſo cautious in bearing " down, that we could never get an Opportunity " to do it; ſo continued battering upon a Stretch " till Five in the Afternoon, when the French Ad- " miral tacked from us, and ſtood farther into the " Bay. Admiral Herbert's Ship and ſome of the " reſt being diſabled in their Rigging, we could " not follow them; but we continued ſome Time " after before the Bay, and our Admiral gave them " a Gun at parting. In this Action, Captain George " Aylmer, of the Portland, with one Lieutenant and " Ninety four Seamen were killed, and about Two " hundred and fifty wounded, as appears by a Sur- " vey taken after the Fight; and our Ships received " little or no Damage except in their Sail and Rig- " ging. As for our Officers and Seamen this Right " muſt be done them, That they behaved them- " ſelves with all the Courage and Chearfulneſs that " could be expected from the braveſt Men: And on " on the other ſide, without leſſening the Enemy, " it may be ſaid, that they either wanted Courage " or Skill to make uſe of the Advantage of the " Place, the Wind, their Fireſhips, and their be- " ing at leaſt double our Force; for they had Eigh- " teen Ships, the leaſt whereof was as big as the " Elizabeth; and it ſo happen'd, that at the Time " of this Engagement, Admiral Herbert had with " him but Eight Third Rates, Ten Fourth Rates, " One Fifth Rate, and Two Tenders.

" We are now returning towards Scilly, where " the Rendezvous is appointed for our Fleet, which " having got together, we are in hopes to make a " ſecond Attempt upon the Enemy.

1689. 1 W. M.

King William's Care of the Fleet.

A Fortnight after, his Majeſty went to Portſmouth, both to haſten the Refitting of the Fleet, and to diſtribute Rewards to thoſe Officers and Soldiers who had diſtinguiſh'd themſelves in the late Engagement. Admiral Herbert was declar'd, and ſoon after made Earl of Torrington; Captain John Aſhby, Commander of the Defiance, and Captain Cloudeſly Shovel of the Edgar, received the Honour of Knighthood; and each Seaman a Gratuity of Ten Shillings, which amounted to the Sum of Twenty ſix thouſand Pounds, with a Bounty ſuper-added to the Relicts of thoſe who had loſt their Lives. Some report, that when the King receiv'd the News of this Sea-Fight, He ſaid, That ſuch an Action was neceſſary in the Beginning of a War, but it would be raſh in the Courſe of it.

The King's Appointment of Judges.

In the mean time, to provide for Peace at Home, his Majeſty took care to conſtitute ſuch Judges as were moſt eminent for Learning and Integrity, and who in the moſt difficult Times had bravely ſtood up in Defence of the Laws and Liberties of the People. Sir John Holt was made Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench; Sir William Dolben, Sir William Gregory, Giles Eyres, Eſq; Juſtices of the ſame Court: Sir Henry Pollexfen, Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas; Sir Robert Atkyns, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer; Sir Edward Nevil, Nicholas Letchmere, Eſq; John Turton, Eſq; Barons of the ſame; John Trenchard, Eſq; Chief Juſtice of Cheſter; Sir George Treby, Attorney-General, and John Sommers, Eſq; Sollicitor-General to his Majeſty. Juſt before this Advancement, on May 2. his Majeſty called by his Writ, Sir Henry Pollexfen, Kt. Nicholas Lechmere, Thomas Rokeby, John Thurbarne, William Wogan, William Powlet, Nathaniel Bond, Giles Eyres, Henry Hatſel, John Blencowe, Peyton Ventris, John Powel, Roger Belwood, John Tremain, John Trenchard, and John Turton, Eſqs; to take upon them the State and Degree of Serjeants at Law, who gave Rings with this ſeaſonable Motto, Veniendo Reſtituit Rem.

Difference between the Two Houſes about Taxing.

To return to Parliament. To defray the extraordinary Expences of the War, the Commons had paſs'd an Additional Poll-Bill, which being ſent up to the Lords for their Concurrence, their Lordſhips on May 9. addded a Clauſe to it, for Rating and Taxing the Peers by Commiſſioners of their own naming, appointing a Collector to receive the Rates and Taxes of the Peers, and freeing their Perſons from Impriſonment. To this Clauſe the Commons diſagreed. 1. Becauſe the Bill in queſtion taxed Commoners only. 2. Becauſe the Poll-Bill already paſſed, had ſufficiently provided for Taxing all the Nobility, to which the Lords had conſented. On the other hand, the Peers inſiſted on their Clauſe; alledging firſt, " That it is the common Courſe of " Parliaments to paſs Explanatory Acts, if any thing " has been omitted, or ill-expreſſed, in any other " Act paſſed in the ſame Seſſion; which was the " preſent Caſe. 2. That the Houſe of Commons " had in this Bill taken Care of the Serjeants-Inns, " and the Inns of Court and Chancery, That they " ſhould be rated by their own Members; there- " fore the Peers much more ought to be rated by " none but thoſe who are of their own Houſe. " 3. That the Houſe of Peers, out of their extra- " ordinary Zeal for the reducing of Ireland, (the " Poll-Bill coming up ſo late to 'em from the Houſe " of Commons, that they had not Time to deliberate " upon every Part of it) did make this Omiſſion, " which for that Reaſon only, ought not to turn to " their Prejudice, it being their undoubted Right, " which had been preſerved in all former Poll Bills, " and particularly in the laſt 29 Car. II. the Proviſo " in that Bill being conceiv'd in the ſame Form, " with the Clauſe now offer'd by their Lordſhips."

To

3

1689. 1 W. M.

To theſe Reaſons the Commons anſwer'd, That the admitting of their Lordſhips Amendment would in a manner repeal the Bill for the Tax, and therefore they muſt inſiſt on their Diſagreement to it. The Peers being as poſitive in adhering to their Clauſe, the Commons let drop the Additional Poll-Bill; and inſtead of that made and paſs'd a Bill for a Grant to their Majeſties of an Aid of Twelve Pence in the Pound for One Year.

On Saturday, May 11. His Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to (1.) An Act for the better ſecuring the Government, by diſarming Papiſts, and Reputed Papiſts. (2.) An Act that the Simoniacal Promotion of one Perſon may not prejudice another. (3.) An Act for rectifying a Miſtake in a certain Act of this preſent Parliament, for the amoving Papiſts from the Cities of London and Weſtminſter. (4.) An Act for the Naturalization of Henry de Naſſau, and others. (5.) An Act for Annulling and making Void the Attainder of Algernoon Sidney, Eſq;

Acts Paſs'd

Proceedings of the Commons.

The Commons had appointed a Committee to make an Eſtimate of Forfeitures, Ground-Rents, and Additional Exciſe, in order to raiſe further Aids to carry on the War. On May 15. Mr. Papillon reported, That as to Forfeitures, the Committee had peruſed the Liſts delivered in by the Members of the ſeveral Counties, and on Examination did find great Difficulties in the Matter; as, Whether ſome that were named, had acted in their Offices? Whether others were not inſolvent and unable to pay; whether others had not qualified themſelves; and whether there were not ſeveral omitted: But that on the Conſideration of the whole, it was their Opinion, that the Forfeitures in the ſeveral Counties might produce Three hundred forty eight thouſand Pounds, without including the Counties of Bedford, Lincoln, and Cardigan, there being no Liſt brought in of thoſe Counties: That as to the Additional Exciſe, it was the Opinion of the Committee, that Nine-Pence per Barrel might produce One hundred and twenty thouſand Pounds per Annum; but that as to the Ground-Rents, the Committee could not as yet find out Means to come to any probable way of making a right Eſtimate, but they were endeavouring to do it.

Lords Debates upon their Privileges.

A Committee of Privileges had been appointed in the Houſe of Peers; and upon Examination of the Caſe of the Earl of Devonſhire, they reported their Opinion thus: That the Proceedings againſt the ſaid Earl in the Court of King's-Bench in Eaſter-Term, in the Third Year of King James II. upon an Information of an Aſſault upon Mr. Culpeper, wherein his Lordſhip's Plea of Parliament was over ruled, and he was fin'd Thirty thouſand Pounds, and thereupon committed to the King's-Bench in Execution, was a great Violation of the Privilege of the Peers of England; and likewiſe that thoſe Judges who ſat in the ſaid Court when the ſaid Judgment was given, and the ſaid Commitment made, ſhould be required to attend the Bar of this Houſe, to anſwer for the great Offence which they had committed thereby. Hereupon the Lords order'd, That Sir Robert Wright, who upon the withdrawing of King James, had been ſent Priſoner to Newgate, Sir Richard Holloway, Mr. Bradbury, Mr. Petit, and Mr. Juſtice Powel, ſhould attend their Houſe on May 6. which they did accordingly; and being asked what they had to ſay for themſelves in this Matter, Mr. Juſtice Powel ſaid, It was his great Miſfortune, that he was miſguided by ſome Books which he look'd on as Authorities, and which he found by their Lordſhips Judgment were not ſo; and he humbly begg'd their Lordſhips and the Earl of Devonſhire's Pardon: That as to the Fine, he thought it exorbitant, and look'd upon Three thouſand Pounds Fine enough; and that his Silence in that Buſineſs was his greateſt Fault, for which he alſo begg'd Pardon. Sir Robert Wright alledg'd, That as to the Breach of Privilege, they were miſguided by Precedents; and as to the Fine, which was uſually ſet (according to Mens Quality and Eſtate) it came from the Puny-Judge Thirty thouſand Pounds, and ſo to him laſt, according to the Courſe of the Court; and if he was miſtaken, he begg'd Pardon, for he never had the leaſt Diſreſpect to the Earl of Devonſhire. Then Sir Richard Holloway ſaid, That he, as Second Judge, pronounced the Fine Thirty thouſand Pounds, which was ſet Nemine Contradicente: That if a leſſer Fine had been propoſed, he ſhould have accepted it; and begg'd my Lord Devonſhire's Pardon, and ſubmitted all to their Lordſhips. After this Examination, Notice was given to the King's Counſel, if they had any thing to offer, Whether a Peer of this Realm might by Law be committed in Execution for a Fine? The ſaid Counſel did accordingly attend, but offered nothing on that Point. Wherefore, upon full Conſideration of the ſeveral Caſes and Precedents, wherein the Privilege of the Peers have been concern'd, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal did, on May 15. declare and adjudge, That the Court of King's-Bench, in over-ruling the Earl of Devonſhire's Plea of Privilege of Parliament, it being within the uſual Time of Privilege, did thereby commit a manifeſt Breach of Privilege; and that the Fine of Thirty thouſand Pounds, impos'd by the Court of King's-Bench upon the ſaid Earl, was exceſſive and exorbitant, and againſt Magna Charta, the Common Right of the Subject, and the Law of the Land; and that no Peer of this Realm, at any time, ought to be committed for Non-Payment of a Fine to the King.

The late Judges queſtion'd.

Reſolution of the Lords.

On the 9th of May, the Commons had ſent up a Bill to the Lords, For Declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and Settling the Succeſſion of the Crown; which their Lordſhips having conſider'd, they thought the latter Part of it defective, no Mention being made in it of her Electoral Highneſs the Princeſs Sophia, Dutcheſs of Hanover; and thought fit, amongſt other Amendments, to add a Proviſo in her Highneſs's Favour. The Bill thus amended, was returned to the Commons on May 25. where a certain Party was ſo prevailing, that the Houſe diſagreed to their Lordſhip's Proviſo; ſome of them alledging, That a Parliament of England had never determin'd the Degrees of Succeſſion beyond Two or Three Perſons; That the mentioning the Houſe of Hanover wold give an Opportunity to Foreigners of intermeddling too far in the Affairs of this Nation: And Laſtly, That before the Crown ſhould devolve on the Princeſs Sophia, ſome of the Catholick Princes, who were neareſt in Blood, and who by this Clauſe were to be excluded, might turn Proteſtants. The King, who wiſh'd nothing more earneſtly than to ſee the Crown ſettled in the Proteſtant Line, us'd his utmoſt Endeavours to bring the Commons to a Compliance with the Lords; declaring in Council, That his Queen, and both the Prince and Princeſs of Denmark deſir'd it as well as himſelf. The Lords likewiſe warmly inſiſted on their Clauſe, alledging on July 15th, "That tho' "in the Inſtrument offered to their Majeſties, the "Limitation went no farther than to their Perſons; "yet in Law, which has reſpect to all ſucceeding "Ages, and that ſettles for ever the Liberties of the "Subject, they thought it reaſonable to carry the "Limitation of the Succeſſion of the Crown further than was neceſſary in that Inſtrument; in "which the Crown was offered to their Majeſties, "and that had no other View but of the Succeſſion "of their Poſterity: That they could ſee no Danger nor any ill Conſequence that might follow a "further Limitation, but very much to the contrary. For, 1. This ſecured the Nation effectually from any Danger of having any Papiſt "to reign in it at any Time hereafter; ſince of "ſuch a Number of Papiſts as ſtood next the "Crown in the Lineal Succeſſion, ſome might "be

Debates upon the Succeſſion

1689. 1 W. M.

" be prevailed on to make a Show of changing their " Religion, if they had a Proſpect of Succeeding to " the Crown upon it; and no Danger being ſo great " as the having One who is a pretended Proteſtant, " but in Truth a concealed Papiſt, to Reign over us; " the moſt effectual Way to Secure our Religion, " was to declare the Succeſſion in a Family that was " known to be Proteſtant. 2. It was the Intereſt of " England at preſent to do Right to that Great " Houſe, by limiting the Succeſſion according to the " Proviſo; for ſince this Limitation had been pro" poſed, if it ſhould be now laid aſide, it would " look like excluding of that Houſe, which might " provoke 'em to take Reſolutions, that might be " of great prejudice to the Nation, in this preſent " Conjuncture.

Theſe Reaſons having been deliver'd to the Commons, and ſeveral Conferences having paſſed between both Houſes, without any Effect; Heaven ſeem'd to Interpoſe, and to let fall theſe Differences, by bleſſing her Royal Highneſs (the Princeſs of Denmark) with a Son, Born on the 24th of July, and Chriſten'd on the 27th, by the Name of William; his Majeſty, and the Earl of Dorſet (on behalf of the King of Denmark) being Godfathers, and the Marchioneſs of Halifax Godmother. At the ſame time, his Majeſty conferr'd the Title of Duke of Gloceſter on the Royal Infant, whoſe auſpicious Birth contributed much to diſſipate the Fears of a Popiſh Succeſſor.

Acts Paſſed.

On Friday May 24th, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Lords, and with uſual Solemnity, gave the Royal Aſſent to, (1.) An Act for Exempting Their Majeſties Proteſtant Subjects Diſſenting from the Church of England, from the Penalties of certain Laws. (2.) An Act for Annulling and Making void the Attainder of Alicia Liſle, Widow. (3.) An Act for the Sale or Leaſing the Capital Meſſuage, late Henry Coventry*'s Eſq; in* Pickadilly. And on Tueſday May 28th, His Majeſty came again to the Houſe of Lords, and gave His Royal Aſſent to, (1.) An Act for Impowering their Majeſties to Commit, without Bail, ſuch Perſons as they ſhall find juſt Cauſe to Suſpect are Conſpiring againſt the Government. (2.) An Act for Building on Arundel Grounds.

Judgment againſt Oates not Revers'd.

On May the 31ſt, (a) the Houſe of Lords, having heard the Opinion of all the Judges, concerning the Illegality of Two Judgments given againſt Titus Oates, upon the Point of Perjury, for which he had brought his Writs of Error; the Houſe had this main Queſtion Propoſed, Whether the ſaid Two Judgments ſhould be Revers'd? Which being Reſolv'd in the Negative, and the ſaid Judgments Confirm'd, Thirteen Lords Enter'd their Diſſents upon theſe Reaſons: 1*ſt*, " Becauſe the King's-Bench, be" ing a Temporal Court, made it part of their Judg" ment, That Titus Oates, being a Clerk, ſhould, " for his Perjuries, be Diveſted of his Canonical " and Prieſtly Habit; which is a Matter wholly out " of their Power, belonging to the Eccleſiaſtical " Courts only. 2*dly*, Becauſe the ſaid Judgments " are Barbarous, Inhuman, and Unchriſtian; and " there is no Precedents to Warrant the Puniſhments " of Whipping, and Committing to Priſon for Life, " for the Crime of Perjury, which yet were but " Part of the Puniſhment inflicted upon him. 3*dly*, " Becauſe the particular Matters upon which the " Indictments were found, were the Points objected " againſt Oates's Teſtimony, in ſeveral of the Tryals, " which were allow'd to be Good and Credible " Witneſſes, though Teſtify'd againſt him by moſt " of the ſame Perſons who Witneſſed againſt him " upon theſe Indictments. 4*thly*, Becauſe this would " be an Encouragement, and an Allowance for gi" ving the like Cruel, Barbarous and Illegal Puniſh" ments hereafter, unleſs thoſe Judgments were Re" vers'd. 5*thly*, Becauſe Sir John Holt, Sir Henry " Pollexfen, the Lords-Chief-Juſtices, Sir Robert At" kyns (Chief Baron,) with Six Judges more, for " theſe and many other Reaſons, did, before that " Houſe, ſolemnly deliver their Opinions, and Una" nimouſly Declare, That the ſaid Judgments were " contrary to Law and Ancient Practice, and there" fore Erroneous, and ought to be Revers'd. And " laſtly, Becauſe it was contrary to the Declaration " of Rights, on the 12th of February laſt, wherein " it doth appear, That Exceſſive Bail ought not to be " requir'd, nor Exceſſive Fines impos'd, nor Cruel " and Unuſual Puniſhments inflicted.

The Judgment againſt Oates, at laſt Agreed by the Lords, to be Revers'd:

This Proteſtation work'd ſo powerfully in the Houſe of Lords, that the following Day, their Lordſhips, after Hearing Councel at the Bar, to Argue the Errors aſſign'd by Oates, did Order and Adjudge, That the Judgment given againſt the ſaid Oates, ſhould be Revers'd: And Leave was given for the bringing in a Bill for the Securing Perſons, hereafter, from the Prejudice which might come from his Teſtimony. A Bill of Reverſal paſs'd the Lower-Houſe: And upon a Second Reading in the Upper, there were ſeveral Amendments made, and a Proviſo inſerted, whereby it was Declar'd, That until the Matters for which Titus Oates was Committed for Perjury, were Heard and Determin'd in Parliament, the ſaid Oates ſhould not be receiv'd in any Court or Cauſe whatſoever, to be a Witneſs. Againſt which Proviſo and Amendments, a Proteſtation was Entered, by the Earls of Oxford, Suffolk, Monmouth, Montague, Macclesfield, Bedford, Stamford, and Suſſex, and by the Lords Newport, Berkley, Cornwallis, Paget, and Herbert. When the Bill was ſent back to the Commons, they Diſagreed to the Amendments. Upon which a memorable Conference began between the Two Houſes, on July the 29th, which occaſion'd great Heats, that might have riſen into greater Flames, if the Parliament had not been ſuddenly Adjourn'd; and all that Oates was able to obtain in this Seſſion, was only, on June the 6th, an Addreſs from the Lords, at the Commons Deſire, Requeſting his Majeſty,

(a) Upon the Vote of the Houſe of Lords for not Reverſing the Judgment againſt Titus Oates, Die Sabbati, May 25. 1689, no one Peer argued againſt the Belief of the Popiſh Plot, nor againſt the general Truth of what Mr. Oates had depoſed in it; but only againſt the particular Facts, or rather the Circumſtances of Time and Place in them. Beſides, he was known to be an ill Man, full of Pride and Paſſion, which created him many Enemies, and made his Cauſe ſuffer for his Perſon.

June the 11th, 1689, Reſolved, " That the Judgment given " againſt Mr. Samuel Johnſon, Clerk in the Kings-Bench, 1686, " was Illegal and Cruel: That the Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſion " was Illegal; and conſequently the Suſpenſion of the Biſhop " of London, and the Authority committed to the three Biſhops " of Durham, Rocheſter, and Peterborough, was Null and Ille" gal: That Mr. Johnſon's not being degraded by his own Di" oceſan, if he had deſerved it, was Illegal. That a Bill be " brought in to reverſe the Judgment, and to declare all the " Proceedings before the three Biſhops Null and Illegal: And " that an Addreſs be made to his Majeſty to recommend Mr. " Johnſon to ſome Eccleſiaſtical Preferment ſuitable to his Ser" vices and Sufferings.

" The Houſe preſented two Addreſſes to the King in behalf " of Mr. Johnſon; but tho' his Majeſty was inclinable enough " to have comply'd with their Requeſt, Mr. Johnſon could ne" ver obtain any Church Preferment. The King gave him " three Hundred Pounds a Year out of the Poſt-Office for his " and his Son's Life, beſides a thouſand Pounds in Money, and " likewiſe beſtow'd a Place of about a Hundred Pounds a Year " on his Son. And the Lord Biſhop of Durham gave Mr. " Johnſon and his Lawyer a Meeting, and made his Peace with " him to their mutual ſatisfaction. Memorials of Mr. Sam. " Johnſon, p. xv.

" I wonder, ſays Mr. Johnſon, in his Notes on the Paſtoral " Letter, that Doctor Burnet ſhould ſend to me in the time of " the firſt Parliament in this Reign, when my Illegal and bar" barous Uſage lay before them, not to name Perſons. I know " the Language of that Day was, Do not Smut; that is, let the " Oppreſſors of your Country and of You go off clear and " eſcape Scot-free. I gave an Engliſh Reply to that Meſſage, " Let him mind his Buſineſs, I will mind mine. His Bookſeller " Mr. Chiſwell, by whom I had the Meſſage, ſeem'd loth to " carry him that blunt Anſwer. Oh, ſays I, he has got the " Title of a Lord lately, I muſt qualify my Anſwer, Let him " pleaſe to mind his own Buſineſs, I will mind mine.

" That

1689. 1 W. M.

"That whereas Titus Oates, Clerk, had already re- "ceiv'd a ſevere Puniſhment for the Perjury where- "of he had been formerly Convicted, and ſome of "the ſaid Puniſhments wou'd ſtill be continued upon "him, unleſs they ſhould be Remitted by his Maje- "ſty; his Majeſty would be graciouſly pleas'd to "grant his Pardon to the ſaid Oates". The King readily Comply'd with the Lords Deſire; and more- over, aſſoon as, by Their Lordſhips Order, Oates was Diſcharg'd from his Confinement, his Majeſty receiv'd him into his Protection, and allow'd him a conſiderable Penſion; which occaſion'd various Re- flections.

The King's Pardon at Requeſt of the Lords.

The Lords conſider of the State of the Nation.

On June the 15th, the Lords having Conſider'd, in a Grand Committee, the State and Condition of the Kingdom, and what Means to uſe, for ſecuring the Nation againſt the Deſigns of the Papiſts, and the Power of the French-King, Reſolv'd upon an Ad- dreſs to be made to his Majeſty, "To put the Iſles "of Wight, Jerſey and Guernſey, Scilly, Dover- "Caſtle, and other Places which might be expos'd "to the Enemy, into a Poſture of Defence: That "Papiſts might be Diſarm'd, their Horſes taken "from them, and they not be permitted to Travel "above Five Miles from their Houſes, and that "Care be taken to prevent Proteſtants Concealing or "Owning Papiſts Horſes". At the ſame time their Lordſhips impower'd the Committee to look into the Miſcarriages in Ireland, and to ſend for Perſons and Papers for their Information. This Committee drew up an Addreſs, according to their Directions; and having acquainted the Houſe, that they could not come to a full diſcovery of the Miſcarriages of Ireland, without a Sight of the Minute-Books of the Committee for Iriſh-Affairs, to the 1ſt of May laſt; the Lords order'd thereupon that another Addreſs be preſented to the King, Deſiring that the ſaid Minute- Book might be communicated to the Committee. His Majeſty's Anſwer to this Addreſs on June the 18th was, That he would conſider of it. Which obſtructed the Proceedings of the Committee for near a Month, till the Commons, in the mean time Voted, That thoſe Perſons who had been the Occaſion of delaying the ſending Relief to Ireland, and had Adviſ'd the King to defer the giving leave for ſome Members of the Houſe of Lords to inſpect the Minute-Books of the Committee for Iriſh-Affairs, were Enemies to the King and Kingdom. And they were farther debating to Addreſs the King, for the removing the Mar- queſſes of Halifax and Carmarthen from His Council. Upon this his Majeſty on July the 16th, acquainted the Lords by the Earl of Nottingham, and the Com- mons by Mr. Comptroller, That he gave leave that a Committee of the Upper-Houſe might inſpect the Book according to their Deſire. This Book not be- ing ſufficient to diſcover the Miſcarriages of Ireland, the Lords on July the 29th, order'd the Earls of Shrewsbury and Nottingham to Addreſs his Majeſty, That he would be pleaſed to give order, That the Wit- neſſes in relation to Ireland, ſince his Majeſty's taking the Adminiſtration of the Government upon him, to the time the Council-Books began, might be commu- nicated to the Committee of their Houſe. Upon the two Earls delivering this Deſire of the Houſe his Majeſty anſwer'd, That there were no Minutes of the Iriſh-Affairs, in the Time mention'd by Their Lordſhips.

On Saturday June the 22d, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Lords, and ſending for the Commons, gave his Royal Aſſent to, (1.) An Act for a Grant to Their Majeſties of an Aid of Twelve-pence in the Pound for One Year, for the neceſſary Defence of their Realms. (2.) An Act for Enabling Lords Com- miſſioners for the Great-Seal, to execute the Office of Lord-Chancellor or Lord-Keeper. 3. An Act for Reviving two former Acts for the exporting of Lea- ther. 4. An Act for the Exportation of Beer, Ale, Cyder and Mum. 5. An Act to make good a Re- covery, ſuffered by the Earl of Peterborough and Lord Mordant. 6. An Act for Reverſing the At- tainder of Henry Corniſh, Eſq; late Alderman of the City of London. 7. An Act to enable Robert Penwarne to ſell Lands to pay his Brothers and Siſters Portions, and alſo to pay Debts. 8. An Act to enable Theodore Bathurſt to make a Jointure for his Wife, and to charge Moneys on part of his Eſtate in Yorkſhire. 9. An Act for the better aſſuring the Manor of Silton, and divers other Lands and Tene- ments in Silton in the County of Salop, unto Joſeph Soley, Gent. and his Heirs. 10. An Act for the Naturalization of Anne Aſtley, and others.

1689. 1 W. M.

Acts Paſ- ſed.

The Speaker, upon preſenting the Money-Bill, Ad- dreſs'd himſelf thus to his Majeſty:

The Speaker's Speech to the King.

"THE Commons in this preſent Parliament "Aſſembled, do with all Duty and Humility "acknowledge your Majeſty's great Care for the "protection of the People, in that your Majeſty "hath made it one of the firſt Acts of your Reign, "to Declare War againſt the French King, and to "ſeek Reparation for the Loſſes and Injuries your "Subjects have ſuſtained from that Nation.

"If we conſider the Balance of Trade between "the Two Kingdoms, we ſhall find the French "King, of late Years, continually loading the En- "gliſh Manufactures with New Duties and Impo- "ſitions; thereby prohibiting, in effect, all Com- "merce in his Dominions, but for Ready Money.

"If we conſider our Laws and Liberties, he hath "always aſſiſted and encouraged thoſe that have de- "ſigned their Subverſion. If we conſider our Re- "ligion; the Miſeries he hath inflicted upon his "own Subjects of the ſame Profeſſion, do ſuffici- "ently demonſtrate how great an Enemy he is to "Ours: And whoever look upon the preſent State "of Europe, and ſee the Injuries made upon your "Majeſty's Allies, the horrible Devaſtations of "their Countries, and the open ſupporting your "Majeſty's rebellious Subjects, muſt needs confeſs, "that the War which your Majeſty hath declared "againſt France, is at this time not only Juſt but "Neceſſary.

"To this War, as your Dutiful and Loyal Com- "mons did humbly offer their Advice and Aſſiſtance, "before your Majeſty entered into it; ſo they are "now come to preſent your Majeſty with a Supply "towards the carrying it on: Humbly deſiring your "Majeſty to reſt aſſured, that they ſhall never be "wanting to expoſe both their Lives and Eſtates in "defence of your Majeſty, againſt all your Enemies.

Attempts for Reſto- ring King James.

Several Letters from King James, ſome of them written with his own Hand, and directed to divers Perſons in London, and in the Countrey, having been intercepted at Leverpole, and ſent to Court, his Majeſty communicated the ſame to the Parliament: And becauſe (a), among other enigmatical Expreſſions, mention was made in them, of Contraband Goods ready

2

(b) The greateſt Offence was taken at thoſe Clergy-Men who had been very forward in calling for the Prince of Orange, and yet would not be now ſatisfied with the happy Revolution. Mr. Samuel Johnſon writes well in his Notes on the Paſtoral Letter. "—— The Clergy were ſome of them zealous for Tyranny, "becauſe it was a Tyranny on their ſide. —— But when "Judgment begun at the Houſe of God, as Dr. Sherlock preach'd "upon the Biſhops being ſent to the Tower, then their Note "was quite alter'd, King James had forfeited, and ought to be "Depoſed". With a great deal more to that purpoſe, &c. "Afterwards, when they grew jealous of this Revolution, and "could not tell what to make of it, having miſs'd two Hits, "both of having King James, and afterwards of having his "intended Deputy the Prince of Orange in their Hands; and "wanted a third Hit; then the Words were theſe: Well! will "not the Convention ſend for the King back again? If they will "not we have Forty Thouſand Men to fetch him back. Dr. Sher- "lock beſt knows where thoſe Forty Thouſand Men now are; "but ready to be ſhipt-off, in order to be run into ſuch Places where they might not be ſeiz'd by Cuſtom-Houſe-Officers; which ſufficiently diſcover'd the Deſign of an Invaſion; Mr. Hambden, who at that Time happen'd to be Chairmain of the Committee of the whole Houſe, repreſented the imminent Danger that threaten'd the Kingdom, and what Difficulties his Majeſty lay under, to prevent it, for want of Money, and therefore mov'd for a farther Supply. This Motion, from a Privy-Councellor, and at a Time when the Houſe was going to adjourn, was thought very unpolitick and prepoſterous; and was ſo far from being back'd by any Member, that it rather occaſion'd ſome ſharp Reflections: For Mr. Hambden, among the Dangers to which the Nation was expos'd, having nam'd that of falling into the Hands of the French and Iriſh, Mr. S——— mov'd, to add the Dutch: And Mr. Garraway, though one of the well-affected, ſaid, "That they had given "Money enough for that Year; and if they had "thought there had been Occaſion for more, they "wou'd have prevented the King's Demands: That "it was not the Want of Money, but the ill Conduct "of thoſe that had the Management of Affairs, that "caus'd the Difficulties the Government lay under: "That the Miſcarriages, in not aſſiſting the Prote-"ſtants of Ireland, had been of ſo ill Conſequence, "that, if not ſpeedily remedy'd, the Houſe wou'd "be oblig'd to take Notice of them." When Mr. Garraway had done ſpeaking, Mr. Howe ſtood up and ſaid, "Their preſent Dangers, proceeded from "their not addreſſing the King to remove his Evil-"Counſellors;" as he himſelf had mov'd, not long before. However, the Houſe having taken the intercepted Letters into Conſideration, reſolv'd to addreſs his Majeſty, to deſire him to ſecure all Papiſts of Note, and to diſarm and take away the Horſes from the reſt: And, as a Conſequence of this Affair, a Bill was brought in, for attainting ſeveral Perſons in Rebellion againſt their Majeſties.

1689. 1 W. M.

The King communicated the ſame Letters and Papers to the City of London. Upon which the Lord-Mayor, attended with the Sheriffs, on June 22d, preſented to his Majeſty this good Addreſs.

Good Addreſs from the City of London.

"WE your Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal "Subjects, the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen and "Commons of the City of London, in Common "Council aſſembled, being deeply ſenſible of your "Majeſty's great Care, and tender Regard for our "Religion, Laws, and Liberties, and your particu-"lar Favour and Condeſcenſion to this City, do "render your Majeſty our moſt humble Thanks for "vouchſafing to communicate to us the ſeveral Let-"ters, and other Papers, which have been now "read in this Common Council, maniſeſting the "Progreſs of your Enemies, in your Kingdom of "Ireland, and alſo diſcovering a Conſpiracy within "this Kingdom of England, to aid and abet your "ſaid Enemies, in their Deſign to invade and bring "the War upon this Kingdom.

"And we moſt humbly beg leave to aſſure your "Majeſty, That we will, as far as our Power ex-"tends, oppoſe our ſelves to, and ſuppreſs all De-"ſigns of that Nature, and will ſearch after, diſarm, "ſeize, ſecure and bring to Juſtice, all Perſons "concern'd therein, or contributing thereto: And "we are unanimouſly, firmly, and unalterably re-"ſolv'd and determin'd to ſtand by, defend and "maintain your Majeſty, and your Government, "with the uttermoſt hazard and Expence of our Lives "and Eſtates, againſt all Perſons whatſoever, that "ſhall conſpire or attempt any thing againſt the "ſame.

1689. 1 W. M.

Inſolence of the French Papiſts.

About the ſame Time, the French Papiſts, taking Advantage of the Countenance given to the Proteſtants of that Nation, became very inſolent, publickly traducing the preſent Government, and diſperſing ſeveral Sorts of Libels and ſeditious Papers. The Houſe of Lords being inform'd of their audacious Behaviour, and ſuſpecting they might proceed to more dangerous Attempts, order'd, on June 14th, "That an Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, de-"ſiring that he would iſſue out his Proclamation, "that no French Papiſts might come into Whitehall, "St. James's, or St. James's-Park; and that all "French Papiſts, that were not Houſholders or "Merchants, ſhou'd leave the Kingdom within Six "Weeks, and all others within Six Months, under "the Pain of being proſecuted as Alien Enemies, "according to Law." The Lords of the White Staves having preſented this Addreſs, his Majeſty anſwer'd, He wou'd ſpeedily give Order therein: But a ſhort Time after, on June 25th, the Lord-Chamberlain acquainted the Houſe, "That his Ma-"jeſty finding, upon farther Conſideration, That "to baniſh all French Papiſts, might be diſadvan-"tageous to the Nation, they trading to other "Countries which were his Majeſty's Allies; and "beſides, his Majeſty having promiſed to protect "them, whilſt they liv'd peaceably here, thought "fit to ſuſpend the Iſſuing ſuch a Proclamation, "until he had ask'd their Lordſhips further Opinon "in that Matter." Upon Conſideration of this Meſſage, the Peers thought fit to leave that Affair to his Majeſty's Diſcretion: Many of them having heard the King often declare, That he came over to deliver the Proteſtants, and not to perſecute the Romaniſts. And indeed, not only Foreigners, but Engliſh Papiſts, were us'd with ſo much Clemency, that they too were really Gainers by the Revolution: Not only in being exempted from thoſe publick Appearances which, in the late Reign, had been very troubleſome and expenſive to them; but ev'n in a Protection of their Perſons and Eſtates from the Fury of the People, to which they had, in great Part, been ſacrific'd, if King William wou'd but have conniv'd at it.

Publiſhers of the Declaration of King James.

Whilſt the Lords were buſy about the French Papiſts, the Commons were drawing up Articles of High-Treaſon, againſt Sir Adam Blare, Captain Henry Vaughan, Captain Frederick Mole, and John Eliot, and Robert Gray, Doctors in Phyſick, for publiſhing and diſperſing the Declaration of King James, which he publiſh'd in Ireland, May 8th, and directed, To all his Loving Subjects in the Kingdom of England. When theſe Articles were ſent up to the Lords, and read by them, a Committee was appointed to inſpect Precedents of Impeachments, which much retarded the Proſecution of the Priſoners. On July 4th, Captain Vaughan, Captain Mole, and Dr. Elliot, were brought to the Bar of the Houſe of Lords; and after the Articles of Impeachment had been read to 'em, they deſir'd to have a Copy of their Accuſation, and both Time and Council allow'd them to make their Defence: Which being granted, they were remanded to Newgate. On July 12th, they deliver'd their Anſwers to the Articles exhibited againſt them, wherein they pleaded their Innocence, and ſubmitted themſelves, for their Trial, to their Lordſhips Judgment. Three Days after, Sir Adam Blare and Dr. Gray, who had fled, and, by a Proclamation, had been apprehend-

"but I believe King James would be very glad of half the "Number. To proceed in my Story, The very Man that had "aſſerted that King James had forfeited, and ought to be de-"poſed long before he was, or even before the Prince of "Orange was expected, began with Change of Intereſt to have "Change of Thoughts, and then he could not allow King "James to be lawfully ſet aſide, nor wou'd ſwear to this pre-"ſent Government; and his forfeited Place at the Temple was "ſupply'd by I know who. At laſt, after he had ſtuck, as "himſelf ſays, a great while, for ſtick he did, he was happily "relieved by a lucky Coincidence of Biſhop Overall's C[illegible] "and the Victory of the Boyne. And then he ſettled the Go-"vernment upon its own Settlement, calling in Providence, &c.

ed,

1689. 1 W. M. ed, were examin'd by the Speaker of the Lords, and then committed to the Priſon of the Gate-houſe. On July 22d, they put in the like Anſwers; and the ſeveral Copies being communicated to the Commons, no further Progreſs was made in this Buſineſs, during this Seſſion.

The ſlow Proceedings of the Parliament, and the Heats and Animoſities which divided both Houſes, ſo much obſtructed the Progreſs of the King's Deſigns, and the common Intereſt, that, on Friday June 28th, his Majeſty thought fit to come to the Houſe of Peers, and to make this Speech to Both Houſes:

My Lords and Gentlemen:

The King's Speech to the Two Houſes.

"THE Time of the Year being ſo far advanc'd, and there being ſeveral Acts yet to be paſs'd for the Safety and Settlement of the Nation, I deſire you wou'd expedite them as ſoon as you can; it being neceſſary there ſhould ſhortly be a Receſs, both that I may be at Liberty to purſue the Buſineſs of Ireland with all poſſible Vigor, and that the Members of Both Houſes may repair to their ſeveral Counties, to ſecure the Peace, and to put the Militia into ſome better Poſture.

"I am very ſenſible of the Zeal and good Affection which you, Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons, have ſhew'd to the Publick, in giving thoſe Supplies you have done already: And I do not doubt, but, from the ſame Inducements, you will be ready to give more, as the Occaſions require, which, I muſt let you know, will be ſooner than perhaps you may expect; becauſe the neceſſary Expence of this Year, will much exceed the Sums you have provided for it. And that you may make the truer Judgment in that Matter, I am very willing you ſhou'd ſee how all the Moneys have been hitherto laid out; and to that End, I have commanded thoſe Accompts to be ſpeedily brought to you, by which you will ſee how very little of the Revenue has been apply'd to any other Uſe than that of the Navy and Land Forces.

"I muſt remind you, of making an effectual and timely Proviſion of the Money for the States of Holland; and I doubt not, but you will take Care to ſee a fitting Revenue ſettled for my ſelf.

My Lords and Gentlemen:

"I will add no more, but to recommend earneſtly to you, to avoid all Occaſions of Diſpute or Delay, at a Time that requires Union and Vigor in your Counſels, upon which the Preſervation of all that is dear to us, doth ſo much depend: And I do promiſe, That nothing ſhall ever be wanting on my Part, which may contribute towards it.

Both Houſes return'd his Majeſty Thanks, for his gracious Speech, and did a little the more expedite ſome Bills that lay before 'em: For, on Thurſday July 25th, his Majeſty came again to the Houſe of Peers, and gave his Royal Aſſent to,

Acts paſs'd.

(1.) An Act for an additional Duty of Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors. (2.) An Act to regulate the Adminiſtration of the Oaths requir'd to be taken by Commiſſion or Warrant Officers, employ'd in their Majeſty's Service by Land, by virtue of an Act made this preſent Seſſion of Parliament, entitul'd, [An Act for the Abrogating the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, and appointing other Oaths.] (3.) An Act for taking away the Court holden before the Preſident and Council of the Marches of Wales. (4.) An Act to veſt in the Two Univerſities, the Preſentations of Benefices belonging to Papiſts. (5.) An Act for erecting a Court of Conſcience at New-Caſtle upon Tine. (6.) An Act for erecting Courts of Conſcience in the Cities of Briſtol and Glouceſter, and the Liberties thereof. (7.) An Act for the better regulating the Salt-Works in Droitwich. (8.) An Act to enable Thomas Chattel to ſell Part of his Eſtate, for Payment of his Debts, and making Proviſion for his Wiſe and Children.

Matters of Diſpute between the Two Houſes.

But ſeveral Things remained for Matter of Diſpute and Difference between the Two Houſes in this warm Seaſon of the Year. A Bill for the charging and collecting the Duties upon Coffee, Tea and Chocolate at the Cuſtom-Houſe, being ſent up by the Commons to the Lords, their Lordſhips on July 24. added a Clauſe to it, For a Draw-back on the Exportation of the ſaid Commodities, with an Alteration of the Date from the 24th of July to the 25th of Auguſt. Theſe Amendments were diſagreed to by the Commons, who in a Conference alledg'd, "That they had always taken it for their undoubted Privilege, (of which they have been ever jealous and tender) That in all Aids given to the King by the Commons, the Rate or Tax ought not to be any Ways altered by the Lords: That the Amendments made by the Lords, being in Point of Time, the Commons hoped their Lordſhips would not at this Time renew a Queſtion concerning the Method of granting Aids, which had formerly, in Inſtances of this Nature, occaſion'd great Debates, and which might now beget many Conferences, ſpend much Time, and end in Inconveniences: That this Amendment propoſed by the Lords made the Bill incoherent; for both Houſes having agreed, that the Forfeitures ſhould commence from the 20th of July, it would look ſtrange that the Forfeitures ſhould be given before the Duty was made payable: That Ships were then arriving daily with the Commodities mention'd in the Bill, which would be a Loſs to the King, by putting the Commencement of the Duty ſo far off. And that as to the Proviſo their Lordſhips had ſent to the Commons, the Commons did diſagree to it, and for that did refer to their firſt Reaſons; for the Proviſo being an Alteration and Leſſening of the Grant made by the Commons, they hop'd for theſe Reaſons, their Lordſhips would agree with them, and not revive old Diſputes." On the other Hand, the Lords inſiſted on their Proviſo, and ſaid, "They were much ſurpriz'd at the Aſſertion of the Commons, that in all Aids given to the King by the Commons, the Rate or Tax ought not to be altered by the Lords, ſince they conceiv'd it had always been their undoubted Right, in Caſe of any Aids given to the King, to leſſen the Rate or Tax granted by the Commons, whereof ſeveral Precedents might be given, which for the Preſent they were willing to forbear, that they might not revive old Diſputes. But that as to the Proviſo now offered by the Lords, their Lordſhips were of Opinion, this general Point was not the Caſe now in Difference, it being neither an Alteration nor Leſſening of the Duty laid upon theſe Commodities: For what was propoſed to be drawn back on the Exportation of them, could not be ſaid to leſſen the Rates impoſed upon them: That it did indeed take away ſo much from the King's Income, but added much more to the Benefit of Trade, of which the Lords conceived they were equal and competent Judges, and therefore thought they had ſufficient Grounds to inſiſt on the Proviſo." This Diſpute put a Stop to the Bill in this Seſſion, but it paſſed at laſt with their Lordſhips Clauſe about the Draw-back, on the 16th of January following.

Commons Reſolution for an Addreſs.

On Auguſt 3. the Commons in a Committee of the whole Houſe, having conſider'd the State of the Nation, came at laſt to this Reſolution, That an Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty upon theſe Heads: Firſt, That there had been Delays in the 1689. 1 W. M. Succours of Ireland. Secondly, That there were not ſufficient Preparations to tranſport the Forces to Ireland. And Thirdly, That ſeveral Ships had been taken for want of Guards and Convoys to preſerve them. At the ſame Time the Queſtion was put, Whether it ſhould be repreſented to his Majeſty, that it was thought inconvenient to his Majeſty's Affairs, that the Marquis of Halifax was in his Majeſty's Council? But this was decently carry'd in the Negative. On Aug. 12. Sir Thomas Littleton made a Report from the Committee, who examin'd the Matter of Miſcarriages relating to Ireland and Londonderry; upon which it was reſolved, That an Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, that Colonel Lundee be ſent over to Londonderry to be tried there for the Treaſons laid to his Charge.

Bill for the Woollen Manufacture. On Auguſt 13. the Commons ſent up a Bill to the Lords, for the enjoining the wearing the Woolen Manufacture of this Kingdom at certain Times in the Year. Upon which the Bailiffs, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants of the Company of Silk-Weavers of London and Canterbury, preſented a Petition to their Lordſhips in a tumultuous Manner, praying to be heard, before the ſaid Bill ſhould be paſſed into a Law. The Houſe order'd their Speaker to tell the Petitioners, That the Lords did not then think fit to give an Anſwer, becauſe they obſerv'd there was an unuſual Manner of Application of Men, who ought to be better directed by them who were Bailiffs, Wardens and Aſſiſtants of the Company: That the Lords did firſt require, That thoſe Crowds ſhould go home; and when that was done, neither they, nor other People of this Nation needed to doubt, but that their Lordſhips would do Juſtice, and hear the Objections of the Parties concern'd in this or any other Bill, that ſhould come before 'em. And to prevent the Return of ſuch unruly Multitudes who were ſuppos'd to be ſet on by the Enemies of the Government, the Lords deſir'd his Majeſty to command ſome of the Horſe and Foot Guards to be aiding to the Civil Powers; and order'd the Governor of the Tower to take care to prevent any unlawful Concourſe of People in thoſe Hamlets; the Lord-Mayor of London to have a ſufficient Number of the Trained Bands in Readineſs to hinder the paſſing of any extraordinary Numbers of People through the City; and the Deputy-Lieutenants and Juſtices of the Peace of the County of Middleſex, to provide for the Security of the City, and Liberties of Weſtminſter. The Weavers ſeeing theſe Preparations, remain'd quiet in their Houſes; whereupon the Lords on Aug. 17. diſcharg'd the Train'd-Bands which had been poſted in the Palace-Yard. However, upon the ſecond Reading of the Bill for wearing the Woolen Manufactures, it was on Auguſt 19. unanimouſly rejected by their Lordſhips.

Riotous Aſſembly of Silk-Weavers.

Bill of Attainder. The Houſe of Commons having paſſed the Bill for attainting ſeveral Perſons in Rebellion againſt their Majeſties, and ſent it up to the Lords for their Concurrence; the Committee whom their Lordſhips appointed to examine the ſame, reported their Opinion on July 30. That the Commons might be deſir'd by a Conference to give a Liſt to the Houſe of Lords of the Perſons that gave Evidence to the Commons, againſt the ſeveral Perſons deſign'd in the Bill to be attainted: That the Lords might be fully ſatisfied by Evidence, viva Voce, to attaint the ſeveral Perſons, (as they ſuppos'd the Commons were;) for that if the Lords ſhould by themſelves enquire of ſuch Evidence, they might fail of hearing all the Evidence the Houſe of Commons had had. The Lords having agreed to this Motion of the Committee, a Conference was deſir'd and manag'd betwixt Both Houſes, at which the Commons gave a Liſt of the Witneſſes, that depos'd at their Bar againſt the Perſons mention'd in the Bill of Attainder. Theſe Witneſſes were William Watts, Matthew Gun, Bazil Purefoy, and William Dalton, whoſe Evidence not ſatisfying the Lords, the Bill lay neglected for ſome Days, till the Commons having preſſed their Lordſhips by Two Meſſages to give Expedition to it; the Houſe on Aug. 19. agreed with the Committee in leaving out Thomas Lord Howard, the Earl of Dover, the Lord Hunſdon, Sir Roger Strickland, Sir Edward Herbert, Colonel Hugh Southerland, and Sir William Jennings, becauſe there did not appear ſufficient Evidence againſt 'em. But after many Alterations the Bill it ſelf was dropt. 1689. 1 W. M.

Bill for paying the States of Holland. In Compliance to the King's repeated Deſires of giving Satisfaction to the States of Holland, the Commons did at laſt paſs a Bill for appropriating certain Duties for paying the States-General of the United Provinces the Charges of his Majeſty's Expedition into this Kingdom. Which being read in the Houſe of Lords, Aug. 13. a Motion was made, that ſeveral Members of this Houſe, and divers Servants of King Charles II. had Securities appropriated out of ſeveral Duties which paſſed away from them by this Bill, and therefore it was fit they ſhould be heard by their Council. This Motion being receiv'd and Council heard, their Lordſhips gave their Conſent to the Bill without any Amendment; but at the ſame Time, for an Argument of their preferring the King's Intereſt before their own, they agreeed to preſent the following Addreſs to his Majeſty on Aug. 16.

Addreſs of the Lords. "THE Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, upon their Concurrence "with the Houſe of Commons, in a Bill entitul'd, "An Act for appropriating certain Duties for Paying the States General, &c. and for other Uſes, "think it incumbent on them in Honour and Juſtice, to lay before your Majeſty, how ſeveral of "their own Body found themſelves aggrieved thereby, in Relation to ſome Debts owing to them, "on the Account of having been Servants to King "Charles II. and that their Claim to their Arrears "on that Score was weaken'd and prejudic'd by this "Bill, which cuts them off from all Pretences "whatſoever, except ſuch as can be comprehended "within the Sums of Sixty Thouſand Pounds; "which is very far ſhort of anſwering their juſt "Demands, and which they conceive to have been "better and more amply provided for, in an Act "paſs'd in the firſt Year of the Reign of the late "King James, Entitul'd, An Act for granting to his Majeſty an Impoſition on all Tobacco and Sugar, imported between the 24*th Day of* June, "1685, and the 24*th of* June, 1693. Yet being "more concerned for the Welfare of your Majeſty's Affairs than their own particular Benefit, "and being ſenſible of the Importance it may be "to your Majeſty, as well as to the Good of "Chriſtendom in this Conjuncture, that the Debt "owing to the States-General of the United Provinces, upon account of aſſiſting your Majeſty "at your coming into this Nation, for our Deliverance from Popery and Arbitrary Power, ſhould "be provided for to their Satisfaction, they have "willingly deſiſted from giving any Obſtruction to "the paſſing of the ſaid Bill, and have entirely "ſubmitted their Share of their Recompence for "their long and faithful Services to their deceaſed "Royal Maſter, to the Conveniency of your Majeſties preſent Circumſtances.

"Whereupon this Houſe hath thought fit to preſent to your Majeſty, this moſt reſpectful and "dutiful Acquieſcence of the Peers herein concerned, to your Majeſty's Juſtice and Goodneſs; "and to beſeech your Majeſty that you would be "pleaſed to take their Condition, and the Manner "of their preſent Reſignation of it, into your gracious Conſideration and Royal Protection, wherein this Houſe doth promiſe themſelves that the "particular Peers concern'd will find an entire "Security.

"And

1689. 1 W. M.

"And whereas there is a Clauſe in this Bill "which provides, That Sixty Thouſand Pounds "therein mentioned for the late King Charles's Servants, ſhould be applied to ſuch only as were his "Servants at the Time of his Deceaſe: It is the "humble Deſire and Recommendation of this "Houſe to your Majeſty, that this Reſtraint may "bring no Prejudice to the juſt and equitable Pretenſions of ſuch of the Servants of his ſaid late "Majeſty, as are Members of this Houſe, or of "others in their Circumſtances; but that your Majeſty will be graciouſly pleaſed to look upon them, "as entitl'd to an equal Share of your Favour and "Conſideration, which others, their Fellow-Servants, have generally had, or may pretend to, by "Virtue of this or the former Act of Parliament "before-mention'd.

The Marquis of Hallifax, Speaker of the Houſe of Lords, having waited on the King with this Addreſs, his Majeſty receiv'd the ſame very kindly; and as for thoſe particular Peers that were concern'd in the Bill, he ſaid, He was ſenſible of their Behaviour toward him on this Occaſion, and would not forget it.

On Tueſday Auguſt 20. His Majeſty went to the Houſe of Lords, and the Commons being ſent for up, the Speaker preſented the Bill for paying the States-General, and made this Speech to his Majeſty, acknowledging the great Services done to this Nation by the Dutch, and at the ſame Time very artfully reminding the Dutch of their former Obligations to the Engliſh.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty;

Speaker's Speech to the King.

"THE Commons in this preſent Parliament "aſſembled, taking into Conſideration the "great Aſſiſtance that was given by the States of "the United-Provinces to your Majeſty, in your "glorious Deſign of reſtoring theſe Kingdoms to "their ancient Rights and Liberties, and how for "that End they entruſted their Army and Fleet to "your Majeſty's Diſpoſal, at a Time when they "had War declar'd, and an Invaſion threatned by "the French King, meerly to divert them: They "do here humbly preſent your Majeſty with a "Bill, appointing certain Duties of Exciſe and Cuſtoms, for the raiſing Six Hundred Thouſand "Pounds, which they deſire may be applied by "your Majeſty, for the Satisfaction of the Charges which have been expended by the States in "this Expedition.

"It is little more than an Age ſince the Illuſtrious Prince of Orange, your Majeſty's Great "Grandfather, whoſe Name will ever be Famous "for his Love to his Countrey, did, by the Aſſiſtance of the Engliſh, redeem thoſe Provinces "from the like Oppreſſions; which ſhews how inſeparable the Intereſt of thoſe Two Nations are. "And ſince it was the Policy of thoſe that laboured "our Deſtruction to divide us, it ought to be the "Endeavour of all true Lovers of their Countrey, "to keep us firmly united in order to our Preſervation.

"The Commons have likewiſe conſider'd of the "great Arrears, that were left due by King Charles "the Second to his Servants, and have therefore "made a Proviſion of Sixty Thouſand Pounds for "them, which they humbly deſire your Majeſty "would pleaſe to diſtribute among them, in ſuch "Proportions as your Majeſty in your princely Wiſdom ſhall think moſt fit.

"And having proceeded thus far in the weighty "Affairs depending before them, they now become "humble Suitors to your Majeſty for a Receſs, that "thereby they may have the Opportunity of repairing into their ſeveral Counties, and promoting your Majeſty's Service: And what remains at "preſent for want of Time to diſpatch, they "doubt not but that they ſhall be able to perfect it "at their next Meeting, and, as they hope, to the "entire Satisfaction of your Majeſty, and your "whole Kingdom.

1 W. M. 1689.

After this Speech, the King gave his Royal Aſſent to the ſaid Bills; being, 1. An Act for appropriating certain Duties, for paying the States-General of the United-Provinces their Charges, for his Majeſty's Expedition into this Kingdom, and for other Uſes. (2.) An Act for prohibiting all Trade and Commerce with France. (3.) An Act for the better preventing the Exportation of Wool, and encouraging the Woolen Manufacture of this Kingdom. (4.) An additional Act for the appointing Commiſſioners, for the executing an Act of this preſent Parliament; entitl'd, An Act for a Grant to their Majeſties of an Aid of 12d in the Pound, for One Year, for the neceſſary Defence of their Realms. (5.) An Act for the Relief of the Proteſtant Iriſh Clergy. (6.) An Act to repeal the Statute made in the Fifth Year of King Henry IV. againſt multiplying Gold and Silver. (7.) An Act for explaining part of an Act made in the firſt Year of King James I. concerning Tann'd Leather. (8.) An Act to enable Truſtees to grant Leaſes of the Eſtate of Richard Hele, Eſq;. (9.) An Act for enabling of Hannah Sherley, Widow, and Mary Battilley, alias Sherley, her Daughter, to ſettle and diſpoſe of certain Lands and Tenements in the Counties of Middleſex and Eſſex. And then the Lord Privy-Seal, by the King's Command, acquainted the Two Houſes, "That it was his Majeſty's "Pleaſure, that they ſhould adjourn till the 20th "of the next Month; and that his Majeſty intended they ſhould farther adjourn till Winter, unleſs "there were ſome emergent Occaſion for their Sitting; of which he would give them timely Notice by Proclamation." After which, the Two Houſes adjourned accordingly till the 20th of September next.

Acts paſs'd.

Two Houſes adjourn.

During this Seſſion, ſeveral Honours and Preferments were beſtow'd, beſides thoſe already mention'd. On April 18. His Majeſty was pleas'd to conſtitute the Earl of Shrewsbury (Principal Secretary of State) Lord Lieutenant of the County of Worceſter. On April 19. His Majeſty was pleaſed to appoint the Honourable George Booth, Eſq; Sir Richard Temple, Bar. and Knight of the Bath, Sir John Werden, Bar. Sir Robert Southwell, Sir Robert Clayton, Sir Patience Ward, and Thomas Pelham, Eſq; to be Commiſſioners for Managing of the Cuſtoms; and alſo Sir Henry Vane, Sir Henry Aſhurſt, Sir Humphry Edwin, Thomas Frankland, Eſq; Francis Parry, Eſq; John Danvers, Eſq; and John Wilcocks, Jun. Eſq; to be Commiſſioners for Managing of the Exciſe. On April 23. the King created Thomas Earl of Denbigh Lord Preſident of his Council, and Marquis of Carmarthen. On May 16. His Majeſty was pleaſed to create Frederick Count de Schombergh, (General of His Majeſty's Forces, Maſter-General of the Ordnance, and one of the Lords of the Privy-Council,) a Baron, Earl, Marquis and Duke of this Kingdom, by the Name and Title of Baron Teys, Earl of Brentford, Marquis of Harwich, and Duke of Schombergh. On June 1. Arthur Herbert, Eſq; Admiral of Their Majeſties Fleet, was created Earl of Torrington, and Baron Herbert of Torbay in the County of Devon. On June 4. John Aſhburnham, Eſq; was created Baron Aſhburnham, of Aſhburnham in the County of Suſſex. On the ſame Day, His Majeſty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Edward Moſly, of Hulme in the County of Lancaſter, Eſq;. His Majeſty (by Writ) call'd to the Houſe of Lords the Right Honourable Charles Lord Durſley, and Robert

Honours and Preferments.

1689. 1 W. M. Lord Viſcount Liſle; who on July 11. were introduced into the Lords Houſe, and placed upon the Barons Bench. On July 16. His Majeſty appointed Robert Searle, Eſq; to be his Conſul at Leghorn; and ſoon after, Martin Weſcomb, Eſq; his Conſul in the Ports of Cadiz and St. Mary's, within the Kingdom of Spain. On Auguſt 6. James Earl of Drumlanzick, and Charles Earl of Selkirk, were ſworn Gentlemen of His Majeſty's Bed-Chamber in Ordinary. About the Middle of Auguſt, His Majeſty was pleas'd to conſtitute Nathaniel Loddington, Eſq; to be his Conſul at Tripoli in Barbary; and Thomas Chamberlain, Eſq; reſiding at Meſſina, to be Conſul for the Kingdom of Sicily, and Iſland of Maltha.

Revolution in Scotland.

To take a ſhort View of the Revolution in Scotland: The Convention of that Kingdom met on the 14th of March, and after Publick Prayers perform'd by the Biſhop of Edinburgh, (wherein he pray'd for the Safety and Reſtoration of K. James) they began with the Choice of a Preſident. The Marquis of Athol was propos'd by the (a) Biſhops, and the Party which adher'd to the old King; but the Duke of Hamilton was ſet up in Competition by the Friends of King William, and carry'd it by near Forty Voices. They came preſently to take into Conſideration the Caſtle of Edinburgh, which was yet commanded by the Duke of Gordon, a Papiſt, whom they requir'd to put that Caſtle into their Hands: The Duke deſir'd an Indemnity for what was paſt, and Security for the future; upon which the Convention ſent the Earls of Tweedale and Lothian to him, with a Pardon in writing for himſelf and the Gariſon: But after ſeveral Meſſages and Evaſions, the Duke at laſt declar'd, That he would not ſurrender the Caſtle. Whereupon the Convention ſent up the Heralds at Arms, to charge him immediately to ſubmit; which he perſiſting to refuſe, the Heralds went to the Market-Croſs, and ſolemnly proclaim'd him a Traytor and Rebel.

On March 16. one Crane, an Engliſhman, who was ſaid to be a Servant to King James's Queen, deliver'd a Letter from that Monarch to the Convention; and at the ſame Time the Preſident acquainted the Aſſembly, That the Lord Levin was arriv'd Expreſs with another Letter from King William. Thereupon it was debated, which of the ſaid Two Letters ſhould be read firſt: The Majority carry'd it for King William; whoſe Letter was read with General Applauſe in Manner following.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

K. William's Letter to the Scotch Convention.

" WE are very ſenſible of the Kindneſs and " Concern which your Nation has evinc'd " towards Us, and our Undertakings for the Preſervation of your Religion and Liberty, which " were in ſuch imminent Danger. Neither can " We in the leaſt doubt of your Confidence in Us, " after having ſeen how far ſo many of your Nobility and Gentry have own'd our Declaration; " countenancing and concurring with Us in our Endeavours, and deſiring Us that We will take upon Us the Adminiſtration of Affairs Civil and " Military, and to call a Meeting of the Eſtates, " for Securing the Proteſtant Religion, and the Ancient Laws and Liberties of your Kingdom; which " accordingly We have done.

1689. 1 W. M.

" Now it lies in you to enter into ſuch Conſultations, as are moſt probable to ſettle you on ſure " and laſting Foundations; which, We hope, you " will ſet about with all convenient Speed, with regard to the Publick Good, and the General Intereſt and Inclinations of the People: That after ſo " much Trouble and great Suffering, they may live " happily and in Peace; and that you may lay " aſide all Animoſities and Factions, that may hinder ſo good a Work.

" We are glad to find ſo many of the Nobility " and Gentry (when here in London) were ſo much " inclin'd to an Union of both Kingdoms; and that " they did look upon it as one of the beſt Means " for procuring the Happineſs of both Nations, and " ſettling of a laſting Peace among them: Which " will be advantageous to both; they living in the " ſame Iſland, having the ſame Language, and the " ſame common Intereſt of Religion and Liberty; " eſpecially at this Juncture, when the Enemies of " both are ſo reſtleſs, endeavouring to make and " increaſe Jealouſies and Diviſions, which they will " be ready to improve to their own Advantage, and " the Ruin of Britain. We being of the ſame Opinion as to the Uſefulneſs of this Union, and " having nothing ſo much before our Eyes as the " Glory of GOD, eſtabliſhing the Reform'd Religion, and the Peace and Happineſs of theſe Nations, are reſolv'd to uſe our utmoſt Endeavour, " in advancing every Thing that may conduce to " the effectuating the ſame. So we bid you heartily Farewel.

From Our Court at Hampton-Court, the 7th Day of March, 1688.

After the Reading of this Letter, a Committee was nam'd to draw up an Anſwer to it in the moſt thankful and dutiful Manner; and then, before they would admit of the Letter from King James to be open'd, they paſs'd an Act for Aſſerting and Maintaining the Lawfulneſs of that Convention; and declaring, That they would not diſſolve, but continue ſitting, until the Government, Religion, Laws, Liberties and Properties, were ſettled and eſtabliſhed. After this, King James's Letter was read, that promis'd Pardon to all ſuch as ſhould return to their Duty before the laſt Day of March; and threatning to puniſh with the utmoſt Rigor of his Laws, all ſuch as ſhould ſtand out in Rebellion againſt Him, or his Authority. This menacing Letter was the more ungrateful, it being counterſigned by the Earl of Melfort, (a Perſon odious to all the Presbyterians of Scotland, who made up the Major Part of the Convention:) So that inſtead of ſerving the Intereſt of King James, it rather provoked that Aſſembly to be the more unanimous and forward in ſettling the Government after the Example of England. The Meſſenger that brought the ſaid Letter was firſt ſecur'd, and then (as if not thought worth detaining) he was diſmiſs'd with a Paſs, inſtead of an Anſwer.

K. James's Letter read.

The next Caſe of the Convention, was, to put that Kingdom into a Poſture of Defence; for which Purpoſe, they order'd a Proclamation to be publiſh'd, requiring all Perſons (from the Age of Sixteen to Sixty) to be in a Readineſs to take Arms;

(a) Yet a Part of the Epiſcopal Clergy ſent an Offer of their Services to King William, who could not pay them the Protection they expected from the prevailing Party of the Presbyterians; tho' He was very inclinable to it. The Perſon who brought up their Addreſs, gives this Account of it. "An Humble Petition ſent from the Clergy of Scotland, by the Hands " of Dr. Scot, Dean of Glaſgow, to the Prince of Orange, in " February 168$\frac{8}{9}$. to which a very Gracious Anſwer was given, " viz. That all Things relating to the Clergy ſhould be " brought back to the State in which they were in the preceding Month of October; and that if any of them had " been expell'd by Force, or driven away by Fear, they ſhould " be reſtored to their Cures and Benefices; and to that Purpoſe a Proclamation was iſſued out; but the Conſequence of " it was no other than a Second Rabbling." Printed Paper of Dr. Scot.

The Truth of it ſeems to be, That there being no Seated Liturgy in Scotland, nor any mighty Difference between Epiſcopal and Presbyterian Communion, but only Covenant and Name of Prelacy; the Epiſcopal Men had loſt themſelves among the People, not as a Religious Society, but as a Political Party, as reputed Creatures of the Court, and Perſecutors of their Brethren.

and

1689. 1 W. M. and raiſ'd Eight Hundred Men, under the Command of the Earl of Leven, to guard the City of Edinburgh. On the 19th of March, they paſs'd an Act, approving the Addreſs of the Scotch Nobility and Gentry in London, who had thankfully acknowledged the great Benefit done to their Nation by the Prince of Orange, and had deſired His Highneſs to accept the Adminiſtration of the Government of that Kingdom. The ſame Day, upon reading of ſome Letters from ſeveral Lords and Gentlemen in Ireland, craving Aſſiſtance of the Convention; they order'd 2000 Muskets, and 20 Barrels of Powder to be immediately ſent 'em: That a further Proviſion of Arms and Ammunition ſhould be bought for 'em in Holland; and that Two ſmall Frigots ſhould cruiſe between Scotland and Ireland, for mutual Intelligence.

Whilſt the Convention was thus providing for their own Security, and the Relief of their Proteſtant Brethren in Ireland, Viſcount Dundee held a private Conference with the Duke of Gordon, at the Poſtern-Gate of the Caſtle: Upon which the Convention order'd Dundee to appear before them; but he retir'd with Thirty or Forty Horſe to Linlithgo. Thereupon a Party of Horſe was ſent after him; and the Convention apprehending he might ſurprize the Caſtle of Stirling, they immediately diſpatch'd away the Governor thereof, the Earl of Marr, to ſecure that important Fortreſs.

In the mean Time, the Duke of Gordon amus'd the Convention, by beating a Parley, and deſiring to Capitulate; till on March 22. he ſent a Meſſage to the Magiſtrates of the City, to acquaint them, "That he had receiv'd Advices from Ireland of "King James's being landed there; and that to "expreſs his Joy upon that News, he ſhould be ob"lig'd to fire the Cannon round the Caſtle; but bid "them not be alarm'd at it, ſince he deſign'd no "Hurt to the City." The Convention being inform'd of this Meſſage, order'd the Caſtle to be block'd up; and on March 23. an Act was paſs'd and proclaim'd, That none be ſuffer'd to Travel with Horſes or Arms, who have not Paſſes, or cannot at leaſt give a good Account of themſelves. On the ſame Day, the Anſwer of the Convention to the King of England's Letter, was ſign'd in a Meeting of the whole Houſe (very few excepted) and was order'd to be ſent away immediately by my Lord Roſs, who took Poſt for London, and preſented it to his Majeſty in this Form.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty,

Anſwer to K. William's Letter.

"AS Religion, Liberty and Law, are the deepeſt "Concerns of Mankind; ſo the deep Senſe "of the extreme Hazards theſe had been expos'd to, "muſt produce ſuitable Returns from the Kingdom "of Scotland to his Majeſty; whom in all Sincerity "and Gratitude they acknowledg'd to be, under "GOD, their great and ſeaſonable Deliverer. "And they heartily congratulated, that as GOD "had honour'd his Majeſty to be an Eminent Inſtrument for the Preſervation of his Truth; ſo "he had rewarded his Undertaking with Succeſs, "in the conſiderable Progreſs which he had made "in delivering them, and in preſerving to them the "Proteſtant Religion. They return'd their moſt "dutiful Thanks to his Majeſty, for his accepting "the Adminiſtration of Publick Affairs, and con"vening the Eſtates of that Kingdom. That they "ſhould with all convenient Diligence take his gra"cious Letter into their Conſideration; hoping "ſhortly, by the Bleſſing of GOD, to fall upon "ſuch Reſolutions, as might be acceptable to his "Majeſty, ſecure the Proteſtant Religion, and eſta"bliſh the Government, Laws and Liberties of that "Kingdom, upon Solid Foundations, moſt agree"able to the General Good and Inclinations of the "People. That as to the Propoſal of the Union, "they doubted not but his Majeſty would ſo diſpoſe "that Matter, that there might be an equal Readi"neſs in the Kingdom of England to accompliſh it, "as one of the beſt Means for ſecuring the Happi"neſs of theſe Nations, and ſettling a laſting Peace. "That they had hitherto, and ſtill ſhould endea"vour to avoid Animoſities or Prejudices, which "might diſturb their Councils. That as they de"ſign'd the Publick Good, ſo it might be done with "the General Concurrence and Approbation of the "Nation: And that in the mean Time, they de"ſir'd the Continuance of his Majeſty's Care and "Protection towards them in all their Concerns, "whereof the kind Expreſſions in his Gracious Let"ter had given them full Aſſurance.

Forces in Scotland.

The Forces King William had ſent into Scotland, under Major-General Mackay, (conſiſting of Four Regiments of Foot, and One of Dragoons) being arriv'd there, the Convention, on March 25. order'd them to be quarter'd in Leith, and the Suburbs of Edinburgh: And on March 28. they gave a Commiſſion to that General, to be Commander in Chief of ſuch Militia, or other Forces, as ſhould be raiſ'd for the Safety of that Kingdom in the preſent Juncture. On March 26. a Committee was nam'd for ſettling the Government, compos'd of Eight Lords, Eight Knights, and Eight Burgeſſes; the Biſhops being left out, as moſt profeſs'dly diſaffected to King William. This Committee made their Report, That the Throne was Vacant; and the whole Houſe (except Twelve) approv'd of what the Committee had done, and paſs'd the following Act. The Eſtates of the Kingdom of Scotland find and declare, That King James VII. being a profeſs'd Papiſt, did aſſume the Royal Power, and acted as King, without ever taking the Oath requir'd by Law; and hath, by the Advice of Evil and Wicked Counſellors, invaded the Fundamental Conſtitution of the Kingdom, and alter'd it from a Legal and Limited Monarchy, to an Arbitrary Deſpotick Power; and hath govern'd the ſame to the Subverſion of the Proteſtant Religion, and Violation of the Laws and Liberties of the Nation; Inverting all the Ends of Government, whereby he hath forfeited the Right of the Crown, and the Throne is become Vacant.

Immediately after this, the Eſtates voted and order'd, That the ſame Committee ſhould bring in an Act, for ſettling the Crown upon their Majeſties William and Mary, King and Queen of England; and to conſiſter the Terms of the Deſtination of the Heirs of the Crown: And likewiſe to prepare and bring in an Inſtrument of Government to be offer'd with the Crown, for redreſſing the Grievances and ſecuring the Liberties of the People. According to this Vote the Committee drew up an Act, which was read and agreed unto by the Convention; by which their Majeſties were proclaim'd King and Queen of Scotland, on April 11. the very ſame Day they were crown'd in England. This Act recited the Methods by which King James had invaded the Conſtitution of that Kingdom. 1. "By erecting "Publick Schools and Societies of the Jeſuits; "and not only allowing Maſſes to be publickly ſaid, "but alſo converting Proteſtant Churches and Cha"pels into Publick Maſs-Houſes, contrary to the "expreſs Laws againſt ſaying and hearing Maſs. "2. By allowing Popiſh Books to be printed, and "diſpers'd by a Patent to a Popiſh Printer, deſign"ing him Printer to his Majeſty's Houſhold, Col"lege and Chapel, contrary to Law. 3. By taking "the Children of Proteſtant Noblemen and Gentle"men, ſending them abroad to be bred Papiſts, "and beſtowing Penſions upon Prieſts to pervert "Proteſtants from their Religion, by Offers of "Places and Preferments. 4. By diſcharging Pro"teſtants, at the ſame time he employ'd Papiſts in "Places of greateſt Truſt, both Civil and Mili"tary, &c. and entruſting the Forts and Maga"zines

K. William and Q. Mary proclaim'd in Scotland.

1689.
1 W. M.

"zines in their Hands. 5. By impoſing Oaths contrary to Law. 6. By exacting Money without Conſent of Parliament or Convention of Eſtates. 7. By levying and keeping up a Standing Army in time of Peace, without Conſent of Parliament, and maintaining them upon Free Quarter. 8. By employing the Officers of the Army as Judges throughout the Kingdom; by whom the Subjects were put to Death, without legal Trial, Jury or Record. 9. By impoſing exorbitant Fines, to the Value of the Parties Eſtates; exacting extravagant Bail, and diſpoſing of Fines and Forfeitures before any Proceſs or Conviction. 10. By impriſoning Perſons without expreſſing the Reaſon, and delaying to bring them to Trial. 11. By cauſing ſeveral Perſons to be proſecuted, and their Eſtates to be forfeited, upon Stretches of old and forfeited Laws; upon weak and frivolous Pretences, and upon lame and defective Proofs; as particularly the late Earl of Argyle, to the Scandal of the Juſtice of the Nation. 12. By ſubverting the Rights of the Royal Boroughs, the Third Eſtate of Parliament; impoſing upon them not only Magiſtrates, but alſo the whole Town-Council and Clerks, contrary to their Liberties and expreſs Charters, without any Pretence of Sentence, Surrender or Conſent: So that the Commiſſioners to Parliaments being choſen by the Magiſtrates and Councils, the King might, in effect, as well nominate the Eſtate of Parliament. Beſides, that many of the Magiſtrates, by him put in, were Papiſts; and the Boroughs were forced to pay Money for the Letters impoſing thoſe illegal Magiſtrates upon them. 13. By ſending Letters to the chief Courts of Juſtice, not only ordering the Judges to ſtop ſine Die, but alſo commanding how to proceed in Caſes depending before them, contrary to the expreſs Laws; and by changing the Nature of the Judges Patents ad Vitam or Culpam, into a Commiſſion de Beneplacito, to diſpoſe them to a Compliance with arbitrary Courſes, and turning them out of their Offices, if they refuſ'd to comply. 14. By granting Perſonal Protections for Civil Debts, contrary to Law. (a)

Their Claim of Rights and Liberties.

Then in the ſame Act they claim'd and declar'd theſe their Ancient Rights and Liberties. "1. That by the Law of Scotland, no Papiſt could be King or Queen of the Realm, nor bear any Office therein; neither could any Proteſtant Succeſſor exerciſe the Regal Power, till they had ſworn the Coronation-Oath. 2. That all Proclamations aſſerting an Abſolute Power, to null and diſable Laws, in order to erecting Schools and Colleges for Jeſuits, converting Proteſtant Churches and Chapels into Maſs-Houſes, and the allowing Maſs to be ſaid; and that the allowing Popiſh Books to be printed and diſpers'd, was contrary to Law. 3. That the taking the Children of Noblemen, Gentlemen, and others, and keeping them abroad, to be bred Papiſts; the making Funds and Donations to Popiſh Schools and Colleges, the beſtowing Penſions on Prieſts, and the ſeducing Proteſtants from their Religion, by Offers of Places and Preferments, was contrary to Law. 4. That the diſarming of Proteſtants, and employing Papiſts in the greateſt Places of Truſt, both Civil and Military, &c. was contrary to Law. 5. That the impoſing an Oath without Authority of Parliament, was contrary to Law. 6. That the raiſing of Money without Conſent of Parliament, or Convention, was contrary to Law. 7. That employing the Officers of the Army as Judges, &c. was contrary to Law. 8. That the impoſing extraordinary Fines, &c. was contrary to Law. 9. That the impriſoning of Perſons, without expreſſing the Reaſons, &c. was the ſame. 10. That the proſecuting, and ſeizing Mens Eſtates, as forfeited, upon old Stretches of old and obſolete Laws, &c. was contrary to Law. 11. That the nominating and impoſing Magiſtrates, &c. upon Boroughs, contrary to their expreſs Charter, was the ſame. 12. That the ſending Letters to the Courts of Juſtice, ordaining the Judges to deſiſt from determining of Cauſes depending before them, &c. was contrary to Law. 13. That the granting of Perſonal Protections was the ſame. 14. That the forcing the Subjects to depoſe againſt themſelves in capital Cauſes, however the Puniſhments were reſtricted, was contrary to Law. 15. That the uſing Torture, without Evidence, or in ordinary Crimes, was contrary to Law. 16. That the ſending of an Army in a Warlike manner, into any Part of the Kingdom, in time of Peace, and exacting Locality and Free Quarters, was the ſame. 17. That charging the Subjects with Law-Boroughs, at the King's Inſtance, and impoſing Bonds, without Authority of Parliament, and the ſuſpending Advocates, for not appearing when Bonds were offer'd, was contrary to Law. 18. That the putting Gariſons into private Mens Houſes, in time of Peace, without Authority of Parliament, was illegal. 19. That the Opinions of the Lords of the Seſſions, in the two Caſes following, was illegal, (viz.) That the concerting the Demand of the Supply of a Fore-faulted Perſon, altho' not given, was Treaſon; That Perſons refuſing to diſcover their private Thoughts, in relation to Points of Treaſon, or other Mens Actions, are guilty of Treaſon. 20. That the fining Huſbands, for their Wives withdrawing from Church, was illegal. 21. That Prelacy, and Superiority of an Office in the Church above Presbyters, is and has been a great and inſupportable Burthen to this Nation, and contrary to the Inclinations of the Generality of the People ever ſince the Reformation, they having reform'd Popery by Presbytery; and therefore ought to be aboliſh'd. 22. That it is the Right and Privilege of the Subject to proteſt for Remedy of Law to the King and Parliament, againſt Sentences pronounc'd by the Lords of the Seſſions, provided the ſame do not ſtop Executions of the ſaid Sentences. 23. That it is the Right of the Subject to petition the King; and that all Proſecutions and Impriſonments for ſuch Petitioning, were contrary to Law.

"Therefore, the ſaid Eſtates of the Kingdom of Scotland had reſolv'd, That WILLIAM and MARY, King and Queen of England, be declared King and Queen of Scotland, to hold the Crown and Royal Dignity of the ſaid Kingdom, to them the ſaid King and Queen, during their Lives, and the longeſt Liver of them; and that the ſole and full Exerciſe of the Power be only in, and exerciſed by him the ſaid King, in the Names of the ſaid King and Queen, during their Lives; and after their Deceaſe, that the ſaid Crown and Royal Dignity be to the Heirs of the Body of the ſaid Queen: Which failing, to the Princeſs Anne of Denmark, and the Heirs of Her Body. Which alſo failing, to the Heirs of the Body of the ſaid William King of England.

By the ſame Act, they abrogated the Oath of Allegiance, and ſubſtituted this ſhort Form of Fidelity:

Oath of Fidelity.

I A. B. do ſincerely Promiſe and Swear, That I will be faithful, and bear True Allegiance to Their Maje-ties

(a) Every one of theſe particular Inſtances of Male-Adminiſtration was Matter of Fact and Complaint in England, as well as Scotland.

ſties, King William and Queen Mary. So help me God.

Then theſe Commiſſioners were ſent to their Majeſties, the Earl of Argyle, Sir James Montgomery, Sir John Dalrymple, who had a publick Reception on May 11. in the Banquetting-Houſe at Whitehall, their Majeſties being placed on the Throne, under a a rich Canopy.

They firſt preſented a Letter from the Eſtates to his Majeſty; then the Inſtrument of Government; and then a Paper containing the Grievances which they deſir'd might be redreſs'd: (a) And laſtly, an Addreſs to his Majeſty for turning the Meeting of the ſaid Eſtates into a Parliament. All which being ſign'd by his Grace the Duke of Hamilton, as Preſident of the Meeting, and read to their Majeſties, the King return'd to the Commiſſioners the following Anſwer.

The King's Anſwer to the Parliament of Scotland.

" WHen I engaged in this Undertaking, I had " particular Regard and Conſideration for " Scotland; and therefore I did emit a Declaration " in relation to that, as well as to this Kingdom, " which I intend to make good and effectual to " them. I take it very kindly, that Scotland hath " expreſs'd ſo much Confidence in, and Affection " to me: They ſhall find me willing to aſſiſt them " in every thing that concerns the Weal and Intereſt " of that Kingdom, by making what Laws ſhall be " neceſſary for the Security of their Religion, Pro- " perty and Liberty, and to eaſe them of what may " be juſtly grievous to them.

Coronation Oath.

After which, the Coronation-Oath was tender'd to Their Majeſties, which the Earl of Argyle ſpoke word by word diſtinctly, and the King and Queen repeated it after him, holding their Right Hands up, after the Manner of taking Oaths in Scotland. The Commiſſioners, by Authority of the Eſtates, repreſented to His Majeſty, " That the Clauſe of the " Oath in relation to the Rooting out of Hereticks, " did not import the Deſtroying of Hereticks; and " that by the Law of Scotland, no Man was to be " perſecuted for his private Opinion; and even " obſtinate and convicted Hereticks were only to " be denounc'd Rebels, or Outlaw'd, whereby their " Moveable Eſtates are confiſcated." Hence His Majeſty, at the repeating that Clauſe in the Oath, did declare, That He did not mean by theſe Words, that He was under any Obligation to become a Perſecutor. To which the Commiſſioners made Anſwer, That neither the Meaning of the Oath, nor the Law of Scotland did import it. Then the King reply'd, That He took the Oath in that Senſe; and call'd the Commiſſioners, and others there preſent, to be Witneſſes of his ſo doing.

Upon this Settlement, the Siege of Edinburgh-Caſtle was ſo vigorouſly carry'd on, that the Duke of Gordon, ſeeing his Ammunition ſpent, his Houſe wholly ruin'd by the Bombs, great Breaches made in the Walls by the Cannon, the Beſiegers advanc'd to the Ditch, and deſpairing of Relief, on June the 13th he deliver'd up that important Fortreſs to Sir John Laniere, and ſurrender'd himſelf and his whole Gariſon entirely to King William's Diſcretion, on Condition of having their Lives, Liberties and Fortunes ſecured.

Duke of Gordon delivers up the Caſtle of Edinburgh.

Army under Dundee.

Nothing was now wanting to reduce Scotland to the Obedience of King William and Queen Mary, but the ſuppreſſing of Dundee, who was got into the Highlands, and had got together the Figure of an Army. Several Skirmiſhes happen'd between him and ſome Detachments of their Majeſties Forces, commanded by Lieutenant-General Mackay, Sir Tho. Levingſton, Colonel of Dragoons, Colonel Ramſey, and Colonel Balfour, who were join'd by the Lairds of Strithnaver, Grant, and Whitoſch, and their Followers; in which being worſted, he betook himſelf to the Hills again. His Party was almoſt dwindled to nothing, when having receiv'd a Reinforcement of 300 Iriſh, headed by (b) Colonel Canon, he rais'd the Highland Clans, and with a Body of 6000 Foot, and 100 Horſe, advanc'd to meet Mackay, who was marching towards him with a Body of 4000 Foot, and four Troops of Horſe and Dragoons. Theſe two ſmall Armies engag'd two Miles on this ſide the Blair of Athol, and fought with great Obſtinacy from Five in the Afternoon till Night. And tho' Mackay loſt the Field, and was forc'd to retire in ſome Diſorder towards Sterling with the broken Remains of his Army; yet the Death of Dundee, who was ſlain in the Battle, did more than compenſate for the other's Loſs; conſidering he was the ſole and whole Dependance of that Party, who afterwards were worſted every where, and particularly once and again at St. John's-Town. In the laſt of theſe Conflicts, one ſingle Regiment of the Earl of Angus, under the Command of Lieutenant Colonel Cleeland, gave ſo entire a Defeat to their whole Force, which conſiſted of near 4000 Men, that they never after could appear in any conſiderable Body; and therefore many of the chiefeſt among them ſubmitted to their Majeſty's Clemency.

General Dundee ſlain.

State of Ireland.

In Ireland the Earl of Tyrconnel, with great Zeal for his Unfortunate Maſter, had ſecur'd the moſt important Places of that Kingdom, and not only Diſarm'd and Pillag'd moſt of the Proteſtants, but alſo impriſon'd the chiefeſt of 'em; and then ſent an earneſt Invitation to (c) King James, to come over (a) The Act for aboliſhing Prelacy in Scotland was paſs'd July 22. 1689. declaring it to have been a great and inſupportable Grievance to this Nation, and contrary to the Inclinations of the Generality of the People.

See Plain-Dealing: Being a Moderate and General Review of the Scots Prelatical Clergy's Proceedings in the latter Reigns. With a Vindication of the preſent Proceedings in Church-Affairs there. Licens'd Sept. 11. 1689. London, 1689. 4*to*.

See the late Proceedings and Votes of the Parliament of Scotland, contain'd in an Addreſs deliver'd to the King, ſign'd by the Plurality of the Members thereof, ſtated and vindicated. Which Addreſs was deliver'd to King William at Hampton-Court, the 15th of Octob. 1689. by the Earl of Annandale, the Lord Roſſe, and Sir James Montgomery.— The Publiſher inſerted at large the ſeveral conteſted Votes of Parliament, to which King William had refuſed his Aſſent; and offers to demonſtrate the Legality, Reaſonableneſs and Neceſſity of them,— Complaining of the Miniſters of State, whom the King had receiv'd into his Councils and Service; alledging, that He had made choice of thoſe very Men who had been the Inſtruments of King James's Miſeries and Ruin, by adviſing him to thoſe Courſes that had robb'd him of the Hearts of his Subjects.

(b) Colonel Canon met with a worſe Fate than Death in the Field. He retir'd into France, and having ſerv'd King James ſo faithfully, every Body expected he would be rewarded with ſome great Command upon his Arrival at St. Germains. But he poſitively refuſing to abandon the little Religion he had, was reduc'd to the ſcandalous Allowance of Half a Crown a Day, while Papiſts who had ſerv'd him were preferr'd to good Poſts. This unhappy Gentleman finding himſelf thus neglected, took it ſo much to Heart, that he died of Grief and Want, having taken the Sacrament from the Hands of Dr. Granville, two Days before his Death; but a Prieſt who would not ſtir from him when he was dying, thruſt a Water down his Throat when he was ſpeechleſs; and to have the Merit of his Converſion, gave out he died a Catholick, which got him the Favour of Burial, or his Corps had been expos'd, as was the Earl of Dumferling's.

That Earl of Dumferling had left his noble Family and large Fortune to follow King James in his Exile; yet happening to quarrel at St. Germains with one Captain Brown a Papiſt, about a Trifle, the Captain was encourag'd and countenanc'd in it by the Court, and made Commander of a Company of Scotch Reformed Officers in Catalonia, while my Lord liv'd in Contempt purely on account of his Religion; which ill Treatment broke his Heart, and he ſunk under the Weight of his hard Fate at St. Germains. He was denied Chriſtian Burial after he was dead, and his Friends were forc'd to hide his Corps in a Chamber, till an Opportunity was found of digging a Hole in the Fields in the Night, in which they were glad to depoſit it, for fear of worſe uſuage. See the Secret Hiſt. of Europe. T. 11. p. 250.

(c) See the Anſwer of Leopold Emperor, to the Complaint and Requeſt of Aſſiſtance from King James. " We have received with Forces and Money from France. Upon this Meſſage Tyrconnel ſent over Baron Rice a Roman-Catholick, and the Lord Mountjoy a Proteſtant: The latter wou'd not conſent to go, but upon Tyrconnel's granting him theſe Four Things: 1ſt, That no more New Commiſſions ſhould be given out, or New Men raiſed: 2dly, That no more of the Army ſhou'd be ſent into the North: 3dly, That None ſhou'd be queſtion'd for what had paſs'd: And 4thly, That no Soldiers ſhou'd be Quarter'd in Private Houſes. Theſe Ambaſſadors ſet out from Dublin about the 10th of January: Aſſoon as they were gone, Tyrconnel broke all the Conditions he had made with the Lord Mountjoy; and, with greater Perfidiouſneſs, his Lordſhip, immediately after his Arrival at Paris, was committed Priſoner to the Baſtile, on Account of the great Zeal he had lately ſhewed for the Proteſtant Intereſt. Soon after, King James took ſhipping at Breſt with about 1500 Men, commanded by Experienced French, Scotch, and Iriſh Officers, and ſafely landed at Kingſale on the 12th of March. The next Day, his Majeſty with a numerous Attendance went to Cork, where he was received by the Earl of Tyrconnel, who in Glory executed one of the Magiſtrates, for declaring for the Prince of Orange. On March the 24th King James entered into the City of Dublin in a Triumphant Manner; and next Morning, having called a Council, turned out the Earl of Granard Chairman, Judge Keating, &c. and in their Rooms placed Count De Avaux the French Ambaſſador, (a) Dr. Cartwright Biſhop of Cheſter, and Lieutenant-Colonel Dorrington, on whom the King had beſtowed the Royal Regiment, in the room of the Duke of Ormond. Then his Majeſty made the Earl of Tyrconnel a Duke, and ſummoned a Parliament to meet at Dublin on the 7th of May.

1 W. M. 1689.

Proteſtants in the North of Ireland Declare for King William.

The Engliſh Proteſtants had been ſo very hardly us'd in the Provinces of Munſter, Lemſter, and Connaught, that moſt of them retired towards their Brethren in Ulſter, who declaring for King William and Queen Mary, had ſeiz'd on the Towns of Kilmore, Colerain, Inniskilling, and London-Derry. And yet the Engliſh that remained were ſo little inclined to truſt to the Promiſes of King James, that they rather choſe to ſtand upon their Defence; and gathering into one Body, made ſhew of oppoſing the King's Forces in the open Field: But being routed by Lieutenant-General Hamilton, at a Place called Drummore, their Reſiſtance and Defeat gave a juſt Occaſion to his Majeſty and Tyrconnel, to uſe thoſe in their Power with far greater Severity, and to March towards the North with an Army of about 20000 Men, to force the reſt out of their Strong-Holds.

1689. 1 W. M.

King William ſends Forces to them:

King William being ſenſible of the deſperate Condition of the Iriſh Proteſtants, had already ſent Captain James Hamilton, with Ammunition and Arms to London-Derry, and named Colonel Lundee, on whoſe Fidelity he depended, Governor of that City; but it ſoon appeared how much his Majeſty was miſtaken in him.

On April 13th, Mr. George Walker, Rector of Donahmore in the County of Tyrone, who had rais'd a Regiment for Defence of the poor Proteſtants, receiving Intelligence, that King James having taken Colrain and Kilmore, after a ſtout Reſiſtance, was drawing his Forces towards Derry, haſten'd thither to give Lundee an Account of it. The Governor at firſt believ'd it only a falſe Alarm, but was ſoon convinced of the contrary. The Enemy being advanced to Cledyford, Mr. Walker returned to Lyfford, where he joined Colonel Crafton, and afterwards according to Lundee's Directions, took his Poſt at the Long-Cawſey, which he vigorouſly maintained a whole Night; but being overpowered by the Enemy's Numbers, he retreated to London Derry, where he vainly endeavoured to perſwade Lundee to take the Field.

They retreat to London-Derry.

On April the 17th, Dundee thought fit to call a Council of War, and order'd that Colonel Cuningham and Colonel Richards, who (Two Days before) came into the River Loughfoyle with their Regiments from England, ſhould be Members of it. Accordingly they met, and (with other Gentlemen either equally diſaffected, or at beſt as little acquainted with the Condition of the Town, and the Reſolution of the People) they at laſt concluded, That there was no Proviſion in the Town of Londonderry for the preſent Gariſon, and the Two Regiments aboard, for above a Week, or Ten Days at moſt; and it appearing that the Place was not tenable againſt a well-appointed Army, therefore it was not convenient (for His Majeſty's Service) to Land the

The Town diſpos'd to Surrender.

"ceived your Majeſty's Letter Dated from St. Germains the "6th of Febr. laſt by the Earl of Carlinford. —— We do aſ-"ſure your Majeſty, that as ſoon as we heard of this ſevere "Turn of Affairs, we were moved at it, not only with the "common Senſe of Humanity, but with much deeper Impreſ-"ſions ſuitable to the ſincere Affection which we have always "born to You; and we were heartily ſorry, that at laſt that "was come to paſs, which (tho' we hoped for better Things) "yet our own ſad Thoughts had ſuggeſted to us would enſue. "If your Majeſty had rather given credit to the Friendly Re-"monſtrances that were made You by our late Envoy the "Count de Kauwitz in our Name, than the deceitful Inſinu-"ations of the French, whoſe chief Aim was by fomenting "continual Diviſions between You and your People, to gain "thereby an Opportunity to inſult the more ſecurely over the "reſt of Chriſtendom; and if your Majeſty had put a Stop by "Force and Authority, to their many Infractions of the Peace, "which by the Treaty at Nimeguen You are made Guarantee, "&c. Dat. Vienna, 9th Apr. 1689. Sufficiently taxing the Male-Adminiſtration of King James, and implying that he fell a Sacrifice to his Bigotry in Religion, and his Partiality to the French.

(a) This unhappy Man with broken Heart and Fortunes died ſoon after at Dublin on the 15th of April, 1689, and was buried upon Charity, collected among the Proteſtants. A Man of a brave Spirit to have ſerved a juſt Maſter in a good Cauſe. It may be a Warning to Church-of-England Divines never to become the Tools of Popery, nor ſo much as to tamper for the Favour of Popiſh Princes. The Three Divines who for their good Affection and Service to King James, were by him promoted to Biſhopricks, where this Dr. Thomas Cartwright, Dr. Samuel Parker, and Mr. Timothy Hall, who all died before their time in Grief and Poverty.

When K. James returned from Ireland to France, the few Proteſtants about him uſed their Intereſt with him to have a Chapel for the Exerciſe of their Worſhip according to the Church of England, propoſing Dr. Granville, the Earl of Bath's Brother, who had loſt his Deanery of Durham, as a fit Perſon to be their Chaplain. King James was ſo averſe to the granting this ſmall Favour to his Church of England's Subjects, that they were forced to ſend a Gentleman from St. Germains to London, to treat with the Party here, and particularly with Dr. Turner, Biſhop of Ely, to engage him to repreſent the Matter, as of abſolute neceſſity to the King's Intereſt. Queen Mary was not only againſt allowing this Chapel, but in a Paſſion told the King her Husband publickly at Dinner; He would provoke Heaven yet more againſt him, by tolerating that Hereſy in France, which for being tolerated in England had ruin'd him there. At laſt the Biſhop of Ely's Letter, in the Name of the Non-Jurors, and their Abettors here, prevail'd on that Court; and Father Innes was employ'd to ſollicite the Affair at that of Verſailles. It was referr'd to Monſieur Louvois and Father Le Chaiſe for Form ſake. The French Court reſolving at firſt to take hold of that Opportunity to make the Project of Peace take the better. But the Project meeting with univerſal Diſlike and Contempt, the French King thinking it would do no good to keep longer fair with the Hereticks, came into his Brother King James's Sentiments, and a Chapel was poſitively refus'd. In conſequence of which, Dr. Granville was obliged not only to retire from the Court, but alſo from the Town of St. Germains, to avoid the daily Inſults of the Prieſts, and the dreadful Effects of the Jealouſies with which they poſſeſs'd King James's Courtiers againſt him.

The only Proteſtant Divine that remain'd there was Dr. Gordon a Scotch Biſhop, who met with a worſe Treatment than the other, and was reduc'd to the neceſſity of abjuring his Religion for Bread, with which he could not be ſupply'd but upon ſuch hard Terms.

The Uſage of Dr. Cockburn, a Scotch Divine, is beyond any thing that can be imagined. He was baniſh'd Scotland for treaſonable Practices, and forc'd to fly from England, for writing Libels againſt the State. He thought to have found an Aſylum at St. Germains, if not a Recompence; but inſtead of this, he was perpetually teaz'd by the Prieſts to change his Religion, and when they could not prevail, they repreſented him as a dangerous Perſon, and got him ſent from France, whence he retired to Holland, and there lived in Want and Miſery. —— See Secret Hiſt. of Europe, P. II. p. 256.

Two

1689.
1 W. M.

Two Regiments: But, on the contrary, conſidering their preſent Circumſtances, and the Likelihood that the Enemy would ſoon poſſeſs themſelves of that Place, it was thought moſt convenient, That the Principal Officers ſhould privately withdraw themſelves, as well for their own Preſervation, as in Hopes that the Inhabitants, by a timely Capitulation, might make Terms the better with the Enemy. After this Reſolution, an Inſtrument was prepar'd, to be ſubſcribed by the Gentlemen and chief Citizens, and to be ſent to King James, who was advanced in Perſon with his Army as far as St. John's Town. Captain White was ſent out to the King to receive Propoſals from him; and it was at the ſame time agreed with Lieutenant-General Hamilton, That he ſhould not march the Army within Four Miles of the Town. But, contrary to this Agreement, King James, upon the confidencee given him, that the Town wou'd Surrender at the ſight of his formidable Army, advanced at the Head of it, before the Walls, on the 18th of April. But meeting with a warm Reception, which put his Men into ſome Diſorder, his Majeſty retired to St. John's-Town. In the mean time, Mr. Muckeridge (the Town-Clerk) gave the People ſome Intimation of the Proceedings at the Council of War: Which Diſcovery ſo enraged them againſt the Governor and his Council, that they finding themſelves in danger began to make their eſcape in confuſion. The Governor could not ſo eaſily retire, and therefore thought fit to keep his Chamber. A Council being appointed there, Mr. Walker and Major Baker endeavour'd to perſwade him to continue his Government: But he poſitively refuſing to concern himſelf, they out of Reſpect to his Commiſſion, ſuffer'd him to diſguiſe himſelf, and in a Sally for Relief of Culmore, to paſs in a Boat, with a Load of Match on his Back, from whence he went to Scotland, and was there ſecur'd and ſent to London, to anſwer for the Miſcarriages laid to his Charge.

The Gariſon of London-Derry reſolved to defend the Place;

The Gariſon of London-Derry being thus encouraged to maintain the Town, unanimouſly reſolv'd to chuſe Mr. Walker and Major Baker to be their Governors: But theſe Gentlemen modeſtly declined the Office, and ſent a Letter to Colonel Cuningham deſiring him to undertake the Charge; but he pretending that he was by his Inſtructions, obliged to obey the Orders of Colonel Lundee, refus'd the Propoſal, and returned into England, where both he and Colonel Richards were deſervedly caſhier'd. Upon this Refuſal, Mr. Walker and Major Baker accepted the Government of the Gariſon, and Regimented the Men in the Town to the Number of 7000, under 8 Colonels, and 333 inferior Officers. It was a bold Undertaking, in this brave Divine, and Major Baker, to maintain, againſt a formidable Army, commanded by a King in Perſon, an ill fortify'd Town, with a Gariſon compos'd of poor People frighten'd from their own Homes, and without a proportionable Number of Horſe to Sally out, or Engineers to inſtruct 'em in the neceſſary Works; beſides, they had not above Twenty Great Guns, and not one of them well mounted, nor above Ten Days Proviſion, in the Eſtimate of the former Governor; ſo that ſeveral deſerted every Day, and others not only gave conſtant Intelligence to the Enemy, but induſtriouſly endeavoured to betray the Place. Yet under all theſe Difficulties, the two Governors with undaunted Courage, reſolved to defend themſelves to the utmoſt Extremity.

Though in a very ill Condition.

Beſieged by King James with a formidable Army.

On April 20. King James inveſted the Place, and the next Day began to batter it; of which the Governors ſent an Account to England by Mr. Bennet, acquainting King William with their Reſolutions of Defence, and imploring a ſpeedy Aſſiſtance. Several Attacks were made by the Beſiegers, and as many Sallies by the Beſieged, in both which the latter had always the Advantage; and they would have had leſs Reaſon to fear either the Numbers or Rage of their Enemies without, if they had not had the more cruel ones of Famine and Sickneſs within.

K. James retires to Dublin. Makes a Speech to the Parliament.

On Apr. 29. King James retir'd from the Camp to meet his Parliament at Dublin,(a) where on May 7. he made a Speech, wherein he told 'em, "That "the Exemplary Loyalty which that Nation ex- "preſs'd to him, at a Time when others of his "Subjects ſo undutifully miſbehaved themſelves to "him, or ſo baſely betrayed him; and their ſecond- "ing his Deputy as they did, in this bold and re- "ſolute aſſerting his Right, in preſerving that King- "dom for him, and putting it in a Poſture of De- "fence, made him reſolute to come to them and "to venture his Life with them in Defence of their "Liberties and his own Right: That to his great "Satisfaction he had not only found them ready to "ſerve him, but that their Courage had equall'd "their Zeal: That he had always been for Liberty "of Conſcience, and againſt invading any Man's "Right or Liberty, having ſtill in Mind that Saying "of Holy Writ, Do as you would be done to, for "this is the Law and the Prophets: That it was "this Liberty of Conſcience he gave, which his Ene- "mies, both at Home and Abroad, dreaded to have "Eſtabliſhed by Law in all his Dominions, and made "them ſet themſeves up againſt him, though for "different Reaſons; ſeeing that if he had once ſettled "it, his People (in the Opinion of the one) would "have been too happy, and (in the Opinion of the "other) too great: That this Argument was made "uſe of to perſwade their own People to join with "them, and ſo many of his Subjects, to uſe him "as they had done; but nothing ſhould ever per- "ſwade him to change his Mind as to that; and "whereſoever he was Maſter, he deſign'd, GOD "willing, to eſtabliſh it by Law, and have no other "Teſt or Diſtinction but that of Loyalty, expecting "their Concurrence in ſo Chriſtian a Work, and in "making Laws againſt Prophaneneſs and againſt all "ſorts of Debauchery: That he ſhould moſt readily "conſent to the making ſuch good wholeſome Laws "as might be for the Good of the Nation, the Im- "provement of Trade, and relieving ſuch as had "been injur'd by the late Act of Settlement, as far "forth as might be conſiſtent with Reaſon, Juſtice, "and the publick Good of his People: That as he "ſhould do his Part to make them Happy and "Rich, he made no doubt of their Aſſiſtance, by "enabling him to oppoſe the unjuſt Deſigns of his "Enemies, and to make that Nation flouriſh: That "to encourage them the more to it, they knew with "how great Generoſity and Kindneſs, the Moſt "Chriſtian King gave ſure Retreat to the Queen, his "Son, and Himſelf, when they were forc'd out of "England, and came to ſeek for Protection and "Safety in his Kingdoms; how he embrac'd his "Intereſt, and gave him ſuch Supplies of all Sorts, "as enabled him to come to them, which without "his obliging Aſſiſtance he could not have done; "and that this he did at a time when he had ſo ma- "ny conſiderable Enemies to deal with, and ſtill "continued ſo to do. His Majeſty concluded as he "had began, and aſſured them, he was as ſenſible "as they could deſire, of the ſignal Loyalty they had "expreſs'd to him; and that he ſhould make it his

(a) As ſoon as King James arrived at Dublin, the Iriſh Popiſh Biſhops and Clergy, as Biſhop Tyrrel, Dr. Moore, and others, advis'd him to conſider his Catholick Subjects of that Kingdom, for all their Sufferings, and to reſtore them the Churches and Poſſeſſions uſurp'd from them by the Engliſh; and Monſieur D' Avaux at his publick Audience, deſir'd Him in his Maſter's Name, to ſhew diſtinguiſhing Marks of his Favour to his Catholick Subjects. Immediately all the Proteſtants, who had Employments were commanded to lay them down. Not one of that Religion was allowed to ſit in Council or bear Arms. The Lord Grenard, the Lord Chief Juſtice Keating, who had gone great Lengths in Tyrconnel's Time, Sir John Davis, Sir Thomas Newcomen, Colonel Ruſſel, &c, were ſet aſide, and none permitted to hold any Place but Papiſts.

1689. 1 W. M.

"chief Study, as it had always been, to make "(a) them and all his Subjects happy.

This Speech being ended, and the King withdrawn, Sir Richard Neagle, Attorney-General, who was choſen Speaker of the Commons, extoll'd to that Houſe, "Their great Obligations to the King of "France, and recommended it as very proper for "both Houſes to return his Majeſty Thanks for his "gracious Speech, and to deſire Count D' Avaux "to do the ſame to his Moſt Chriſtian Majeſty on "their behalf for his generous Aſſiſtance". Theſe "Addreſſes were drawn up and preſented accordingly; and then a Bill was brought in containing a Recognition of the King's Title, and an Abhorrence of the Prince of Orange's Uſurpation, and Defection of the Engliſh. The next Day the King publiſhed a Declaration to all his loving Subjects in the Kingdom of England, promiſing a full Pardon to all his Subjects, if in Twenty-four Days after his Appearance in Perſon among them, they would return to their Obedience, by deſerting his Enemies, and joining with him: And then he concludes, But if after this our gracious Condeſcenſion, they ſhall yet continue to aſſiſt our Enemies and Rebels, We do, before GOD, charge all the Blood which ſhall be afterward ſhed, upon them and their Adherents; and We doubt not, by the Bleſſing of GOD upon our Arms, to force the moſt obſtinate to their Duty; tho' as We have made appear in reducing our rebellious Subjects in this Kingdom, We deſire to uſe no other than Lenity and Mercy.

Act of Settlement repeal'd.

On May 12. A Bill was brought into the Houſe of Commons by Chief Juſtice Nugent, for Repealing the (b) Act of Settlement, which, without any Oppoſition, was read three Times and ſent to the Lords. In the Upper Houſe the Biſhop of Meath very learnedly argued againſt the Bill, alledging, amongſt other Objections, "That no Penalty was provided on ſuch "as enter'd Eſtates without Injunctions; nor Con- "ſiderations for Improvements; nor Saving for Re- "mainders; nor Time given to Tenants and Poſ- "ſeſſors to remove their Stock and Corn; nor Pro- "viſions for Proteſtant Widows; and that it al- "low'd only Repriſals for Original Purchaſe-Mo- "ney, which was hard to make out, and was an "Injury to the Second or Third Purchaſer." But notwithſtanding the Validity of theſe Reaſons, back'd by an Addreſs to King James from Judge Keating, in Behalf of the Purchaſers under the Act of Settlement; and notwithſtanding His Majeſty's Anſwer to Keating, That he would not do Evil, that Good might come on't; yet Chancellor Fitton's Arguments prevail'd, and the Bill receiv'd the Royal Aſſent, and paſs'd into an Act. Nor indeed could it be expected otherwiſe, the Majority of both Houſes conſiſting of Roman-Catholicks, on whom K. James had his ſole Dependance, and who were the Sons and Deſcendants of thoſe Perſons that had forfeited their Eſtates for their bloody Rebellion in 1641.

Act of Attainder.

To give ſtill a more fatal Blow, there was an Act of Attainder paſs'd in Parliament; in order to which, every Member of the Houſe of Commons return'd the Names of all ſuch Proteſtant Gentlemen as lived near them, or in the County or Borough for which they ſerv'd. When this Bill was preſented to the King for his Aſſent, the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons told him, That many were attainted in that Act upon ſuch Evidence as ſatisfied the Houſe, and the reſt upon Common Fame. In this black Act, there were no fewer attainted than Two Archbiſhops, One Duke, Seventeen Earls, Seven Counteſſes, Twenty eight Viſcounts, Two Viſcounteſſes, Seven Biſhops, Eighteen Barons, Thirty three Baronets, Fifty one Knights, Eighty three Clergymen, Two Thouſand One Hundred Eighty two Eſquires and Gentlemen; and all of them (unheard) declar'd Traytors, and adjudg'd to ſuffer the Pains of Death and Forfeiture. The famous Proſcription at Rome, during the laſt Triumvirate, came not up in ſome Reſpects to the Horrors of this; for there were condemn'd in this little Kingdom, more than double the Number that were proſcrib'd thro' the vaſt Extent of the Roman Empire. And to make this of Ireland yet the more terrible and unavoidable, the Act it ſelf was conceal'd, and no Proteſtant allow'd a Copy of it till Four Months after it was paſs'd; whereas in that of Rome, the Names of the Perſons proſcrib'd were affix'd upon all the Publick Places of the City, the very Day the Proſcription was decreed; and thereby Opportunity was given to many to preſerve themſelves by a ſpeedy Flight. This Anti-Parliament, (if I may ſo call it) after they had made ſome other Acts, (and amongſt the reſt, one for Liberty of Conſcience) was prorogued on the 20th of July, to the 12th of January enſuing; and ſo ended this Seſſion, whoſe Proceeding occaſion'd no leſs Diſturbance in the Kingdom of Ireland than the War it ſelf.

Inſolence of Popery in Ireland.

It was not thought enough that Tyrconnel had ſtopp'd the Maintenance of the Univerſity of Dublin, but upon King James's Arrival, the Vice-Preſident, Fellows and Scholars, were all further proceeded againſt, and turn'd out, their Furniture, Library and Communion-Plate ſeiz'd, and every Thing that belong'd to the College, and to the Private Fellows and Scholars, taken away. All this was done, notwithſtanding that when they waited upon King James at his firſt coming to Dublin, he was pleas'd to promiſe them, That he would preſerve them in their Liberties and Properties, and rather augment than diminiſh their Privileges and Immunities, that had been granted them by his Predeceſſors. In the Houſe they put a Gariſon, and turn'd the Chapel into a Magazine, and the Chambers into Priſons for Proteſtants. One More (a Popiſh Prieſt) was made Provoſt, and one Mackarty (alſo a Prieſt) Library-Keeper; and the whole deſign'd for them and their Fraternity. One Archbiſhoprick, ſeveral Biſhopricks, and a great many other Dignities and Livings of the Church were deſignedly kept vacant, and the Revenues firſt paid into the Exchequer, and afterwards diſpos'd of to Titular Biſhops and Prieſts; while in the mean Time the Cures lay neglected; ſo that it appear'd plainly, that the Deſign was to deſtroy the Succeſſion of the Proteſtant Clergymen. At length Things came to that Height, that moſt of the Churches in and about Dublin were ſeiz'd upon by the Government; and Lutterel, Governor of that City, iſſued out his Order, commanding all Proteſtants, who were not Houſe-keepers, to depart out of the ſaid City; and all ſuch as were Houſe-

(a) There was publiſh'd, "King James's Declaration to all "his Loving Subjects in the Kingdom of England. Given at "Dublin-Caſtle, the 8th of May, 1689." Declaring, That in Ireland he had taken Care that his Subjects of the Church of England be not diſturb'd in the Exerciſe of their Religion——And that Proteſtant Diſſenters enjoy the Liberty of their Conſciences;—— And promiſing to purſue the ſame Methods in England, &c. See an Anſwer to the late King James's Declaration to all his Pretended Subjects in the Kingdom of England. Dated at Dublin-Caſtle, May 8. 1689. Order'd by a Vote of the Right Hon. Houſe of Commons to be burnt by the Common Hangman. Printed for D. Newman, 1689. 4to.

(b) The Act of Settlement was indeed the Magna Charta of the Proteſtants of Ireland, and the true Baſis of their Liberties and Properties: And therefore the King, in his Speech, firſt open'd the Deſign of Repealing that Act on May the 7th. And May 10. we find it mov'd in the Houſe, "That nothing could "be more advantageous to the King and Country, than to de- "ſtroy the Horrid Barbarous Act of Settlement; and whoſo- "ever ſhall alledge the contrary, ſhall be deem'd an Enemy "to both." Thereafter we find it mov'd by one of the wor- "thy Members of that Parliament, "That the Act of Settle- "ment ſhould be publickly burnt by the Common Hangman." See Anſwer to King James's Declaration, 1689. 4to.

Keepers,

keepers, to deliver up their Arms, both Offenſive and Defenſive ; and likewiſe forbidding above Five Proteſtants meeting any where, upon Pain of Death, or ſuch other Puniſhment as a Court-Martial ſhould think fit. (a) The Governor being ask'd, Whether this was deſign'd to hinder Meeting in Churches ? He anſwer'd, This was deſign'd to prevent their Aſſembling there, as well as in other Places : And accordingly, all the Proteſtant Churches were ſhut up throughout the whole Kingdom.

Progreſs of the Siege of Londonderry.

The Siege of Londonderry was carry'd on with the utmoſt Efforts, and the Place reduc'd to the laſt Extremity, when (about the Middle of June) Major-General Kirke, with a Squadron from England, with Men, Proviſion and Arms, came into the Lough ; but, for above Six Weeks, lay there at a Diſtance, not able to reach and relieve the Town. In the mean Time, Major Baker died on June the 20th, to the great Loſs and Grief of the Beſieged : And on the other Hand, Monſieur de Roſe, the French General, came in Perſon to command the Iriſh Camp, much to the Encouragement of the Beſiegers. When the Gariſon was brought to the Neceſſity of feeding upon Horſe-Fleſh, Dogs, Cats, Rats and Mice, Tallow, Starch, Dry'd and Salted Hides, Lieutenant-General Hamilton ſent ſome plauſible Offers to 'em, for a Temptation to ſurrender ; but they unanimouſly reſolv'd to eat the Iriſh, and then one another, rather than yield : And their Anſwer to Hamilton, was, That they much wonder'd he ſhould expect they ſhould place any Confidence in him, that had ſo unworthily broke his Faith with King William their Sovereign : That he was once generouſly truſted, tho' an Enemy, and yet betray'd his Truſt ; and they could not believe he had learn'd more Sincerity in an Iriſh Camp.

This bold Anſwer ſo enrag'd the French General, that he publiſh'd an Order, directed to the Governors and Gariſon of Londonderry, importing, That if they did not deliver the Town to him by the Firſt of July, according to Lieutenant-General Hamilton's Propoſals, he would diſpatch his Orders as far as Bali-Shanny, Charlemont, Belfaſt, and the Barony of Iniſhoven, and plunder all Proteſtants that were either related to the Gariſon, or of their Faction ; and then drive 'em under the Walls of their Town, where they ſhould be ſuffer'd to ſtarve : But the Beſieged receiv'd this Letter with the ſame Contempt and Indignation as they had done Hamilton's Propoſals. The News of this Order being brought to Dublin, the Biſhop of Meath humbly apply'd himſelf to King James, to prevent the Execution of it. His Majeſty told that Prelate, That he had heard of the Order before, and had already countermanded it : That General Roſe was a Foreigner, and had been uſed to ſuch Proceedings as were ſtrange to us, tho' common in other Places ; and that if he had been his own Subject, he would have call'd him to an Account for it. But in Spite of Royal Clemency, about Seven Thouſand poor Proteſtants were brought under the Walls of Londonderry, where they muſt have famiſh'd, if the Gariſon had not erected a Gallows in View of the Beſiegers, threatning to hang all the Priſoners they had taken during the Siege, by way of Repriſal. This Sight of the Gallows, and an importunate Letter of the Priſoners who were to ſuffer, did at laſt prevail upon Hamilton ; ſo that on the 4th of July, the poor half-ſtarv'd Proteſtants had Leave to return Home : And this Stratagem prov'd only to the Benefit of the Gariſon, who crowded Five Hundred of their uſeleſs People among the naked Proteſtants under the Walls, who paſs'd undiſtinguiſh'd with them ; and in Exchange they got ſome able and ſtrong Men out of their Numbers.

Deplorable Eſtate of the Town.

By this Time, the Scarcity of the vileſt Eatables was increas'd to ſuch a Degree, that they began to be afraid of the Neceſſity of preying upon one another : And it is remarkable, that a certain Gentleman, who was young and corpulent, thought himſelf mark'd out for a Meal to the gaping Soldiers ; and therefore thought fit to hide himſelf for Three Days. Under this diſmal Scene of Deſpair, Mr. Walker (the Governor) remember'd himſelf to be a Divine as well as a Military Commander, and therefore preach'd in the Cathedral before the Gariſon ; and reminded them of the many Inſtances of the Divine Providence, ſhown to them ſince the Beginning of the Siege ; and endeavour'd to aſſure them, That if they plac'd their Confidence in GOD, he would not, after ſo miraculous a Preſervation of them, ſuffer them to fall into the Hands of their Enemies ; if they had but Faith and Courage, they need not doubt a ſpeedy Deliverance. This Diſcourſe ſeem'd to come not only from a Chriſtian Zeal, but ev'n from a Spirit of Prophecy ; for about an Hour after Sermon, the Gariſon diſcover'd Three Ships, which Major-General Kirke had ſent to their Relief. The Montjoy of Derry, commanded by Captain Browning, and the Phenix of Colrain by Captain Douglas, being both loaden with Proviſion, were convoy'd by the Dartmouth Frigot : And after a furious firing from the Enemy on both Sides the River, and the great Difficulty of breaking and paſſing the Bomb, they did at laſt get up to the City ; and brought unſpeakable Joy and Tranſport to a Gariſon, which reckon'd only upon Two Days Life, having nothing left but Nine lean Horſes, and a Pint of Meal to each Man. This brave and ſucceſsful Undertaking ſo diſcourag'd the Enemy, that on the laſt of July they rais'd the (b) Siege in the Night-time with great Confuſion, and in their Retreat made a miſerable Havock of the Countrey. The Gariſon of Iniskillin, under the Command of Guſtavus Hamilton, Eſq; had ſignaliz'd themſelves in many deſperate Rencounters : And the Day before the Siege of Derry was rais'd, they advanc'd near Twenty Miles to meet a Body of about Six Thouſand Iriſh, upon their March, under the Command of Major-General Mackarty ; and at a Place call'd Newton Butler fought and routed 'em, took Mackarty Priſoner, and kill'd and drown'd nigh Three Thouſand of them, tho' themſelves were not above Two Thouſand in all ; and loſt not above Twenty Men, with about Fifty wounded. In the mean Time King William and the Engliſh Parliament were ſenſible of the great Importance of the Reduction of Ireland ; and there were Eighteen Regiments of Foot, and Five of Horſe, rais'd for that Service with good Expedition ; but the providing Ships to tranſport 'em, a Train of Artillery to attend 'em, and Proviſions to maintain 'em, was manag'd with great Slowneſs, and ſupine Negligence. This Fault was charg'd on Mr. Harbord, who (out of Avarice) had engroſs'd to himſelf the Two Offices of Paymaſter and Purveyor-General of the Army, till the Duke of Schomberg prevail'd with him to reſign that of Purveyor to Mr. Shales. The News of raiſing the Siege of

The Siege rais'd.

Iniskillin Men.

(a) See a Letter from the Biſhops, to be ſent along with His Majeſty's Letters Patents for a General Collection, toward Relief of the Proteſtants who have been forc'd to fly from Ireland, driven from their Houſes and Poſſeſſions by the Enemies of our Religion and Country ; and therefore exciting the People to a Liberal Charity. Subſcribed, Tho. Ebor. H. London. P. Wincheſter. W. Aſaph. Gi. Sarum. Printed Half-Sheet.

(b) See a True Account of the Siege of Londonderry, by the Reverend Mr. George Walker, Rector of Douagh Moore in the County of Tyrone, and late Governor of Derry in Ireland. Licenſed by Command of the Earl of Shrewsbury, Sept. 13. 1689. Dedicated to King William and Queen Mary. —— "I thank "God I have this double Comfort, in the Teſtimony of a good "Conſcience, and your Majeſties Gracious Acceptance of the "poor Services God enabled me to do for your Majeſties Intereſt, and the Safety of thoſe Proteſtants whom the Fury of "the Papiſts drove into Londonderry. Nor am I more pleas'd "with your Majeſties Royal Bounty to me, (much above, not "only my Merit, but Expectation) than with your Majeſties "Tenderneſs for my poor Fellow-Sufferers and Partners, &c.

1689. I W. M.

Londonderry, put new Life into this long-depending Expedition; and many of the new Levies began to be ſhipp'd off at Cheſter and Leverpoole: And General Schonberg having obtain'd Leave of the Lords on July 16. to apply himſelf to the Commons, he return'd that Honourable Houſe his grateful Acknowledgments, both for the great Reſpects and large Donative he had receiv'd from them; and preſently after began his Journey toward Cheſter. On Aug. 12. he ſail'd from thence with about Ninety Veſſels of all ſorts, and near Ten Thouſand Men, Horſe and Foot; and on the next Day, after Noon, he arriv'd in the Bay of Carrick-Fergus, where the Army preſently landed on Bangor-ſide, without Oppoſition. After ſending out ſome Parties for Intelligence, he march'd his Forces to Belfaſt, which the Enemy had quitted, retiring to Carrick-Fergus, and where ſeveral Perſons join'd him that durſt not declare before. On Aug. 22. Duke Schonberg began the Siege of Carrick-Fergus; and in Four Days time made ſuch conſiderable Breaches, and was ſo ready for a general Aſſault, that the Gariſon was contented to accept what Conditions he pleas'd to offer; which were, "To "be conducted with their Arms, and as much Bag-"gage as they could carry on their Backs, to the "next Iriſh Gariſon, which was Newry." In the mean time the reſt of the Horſe, Foot and Dragoons, which, for want of Tranſport-Ships, had ſtaid behind, were embark'd at Highlake, and ſafely landed in Ireland; but the Artillery and Horſes belonging to them were ſtill at Cheſter. The Duke ſent over his Orders for the greateſt Part of the Train of Artillery to be ſhipp'd, and the Fleet to ſail with 'em, and all other Neceſſaries to Carlingford-Bay, while he march'd on his Army beyond Liſburn, and ſo thro' Hillsborough, and pitch'd his Camp at Drummore; and the next Day continu'd his March to Loughbritaine, where the Iniskillin Horſe and Dragoons join'd him, and chearfully offer'd themſelves to be an Advance-Guard to the Army. Upon this Approach, the Iriſh abandon'd Newry, a very ſtrong Paſs, having firſt ſet Fire to the Town; which News being brought to the General, he diſpatch'd a Trumpeter to the Duke of Berwick, who commanded there, to acquaint him, That if they went on to burn in this barbarous manner, he would not give any Quarter. This Meſſage had ſo good effect, that the Iriſh abandon'd Dundalk, without doing any harm to the Town; and Duke Schonberg march'd thither, and encamp'd his Army, who were here well refreſh'd, and on Sept. 9. reinforc'd by Three Regiments of Major-General Kirk, Sir John Hanmore, and Brigadier Stewart. The Duke deſign'd to have continu'd his Progreſs, but the Fleet with the Train of Artillery failing to come up in time to Carlingford, according to his Directions, was a great Diſappointment to him; ſo that he continu'd in an uncertain Poſture, till September 20. when he received Advice, That King James having gather'd all his Forces near Drogheda, advanc'd towards him. The Day following, the Army of King James appear'd in Order of Battel, and a great Party of their Horſe advanc'd towards the Intrenchments of the Engliſh Camp. Several of our Officers were for an immediate Engagement, but Schonberg told them, Let them alone, we ſhall ſee what they will do; and when he ſaw their whole Body drawing within Cannon-ſhot of his Camp, yet he ſaid ſtill, He could not believe they deſign'd to Fight. However, one Day ſeeing them form their Army into two Lines, he order'd his Foot to ſtand to their Arms, and his Horſe to return to the Camp upon a certain Signal. The Soldiers, who were already ſtruggling with Diſeaſes and Want in their Tents, receiv'd theſe Orders with great Chearfulneſs; but in a little Time the Iriſh drew off, and march'd away. Tho' the Engliſh Army were impatient to fight, yet General Schonberg ſeem'd wiſely to conſider, that the Enemy was much ſuperior in Horſe; that his own Men were undiſciplin'd, and weakned by Hunger and Sickneſs, while the other Army was in Health and Plenty; and that the Loſs of a Battel might be attended with the Loſs of Ireland. Beſides, he diſcover'd a dangerous Conſpiracy in his own Camp, carried on by ſome French Papiſts who had liſted themſelves in the Proteſtant Regiments of that Nation. A Captain of one of theſe Regiments being informed, that Four of theſe Soldiers, and a Drummer, who were Roman Catholicks, deſign'd to go over to the Enemy, he caus'd them to be ſecur'd, and found Letters about one of them to Monſieur d'Avaux. Upon ſtricter Examination, the Fellow declared, he had the Letters from one du Pleſſis, likewiſe a Papiſt, who now ſerv'd as a private Soldier in one of the French Regiments, tho' he had formerly been a Captain of Horſe in France, from whence he was forc'd to retire for Murther. Du Pleſſis being ſeiz'd, ingenuouſly confeſs'd, That he had written to King James, and to the French Ambaſſador, and acquainted them, that there were divers Papiſts in the Three French Regiments, whom he promis'd to bring over to the Iriſh Camp, upon Condition he might have the Command of them, and his Pardon in France. He and his Five Accomplices were thereupon brought to their Trial, ſentenc'd to Death by a Council of War, and accordingly executed; after which the French Colonels made ſtrict Enquiry, what Papiſts there were in their Regiments, and found about 250, who, by Order of the General, were ſecur'd, diſarm'd, and ſent over Priſoners into England, and from thence to Holland, where they were ſet at Liberty.

Duke of Schonberg goes toward Ireland.

Iriſh offer to fall upon the Engliſh Camp.

Treachery of the French Papiſts.

The Engliſh Army ſuffer'd extremely much from a raging Sickneſs of Gripes and Flux, occaſion'd by the Dampneſs of the Place, the Badneſs of the Weather, and ill Proviſions, which ſwept away a great Number of brave Officers. Among the reſt there died Sir Edward Deering, a Gallant Gentleman, who had contributed more than any Man in the County of Kent, towards the bringing about the Happy Revolution; Colonel Henry Wharton, a bold, briſk, and brave Man, Brother to the preſent Lord Wharton; Sir Thomas Gower, and Colonel Hungerford, two young Gentlemen of diſtinguiſh'd Merit. Of common Soldiers there periſh'd above Two thouſand, and as many Sick were ſhipp'd off to be tranſported to Belfaſt; but of them not above Eleven hundred came aſhoar, the reſt dying at Sea. Nay, ſo great was the Mortality, that by the Beginning of the following Year, near Two thirds of the Army that were tranſported over, were entirely loſt.

Great Sufferings of the Engliſh Army.

The Engliſh Parliament, in purſuance of their late Adjournment, met at Weſtminſter, on Friday Sept. 20. when his Majeſty ſignify'd his Pleaſure to both Houſes, that they ſhould farther Adjourn to the 19th of Octob. next; and that he intended they ſhould then ſit, whereof he had order'd Notice to be given by Proclamation; which was accordingly publiſh'd on Sept. 26. and on (a) Saturday

Meeting of the Parliament

Octob.

2

(a) On the 18th of October 1689, a Miniſter of State received a Letter from the Aſſizes held by Adjournment at Mancheſter; by which he was intreated to adviſe the Council, That many of the Roman Catholick younger Gentry, ſome of good Quality, were abſconded for ſome Months; That to ſome of the Gentlemen now abſconded, there had been ſent from London ſeveral Boxes with ſcarlet Cloaks, Piſtols and Swords, directed for ſafer Conveyance to Proteſtants, who knew nothing of them; and by that means diſcover'd, that ſome had been modelling Officers and Men, Preparatory to their Hope of an Invaſion or Inſurrection: That tho' the Goals were full of Iriſh Papiſts, yet many were entertain'd [illegible] Popiſh Houſes, &c. The Correſpondence which the late King enter-

1689. Octob. 19. the King came to the Houſe of Lords,
1 W. M. and made this Gracious Speech on the Occaſion of their Meeting.

King's Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen ;

"THough the laſt Sitting continu'd ſo long, "that perhaps it might have been more a"greeable to you, in relation to your private Con"cerns, not to have met again ſo ſoon ; yet the "Intereſt of the Publick lays an indiſpenſable Obli"gation upon me to call you together at this "time.

"In your laſt Meeting you gave me ſo many "Teſtimonies of your Affection, as well as Con"fidence in me, that I do not at all queſtion, but "in this I ſhall receive freſh Proofs of both.

"I eſteem it one of the greateſt Misfortunes can "befall me, that in the Beginning of my Reign, "I am forc'd to ask ſuch large Supplies ; tho' I "have this Satisfaction, that they are deſir'd for "no other Purpoſes, but the carrying on thoſe "Wars, into which I enter'd with your Advice, "and Aſſurance of your Aſſiſtance. Nor can I "doubt of the Bleſſing of GOD upon an Under"taking, wherein I did not engage out of a vain "Ambition, but from the Neceſſity of oppoſing "thoſe who have ſo viſibly diſcover'd their Deſigns "of deſtroying our Religion and Liberties.

"It is well known how far I have expos'd my "ſelf to reſcue this Nation from the Dangers that "threatned not only your Liberty, but the Prote"ſtant Religion in general ; of which the Church "of England is one of the greateſt Supports, and "for the Defence whereof, I am ready again to "venture my Life.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"That which I have to ask of you at preſent "is, That what you think fit to give towards the "Charges of the War for this next Year, may be "done without delay. And there is one Reaſon "which more particularly obliges me to preſs you "to a ſpeedy Determination in this Matter, be"cauſe this next Month there is appointed, at the "Hague, a General Meeting of the Miniſters of all "the Princes and States concern'd in this War a"gainſt France, in order to concert the Meaſures "for the next Campaign : And till I know your In"tentions, I ſhall not only be uncertain my ſelf "what Reſolution to take ; but our Allies will "be under the ſame Doubts, unleſs they ſee me "ſupported by your Aſſiſtance. Beſides, if I know "not in time what you will do, I cannot make "ſuch Proviſions as will be requiſite ; but ſhall be "expos'd to the ſame Inconveniences the next Year, "which were the Cauſe that the Preparations for "this were neither ſo effectual nor expeditious "as was neceſſary. The Charge will alſo be con"ſiderably leſſen'd, by giving time to provide "things in their proper Seaſon, and without Con"fuſion.

"I have no other Aim in this, but to be in a "Condition to attack our Enemies in ſo vigorous a "manner, as by the Help of GOD, in a little "time may bring us to a laſting and honourable "Peace ; by which my Subjects may be freed from "the extraordinary Expences of a lingring War : "And that I can have no greater Satisfaction than in "contributing to their Eaſe, I hope I have already "given Proof.

"That you may be ſatisfy'd how the Money "has been laid out, which you have already given, "I have directed the Accounts to be laid before "you, whenever you think fit to call for them.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I have one thing more to recommend to you, "which is, the Diſpatch of a Bill of Indemnity ; "that the Minds of my good Subjects being quiet"ed, we may all unanimouſly concur to promote "the Welfare and Honour of the Kingdom.

After a ſhort Prorogation, both Houſes met again on Wedneſday Octob. 23. when the King came, and was pleas'd to ſpeak to both Houſes to this Effect : That he having ſpoken to them ſo lately, he need not ſay any thing to 'em now, Matters having not been alter'd ſince that Time ; and therefore he referr'd 'em to what he had ſaid to 'em when he was laſt there, and deſired they would be ſpeedy in their Reſolutions. Then both Houſes went into a Conſideration of his Majeſty's Speech ; and both Houſes return'd their Thanks ; the Commons reſolving to ſtand by and aſſiſt his Majeſty in reducing Ireland, and joining with his Allies abroad in a vigorous Proſecution of the War againſt France. It is remarkable, That this Speech, which met with univerſal Applauſe, was compoſed by the King himſelf, who, the Day before, produc'd it to the Council, written with his own Hand ; telling 'em, He knew moſt of his Predeceſſors were us'd to commit the drawing up of ſuch Speeches to their Miniſters, who generally had their private Aims and Intereſts in view ; to prevent which, he had thought fit to write it himſelf in French, becauſe he was not ſo great a Maſter of the Engliſh Tongue : Therefore he deſired them to look it over, and change what they found amiſs, that it might be tranſlated into Engliſh. At the ſame Council, the Marquis of Haliſax declar'd, That for ſeveral Reaſons which he forbore to mention, he muſt deſire to be excus'd from doing the Office of Speaker in the Houſe of Lords ; which was readily granted him, and Sir Robert Atkins, Lord Chief-Baron, ſupply'd his Place.

King's Speech at their next Meeting.

On October 26. The Commons reſolv'd, That the Earl of Peterborough and Earl of Saliſbury ſhould be impeach'd of High-Treaſon, for departing from their Allegiance, and being reconcil'd to the Church of Rome ; and order'd, That Sir Edw. Hales and Obadiah Walker, be committed to the Tower for High-Treaſon, in being reconcil'd to the Church of Rome, and for other High Crimes and Miſdemeanors. And on October 28. the Earl of Caſtlemain was remanded to the Tower for the ſame Reaſon : But the Benefit of Habeas-Corpus was granted to the Lords Preſton and Forbes, and Sir John Fenwick, upon ſufficient Bail ; and Mr. Baron Jenner had a Week's Time to anſwer the Matters laid to his Charge, and in the mean time, was only to continue in the Cuſtody of a Serjeant at Arms. The ſame eaſy Confinement was alſo granted to Mr. Graham and Mr. Burton, the Two great Exactors and Oppreſſors in the late Reign. And tho' it was reſolved by the Commons, That a Bill be brought in for inflicting Pains and Penalties upon ſuch Perſons as have been the Occaſion of the violating the Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom, in the Two late Reigns ; yet nothing was inflicted upon any of 'em : But ſoon after, the Attorney-General was order'd to bring in a Bill of Indemnity, in ſuch ample Manner, as might anſwer his Majeſty's Gracious Intentions and Clemency ; while the King order'd the Account of the Expences of the entertain'd with the Papiſts in Lancaſhire, was manag'd by one Bromfield, a Quaker, who liv'd at Redland, near Cheſter, in the Houſe of one Wilſon, who was engag'd in the Conſpiracy. But upon Suſpicion, the firſt fled to Ireland, and the ſecond abſconded in Lancaſhire. After them, the Management of the Intrigue was commited to Gordon, Lunt, and Thrillſal, who came from Ireland with Declarations and Commiſſions from King James, to the Papiſts in ſeveral Counties, &c. See the Hiſtory of the late Conſpiracy againſt the King and the Nation. With a particular Account of the Lancaſhire Plot, &c. London, 1696. 8vo.

Reſolution of the Commons againſt Apoſtates to Popery.

1689.
1 W. M.

Reſolution of a Supply.

laſt Summer, and of the State of the War for the enſuing Year, to be laid before them: Who having peruſed the ſame, unanimouſly voted, That for thoſe Purpoſes, a Supply ſhou'd be given to their Majeſties, not exceeding the Sum of Twenty hundred thouſand Pounds, to be added to the Publick Revenue. (a.)

Reſolution againſt Colonel Ludlow;

On Nov. 6th, the Commons reſolved, That an Humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, to iſſue out a Proclamation for the apprehending Colonel Ludlow, who ſtands attainted of High-Treaſon, by Act of Parliament, for the Murther of K. Charles I. And that his Majeſty wou'd be pleas'd to propoſe a Reward to ſuch as ſhall apprehend him. The King comply'd with this Addreſs, and publiſh'd his Proclamation to that Effect, on Nov. 14th, which was known to be after his ſafe Arrival in Holland with the Dutch Ambaſſadors, from whence he return'd to his Retirement at Vevay, a ſmall Town in the County of Vaux in Switzerland, where he liv'd to a great Age, and left behind him thoſe Memoirs which have been ſince publiſh'd, and do apparently ſhew that he was one of the pure Republicans, and as much an Enemy to Cromwel, as to his Lawful King. On the ſame Day, it was Reſolv'd, That a Bill be brought in, for the Forfeiture of the Eſtate and Honour of George late Lord Jeffreys (late Lord Chancellor of England;) and it was recommended to Colonel Tipping to take Care of it. And, for a farther Terror to all the late Inſtruments of Popery and Arbitrary Power, the Houſe agreed, on the 8th of November, "That the Pecuniary Penalties incurr'd by all Privy Counſellors, Lords-Lieutenants, Deputy-Lieutenants, Militia-Officers, Juſtices of the Peace, and by any other Perſons who had accepted or exercis'd any Office, or Place of Profit, either Military or Civil, (other than ſuch as are now Officers in their Majeſties Army or Fleet) contrary to an Act of 25 Car. II. [Entitl'd, An Act for preventing Dangers which may happen from Popiſh Recuſants] ſhou'd be ſpeedily levy'd, and apply'd to the Publick Service." And the Lords, in the mean Time, appointed a Committee, "To examine, who were the Adviſers and Proſecutors of the Murders of the Lord Ruſſel, Colonel Sidney, Sir Thomas Armſtrong, Mr. Corniſh, and others; and who were the Adviſers of iſſuing out Writs of Quo Warranto's againſt Corporations, and who were their Regulators; and alſo, who were the publick Aſſerters of the Diſpenſing Power."

And againſt the Inſtruments of Popery and Arbitrary Power.

Dr. Walker has Thanks and a Gratuity, for his great Services.

On Monday Nov. 18th, on a Petition of Doctor Walker, it was reſolv'd by the Commons, "That an humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, That he would pleaſe to diſtribute the Sum of Ten Thouſand Pounds among the Widows and Orphans of ſuch as were ſlain and died in the Siege of London-Derry, and among the Clergymen that were there." And on Nov. 19, Doctor Walker was call'd in, and Mr. Speaker gave him the Thanks of the Houſe; and deſir'd him, in the Name of the Houſe, to thank all thoſe who had ſerv'd under him at the Siege of London-Derry, in Defence of the ſaid Town.

1689.
1 W. M.

Complaints of ill Victualling the Navy.

On Nov. 23d, the Houſe being inform'd, That great Quantities of corrupt and unwholſome Victuals had been furniſh'd to the Navy, this laſt Summer, which had been the Occaſion, as was conceiv'd, of great Sickneſs and Mortality in the Fleet; and the ſame being atteſted by ſeveral Members of the Houſe, upon their own Knowledge: It was reſolved, "That Sir John Parſons, Sir Richard Haddock, Alderman Sturt, and Mr. Nicholas Fenn, Victuallers of the Fleet, ſhou'd be ſent for in the Cuſtody of the Serjeant at Arms, to anſwer to the ſaid Complaint." It was ſome Cover and Protection to 'em, that within few Days after, his Majeſty was pleas'd to appoint Thomas Papillon, Simon Maine, John Agar, Humphrey Ayles, and James Howe, Eſqrs; Commiſſioners for Victualling their Majeſties Navy.

While the Commons were enquiring into the Miſcarriages of Ireland, they found, by the Information of Dr. Walker, that they were chiefly owing to the Neglect of Mr. Shales (Purveyor-General to the Army,) by whoſe Default, Duke Schonberg had waited for Artillery, Horſes and Carriages, above a Month; that the Soldiers had all along wanted Bread, the Horſes Shoes and Provender, and the Surgeons proper Medicines for the Sick. Whereupon it was reſolved, Nov. 26th, "That an humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, That Mr. John Shales (Commiſſary-General of the Proviſions for the Army in Ireland) be forthwith taken into Cuſtody, and all his Accompts, Papers and Stores ſecur'd, and that a fit Perſon be put i[n] his Place; and that his Majeſty wou'd be pleas'd to empower Duke Schonberg to do the ſame. On the next Day, Major Wildman acquainted the Houſe, That he had attended his Majeſty with that Addreſs: Who was pleas'd to give this Anſwer; That he had ſome Time ſince taken Order therein, being inform'd of the ſaid Captain Shales*'s Miſdemeanors in his Employment, and had written to the Duke of* Schonberg for that Purpoſe; a Copy of which Letter was brought to the Houſe, and there read: And that his Majeſty was pleas'd farther to add, That he verily believ'd, what was deſir'd, was already effectually done; though the Wind being contrary, he had not as yet receiv'd any Account thereof from Ireland.

Addreſs againſt Commiſſary Shales.

On Nov. 30th, Mr. Comptroller deliver'd this Meſſage from his Majeſty, in Writing:

(a) The Fifth of November being now become a Day of Double Bleſſing to this Church and Nation; there were drawn up by the Biſhops Additional Prayers, to be uſed together with thoſe appointed in the Service for the Fifth of November, with a new Collect and Goſpel in the Communion Service. Appointed by his Majeſty, Whitehall, Octob. 30. 1689. —— Yet ſome few of the Clergy declin'd to uſe the new Collect, or rather the new Clauſe in it, Make us, we beſeech thee, truly thankful for this, and for all other thy great Mercies towards us; particularly for making this Day again Memorable, by a freſh Inſtance of thy Loving Kindneſs towards us; we bleſs thee for giving his preſent Majeſty a ſafe Arrival here, and for making all Oppoſition fall before him, till he became our King and Governor. To the like Effect another Prayer after that for the Church Militant, as thankful for a double Deliverance on that Day. The wilful Omiſſion of thoſe Collects, or of the diſtinguiſhing Paragraphs in them, by thoſe of the Clergy who had taken the Oaths, and in all other Reſpects ſubmitted to the Government, was thought to be very diſingenuous and very ſcandalous. It was chiefly on this Occaſion that there was publiſh'd near the End of 1689. Reflections upon the Opinions of ſome Modern Divines, concerning the Nature of Government in General, and that of England in Particular, with an Appendix, concluding, That the Paſſive Obedience Men ought to repent of the Miſchiefs they had brought upon the Nation; for Eight ſeveral Reaſons, of which the laſt is, 8. They muſt repent, for that their Opinions at this Day are the Cauſes of the preſent Conſpiracies, Rebellions, and Treaſons againſt the Government, by which God has been pleas'd ſo graciouſly to ſecure our Liberty and Religion from the inevitable Ruin wherewith they were threatned. However, we have cauſe to bleſs God, that thoſe who are guilty of thoſe Sins, are but inconſiderable in their Numbers. And I ardently wiſh for them, they may once ſeriouſly enter into themſelves, and that by the Example of their Brethren, they may for Time to come employ all their Endeavours to make Reparation for the Miſchief and Scandal their Errors and Prejudices have in a great Meaſure brought both upon the Church and State. This excellent Treatiſe ſaid to be written by P. A. D. D. (I think Dr. Peter Allix) was put again into the firſt Volume of State Tracts, with the Copies of Magna Charta, and an Advertiſement concerning the Articles of the Magna Charta of King John, obſerving that theſe Articles were found in the Study of Biſhop Warner, late Biſhop of Rocheſter, and were communicated (meaning the Original in Parchment) by a Gentleman of that Family (meaning Colonel Lee, neareſt Kinſman an Heir of Biſhop Warner) to Mr. Geddes (Chancellor of Sarum) and by him to the preſent Biſhop of Saliſbury (Dr. Burnet.)

WIL-

1689. 1 W. M.

WILLIAM R.

Meſſage of the King to the Commons.

"HIS Majeſty having already declar'd his Reſolutions to proſecute the War in Ireland "with the utmoſt Vigor, and being deſirous to uſe "the Means that may be moſt Satisfactory and Effectual in order to it; is graciouſly pleas'd, That "this Houſe do recommend a Number of Perſons, not exceeding Seven, to be commiſſion'd by "his Majeſty to take Care of the Proviſions, and "ſuch other Preparations as ſhall be neceſſary for "thrt Service.

"His Majeſty is farther pleas'd to let the Houſe "know, That upon Conſideration of the Addreſs "of the 11th of November, he gives them Leave "to nominate ſome Perſons to go over into Ireland, "to take an Account of the Number of the Army "there, and the State and Condition of it; who "ſhall receive his Majeſty's Orders accordingly. But on Dec. 2d, it was reſolv'd, "That this Houſe "doth humbly deſire to be excus'd from recommending any Perſons to his Majeſty, to be employ'd in the Service of Ireland; and humbly "leave it to his Majeſty's great Wiſdom, to nominate fit Perſons for that Service. And whereas "an Addreſs had been prepar'd, and preſented to "his Majeſty, That he wou'd pleaſe to let this "Houſe know, who recommended Commiſſary "Shales to his Majeſty, and adviſ'd his being employ'd? Mr. Dolben reported, That the Committee had attended his Majeſty with that Addreſs, and that his Majeſty was pleas'd to give this Anſwer: Gentlemen, it is impoſſible for me to give you an Anſwer to this Queſtion. On the ſame Day, Mr. Speaker attended his Majeſty at the Banqueting-Houſe in Whitehall, and preſented the Thanks of the Houſe to his Majeſty, for his moſt gracious Meſſage of Saturday laſt, with the Reſolution of the Houſe upon it. And his Majeſty was pleas'd to give this Anſwer: Gentlemen, I ſhall take all the Care that may be, to carry on the War in Ireland with Vigor, and to employ ſuch Perſons as may be moſt proper for the Service; and I doubt not but that I ſhall have the Aſſiſtance of the Houſe of Commons, to carry it on in ſuch a Manner, as may be according to your Deſires, and my Intentions.

The King's Anſwer to the Commons.

But the Complaints of Miſmanagement (a) were ſo great, that, on Dec. 14th, the Houſe reſolved, "That an humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, to lay before him the ill Conduct and Succeſs of our Affairs, in reference to Ireland, the Armies and Fleet: And humbly to deſire his Majeſty, That he will pleaſe to take it into his Conſideration, and in his Wiſdom to find out the "Authors of theſe Miſcarriages, and to appoint "Affairs to be manag'd by Perſons unſuſpected, "and more to the Safety of his Majeſty, and Satisfaction of his Subjects.

Acts paſſed.

On Dec. 16th, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Lords, and the Commons being ſent for up, he gave his Royal Aſſent to, (1.) An Act, granting to their Majeſties an Aid of Two Shillings in the Pound, for One Year. (2.) An Act for declaring the Rights of the Subject, and Settling the Succeſſion of the Crown. (3.) An Act for naturalizing William Watts an Infant. (4.) An Act for declaring John Rogerſon to be a natural born Subject of this Realm. The Commons returning to their Houſe, deſir'd Mr. Speaker to print his Speech made this Day to his Majeſty, upon preſenting the Money-Bill, which was as follows.

May it pleaſe your Majeſty;

The Speaker's Speech to the King.

"YOur dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in this preſent Parliament aſſembled, "taking into Conſideration, the great and neceſſary "Expences your Majeſty will ſuſtain, in the Proſecution of the War, wherein your Majeſty is now "engaged, did, at their firſt Meeting in this preſent Seſſion, unanimouſly agree, to preſent your "Majeſty with a Supply of Two Millions; the "greateſt Part of which they reſolv'd to charge upon their Lands, as the moſt ſpeedy and effectual "Way of raiſing preſent Money for this Occaſion. "But finding that great Abuſes had been committed, in aſſeſſing the late Supply of the like Nature, they have endeavour'd to provide againſt "thoſe Abuſes in raiſing of this preſent Tax; the "Conſideration whereof hath taken up much of "their Time, and produced a Bill of an unuſual "Length, which I now offer to your Majeſty's gracious Acceptance.

"They have likewiſe agreed upon a Bill for declaring of their Rights and Liberties, which were "ſo notoriouſly violated in the late Reign; humbly "deſiring your Majeſty to give Life to it, by the "Royal Aſſent: That ſo it may remain not only a "Security to them from the like Attempts hereafter, but be a laſting Monument to all Poſterity, "of what they owe to your Majeſty for their Deliverance.

Proceedings againſt the Ld Griffin.

In the mean Time, the Houſe of Lords had often requir'd the Lord Griffin to attend: But he ſtill refuſing to appear, their Lordſhips deſir'd the King, by an Addreſs, to ſummon him, by his Royal Proclamation, at ſuch a Day as his Majeſty ſhould appoint, either to their Houſe, (if then actually Sitting) or to one of the Secretaries of State. His Lordſhip being accordingly ſummon'd, ſurrender'd himſelf to the Lord Nottingham: And on the 19th of October, having made his Appearance before the Houſe of Lords, the Speaker told him, That he knew what he had to do, before his Sitting in that Houſe. Whereupon his Lordſhip deſir'd Time to conſider of taking the Oaths, he not being prepar'd for for it: Which was readily granted. But immediately after this, a Packet was intercepted, which plainly diſcover'd how little he was inclin'd to own the preſent Government. This Diſcovery happen'd in the following Manner —— His Lordſhip having caus'd a large Pewter-Bottle to be made, with a double Bottom, order'd his Cook, at an unſeaſonable Hour of the Night, to get the falſe Bottom ſolder'd. The Pewterer finding a Pacquet between the Two Bottoms of the Bottle, began to ſuſpect ſomething; and the Cook not giving him a Satisfactory Anſwer about its Contents, he made bold to open it. The Superſcription of ſeveral Letters directed to King James, the Duke of Berwick, &c. juſtify'd the Pewterer's Suſpicion; who immediately ſeiz'd the Lord Griffin's Cook, and carried him to one of the Secretaries of State: But he being gone to Bed, and his Servants refuſing to admit the Pewterer to their Maſter's Preſence, the Lord Griffin, who by this Time began to apprehend what had befaln his Meſſenger, took this Opportunity to make his Eſcape. Beſides the Letters, there was found an Account of ſome private Reſolutions of the Council, and an exact Liſt of all the Land and Sea-Forces of England. Whereupon the Lord Griffin's Houſe and (a) In the mean Time a Book was to be wrote in France againſt the Revolution in England; and he who was moſt fit to write for King James and his Cauſe, was Father Marthe, who wrote in Vindication of the Repealing the Edict of Nants; he proves, that upon the Abdicating King James, Antichriſt was now in England, and that here the Beaſt with the Seven Heads and Ten Horns had his principal Seat, which he ſet forth with equal Strength of Reaſon and Truth, in a Book he call'd, Entretins touchant l'Enterpriſe du Prince d'Orange ſur l'Angleterre, on l'on prouve que ce le Action fait porter aux Proteſtans les characters d'Antichriſtianiſms, &c. It was printed at Paris about November 1689. by the French King's own Approbation. Licens'd by one of his own Miniſters, and written by his own Penſioner.

Pa-

1689. 1 W. M. Papers were ſearch'd, his Lady committed to the Tower, ſeveral ſuſpected Perſons arreſted, and the Cuſtom-Houſe Officers order'd to ſtop all unknown Perſons, that offer'd to croſs the Seas without Paſſes. The Lord Griffin having abſconded himſelf ſome few Days, and finding it difficult to go out of the Kingdom, ſurrender'd himſelf to the Earl of Shrewſbury (Secretary of State,) who having examin'd him, committed him to the Cuſtody of a Meſſenger, from whence he was ſent to the Tower. Thereupon the Commons appointed a Committee, to enquire how the Lord Griffin came to know a Reſolution, which the King had communicated to Four Perſons only: And the Lords addreſs'd his Majeſty, to let him underſtand, That the ſaid Lord being one of their Members, they were conſequently his proper Judges. The King having left the Cognizance of this Affair to the Peers, they began to examine the Papers intercepted in the Pewter-Bottle, which were the only Evidence againſt the Lord Griffin: And becauſe, ſome few Days before, it had been reſolv'd in that Houſe, "That Colonel Algernoon "Sidney was unjuſtly condemn'd, nothing but Wri-"tings found in his Cloſet, having been produc'd "againſt him;" the Earl of Rocheſter argu'd, from a Parity of Reaſon, in Favour of the Lord Griffin, who, after ſeveral warm Debates, was ſet at Liberty, upon ſufficient Bail.

Ld Preſton queſtioned.

While the Lord Griffin's Affair was depending, the Lord Preſton, Viſcount of Scotland, having preſented to the Houſe of Lords, a Patent from King James, dated from Verſailles, Jan. 21ſt, whereby he was created Baron of England; their Lordſhips voted him Guilty of High-Treaſon: But however, they thought fit to refer the Examination of that Matter to the Judges, their Aſſiſtants. My Lord Preſton pretended, That the Patent being dated one Day before the Meeting of the Convention, which had voted the Throne Vacant, it ought therefore to be Valid. To which it was anſwer'd, That the Vacancy was ſuppos'd to begin from the Moment King James left the Kingdom, whereby he abdicated the Government. The next Day the Judges brought in the Lord Preſton guilty of a High-Miſdemeanor, for which he was committed to the Tower. Not long after, his Lordſhip acknowledg'd, and begg'd Pardon for his Fault, by a Petition to the Lords, which was rejected, upon his ſubſcribing himſelf, Viſcount Preſton, without expreſſing of what Kingdom; the next Day he preſented another, wherein he ſtiled himſelf Viſcount of Scotland: And moreover, it being alledged in his Behalf, that by accepting a Patent from King James, he never meant an Affront to King William, but only to ſecure his own Perſon from Impriſonment, (being at that Time proſecuted at Law, by the Lord Mountague for a conſiderable Sum of Money,) he was releaſed from his Confinement without giving Bail.

Enquiry into the late Quo Warranto's.

The Lords acquainted the Commons, That they had appointed a Committee to enquire who had adviſ'd the iſſuing of Quo Warranto's againſt Corporations, and deſir'd that Mr. Hamden, Junior, and Mr. Trenchard, Two of their Members, might appear before the Committee they had nam'd, to find out the Authors and Promoters of the Execution of the Lord Ruſſel, Algernoon Sidney, Sir Thomas Armſtrong, and Mr. Corniſh. It is certain Mr. Hamden was able to give the Lords a great Light into that Affair, having been deeply engaged in that which was call'd the Presbyterian-Plot. Yet it is ſaid, this Enquiry was not ſo much intended againſt Mr. Hamden, as againſt the Marquis of Hallifax, who had endeavour'd Mr. Hamden's Ruin, by procuring a Note from the Duke of Monmouth, which made Hamden the chief Accomplice with the Lord Ruſſel. But the Duke afterwards repenting of having accuſed one of his beſt Friends, earneſtly demanded his Note from King Charles II. to whom the Marquis had deliver'd it, and which he at laſt obtain'd on this Condition, never to return into his Majeſty's Preſence. Mr. Hamden appear'd before the Lords Committee, and made a long Speech, wherein he rather aim'd at recommending himſelf than of diſcovering the Authors and Promoters of the Execution of his late Friends. He extoll'd his Services to the preſent Government, and plainly inſinuated, that the whole Intrigue of inviting over the Prince of Orange, had been manag'd by himſelf, and Mr. Johnſon a Scotchman. Indeed Mr. Hamden was apt to over-value his own Services and Abilities, and therefore made ſeveral Offers at being Secretary of State; but the King thought him of too warm a Temper for a Place that requires a Sedate Judicious Man. One Day Mr. Hamden, with Deſign to remind the King of his own Merits, repreſented to his Majeſty, that thoſe of Mr. Johnſton were ſtill left unrewarded; to which the King reply'd, That he had not forgot either Mr. Hamden or Mr. Johnſton. However, neither of 'em had much Reaſon to complain, the King having named the firſt to be his Envoy into Spain, and the other into Switzerland, which Employments they both refuſed; and thereupon Mr. Cocks, upon Mr. Hamden's Recommendation, was ſent to the Switz-Cantons, and Mr. Stanhope, Brother to the Lord Cheſterfield, but recommended by his own Merit, was diſpatch'd to Madrid. About the ſame Time the Lord Paget was ſent Envoy to the Emperor, and the Lord Durſley to Holland, to relieve the Earl of Pembroke, who was made a Privy-Councellor, and ſoon after Firſt Commiſſioner of the Admiralty, in the Room of Admiral Torrington, who voluntarily reſigned that Place.

The Important Bill to ſettle the Rights of the Subjects, and the Succeſſion of the Crown, being paſſed the Houſe of Commons, and ſent to the Lords, their Lordſhips wiſely conſidering how far King James had gone towards the introducing the Popiſh Religion into the Nation, took ſpecial Care to prevent the like for the future, by adding a Clauſe to the Bill, "That the Kings and Queens of Eng- Lords add a Clauſe to the Bill of Rights and Succeſſion.
"land ſhould be obliged at their coming to the "Crown, to take the Teſt in the Firſt Parliament "that ſhould be call'd at the Beginning of their "Reign; and that if any King or Queen of Eng-"land ſhould embrace the Roman-Catholick Religi-"on, or marry with a Roman-Catholick Prince or "Princeſs, their Subjects ſhould be abſolv'd of "their Allegiance; and that the Crown and Go-"vernment of theſe Realms ſhould from Time to "Time deſcend to, and be enjoy'd by ſuch Perſons, "being Proteſtants, as ſhould have inherited the "ſame, in Caſe the ſaid Perſons ſo reconcil'd to "the Church of Rome, or marrying a Papiſt, as "aforeſaid, were naturally dead." Some Days after, the Lords made a farther Progreſs in the Bill; and becauſe the Diſpenſing Power was mention'd in it, as one of the chiefeſt Grievances, ſome were of Opinion, that ſuch a Power was a Prerogative inſeparable from the Crown, and that in ſome Caſes the King may diſpenſe, if not with a Law, yet with ſome Part of it. To ſupport this Opinion, they alledg'd, that there was a Statute prohibiting all Foreign-built Ships, or ſuch as had not been laden in this Kingdom, to trade to the Engliſh Plantations in America; but that nevertheleſs, for the Good of the Nation, the King might diſpenſe with that Statute, upon Account of the Negro-Trade, which the Engliſh drove with the Spaniards, and of which they had cut off the Dutch. Though little could be ſaid in Oppoſition to thoſe Reaſons, yet becauſe they ſtrain'd too high the Royal Prerogatives, (which the prevailing Party deſign'd to moderate,) and ſeem'd to juſtify the late Miſmanagements, they were rejected with ſome Heat. About this Time the Diſcontented grew ſo inſolent, being heartned by the ſlow Proceedings of the Commons, that the Lords thought thought it neceſſary to deſire his Majeſty to cauſe the Laws againſt Papiſts to be put in Execution.

1689.
1 W. M.

Debates upon Members having Places at Court.

Towards the beginning of December, there had been a Queſtion propounded in the Houſe of Commons, Whether a Perſon having a Place at Court, or any Dependance upon the King, ſhould be a Member of that Houſe? The Debate thereupon was very warm; but at laſt the Queſtion was carried in the Affirmative; it having been rightly urged, That if the Negative prevailed, the fitteſt Perſons for Publick Employments would remain excluded, and be debarr'd the Opportunity of ſerving either the King or their Country. About the middle of the Month, the Commons in a general Committee, conſidering the State of the Nation, ſome of the diſſatisfied Members made grievous Complaints of the late Miſcarriages, and caſt them directly upon the preſent Miniſtry. And he that ſpoke the loudeſt on this Occaſion was Mr. Hamden, Junior, who made a long Speech againſt thoſe that had the Management of Affairs, by ſaying, "He could not but wonder "to ſee thoſe very Perſons in the Miniſtry whom "the late King James had employ'd, even when his "Affairs were moſt deſperate, to treat with the "then Prince of Orange. He alledg'd the Example "of William, Firſt Prince of Orange, who never "made uſe of the Duke of Alva's Miniſters; of "Henry IV. of France, who never employed thoſe "of his Competitor the Duke of Mayenne; and "of ſeveral other Princes; and mov'd for an Addreſs to deſire his Majeſty to remove the Perſons "he had mark'd out from his Preſence and Councils. This Speech might have made a greater Impreſſion, but that at the ſame time he complained that ſeveral Common-Wealth's-Men were employ'd by the Government; upon which the whole Houſe broke out into a general Laughter, as knowing that He, his Father, and their Predeceſſors had been always reputed of the Republican-Party. Aſſoon as the Commons had recover'd their Gravity, ſeveral Members ſtood up in Defence of the illuſtrious Perſons on whom Mr. Hamden had reflected; alledging, "That the Reaſon why they had been deputed to "the Prince of Orange, was not becauſe they were "in King James's Intereſt, but rather, becauſe they "had all along diſapprov'd his Conduct, and as "ſuch had the general Eſteem of the Nation, and "were moſt likely to be agreeable to his Highneſs". However, Mr. Hamden did not altogether loſe his Point, for the Houſe Voted an Addreſs, to lay before his Majeſty the ill Conduct and Succeſs of Affairs, and to find out the Authors of thoſe Miſcarriages. Mr. Hamden being named, among others, to draw up this Addreſs, gave People occaſion to think, that his principal Aim was to have the Earl of Nottingham removed, that he might himſelf ſtep into his Place of Secretary of State, to which he eagerly aſpired, as preſuming much upon his own Knowledge of Foreign Affairs. Before the Holy-days, Mr. Hamden, Jun. brought in the Form of an Addreſs to the Commons, but it contain'd ſuch a tedious Detail of Miſcarriages and Misfortunes, that ſeveral Members, and Mr. Hamden the Father, ſpoke againſt it, and inſiſted to have it drawn over again; to which the other Party agreed, tho' on a different Reaſon; that it ought indeed to be drawn up in another Form, not in order to contract, but rather to enlarge it; and the Addreſs was return'd for that Purpoſe.

Debates upon the Revenue for the Princeſs Anne.

Another Matter which occaſion'd warm Debates, was the ſettling a Part of the Publick Revenue on the Princeſs Anne of Denmark, which divided the Houſe into three Parties. The Lord Elan, Son to the Marquis of Halifax, Mr. Finch, and Mr. Godolphin, who ſpoke in Favour of her Royal Highneſs, inſiſted that Seventy Thouſand Pounds per Annum, was as little as could be allowed her, as it had been repreſented in the former Seſſion. Some who conſidered the Publick Neceſſities, would have that Sum reduced to Fifty thouſand Pounds; and others again being thought to be influenced and inſtructed by the King, were for leaving that Matter wholly to his Majeſty's Diſcretion. Mr. Hamden, Jun. who few Days before had thundered againſt the Court and Miniſtry, did now ſide with this laſt Party, and pleaded the Danger of ſettling a Revenue on a Princeſs that had ſo near a Claim to the Crown, independently upon the King, whoſe Title was diſputed by many Malecontents; and ſupported his Argument by the Example of the Queen, on whom it had lately been propoſed to ſettle an Hundred Thouſand Pounds a Year; but which was thought improper, and therefore rejected, though her Majeſty had no ſeparate Intereſt from that of her Royal Conſort. However, his Opinion was not followed, and the Debate was adjourned to the next Day. In the mean time his Majeſty, who was unwilling that ſo nice an Affair ſhould be ſo loudly canvaſs'd in Parliament, ſent the Earl of Shrewsbury and Mr. Wharton to her Royal Highneſs, with Deſign to perſwade her to rely on his Generoſity: But the Princeſs, who was for a fixed Settlement, prudently anſwered, "That ſince that Affair was before the Commons it "muſt e'en take its Courſe, and be concluded by "that Wiſe-Body. So on Wedneſday, Dec. 18. the Houſe Order'd an Humble Addreſs, "That his "Majeſty would be pleaſed to make a Proviſion for "the Prince and Princeſs Anne of Denmark, of "Fifty thouſand Pounds a Year, beginning at Chriſtmas next". And Mr. Speaker, with the Members, going to Whitehall to preſent this Addreſs, his Majeſty was pleaſed to return this Anſwer: "GENTLEMEN, Whatſoever comes from the "Houſe of Commons is ſo agreeable to Me, and particularly this Addreſs, That I ſhall do what you "deſire of Me.

Her Royal Highneſs's Prudent Anſwer.

On the ſame Day, Monday, Dec. 23. his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave his Royal Aſſent to, (1.) An Act to prevent Doubts and Queſtions concerning the Collection of the Publick Revenue. (2.) An Act for puniſhing Officers and Soldiers who ſhall Mutiny or Deſert their Majeſty's Service; and for puniſhing Falſe Muſters. (3.) An Act to enable the Lord Viſcount Hereford, to make a Jointure upon his Marriage with Mrs. Elizabeth Norbone, notwithſtanding his Minority.

Acts paſſed.

Upon the Bill for Reſtoring Corporations to their Ancient Rights and Liberties, a Clauſe was offered and agreed to, Jan. 2. To incapacitate for Seven Years ſuch as had any ways acted in the Surrenders of Charters, from bearing any Office in the ſaid Corporations: But at the third Reading, on Jan. 10. this Clauſe was rejected, and the Bill carried up to the Lords without it. On Jan. 4. a Bill was brought in, For Sale of the Eſtates that were forfeited by thoſe that were now in Rebellion againſt their Majeſties in the Kingdom of Ireland. On Jan. 9. Francis Cholmondley, Eſq; a Member of the Houſe of Commons, was by the Speaker's Warrant Committed Priſoner to the Tower of London, for his Contempt in refuſing to take the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, appointed to be taken by the Members of the Houſe; and it was Ordered, That a Bill be brought in to Enjoin the taking of the Oath of Allegiance by all Perſons above the Age of Sixteen Years, and to require the Juſtices of the Peace to tender the ſame; and to commit ſuch Perſons to Priſon without Bail or Mainpriſe, as ſhall refuſe to take the ſame.

Other Proceedings in Parliament.

On Thurſday, Jan. 16. his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Lords, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, (1.) An Act for a Grant to their Majeſties of an Additional Aid of Twelve-pence in the Pound for One Year. (2.) An Act for the Charging and Collecting the Duties upon Coffee, Tea, and Chocolate, at the Cuſtom-Houſe. (3.) An Act for Settling a Maintenance on the Children of Sidney Wortley, alias Montague, Eſq; in Caſe his Wife ſurvived him.

Acts paſſed.

1689. 1 W. M.

Debates on reverſing the Attainder of Sir Thomas Armſtrong.

On Debate of the Bill for annulling the Attainder of Sir Thomas Armſtrong, and for enquiring who were his Proſecutors, Sir Robert Sawyer, then Attorney-General, was named by Mrs. Matthews, Daughter of Sir Thomas Armſtrong, as one of her Father's greateſt Adverſaries: Upon which it was Reſolved, on Monday, Jan. 20. "That Sir Robert "Sawyer's Name be put into the Bill, as one of the "Proſecutors of Sir Thomas Armſtrong; and that he "be expell'd the Houſe for the ſame.

Debates upon Protections given by the Members.

Upon Debate of the Privileges of the Houſe, and the Abuſe of Protections given by ſeveral Members; it was Order'd, "That all Protections and "written Certificates of the Members of this Houſe, "be declar'd Void in Law, and be forthwith withdrawn and call'd in; and that none be granted "for the future: And that if any ſhall be granted "by any Member, ſuch Member ſhall be liable to "the Cenſure of this Houſe. And that the Privilege of Members for their Menial Servants be "obſerv'd according to Law: And that if any "Menial Servant ſhall be arreſted and detained, "contrary to Privilege, he ſhall (upon Complaint "thereof made to the Speaker) be diſcharg'd by "Order from him. And that this be declar'd to be "the Standing Order of the Houſe." On the ſame Day, Jan. 25. the Houſe proceeding upon the Bill of Indemnity, and the Bill of Pains and Penalties to be inflicted upon ſuch as ſhall be excepted out of the Bill of Indemnity; they agreed, "That Perſons might be juſtly excepted out of the ſaid Bill "for any of theſe following Crimes. 1. The Aſſerting, Adviſing, and Promoting of the Diſpenſing Power, and Suſpending of Laws without Conſent of Parliament. 2. The Commitment and Proſecution of the Seven Biſhops. 3. The Adviſing, "Promoting and Executing the Commiſſion for Erecting the late Courts for Eccleſiaſtical Cauſes. "4. The Adviſing the Levying Money, and the Collecting the ſame, for and to the Uſe of the Crown, "by Pretence of Prerogative, for other Time, and "in other Manner than the ſame was granted by "Parliament. 5. The Adviſing the Raiſing and "Keeping up a Standing Army in the Time of "Peace, without Conſent of Parliament; and the "Quartering of Soldiers. 6. The Adviſing, Procuring, Contriving and Acting in the Surrendring "Charters, and in the Alteration and Subverſion of "Corporations, and in procuring of New Charters, "and the Violating of the Rights and Freedoms of "Elections to Parliaments, and to queſtion the "Proceedings of Parliament out of Parliament, by "Declarations, Informations, or otherwiſe. 7. Undue Conſtructions of Law, and the Undue and "Illegal Proſecutions and Proceedings in Capital "Caſes. 8. The Undue Returns of Juries, and "other Illegal Proceedings in Civil Cauſes. 9. The "requiring exceſſive Bail, impoſing exceſſive Fines, "giving exceſſive Damages, and uſing undue Means "for Levying ſuch Fines and Damages, and inflicting cruel and unuſual Puniſhments. 10. The adviſing King Charles the II. and King James the II. "by ſome of their Judges and Council, that Parliaments needed not be called according to the Statutes. 11. The procuring the Commiſſion to execute Martial-Law in the Iſland of St. Helena, or "Signing the Inſtructions for putting the ſame in "Execution. 12. The Regulating of Corporations "and Boroughs in the Reign of the late King "James the II. and the promiſing to take off the "Penal-Laws and Teſt. 13. The undertaking in "the Reign of the late King James the II. to "repair the Ships of War, and receiving Money "for that Service, and the not performing the ſame.

Perſons to be excepted out of the Bill of Indemnity.

Acts paſſed.

On Monday, Jan. 27. his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Lords, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, (1.) An Act for the Review of the Poll-Bill, and for an Additional Poll. (2.) An Act to prevent Vexatious Suits againſt ſuch as acted in order to the bringing in their Majeſties, or for their Service. 3. An Act for the better Security and Relief of the Iriſh Proteſtants. (4.) An Act to diſcharge the Duke of Norfolk, upon Payment of certain Sums of Money to the Lady Elizabeth Tereſa Ruſſel, Wife of Bartholomey Ruſſel, Eſq; (5.) An Act to enable the Earl of Radnor to make a Joynture to his Wife, and to raiſe a Sum of Money out of divers Lands and Tenements in Cornwal. (6.) An Act to enable Thomas Edon, Eſq; to Sell Lands to pay his Debts, and to make Proviſion for his Wife, and for his Children, in caſe he ſhould have any. (7.) An Act to enable William Batſon, Eſq; to Sell Lands in the County of Oxon, and to purchaſe and ſettle an Eſtate in the County of Suffolk to the ſame Uſes.

After which his Majeſty made a moſt gracious Speech to both Houſes, which follows;

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

"I Am ſo ſenſible of the Readineſs you have "ſhew'd to Supply me with Money for the "carrying on the Wars I am engaged in, that I am "glad of this Occaſion, to give you Thanks for "your chearful Diſpatch of that Matter, which "was abſolutely neceſſary for the Common Safety.

"The beſt Return I can make to your Kindneſs, "is, to aſſure you, That as far as it will go, it ſhall "all be employ'd to the Purpoſes it was given.

"It is a very ſenſible Affliction to Me, to ſee my "good People burthen'd with heavy Taxes; but "ſince the ſpeedy Recovering of Ireland, is in my "Opinion, the only Means to eaſe them, and to "preſerve the Peace and Honour of the Nation, "I am reſolv'd to go thither in Perſon, and with "the Bleſſing of GOD Almighty, endeavour to "reduce that Kingdom, that it may no longer be "a Charge to this.

"And as I have already ventur'd my Life for the "Preſervation of the Religion, Laws, and Liberties "of this Nation; ſo I am now willing again to expoſe it, to ſecure you the quiet Enjoyment of them.

"The Spring draws on, and it being requiſite I "ſhould be be early in the Field, I muſt immediately "apply my Thoughts to the giving Orders for the "neceſſary Preparations: Which that I may have "the more Leiſure to do, I have thought convenient now to put an end to this Seſſion.

And then the Right Honourable Sir Robert Atkyns, Lord Chief Baron of their Majeſty's Court of Exchequer, and Speaker of the Houſe of Peers, ſaid;

Parliament prorogu'd.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"It is his Majeſty's Pleaſure, That this Parliament be prorogued to the Second Day of April "next: And this Parliament is prorogued to the "Second Day of April next.

Loyalty of the City of London.

The City of London were ſo ſenſible of their Liberties reſtor'd to them, that they paid all poſſible Duty and Honour to King William: And Sir Thomas Pilkington being continued Lord-Mayor for the Year, 1690, in the Name of the City invited the King and Queen, the Prince and Princeſs of Denmark, and both Houſes of Parliament, to Dinner at Guildhall, on the uſual Solemnity, Octob. 29. when their Majeſties, attended by their Royal Highneſſes, and a numerous Train of the Nobility and Gentry, went firſt to a Balcony prepar'd for them in Cheapſide to ſee the Show; which for the great Number of Livery-Men, the full Appearance of the Militia and Artillery; the rich Adornments of the Pageants, and the ſplendid and good Order of the whole Proceeding, out-did all that had been ſeen before upon the like Occaſion; and what deſerves to be particularly mention'd, was a Royal Regiment of Volunteer Horſe, made up of the chief Citizens; who being very richly accouter'd, and led by the Earl of Monmouth, attended their Majeſties from Whitehall. The Cavalcade being paſt by, the King and Queen were conducted by the two Sheriffs to Guildhall, where they and their numerous Retinue were entertained tained with a magnificent Feaſt. His Majeſty, to expreſs his Satisfaction, conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on Chriſtopher Lethuillier and John Houblon, Eſq; the two Sheriffs, and on Edward Clarke and Francis Child two of the Aldermen. At their Majeſties Return in the Evening, the Soldiers had, at convenient Diſtances, lighted Flambeaus in their Hands; the Houſes were all Illuminated, the Bells Ringing; and nothing was omitted through the whole Courſe of this Day's Solemnity, either by the Magiſtrates, or the People, that might ſhow their Reſpect and Veneration, as well as their dutiful Affection and Loyalty to their Majeſties; and the Senſe they have of the Happineſs they enjoy under their moſt benign and gracious Government. Not many Days after, ſome violent Malecontents offer'd an Indignity to the King's Picture in the Guildhall, by cutting away the Sceptre and Crown: Whereupon the Lord-Mayor and Court of Aldermen promiſed a Reward of Five-hundred Pounds to any that ſhould diſcover the Author of that Inſolence.

1689. 1 W. M.

Honours and Preferments.

As to other Honours and Preferments conferr'd this Year: At the beginning of November, his Majeſty was pleas'd to create Richard Lord Coote (Baron of Coloony in Ireland) an Earl of that Kingdom, by the Name of Earl of Bellamont. About the middle of the Month, his Majeſty appointed Thomas Kirke, Eſq; to be his Conſul at Genoa; Lambert Blackwel, Eſq; to be his Conſul at Leghorne; Walter Dolman, Eſq; his Conſul at Alicant; Hugh Broughton, Eſq; his Conſul at Venice; Lancelot Stepney, Eſq; his Conſul in the City and Port of Oporto in the Kingdom of Portugal; and James Paul, Eſq; his Conſul for the Iſlands of Zant, Corfu, Cefalonia and Theaca, with the other adjacent Iſlands belonging to the Venetian Territories; and the Province of Morea, with the Iſlands, Ports, and Diſtricts of and belonging to the ſame: And ſoon after his Majeſty was pleas'd to conſtitute Robert Godſhall, Eſq; his Conſul at Seville, St. Lucar, and Places adjacent, within the Kingdom of Spain. On Dec. 14, his Majeſty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood, in his Bed-Chamber, upon William Cranmore, Eſq; who preſented a Loyal Addreſs of divers Engliſh Merchants in and about the City of London. On Dec. 23d, his Majeſty Knighted Thomas Miller of Chicheſter, Eſq; in conſideration of his great Loyalty and Services. On Feb. 13th, Sir Henry Goodrick, Kt. and Bar. (Lieutenant-General of their Majeſties Ordnance) was Sworn of the Privy-Council. On Feb. 19th, his Majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute William Cheney, Eſq; Sir John Knatchbull, Bar. and Sir Wil. Pulteney, Kt. his Commiſſioners for executing the Office of Keeper of the Privy-Seal. On March 19th, his Majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute Sir John Lowther of Lowther, Bar. Vice Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold; Richard Hamden, Eſq; (who was alſo made Chancellor of the Exchequer,) Thomas Pelham, Eſq; and Sir Stephen Fox, Lords-Commiſſioners of the Treaſury; and Henry Guy, Eſq; to be one of the Commiſſioners of their Majeſties Cuſtoms, in the Place of Mr. Pelham.

State of Religion.

As to the State of Religion, it was natural for the Roman-Catholicks to repine at the preſent Settlement, as apprehending their late Hopes were extinguiſh'd, and the Fears of Perſecution were coming on 'em; ſince they had loſt a King, whom they always eſteem'd to be rais'd by GOD Almighty, to re-eſtabliſh the Roman Faith and Worſhip in theſe Kingdoms: But it was ſtrange, to ſee ſome of the (a) Higher Churchmen diſguſted with a

Some Churchmen diſguſted at the Revolution.

Revolution, that ſeem'd to have been accompliſh'd under the particular Direction of HEAVEN, for the Preſervation of the Reform'd Eſtabliſh'd Religion. Theſe Men murmur'd at the preſent Poſture of Affairs, whiſpering, That all was illegal and unjuſtifiable; That the Doctrine of the Jeſuits, in Abſolving from Oaths of Allegiance, was now practically tranſlated into Engliſh: But that King James would ſhortly return with a powerful Army, and ſettle Things upon a right Foundation; for the Intereſt of the Church of England was involv'd with that of His Majeſty, and that the one could not ſubſiſt without the Reſtoration of the other. Theſe Seditious Inſinuations were countenanc'd by ſome Divines, who refus'd to take the Oaths: And therefore to give Satisfaction in this Point, ſeveral of the Biſhops and Clergy, in Sermons and Diſcourſes, did abundantly juſtify the Revolution, upon the Principles of Nature, Scripture, and the Engliſh Conſtitution. Among others, Dr. Burnet (Biſhop of Salisbury) addreſs'd a Paſtoral Letter, dated May the 15th, to the Clergy of his Dioceſe, concerning the Allegiance due to King William and Queen Mary; wherein he happen'd to offend by one Topick, the Right of Conqueſt; tho' he did but modeſtly alledge, "That there were few of thoſe who did not "think, That the King, when he was Prince of "Orange, had a juſt Cauſe of War when he firſt undertook this Expedition: For even at Common "Law, an Heir in Remainder has juſt Cauſe to "ſue him that is in Poſſeſſion, if he makes Waſte on "the Inheritance which is in Reverſion. That it is "much more reaſonable, (ſince the Thing is much "more important,) That the Heir of a Crown ſhould "interpoſe, when he ſees him that is in Poſſeſſion "hurry'd on blindfold, to ſubject an Independent "Kingdom to a Foreign Juriſdiction, and thereby to "rob it both of its Glory and of its Security: That "when it is manifeſt, that this muſt occaſion the "greateſt Ruin and Miſeries poſſible to that Kingdom; and when a Pretended Heir was ſet up in "ſuch a Manner, that the whole Kingdom believ'd "him ſpurious; in ſuch a Caſe, it could not be "deny'd, even according to the higheſt Principles "of Paſſive Obedience, that another Sovereign "Prince might make War upon a King ſo abuſing his Power. That this being the Caſe in "Fact, here was a War begun upon juſt and lawful Grounds; and being ſo begun, it was the uncontroverted Opinion of all Lawyers, That the "Succeſs of a juſt War, gives a lawful Title to that "which is acquir'd in the Progreſs of it; and therefore King James having ſo far ſunk in the War, "that he abandon'd his People, and deſerted the "Government, all his Right and Title did accrue "to King William, in the Right of a Conqueſt over "him. But tho' with Relation to King James's "Rights, he was veſted with them by the Succeſſes of a War, yet His Majeſty was willing (with "Relation to the Peers and People of England) to "receive the Crown by their Determination, rather than to hold it in the Right of his Sword." The like Argument was more boldly purſu'd about Three Years after, in a Pamphlet entitled, King William and Queen Mary Conquerors, ſuppos'd to be written by Mr. Blount; at which the Parliament then ſitting were ſo offended, that they order'd both that Pamphlet and the Biſhop's Letter to be publickly burnt by the Common Executioner; tho' this latter ſeems then to be ſacrific'd to a poor Jeſt upon the Author's Name.

Others did vindicate and adhere to it.

Biſhop Burnet's Paſtoral Letter.

On April 4 the Houſe of Lords enter'd into a Conſideration of the Report of the Amendments in

(a) See a Letter concerning Allegiance, written by Dr. Henry Compton, Lord Biſhop of London, to a Clergyman in Eſſex, preſently after the Revolution; tho' not publiſh'd till upon Occaſion of the Addreſs of the London Clergy in 1710. beginning, "Sir, I am extremely ſorry ſo unhappy a Spirit ſhould "reign at this Time of Day, that after ſo miraculous a Deliverance as we have had, may endanger our Return again into Egypt, &c."

1689. 1 W. M.

Proceedings of the Lords in Matters of Religion.

the Bill for (b) Uniting Their Majeſties Proteſtant Subjects; and upon Debate, the Queſtion was put, "Whether to agree with the Committee, in leaving "out the Clauſe about the Indifferency of the Poſture at Receiving the Sacrament?" The Votes were equal; and therefore, according to the Ancient Rule in the like Caſes, it was carry'd in the Negative. The next Day, the Lords reſum'd the Debate of the Report of the ſaid Amendments, particularly of the Clauſe concerning a Commiſſion to be given out by the King, to ſome Biſhops and others of the Clergy; and it being propoſed, Whether ſome of the Laity ſhould be added? The Votes were again equal on both Sides, and ſo it was again carry'd in the Negative; but ſome Peers enter'd their Diſſents for theſe Reaſons:

Commiſſion for Reviewing the Liturgy.

"Firſt, Becauſe the Act it ſelf being (as the "Preamble ſets forth) deſign'd for the Peace of the "State; the putting the Clergy into Commiſſion, "with a total Excluſion of the Laity, lays this Hu-"miliation on the Laity, as if the Clergy of the "Church of England were alone Friends to the "Peace of the State, and the Laity leſs able, or leſs "concern'd to provide for it.

"2. Becauſe the Matter to be conſider'd being "barely of Human Conſtitution, (viz. the Liturgy "and Ceremonies of the Church of England, which "had their Eſtabliſhment from King, Lords Spiri-"tual and Temporal, and Commons aſſembled in "Parliament) there can be no Reaſon why the Com-"miſſioners for altering any Thing in that Civil "Conſtitution, ſhould conſiſt only of Men of one "Sort of them; unleſs it be ſuppoſed, that Hu-"man Reaſon is to be quitted in this Affair, and "the Inſpiration of Spiritual Men to be alone de-"pended on.

"3. Becauſe tho' upon Romiſh Principles the "Clergy may have the Title to meddle alone in "Matters of Religion, yet with us they cannot; "where the Church is acknowledg'd and defin'd to "conſiſt of Clergy and Laity; and ſo thoſe Mat-"ters of Religion which fall under Human Deter-"mination, being properly the Buſineſs of the "Church, belong equally to both; for in what is "of Divine Inſtitution, neither Clergy nor Laity "can make any Alteration at all.

"4. Becauſe the pretending, That Differences "and Delays may ariſe, by mixing Laymen with "Eccleſiaſticks, to the fruſtrating the Deſign of "the Commiſſion, is vain and out of doors; unleſs "thoſe that make uſe of this Pretence, ſuppoſe "that the Clergy-Part of the Church have diſtinct "Intereſts or Deſigns from the Lay-Part of the "ſame Church; and will be a Reaſon, if good, "why one or other of them ſhould quit this Houſe, "for fear of obſtructing the Buſineſs of it.

"5. Becauſe the Commiſſion being intended for "the Satisfaction of Diſſenters, it would be conve-"nient, that Laymen of different Ranks, nay, per-"haps of different Opinions too, ſhould be mix'd "in it, the better to find Expedients for that End; "rather than Clergymen alone of our Church, who "are generally obſerv'd to have all very much the "ſame way of Reaſoning and Thinking.

1689. 1 W. M.

"6. Becauſe it is the moſt ready way to faci-"litate the Paſſing the Alterations into a Law, that "Lay-Lords and Commoners ſhould be join'd in "the Commiſſion; who may be able to ſatisfy "both Houſes of the Reaſons upon which they "were made, and thereby remove all Fears and "Jealouſies ill Men may raiſe up againſt the Cler-"gy, of their endeavouring to keep up, without "Grounds, a diſtinct Intereſt from that of the Laity, "whom they ſo carefully exclude from being join'd "with them in Conſultations of common Concern-"ment, that they will not have thoſe have any Part "in the Deliberation, who muſt have the greateſt "in Determining.

"7. Becauſe ſuch a reſtrain'd Commiſſion lies "liable to this great Objection; That it might be "made uſe of to elude repeated Promiſes, and the "preſent General Expectation of Compliance with "Tender Conſciences, when the Providing for it is "taken out of the ordinary Courſe of Parliament, "to be put into the Hands of thoſe alone who were "lateſt in admitting any Need of it, and who may "be thought to be the more unfit to be the Sole "Compoſers of our Differences, when they are "look'd upon (by ſome) as Parties.

"Laſtly, Becauſe, after all, this carries a dange-"rous Suppoſition along with it, as if the Laity "were not a Part of the Church, nor had any Pow-"er to meddle in Matters of Religion; a Suppoſi-"tion directly oppoſite to the Conſtitution both of "Church and State: Which will make all Altera-"tions utterly impoſſible, unleſs the Clergy alone "be allow'd to have Power to make Laws in Mat-"ters of Religion; ſince what is eſtabliſh'd by Law, "cannot be taken away, but by Conſent of Lay-"men in Parliament; the Clergy themſelves ha-"ving no Authority to meddle in this very Caſe, in "which the Laity are excluded by this Vote, but "what they derive from Lay-Hands.

Subſcrib'd,

Wincheſter, Mordant, Lovelace.

I Diſſent, for this and other Reaſons; becauſe it is contrary to Three Statutes made in the Reign of King Henry VIII. and One in King Edward VI. which impower Thirty two Commiſſioners to alter the Canon and Eccleſiaſtical Law, &c. whereof Sixteen to be of the Laity, and Sixteen of the Clergy. (b)

STAMFORD.

Act of Toleration.

On May the 24th, the Act of Toleration, or Liberty of Conſcience, receiv'd the Royal Aſſent, entitled, An Act for Exempting their Majeſty's Proteſtant

(a) A Treatiſe was purpoſely written and publiſh'd, to recommend the Deſign of uniting Proteſtants, by a Bill of Comprehenſion, entitled, A Letter from a Divine to a Member of Parliament, in Defence of the Bill for Uniting Proteſtants. Licenſed by Command of the Earl of Shrewsbury, April 1. 1689. The firſt Paſſage in this Treatiſe was read in the Houſe of Peers, by the Biſhop of Lincoln, in his Speech upon the Impeachment of Dr. Henry Sacheverell.—— And another Paſſage deſerves to be here tranſcrib'd; namely, "We cannot but "hope that we ſhall have ſome Fruit of this Bill among the "ſincere Diſſenters at preſent; but to be ſure we ſhall by this "Means ſecure the next Generation. And for the French, and "German, and other Foreign Chriſtians of the Reform'd Re-"ligion; I am well aſſur'd, both by Converſation, and by "Letters lately ſent from Holland, Geneva, Switzerland, and "other Places, (not to ſpeak of the Churches of the Lutheran "Communion, which write the ſame) that they look upon "the Church of England at this Time as the Centre of Prote-"ſtant Unity; and eſteem the Conditions propos'd in this "Bill, (which have been communicated to them) as Terms "full of Chriſtian Moderation, and fit for the Uniting of Pro-"teſtants."

See the Account given by Dr. Nicholls, in his Defence of the Doctrine and Diſcipline of the Church of England; tranſlated from his firſt Latin Edition, 120. He ſays, "That whilſt this Bill "was paſſing, Dr. Tillotſon, a Perſon of an excellent Judg-"ment, and then Clerk of the Cloſet to the King, declared "his Opinion againſt it.——He urg'd the Referring this Mat-"ter to Synodical Authority; and if paſs'd in Convocation, "it would not only be more acceptable to the Body of the "Clergy, but would be more religiouſly obſerved by the "Laity.——Adviſing, firſt, To commiſſionate ſeveral of the "moſt Eminent of the Clergy to conſider of it.—What they "ſhould agree upon, to be conſider'd again in Convocation; "and what theſe ſhould conſent to, ſhould be eſtabliſh'd, firſt "by the Synodical, and afterwards by the Parliamentary Au-"thority.

(b) See the Grievances of the Church of England, which are not in the Power of the Governors of it to remedy. In XXIV Articles. Licenſed April 27. 1689. Printed for R. Baldwin.

See

1689. 1 W. M.

ſtant Subjects diſſenting from the Church of England, from the Penalties of certain Laws. The Reaſon of it was thus given in the Preamble: Foraſmuch as ſome Eaſe to Scrupulous Conſciences, in the Exerciſe of Religion, may be an effectual Means to unite their Majeſties Proteſtant Subjects in Intereſt and Affection; It was therefore enacted, "That none of "the Penal Laws ſhall be conſtrued to extend "to any Perſon or Perſons diſſenting from the "Church of England, that ſhall take the Oaths to "the preſent Government, and ſubſcribe the Declaration mention'd in Stat. 30. Car. II. Cap. 1. Pro-"vided, That no Aſſembly of Perſons ſo diſſenting "ſhould be had in any Place for Religious Worſhip "with the Doors lock'd, barr'd or bolted, during "the Time of ſuch Meeting together; and Provi-"ded, That nothing ſhould be conſtrued to exempt "any of the Perſons aforeſaid from Paying of "Tythes, or other Parochial Duties. If any Diſ-"ſenter ſhould be choſen or appointed to bear the "Office of Conſtable, Churchwarden, Overſeer, &c. "and ſhould ſcruple the Oaths requir'd by Law to "be taken, in reſpect of ſuch Office; he ſhall or "may execute ſuch Office or Employment by a "ſufficient Deputy. That all Preachers or Teachers "of any Congregation of Diſſenting Proteſtants, who "ſhall take the Oaths, and ſubſcribe the Declara-"tion aforeſaid, and alſo ſubſcribe the Articles of "Religion, mention'd in Stat. 13 Eliz. Cap. 12. "Except the 34th, 35th, and 36th, and theſe "Words in the 20th Article, [viz. The Church "hath Power to decree Rites or Ceremonies, and "Authority in Controverſies of Faith; and yet] "ſhall not be liable to any of the Pains and Penal-"ties mention'd in Stat. 17 Car. II. 2. 22 Car. II. "13 and 14 Car. II. Cap. 4. Every ſuch Teacher "ſhall be exempted from Serving upon any Jury, "or from being choſen and appointed to bear the "Office of Churchwarden, Overſeer of the Poor, &c. "But any Juſtice of Peace may require any Perſon, "that goes to any Meeting for Exerciſe of Religion, "to ſubſcribe the Declaration, and to take the "Oaths; and in caſe of Refuſal, is requir'd to com-"mit ſuch Perſon to Priſon, without Bail or Main-"priſe, &c." The like Liberty was given to Anabaptiſts: And the Quakers were admitted to it, on Condition of making this Declaration of Fidelity: I A. B. do ſincerely Promiſe, and ſolemnly Declare, before God and the World, That I will be True and Faithful to King William and Queen Mary; and I do ſolemnly Profeſs and Declare, That I do from my Heart, Abhor, Deteſt and Renounce, as Impious and Heretical, that Damnable Doctrine and Poſition, [That Princes Excommunicated or Deprived by the Pope, or any Authority of the See of Rome, may be Depoſed or Murthered by their Subjects, or any other whatſoever.] And I do Declare, That no Foreign Prince, Perſon, Prelate, State or Potentate, hath, or ought to have, any Power, Juriſdiction, Superiority, Pre-eminence or Authority, Eccleſiaſtical or Spiritual, within this Realm. And ſubſcribing a Profeſſion of their Chriſtian Belief in theſe Words: I A. B. Profeſs Faith in God the Father, and in Jeſus Chriſt his Eternal Son the True God, and in the Holy Spirit, One God Bleſſed for evermore; and do Acknowledge the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament, to be given by Divine Inſpiration. "Provided, That all "the Laws made for the frequenting Divine Ser-"vice on the Lord's-Day, ſhall be ſtill in Force and "Executed againſt all Perſons that Offend againſt "the ſaid Laws, except ſuch Perſons come to ſome "Congregations permitted by this Act. Provided, That "if any Perſon ſhall maliciouſly or contemptuouſly "come into any Cathedral, or Pariſh-Church, or "other Congregation, and diſquiet or diſturb the "ſame, or miſuſe any Preacher or Teacher, he "ſhall, upon Conviction, ſuffer the Penalty of "Twenty Pounds. And finally, Provided, That "no Congregation or Aſſembly for Religious Wor-"ſhip, ſhall be permitted or allowed by this Act, "until the Place of ſuch Meeting ſhall be certify'd "to the Biſhop of the Dioceſe, or to the Arch-"Deacon of that Archdeaconry, or to the Juſtices "of the Peace at the General or Quarter-Seſſions, "and Regiſtred in the ſaid Biſhop's or Arch-Dea-"con's Court, or Recorded at the ſaid General or "Quarter-Seſſions.

A Bill for Union more deſirable.

Tho' the Body of Diſſenters were contented with this Liberty, yet the more moderate and wiſer part of them would be glad to be taken into the National Eſtabliſhment; and there was indeed a Bill of Union ſtill depending in Parliament, (a) which paſs'd the Houſe of Lords; and when it came down to the Houſe of Commons, they deſir'd his Majeſty to ſummon a Convocation, and lay the Matter before them. Accordingly a Convocation was ſummon'd by the King's Writ, to meet on Dec. 4. In the mean time His Majeſty thought fit to fill up the vacant Sees: And therefore on Octob. 13. (b) Dr. Edw. Stillingfleet late Conſecration of Biſhops.

See an Account of Mr. Edward Sclater's Return to the Communion of the Church of England, and of the Publick Recantation he made at the Church of St. Mary Savoy, the 5th of May, 1689. By Anthony Horneck, D. D. With an Appendix of ſeveral Letters, written by the ſaid Mr. Sclater upon his Repentance. Printed in the Savoy, by Edw. Jones. 4to.

There began now a New Nonconformity among ſome of the Church-Divines, who ſcrupling the Oaths, did for ſome Time decline to pray for King William and Queen Mary. Of this Number, Dr. William Sherlock was the Chief Perſon; who tho' the moſt forward in wiſhing well to the Undertaking of the Prince of Orange, and who diſtinguiſh'd himſelf in the moſt early Waiting on the Prince when he came firſt to Whitehall, yet being not countenanc'd according to his Expectation, and being entangled in his Doctrine of Paſſive Obedience, (which he had carry'd higher than moſt other Writers) he had fallen back to be a Malecontent, and a Nonjuror; and yet continued to preach his Lecture at St. Dunſtan's in the Weſt. ——See his Caſe, entitled, The New Nonconformiſt, or Dr. Sherlock's Caſe in Preaching after a Deprivation incurr'd by the expreſs Words of a Statute, fairly ſtated and examin'd.—— With ſhort Reflections on Mr. Cook's Sermon, Feb. 2. 1689. which was Licenſed by the Archbiſhop's Chaplain. London, Printed 1690. Quarto.

And tho' he afterwards complied, and was greatly preferr'd, yet Mr. Sam. Johnſon was very bitter upon him in many of his Writings, particularly in theſe Words of his Notes on the Paſtoral Letter. "The Engliſh Prieſtcraft is the courſeſt that ever "I ſaw: The Romiſh is fine, and has made a delicate Book "of Father Paul's Trent Hiſtory; but ours will never make a "Book worth the reading: Theirs is the Depths of Satan, "and ours is his Shallows. For would any Man (to bring "Two very pitiful Caſes upon the Stage both at once, his "Caſe of Reſiſtance, and his Caſe of Allegiance; the firſt being "to authorize Tyranny in Exerciſe, and the other to authorize "Tyranny in Title, which we commonly call Uſurpation; and "having declar'd againſt Tyranny in Exerciſe in the mean "Time, and having likewiſe ſtood out againſt Tyranny in Ti-"tle for ſome Years) take this ſilly Method at laſt to recon-"cile all together? Firſt to caſtrate his firſt Book, and clear "it of a very material Paſſage againſt Uſurpation, that he "might make way for his Second Book of Uſurpation.—— Al-"legiance, which for a long Time he himſelf hath withſtood: "And Secondly, To make ſuch pitiful Excuſe for this Vari-"ance, both betwixt his Two Books and himſelf, as to ſay "That it was the Effect of his Study; and that he grew, "wiſer."

(a) On the 20th of April, 1689, there was an Addreſs of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal to his Majeſty to ſupport the Church of England as by Law eſtabliſh'd, and to call a Convocation. —— His Majeſties Anſwer concluded: And as ſoon as conveniently may be, I will ſummon a Convocation.

(b) See the Conſecration Sermon Preached by Dr. John Scot.

1689. 1 W. M.

late Dean of St. Paul's, Biſhop Elect of Worceſter; Dr. Simon Patrick, late Dean of Peterborough, Biſhop Elect of Chicheſter; and Dr. Gilbert Ironſide, late Warden of Wadham-College in Oxford, Biſhop Elect of Briſtol, were Conſecrated in the Chapel of Fulham-Palace by the Biſhops of London, St. Aſaph, and Rocheſter, by virtue of a Commiſſion granted to them in that behalf. And becauſe the time allowed by Act of Parliament for the Clergy to take the Oaths was expired, thoſe who refuſed to qualify themſelves were ſuſpended ab Officio; particularly the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the Biſhops of Gloceſter, Ely, Norwich, Bath and Wells, and Peterborough.

Nonjuring Biſhops ſuſpended

(a) In order to prepare Matters to be conſider'd by the Convocation, his Majeſty iſſued out this Legal and reaſonable Commiſſion to the moſt eminent Biſhops and Divines.

Form of Commiſſion for reviewing the Liturgy.

"WHereas the particular Forms of Divine Worſhip, and the Rites and Ceremonies appointed to be us'd therein, are Things in their own Nature indifferent and alterable, and ſo acknowledged: It is but reaſonable, that upon weighty and important Conſiderations, according to the various Exigencies of Times and Occaſions, ſuch Changes and Alterations ſhould be made therein, as to thoſe that are in Place and Authority, ſhould from time to time ſeem either Neceſſary or Expedient.

"And whereas the Book of Canons is fit to be Review'd, and made more ſuitable to the State of the Church. And whereas there are Defects and Abuſes in the Eccleſiaſtical Courts and Juriſdictions; and particularly, there is not ſufficient Proviſion made for the removing of ſcandalous Miniſters, and for the reforming of Manners either in Miniſters or People. And whereas it is moſt fit, that there ſhould be a ſtrict Method preſcrib'd for the Examination of ſuch Perſons as deſire to be admitted into Holy Orders, both as to their Learning and Manners.

"We therefore, out of our Pious and Princely Care, for the good Order, and Edification, and Unity of the Church of England, committed to our Charge and Care; and for the reconciling as much as is poſſible of all Differences among our good Subjects, and to take away all Occaſions of the like for the future, have thought fit to Authorize and Empower you, &c. and any Nine of you, whereof Three to be Biſhops, to meet from time to time, as often as ſhall be needful, and to prepare ſuch Alterations of the Liturgy and Canons, and ſuch Propoſals for the Reformation of Eccleſiaſtical Courts, and to conſider of ſuch other Matters, as in your Judgments may moſt conduce to the Ends above-mention'd.

The Names of the Commiſſioners, A. D. 1689.

Tho. Lamplugh, Ld. Arch-Biſhop of York.
Henry Compton, Ld. Biſhop of London.
Peter Mew, Ld. Biſhop of Wincheſter.
William Lloyd, Ld. Biſhop of St. Aſaph.
Thomas Sprat, Ld. Biſhop of Rocheſter.
Thomas Smith, Ld. Biſhop of Carliſle.
Jonathan Trelawny, Ld. Biſhop of Exeter.
Gilbert Burnet, Ld. Biſhop of Saliſbury.
Humphrey Humfreys, Ld. Biſhop of Bangor.
Nicholas Stratford, Ld. Biſhop of Cheſter.
Edward Stillingfleet, late Dean of St. Paul's, London, now Biſhop of Worceſter.
Simon Patrick, late Dean of Peterborough, now Biſhop of Chicheſter.
John Tillotſon, D. D. late Dean of Canterbury, now Dean of St. Paul's, London.
Rich. Meggot, D. D. Dean of Wincheſter.
John Sharp, D. D. late Dean of Norwich, now Dean of Canterbury.
Rich. Kidder, D. D. Dean of Peterborough.
Henry Aldridge, D. D. Dean of Chriſt-Church, Oxford.
William Jane, D. D. Regius-Profeſſor of Divinity in the Univerſity of Oxford.
John Hall, D. D. Margaret-Profeſſor of Divinity in the Univerſity of Oxford.
Joſeph Beaumont, D. D. Regius-Profeſſor of Divinity in the Univerſity of Cambridge.
John Mountague, D. D. and Maſter of Trinity-College in the Univerſity of Cambridge.
John Goodman, D. D. Arch-Deacon of Middleſex.
Will. Beveridge, D. D. Arch-Deacon of Colcheſter.
John Battely, D. D. Arch-Deacon of Canterbury.
Charles Alſton, D. D. Arch-Deacon of Eſſex.
Tho. Teniſon, D. D. Arch-Deacon of London.
John Scot, D. D. Prebendary of St. Paul's, London.
Edward Fowler, D. D. Prebendary of Glouceſter.
Robert Grove, D. D. Prebendary of St. Paul's London.
John Williams, D. D. Prebendary of St. Paul's London.

1689. 1 W. M.

Proceedings of theſe Commiſſioners.

Theſe (b) Commiſſioners often met, and drew up ſeveral Alterations to make Conformity the more eaſy and acceptable to all manner of conſcientious Perſons; but ſome that were named in the Commiſſion, did either not appear, or did ſoon deſert their other Brethren, upon a high Notion, That either no Alterations ought to be made, or at leaſt that this was not a ſeaſonable Time for the making of them; of which Number were Dr. Jane, Regius Profeſſor of Divinity in Oxford, and ſome others. But the better and much greater Majority apply'd themſelves to the Buſineſs of Accommodation, with great Induſtry and Prudence: That Point which created the greateſt Difficulty, was about the admitting of Diſſenting-Miniſters to officiate in the Church, when duly reconciled to it. Some of the Commiſſioners were inclined not to inſiſt on the Reordination of them, alledging, That they ought not to ſhew leſs Regard to the Vocation of Presbyterian-Miniſters, than to that of Roman-Catholick Prieſts, whoſe Ordination was never queſtion'd upon their joining in Communion with the Church of England. But the Majority thought it more proper to keep a middle Courſe, which was, firſt with reſpect to Romiſh Prieſts, to leave it undecided whether their Ordination was good or no: But becauſe they were not oblig'd to give Credit to their Certificates, That therefore ſuch of them as for the future ſhould turn Proteſtants, ſhould live in Lay-Communion only, unleſs they were Re-ordained to a Legal Title of any

(a) See "A Form of Prayer to be uſed on Wedneſday the Fifth Day of June within London and Weſtminſter; and on Wedneſday the 19th Day of June throughout the Kingdom, being the Faſt-Day appointed to implore the Bleſſing of Almighty God upon their Majeſties Forces by Sea and Land, and Succeſs in the War now declared againſt the French King, 4*to*.

A Faſt-Sermon Preached at Hampton-Court, before King William and Queen Mary, on the firſt Wedneſday in June, 1689. not publiſh'd till 1713, with ſome other Sermons in 8*vo*. In which (ſays the Biſhop of Sarum) "I ſtudied to diſcharge my Duty with ſuch Fidelity and Freedom, that ſome oppoſed the ordering it to be Printed, as containing in it ſome bold Strokes that ought not to be encouraged by a Court. Yet I found by the King and Queen's Behaviour to me, that I had loſt none of their Favour by it.

(b) See "A Diſcourſe concerning the Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſion open'd in the Jeruſalem-Chamber, Octob. 10, 1689. with the Subſtance of the Commiſſion, and the Names of the Commiſſioners, proving the ſaid Commiſſion to be agreeable to the Law of the Land, uſeful to the Convocation, tending to the well-being of the Church, and ſeaſonable at this Juncture. London, Printed for Rich. Chiſwell, 1689, 4*to*. [Written by Dr. Tho. Teniſon].

Church

1689. 1 W. M.

Church or Cure. And Secondly, That tho' they did not determine the Ordination of Presbyterians to be altogether invalid; yet they thought it neceſſary for their Miniſters to receive Orders from a Biſhop, who, in conferring the ſame, might add a Clauſe to the Common Form, as the Church had already ordain'd in the Caſe of uncertain Baptiſm, to this Effect, If thou art not already ordain'd, I ordain thee, &c. and this was the greateſt Conceſſion that was made by the Commiſſioners. One of the chief Diſſenters has given this Opinion of their Proceedings: "Theſe Commiſſioners often met "and debated Matters, but were deſerted by "Dr. Jane, and ſeveral others. They drew up "ſundry Alterations, a Copy of which I have by "me; but they having never thought fit to communicate them to the Body of the Convocation, "or to expoſe them to the View of the World "from the Preſs, I know not how proper it would "be for me to print them. But this much I ſhall "venture to ſay, That ſuch Amendments as theſe "were, with ſuch an Allowance in the Point of "Orders for Ordination by Presbyters, as is made "13 Eliz. Cap. 12. would in all Probability have "brought in Two Thirds of the Diſſenters in England; which being done, and at the ſame Time "a (a) Liberty continued to ſuch as could not be "comprehended, would have been greater Service "than can eaſily be imagined.

Judgment of the Diſſenters upon this Matter.

Account of this Affair from the Biſhop of Sarum's Triennial Viſitation Charge, 1704.

One of the Commiſſioners has more lately given this better Account of it. "In the Reign of King "James, thoſe of the Church who ſaw the Papiſts "drawing in the Diſſenters to concur with them "in their Deſigns againſt the Church, applied to "the then Prince of Orange, deſiring him to make "uſe of his Intereſt in them for diverting them "from that. And in thoſe Letters, which are yet "extant, Aſſurances were given, That the Church "was then in ſuch a Temper, ſo well convinced of "former Errors, that if ever ſhe got out of that "Diſtreſs, all thoſe Differences would be certainly "made up; and to make this Aſſurance more publick, the Archbiſhop and Biſhops in that Petition "for which they were impriſoned and tried, declared, that they were ready to come to a Temper in thoſe Matters, both in Parliament and "Convocation. Upon this it was, that the Prince "of Orange promiſed in his Declaration, to uſe his "Endeavours to heal all thoſe Diviſions. In order "to the performing this, he, by a ſpecial Commiſſion, appointed all thoſe Biſhops who owned "his Authority, he being then ſet on the Throne, "together with a great many of the Clergy, to "draw out the Grounds upon which the Diſſenters "had ſeparated from us, and to offer Expedients "in order to the healing our Breaches. We had "before us all the (b) Books and Papers that they "had at any time offered, ſetting forth their Demands; together with many Advices and Propoſitions which had been made at ſeveral Times, by "moſt of the beſt and moſt learned of our Divines; of which the late moſt learned Biſhop of "Worceſter had a great Collection. So that we "prepared a Scheme to be laid before the Convocation; but did not think that we ourſelves, much "leſs that any other Perſon, was any way limited, "or bound to comply with what we reſolved to "propoſe. On the contrary, we ſaid, if we ſaw "better Reaſon, we would change our Minds. "Yet this, which was only a Council created by "the King to prepare Matters, was complained "of, as an impoſing on the Convocation, and as a "limiting of it; and tho' a Royal Licenſe was "ſent them, yet a previous Reſolution was taken, "to admit of no Alterations. (c) When we ſaw that, "we reſolved to be quiet, and leave that Matter "to better Times. But then the Enemies of the "Civil Government began to work on the Jealouſies and Fears of many well-minded Men; and "the preſerving the Church, was given out as the "Word, by thoſe who meant (d) France or St. "Germains by it; and under this fatal Deluſion "many are apt to be miſled to this Day.

Meeting of the Convocation.

The Convocation met on Thurſday Nov. 21. and began in an unhappy Difference about the Choice of a Prolocutor. The Perſon deſign'd by the Biſhop of London and moſt of his Brethren, and the ſober Part of the Clergy, was Dr. Tillotſon, Dean of Canterbury, whom the King had lately made Clerk of his Cloſet, and uſed to call him the honeſteſt Man, and the beſt Friend that ever he had in his Life; but it was carried by a Majority of Votes for Dr. Jane of Oxford, who being preſented on the 25th to the Biſhop of London, as Preſident, for his Approbation, made a Cuſtomary Speech in Latin, wherein he extoll'd the Excellency of the Church of England as eſtabliſh'd by Law, above all Chriſtian Communities, and imply'd that it wanted no Amendments; and then ended with the Application of this Sentence by way of Triumph, Nolumus Leges Angliæ mutari. The Biſhop of London, to whom the Prolocutor had been Chaplain, made a Speech in the ſame Language, with more Charity and Candor. He told the Clergy, they ought to endeavour a Temper in thoſe Things that are not eſſential in Religion, thereby to open the Door of Salvation to a Multitude of ſtraying Chriſtians: That it muſt needs be their Duty, to ſhew the ſame Indulgence and Charity to the Diſſenters under King William, which ſome of the Biſhops and Clergy had promiſed to them in their Addreſſes to King James; and concluded with a pathetical Exhortation to Unanimity and Concord.

Dr. Jane Prolocutor. Biſhop of London Preſident.

Biſhop of London's Speech.

At the next Meeting, the Biſhop of London, being ſenſible that the Majority of the Lower Houſe were reſolved to oppoſe the intended Union with the Diſſenters, acquainted the Convocation, "That having communicated the Royal Commiſſion "by which they were empower'd to act, to an "eminent Civilian, he had found it defective in "not having the Great Seal; and therefore he "ſhould prorogue 'em till that was procured." During this Interval, many Arguments were uſed to bring the moſt ſtiff of the inferior Clergy to a charitable Condeſcenſion, and the much-deſir'd Union, but to very little Purpoſe. There was a Jealouſy and a Diſtruſt not to be conquer'd: Tho' there could be but Two Arguments of any Force to juſtify their Averſeneſs to enter upon the Terms of Accommodation: One was, That it ſeem'd to dero-

The Preſident Prorogues.

(a) See a Letter to a Friend relating to the preſent Convocation at Weſtminſter, dated Nov. 27. 1689. [Pleading for Reaſonable Alterations toward Unity and Peace, ſuppos'd to be writ ten by Dr. Tillotſon] London, Printed for Brab. Aylmer. 1690. 4*to.*

(b) See the Caſe of the Proteſtant Diſſenters repreſented and argued by Mr Richard Stretton, in a ſingle Sheet. Publiſh'd 1689. and reprinted in the Abridgment of Mr. Baxter's Life.

(c) See Concio ad Synodum ab Epiſcopis & Clero Provinciæ Cantuarienſis celebratam in Æde Weſtmonaſtenſi XII. Decemb. 1689. per Gulielmum Beveregium Archidiaconum Colceſtrienſem. Juſſu Epiſcoporum. Londini ſumptibus R. Clavell, 1689. 4*to.*

(d) A Copy of the Alterations ſuggeſted by the Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſioners upon Review of the Liturgy; or rather the Original of them, was in the Hands of Dr. Teniſon, Archbiſhop of Canterbury; but he never car'd to truſt it out of his own keeping; giving this good Reaſon, That if they came to be publick, they would give no Satisfaction on either ſide, but be rather a Handle for mutual Reproaches; one Side upbraiding their Brethren for having given up ſo much; and the other juſtifying their Nonconformity, becauſe thoſe Conceſſions were too little, or however were not yet paſs'd into Law. There was an Abſtract of theſe Proceedings drawn up by Dr. John Williams, afterward Biſhop of Chicheſter, who is ſaid to have communicated his Papers to Dr. William Nichols, beneſic'd in his Dioceſe, who from thence drew up the Account he gives in his Defenſio Eccleſiæ Anglicanâ, 8*vo. Latin.* Engliſh, 12o.

1689.
1 W. M.

The Majority againſt any Accommodation with the Diſſenters.

gate from the Dignity of the Church of England to make any Step toward the altering of her Conſtitution, till it did appear that the Diſſenters themſelves did deſire a Reconcilement, and were ready to offer ſome Propoſals, or to accept of others. A ſecond Argument might be, That the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and ſome of his Suffragans, and ſome other Divines, would not own the preſent Government, and were therefore ready to fall into a new Separation from their Brethren; ſo that at this Juncture it might be dangerous to make any Change that might give a Pretence of being for the Old Church, as well as for the Old King.

On Dec. 4. while both Houſes were together in Henry VIIth's Chappel, the Earl of Nottingham brought in the King's Commiſſion, and a Meſſage from his Majeſty in Writing, both which were read, there being preſent Twelve Biſhops, and a good Number of the inferior Clergy. The Commiſſion was as follows.

The King's Commiſſion to Act.

" WILLIAM and MARY, (a) by the Grace of " GOD, King and Queen of England,
" Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the " Faith, &c. To all to whom theſe Preſents ſhall
" come, Greeting; Whereas, in and by one Act of " Parliament, made at Weſtminſter in the Twenty
" fifth Year of the Reign of King Henry the VIIIth,
" reciting, That whereas the King's humble and " obedient Subjects, the Clergy of this Realm of " England, had not only acknowledged according " to the Truth, that the Convocation of the ſame
" Clergy, were always, had been, and ought to be
" aſſembled only by the King's Writ; but alſo
" ſubmitting themſelves to the King's Majeſty,
" had promiſed in Verbo Sacerdotis, That they " would never from thenceforth preſume to at" tempt, alledge, claim, or put in Ure, or enact,
" promulge, or execute any new Canons, Conſti-
" tutions, Ordinances, Provincial, or others, or
" by whatſoever other Name they ſhould be " called in the Convocation, unleſs the ſaid King's " moſt Royal Aſſent and Licenſe might to them be
" had, to make, promulge and execute the ſame;
" and that the ſaid King did give his Royal Aſſent
" and Authority in that Behalf.

" It was therefore enacted by the Authority of " the ſaid Parliament, according to the ſaid Sub-
" miſſion and Petition of the ſaid Clergy, among " other things, That they, or any of them from
" thenceforth ſhould not enact, promulge, or execute
" any ſuch Canons, Conſtitutions, or Ordinances
" Provincial, by whatſoever Name they might be " called, in their Convocation in Time coming,
" which always ſhould be aſſembled by Autho" rity of the King's Writ, unleſs the ſame Clergy
" might have the King's moſt Royal Aſſent and
" Licenſe, to make, promulge, and execute ſuch
" Canons, Conſtitutions and Ordinances, Provincial
" or Synodal, upon pain of every one of the ſaid
" Clergy doing contrary to the ſaid Act, and being " thereof convict, to ſuffer Impriſonment, and " make Fines at the King's Will.

" And further, by the ſaid Act it is provided,
" That no Canons, Conſtitutions or Ordinances
" ſhould be made, or put in Execution within
" this Realm, by Authority of the Convocations of " the Clergy, which ſhould be contrariant or re-
" pugnant to the King's Prerogative Royal, or the " Cuſtoms, Laws or Statutes of this Realm, any " thing contained in the ſaid Act to the contrary
" thereof notwithſtanding.

" And laſtly, It is alſo provided by the ſaid 1689.

1 W. M.

" Act, That ſuch Canons, Conſtitutions, Ordinances
" and Synodals Provincial, which then were al" ready made, and which then were not contra-
" riant or repugnant to the Laws, Statutes and " Cuſtoms of this Realm, not to the Damage or " Hurt of the King's Prerogative Royal, ſhould
" then ſtill be uſed and executed as they were be" fore the making of the ſaid Act, until ſuch time
" as they ſhall be viewed, ſearched, or otherwiſe
" order'd and determin'd by the Perſons mentioned
" in the ſaid Act, or the moſt part of them, accord" ing to the Tenor, Form and Effect of the ſaid
" Act; as by the ſaid Act, among divers other " things, more fully and at large, it doth and may " appear.

" And whereas the particular Forms of Divine
" Worſhip, and Rites and Ceremonies appointed " to be uſed therein, being Things of their own
" Nature indifferent and alterable, and ſo acknow" ledged, it is but reaſonable, that upon weighty
" and important Conſiderations, according to the " various Exigency of Times and Occaſions, ſuch
" Changes and Alterations ſhould be made there-
" in, as to thoſe that are in Place and Authority,
" ſhould from time to time, ſeem either neceſſary
" or expedient.

" And whereas the Book of Canons is fit to be " reviewed, and made more ſuitable to the State
" of the Church: And whereas there are divers
" Defects and Abuſes in the Eccleſiaſtical Courts
" and Juriſdictions; and particularly, there is not " ſufficient Proviſion made for the removing of " ſcandalous Miniſters, and for the Reformation of " Manners either in Miniſters or People. And
" whereas it is moſt fit that there ſhould be a ſtrict
" Method preſcribed for the Examination of ſuch
" Perſons as deſire to be admitted into Holy Or" ders, both as to their Learning and Manners:
" KNOW YE, that we, for divers urgent and weighty
" Cauſes and Conſiderations, us thereunto moving,
" of our ſpecial Grace, certain Knowledge, and " meer Motion, have by virtue of our Prerogative
" Royal, and Supreme Authority in Cauſes Eccle-
" ſiaſtical, given and granted, and by theſe Preſents
" give and grant, full, free and lawful Liberty, Li-
" cenſe, Power and Authority unto the Right Re" verend Father in God, Henry Lord Biſhop of " London, Preſident of this preſent Convocation
" for the Province of Canterbury (upon the Suſpen-
" ſion of the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury) du" ring this preſent Parliament now aſſembled; and
" in his Abſence, to ſuch other Biſhop as ſhall be " appointed Preſident thereof, and to the reſt of
" the Biſhops of the ſame Province, and all Deans
" of Cathedral Churches, Archdeacons, Chapters and " Colleges, and the whole Clergy of every ſeveral
" Dioceſe within the ſaid Province: That they the
" ſaid Lord Biſhop of London, or other Preſident
" of the ſaid Convocation, and the reſt of the Clergy
" of this preſent Convocation within the ſaid Pro" vince of Canterbury, or the greateſt Number of " them, whereof the Preſident of the ſaid Convoca-
" tion to be always one, ſhall and may from time
" to time, during this preſent Parliament, confer,
" treat, debate, conſider, conſult, and agree of
" and upon ſuch Points, Matters, Cauſes and Things,
" as we from time to time ſhall propoſe, or cauſe
" to be propoſed by the ſaid Lord Biſhop of Lon-
" don, or other Preſident of the ſaid Convocation,
" concerning Alterations and Amendments of the " Liturgy and Canons, and Orders, Ordinances and " Conſtitutions for the Reformation of Eccleſiaſti-
" cal Courts; for the removing of ſcandalous Mini-

(a) Queen Mary was very exemplary in her Attendance upon the Publick Services of the Church, and in her Private Devotions. Dr. Payne, in his Funeral Sermon upon her Death, writes thus. " She doubled the Sunday Sermons at Whitehall, " and was every way for increaſing and advancing Religion. " I well remember the firſt Afternoon Sermon that perhaps " was ever in England before a King or Queen, having the Honour to preach it myſelf before her, Octob. 20. 1689.

1689. 1 W. M.

“ſters; for the Reformation of Manners either in Miniſters or People; and for the Examination of ſuch Perſons as deſire to be admitted into Holy Orders; and all ſuch other Points, Cauſes and Matters, as we ſhall think neceſſary and expedient, for advancing the Honour and Service of ALMIGHTY GOD, the Good and Quiet of the Church, and the better Government thereof.

“And We do alſo by theſe Preſents, give and grant unto the ſaid Lord Biſhop of London, or other Preſident of the ſaid Convocation, and to the reſt of the Biſhops of the ſaid Province of Canterbury, and unto all Deans of Cathedral-Churches, Archdeacons, Chapters and Colleges, and the whole Clergy of every ſeveral Dioceſe within the ſaid Province, full, free and lawful Liberty, Licenſe, Power and Authority, That they the ſaid Lord Biſhop of London, or other Preſident of the ſaid Convocation, and the reſt of the ſaid Biſhops, and other the Clergy of the ſame Province, or the greateſt Number of them that ſhall be preſent in Perſon, or by their Proxies, ſhall and may, from time to time, draw into Forms, and Canons, Rules, Orders, Ordinances, Conſtitutions, ſuch Matters as to them ſhall be thought neceſſary and expedient for the Purpoſes above-mention'd; and the ſame ſet down in Writing from time to time, to exhibit and deliver, or cauſe to be exhibited and delivered unto us; to the end that we, as Occaſion ſhall require, may thereupon have the Advice of our Parliament. And that all ſuch, and ſo many of the Canons, Orders, Ordinances, Conſtitutions, Matters, Cauſes and Things, as ſhall be thought requiſite and convenient by our ſaid Parliament, may be preſented to us in due Form, for our Royal Aſſent, if, upon mature Conſideration thereof, we ſhall think fit to Enact the ſame. In Witneſs whereof, we have caus'd theſe our Letters to be made Patent.

Witneſs ourſelves at Weſtminſter the Thirtieth Day of November, in the Firſt Year of our Reign.

Per Breve de Privato Sigillo.

BURKER.

His Majeſty's Meſſage to the Convocation, is as follows.

WILLIAM R.

The King's Meſſage to the Convocation.

“HIS Majeſty has ſummon'd this Convocation, not only becauſe 'tis uſual, upon holding of a Parliament, but out of a pious Zeal, to do every thing that may tend to the beſt Eſtabliſhment of the Church of England, which is ſo eminent a Part of the Reformation, and is certainly the beſt ſuited to the Conſtitution of this Government; and therefore does moſt ſignally deſerve, and ſhall always have both his Favour and Protection. And he doubts not, but that you will aſſiſt him in promoting the Welfare of it, ſo that no Prejudices, with which ſome Men may have labour'd to poſſeſs you, ſhall diſappoint his good Intentions, or deprive the Church of any Benefit from your Conſultations. His Majeſty therefore expects, that the Things that ſhall be propos'd, ſhall be calmly and impartially conſidered by you; and aſſures you, that he will offer nothing to you, but what ſhall be for the Honour, Peace and Advantage both of the Proteſtant Religion in general, and particularly of the Church of England.

The Biſhops agreed on this Addreſs to his Majeſty.

The Convocation's Addreſs to the King.

“WE your Majeſty's moſt dutiful Subjects, the Biſhops and Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, in Convocation aſſembled, having receiv'd your Majeſty's gracious Meſſage, together with a Commiſſion from your Majeſty, by the Earl of Nottingham, hold our ſelves bound in Gratitude and Duty, to return our moſt humble Thanks and Acknowledgments, of the Grace and Goodneſs expreſs'd in your Majeſty's Meſſage, and the Zeal you ſhew in it for the Proteſtant Religion in general, and the Church of England in particular, and of the Truſt and Confidence repoſed in us, by this Commiſſion. We look upon theſe Marks of your Majeſty's Care and Favour, as the Continuance of the great Deliverance Almighty GOD wrought for us, by your Means, in making you the bleſſed Inſtrument of preſerving us from falling under the Cruelty of Popiſh Tyranny. For which, as we have often thank'd Almighty GOD, ſo we cannot forget that high Obligation and Duty which we owe to your Majeſty; and on theſe new Aſſurances of your Protection and Favour to our Church, we beg Leave to renew the Aſſurance of our conſtant Fidelity and Obedience to your Majeſty; whom we pray GOD to continue long and happily to reign over us.

Diſcontents and Diviſions in the Lower Houſe.

The (a) Lower Houſe, whoſe profeſs'd Buſineſs was to do nothing, would not conſent to this Addreſs, but firſt pleaded for the Privilege of preſenting a ſeparate Addreſs of their own drawing up; and then dropping that Pretenſion, they fell to making Amendments, and gave a Reaſon why they could not concur with the (b) Biſhops in their Form, in theſe Words: We are deſirous to confine our Addreſs to his Majeſty's moſt Gracious Meſſage, and to thoſe Things only therein which concern the Church of England. Hereupon a Conference was deſir'd, that was chiefly manag'd between the Biſhop of Salisbury and the Prolocutor; and theſe Reaſons were reported, why their Lordſhips inſiſted on the

(a) One of the Divines, who having been extremely zealous againſt the Diſſenters, was for no Alterations; Mr. Thomas Long of Exeter, publiſh'd ſome Account of Proceedings in Convocation, under the Name of Vox Cleri, Or the Senſe of the Clergy concerning the making Alterations in the Eſtabiſh'd Liturgy. To which is added an Hiſtorical Account of the whole Proceedings of the preſent Convocation. London, 1690. 4*to*. To which ſeveral Anſwers were ſoon given. 1. Vox Populi, Or the Senſe of the ſober Lay-Men of the Church of England, concerning the Heads propoſed in his Majeſty's Commiſſion to the Convocation. For Randal Taylor, 1689, 4*to*. 2. Two Letters, and a Vindication of them, concerning Alterations in the Liturgy, in anſwer to Vox Cleri, by a London Preſbyter [Said to be Mr. Baſſet.] London, 1689. 4*to*. 3. An Anſwer to Vox Cleri, examining the Reaſons againſt making any Alterations and Abatements, in order to a Comprehenſion, and ſhewing the Expediency thereof. [Said to be by Dr. Payne.] London, 1690. 4*to*.

(b) Archbiſhop Sancroft kept himſelf private and ſilent, offering none of his own Thoughts, but only publiſhing the Judgment of Biſhop Overall, and the Convocation in 1606. who were very extravagant in the Notions of Regal Power, and the Submiſſion of Subjects; and therefore he gave his Licence to it. Imprimatur, Junij 24. 1689. W. CANT. Biſhop Overall's Convocation-Book, MDCVI. concerning the Government of God's Catholick Church, and the Kingdoms of the whole World. London, For Walt. Kettilby, 1690. 4*to*. The Archbiſhop prefix'd an Advertiſement to the Reader; but gives an Account only of the Conveyance of the Papers, not a Word of the Subject-Matter of them.

See a Pamphlet entitled, The Spirit of the Church-Faction detected in its Nature and Operation, more particularly in the Myſtery of the Convocation-Book, lately publiſhed and expoſed to the View and Cenſure of the World, By the late Archbiſhop of Canterbury, London, 1691. 4*to*. Wherein the Author complains of the ill Deſign of this Book; that it was a Concert between the King and Clergy for aſſerting the Abſolute Power of Princes; and that therefore this Work was an Arcanum Imperii, managed and tranſacted in a ſecret myſterious and diſguiſed manner.

1689. 1 W. M. expreſs Mention of the Proteſtant Religion. 1. "Becauſe it is the known Denomination of the "Common Doctrine of the Weſtern Part of Chriſtendom, in Oppoſition to the Errors and Corruptions of the Church of Rome. 2. Becauſe "the leaving out this, may have ill Conſequences, "and be liable to ſtrange Conſtructions, both at "home and abroad, among Proteſtants as well as "Papiſts. 3. Becauſe it agrees with the general "Reaſon offer'd by the Clergy for their Amendments, ſince this is expreſly mention'd in the "King's Meſſage; and in this the Church of England being ſo much concern'd, the Biſhops think "it ought to ſtand ſtill in the Addreſs." The Lower Houſe debated theſe Reaſons, and diſagreed to 'em, and then reſolved, "That inſtead of Proteſtant Religion, they would rather ſay, Proteſtant Churches." Their Lordſhips deſir'd a Reaſon of this Alteration? Which was return'd to 'em in theſe Words: "We being the Repreſentative "of a Form'd Eſtabliſh'd Church, do not think fit "to mention the Word Religion, any farther than "it is the Religion of ſome Form'd Eſtabliſh'd "Church." The Lords return'd the Amendments with this Alteration. "We doubt not the Intereſt "of the Proteſtant Religion, in this and all other "Proteſtant Churches.

The Lower Houſe ſeeming to fear it was a Diminution to the Church of England, to join it with Foreign Proteſtant Churches, would have the Words [this and] to be omitted; and at laſt, with great Difficulty, this Addreſs was agreed on, and preſented to his Majeſty in the Banqueting-Houſe at Whitehall, on Thurſday Dec. 12.

Form of an Addreſs. "WE your Majeſty's moſt loyal and moſt dutiful Subjects, the Biſhops and Clergy of "the Province of Canterbury, in Convocation aſſembled, having receiv'd a moſt gracious Meſſage from your Majeſty, by the Earl of Nottingham, hold ourſelves bound in Duty and Gratitude, to return our moſt humble Acknowledgments for the ſame, and the pious Zeal and Care "your Majeſty is pleaſed to expreſs therein, for the "Honour, Peace, Advantage and Eſtabliſhment of "the Church of England; whereby we doubt not, "the Intereſt of the Proteſtant Religion in all other "Proteſtant Churches, which is dear to us, will "be the better ſecur'd, under the Influence of your "Majeſty's Government and Protection. And we "crave Leave to aſſure your Majeſty, That in Purſuance of that Truſt and Confidence you repoſe "in us, we will conſider, whatſoever ſhall be offer'd to us from your Majeſty, without Prejudice, "and with all Calmneſs and Impartiality. And "that we will conſtantly pay the Fidelity and Allegiance which we have all ſworn to your Majeſty "and the Queen; whom we pray GOD to continue long and happily to reign over us.

1689. 1 W. M. His Majeſty well underſtood why this Addreſs omitted the Thanks which the Biſhops had recommended for his Royal Commiſſion, and the Zeal he had ſhewn for the Proteſtant Religion; and why there was no Expreſſion of Tenderneſs to the Diſſenters; and but a cool Regard to other Proteſtant Churches. However, his Majeſty return'd this gracious Anſwer. My LORDS, I take this Addreſs very kindly from the Convocation. You may depend upon it, That all I have promis'd, and all I can do for the Service of the Church of England, I will do. And I give you this new Aſſurance, That I will improve all Occaſions and Opportunities for its Service. (The King's Anſwer to the Addreſs.)

The Majority of the Lower Houſe had a reſerved Kindneſs for the Non-Juring Biſhops and Clergy (a); and therefore, one of the Members made a zealous Speech, in Behalf of the Biſhops under Suſpenſion, "That ſomething might be done, to qualify 'em "to ſit in Convocation; yet ſo, as that the Convocation might not incur any Danger thereby." But this Matter was too hard for 'em, and therefore it was left to farther Conſideration; while they labour'd to find out ſome other Buſineſs, to divert 'em from that for which they were call'd together: And therefore, on Dec. 11th, the Prolocutor attended the Preſident and Biſhops, and in the Name of the Houſe, repreſented to their Lordſhips, "That "there were ſeveral Books of very dangerous Conſequence to the Chriſtian Religion, and the "Church of England; particularly, Notes upon "Athanaſius's Creed, and Two Letters relating to "the preſent Convocation, lately come Abroad; "and deſir'd their Lordſhips Advice, in what Way, "and how far ſafely, without incurring the Penalty of Stat. 25. Hen. VIII. the Convocation may "proceed, in the preventing the publiſhing the like "Scandalous Books for the future, and inflicting "the Cenſure of the Church, according to the Canons provided in that Behalf, upon the Authors (Proceedings of the Lower-Houſe.) (A Complaint of ill Books.)

(a) Some of the Biſhops and Clergy were Nonjurors upon very different Principles: Some few upon Conſcience, that they could not be abſolved from their former Oaths. Some others upon a Shame of having gone ſo far into the Meaſures of King James, that they could not decently deſert his Cauſe. And even ſome out of a timerous Spirit, not ſo much queſtioning the Lawfulneſs of the new Oaths before the taking, as the new Scruples and Uneaſineſs they might chance to be under after they had taken them. This was plainly the Caſe of Biſhop Ken; he ſcrupled the new Oaths, he ſatisfied himſelf in thoſe firſt Scruples, he reſolv'd to take them; he came toward London in order to it; he fell into new Doubts, yet he could have complied, but he was afraid of an after-Reckoning in his own Thoughts that might be heavy on him. See his own Account of himſelf in his Anſwer to a Letter of the Lord Biſhop of Sarum, dated Oct. 5. 1689. to which his Lordſhip's Kinſman, Writer of his Life, adds, That whilſt he ſtayed in Town, and lodged with his old Friend Dr. Hooper, who had daily and earneſtly diſcours'd him on the Subject of Compliance with the Oaths, he at laſt us'd this Expreſſion to him, I queſtion not but that you and ſeveral others have taken the Oaths with as good a Conſcience as I my ſelf ſhall refuſe them; and ſometimes you have almoſt perſuaded me to comply with the Arguments you have uſed, but I beg you to urge them no farther; for ſhould I be perſuaded to comply, and after ſee Reaſon to repent, you would make me the moſt miſerable Man in the World.

See, 1. The Declaration of the Right Reverend Father in God, John Lord Biſhop of Chicheſter upon his Death Bed, Auguſt 25. 1689. Manu propriâ ſubſcripſit Jo. Ciceſtrenſis, putting his Refuſal of the Oaths upon the great Doctrine of Paſſive Obedience, which he always look'd upon as the diſtinguiſhing Character of the Church of England; —— and that therefore he would not have taken the Oath, though the Penalty had been Loſs of Life, &c. Printed 1689. —— 2. A Letter from a Perſon of Quality in the North [Mrs. Eyre, Daughter to the Lady Packington,] to a Friend in London [Dr. Patrick, Dean of Peterborough,] concerning Biſhop Lake's late Declaration of his Dying in the Belief of the Doctrine of Paſſive Obedience, as the diſtinguiſhing Character of the Church of England. Licens'd Septemb. 19. 1689. 4to. —— 3. A Vindication of the Letter out of the North, concerning Biſhop Lake's Declaration, &c. Licens'd Jan. 27. 1689 90. 4to.

The Biſhops and Clergy, who were excluded from the State as Nonjurors, began to think of dividing from the Church as a ſeparate Communion. To obviate that Humour, there was an excellent Diſcourſe publiſh'd, entituled, A Diſcourſe concerning the Unreaſonableneſs of a new Separation on Account of the Oaths, with an Anſwer to the Hiſtory of Paſſive Obedience, ſo far as relates to them. Licens'd Octob. 25. 1689. Lond for Richard Chiſwell. 4to.

Mr. Dodwell during the Suſpenſion of the Biſhops, gave Warning of a Schiſm on their Deprivation, in a Diſcourſe, entitl'd, A Cautionary Diſcourſe of Schiſm, with a particular Regard to the Caſe of the Biſhops, who are ſuſpended for refuſing to take the New Oath. To prove the contrary, that no Schiſm was formed in the Primitive Church on Account of the Deprivation of Biſhops, if there were no Hereſy in their Succeſſors; a Greek Manuſcript, found among the Baroceian in the Bodley Library at Oxon, was tranſlated into Engliſh, and publiſhed by Mr. Humphrey Hody, Fellow of Wadham College. On Occaſion of which Mr. Dodwell wrote his Vindication of the Deprived Biſhops; to which Vindication Dr. Hody wrote an Anſwer, Mr. Dodwell made a Reply, &c.

"of

1 W. M. 1689. " of 'em. " Upon which the Prolocutor ſoon after acquainted the Houſe, " That the Preſident had declar'd his Senſe of the Ill Conſequence of thoſe " Books that were ſent up from this Houſe to their " Lordſhips; and that, upon Enquiry, he cou'd " not receive any Satisfaction, how far the Convocation might proceed in that Affair, but he wou'd, " as far as lay in him, take farther Order about it." When the Preſident and his Brethren ſaw the Diſpoſition of the Lower-Houſe, they found it was to no Purpoſe to communicate any Propoſals to 'em; and therefore the Convocation was prorogu'd to Jan. 24th, and ſoon after, with the Parliament, prorogu'd and diſſolv'd. " It muſt be confeſs'd, (ſays " a late Writer) That the Presbyterians did not a " little contribute to exaſperate the Convocation " againſt 'em; having, at this very Time, given " Orders to near Fifty young Students; and Mr. " Baxter (the Head of their Party) having publiſh'd a Book, reflecting on the Church of England. It was alſo reported, That the Presbyterians of Scotland were the Authors of a Sham-" Plot, which they father'd upon the Epiſcopal " Party of Glaſgow, that they might have a Pretence to diſarm 'em, and oppreſs 'em.

The Preſident's Anſwer.

The Convocation prorogu'd.

1690. Meeting of a New-Parliament.

On Thurſday, March 20th, the New Parliament met at Weſtminſter, purſuant to their Majeſties Writs of Summons; and his Majeſty being in his Royal Robes, ſeated on the Throne, the Commons were ſent for up, by the Uſher of the Black-Rod: Who accordingly attending, the Lord Chief Baron Atkyns (Speaker of the Houſe of Peers) by his Majeſty's Command, ſignify'd to 'em his Majeſty's Pleaſure, " That they ſhou'd forthwith proceed to " the Choice of a Speaker, and preſent him to his " Majeſty the next Morning." After which, the Commons return'd to their Houſe, and made choice of Sir John Trevor, Kt. to be their Speaker; who being the next Morning preſented to his Majeſty, ſeated on the Throne in the Houſe of Peers, his Majeſty did graciouſly approve of him, and then his Majeſty made this Speech to Both Houſes:

My Lords and Gentlemen:

The King's Speech.

" I Am reſolv'd to leave nothing unattempted on " my Part, which may contribute to the Peace " and Proſperity of this Nation: And finding my " Preſence in Ireland will be abſolutely neceſſary, " for the more ſpeedy Reducing of that Kingdom, " I continue my Reſolution of going thither as ſoon " as may be; and I have now call'd you together, " for your Aſſiſtance, to enable me to proſecute the " War with Speed and Vigor: In which I aſſure my " ſelf of your chearful Concurrence, being a Work " ſo neceſſary for your own Safeties.

" In order to this, I deſire you will forthwith " make a Settlement of the Revenue; and I cannot doubt, but you will therein have as much " Regard for the Honour and Dignity of the Monarchy in my Hands, as has been lately ſhew'd " to others: And I have ſo great a Confidence in " you, That if no quicker or more convenient Way " can be found, for the Raiſing of Ready Money, " (without which, the Service cannot be perform'd) " I ſhall be very well content, for the preſent, to " have it made ſuch a Fund of Credit, as may be " uſeful to your ſelves as well as me, in this Conjuncture; not having the leaſt Apprehenſions, " but that you will provide for the taking off all " ſuch Anticipations as it ſhall happen to fall under.

" It is ſufficiently known, how earneſtly I have " endeavour'd to extinguiſh (or at leaſt compoſe) " all Differences amongſt my Subjects, and to that " End, how often I have recommended an Act of " Indemnity to the laſt Parliament: But ſince that " Part of it, which related to the preventing of " private Suits, is already enacted, and becauſe Debates of that Nature muſt take up more of your " Time, than can now be ſpar'd from the Diſpatch " of thoſe other Things which are abſolutely neceſſary for our common Safety; I intend to ſend " you an Act of Grace, with Exceptions of ſome " few Perſons only, but ſuch as may be ſufficient to " ſhew my great Diſlike of their Crimes, and at " the ſame Time, my Readineſs to extend Protection to all my other Subjects; who will thereby " ſee, That they can recommend themſelves to me, " by no other Methods than what the Laws preſcribe, " which ſhall always be the only Rule of my Government. 1689. 1 W. M.

" A farther Reaſon which induceth me to ſend " you this Act at this Time, is, becauſe I am deſirous to leave no Colour of Excuſe to any of my " Subjects, for the Raiſing of Diſturbances in the " Government, and eſpecially in the Time of my " Abſence; and I ſay this, both to inform you, and " to let ſome ill-affected Men ſee, that I am not " unacquainted, how buſy they are in their preſent " Endeavours to alter it.

" Amongſt other Encouragements, which I find " they give themſelves, one of the Ways by which " they hope to compaſs their Deſigns, is, by creating Differences and Diſagreements in your Counſels, which, I hope, you will be very careful to " prevent; for be aſſured, That our greateſt Enemies can have no better Inſtruments for their Purpoſes, than thoſe who ſhall any way endeavour to " diſturb or delay your ſpeedy and unanimous Proceeding upon theſe neceſſary Matters.

" I muſt recommend alſo to your Conſideration, " an Union with Scotland: I do not mean, it ſhould " be now entred upon; but they having propoſed " this to me ſome Time ſince, and the Parliament " there having nominated Commiſſioners for that " Purpoſe, I ſhou'd be glad that Commiſſioners " might alſo be nominated here, to treat with them, " and to ſee if ſuch Terms cou'd be agreed on, as " might be for the Benefit of both Nations, ſo as " to be ready to be preſented to you in ſome future " Seſſion.

My Lords and Gentlemen:

" I have thought it moſt convenient, to leave the " Adminiſtration of the Government in the Hands " of the Queen, during my Abſence; and if it ſhall " be judg'd neceſſary to have an Act of Parliament, " for the better Confirmation of it to her, I deſire " you will let ſuch an one be prepared to be preſented to me.

" I have this only to add, That the Seaſon of the " Year, and my Journey into Ireland, will admit " but of a very ſhort Seſſion; ſo that I muſt recommend to you the making ſuch Diſpatch, that we " may not be engag'd in Debates, when our Enemies ſhall be in the Field. For the Succeſs of " the War, and the more thrifty Management of " it, will both principally depend upon your ſpeedy " Reſolutions. And I hope it will not be long before we ſhall meet again, to perfect what the " Time will not now allow to be done.

This Speech had a good Influence on Both Houſes; and the Commons were now generally ſuch as were well-affected to the preſent Government, and had a hearty Concern for the Support and Settlement of it: And yet there was ſome of the old Speaking Members of the diſcontented Party, who, upon Occaſion, betray'd their Temper different from that of the Majority. The firſt Buſineſs of Importance the Commons entred upon, was the Settling a Revenue for the Maintenance of the Civil-Liſt. Upon which Occaſion, Sir Charles Sidley made this bold and memorable Speech, againſt Exorbitant Penſions and Salaries.

1690.
1 W. M.

Speech of Sir Charles Sidley.

Mr. SPEAKER;

"WE have provided for the Army; we have "provided for the Navy: And now, at "laſt, a new Reckoning is brought us, we muſt "likewiſe provide for the Liſts. Truly, Mr. Speaker, 'tis a ſad Reflection, That ſome Men ſhou'd "wallow in Wealth and Places, whilſt others pay "away in Taxes, the fourth Part of their Revenue, "for the Support of the ſame Government. We "are not upon equal Terms, for his Majeſty's Ser"vice: The Courtiers and great Officers charge, "as it were, in Armour; they feel not the Taxes, "by reaſon of their Places, whilſt the Country "Gentlemen are ſhot through and through by them. "---- The King is pleas'd to lay his Wants before "us; and, I am confident, expects our Advice up"on it: We ought therefore to tell him what Pen"ſions are too great; what Places may be extin"guiſh'd, during the Time of the War, and pub"lick Calamity. His Majeſty ſees nothing but "Coaches and Six, and great Tables, and there"fore cannot imagine the Want and Miſery of the "reſt of his Subjects: He is a brave and generous "Prince, but he's a young King, encompaſs'd and "hem'd in by a Company of crafty old Courtiers. "To ſay no more, ſome have Places of 3000 l. "ſome of 6000 l. and others of 8000 l. per Ann. "And I am told, the Commiſſioners of the Trea"ſury have 1600 l. per Ann. a-piece. Certainly, "Publick Penſions, whatever they have been for"merly, are much too great for the preſent Want "and Calamity that reigns every where elſe: And "it is a Scandal, that a Government ſo ſick at "Heart as ours is, ſhou'd look ſo well in the Face. "---- We muſt ſave the King Money where-ever "we can; for I'm afraid the War is too great for "our Purſes, if Things be not manag'd with all "imaginable Thrift. When the People of Eng"land ſee all Things are ſav'd that can be ſav'd; "that there are no exorbitant Penſions, nor unne"ceſſary Salaries, and all this applied to the Uſe to "which they are given; We ſhall give, and they "ſhall pay, whatever his Majeſty can want, to ſe"cure the Proteſtant Religion, and to keep out the "King of France, and King James too, whom, "by the way, I have not heard nam'd this Seſſion; "whether out of Fear, Diſcretion, or Reſpect, I "cannot tell. —— I conclude, Mr. Speaker, let "us ſave the King what we can, and then let us "proceed to give him what we are able.

The ill Intention of this Speech was diverted by the wiſer Members; and the Houſe ſoon fell upon the Reſolution of "granting to their Majeſties all "the Revenues that K. James enjoy'd the 20th of De"cember, 1688. as Rights of the Crown, (excepting "Chimney-Money.)" Then they reſolv'd, "That "their Majeſties ſhou'd be put into the Poſſeſſion "of ſuch additional Exciſes, as had been granted "to King Charles II. and King James II. and or"der'd that Revenue to be a Security for the raiſing "the preſent Money." And farther, "They a"greed to grant, for Four Years, to begin from "Chriſtmas following, a Continuance of all ſuch "Cuſtoms as the Two late Kings had enjoy'd; and "upon which, their Majeſties might take up a Sum "of Money, as ſhould be regulated in a Bill for "that Purpoſe." And as well to preſerve as to improve, they order'd, "A Bill againſt Alienation "of the Crown Revenues, upon any Pretence what"ſoever."

Encourag'd by theſe Votes, ſeveral private Perſons advanc'd Money, to ſupply the King's preſent Occaſions, which were much the greater, for his intended Expedition.

Bill of Abjuration.

Not long after, a Bill was brought in to the Lower Houſe, "Requiring all their Majeſties Sub"jects to abjure the late King James, under Pain "of Impriſonment, without Bail or Mainpriſe;" but upon a Second Reading it was laid aſide, both becauſe it might create an unneceſſary Diſturbance, and becauſe it ſeem'd to bear too hard on the Liberties of the Subject. However, the Commons prepar'd Two Acts, which tended to the ſame Purpoſe: By the firſt, "They declared guilty of High "Treaſon, all thoſe that were actually in the Ser"vice of King James in Ireland, and their Eſtates "forfeited to Their Majeſties, unleſs their Children "were Proteſtants:" And by the Second, "They "confirm'd all the Acts of the Convention Parlia"ment, by which King William and Queen Mary "were acknowledg'd to be Lawful King and Queen "of England.

1690.
1 W. M.

Honours and Preferments.

In the Houſe of Lords, his Majeſty conferr'd ſome new Titles, and introduc'd ſome new Members: For on the 17th of April, his Majeſty was pleas'd to create the Right Honourable Richard Viſcount Lumley, Earl of Scarborough in the County of York; and Henry Lord Delamere, Earl of Warington, in the County of Lancaſter; and Henry Lord de Grey of Ruthyn, a Viſcount of this Kingdom, by the Name and Stile of Viſcount de Longueville. And on the 21ſt of April, the Lord Willoughby of Eresby (Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter) was, by virtue of Their Majeſties Writ of Summons, introduc'd into the Houſe of Peers, and took his Place on the Barons Bench.

On Wedneſday the 23d of April, his Majeſty, to encourage the Two Houſes to the more ſpeedy Diſpatch of Buſineſs, came to the Houſe of Lords, attended with the uſual Solemnity, and gave his Royal Aſſent to,

An Act for granting to Their Majeſties, for their Lives, and the Life of the Survivor of 'em, certain Impoſitions upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors.

An Act for the raiſing Money by a Poll, and other Ways, towards the Reducing of Ireland, and proſecuting the War againſt France.

An Act to ſupply a Defect in a former Act of the laſt Parliament, for the Sale or Leaſing of a Houſe, late Henry Coventry's, Eſq; in Picadilly.

An Act to illegitimate any Child, or Children, which Jane, the Wife of John Lukener, Eſq; hath had, or ſhall have, during her Elopement from him.

An Act to enable John Wolſtenholme, Eſq; to ſell Lands for Payment of Debts.

And there being a good Unanimity in carrying on the Publick Intereſt; His Majeſty came again to the Houſe of Lords, on May 2. and gave his Royal Aſſent to theſe other Bills:

An Act for granting to Their Majeſties a Subſidy of Tonnage and Poundage, and other Sums of Money, payable upon Merchandizes exported and imported.

An Act for enabling the Sale of Goods diſtrain'd for Rent, in caſe the Rent be not paid in a reaſonable Time.

An Act to enable Algernoon Earl of Eſſex, to make a Wife a Jointure; and for raiſing of Monies for Payment of 6000 l. borrow'd to make up the Lady Morpeth's Portion, and to make a Settlement of his Eſtate on his Marriage.

An Act for the making ſome Proviſion for the Daughters and younger Sons of Anthony Earl of Shaftsbury.

An Act for the Sale of the Capital Meſſuage, or Manſion Houſe of Harleford, and Manor of Great Marlow, and other Lands in the County of Bucks.

An Act to enable Sir Robert Fenwick to ſell Lands for Payment of his Debts.

An Act for confirming a Settlement made by Sir Hugh Middeleton, Baronet, for a Separate Maintenance for Dame Dorothea his Wife, and for other Truſts;

1690. 1 W. M.

Truſts ; and for the better enabling Truſtees to ſell Part of his Eſtate, for Payment of his Debts.

An Act, whereby the Freehold and Inheritance of the Manor of Loleworth, alias Lollworth, and the Advowſon of the Church of Loleworth, alias Lollworth, in the County of Cambridge, and divers other Lands and Hereditaments in Loleworth aforeſaid, and in Long-Stanton in the ſaid County, are veſted in Altham Smith, of Grays-Inn, in the County of Middleſex, Eſq; and William Gore, of London Merchant, and their Heirs, in Fee Simple, in Poſſeſſion, to the Uſe of them and their Heirs in Truſt for John Edwards, of Dobdon-Hall, in the County of Eſſex, Eſq; and his Heirs, to the intent the ſame may be ſold.

An Act to enable Sir Humphry Forſter to ſettle and diſpoſe Lands.

An Act to enable Thomas Berenger, Eſq; to ſell Lands for Payment of his Debts.

An Act to veſt the Eſtate of Cadwallador Wynne, Eſq; in Truſtees for the Payment of his Debs.

An Act for the Naturalizing of David le Grand, and others.

The King intent upon going over to reduce Ireland.

The King was very intent upon going over in Perſon to Ireland, and putting an Iſſue to that dangerous War ; and therefore he employ'd his Miniſters in the Houſe of Commons, to draw up a Bill for putting the Adminiſtration of the Government into the Queen's Hands, not only during the King's Abſence in Ireland, but whenever his Affairs ſhould call him out of the Kingdom : And that nothing might happen to the Prejudice of the Government, whilſt he himſelf was abroad, he thought fit to require, That the Deputy-Lieutenants of the ſeveral Counties, ſhould be authoriz'd to raiſe the Militia in caſe of Neceſſity ; and all Papiſts ſhould be order'd to repair to their Places of Abode, and not ſtir above Five Miles from thence without Leave. And that his Majeſty might have the greater Confidence in the City of London, a Bill was to be brought in for Reverſing the Judgment in a Quo Warranto againſt their Charter, and for reſtoring all their Ancient Rights and Liberties. When theſe Things were ready, his Majeſty came on Tueſday, May 20. to the Houſe of Lords, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, (1.) An Act for the Exerciſe of the Government by Her Majeſty, during His Majeſty's Abſence. (2.) An Act for Reverſing the Judgment in a Quo Warranto againſt the City of London, and for Reſtoring the City of London to its Ancient Rights and Privileges. (3.) An Act to declare the Right and Freedom of Election of Members to ſerve in Parliament for the Cinque Ports. (4.) An Act for the Diſcouraging the Importation of Thrown Silk. (5.) An Act for Confirming to the Governor and Company Trading to Hudſon's Bay, their Privileges and Trade. (6.) An Act for the Encouraging and better Eſtabliſhing the Manufacture of White Paper in this Kingdom : And to Two Private Acts.

Bill of Indemnity.

The Bill of Indemnity and Free Pardon, ſo earneſtly recommended by his Majeſty, did at laſt paſs both Houſes, after great Debates held, and many Difficulties remov'd, about the Subject of it. The Clemency of the King, and the Generoſity of the Parliament, were very great ; for among all the late Inſtruments of Popery and Arbitrary Power, there were but Thirty Five Perſons expreſly excepted ; and of them, few or none made Examples of the Juſtice of the Nation. The Perſons excepted were,

William Marquis of Powis.	Theophilus Earl of Huntingdon.
Robert (a) Earl of Sunderland.	John Earl of Melford.
Roger Earl of Caſtlemain.	The Lord Thomas Howard.
Nathaniel (b) Lord Biſhop of Durham.	Thomas (c) Lord Biſhop of St. David's.
Henry Lord Dover.	William Molineux.
Sir Edward Hales.	Sir William Herbert.
Sir Francis Wythens.	Sir Richard Holloway.
Sir Edward Lutwich.	Sir Richard Heath.
Sir Thomas Jenner.	Sir Roger L'Eſtrange.
Sir Nicholas Butler.	Edward Petre.
Thomas Tindeſley, alias Tildeſley.	---Townley, lately call'd Colonel Townley.
Rowland Tempeſt.	Edward Morgan.
Obadiah Walker.	Robert Brent.
Richard Graham.	Philip Burton.
Robert Lundy.	Matthew Crone.

And alſo excepted, George Lord Jefferies, deceas'd.

The King thought it proper to conclude the Seſſion with this Act of Grace ; and therefore on Friday, May 23. he came to the Houſe of Lords, and gave the Royal Aſſent to this Act for the King and Queen's moſt Gracious, General, and Free Pardon. After which, His Majeſty was pleas'd to make this Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen ;

King's Speech.

"I Have had ſuch Aſſurance of your good Affections to me, that I come now to thank you, "and particularly for the Supplies you have given "me.

"The Seaſon of the Year is ſo far advanc'd, that "I can no longer delay my going into Ireland ; and "therefore I think it neceſſary to have an Adjournment of the Parliament : And tho' it ſhall be but "to a ſhort Day, yet unleſs ſome great Occaſion require it, (of which you ſhall have due Notice) "I do not intend you ſhall ſit to do Buſineſs until "the Winter ; and I hope, by the Bleſſing of GOD, "we ſhall then have a happy Meeting.

"In the mean Time, I recommend to you the "Diſcharge of your Duties in your reſpective "Counties, that the Peace of the Nation may be "ſecur'd by your Vigilance and Care in your ſeveral "Stations.

The Two Houſes adjourn.

Then the Lord Chief Baron, Speaker of the Houſe of Peers, told both Houſes, It was his Majeſty's Pleaſure, that they adjourn themſelves to the 7th Day of July next. (d)

Honours and Offices.

On May 30. his Majeſty was pleas'd to conſtitute Richard Pyne, Eſq; Sir Richard Reeves, Kt. and (a) Robert Earl of Sunderland was in the Favour of King William, as one who had done good Services toward promoting the Revolution, in a private, effectual Manner. See the Earl of Sunderland's Letter to a Friend in London ; plainly diſcovering the Deſigns of the Romiſh Party, and others, for the ſubverting of the Proteſtant Religion, and the Laws of the Kingdom. Licenſed, March 23. 1689.

(b) The Biſhop of D - - - had paid ſo much Court to the King, and to the very Nuncio of the Pope, that he deſpair'd of any Favour at the Revolution ; and he was once got beyond Sea in a Fright ; but being brought back by the Importunity of a Domeſtick Servant, he made a new Intereſt in the new Court and Parliament, and bought off the Complaints of Mr. Samuel Johnſon, and others, who had ſuffer'd by him.

(c) Thomas Lord Biſhop of St. David's would not be depriv'd by the Act for not taking the Oaths ; but after a long Proſecution of him, for Corruption, and many irregular and ſcandalous Practices ; he was depriv'd by Archbiſhop Teniſon, and the Sentence affirm'd in Common Law.

(d) As to the Diſputes and Commotions in the Univerſity of Oxford within this Year 1690. See 1. The Naked Truth, written by Arthur Bury, D. D. Rector of Exeter-College in Oxford ; by him publiſh'd firſt in April 1690. Said in the Title-Page to be printed at London, (but really at Oxford) by virtue of his Authority as Pro-Vicechancellor.—— 2. An Account of the Proceedings of the Right Reverend Father in God, Jonathan Lord Biſhop of Exeter, in his late Viſitation of Exeter-College in Oxford, ſolemnly begun on June 16. 1690. With Copies and Robert Rochford, Eſq; Commiſſioners of the Great Seal of Ireland, as alſo Commiſſioners of Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol-Delivery within the ſaid Kingdom: And on June 3. Sir John Trevor, Kt. Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, Sir William Rawlinſon, Kt. and Sir George Hutchins, Kt. were ſworn Lords Commiſſioners for the Great Seal of England; and on the ſame Day, Charles Marquis of Wincheſter, Lord Chamberlain to the Queen, was ſworn one of the Lords of the Privy Council. The next Morning, June the 4th, his Majeſty ſet out on his Royal Voyage for (a) Ireland; and Dining with Mr. Guy of Tring, he lay that Night at Northampton, the next at Litchfield, the Third at Whitehurch, and came by Saturday Noon to Colonel Whitley's Houſe, between Cheſter and Highlake. On Sunday Morning, his Majeſty went to Cheſter, with a numerous Attendance of Nobility and Gentry. His Majeſty went directly to the Cathedral, the Mayor carrying the Sword, and the Senior Alderman the Mace before him. At the Church-Door, the Biſhop and his Clergy receiv'd his Majeſty, and conducted him into the Choir. After Divine Service, and a Sermon preach'd by the Biſhop, his Majeſty took Coach again, and went to Gayton, the Houſe of Mr. Gleg; where he was met by Sir Cloudeſly Shovel, and the reſt of the Sea-Commanders. On Wedneſday, June the 11th, his Majeſty embark'd at Highlake, and ſet Sail about Noon with a Fair Wind, with Six Men of War, commanded by Sir Cloudeſly Shovel, Six Yatchts, and as many other Tranſport Veſſels as made up a Fleet of above Three Hundred Sail. On Saturday Morning, by Half an Hour after One, his Majeſty arriv'd in the Bay of Carrick-fergus, and about Three went aſhore, and travell'd by Land about Eight Miles to Belfaſt; where he was met by the Duke of Schomberg, the Prince of Wirtembergh, Major-General Kirke, and other General Officers; being attended from England by his Royal Highneſs Prince George of Denmark, the Duke of Ormond, the Earls of Oxford, Scarborough and Mancheſter, the Honourable Mr. Boyle, and many other Perſons of Diſtinction. Next Day, being Sunday, Dr. Royſe preach'd before the King, on Heb. vi. 11. Through Faith they ſubdued Kingdoms. Two or Three Days after, his Majeſty din'd with the General, at his Head-Quarters at Lisburn, and from thence went on to Hillsborough; where, on the 20th, he publiſh'd an Order, forbidding the Preſſing of Horſes, and committing any Violence upon the Country-People. Then hearing ſome cautious Advices given by the General Officers, he ſaid, He did not come there to let Graſs grow under his Feet; but he would purſue the War with the utmoſt Vigor: And therefore order'd the whole Army to march into the Field, and encamp at Loughbritland, where the King arriv'd, June 22. and taking a particular View of the Army, he found them to conſiſt of Thirty Six Thouſand Men, in good Heart and Condition: From hence they march'd to Newry, and on the 27th to Dundalk. The King was ſo pleas'd with the Proſpect of the Country as he rid along, that he ſaid to thoſe about him, It was worth Fighting for. Upon Advice that the Enemy had abandon'd Ardee, the King immediately directed his March thither.

1690. 1 W. M.

Embarks at Highlake;

Lands at Carrick-fergus.

K. James reſolves to meet him in the Field.

The late King James was no ſooner inform'd of King William's Landing, but he agreed to the Neceſſity of meeting him in the Field; and therefore, on the 16th of June, he ſet out from Dublin with about Six Thouſand French Foot, being old experienced Soldiers, lately arriv'd from France; and committed the Guard of that City to Six Thouſand of the Country Militia, under the Command of Colonel Lutterel. But, as if foreſeeing his own Misfortunes, he had order'd Sir Patrick Trant, Commiſſioner of the Revenue, to prepare him Ships at Waterford, that after a Fight, he might ſecure his Retreat to France. King James coming up to the reſt of his Forces, which now amounted to almoſt an equal Number with thoſe of King William's, beſides Fifteen Thouſand which remain'd in Gariſons, he held a Council of War; wherein it was thought fit to repaſs the Boyne, and to weary out the Engliſh by Marches and Counter-Marches along that River, which they thought impoſſible for them to paſs, while they could defend the oppoſite Banks at ſuch great Advantage.

The Battel of the Boyne.

On the 30th of June, K. William being inform'd that the Enemy had repaſs'd the Boyne, order'd his whole Army to move by Break of Day in Three Lines towards that River, which was about Three Miles diſtant from 'em; whereupon the advanc'd Guards of Horſe, commanded by Sir John Lanier, mov'd in very good Order, and by Nine of the Clock got within Two Miles of Drogheda. The King, who march'd in the Front of 'em, rode nearer to view the Enemy's Camp, which he found to be all along the River in Two Lines. Upon this Proſpect, his Majeſty held a Conſult and long Diſcourſe with the Prince, Duke Schomberg, Duke of Ormond, Count Solmes, Major-General Scravenmore, the Lord Sidney, and other Great Officers, who made their ſeveral Obſervations upon the Enemy: Among the reſt, Scravenmore ſeem'd to deſpiſe 'em, and ſaid they were Un Petit Armee, for they could not reckon above Forty ſix Regiments that lay encamp'd; but the King wiſely anſwer'd, "That they might "have a great many Men in the Town; and that "alſo there was a Hill to the South-Weſt, beyond "which, Part of their Army might well lie: But "however, (ſays the King) we ſhall ſoon be better "acquainted with their Numbers."

The King rid on to the Paſs of the Old Bridge, and ſtood upon the Side of the Bank within Muſquet-ſhot of the Ford, there to take a nearer View of the Enemy's Poſture, and in ſome time after rid about Two Hundred Paces up the River in full View of the Iriſh Army, with an intrepid Bravery, and a fixt Reſolution to engage them. Whilſt his Army was Marching in, He alighted from his Horſe and ſat down upon a riſing Ground, where he refreſh'd himſelf for about an Hour, during which Time a Party of about Forty Horſe, advancing very ſlowly, pies of the Authentick Papers, &c. Oxon, 1690. 4to.—— 3. The Account examin'd; or, A Vindication of Dr. Arthur Bury, Rector of Exeter-College, from the Calumnies of a late Pamphlet, entitled, An Account of the Proceedings, &c. London, for Rand. Taylor, 1690. 4to.—— 4. The Judgment and Decree of the Univerſity of Oxford, deliver'd in a Convocation, held Aug. 19. 1690. againſt ſome Impious and Heretical Propoſitions, tranſcribed and quoted out of an infamous Libel, of late perfidiouſly printed within the ſaid Univerſity, and publiſh'd with this Title, The Naked Truth; which does impugn and aſſault the principal Myſtery of our Faith, always retain'd and preſerv'd in the Catholick Church, and eſpecially in the Church of England. Imprimatur, Jonathan Edwards, Vice-Can.

(a) Before his Majeſty went for Ireland, One Jones was employ'd to aſſaſſinate him; and that Aſſaſſin not being able to accompliſh his Deſign in England, follow'd the King to Ireland, on the ſame accurſed Deſign; as appear'd by an intercepted Letter to the late Queen Mary in France, from Tyrconnel, and other Letters found at Dublin, when that City was recover'd from the Iriſh. By whom this Villain was chiefly ſet to work to perpetrate ſo fatal a Blow, is not come to Light; but that he was to do it, and that Tyrconnel kept Correſpondence about it with France, is too well known (by Letters under his own Hand) to need further Proof. It is certain, Tyrconnel, and the French Generals, plac'd their laſt Hopes in that Aſſaſſin's Undertaking. In a Letter (about that Time) intercepted from Tyrconnel at Ardee, to the late Queen Mary, he gave her a very melancholly Account of their Affairs; tells her, The Enemy was Forty Thouſand ſtrong, and furniſh'd with all Things neceſſary; That the King (meaning King James) was for Fighting; but he himſelf was againſt it: And he concluded, That notwithſtanding all her Care of their Affairs, he had now no Hopes but in Jones's Negotiation. See Secret Hiſt. of Europe, P. XI. p. 263.

made

1690. 1 W. M. made a Stand upon a Plow'd Field over-againſt the King, and brought two Field-Pieces with them, which they dropt by a Hedge on the ſaid Ground. The King was no ſooner Mounted again but the Iriſh Fired at him, and with the firſt Shot kill'd a Man, and two Horſes within an Hundred Paces of his Majeſty. This Bullet was preſently ſucceeded by another, that having firſt graz'd on the Bank of the River, did in its riſing ſlant upon the King's right Shoulder, took out a Piece of his Coat, and tore the Skin and Fleſh, and afterwards broke the Head of a Gentleman's Piſtol. My Lord Conningsby no ſooner ſaw his Majeſty wounded, but he rid up and clapt his Handkerchief upon the ſore Place, while the King himſelf mounted again and kept on his Pace, and only ſaid, There was no Neceſſity the Bullet ſhould have come nearer. The Enemy ſeeing ſome Diſorder among thoſe that attended King William concluded preſently he was kill'd, and immediately ſet up a Shout all over their Camp, and drew down ſeveral Squadrons of their Horſe upon a Plain towards the River, as if they meant to paſs and purſue the Engliſh Army. Nay the Report of King William's Death flew preſently to Dublin, and from thence ſpread as far as Paris, where the People were encourag'd to expreſs their impious Joys by Bonfires and Illuminations. King William continued on Horſeback without the leaſt Concern, till Four in the Afternoon when he dined in the Field, and in the Evening was on Horſeback again, tho' he had been up from One in the Morning. About Nine at Night he called a Council of War, and declar'd his Reſolution to paſs the River next Day, which Duke Schomberg at firſt oppos'd, but finding the King poſitive, he adviſ'd, that Part of the Army, Horſe and Foot, ſhould be ſent that Night towards Slain-Bridge, in order to paſs the River thereabouts, and ſo get between the Enemy and the Paſs at Duleck. This Advice ſeem'd to be at firſt well reliſh'd, but it being afterwards oppoſed by the Dutch Generals, Duke Schomberg retired to his Tent, where not long after the Order of Battel was brought him, which he receiv'd with Diſcontent and Indifference, ſaying, It was the firſt that ever was ſent him. Lieutenant-General Douglas was to command the Right Wing of Foot, and Count Maynard de Scomberg the Horſe, who were to March on early towards Slain Bridge, and other Fords up the River, to Flank the Enemy, or get between their Camp and Drogheda, whilſt in the mean time a Body of Foot were to force their Way, by the Paſs at Old-Bridge. The Cannonading continued on both Sides till it was dark Night, when King William gave Orders that every Soldier ſhould be provided with a good Stock of Ammunition, and be ready to march at Break of Day, with every Man a green Bough or Sprig in his Hat, to diſtinguiſh him from the Enemy, who wore Pieces of white Paper in their Hats. The Word that Night being Weſtminſter, his Majeſty rode in Perſon about Twelve at Night, with Torches quite through the Army, and then retir'd to his Tent, impatient of the approaching Day.

K. William ſlightly wounded.

Diſpoſition of the Two Armies.

That expected Day, July the 1ſt, being come, about Six in the Morning Lieutenant-General Douglas march'd towards the Right with ſome Foot, as did Count Schomberg with the Horſe; which being obſerved by the Enemy, they drew out their Horſe and Foot towards the Left to oppoſe them. Our Right Wing was at firſt ordered to paſs all at Slain, but on better Information from the Guides, ſeveral Regiments were commanded to go over at other Fords between the Camp and that Place. When our Horſe approached the River, a Regiment of the Enemy's Dragoons fir'd upon them, and made a Show of oppoſing their Paſſage; but being ſoon forc'd to retire with Loſs, the Engliſh got over, and advanc'd towards the Enemy's main Body, which they found drawn up in two Lines. Hereupon Douglas drew up his Detachment in the ſame Figure, but having Six Batallions only of Foot to Twenty-four Squadrons of Horſe and Dragoons, he ſent for more Foot to join him; and in the mean time he took my Lord Portland's Advice, of intermixing the Horſe and Foot for their Security. More Foot being come up, this Figure was immediately alter'd, and all the Horſe were drawn to the Right, whilſt the Foot moved towards a Bog on the Left, which Motion ſo frighted the Iriſh that they retreated in great Haſte towards Duleck, but were vigorouſly purſu'd by Count Schomberg.

Tho' King William was ignorant of what had paſſed, yet ſuppoſing that by this time they had got over the River, he order'd three Attacks to be made to open the ſeveral Paſſes; the Blue Dutch Guards of Foot were the firſt that took the River at Old-Bridge, beating a March all the while till they got upon the Side of the Bank, and then the Drums ceaſing, in they went Eight or Ten a Breaſt wading to the Middle; and being got over amidſt the Enemies Fire they drew up into two Files, and then fired upon the Iriſh behind the Hedges, who were ſo diſcourag'd that they ran away, and ſcatter'd themſelves in the next Field; but before the Dutch could put themſelves into good order, they were charg'd by a Squadron of Iriſh Horſe whom they beat off, and ſtood their own Ground with great ſtoutneſs. The Regiments of Sir John Hanmore and Count Naſſau were paſſing at another Part of the River, where a Squadron of Lieutenant-General Hamilton's Horſe rode briskly to the very Brink of the River to ſtop their Paſſage; but being not able to oppoſe their Landing they wheel'd away, and in their Retreat fell upon the French Foot with ſo much Indignation, that Part of them broke through Monſieur Le Cailemotes, and Cambones Regiments, which wanted Pikes to ſtem their furious Career. Cailemote himſelf received his Mortal Wound, and as he was carrying back by Four Soldiers to the Engliſh Camp, he encourag'd thoſe that croſs'd the River by theſe Words; A la Gloire, mes Enfants, a la Gloire, To Glory, my Boys, to Glory; which Words had their Force, and a ſort of Prediction in them, for the Iriſh Horſe being obliged to wheel to the Left, and paſs through a Village to recover their own Men, they were intercepted by the Dutch and Inniskilling-Foot, and moſt of them after a valiant Reſiſtance were cut in Pieces. By this time the Dutch Guards being advanced as far as the Hedges into the open Field, the Iriſh Horſe came down upon them again with greater Numbers and redoubled Fury, but were ſo warmly receiv'd that they were forced to retire; yet a freſh Squadron of Horſe advanc'd to ſupport them, but they too were vigorouſly repulſed by the French Proteſtants and Inniskilling-Men.

In the mean time the Danes came up to the Left, but were ſo valiantly attack'd in the Front by Hamilton's Horſe that they were forced to give Ground; and ſome of them run croſs the River again. The Duke of Schomberg perceiving this Diſorder, (a) and ſeeing the French-Proteſtants were alſo left expos'd, without a Commander, immediately paſſed the River in order to head them, with ſo much hurry, that he would not be perſuaded by Monſieur Foubert, one of his Aids de Camp, to put on his Armour. He was no ſooner got on the other ſide, but he called to the

(a) One of the hardeſt Things done by K. James in Ireland was his delivering up ſome of the French Refugees to be carried back and tormented in France. An honeſt Writer tells us; We need only relate the Story of Monſieur Rouſſel, a Perſon of great Fame for his Learning and Integrity, who being Miniſter of Montpelier in France, when by the French King's Edict that Church was demoliſh'd, was from a Principle of Zeal for his Religion, and at the deſire of his People, perſwaded to preach in, the French-Proteſtants in theſe brave Words; Allons, Meſſieurs, voila noſtre Perſecuteurs; (Come on Gentlemen, ſee there your Perſecutors,) pointing to the French-Papiſts in the Enemy's Army: Immediately Fifteen or Sixteen of King James's Guards, who were returning main Speed to their main Body, after the Slaughter of their Companions, fell furiouſly upon the Duke, and gave him two Wounds over the Head. At the ſame time, the French-Refugees firing raſhly upon the Enemy, are ſuppos'd to have ſhot the Duke through the Neck, upon which he fell from his Horſe, and inſtantly Died. Monſieur Foubert, alighting to relieve him, was ſhot in the Arm: And Dr. Walker, ſo famous for the defence of London-Derry, about the ſame Time, in a different Action, receiv'd a Wound in the Belly, which he furviv'd but ſome few Moments.

1690. 1 W. M.

King William paſſes the Boyne.

His Majeſty, accompany'd by the Prince of Denmark, paſſed the River with the Left-Wing of Horſe, and that with much difficulty, for his Horſe was bogg'd on the other ſide, and Himſelf forc'd to alight, till one of his Attendants help'd him to get his Horſe out, and mount again. Aſſoon as his Troops were got over, and put in ſome Order, his Majeſty drew his Sword, (though the Wound he received the Day before had made his Arm ſtiff and uneaſy) and march'd at the Head of them towards the Enemy, who were coming on again, in good order towards the Engliſh Foot that had now got over the Paſs, and were advancing bravely towards the Iriſh, though they were double their Number. When theſe two Bodies had got almoſt within Muſquet-ſhot of one another, the Enemy diſcover'd the Left Wing of the Engliſh Horſe moving towards them, at which they made a ſudden Halt, fac'd about, and retreated up the Hill again, to a little Village called Dunmore, about half a Mile from the Paſs. The Engliſh marching in good Order, came up with them at this Village, when the Iriſh fac'd about and charg'd with ſo much Briskneſs, that they made the Engliſh Horſe give ground, tho' they had the King at the Head of them. The King was ſo aſham'd of their ſhrinking, that he rid off to the Inniskillingers, and ask'd them what they would do for him? Their Chief Officer told them it was King William, who was doing them the Honour to Head them. Upon this they boldly came forward, and the King leading them receiv'd the Enemy's Fire; but then wheeling to the Left to fetch up his own Men again, the Inniskillingers, through a Miſtake, retir'd after him above an Hundred Yards. This made the King move to the Left to put Himſelf at the head of ſome Dutch Troops that were advancing; while, in the mean time, the Inniskillingers, growing ſenſible of their Error, went on and renewed their Charge with good Succeſs. In this Place, the Duke of Schomberg's Regiment of Horſe, made up of French Refugees, behav'd themſelves with undaunted Reſolution, like Men that fought for their Friends and Protectors of another Nation, againſt the Enemies and Perſecutors of their own Country. At the ſame time, another Party, commanded by Lieutenant-General Ginkle, charg'd in a Lane to the Left, but was ſoon overpower'd by the Iriſh, and forced to give way. This being obſerv'd by a Party of Sir Albert Coningham's Dragoons, and another of Colonel Leveſon's, the Officers order'd their Men to alight and line a Hedge, as alſo an old Houſe that flankt the Lane, from whence they pour'd in their Shot upon the Enemy, and did great Service, by protecting General Ginkle, who continued in the Rear of his Men, and labour'd heartily to make them ſtand their Ground, and by giving the Dutch Horſe an Opportunity of Rallying; by which means, after half an Hour's ſharp Diſpute, they were beat back again with conſiderable Loſs.

1690. 1 W. M.

On the other ſide, Lieutenant-General Hamilton, finding that his Foot did not anſwer his Expectation, put himſelf at the Head of the Horſe, which were likewiſe routed, and himſelf taken Priſoner. When he was brought to the King, his Majeſty ask'd him, Whether the Iriſh wou'd fight any more? Yes, Sir, (reply'd Hamilton) upon my Honour I believe they will. When he pronounc'd the Word Honour, the King look'd wiſhly upon him, and then turn'd about repeating once or twice Your Honour; intimating, that what he aſſur'd upon his Honour, was not to be depended on, ſince he had forfeited that before by ſiding with Tyrconnel; and this was all the Rebuke the King gave him for his Breach of Truſt. In the mean time, Count Schomberg, being inform'd of his Father's Death, purſued the Enemy with that Fury which a noble and juſt Reſentment cou'd inſpire, and drove them ſeveral Miles beyond the Village of Dubeck, with great Slaughter: Nor did he deſiſt from ſacrificing Enemies to his Father's Ghoſt, till the Lord Portland, by the King's expreſs Command, oblig'd him to return to the Place where the Foot made a Halt, and where they lay upon their Arms all Night.

King William had reaſon not to regard what Hamilton told him; for, in effect, that General was no ſooner taken but the Fight ceas'd on that ſide: And Count Lanzoon making up to King James, who (during the whole Action) ſtood with ſome Squadrons of Horſe on Dunmore-Hill, repreſented to his Majeſty, "That he would be ſoon ſurrounded by "the Enemy; and therefore told him, "He ought "to think of nothing but a Retreat, which he "doubted not to make good, with many brave "Officers then about him, and the Remains of his "French and Swiſs Troops. This Advice the unfortunate King was very inclinable to take, and therefore, attended by the Regiment of Sarsfield, march'd off to Duleck, and from thence in great haſte to Dublin: Whilſt Count Lanzoon, Sheldon, and ſome other Officers, diſpos'd all Things for a Retreat, which they perform'd in very good Order.

King William obtains an entire Victory.

King James's whole Loſs in this Battel was generally computed at Fifteen Hundred Men; amongſt whom were the Lord Dongan, the Lord Carlingford, Sir Neal O-Neal, the Marquis D' Harquincourt; and ſeveral Priſoners, the Chief of whom was Lieutenant-General Hamilton, who (to do him Juſtice) behav'd himſelf with great Courage, and kept Victory doubtful, till he was made Priſoner. On the Engliſh Side fell above Five Hundred; an inconſiderable Number, conſidering the Gain of ſo important a Battel, if the Renowned Duke of Schomberg had not been amongſt them. He was a Perſon of firm and compos'd Courage, and one of the beſt Generals that France ever bred. To the Lawrels he in the Night time upon the Ruins of his Church to ſome Thouſands of wretched Proteſtants his late Flock, for which he was in his Abſence condemn'd by the Super-Intendant of Languedoc to be broke upon the Wheel; which Sentence was put in Execution as far as it could be, by hanging him in Effigy, and the moſt ſtrict Search was made for him through the whole Province. After a Thouſand Hazards, this Learned Divine got out of France, and became Miniſter of the French Church at Dublin. King James, who while he was in England, affected a charitable Diſpoſition towards the French Refugees, knowing it would be popular; being got into Ireland among his French and Iriſh Counſellors, he had no longer any Temptation to diſguiſe his natural Temper, and his Hatred of the Reformed Religion, which rendred him guilty of an Action, his Friends could not excuſe from the Imputation of the greateſt Cruelty and Breach of Honour; for inſtead of protecting a Stranger that had fled his own Country for doing his Duty, and diſcharging his Conſcience, and upon the Security of Law had ſettled himſelf in another, he deliver'd up this Reverend Exile, who liv'd peaceably under his Government, to the Count D' Avaux, who ſent him in Chains to France, to ſuffer the terrible Puniſhment to which he was adjudg'd by his inhuman Perſecutors. Nor was this all, for two or three Months before he was driven from Ireland, a great Number of Proteſtants of the Province of Munſter, of all Ranks and Ages, were ſeiz'd by the French, forc'd aboard their Fleet, carry'd to France, and there thrown into Dungeons. Secr. Hiſt. of Europe, P. II. p. 242.

gather'd

1690. 1 W. M.

gather'd in Catalonia, and in Flanders, he added the Glory of having fix'd the preſent King of Portugal on his Throne, and of having been inſtrumental to the Settlement of King William. He had a great Experience of the World; knew Men and Things better than any Man of his Profeſſion ever did; and was as great in Council, as at the Head of an Army. In his declining Years, his Memory very much fail'd, but his Judgment remain'd true and clear to the laſt. He appear'd courteous and affable to every body; and yet he had an Air of Grandeur, that commanded Reſpect from all. He was of a Middle Stature, fair-complexion'd; a very ſound, hardy Man of his Age; and ſat a Horſe incomparably well. As he lov'd always to be neat in his Cloaths, ſo was he ever pleaſant in his Converſation; of which this Repartee is a pregnant Inſtance: Some Time before he went for Ireland, he was walking in St. James's Park, amidſt Crowds of the young and gay; and being ask'd, What a Man of his Age had to do with ſuch Company? His Anſwer was, That a good General makes his Retreat as late as he can. He was Eighty two Years of Age when he was (a) kill'd. And as Monſieur La Caillemote had follow'd that Great Man in all his Fortunes, while alive; ſo did he in his Death, for he did not long ſurvive his Wounds.

As for the King himſelf, he receiv'd no manner of Hurt in the Action, tho' he was in all the Height of it; only a Cannon-Ball carry'd away a Piece of his Boot. His Majeſty did all that the greateſt of Generals could do upon this Occaſion: He choſe the Field, diſpos'd the Attacks, drew up his Army, charg'd the Enemy ſeveral Times, ſupported his Forces when they began to ſhrink, and demean'd himſelf throughout with that Conduct, Gallantry, Reſolution, and Preſence of Mind; and was ſuch a Poize for the inclining Victory to his own Side, that the Iriſh themſelves confeſs'd, That if the Engliſh chang'd Kings with them, they would fight the Battel over again. However, both Kings have been equally blam'd; the one, for not improving the Advantage of his Victory; and the other, that of his Retreat. Thoſe that have writ in Favour of King James, ſay, King William might have march'd directly to Dublin, a Place open and unfortify'd on every ſide; and prevented the Iriſh aſſembling any more, and ſecuring Limerick, Galway, and ſeveral other important Places. And ſuch as are Partiſans of King William, blame both King James, for leaving Ireland with ſo much Precipitation; and thoſe he left behind, for not having carefully collected the Remains of a Defeat that had coſt them but few Men.

K. James flies to Dublin.

King James being arriv'd at Dublin, and having immediately aſſembled the Magiſtrates and Council of the City, he told them, "That his Army "in England having made a total Defection againſt "him, when he had the greateſt Occaſion for them, "he retir'd to France, where he was kindly re-"ceiv'd by that King, and had all the Aſſurance "imaginable to be re-eſtabliſh'd on his Throne: "That in ſome Time after, he came to this King-"dom of Ireland, and found all his Roman Catholick Subjects, as well equipp'd and prepar'd to "defend his Cauſe, as their Ability would bear; "and tho' he had been often told, That when it "came to the Touch, they would never bear the "Brunt of a Battel; he could never credit the "ſame till that Day, when having a good Army, "and all Preparations fit to engage a Foreign Inva-"der, he found the fatal Truth of what he had "been ſo often precaution'd. And tho' the Army "did not deſert him, as they did in England; yet, "when it came to the Trial, they baſely fled the "Field, and left it a Spoil to his Enemies: Nor "could they be prevail'd upon to rally, tho' the "Loſs in the whole Defeat was but inconſiderable; "ſo that henceforward he never more determin'd to "head an Iriſh Army, and did now reſolve to ſhift "for himſelf, as they themſelves muſt do. That "it had often been debated, in caſe ſuch a Reſolu-"tion ſhould happen, Whether upon deſerting the "City of Dublin, the ſame might not be fired? He "did therefore charge them, on their Allegiance, "That they neither ſhould rifle it by Plunder, nor "deſtroy it by Fire; which in all Kingdoms would "be judg'd very barbarous, and muſt be believ'd "to be done by his Orders; and if done, there "wou'd be but little Mercy to be expected from an "enrag'd Enemy." Concluding, "He was neceſ-"ſitated to yield to Force; but would never "ceaſe to labour their Deliverance as long as he "liv'd."

His Majeſty having ſtay'd at Dublin one Night, the next Morning, attended by the Duke of Berwick and Tyrconnel, and the Marquis of Powis, he poſted away to Waterford, where he arriv'd the ſame Day; taking care to have the Bridges broke down behind him, for fear of being purſued. There he went on Board a Veſſel, call'd the Count de Lauzun, that was ready to receive him: But the Sieur Foran, who commanded the Squadron, meeting him at Sea, deſir'd him to go on Board one of his Frigats, for his quicker Paſſage; and by this means he got over once more into France, and fix'd his Reſidence at (b) St. Germains.

K. James returns to France.

So ſoon as King James was gone, all the conſiderable Papiſts fled from Dublin, and the Proteſtants were releas'd, who poſſeſs'd themſelves of the Militia Arms, and with the Aſſiſtance of the Biſhops

(a) It was commonly ſaid, that Dr. Lane, a Civilian, Fellow of Merton-College in Oxford, who had unluckily follow'd the Fortunes of King James, and was in this Battel of the Boyne, us'd in ſome Freedoms to value himſelf, that He was the Perſon who kill'd Schomberg; wherein he was thought to vapour, rather than to confeſs. This Perſon, after the Loſs of the Battel, run away with K. James; but not being allow'd to adventure with him into France, he got over to Cheſter, and begg'd his way to London; and being a Man of good Parts, and confident Elocution, he became afterwards an Eminent Advocate in Doctors-Commons; and was even recommended to King William, to be his Advocate, at the ſame Time with Sir John Cooke. The King ask'd Archbiſhop Teniſon, Which was the better Man? The Archbiſhop anſwer'd, They were both good Civilians; and there was this Odds only, One fought againſt your Majeſty at the Boyne, and the Other fought for You. Nay, ſays the King, I'll have my own Soldier.

(b) The King form'd a Court at St. Germains; where the Proteſtants, who had left every Thing to follow his Fortunes, were frown'd upon and neglected. His Chief Domeſticks were all Catholicks, (as will be ſeen by the following Liſt) one or two only excepted.

1. The Duke of Powis, Lord Chamberlain.
2. Colonel Porter, Vice-Chamberlain.
3. The Earl of Dunbarton, and the Earl of Abercorn, Lords of the Bed Chamber.
4. Captain Mac-Donald, Captain Beadles, Captain Stafford, Captain Trevanion, Grooms of the Bed-Chamber.
5. Fergus Graham, Eſq; Privy-Purſe.
6. Edward Sheldon, Eſq; —— Sheldon, Eſq; Sir John Sparrow, of the Board of Green-Cloth.
7. Mr. Strickland, Vice-Chamberlain to the Queen.
8. Mr. Brown, Brother to the Lord Viſcount Montacute, Secretary of State for England.
9. Sir Richard Neagle, Secretary of State for Ireland.
10. Father Innes, Preſident of the Scots College at Paris, Secretary of State for Scotland.
11. John Caryl, Eſq; Secretary to the Queen.
12. —— Stafford, Eſq; formerly Envoy in Spain.

Theſe Five laſt were his Junto, his Cabinet-Counſellors; The Earl of Melfort being ſent to Rome, not ſo much in Hopes of getting Money from the Pope, as to pleaſe the Iriſh, who had at that Time monopoliz'd the King's Favour; his Expectation from their Aſſiſtance being greater, than from both the other Kingdoms. Secret Hiſt. of Europe, P. XI. p. 244.

of (a) Meath and Limerick, form'd a Committee to take care of Things; and ſent Letters to King William, to give him an Account of what had paſs'd, and humbly to pray his Majeſty to honour that City with his Preſence.

K. William invited to Dublin.

A Plot in England, against K. William.

King William, before he left England, was very ſenſible of a dangerous Conſpiracy againſt him, form'd upon the Hopes and Expectation of Succeſs to King James and the French Power; and therefore, Four Days before he ſet out for Ireland, he publiſh'd a Proclamation for the apprehending of ſeveral diſaffected Perſons, who, by Information given upon Oath, had conſpired together to raiſe Rebellion; and for that Purpoſe, had made Proviſion of Arms, and had liſted themſelves in ſeveral Regiments, Troops and Companies, under Pretence of Commiſſion from the late King James. His Majeſty well knew of an intended Invaſion from France, and a concerted Inſurrection in England, if good Opportunity ſhou'd offer, by any Advantage obtain'd by the French Fleet, which was at this Time more formidable than was expected, or could be well imagin'd; and our own Engliſh Navy was, for this one Year, inferior to it. His Majeſty, however, was not wanting to make the beſt Preparations he could by Sea; and having fitted up as good a Fleet as the Exigence of his Affairs wou'd admit, he appointed the Earl of Torrington Admiral, Ralph Delaval, Eſq; Vice-Admiral, and George Rooke, Eſq; Rear-Admiral, to command the Red Squadron; and made Mr. Ruſſell Admiral of the Blue, with Sir John Aſhby Vice-Admiral, and Sir Cloudeſley Shovel Rear-Admiral under him. And becauſe there was a common Suſpicion, that ſome of the Officers and Seamen were diſaffected to the preſent Government, therefore, to purge 'em, (while the Fleet lay in the Downs) this Addreſs was made a Teſt of their Loyalty to King William:

Addreſs of the Fleet.

"WE the Flag-Officers, Captains, and other "Officers of your Majeſty's Navy, being "now ready to enter upon Action, for the Service "of your Majeſties, and the Defence of our Country, do moſt humbly beg Leave to declare to "GOD, your Majeſties, and the whole World, "That we do acknowledge your Majeſties to be the "undoubted rightful King and Queen of England, "and the Dominions thereto belonging: And we "do hereby ſolemnly renounce all Allegiance and "Obedience to the late King James; and do faithfully promiſe, That we will, with our Lives, defend and aſſiſt your Majeſties, againſt the ſaid late "King James, his Adherents, and all your Enemies "whatſoever.

The Queen's wiſe Adminiſtration in the King's Abſence.

The Queen adminiſtred the Government with great Application to Buſineſs, and with a very diſtinguiſhing Temper and Conſtancy of Mind. She had a mighty Weight of Cares upon her; the Danger of her Royal Conſort in Ireland; the imminent Appearance of an Invaſion from France; and at Home a divided People, ſome profeſſedly owning an Allegiance to King James, and even others who had taken the Oaths, waiting for an Opportunity to renounce 'em. Under all theſe dubious Apprehenſions, her Majeſty betray'd no Fear, and loſt no Time. As ſoon as ſhe heard the King was ſafely landed in Ireland, ſhe began to exerciſe the Power by Act of Parliament devolv'd upon her, in Two ſeaſonable Proclamations, both dated the ſame Day, June 17. One, commanding all Papiſts, and reputed Papiſts, forthwith to depart the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and from within Ten Miles of the ſame: Another, for the Confinement of Popiſh Recuſants, within Five Miles of their reſpective Dwellings. And there was great Need of the utmoſt Vigilance and Care, to prevent the Ruin of the Nation; for King James's Adherents, who by this Time began to be diſtinguiſh'd by the Name of Jacobites; being furniſh'd by King William's Abſence with a promiſing Opportunity, to attempt the reſtoring of their abdicated Monarch, were concerting (b) Meaſures with France to put their Deſigns in Execution. It was agreed, that while Part of the French Fleet ſhould bear up the Thames, the Jacobites in London (who were grown very bold and numerous, by the flocking of that Party from all Parts of the Country thither) ſhould have made an Inſurrection, and have ſeiz'd the Queen and her Chief Miniſters. Then certain Perſons were to have taken upon 'em the Adminiſtration of Affairs till the Return of King James; who was to leave the Command of his Army to his Generals, and haſten with all Speed into England. The other Part of the French Fleet having join'd their Gallies, was to have landed Eight Thouſand Men at Torbay, with Arms for a greater Number: After which, the Gallies and Men of War were to ſail into the Iriſh Sea, to hinder the Return of King William and his Forces; and the diſcontented Scotch were to have revolted at the ſame Time in ſeveral Parts of that Kingdom.

The French Fleet in the Channel.

The French Fleet having enter'd the Channel, as before concerted, hover'd ſome Time about the Engliſh Coaſt, as expecting the Effect of the Conſpiracy, that was to have broke out the 18th of June. The vigilant Queen would not run the Hazards of Delay, but ſent immediate Orders to Admiral Torrington, to fight the Enemy whereever he ſhould meet him. Accordingly, on the 24th of June, that Admiral ſail'd from St. Helens, (the Wind at North-Eaſt) and ſtood toward the French Fleet, which was ſeen the Evening before off of Freſh-Water-Gate in the Iſle of Wight; but the Wind taking him ſhort, he came to an Anchor near Dungneſſe, within Five Leagues of the Enemy, who at Eight next Morning were at Compton-Bay. On June the 30th, (the Day before the Battel at the Boyne) the Two Fleets drew up in Lines of Battel off of Beachy; and about Nine in the Morning, the Dutch (having the Van-Guard) began the Fight, as alſo did ſome of the Engliſh; but not being ſeconded by the reſt of the Engliſh Fleet, which unexpectedly ſtood away, ſeveral of the Dutch Ships (after they had fought moſt gallantly) were either burnt, ſunk or diſabled; and the Engliſh that engag'd, were very much ſhatter'd. The Fight continued from Morning till Evening, the Dutch maintaining their Stations with ſo much Reſolution and Bravery againſt the whole French Force, (which conſiſted of Eighty two Men of War) that they had much ado to eſcape being all deſtroy'd. Among other Officers they loſt in this unequal Battel, were Rear-Admiral Jan Dick, Rear-Admiral Brackel, and Captain Nordel: On the Engliſh Side, Captain Botham, Captain Pomroy, with Two Captains of the Marine Regiments. Admiral Torrington

Sea-Fight.

Great Loſs of the Engliſh and Dutch.

(a) See the Speech of the Right Reverend Father in God, Anthony Lord Biſhop of Meath, to King William, when the Clergy waited on his Majeſty at his Camp nigh Dublin, on July 7. 1690. Together with his Majeſty's moſt gracious Anſwer. Licenſed July the 22d, 1690. Printed for B. Tooke.

(b) The Conſpirators in England had ſent a Memorial to the French King, to invite him to ſend a Fleet and Army to their Aſſiſtance, in the Name of the Loyal and Diſtreſſed Subjects of England. They tell King Lewis, It is in your Royal Arms and Bounty we propoſe our Hope and Confidence, and expect to ſee our Lawful King (your Ancient Friend and Ally) reſtor'd to the Rightful Throne of his Anceſtors, out of which wicked Men have thruſt him. ——— The Prince of Orange, the Uſurper, is juſt now on his Journey to Ireland; and being once arriv'd in that Kingdom, if your Majeſty's Fleet were able to block up St. George's Chanel, the Uſurper's Army would certainly be ſtarv'd. His Regiments in England ſerve more out of Neceſſity and Fear, than any Love to him; and thoſe Forces ſo few, that they are ſcarce able to keep the uſual Guard. The Engliſh Fleet is ſo divided, they cannot this Year make a conſiderable Figure. Killegrew is in the Streights; Shovel in St George's Chanel; the Dutch Squadron not ready; the Engliſh Ships ill mann'd; the Seamen diſcontented for want of Pay, &c.

was

1690. 1 W. M.

was diſcarded, and afterwards brought to his Tryal, where he pleaded the Inequality of Strength, and the Diſadvantage of the Wind, and was thereupon acquitted: Yet the Action was thought ſo inglorious, that he ſuffer'd extremely in his Reputation among the People, who were always apt to call a Misfortune a Miſcarriage. It is certain, that in the Year 1697. when ſeveral French Officers who had been in the Engagement, came over into England after the Peace, when they could not be ſuſpected of any partial Deſign, they openly juſtify'd and commended the Earl's Conduct, and ſaid, "He deſerv'd to be "rewarded rather than cenſur'd, ſince he had pre- "ſerved the beſt Part of the Fleet from being totally "deſtroy'd."

The French threaten'd a Deſcent.

The News of the Advantage got by the French at Sea had no ſooner reach'd London, but the Fears of a Deſcent created a general Conſternation, which immediately ſpread it ſelf thro' the whole Kingdom. The Queen was not ignorant of the Danger, but did all that was poſſible to conceal her own Fears, and to inſpire her Subjects with Valour and Reſolution. The Lord-Mayor, Aldermen, and Lieutenancy of London, were not wanting on this Critical Juncture to expreſs their Zeal and Affection for the Government: For attending her Majeſty in Council, they declar'd the unanimous Reſolution of the City, to defend and preſerve Their Majeſties and their Government upon this Extraordinary Juncture, with the Hazard of their Lives, and the utmoſt of their Power; repreſenting to her Majeſty, that the ſeveral Regiments of the Militia of the City (conſiſting of about Nine Thouſand Men) are compleat in their Numbers, well arm'd and appointed, and ready to be raiſed immediately, and to proceed in Their Majeſties Service. That the Lieutenancy alſo had reſolved, that Six Regiments of Auxiliaries ſhould be raiſed for the Service; and that the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons in Common-Council aſſembled, had unanimouſly reſolved, by the voluntary Contribution of themſelves and other Citizens, forthwith to raiſe and ſet out a large Regiment of Horſe, and One Thouſand Dragoons, for Their Majeſties Service, (and had made conſiderable Progreſs therein already;) and reſolved likewiſe to maintain them at their own Charge in the Service for a Month, or longer, if there ſhall be Occaſion. And they pray'd her Majeſty, that ſhe would be pleaſed to nominate and appoint Officers to command them. All which her Majeſty moſt graciouſly accepted; and was pleaſed to thank 'em for their Readineſs, Loyalty, and Zeal on this Occaſion; and to the laſt Part anſwer'd, That She would conſider of it, and appoint Officers to command according to their Deſire.

Loyal Addreſs from the City of London.

And from the Tinners in Cornwall.

About the ſame Time, to ſuppreſs the Fears of a Revolt in the Weſt, an Addreſs was preſented to the Queen by Shadrach Vincent, Eſq; from above Ten Thouſand Tinners of Cornwall, giving all Aſſurances of Fidelity and Obedience; and faithfully promiſing (notwithſtanding the Artifice and ill Deſigns of diſaffected Men, to withdraw them from their Loyalty) an unalterable Allegiance to Their Majeſties, owning and acknowledging Their Majeſties alone to be their Lawful and Rightful King and Queen; and diſclaiming all Allegiance to the late King James, or to the pretended Prince of Wales after him. Within few Days after, the Deputy-Lieutenants and Officers of the Militia for Middleſex and Weſtminſter, made a ſolemn Addreſs, and ſolemn Declaration; That they perceived there were many miſchievous and dangerous Practices, Conſultations, and Contrivances of Papiſts, and many others diſaffected to Their Majeſties and their Government: And that it was moſt notorious, that the French King, by Confederacy with the late King and his Adherents, had made a bold Invaſion of Their Majeſties Dominion of the Narrow Seas, deſigning to deſtroy their Royal Fleet, and in Conſequence to bring the Proteſtants of this Kingdom under his Tyranny and cruel Yoke of Bondage; and therefore they hold themſelves bound in Duty to declare upon this Occaſion, their deep Senſe, Hatred and Abhorrence, of the vile Ingratitude of thoſe Papiſts, and profeſs'd Proteſtants, who notwithſtanding Their Majeſties Pardoning and Protecting them, had, by Conſpiracies with the late King's Adherents, or by their Murmurings againſt Their Majeſties and the preſent Government, or by their Refuſal of the Oaths of Fidelity and Obedience to Their Majeſties, encouraged, aſſiſted, or abetted the late King in his Claims and Pretences of any Right and Title to the Government of theſe Realms, &c.

Wiſe Meaſures taken by the Queen.

Under theſe Encouragements, the Queen forgot nothing that the moſt active Prudence could ſuggeſt, as fit to be done in ſuch a Juncture, without Hurry, or a too viſible Concern. She publiſh'd a Proclamation, July 5. requiring all Seamen and Mariners to render themſelves to Their Majeſties, with ſuitable Rewards for coming in, and Penalties for abſenting. She gave out Commiſſions to put the Standing-Forces in a Condition to oppoſe the Enemy; and ſhe order'd the Militia in the Weſtern Parts to be in a Readineſs of defending the Coaſts, and aſſiſting the Army. And to ſtrike a Terror into the Conſpirators with France, ſhe publiſh'd a Proclamation for apprehending Edward Henry Earl of Litchfield, Thomas Earl of Aylesbury, William Lord Montgomery, Roger Earl of Caſtlemain, Richard Viſcount Preſton, Henry Lord Bellaſis; Sir Edward Hales, Sir Robert Thorold, Sir Robert Hamilton, Sir Theophilus Oglethorpe, Colonel Edward Sackvile, Lieutenant-Colonel William Richardſon, Major Thomas Soaper, Captain David Lloyd, William Penn, Eſq; Edward Elliot, Eſq; Marmaduke Langdale, Eſq; and Edward Rutter; being Perſons who had conſpired, with divers other diſaffected Perſons, to diſturb and deſtroy the Government; and for that Purpoſe, had abetted and adher'd to Their Majeſties Enemies in the preſent Invaſion.

Mr. Harbord ſent to the States.

Nor was her Majeſty's Care of Affairs confin'd within her own Dominions; for while ſhe put her ſelf in a Poſture of Defence at Home, ſhe diſpatch'd Mr. Harbord to the States General, to let them know how much her Majeſty was concern'd at the Misfortune that had befallen their Squadron in the late Engagement, and at their not having been ſeconded, as they ought to have been: Which Matter her Majeſty had directed to be examin'd into, in order to recompenſe thoſe that had done their Duty, and to puniſh ſuch as ſhould be found to have deſerv'd it. That her Majeſty had given Orders for Refiting the Dutch Ships that were diſabled, at her own Charge; and commanded, that all poſſible Care ſhould be taken of the ſick and wounded Seamen; and that Rewards ſhould be given to the Widows of thoſe that were kill'd, behaving themſelves bravely in the Fight, to encourage others to do well for the future. Moreover Mr. Harbord told the States, That her Majeſty had order'd Twelve great Ships to be forthwith fitted out; and that her Majeſty hop'd the States would likewiſe do their utmoſt, to reinforce their Fleet in this Conjuncture. And laſtly, he acquainted them with the King's happy Succeſſes in Ireland. The States receiv'd this Meſſage with great Satisfaction, and unanimouſly reſolv'd to fit out immediately Thirteen Capital Ships, and Six Frigats.

Victory of the Boyne prevented all Fears and Dangers.

And yet all this Wiſdom had hardly been ſufficient to prevent the fatal Conſequences of our Defeat at Sea, if the Victory at the Boyne (obtain'd the very next Day) had not put a ſudden and effectual Check to the Jacobite Party. There has been a common Miſtake ſpread among many People, That King William would not have hazarded a Battel, but upon an Expreſs receiv'd that Morning of the Beating of his Fleet, which he kept ſecret till the Action was over. But this is impoſſible to be reconcil'd to the Nature of the Thing, in the Circumſtances of Time and Place. King William having reſted his 1690. 1 W. M. Forces for one Night only, ſent a Detatchment next Day to inveſt Drogheda, where was a great Magazine of Stores: The Governor at firſt ſeem'd reſolute to defend the Place; but upon a Meſſage from the King, That if his Majeſty was forced to bring his Cannon before that Place, he muſt expect no Quarter; he march'd out with the Gariſon, having their Baggage only, but leaving all their Arms and Stores behind them.

King William's March. On July 3. the Duke of Ormond, and Monſieur Auverquerque, were detach'd with Nine Troops of Horſe to ſecure the City of Dublin: The next Day his Majeſty with the whole Army march'd the ſame way, and on the 4th encamp'd at Finglas, where he was inform'd that King James was embark'd at Waterford, with the Duke of Berwick, Mr. Fitz-James, the Lord Powis, the Lord Tyrconnel, and the Marqueſs Delere; That ſome French Ships being arriv'd at Kinsſale, many that had fled from the Battel were poſting thither to get away for France, but that the greateſt Body of the Iriſh were gone toward Athlone; That 300 of the Swiſs had deſerted the Enemy; that the Town of Wexford had declared for King William, and that Sligo was abandon'd by the Iriſh.

His Entry into Dublin. On Sunday, July 6. King William rode in a triumphant manner into Dublin, and went directly to St. Patrick's Church, attended by the (a) Biſhops of Meath and Limerick; and after the Publick Services were ſolemnly perform'd, Dr. King preach'd an affectionate Sermon upon the Power and Wiſdom of the Providence of GOD, in protecting his People, and defeating their Enemies. The Mayor and Aldermen waited on his Majeſty, and the People endeavour'd by all Demonſtrations of Joy, to expreſs their juſt Senſe of their great and happy Deliverance. In the Afternoon the King return'd to the Camp, where the next Day he publiſh'd his Royal Declaration; "Promiſing both his Pardon "and Protection to all the People of the Kingdom "of Ireland, who either remained at home, or "having fled from their Dwellings, ſhould by the "firſt Day of Auguſt next repair to their uſual "Places of Abode, and ſurrender up their Arms; "but threatning condign Puniſhment to all the de-"ſperate Leaders of the preſent Rebellion, who had "violated thoſe Laws by which the Kingdom of "Ireland was united and inſeparably annex'd to "the Imperial Crown of England; and had call'd "in the French, and committed all manner of Vio-"lences and Depredations againſt the Proteſtants "of that Country, &c.

The King purſues the Iriſh Forces. On July 9. the King decamp'd from Finglas, and divided his Army into two Bodies; with the greater his Majeſty removed to Crumlin, three Miles South of Dublin; and the other conſiſting of Four Regiments of Horſe, Two of Dragoons, and Ten of Foot, was ſent towards Athlone, under the Command of Lieutenant-General Douglas; who reaching that Place on July 17. ſent a Drummer to ſummon it; but Colonel Grace the Governor, a ſturdy reſolute Man, fired a Piſtol at the Meſſenger and ſaid, Theſe are the only Terms that I am for. Upon this rude Anſwer, Douglas reſolv'd to make a general Aſſault, and had made ſome Progreſs in the Attempt of it; but for want of Forage, and upon a Report that Sarsfield was advancing with 15000 Men to relieve the Place, Douglas held a Council of War, wherein it was thought fit to raiſe the Siege, which he accordingly did on the 25th, having loſt near 400 Men before the Town, of whom the greater Part died of Sickneſs. (b) 1690. 1 W. M.

His Majeſty having left Brigadier Trelawney to command at Dublin, advanced with his Army towards Kilkenny, where on July 19. he was ſplendidly entertained by the Duke of Ormond, in his Caſtle, which had the good Luck to have been preſerv'd by Count Lauzun, with all the Goods and Furniture, and a Cellar well ſtored. On the 21ſt the Army encamp'd at Carrick, from whence Major-General Kirk, with his own Regiment, and Colonel Brewer's, as alſo a Party of Horſe, was ſent towards Waterford, to demand Poſſeſſion of that Town. The two Regiments in Gariſon at firſt refuſed to ſurrender, but upon drawing down the heavy Cannon, and the ſending for more Forces, they agreed to march out with Arms and Baggage on the 25th, and ſo were conducted to Mallow. The Fort Duncannon, a Place of good Strength, which commands the River of Waterford, was likewiſe ſurrender'd the next Day. His Majeſty went and view'd Waterford the ſame Day it was given up, and took care that no Perſons ſhould be moleſted contrary to the Articles of Surrendry: Among others, the Lord Dover was admitted to a more particular Protection, as having formerly applied himſelf, when the King was at Hillsborough, by Major-General Kirk's Means, to deſire a Paſs for himſelf and Family to Flanders. The Lord George Howard did here likewiſe accept of his Majeſty's Mercy.

Enter-tain'd at Kilkenny. Take: Waterford.

On July 27. the King left the Command of the Army to Count Soames, and went away to Carlow, in order to return to Dublin, and embark for England. But after ſome few Days, having an Account from the Queen, that the Deſigns of the Malecontents were diſcover'd and prevented, the Loſs at Sea pretty well repair'd, and that the French had only burnt one ſmall Village in the Weſt, and ſo gone off again; his Majeſty reſolv'd to return to the Army, which on the 4th Day of Auguſt he found encamped at Golden Bridge, and by the 7th he reach'd Carrickelliſh, within Five Miles of Limerick, where Lieutenant-General Douglas joined him. The next Morning the Earl of Portland and Brigadier Steward were detach'd towards Limerick with Nine Hundred Horſe and Twelve Hundred Foot, who advanced within Cannon-Shot of the Town with little oppoſition; and in the Evening the King himſelf, attended by Prince George, Monſieur d'Auverquerque, Lieutenant-General Ginkle, and ſeveral other Great Officers, with about Two Hundred Horſe, went to view the Poſture of the Enemy, and the Avenues to the Town. On the 9th the whole Army decamp'd at Five in the Morning, and made their Approaches in excellent Order, and drove the Enemy before them till they came to a narrow Paſs between two Bogs, within half a Mile of the Town, where the Iriſh Horſe made a ſtand, and the Hedges were lined with Muſqueteers; but Colonel Erle led on his Foot with incredible Bravery, and continued this Hedge-Fight for two Hours, till he had driven the Iriſh under the very Walls of the Town, and poſſeſſed himſelf of two advantageous Poſts called Cromwell's Fort, and the Old-Chappel. The Army being well poſted, the King ſent a Trumpeter with a Summons to the Town. A great many of the Gariſon were for Capitulating, but Monſieur Boiſſeleau the Governor, the Duke of Berwick, and Colonel Sarsfield oppoſed it with a great deal of Heat, ſaying, There was by this Time an actual In-

Advances towards Limerick. Summons the Gariſon.

(a) See the Speech of the Right Reverend Father in God Anthony Lord Biſhop of Meath, when the Clergy waited on his Majeſty at his Camp nigh Dublin, July 7. 1690 together with his Majeſties moſt gracious Anſwer, Licenſed July 22, 1690. Printed for B. Tooke.

(b) At Rome they depended ſo much on the Succeſs of K. James in Ireland, that an Hiſtorian was there employ'd to write a Hiſtory of it. So Monſieur Grævius in an Epiſtle to Monſieur le Clerc, dat. Utrecht, Aug. 1. 1696, tells him, "Father Porter is publiſhing at Rome a Compendium of the Ec-"cleſiaſtical Annals of the Kingdom of Ireland, of which he "gives a ſhort Deſcription, and a ſuccinct Hiſtory of the An-"tiquities and moſt remarkable Things of the Eccleſiaſtical "and Civil States. Life and Writings of M. le Clerc, 8vo. p. 60. It is ſince well known that this Compendium was but to introduce their expected Scene of the Conqueſt and Converſion of Ireland by K. James.

ſurrection

1690. 1 W. M. ſurrection in England ; That the Dauphin was landed there with a great Army, and that the Prince of Orange would quickly be obliged to withdraw his Forces thither. Hereupon Boiſſeleau ſent the Trumpeter back with a Letter, directed to Sir Robert Southwell, Secretary of State, (to avoid owning the Title of King William) importing, That he was ſurprized at the Summons, but he thought the beſt way of gaining the Prince of Orange's good Opinion, was, by a vigorous Defenſe of the Town which his Maſter had committed to his Truſt. About Eight in the Evening, the King went to his Camp, a little Mile from the Town, having been on Horſeback from Five in the Morning, giving the neceſſary Orders, and expoſing himſelf amidſt the greateſt Dangers: Nor was he ſafe in his Tent; for ſome Deſerters having given the Enemy an Account of the Situation of it, they play'd ſo very briskly that way, that his Majeſty was at laſt prevail'd with to remove.

Count Sarsfild's ſucceſsful Attempt upon the Train of Artillery.

On Auguſt 11. one Obrian, an honeſt Country Gentleman, came to the Camp, and gave notice, that Sarsfield, with a Body of Five or Six Hundred Horſe and Dragoons had paſſed the River Shannon in the Night, Nine Miles above Limerick, and was out about ſome extraordinary Deſign. The King immediately ſuſpected an Attempt upon his Train of Artillery, that was then upon the Road from Kilkenny, under a ſmall Guard, and therefore his Majeſty gave Order, that Sir John Lanier, with Five Hundred Horſe ſhould march to meet the Train. But where-ever the Fault lay, it was one or two in the Morning before the Party ſet out, and even then they advanced very ſlowly, till after they ſaw a great Light in the Air, and heard a ſtrange rumbling Noiſe, which ſome rightly conjectured to be the Train blown up. For the Artillery having the Day before march'd beyond Cullen, to a little old ruinous Caſtle called Ballenedy, not Seven Miles from the Engliſh Camp; Sarsfield lurk'd all that Day in the Mountains, and having notice where and how the Convoy lay, he took with him Guides that brought him to the very Spot, where he ſurprized them, killing about Sixty, and putting the reſt to Flight: After which he gather'd the Carriages and Waggons of Bread and Ammunition into one Heap, he fill'd the Guns with Powder, and placing their Mouths into the Ground, ſet Fire to a Train that blew up all the Heap with a moſt aſtoniſhing Noiſe. The Iriſh got ſome Booty upon this Occaſion, but took no Priſoners; only a Lieutenant of Colonel Erle's being ſick in a Houſe hard by, was ſtripped, and brought to Sarsfield; who uſed him with Civility, and told him, If he had not ſucceeded in that Enterprize he would have gone to France. The Party of Horſe that was ſent from the Camp came up in ſight of the Enemy's Rear, after the Buſineſs was over; but wheeling to the Left to intercept them in their Retreat over the Shannon, the Iriſh paſſed clear another way, and got ſafe into Limerick. However, the Siege was carried on, and the Trenches were open'd on the 17th of Auguſt, when the Prince of Wirtemburgh, Lieutenant-General, with the Major-General Kirke, Tetteau, and Sir Henry Bellaſis, Brigadier, with Seven Batallions, enter'd the Trenches, and advanced near 300 Paces, and made themſelves Maſters of two Redoubts. The 18th the Trenches were reliev'd by Lieutenant-General Douglas, the Lord Sidney, and Count Naſſau, Major-Generals, and Brigadier Stewart, who approach'd another ſtrong Redoubt of the Enemy, while his Majeſty, in the thickeſt of the Fire rode up to Cromwell's Fort, and as his Horſe was juſt entring the Gap, he was ſtay'd by a Gentleman that came up to ſpeak with him, when in the very Moment, there came a Cannon-Ball that grounded upon that very Gap, and cover'd the King with glorious Duſt. His Majeſty took little notice of it, but alighting, went, and laid himſelf down within the Fort. On the 19th the Trenches were reliev'd by Prince Wirtemburgh, who advanced farther towards the ſaid Redoubt, which the King order'd to be attack'd the next Day, when Lieutenant-General Douglas, the Lord Sidney, Count Naſſau, and Brigadier Stewart, were again on the Guard: And the Signal being given about Two in the Afternoon, the Engliſh attack'd the Fort with admirable Bravery, and after an obſtinate Fight, drove out the Enemy, killing Forty of their Number. About half an Hour after, the Iriſh made a great Sally with near 2000 Horſe and Foot, but were vigorouſly repulſed. The 21ſt the Trenches were carried on, and ſo well finiſhed as to hinder any more Sallies. The 22d the Beſiegers batter'd the Enemy's High Tower, from whence they had fired into the Trenches, and quite levell'd them, and in the Night threw ſeveral Bombs and Carcaſſes into the Town, as they did the next Day red-hot Bullets, which ſet ſeveral Houſes and a Magazine of Hay on Fire. All the Batteries being finiſh'd the 24th, and Thirty Pieces of Cannon mounted on them, the Trenches by the 25th, were advanced within Thirty Paces of the Ditch, a Breach was made in the Wall near St. John's-Gate, and part of the Paliſadoes on the Counterſcarp beaten down by the 26th, ſo that on the next Day, the King commanded the Cover'd-Way or Counterſcarp, and two Towers or Forts that were on each Side of the Breach, and contiguous to the Wall, to be Attack'd, and that the Men ſhould advance no farther, but make a Lodgment there. About half an hour after Three the Signal was given, and the Grenadeers under Monſieur la Barthe leapt over the fartheſt Angle of the Trenches and ran towards the Counterſcarp, firing their Pieces, and throwing in their Grenadoes with ſo much Bravery, that the Iriſh threw down their Arms, and ran as faſt as they could into the Town, which the Engliſh perceiving, they enter'd the Place pell-mell with them, and had certainly carry'd it, if the Regiments who were to ſecond the Grenadeers upon the Counterſcarp, had not ſtopt there, as having no Orders to go farther; for the Iriſh were all running from the Walls, quite over into the Engliſh Town; but ſeeing that few of the Engliſh had enter'd the Breach, they Rally'd again, Fac'd the Aſſailants, and ply'd them ſo warmly that ſeveral of them were kill'd, and many mortally wounded. The Iriſh being fluſht with this Succeſs ventur'd upon the Breach again, while the Women came up, and exerted all their Fury in pelting the Engliſh with Stones, broken Bottles, and any Inſtruments of Miſchief that came next to their Hands. The Men, for meer ſhame were the more valiant, ſo that after Three Hours unequal Fighting, the Engliſh were forced to retire to their Trenches, having loſt about 600 Men kill'd on the Spot, and about as many mortally wounded.

The Siege of Limerick carried on.

Attack bravely made.

But unſucceſsful.

The King, who ſtood nigh Cromwell's Fort all the while, when the Action was over (which laſted from Six to Seven) return'd to his Camp, very much concern'd at the Diſappointment, and thought fit to raiſe the Siege: So, on the 30th of Auguſt, the heavy Baggage and Cannon were ſent away; and the next Day the Army decampt, and march'd off in very good Order, without any diſturbance from the Enemy towards Clonwell, under the Command of Count Soames.

The King raiſes the Siege.

Then his Majeſty having conſtituted the Lord Sidney, and Thomas Coningsby, Eſq; Lords-Juſtices of Ireland, he embark'd at Duncannon-Fort with Prince George, and ſome other Perſons of Diſtinction, on the 5th of September, and arriv'd next Day towards Evening in King's-Road, with three Yatchs, two Men of War, and ſome Tenders. His Majeſty being come aſhoar lay that Night at King's-Weſton, on Sunday went to Bath, and lay the Night following at the Duke of Beaufort's at Badmington; on Monday his Majeſty lodged with the Duke of Somerſet at Marlborough, and the next Night at Windſor; and next Day, about Four in the Afternoon noon came to Kenſington, where, that Night in Council, he order'd a Commiſſion to be prepared for prorogueing the Parliament to the Second Day of October next; and a Proclamation to give notice, that his Majeſty on that Day expected a full Attendance of the Lords and Commons.

And returns to England.

1690. 1 W. M.

Is receiv'd with many Congratulations.

The next Day, being Thurſday, September the 11th, the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen, and Recorder, attended the King at Kenſington, humbly to congratulate his Majeſty upon the happy Succeſs of his Arms in Ireland, the wonderful Preſervation of his Royal Perſon, and his (a) ſafe Return into this Kingdom.

In the Afternoon, the Biſhop of London, with his City Clergy, attended the King and Queen, to pay their Duty and Congratulation to their Majeſties upon the ſame happy Occaſion.

And ſoon after the Lieutenancies of London and Middleſex made the like Congratulations.

And Addreſſes of the ſame Nature were brought from ſeveral Companies and Corporations.

Meeting of the Parliament.

On Thurſday the 2d of October, the Parliament met at Weſtminſter; and his Majeſty made this Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

The King's Speech.

" SINCE I laſt met you, I have uſed my beſt " Endeavours to reduce Ireland into ſuch a " Condition this Year, as that it might be no longer " a Charge to England. And it has pleaſed God to " bleſs my Endeavours with ſuch Succeſs, that I " doubt not but I ſhould have been fully poſſeſs'd " of that Kingdom by this Time, had I been ena" bled to have gone into the Field as ſoon as I " ſhould have done, and is more eſpecially neceſſary " in Ireland, where the Rains are ſo great, and be" gin ſo early.

" I think my ſelf obliged to take Notice, how " well the Army there have behaved themſelves on " all Occaſions, and born great Hardſhips with lit" tle Pay; and with ſo much Patience and Wil" lingneſs, as could not but proceed from an af" fectionate Duty to my Service, and a Zeal for " the Proteſtant Religion.

" I have already made it evident, how much I " have preferr'd the Satisfaction of my Subjects, " before the moſt ſolid Advantages of the Crown, " by parting with ſo conſiderable a Branch of its " Inheritance. And it is no leſs apparent, that I " have ask'd no Revenue for my ſelf, but what I " have readily ſubjected to be charged to the Uſes " of the War.

" I did, at my Departure, give Order for all the " Publick Accompts to be made ready for me a" gainſt my Return, and I have commanded them " to be laid before the Houſe of Commons; by " which they will ſee, that the real Want of what " was neceſſary beyond the Funds given, and the " not getting in due Time that for which Funds " were aſſign'd, have been the principal Cauſes why " the Army is in ſo much Arrear of their Pay, and " the Stores for the Navy and Ordnance not ſup" plied as they ought to be.

" Now, as I have neither ſpared my Perſon nor " my Pains to do you all the Good I could; ſo I " doubt not, but if you will as chearfully do your " Parts, it is in your Power to make both me and " your ſelves Happy, and the Nation Great. And, " on the other hand, it is too plain, by what the " French have let you ſee ſo lately, that if the " preſent War be not proſecuted with Vigor, no " Nation in the World is expoſed to greater " Danger. 1690. 1 W. M.

" I hope therefore there will need no more upon " that Subject, than to lay before you, Gentlemen " of the Houſe of Commons, the State of what will " be neceſſary for the Fleet and Armies; which can" not poſſibly admit of being leſſen'd in the enſuing " Year: And to recommend to your Care the clear" ing of my Revenue, ſo as to enable me to ſubſiſt, " and to maintain the Charge of the Civil Liſt; " the Revenue being ſo engaged, that it muſt be " wholly applied, after the Firſt of November " next, to pay off the Debts already charged upon " it. And therefore a preſent Conſideration muſt " be had of the Arrears of the Army, which ſhall " likewiſe be laid before you; and for all which, I " muſt deſire a ſufficient and timely Supply.

" It is further neceſſary to inform you, that the " whole Support of the Confederacy Abroad, will " abſolutely depend upon the Speed and Vigor of " your Proceedings in this Seſſion.

" And here I muſt take Notice, with great Satiſ" faction, of the Readineſs which my Subjects of all " Degrees have ſhewn, both in this City, and in " their ſeveral Counties, by giving their Aſſiſtances " ſo chearfully as they did in my Abſence, while " the French Fleet was upon our Coaſts. And beſides " this ſo convincing Mark of the good Inclinations " of my People, I have found, thro' all the Coun" tries where I have paſs'd, both at my going into " Ireland, and in my Return from thence, ſuch De" monſtrations of their Affection, that I have not " the leaſt Doubt but I ſhall find the ſame from " their Repreſentatives in Parliament.

" I cannot conclude, without taking Notice alſo, " how much the Honour of the Nation has been " expoſed, by the ill Conduct of my Fleet, in the " laſt Summer's Engagement againſt the French: " And I think my ſelf ſo much concern'd to ſee " it vindicated, that I cannot reſt ſatisfy'd, till " an Example has been made of ſuch as ſhall be " found faulty upon their Examination and Trial; " which was not practicable while the whole Fleet " was abroad, but is now put into the proper Way " of being done as ſoon as may be.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" I look upon the future well-being of this King" dom, to depend upon the Reſult of your Coun" ſels and Determinations at this Time; and the " Benefit will be double by the Speed of your Reſo" lutions: Inſomuch, that I hope you will agree " with me in this Concluſion, That whoever goes " about to obſtruct or divert your Applications to " theſe Matters, preferably to all others, can nei" ther be my Friend, nor the Kingdom's.

Addreſs of the Two Houſes

The Lords.

The Parliament taking into Conſideration the weighty Matters recommended to them, and that lay before them; the Lords, in the firſt place, on the 6th of October, preſented an Addreſs to his Majeſty, wherein they expreſs'd, " How extreamly " ſenſible they were of the great Benefit and Ad" vantage his late Expedition into Ireland had pro" cur'd to all his Subjects in general, and alſo the " Succeſs of his Arms in that Kingdom; which " was, under GOD, owing to his Majeſty's Va" lour and Conduct. Wherefore they thought it " their Duty to return him their humble and hearty

(a) See 1. By the King and Queen A Proclamation for a Day of Publick Thankſgiving to be obſerved on Sunday, Octob 19, for the Succeſs and Victory over our Enemies and rebellious " Subjects in Ireland, Dat. Octob. 1. 1690, Reg. 2. 2. Order of " King in Council to annex to the Book of Common-Prayer a Form " of Prayer with Thankſgiving to be uſed Yearly on the " Fifth of November, Given at Kenſington, Octob. 18, 1690. " 3. A Form of Prayer and Solemn Thankſgivng to Almigh" ty God for the wonderful Preſervation of [illegible] Majeſty's " Perſon, and his good Succeſs towards the reducing of Ireland, " together with his Safe and Happy Return into this Kingdom, " to be uſed on Sunday the 19th of this Inſtant October, with " a Prayer and Thankſgiving to be uſed on every Lord's-Day, " Wedneſday and Friday, during the War with the French " King, &c.

I

" Thanks,

1690. 1 W. M. "Thanks, for all thoſe ſignal Evidences he had "given to his People, which had carried him, on "ſo many Occaſions, to venture a Life that was ſo "dear to them; and to deſpiſe all Hazards, to pro"cure the Settlement of his Kingdoms, the Peace "and Tranquillity of his Subjects, and the Eſta"bliſhment of their Religion. And as it was im"poſſible but ſo much Bravery of Mind, ſuch "an undaunted Courage, and a Heart ſo exalted "above any Apprehenſions, in the midſt of all "Dangers, muſt gain his Majeſty the Admiration "and Eſteem of all the World, and even of his "Enemies themſelves, who had felt the Effect of "ſo great Virtues; ſo they did not doubt but ſuch "extraordinary Qualities, muſt unite the Hearts "of all his People in ſuch a Tenderneſs, as well "as Duty, for his Royal Perſon, as was neceſſary "for the compleating of what he had ſo glorioully "begun.

Their Lordſhips alſo being very ſenſible of the Queen's prudent Adminiſtration, during his Majeſty's Abſence in Ireland, next Day acknowledg'd, "The great Advantage the Nation had receiv'd, by "the eminent Reſolution, as well as Prudence, ſhe "had ſhewn in the King's Abſence; and in ſuch "Circumſtances of Difficulty, as would have diſ"compos'd a Mind that had not been rais'd above "them, as her Majeſty had approv'd hers to be, "by that undeniable Evidence. And they declared, "That her Majeſty having preſerv'd the Peace and "Quietneſs of the Kingdom, by her prudent Ad"miniſtration, againſt the Dangers threaten'd by "a powerful Enemy; the Remembrance of ſuch "extraordinary Virtue muſt ever dwell in their "Minds, and engage them, in Juſtice, upon all "Occaſions, to expreſs their Gratitude, as became "her moſt dutiful Subjects.

Addreſs of the Commons. The Commons, tho' not quite ſo forward as the Lords, yet, with no leſs Senſe of Duty and Acknowledgments to their Majeſties, on the 9th of October, repreſented to the King, "Their grate"ful Senſe of that unparallel'd Goodneſs, and "tender Affection to his People; which, for the "reſcuing of the Kingdom of Ireland from a "Tyrannous and Foreign Yoke, and eaſing his Sub"jects of that Kingdom, of the exceſſive Charge "of a lingring War, had induced him to under"take a hazardous Voyage, and too freely to ex"poſe to all the Dangers of War, that invaluable "Life, upon which the whole Proteſtant Intereſt, "and Common Liberty of Europe, ſo much de"pended. That it was next under GOD, to his "Conduct and Example, that they muſt aſcribe "the Succeſs of the Expedition, and to which they "muſt owe their Hopes of the ſpeedy and entire "Reduction of that Kingdom, and of ſeeing them"ſelves in a Condition to make his Enemies ſenſi"ble of the Strength and Power of England, un"der a King who knew and purſued its Intereſt. "They moſt heartily congratulated his Majeſty's "Succeſs, and ſafe Return to his People, who were "perſuaded, That their Peace, Security and Hap"pineſs, were bound up in his Safety. And they "did, in the Name of all the Commons of Eng"land, aſſure him, That they would be ever ready "to aſſiſt him to the utmoſt of their Power; and "as the beſt and trueſt Way of expreſſing their "Gratitude, would endeavour effectually to ſup"port his Government againſt all his Enemies.

In their Addreſs to the Queen, on the ſame Day, they expreſs'd, "The deep Senſe they had of "that Goodneſs, Wiſdom and Courage, which "her Majeſty had manifeſted, in the greateſt Dif"ficulties and moſt preſſing Dangers, during the "King's Abſence, at a Time when a Potent Enemy "was upon our Coaſt, when the Nation was "weaken'd in that Part which was its proper "Strength, and depriv'd of the Security of his "Majeſty's Preſence." Here they declared, "The "Reſolution her Majeſty ſhew'd in the Admini"ſtration gave Life to her Subjects, and made "them exert a Strength and Force unknown to the "former Reigns. That her Zeal for the Publick, "encourag'd them to ſhew ſuch Chearfulneſs in "their Duty, as diſappointed the Hopes and De"ſigns of all the open and ſecret Enemies of "the Government: And that the grateful Re"membrance of that (which reviv'd the Memory "of the moſt happy Times) would for ever re"main in the Hearts of her People; and could "never fail to be expreſs'd in all Inſtances of "Loyalty and Obedience from themſelves, and all "the Commons of England.

Votes of the Commons. The ſame Day theſe Addreſſes were preſented (October the 9th) the Commons began to make good their Aſſurances of Loyalty, by voting, That a Supply be given to their Majeſties, for the entire reducing of Ireland, and ſecuring the Peace of this Kingdom, and carrying on a vigorous War againſt France. The next Day, they granted the Sum of One Million, Seven hundred ninety one thouſand, ſix hundred ninety five Pounds, for the Navy, and building of new Ships. And on the 4th of the ſame Month, they voted the Sum of Two Millions, two hundred ninety four thouſand, five hundred and ſixty Pounds, for the maintaining an Army of Sixty nine thouſand, ſix hundred thirty ſix Men; which his Majeſty had ſignify'd to that Houſe, that he thought neceſſary for the next Year's Service.

To levy theſe great Sums, the Commons reſolved,

1. "To charge an Aſſeſſment of One hundred "thirty ſeven thouſand, ſix hundred forty one "Pounds, by the Month, for One Year, upon all "Lands.

2. "That an Additional Duty be laid upon "all Wrought and Raw Silks, and all Foreign "Linnen.

3. "That a Duty of Sixpence per Gallon, be "laid upon all Low Wines of the firſt Ex"traction.

4. "That an Additional Duty of Ten per Cent. "be laid upon all Foreign Timber and Wood; and "the like Duty, above what was already charg'd, "upon all Wrought Silks, Callico, Indian Linnen.

5. "That ſeveral Duties be laid upon Foreign "Seeds, Oil, Hops, Pepper, and all Grocery-Ware, "(except Sugar and Tobacco.)

6. "That the Exciſe upon all Beer, Ale, and "other Liquors, be doubled. And,

7. "That an Additional Duty be laid upon Fo"reign Iron, Yarn of Flax or Hemp, and all Ma"nufactures of Glaſs.

Theſe ſeveral Funds falling much ſhort of anſwering the Supplies granted to their Majeſties, it was reſolv'd, October 17th, "That the Sum of "One Million be raiſed upon the Credit, or by the "Sale of the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland, and that "an Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, That he "would be pleaſed to command the Commiſſioners "in Ireland, to make a Return to his Majeſty of "the Names of the Perſons in Rebellion in that "Kingdom, and of their Eſtates and Value thereof, "and that the ſame might be tranſmitted to the "Houſe of Commons." This Addreſs having been drawn up, and reported to the Houſe, October the 22d. by Sir Thomas Clargis, and the Queſtion being put, That the ſaid Addreſs with Amendments be agreed unto, it paſſed in the Negative. However, it was reſolved the ſame Day, That a Bill be brought in for attainting of the Perſons that were, or had been in Rebellion in England or Ireland; and for confiſcating their Eſtates, and for applying the ſame to bear the Charge of the War. This Bill was not preſented to the Houſe till the 2d of December, and upon a ſecond Reading, December the 8th, it 1690. 1 W. M. was order'd, That a Clauſe be brought in for reſerving a Proportion of the Forfeitures in England and Ireland to his Majeſty's ſole Diſpoſal; which Clauſe, when reported on December the 18th, was diſagreed to by the Houſe. At length the Bill, with ſeveral Amendments, being ingroſſed, and read the Third Time and Paſſed, was ſent to the Upper Houſe on the 23d of December, where it was laid by, notwithſtanding ſeveral Meſſages from the Commons to put their Lordſhips in Mind of it. The Truth is, the Court did, underhand, oppoſe the paſſing of this Bill, not only becauſe the King deſign'd to recompence the Services of ſeveral Perſons with part of the Forfeitures; but becauſe this Fund could not in due time have yielded the Sum it was given for.

Acts paſs'd. On Monday the 10th of November, the King went to the Houſe of Lords, and gave his Royal Aſſent to An Act for granting an Aid to their Majeſties of One Million, ſix hundred ſixty one thouſand, ſeven hundred and two Pounds.

And on Tueſday the 18th of November, his Majeſty came again to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Sanction to,

1. An Act concerning the Commiſſioners of the Admiralty.

2. An Act to prohibit the covering of Houſes and other Buildings with Thatch or Straw, in the Town of Marlborough, in the County of Wilts.

3. An Act to veſt divers Meſſuages and Tenements (the Eſtate of David Bigg, Eſq;) in Truſtees, to be ſold; and for laying out the Money to be raiſed thereby, in the Purchaſe of Lands more to his Convenience, to be ſettled to the ſame Uſes.

4. An Act to veſt the Manor and Lands, late of George Vilet, Eſq; in Truſtees, to be ſold for raiſing Portions for his Daughters.

Violent Attempt on Mary Wharton, an Infant. Captain James Campbell, a Scotch Gentleman, Brother to the Earl of Argyle, aſſiſted by Archibald Montgomery and Sir John Johnſton, did on November the 14th, forcibly ſeize on Mrs. Mary Wharton, a rich Heireſs of about Thirteen Years of Age, and carried her away from her Relations in Great Queen-Street, and married her againſt her Will. Whereupon his Majeſty iſſued out his Royal Proclamation the next Day, for the apprehending of Captain Campbell and his Abettors. Not long before, there Bill againſt Clandeſtine Marriages. had been a Bill brought into the Houſe of Commons on October 26. to prevent Clandeſtine Marriages, and People thought the paſſing of it would have been expedited upon this Violence committed by Campbell: But upon Conſideration that this Bill was attended with many Inconveniences, and might hinder many younger Brothers from making their Fortunes, it was dropp'd into Silence. However, another Bill was brought into the Houſe of Commons, Dec. 4. For making void the Marriage between Mrs. Wharton and Mr. Campbel; which, notwithſtanding the Earl of Argyle's Petition in his Brother's Behalf, did quickly go through both Houſes.

The Commons were very forward in propoſing and diſpatching the neceſſary Supplies for the Government: So that on Tueſday, November 25. his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and being attended with the uſual Solemnity, gave the Royal Aſſent to,

Bills paſs'd 1. An Act for the doubling the Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, during the Space of One Year.

2. An Act to enable Elizabeth Montague, Widow, to let Leaſes for Years of Houſes and Ground in Stepney, in the County of Middleſex.

And then his Majeſty was pleas'd to make this Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech. " I Take this Occaſion, with great Willingneſs to " aſſure you, that I am extremely ſenſible of " the Zeal and Chearfulneſs of all your Proceedings 1690. 1 W. M. " in this Seſſions of Parliament; and of the Readineſs which you Gentlemen of the Houſe of " Commons have ſhewn, in granting ſuch large " Supplies, towards the preſſing Occaſions, of the " Army and Navy.

" And I do farther aſſure you, that I ſhall not " be wanting on my part, to ſee them carefully ap- " plied to thoſe Uſes for which you intend them.

" At the ſame time, I muſt obſerve to you, that " the Poſture of Affairs Abroad, does neceſſarily re- " quire my Preſence at the Hague, before the End " of this Year; and by conſequence I muſt deſire " you to loſe no time in the diſpatching and per- " fecting ſuch further Supplies as are ſtill neceſſary " for the Navy and Army: And not for them only, " but it is high time alſo to put you in mind of " making ſome Proviſion for the Expence of the " Civil Government, which has no Funds for its " Support, ſince the Exciſe, which was deſign'd for " that Service, and alſo the other Branches of the " Revenue, have been apply'd to other Publick " Uſes; and therefore I earneſtly recommend it to " your ſpeedy Conſideration.

Reſolutions of the Commons. The Day before, Nov. 24. the Commons had reſolv'd, " 1. That the ſeveral Duties laid upon " Goods imported, be granted to their Majeſties " for the Term of Five Years, to commence from " the 10th of November, and no longer. 2. That " the Duties impos'd upon Wines and Vinegars, " by an Act made 1 Jac. 2. and upon French Lin- " nen and wrought Silks and Stuffs, and all Eaſt- " India Linnen, and other Manufactures, &c. im- " pos'd by another Act made in the ſame Year, " ſhould be continu'd until the 24th Day of " June, 1696. And, 3. That the Duty impos'd " upon Tobacco, by an Act made 1 Jac. 2. ſhould " be continu'd to the like Term, and no longer." At the ſame time it was order'd, " That a Bill or " Bills be brought in, for granting to their Maje- " ſties the ſeveral Duties or Impoſitions upon " theſe ſeveral Heads." But all this fell ſhort of the Supplies that had been voted by the Houſe; and therefore it was reſolv'd, Dec. 19. " That the Re- " mainder of a Sum, not exceeding 4086258 " Pounds, for the Supplies to be granted to their " Majeſties, be rais'd by doubling the Additional " Duties of Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, and other Li- " quors, mention'd in an Act of the Firſt Year of " their Majeſties Reign, entitled, An Act for an " Additional Duty of Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, and " other Liquors, to begin from the Time the Act " for the doubling the Duty of Exciſe upon Beer, " Ale, and other Liquors, during the Space of One " Year, did expire." And a Bill was order'd to be prepar'd, in purſuance of the ſaid Reſolution.

On Saturday, Dec. 20. His Majeſty came again to the Houſe of Peers; and being ſeated on the Throne, and the Commons attending, gave the Royal Aſſent to,

1. An Act for granting to their Majeſties certain Impoſitions upon all Eaſt-India Goods and Manufactures, and upon all Wrought-Silks, and ſeveral other Goods and Merchandizes, to be Imported after the 25th day of December, 1690. Acts paſs'd.

2. An Act for the continuance of ſeveral former Acts therein mention'd, for the laying ſeveral Duties upon Wines, Vinegar, and Tobacco.

3. An Act for puniſhing Officers and Soldiers who ſhall Mutiny and Deſert, and for puniſhing Falſe Muſters.

4. An Act for reviving a former Act, for Regulating the Meaſures and Prices of Coals.

5. An Act for Paving and Cleanſing the Streets in the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and Suburbs and Liberties thereof, and Out-Pariſhes in the County of Middleſex and the Borough of Southwark, and other

1690. 1 W. M. other Places within the Weekly Bills of Mortality, in the County of Surrey, and for Regulating the Markets therein mention'd.

And to Sixteen Private Acts.

King's Speech. After which his Majeſty acquainting both Houſes, "How ſenſible he was of their good Affection towards him, and of their ſincere Endeavours to "promote the true Intereſt of their Country, in "continuing to provide further Supplies towards defraying the Charge of the War, which he would "take care to ſee diligently and ſtrictly apply'd to "the Uſes for which they gave them.". He further added, "He had lately acquainted them, that the "Poſture of Affairs abroad, would not admit of "deferring his Journey to the Hague, much beyond "that Time; and that he put them in mind of it "now, in hopes that Conſideration would prevail "with them to uſe all poſſible Diſpatch of what "ſtill remain'd to be done, for the more vigorous "Proſecution of the War." And concluded with telling the Commons; "That if ſome Annual "Proviſion could be made for augmenting the Navy, "and Building ſome new Men of War, it would "be a very neceſſary Care at that time both for the "Honour and Safety of the Nation.

Reſolution of the Commons for Recruiting the Navy. The Commons having taken his Majeſty's Speech into Conſideration, particularly the latter Part of it, unanimouſly Reſolv'd, on Dec. the 24th, Firſt, That a Supply be given to Their Majeſties for the building of Ships of War, not exceeding the Sum of 570000 Pounds. And Secondly, That the ſaid Supply, ſo to be given to their Majeſties, be for the Building of Seventeen Third-Rate Ships, of Sixty Guns a-piece, to be added to the Ships in the Eſtimate already provided to be built. Three Days after, it was Reſolved, "That this Supply ſhould be rais'd "by additional Duties upon Beer, Ale, and other "Liquors; and order'd, That an enacting Clauſe "be prepar'd, in purſuance to the ſaid Reſolution." They had paſſed a Bill, for Appointing and Enabling Commiſſioners for taking the Publick Accompts; and had ordered the ſeveral Members to put into Glaſſes at the Table, the Names of Nine Perſons to be Commiſſioners in the ſaid Bill: By which Method, on Dec. 26. the Majority fell on Sir Robert Rich, Sir Thomas Clargis, Paul Foley, Eſq; Robert Auſtin, Eſq; Sir Matthew Andrews, Sir Benjamin Newland, Sir Samuel Bernardiſton, Sir Peter Colrain, and Robert Harley, Eſq.

On Monday January 5. the King being now impatient to go over to the Congreſs in Holland, came to the Houſe of Peers, and with the uſual Solemnity gave the Royal Aſſent to,

Acts paſt. 1. An Act for appointing Commiſſioners to take and ſtate the Publick Accompts of the Kingdom.

2. An Act for the Raiſing the Militia of this Kingdom for the Year 1691, altho' the Months Pay formerly advanced be not repaid.

3. An Act for Relief of Poor Priſoners for Debt or Damages.

4. An Act for preventing Vexatious Suits, againſt ſuch as acted for their Majeſties in Defence of the Kingdom.

5. An Act for the encouraging the diſtilling of Brandy and Spirits from Corn, and for laying ſeveral Duties on Low-Wines, or Spirits of the firſt Extraction.

6. An Act for granting to their Majeſties ſeveral Additional Duties of Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, for Four Years, from the time that an Act for doubling the Duty of Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors during the ſpace of One Year, doth expire.

7. An Act for the more effectual putting in Execution, An Act, Entitl'd, An Act for prohibiting all Trade and Commerce with France.

8. An Act to Enable Thomas Earl of Aylesbury, and Elizabeth Counteſs of Aylesbury, his Wife, to make Proviſion for Payment of Debts, and to make Leaſes of their Eſtates. 1690. 1 W. M

9. An Act for Incorporating the Proprietors of the Water-works in York-Buildings, and for the Encouraging, Carrying on, and Settling the ſaid Water-works.

10. An Act for Veſting certain Lands (the Eſtate of Thomas Manwaring, Gent.) in Truſtees to be ſold for the Payment of Debts.

11. An Act to Enable John Rocheſter, Eſq; to ſell Lands for Payment of Debts.

After which his Majeſty was pleas'd to make a moſt Gracious Speech to both Houſes of Parliament, as follows:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"HAving lately told you, That it would be neceſſary for me to go into Holland much about this Time, I am very glad to find, that the "Succeſs of your Endeavours to bring this Seſſion "to a happy Concluſion has been ſuch, that I am "now at Liberty to do it. And I return you my "hearty Thanks, for the great Diſpatch you have "made, in finiſhing the Supplies you have deſign'd "for carrying on the War, which it ſhall be my "Care to ſee duly and punctually apply'd to that "Service for which you have given them. And I "likewiſe think it proper to aſſure you, That I ſhall "not make any Grant of the Forfeited Lands in "England and Ireland, till there be another Opportunity of Settling that Matter in Parliament, in "ſuch manner as ſhall be thought moſt expedient. King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"As I have reaſon to be very well ſatisfied with "the Proofs you have given Me of your good Affections in this Seſſion of Parliament, ſo I promiſe My Self the continuance of the ſame at "your Return into your ſeveral Countries. And as "every Day produces ſtill freſh Inſtances of the "Reſtleſsneſs of our Enemies, both at Home and "Abroad, in deſigning againſt the Proſperity of "this Nation, and the Government Eſtabliſhed; "ſo I cannot doubt, but that the Union and good "Correſpondence between Me and my Parliament, "and my Earneſt and Conſtant Endeavours on the "one Hand, joined with the continuance of your "Zeal and Affection to ſupport Me on the other, "will, by the Bleſſing of GOD, be at all times "too ſtrong for the utmoſt Malice and Contrivance "of our Common Enemies.

And then the Lord Chief-Baron, Speaker of the Houſe of Lords, declar'd to Both Houſes, "That it "was his Majeſty's Pleaſure, that they ſhould Adjourn themſelves until the 31ſt of March next; "and that if his Majeſty ſhould think fit that the "Parliament ſhould then ſit, he would give them "timely Notice thereof by his Proclamation.

And accordingly both Houſes of Parliament did Adjourn to the 31ſt of March next.

Before we leave this Seſſion of Parliament, it ought to be obſerv'd, that beſides the Bill relating to the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland, there were ſeveral others that were left unfiniſhed; particularly, Bills left unfiniſh'd.

A Bill to regulate Tryals in Caſes of Treaſon; which was much talk'd of in the Houſe of Commons, as a great Defence of their Liberties and Lives, and yet was put off from time to time.

Another relating to the African Trade.

Another, Againſt Robbers on the Highway.

1690. 1 W. M.

Another, For the ſpeedier determining Elections of Members of Parliament.

Another, To charge the Eſtate of the late Lord Jeffreys, in Leiceſterſhire, with the Sum of 14760*l.* and Intereſt, to Edmund Prideaux, Eſq;

Another, For Regulating and Licenſing Hackney-Coaches.

Another, For the Enabling Chirurgeons to Adminiſter inward Medicines in Caſes of Surgery: which dropp'd, on a Petition againſt it by the Phyſicians and Apothecaries.

A Bill was alſo brought in, For reducing Intereſt-Money, from 6 to 4 per Cent. which after a Second Reading was rejected.

Affairs abroad.

Some Things happen'd during this Seſſion that ought to be remembred. The Duke of Savoy had ſuffer'd extremely by the French Arms, under the Command of Catinat and Monſieur S. Ruth; and having loſt, in effect, the whole Dukedom of Savoy, except the Town of Montmelian, he began now to be ſenſible, that he could not depend, either on the Emperor or the King of Spain, for the Recovery of his Dominions; and therefore he wiſely thought of making Application to the States-General of Holland, and principally to his Britannick Majeſty, the Head and Support of the Grand Alliance: And to that Purpoſe, he ſent away the Count de la Tour, Baron of Bourdeaux, and Counſellor of State, Preſident of his Finances in Savoy, and Intendant of his Houſhold, a Man of great Parts and Addreſs. This Envoy Extraordinary having diſpatch'd his Buſineſs at the Hague, came immediately over to England, and on Nov. 2. made the following Speech to his Majeſty at his firſt Publick Audience.

SIR,

Speech of the Duke of Savoy's Envoy.

"HIS Royal Highneſs, my Maſter, does by "me, Congratulate your Sacred Majeſty's "Glorious Acceſſion to the Crown. It is due to "your Birth, and deſerv'd by your Virtue, and is "maintained by your Valour. Providence had de"ſigned it for your Sacred Head, for the Accom"pliſhment of his Eternal Decrees, which after a "long Patience, do always tend to raiſe up Choſen "Souls, to repreſs Violence, and protect Juſtice. "The wonderful Beginnings of your Reign, are "moſt certain Preſages of the Bleſſings which Hea"ven prepares for the Uprightneſs of your Inten"tions, which have no other Scope, than to re"ſtore this flouriſhing Kingdom to its firſt Great"neſs, and break the Chains which Europe groans "under. This Magnanimous Deſign, worthy of "the Heroe of our Age, fill'd his Royal Highneſs "with inexpreſſible Joy: But he was conſtrain'd to "conceal it in the ſecret of his Heart; and if at "laſt he has been free to own it, he is oblig'd to "the very Name of your Majeſty for it, ſince that "alone has made him conceive ſome Hopes of Li"berty, after ſo many Years of Servitude.

"My Words, and the Treaty which I have "ſign'd at the Hague, with your Majeſty's Mini"ſters, do but faintly expreſs the Paſſion which my "Maſter has to Unite himſelf by the moſt invio"lable Ties to your Service. The Honour, SIR, "which he has to be related to you, has ty'd the "firſt Knots of this Union: The infinite Reſpect "which he has for your Sacred Perſon, has, as it "were, knit them faſter; and the generous Pro"tection which you are pleas'd to grant him, will, "without doubt, make them indiſſoluble. Theſe "are the ſincere Sentiments of his Royal Highneſs, "to which I dare not add any thing of mine: For "how ardent ſoever my Zeal may be, and how "profound the Veneration which I bear to your "glorious Atchievements, I think I cannot better "expreſs either, than by a Silence full of Admiration.

Domeſtick Affairs.

There were ſome other Domeſtick Affairs during the ſame Seſſion, that are worthy Obſervation. Our Fleet, commanded by the new Admirals, Sir Richard Haddock, Henry Killigrew, Eſq; and Sir John Aſhby, arriv'd in the Downs, October the 8th. They came from Cork Harbour, and brought home with them the Earls of Clincarty and Tyrone, the Lord Carne, Colonel Margellicot, and ſeveral other Priſoners. On Octob. 9. his Majeſty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon George Meggot, Eſq; High Sheriff of Norfolk, upon his Delivery of an Addreſs from that County, congratulating his Majeſty's good Succeſs and ſafe Return. About the ſame Time, his Majeſty appointed Thomas Baker, Eſq; to be his Conſul at Algiers. In the beginning of November, his Majeſty was pleaſed to order a new Commiſſion to paſs the Great Seal, conſtituting the Right Honourable Sidney Lord Godolphin, Sir John Lowther of Lowther, Bar. Vice-Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold, Richard Hambden, Eſq; Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir Stephen Fox, Knt. and Thomas Pelham, Eſq; Commiſſioners of their Majeſties Treaſury. At the beginning of December, his Majeſty was pleaſed to confer a Mark of his Royal Favour upon Colonel John Cutts, for his faithful Services and zealous Affection to his Royal Perſon and Government; and therefore created him a Baron of the Kingdom of Ireland, by the Stile and Title of Baron Cutts of Gouran, in the ſaid Kingdom. One Godfrey Croſs of Lydd, in the County of Kent, Inn-holder, who went on Board the French Fleet whilſt it lay on that Coaſt, to give Intelligence and bring back Inſtructions, was tried at the King's-Bench-Bar, and found guilty of High Treaſon; and according to Sentence pronounc'd againſt him, was executed in Southwark, on Dec. 8. Henry Lord Viſcount Sidney, one of the Lords Juſtices of Ireland, was call'd over by his Majeſty; and being made one of the Princial Secretaries of State, he took the uſual Oath at the Council-Board on Dec. 26. His Highneſs George Lewis, Duke of Zell, Eldeſt Prince of the Houſe of Brunſwick and Lunenburgh, was elected Knight Companion of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, in a Chapter held December 30. at Kenſington, in the Preſence of the Sovereign. On January 1. Sir John Trevor, Knt. Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, and firſt Lord Commiſſioner of the Great Seal of England, was, by his Majeſty's Command, ſworn of his Majeſty's moſt Honourable Privy-Council.

Honours and Preferments.

Review of Ireland.

To look back to (a) Ireland. There were ſtill ſeveral Towns beſides Limerick in Poſſeſſion of the French and Iriſh, and their Forces were yet very numerous, which gave the Friends of King James ſome Hopes of reducing that Kingdom to his Obedience. But they were not a little ſurpriz'd to hear that the Engliſh Fleet was arriv'd before Cork Harbour the 21ſt of September, with ſome Forces under the Command of the Earl of Marlborough, who immediately acquainted the Duke of Wirtemburgh, and Major-General Scravenmore with his Arrival. The next Day his Lordſhip found that the Enemy had a Battery of Eight Guns to oppoſe his Entry into the Harbour; but he ſent Three Boats aſhore with ſtout Fellows, who by thick Firing, oblig'd the Iriſh to quit their Guns.

Earl of Marlborough before Cork.

On the 23d, the greateſt Part of the Land-Forces were ſent up the Paſſages, headed by the Duke of (a) Monſ. Grevius, in an Epiſtle to Monſ. le Clerc, dated from Utrecht, Aug. 1. 1690. tells him, that Father Porter is publiſhing at Rome a Compendium of the Eccleſiaſtical Annals of the Kingdom of Ireland, of which he gives a ſhort Deſcription, and a ſuccinct Hiſtory of the Antiquities and moſt remarkable Occurences of the Eccelſiaſtical and Civil States.

Grafton;

1690. 1 W. M.

Grafton; and being come next Day within a Mile of the Town of Cork, they began to mount their Canon, and to begin a formal Siege. The Duke of Wirtemburgh and the Earl of Marlborough being both Lieutenant-Generals, there happen'd a warm Diſpute betwixt them about the chief Command; the firſt laying Claim to it becauſe he was a Prince; the other, with great Temper, inſiſting upon his Right, both as eldeſt Officer, and becauſe he led the Troops of his own Nation; whereas the Duke of Wirtemburgh was only at the Head of Auxiliaries. The wiſe Monſ. la Meloniere interpoſing, the Earl of Marlborough was contented to ſhare the Command with the Duke, leſt the inſiſting on his full Right ſhould retard his Majeſty's Service. Accordingly, the Earl of Marlborough commanded the firſt Day, and gave the Word, Wirtemburgh; and the Duke of Wirtemburgh commanded the next, and gave the Word, Marlborough. Under their Conduct and Bravery, they ſoon brought the Beſieg'd to demand a Parley, and to give Hoſtages for a Truce: But not accepting the Terms offer'd them, the Beſiegers made a conſiderable Breach in the Walls, and reſolved to ſtorm the Town. The Grenadiers, under the Lord Colcheſter, led the Van, and march'd forward with incredible Bravery, tho' all the while expos'd to the Enemies Fire; having an Example of Glory ſet them by the Duke of Grafton, the Lord O Brian, Colonel Granville, and ſome other reſolute Volunteers. But in this Approach, the Duke of Grafton received a Wound in the Shoulder, of which he ſoon after died. All things being now ready for a general Aſſault, the Beſieg'd thought fit to prevent it, by beating a ſecond Parley: And at laſt the Earl of Tyrone and Colonel Rycaut, being ſent from Colonel Makilicut, who commanded in the Place, agreed to the Earl of Marlborough's Conditions: Which were, Sept. 28.

"That the Gariſon, conſiſting of Four Thouſand "Men, ſhould be all Priſoners of War, both Offi- "cers and Soldiers.

"That no Prejudice ſhould be done to them or "the Inhabitants.

"That the General would uſe his Endeavours to "obtain his Majeſty's Clemency towards them.

"That all the Arms, as well of the Inhabitants, "as of the Gariſon, ſhould be ſecured.

"That all the Proteſtant Priſoners ſhould be ſet "at Liberty.

"That the old Fort ſhould be deliver'd up "within an Hour, and the two Gates of the City "the next Morning.

"And that an exact Account ſhould be given of "the Warlike Ammunitions and Proviſions in the "Magazines.

The Earl of Marlborough's wiſe Conduct and good Succeſs.

The Earl of Marlborough was reſolv'd to purſue his good Succeſs, and therefore immediately ſent away a Detachment of Horſe and Dragoons, under the Command of Brigadier Villiers, to ſummon the Town and Forts of Kingſale; and his Lordſhip ſetting out from Cork on the 1ſt of October, arrived at Five-Mile-Bridge the ſame Day, and the next before Kingſale; and having form'd his Camp in the Evening, gave Directions to make his Approaches towards the New Fort, while Major General Tetteau was order'd to attack the Old.

The next Morning early, Tetteau having paſs'd the River in Boats, made a Feint of ſtorming the Fort in the weakeſt Place, where moſt of the Beſieged were ready to receive him: But in the Interim, another Detachment made a bold Aſſault upon another Place, where the Enemy leaſt ſuſpected them, and by that means were ſoon Maſters of a Baſtion. At the ſame time, ſeveral Barrels of Powder happening to take Fire, blew up near Forty of the Iriſh; upon which the reſt retir'd into an old Caſtle in the midſt of the Fort, and immediately ſubmitted to be Priſoners of War.

This Buſineſs being over, the Earl of Marlborough ſent to ſummon the New Fort, which was much more conſiderable than the other: But Sir Edward Scot (the Governor) readily anſwer'd, That it would be time enough to capitulate a Month hence. Thereupon the Engliſh open'd their Trenches October the 5th, and on the 9th had advanc'd them to the Counterſcarp; but the ill Weather hinder'd the coming up of the Cannon till the 11th. After a conſiderable Breach, and a falſe Attack, all things were prepar'd for a Storm, when the Enemy beat a Parley. On the 15th Hoſtages being exchang'd, the Articles were agreed on, and ſign'd about Midnight, by which the middle Baſtion was to be deliver'd up the next Morning; and the Gariſon, conſiſting of about 1100 Men, was to march out the next Day after, with Arms and Baggage, to be conducted to Limerick.

By ſubduing this Seaport-Town, and that of Cork, an effectual Stop was put to all Supplies from France, at leaſt on the Southern Coaſts; and the Iriſh were almoſt confin'd to the Province of Ulſter, where it was harder to ſubſiſt, than in any other Parts of that Kingdom.

Upon the firſt News of the Engliſh Fleet ſailing towards Ireland, Count Lauzun, afraid of being block'd up at Galloway, went off from thence with the Duke of Tyrconnel, Monſieur Boiſſeleau, and the miſerable Remains of his French Troops, leaving the General Command of the Iriſh Forces to the Duke of Berwick, which was afterwards given to Monſieur St. Ruth.

The Earl of Marlborough having perform'd this Glorious Expedition, in as little Time as, conſidering the Seaſon of the Year, the Voyage it ſelf requir'd, embark'd again, and arriv'd at Kenſington on the 28th of October, where he was very favourably receiv'd by his Majeſty, who had a high Eſteem of his Courage and Conduct, and was heard to ſay, That he knew no Man ſo fit for a General, who had ſeen ſo few Campaigns.

Ireland Reduc'd.

Ireland ſeem'd now to be (a) reduc'd to the Obedience of King William; and therefore at the beginning of December, his Majeſty eſtabliſh'd a Privy-Council of the Lord Primate of Ireland, the Lord-Chancellor, the Lord-Treaſurer, and the Archbiſhop of Dublin for the Time being, James Duke of Ormond, Edward Earl of Meath, Henry Earl of Drogheda, Francis Earl of Longford, Richard Earl of Ranelaugh, Arthur Earl of Granard, Adam Viſcount Lisbourn, the Biſhop of Meath, for the Time being, Robert Fitz-Gerald, Eſq; Sir Henry Fane, William Hill, Eſq; and certain Miniſters of State for the Time being.

His Majeſty, at the ſame Time, appointed theſe Judges, in the ſeveral Courts of Juſtice: Sir Ri-

(a) See a Form of Prayer and ſolemn Thankſgiving to Almighty God for the wonderful Preſervation of his Majeſty's Perſon, and his good Succeſs towards the reducing of Ireland; together with his ſafe and happy Return into this Kingdom. To be uſed on Sunday the 19th of this Inſtant, October. By his Majeſty's Pleaſure. Dated Octob. 3. 1690. 4*to.*

As to the Affairs of Scotland, See an Act anent Miniſters that have not prayed for the King and Queen, diſcharging them from the Exerciſe of any Part of their Miniſterial Function, July 22. 1690. 2. An Act for Security of their Majeſties Government, by ſubſcribing a Declaration, acknowledging King William and Queen Mary the only lawful undoubted King and Queen, as well de Jure as de Facto. 3. An Hiſtorical Relation of the late General Aſſembly held at Edinburgh from October 15, to November 13, in this Year 1690. In a Letter from a Perſon in Edinburgh to his Friend in London, 4*to.* 4. A Continuation of the Hiſtorical Relation, &c.

1690. 1 W. M.

chard Reynell, Chief-Juſtice; Mr. Lindon, Sir Richard Stephens, Juſtices of the King's-Bench; Mr. Juſtice Cox, Mr. Juſtice Jeffordſon, of the Common-Pleas; Lord Chief Baron, Hely, Mr. Baron Echlin, Sir Standiſh Hartſtong, of the Exchequer.

And within few Days after, his Majeſty diſpos'd of the vacant Biſhopricks as follows: The Archbiſhoprick of Caſhel, to Dr. Marſh, Biſhop of Ferns; the Biſhoprick of Clogher, to Dr. Teniſon, Biſhop of Killalah; the Biſhoprick of Elſin, to Dr. Digby, Biſhop of Limerick; the See of Londonderry, to Dr. William King; the See of Ferns, to Dr. Vigors, Dean of Armagh; the See of Limerick, to Dr. Wilſon, Dean of Raphoe; the See of Clonfert, to Dr. Fitzgerald, Dean of Cloin; the See of Killalah, to Dr. Lloyd, Dean of Aronry. And upon the Recalling of the Lord Sidney, his Majeſty appointed Sir Charles Porter to be One of the Lords-Juſtices, and Lord-Chancellor of Ireland.

The King prepares for the Congreſs, at the Hague.

The King was now preparing to go over to the Famous Congreſs at the Hague; and therefore, the next Day after the Riſing of the Parliament, his Majeſty ſet out, attended by the Great Officers of his Houſhold, and divers others of the Nobility and Gentry. He lay that Night at Sittingborn, and intended to embark the next Evening at Margate; but finding, upon his Arrival at Canterbury, that the Wind was ſet in Eaſtwardly, with a hard Froſt, he thought fit to return to Kenſington on Jan. 9. with Intention to proceed on his Voyage for Holland with the firſt Change of Weather.

Embarks at Graveſend.

So on Friday the 16th of January, the King went to Graveſend, and embark'd there with divers of the Nobility, and other Perſons of Quality attending him, under a Convoy of Twelve Men of War, commanded by Rear-Admiral Rooke. When, with ſome Trouble, they came on the Dutch Coaſt, the Froſt had been ſo ſevere, and the Ice near the Shore was ſo great, that it appear'd to be extremely dangerous to attempt Landing. But the King, with whom the Sea did not agree, and whoſe Buſineſs required Haſte, went into the Shallop, and order'd the Seamen to put off. The Seamen themſelves were afraid; and all the Perſons of Quality about the King, would have diſſuaded him from it, by repreſenting the prodigious Danger to which he muſt expoſe his Royal Perſon. But nothing being able to move him from his Reſolution, they put away from the Fleet, and quickly loſt ſight of 'em. Night came on, and the King remain'd, for Eighteen Hours together, expos'd to the Injuries of the Air and Cold, to the Mercy of the Sea, and the Chance of Privateers, having nothing but his Cloak to cover him; and the Sea ran ſo high, that he and all the Company were daſh'd and waſh'd with Waves. At laſt the Shallop, by Break of Day, came near the Iſle of Goree, where his Majeſty went aſhore, and got a little Refreſhment in a Fiſherman's Cottage. Then his Majeſty went into his Boat again, and happily landed at Orange-Polder; from whence he went to Hounſlerdike, where he was met by the Deputies of the States, who conducted him to the Hague by Six that Evening.

Is in very great Danger.

Lands ſafely.

And becauſe his Majeſty came ſo ſuddenly, as to prevent the Reception that was intended by the Magiſtrates of that Place, Monday next was appointed for ſolemnizing their Publick Joy on that Occaſion, with Fire-works, Bonfires, and Triumphal Arches. And they order'd another Day to be obſerv'd with Publick and ſolemn Devotion for returning Thanks to Almighty GOD for the King's ſafe Arrival, and to implore His Bleſſing upon his Majeſty's Arms, and thoſe of that State, and Allies.

Congreſs at the Hague.

And now began the moſt Glorious Congreſs that ever yet appear'd of Chriſtian Princes and Miniſters. The Electors of Bavaria and Brandenburgh; the Dukes of Lunenburgh, of Zell, and of Wolfembuttel; the Landgrave of Heſſe Caſſel, Prince Chriſtian Lois of Brandenburgh; Prince Waldeck; the Prince of Naſſau, Stadtholder of Frieſland, the Prince of Naſſau Saarbrug, Governor of Boiſleduc, the Prince of Naſſau Dillemburgh, the Prince of Naſſau Idſtein, the Duke-Adminiſtrator of Wirtemburgh, the two Princes of Anſbach, the Landgrave of Heſſe D'Armſtadt, the Prince his Brother, the Duke of Sax-Eyſenach, Prince Philip Palatine, the Duke of Zulsbach, the Prince of Wirtemburg Neuſtadt, the Prince of Wirtemburg, and the Prince his Brother; the Duke of Courland, and Prince Ferdinand his Brother; the Prince of Anhalt Zeerborſt, the Landgrave of Homburg, Three Princes of Holſtein-Beck, the Duke of Holſtein, Prince of Commercy, the Prince Palatine of Birkenfelt. To which we may add the Princeſs of Naſſau Frieſland, the Princeſs of Radzeville, the Counteſs of Soiſſons, the Princeſs of Sax-Eyſenach, and other illuſtrious Perſons.

It would be too tedious to give the Names of all the Counts that appear'd on this ſolemn Occaſion: However, we'll mention a few of them; and the moſt remarkable were, the Counts of Horn, Erbach, Tirimont, de Brouay, de Gryal, d'Arco, de Rivera, de Sanſra, de Lippe, d'Eſpenſe, de Fugger, de Denhof, de Carelſon; with the Barons of Pallant and Spaein, the Rhingrave and his Brother; the Marquiſſes of Caſhlemonlayo, and Caſtanaga, Governor of the Spaniſh Netherlands; and the Generals, Chauvert, d'Elwicht, Barſus, d'Autel, Palſi, &c.

But we ſhould more particularly name the Ambaſſadors and Foreign Miniſters preſent in this Aſſembly: And here you had from the Emperor, the Counts of Windigrats and Berka, with the Chevelier de Campecht; from the King of Spain, Don Emanuel de Colonna; from the King of Denmark, the Count de Rebenklan, and M. Genibe; from the King of Sweden, the Count of Oxenſtern; from the King of Poland, M. Moreau; from the Elector of Bavaria, the Baron of Boomgarden, and M. Prielmeyre; from the Elector of Brandenburgh, M. Van Dieſt and Smettau; from the Elector of Saxony, M. Haxhauſem; from the Elector of Treves, the Baron de Leyon, and Monſieur Champagne; from the Elector of Mentz, M. Talberg and Meyers; from the Elector of Cologne, the General and Baron Beruſaw, and M. Soelmaker; from the Elector Palatine, M. Hertermans; from the Duke of Savoy, the Count of Pielat, and the Preſident de la Tour; from the Duke of Zell, M. Zieger; from the Biſhop of Munſter, M. de Nort; from the Landgrave of Heſſe Caſſel, the Baron Gortz, and M. Reppelaar; from the Duke of Wolfembuttel, the Baron Croſek; from the Duke of Hanover, M. Klekk; from the Duke of Holſtein Gottorp, M. Tourken; and from the Prince of Liege, Counſellor Mean. Neither are we to omit taking notice of thoſe Noble Perſons of his Majeſty's own Subjects, that attended him upon this Solemnity; and they were, the Dukes of Norfolk and Ormond, with the Earls of Devonſhire, Dorſet, Eſſex, Nottingham, Scarborough, and Selkirk; my Lord Biſhop of London, my Lord Dramlendrits, my Lord Durſley; the Earls of Portland and Monmouth, Duke Scomberg, his Brother Count Maynhard, &c.

Deſign of this Congreſs.

The great Deſign of this Congreſs, was for all the Confederate Princes and States to concert Meaſures with King William, in order to preſerve the Liberties of Europe: And therefore his Majeſty, in a very pathetical SPEECH, repreſented to 'em;

King William's Speech.

"THat the imminent Dangers wherein they "found themſelves, ſufficiently diſcover'd "the Errors that had been committed; So that he "needed not uſe many Arguments, to ſhew them "the Neceſſity of taking juſter and better Mea-"ſures: That in the Circumſtances they were in, "it was not a Time to deliberate, but act: That "the Enemy were Maſters of all the Chief For-"treſſes, that were the Barrier of the Common Li-1690. 1 W. M. " berty; and that he would quickly poſſeſs himſelf " of all the reſt, if a Spirit of Diviſion, Slowneſs, " and particular Intereſt continued among them: " That every one ought to remain perſuaded, That " their reſpective particular Intereſts were compriz'd in the General one: That the Enemies Forces were very ſtrong; and that they would carry Things like a Torrent before them: That it " was in vain to oppoſe Complaints, and fruitleſs " Clamours, or unprofitable Proteſtations againſt " Injuſtice. That it was neither the Reſolution of a " barren Diet, nor the Hopes of ſome Men of Fortune, (ariſing from frivolous Foundations) but " Soldiers, ſtrong Armies, and a prompt and ſincere Union between all the Forces of the Allies, " that muſt do the Work: And that theſe too " muſt be brought to oppoſe the Enemy without " any Delay, if they would put a Stop to his Conqueſts, and ſnatch out of his Hands the Liberty " of Europe, which he held already under a heavy " Yoke.

"berty;

Concluding, " That as for himſelf, he would neither ſpare his Credit, Forces, nor Perſon, to concur with them in ſo juſt and neceſſary a Deſign: " And that he would come in the Spring, at the " Head of the Troops, faithfully to make good his " Royal Word, which he had ſo ſolemnly engag'd " to them.

Reſolution of the Congreſs; This Speech, from a Prince in whom they all confided, had ſo good Effect, that they came to a Reſolution of employing Two Hundred Twenty two Thouſand Men againſt France; of which the King of England, the Emperor, and the King of Spain, were to find each of them Twenty Thouſand. But notwithſtanding the large Proportions promis'd by divers Princes and States of Germany, yet England and Holland were forc'd to pay them, and to bear the Burden of the War.

Before the Congreſs broke up, they came to this Unanimous Declaration.

And their ſolemn Declaration. " SInce we look upon the Union that is between " us as the Work of God alone, it is but reaſonable that we ſhould make a Solemn Proteſtation to him, to deliberate nothing in this Aſſembly but what may be very juſt and equitable. " We ſolemnly proteſt, before God, That our Intentions are, That we will never break off this " Union, nor make any Peace with Lewis XIV. till " the following Articles be executed: To the Obligation of which, we oblige our ſelves for " ever.

I. " Till he has made Reparation to the Holy " See for whatſoever he has acted againſt it; and " till he has annull'd and made void all thoſe infamous Proceedings againſt the Holy Father Innocent XI.

II. " Till he has reſtor'd to each Party concern'd " what he has taken ſince the Peace of Munſter; " and till he has demoliſh'd Briſac, and deliver'd up the Country of Ceay to the Canton of " Bern.

III. " Till he has reſtor'd to the (a) Proteſtants " all their Poſſeſſions and Goods; and till there be " an entire Liberty of Conſcience throughout the " whole Extent of the French Dominions.

IV. " Till the Eſtates of the Kingdom be re-eſtabliſh'd in their Ancient Liberties; ſo that the " Clergy, the Nobility, and the Third Eſtate, may " enjoy their Ancient and Lawful Privileges: And " till the Kings for the future ſhall be oblig'd to " call together the ſaid Eſtates, when they deſire " any Supply; without the Conſent of whom they " ſhall not raiſe any Money, after any Manner, or " for any Pretence whatſoever. 1690. 1 W. M.

V. " Till the Tax upon Salt, that upon the Third " Eſtate, and an infinite Number of other unreaſonable Taxes and Impoſitions be aboliſh'd for " ever.

VI. " Till he has reſtor'd to the Parliaments " their Ancient and Rightful Authority; that ſo " they might be enabled to diſtribute to every one " Juſtice freely, and without Reſtraint, according to " their Conſciences.

VII. " Till all the Towns of the Kingdom be " re-eſtabliſh'd in their Ancient Privileges; and " till their Revenues be reſtor'd, which had been " taken from them with ſuch Violence and Injuſtice.

" GOD, who knows the Intention of our Hearts, " knows that we bear no Hatred againſt the French " Nation; and that we do not aſpire to have the " Lawful Dominions of the Kingdom of France. " And if all thoſe who are Inhabitants would join " with us, we ſhould ſoon diſpatch this Affair without Effuſion of Blood, and without Deſolation of " the Kingdom. And we promiſe all thoſe that " ſhall do it, that we will treat them as our particular Friends, and preſerve their Towns and Poſſeſſions as if they were our own. And as for thoſe " that ſhall not do it, we ſhall look upon them as " Perſons that have approv'd and abetted all theſe " Perſecutions, Burnings, and other Devaſtations " that have been made; and we will make them " feel (without Mercy) thoſe Pains and Torments, " which they have been the Occaſion that ſo many " poor People have ſuffer'd.

" We were willing that the whole World ſhould " have a perfect Knowledge of our Reſolutions; " particularly the French Gentlemen and Perſons of " Honour, who are oppreſt with the heavy Load of " the Government, and can no longer endure the " Slavery which they lie under; to the end they " may be able to take ſuch Meaſures, as may be " aſſiſting to us in Recovering for them their Ancient Liberty, which has been ſo cruelly and ſo unjuſtly taken from them.

Progreſs of the French Arms. In the mean time, the French King was reſolv'd to be beforehand with the Confederates; and therefore having divided his Army into Two Bodies; with one of them he beſieg'd and took Nice from the Duke of Savoy; and with the other he inveſted the ſtrong City of Mons on March 15, and came before it in Perſon Six Days after, accompanied by the Dauphin, the Duke of Orleans, and his Son the Duke of Chartres. The Trenches were open'd the next Day, and were advanc'd with great Expedition. The Prince de Bergu was Governor of the Town, and had a Gariſon of about Six thouſand Horſe and Foot in the Place.

King William, upon News of the Siege, return'd from Loo to the Hague; from whence he diſpatch'd Prince Waldeck to Hall near Bruſſels, where the Forces were to rendezvous; and the King himſelf arriv'd there on April 6. where he found an Army of about Fifty thouſand Men; yet the Spaniards had been ſo careleſs and ſlow, that there was nothing provided for the Expedition, no not ſo much as the neceſſary Carriages; ſo that the French had Leiſure to go on with their Siege. And tho' in the

(a) The Foreign Proteſtants ſet their Eye and Heart upon King William, as the Reſtorer and Supporter of the Proteſtant Intereſt in Europe. See a Godly Prayer for the Proſperity of their moſt Excellent Majeſties, King William and Queen Mary, and for the Church of England: Compoſed by the moſt Reverend Father in God, Antonius Klinſerus, Lord Antiſtes of the Church of Zurich in Switzerland; and annexed to their Ordinary Service, and appointed to be read in all the Churches, Chapels, Schools, and Families. Faithfully tranſlated out of the High German into the Engliſh Language, by John Conrad Werndly, V. D. M. Prefix'd to his Tranſlation of Liturgia Tigurina.

1690. 1 W. M.

Attack they made upon one of the Half-Moons on the 7th of April at Night, they were repulſ'd with conſiderable Loſs; yet the Burghers were ſo terrified with the Bombs, and influenc'd by the Popiſh Clergy to be of the French Intereſt, that they preſs'd the Governor to capitulate; which he refuſing, they ſent a Drummer of their own to beat a Parley, and threatned to open the Gates, and to deliver both him and the Gariſon into the Beſieger's Hands. This made the Governor at laſt comply; ſo that the Town was ſurrendred April 10. N. S. upon honourable Terms. Whereupon King William immediately left the Army, return'd to the Hague, embark'd for England, and arriv'd at Whitehall on the 13th of April.

Jacobite Plot;

In his Majeſty's Abſence, the Jacobites were plotting for the Reſtoration of their Maſter, and held ſeveral Meetings, from whence they tranſmitted their Sentiments to the Royal Club (as they call'd it) in Covent-Garden, who were to digeſt them into ſuch Methods for Practice, as ſhould govern the whole Party.

The Reſult of their ſeveral Conſultations, was,

1. That being unable to Re-inthrone the late King by their own Strength, they ſhould endeavour to obtain Aſſiſtance from France, who had formerly made them ſuch Promiſes of invading England.

2. Since Delays were dangerous, ſending Letters into France hazardous, and the Court at St. Germains factious and treacherous; that ſome Men of Quality and known Ability ſhould go over into France, to tranſact that Matter from the whole Party.

This Project having the Approbation of the Leading Club, in December 1690. the Lord Preſton, Mr. Aſhton, and Mr. Elliot, were pitch'd upon as proper Perſons to be ſent into France: They hir'd a Veſſel of Mrs. Jane Prat, of Barkin in Eſſex, for their Tranſportation, and went on Board her near Battel-Bridge, Dec. 30. But the whole Plot being diſcover'd, the Government order'd Captain Billop to attend their Motion; who accordingly ſuffer'd them to ſail before Graveſend, and then boarded and took them. In Mr. Aſhton's Boſom were found a Pacquet of Papers and Letters, whereby it abundantly appear'd, that they were going to France, to promote the Treaſonable Deſigns of Invading the Realm, Subverting the Government, and Reſtoring the late King, by the Aſſiſtance of French Forces. So on Jan. 16. Sir Richard Graham, Bar. Viſcount Preſton in the Kingdom of Scotland, John Aſhton, and Edmund Elliot, Gent. were arraign'd at the Old-Baily upon an Indictment of High-Treaſon, to which they pleaded Not Guilty. The next Day, the Lord Preſton was brought to his Tryal; and after a full and clear Evidence, the Jury found him guilty. On Jan. 12. (a) Mr. Aſhton was likewiſe found guilty; and the Court proceeded to paſs Sentence of Death againſt both of them, as in Caſes of High-Treaſon. Mr. Aſhton was executed at Tyburn on January the 28th; but the Lord Preſton, by the Interceſſion of his Friends, and in Conſideration of his diſcovering the whole Conſpiracy upon Oath, obtain'd Their Majeſties Pardon. As for Mr. Elliot, there being no poſitive Proof againſt him, he was not brought to his Tryal. Soon after the Queen iſſued out a Proclamation, for diſcovering and apprehending Francis late Biſhop of Ely, William Penn, Eſq; and James Graham, Eſq; for Conſpiring with divers Enemies and Traytors; and particularly with the Lord Preſton and Mr. Aſhton, lately attainted of High-Treaſon: But the Clemency of the Government was ſo very great, that among the Multitude of Conſpirators, no one ſuffer'd but Mr. Aſhton. (b)

Diſcover'd:

The Plotters taken up.

Lord Preſton and Mr. Aſhton found guilty.

Offices and Honours.

On March 11. the Office of Poſt-Maſter-General was granted by Letters Patent to Sir Robert Cotton, of Hattley St. George in the County of Cambridge, Knight, and Thomas Frankland, Eſq;. On March the 19th, Nicholas Dupin, Eſq; Deputy-Governor of the King and Queen's Corporation of the Linen-Manufacture in England and Ireland, waited on her Majeſty, to give her an Account of the great Succeſs and Progreſs made in it, by employing many Thouſands of the Poor, &c. With which her Majeſty was extremely ſatisfy'd; and to encourage it by her own Example, ſhe was pleas'd to bring up the Work of making Fringes, wherein ſhe buſied her own Royal Hands, and was quickly imitated not only by her Maids of Honour, but by all the Ladies and Gentlewomen throughout the whole Kingdom.

The Nonjuring Clergy make a ſeparate Communion.

As to the State of Religion, the (c) Nonjurors of the Church of England began to think of a Separation from their late Brethren, that they might be diſtinguiſh'd in Communion, as well as in Politicks. They were indeed highly diſcontented with the preſent Settlement, and very uneaſy for the Return of King James; tho' they could not but think the Conſequence muſt be Popery and French Power. There was about this Time a Pamphlet publiſh'd, entitled, A Modeſt Enquiry into the Cauſes of the preſent Diſaſters of England; wherein the Author charges the diſaffected Clergy, whom he calls the Lambeth Holy Club, with being the principal Managers of the Jacobite Plot, for bringing the French Fleet into the Channel. He alledges,

The Publick Miſfortunes imputed to this Party.

"That the firſt Step the Clergy made, was, The " writing againſt the taking the New Oaths to their
" Majeſties, enjoin'd them by Act of Parliament;
" and the buzzing into the Ears of their Votaries,
" the Unlawfulneſs of thoſe Oaths, and the conti- " nuing Right of King James to the Crown.

"That there being very few of the diſaffected
" Clergy, that had the Courage to lay down their " Places for the Oaths; the next Step of the Plot
" was to cheat the World and their own Conſci-
" ences, with the ridiculous diſtinction of taking

(a) His Widow, Mrs. Aſhton, thought the Suffering of her Husband would mightily recommend her to the Courts in France, and therefore went over thither, expecting much Favour; but as ſoon as ſhe came to St. Germains, Prieſts were ſent to tell her, That nothing but being a Roman Catholick could recommend a Woman to the Queen's Service: Which the unfortunate Woman declining to do, no Notice was taken of her; and ſhe dying of Grief, was refus'd Burial, till her Father, (Mr. Rigby of Covent-Garden) as an Act of Special Grace, and at great Charge, obtain'd Leave to have her Body brought over into England. Secret Hiſtory of Europe, P. XI. p. 256

(b) About this Time, Dr. George Hickes, depriv'd of the Deanery of Worceſter, happen'd (as he calls it) to be at a Lady's Houſe in the Country, where he met with a Serjeant at Law, to whoſe Care the Lady's Husband, upon his Death-bed, had committed her.—— With theſe Two Perſons Dr. Hickes had ſeveral Conferences about Eccleſiaſtical Matters, and particularly in relation to Church-Communion; which occaſion'd the Serjeant to ſend him a Query, concerning Communicating with a Church which prays for an Uſurper: The Query he anſwer'd in the Negative: The Serjeant reply'd; and Dr. Hickes ſent a Rejoinder; which Four Writings were printed in a Collection of Papers written by the late R. Reverend George Hickes, D. D. Printed in the Year 1716. 8*vo*. From which it was very plain, that Dr. Hickes, and his Diſciples, would not be content to juſtify their Separation upon the Principle of the Invalidity of Lay-Deprivation; but would reſolve All into the Illegality of the Revolution, and the Uſurpation of King William and Queen Mary; and not communicate with our Church, becauſe in her Publick Offices Prayers were put up for them.

(c) The deprived Biſhops and Clergy truſted in becoming a little popular by their Sufferings; and ſome Arts were uſed to recommend them to the Pity of the People. There was an Addreſs ſigned by the Grand Jury of the County of Glouceſter, at Lent Aſſizes in 1690. preſented to the King; and praying, that Favour might be extended to the ſuſpended Biſhops, particularly to their Dioceſan; and that the Incapacity they were then under by not taking the Oaths, might no longer diſable them from ſerving their Majeſties in their ſeveral Provinces. And there was ſoon after printed, A Modeſt Apology for the Suſpended Biſhops; with a brief Vindication of the ſaid Addreſs. 1690. 4*to*.

" the

"the Oaths to a King de Facto, and not de Jure: Which is as much as to ſay, That their Majeſties were not Lawful and Rightful (a) King and Queen of England, but de Facto only; that is, in Engliſh downright Uſurpers.

"That this Diſtinction did not only give ſcope to take the Oaths to their Majeſties, but alſo to Pray for them by name in their Pulpits, tho' ſome of more Sincerity than the reſt would not pray for them at all; and yet to prevent any Trouble from the Law, they wiſely prayed in general Terms for the King and Queen, which might be taken either for King James and Queen Mary, or King William and Queen Mary; and others of a more nice Stomach yet would not pray for the King and Queen, but for the King and Royal Family.

"That the Plot being Lame, becauſe the Machines that mov'd it were debarr'd from the Pulpit, it was found out, that the Act of Parliament, Enjoining the Oaths to their Majeſties, admitting of ſome favourable Interpretation in Law, upon the part of thoſe that only Preach'd, but had no Cure of Souls; thereupon Dr. Sherlock one of the greateſt Champions mounted the Chair firſt, with the loud Acclamations of the Party; and as an Introduction to his Sermon, gave his Auditors an Account of the happy Diſcovery he had made of ſo great a Bleſſing, as his having Liberty to Preach to them, notwithſtanding the Act of Parliament about taking the Oaths.

"That he was follow'd by a great many both in London and in the Country, who partly by ſtealth, and partly by the Pious Zeal of ſome of their own ſort of Church-Wardens, got up into the Pulpit, to Trumpet up the People to a Diſſatisfaction with the Government.

"That all theſe Steps of the Plot were back'd with the Hiſtory of Paſſive-Obedience, which was handed about in Triumph among the Party.

"That in this Pamphlet are muſter'd a great many Expreſſions of Engliſh Divines both Ancient and Modern; altho' the moſt of the Citations be far wide of the Queſtion, and refer only to Obedience to Magiſtracy in general, and the unlawfulneſs of Private Perſons their riſing up againſt the Government upon any frivolous Pretence.

"That the next Engine of the Plot was the happy Reſult of a kind of Oecumenick-Council of the whole Party; The Liturgy of the Church of England muſt be laid aſide, and a New One muſt be Calculated for the Meridian of King James's tottering Fortune. That in this New Liturgy they prayed thus: Reſtore us again the Publick-Worſhip of thy Name, the Reverend Adminiſtration of thy Sacraments; (b) Raiſe up the former Government both in Church and State, that we may be no longer without King, without Prieſt, without God in the World. ------ That when they came to Pray for King James, the Jacobite Club had exhauſted all their Rhetorick and Zeal in the following Words: Protect and Defend thy Servant,

(a) The diſaffected Clergy brought a greater Odium, and ſharper Reflexions upon their whole Order. A very conſiderable Writer of Plain Engliſh, or, An Enquiry concerning the Real and Pretended Friends to the Engliſh Monarchy, 1690. 4to. ſaid in his Preface theſe notable Things. "A Stranger to the Conſtitution of the Church of England, who obſerves how the Maintainers of the Engliſh Liberties have been declar'd and declaim'd againſt from Desks and Pulpits; and that a Man cannot demand Juſtice of the Betrayers of our Civil Rights, without being thought to ſhake the Pillars of the Church, would be apt to think that the Church and State ſtand upon different Bottoms. —— This muſt be ſaid with Truth, That before the Reformation, the Clergy were more ſteddy to the Intereſt of England, than they have been ſince: And yet their very Changes ſeem to proceed from the ſame conſtant Principle: For as before the Reformation they had their Preferments by Proviſions and Bulls from the Pope, they were induſtrious in enlarging the Power of their Benefactor; nor did any Means ſeem more conducing to it, than ſiding with the People againſt the King, the ſole Competitor with their Maſter. And, would you think it in thoſe Days? Clergymen were advanc'd for good Works, in the Service of their Country; whereas in the Two laſt Reigns, the more noiſy any of them were in running down thoſe that appear'd for the Intereſt of England, the more certain were they of ſtanding upon the Pinacle of the Temple."

(b) It is certain there was ſuch a Liturgy drawn up for the uſe of Jacobite Families and Conventicles, and publiſh'd under this Title: A Form of Prayer and Humiliation for God's Bleſſing upon his Majeſty and his Dominions, and for the removing and averting of God's Judgments from this Church and State. London, Printed in the Year 1690, 4to.

And there was certainly Printed in a Half Sheet, the Abdicated Biſhops Letters to the Abdicated King and Queen, under the diſguiſed Names of Mr. Redding, and Mrs. Redding, Dated New-Year's Eve, 1690. [commonly ſuppoſed to be written by Dr. Francis Turner, late Biſhop of Ely.]

And there was ſoon after by the King and Queen a Proclamation for diſcovering and apprehending the late Biſhop of Ely, William Penne, and James Grahme, for holding Correſpondence, and conſpiring with divers Enemies and Traitors. Given at Whitehall, 5. Febr. 1690–1.

The Biſhop of Sarum in his Vindication, 1696, 8*vo*. p. 102, writes thus. "In Summer, 1690, after the Battel of the Boyne, the late Queen (a Name that will ever ſtrike and melt all that knew her) ſent by me a Meſſage to One, who ſhe had reaſon to believe would execute all her Commands with Joy, and who had great Credit with the then deprived Biſhops. I am ſure he had reaſon to have it, for he had ſerv'd them with great Zeal. The Meſſage was to try, if the Biſhops, in caſe the Parliament could have been brought to have diſpenſed with their taking the Oaths, would go on, and do their Function, Ordain, Confirm, Aſſiſt at Prayers and Sacraments, give Inſtitutions, and viſit their Dioceſes. Theſe are the great Duties of the Epiſcopal Function; and it ſeem'd an extravagant Thing, to have Biſhops in a Church, who ſhould do none of them, but ſhould only live in their Sees and enjoy their Revenues. If they were reſolved to do theſe Things, a Scheme was prepared for offering that Matter to a ſecond Conſideration in Parliament. That great Perſon undertook the Buſineſs, which I likewiſe communicated by the ſame Authority to an eminent Perſon in the Houſe of Commons, diſtinguiſhed both by his Poſt and by his Credit with them, at leaſt with their Friends. About two Months after, that Perſon did me the Honour to come to me, and tell me he had obeyed the Queen's Commands with Zeal and with all the Skill he had; but he ſaid, the deprived Biſhops would anſwer nothing, and promiſe nothing; only he believed they would be quiet. So all Thoughts of bringing that Matter again into Parliament were laid aſide. The Papiſts abroad had ſtill a Proſpect of reſtoring themſelves and their Religion to England".

Among the Engliſh at Doway there were Hopes and Quarrels thus related by the Writer of the Hiſtory of the College at Doway. "The Engliſh Papiſts were ſo far from giving up their King James, that new Quarrels and Competitions broke out amongſt the Clergy and the Regulars. Theſe latter could never obtain their pretended Exemption from the Authority of the Biſhops in the time of King James upon the Throne. But no ſooner did the late Revolution happen, and King James retire into France, but the Regulars began to fiſh in troubled Waters, and appear'd very publick in expreſſing their Diſlike, and even downright queſtioning whether the Biſhop's Power did extend any further than the Clergy. Indeed the Clergy upon this Occaſion play'd the Politicians more than what formerly they had done. They kept their Reſentment to themſelves, but diſpatch'd an Agent privately to Rome, to inform the Court how Things went, and what Objections were lately raiſed to leſſen the Authority of the Biſhops. Great Oppoſition was made by the Benedictin Monks in favour of their ancient Independency; and their Agent at Rome was indefatigable in making an Intereſt for his Brethren; and if any Thing ruin'd his Cauſe, beſides the Juſtice of the contrary Party, it was this Agent's Boldneſs in pretending to direct, not to be directed by the ſubtle Italians. The Jeſuits ſaid little, they were cautious and fought in the Rear; for in caſe the Benedictines were baffled, they could have nothing to do but to retire in order and compound: The Concluſion of this Buſineſs was, that the Biſhops had not only their Power ratified, but explained to the greateſt Nicety, ſo as to exclude all Pretenſions to Exemption granted to any of the Regular Orders, and the Jeſuits by Name were ſpecified to be Subjects to the Biſhops.

"This Subject had been always managed with great Art and Policy at Rome; and it never was ſo expreſly determin'd in favour of their Biſhops, till at this Juncture, to oblige the Party of King James, who had obtained and protected the Four Catholick Biſhops in England; and to ingratiate with the Non-Jurors and their deprived Biſhops, and to keep up a Title of uninterrupted Succeſſion, &c.

"our

1690. 1 W.M.

" our Sovereign Lord the King ; ſtrengthen his " Hands, and the Hands of all that are put in Au- " thority under Him, with Judgment and Juſtice, to " cut off all ſuch Workers of Iniquity, as turn " Religion into Rebellion, and Faith into Faction ; " that they may never Prevail againſt us, or Tri- " umph in the Ruin of this Church among us. To " this End, Defend the King ; Bind up his Soul in " the Bundle of Life, and let no Weapon form'd " againſt Him proſper : Be unto Him a Helmet of " Salvation, and a ſtrong Tower of Defenſe, againſt " the Face of his Enemies : Let his Reign be pro- " ſperous, and his Days many : Make him Glad, ac- " cording to the Days wherein thou haſt Afflicted " him, and for the Years wherein thou haſt made " him ſuffer Adverſity. Give him the Necks of his " Enemies, and alſo every Day more and more the " Hearts of his Subjects : As for thoſe that are Im- " placable, cloath them with Shame ; but upon " Himſelf, and his Poſterity (that is, the Prince of " Wales) let the Crown flouriſh.

" That the General Council having compos'd this " New Liturgy, there were above Ten Thouſand of " them Printed, and Diſpers'd up and down among " the Party, which they uſed in their Cabals, laying " aſide a great part, and ſometimes all the Old " Liturgy.

" That there were many of the Holy Club de- " tach'd up and down, to perſwade Money'd People, " who wiſh'd well to the Cauſe, to contribute for " the Subſiſtence of King James's Caſhier'd Of- " ficers.

" That King William being reſolved to venture " his Perſon once more for the Safety of theſe " Kingdoms, his Journey to Ireland concluded up- " on, and the moſt and the better Diſciplin'd part " of the Army to attend his Majeſty, it was im- " poſſible to leave any conſiderable Force behind " him in his Abſence : Likewiſe, That the Tran- " ſportation of the Queen of Spain, and the Con- " voy of the Streights Merchant-men, under Ad- " miral Killigrew, had carry'd a conſiderable part of " our Fleet to the Mediterranean ; and another part " of it, commanded by Sir Cloudeſley Shovel, was " to attend his Majeſty and the Army to Ireland ; ſo " that the Grand Fleet was not to have been ſo con- " ſiderable as otherwiſe it would have been.

" That all theſe Circumſtances raiſed the Cou- " rage of the Plotters, who thought this the only " Time to put their Deſign in Execution.

" That in order to that, at one of their General " Meetings in London, where it was neceſſary ſome " of the Clergy ſhould be preſent to Bleſs ſo Pious " a Work, it was concluded, To preſent a Memo- " rial in the Name of the Loyal and Diſtreſſed " Subjects of England, (for ſo they nam'd them- " ſelves) to his Moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, humbly in- " viting Him, out of his unparallell'd Goodneſs, " and for the Affection he always bore to Oppreſſed " Virtue, that He wou'd Aſſiſt them, in Reſtoring " their Lawful King, his Ancient Ally and Con- " federate, to his Throne ; and in breaking the Yoke " of Uſurpation, under which theſe Three Nations " were at this time ſo heavily Groaning.

A Memorial of this Party to the French King.

" That there had been Two or Three Memorials " preſented to the French King before this, over and " above a conſtant Correſpondence betwixt the " French Miniſters of State, Monſieur de Croiſſy, " and them. And the Clergy, who were the great " Contrivers and Managers of this, and who, by " their Profeſſion are, for the moſt part, extraor- " dinary Credulous of any Thing they incline to, " did really believe, that immediately upon the ap- " pearing of the French Fleet, and the Burning of " ours, (which they thought as ſure) there wou'd " certainly be a general Inſurrection through a great " many Places of the Kingdom, in order to join " them at their Landing, and to Declare for King " James.

1690. 1 W. M.

The Pamphlet (out of which I have made this ſhort Abſtract) reflecting ſo highly on the Non-Juring Clergy, the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury, the Biſhops of Norwich, Ely, Bath, and Wells, and Peterborough, both in their own, and in the Name of their abſent Brother the Biſhop of Glouceſter, Publiſh'd a Paper, wherein they did Solemnly, and in the Preſence of GOD, Proteſt and Declare ;

The Non-juring-Biſhops Vindicate themſelves.

" I. That theſe Accuſations caſt upon them were " all of them Malicious Calumnies, and Diabolical " Inventions.

" II. That they knew not who was the Author " of the New Liturgy, nor had any Hand in it, nei- " ther did they Uſe it at any time.

III. " That they never held any Correſpondence, " directly or indirectly, with Monſieur de Croiſſy, " or with any other Miniſter or Agent of France ; " and if any ſuch Memorial had been Preſented to " the French King, they never knew any thing of " it : And that they did utterly renounce both this, " and all other Invitations, ſuggeſted to be made by " them to the French, in order to any Invaſion of " this Kingdom.

IV. " That they utterly Deny'd and Diſown'd all " Plots charg'd upon them, as contriv'd and carry'd " on in their Meetings at Lambeth ; the Intent " thereof being to Adviſe, how, in their preſent " Difficulties they might beſt keep their Conſciences " void of Offence towards God and towards Man.

V. " That they were ſo far from being the Au- " thors or Abetters of England's Miſeries, that they " did, and ſhould to their dying hour, heartily and " inceſſantly Pray for the Peace, Proſperity and " Glory of England ; and ſhou'd always, by God's " Grace, make it their daily Practice, to ſtudy to " be Quiet, to bear their Croſs patiently, and to " ſeek the Good of their Native Country.

They Concluded, " That as the Lord had taught " them to return Good for Evil ; the unknown Au- " thor of the Pamphlet, having endeavoured to raiſe " in the whole Engliſh Nation ſuch a Fury as " might end in De-Witting them, (a Bloody Word, " but too well underſtood,) they recommended " him to the Divine Mercy, humbly beſeeching " GOD to forgive him. And as they had, not " long ſince, either Actually, or in full Preparation " of Mind, hazarded All they had in the World, in " oppoſing Popery and Arbitrary Power in England ; " ſo they ſhou'd, by God's Grace, with greater " Zeal, again ſacrifice All they had, and their very " Lives too, if GOD ſhould be pleaſed to Call " them thereto, to prevent Popery, and the Arbi- " trary Power of France, from coming upon them, " and prevailing over them ; the Perſecution of " their Proteſtant Brethren there being freſh in " their Memories.

† John de Wit, and his Brother were Murder'd by the Mob at the Hague.

The Parliament met at Weſtminſter on Tueſday March the 31ſt, according to their laſt Adjournment ; but upon her Majeſty's Pleaſure ſignified to both Houſes, they Adjourned themſelves to April 28. And on that Day to May 26. when they met, and were by Commiſſion prorogued to the 30th of June next enſuing, and then again prorogued to Monday, Auguſt the 3d, and then farther Prorogued to October the 5th, and then again to the 22d, when they met to do Buſineſs.

Adjournments and Prorogations of the Parliament.

On April the 9th, the Queen publiſhed " A Pro- " clamation againſt Papiſts, and other diſaffected " Perſons, who being of reſtleſs Spirits, and abu- " ſing the Clemency that had been uſed towards " them, had reſorted to, and aſſembled in the " Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and had there " taken great Boldneſs by Seditious Diſcourſes and " Libels, and with Inſolent Behaviour, to Defame " and Affront the Government ; and alſo had con- " ſulted and proſecuted divers Miſchievous and " Treaſonable Deſigns and Practices, tending to the " Diſturbance of the Publick Peace, and the De- " ſtruction

Proclamation againſt Papiſts.

1690. 3 W. M.

"ſtruction of their Native Country, &c." Their Majeſties by another Proclamation appointed a Publick and General Faſt to be obſerved throughout the Kingdom, on Wedneſday, April the 29th, and from thenceforth on the third Wedneſday of every Month during the preſent War.

The King returns from Holland.

The King came out of the Maeze on Sunday Morning, April the 12th, attended by part of the Dutch Squadron, being Ships of the Firſt and Second Rank, who came to join our Fleet at the (a) Buoy in the Nore; where, as his Majeſty paſs'd by, he was ſaluted with a Diſcharge of all the Cannon from the Ships, and the repeated Huzza's of the Seamen, expreſſing their Joy and Duty in a particular and extraordinary Manner. After a very quick Paſſage, the King arrived at Whitehall on Monday Evening, April 13. when immediately Bonfires, Illuminations, and Ringing of Bells, demonſtrated the general Joy for his Majeſty's ſafe Return. His Majeſty having diſpatched the weighty Affairs of haſtning out the Fleet, and making due Preparations for the Campaign in Flanders, he could ſpare no Time for Sports or Eaſe; but in purſuance of his Royal Reſolution to command the Confederate Army this Summer, he ſet out from Kenſington on Friday, May 1. very early in the Morning, and arrived at Harwich about Six in the Evening, where he went immediately on Board the Mary Yatch; but the Wind hanging Southwardly with the Tide of Flood, hindered their going to Sea that Night, upon which his Majeſty came aſhore; and embarking again next Day about Nine in the Morning, ſet ſail with a fair Wind for Holland, attended by a Squadron of Men of War under Command of Rear-Admiral Rook. The next Day about Six in the Morning his Majeſty landed near Mazeland-Sluice, and went that Night to the Hague, where the next Morning all the Foreign Miniſters waited on him to congratulate his ſafe Arrival. On Friday following, the King went to Loo, and from thence ſent away Count de Solmes, and the Lord Marlborough to Flanders, to put all Things in a Readineſs againſt his Majeſty's Arrival Some few Days after, May 31. N. S. his Majeſty parted from Loo, and having paſſed thro' Breda, on Saturday following, he put himſelf at the Head of the Confederate Army; where he was attended by the Duke of Ormond, the Marquis of Wincheſter, and the Earl of Eſſex; who, reviving the ancient Cuſtom of the Engliſh Nobility, choſe rather to ſhare with their Prince in the honourable Hazards of the Field, than to lead an inactive and inglorious Life at home. And it was indeed no Credit to our Nation, that their Example was not follow'd by more of their Quality. His Majeſty having diſappointed Boufflers in his Attempt upon Liege, endeavour'd to bring Mareſchal de Luxembergh to an Engagement, as well by ſeveral Marches and Counter-marches he purpoſely made, as by the Umbrages he gave him of attacking Maubeuge or Mons; but the cautious French General very induſtriouſly avoided fighting, and would afford no Opportunity for it, but upon very great Advantage; wherefore his Majeſty having blown up the Fortifications of Baumont, a Place he had made himſelf Maſter of, march'd the Army towards Aeth; and leaving it under the Command of Prince Waldeck, he went away for Loo on September the 17th. The ſame Day the Confederate Army march'd from Ickonwell to Leuze, and decamp'd again on the 19th in the Morning, advancing towards Cambron; and about a Eleven a Clock the whole Right Wing, with the Body of the Foot, and the greateſt Part of the Horſe of the Left Wing, had paſſed the little River and Defile near Catoir. The Duke of Luxemburgh being inform'd of this Motion, and encourag'd by his Britannick Majeſty's Abſence, advanc'd at the ſame time with the Troops of the French King's Houſhold, and a ſtrong Detachment of his Cavalry, making together Fifty five Squadrons, his ſwift March not being diſcover'd, by reaſon of a great Fog, and charg'd the Rear-Guard of the others with great Fury. Count Tilly, who commanded in the Rear, drew up his Men as well as the Suddeneſs of the Attack would permit, and received the Shock with great Bravery; but was ſoon over-power'd, and put into Diſorder. By this time, ſeveral of thoſe that had already paſſed the River, were brought back by the Lieutenant-Generals Overkirk and Obdam; and forming a Second Line, gave an Opportunity to the Firſt to rally. Two Battalions were likewiſe poſted behind the Hedges adjoining to the Defile, who much gall'd the Enemy. Here the Conflict was very fierce, till the Second Line was alſo forc'd to give Ground; but the Cavalry being ſoon rally'd by Monſieur Overkirk, who ſignaliz'd his Valour and Conduct on this Occaſion, the French, who were unwilling to puſh the Action too far, for fear of the Dutch Infantry, which was alſo marching up, retreated in ſome Haſte and Confuſion; contenting themſelves with having kill'd about a Thouſand of the Confederates, and amongſt them, ſome Men of great Diſtinction, with the Loſs themſelves of about half the Number. And with this Action the Campaign ended on that ſide.

The King goes back to the Campaign

The French decline Fighting.

1690. 3 W. M.

Engagement.

New Attempts of the Jacobites.

Notwithſtanding the many Diſappointments the Jacobites had already met in their bold Deſigns, they began this Year with freſh Attempts to ſubvert the preſent Government. To accompliſh this, they maintain'd a conſtant Correſpondence with the Court of France, who fed them with liberal Promiſes of Aſſiſtance with Men, Arms and Money; which raiſed their Hopes and Expectations, That England ſhould be ſpeedily invaded and conquer'd, if a Project that was then on Foot, did not accompliſh the Work by a greater Diſpatch, and reſtore King James without the loſs of much Blood. With theſe dark Sayings ſome of the Jacobites entertain'd the reſt, and did not ſcruple to boaſt, that a great Thing was then on Foot, that would confound the Williamites. What ſhould be meant by this Great Thing, appeared afterwards to be the King's Murder. His Majeſty's Enemies being unwilling to wait any longer the uncertain Fate of War, thought this Project the beſt Expedient for their Purpoſe, and this Time moſt agreeable. For to aſſaſſinate his Majeſty in Flanders, would admit of more Excuſes, and more Safety, than in any other Place. This helliſh Enterprize, with the Promiſe of great Rewards, being communicated to Bartholomew Lineire Sieur de Granvale, he and Dumont, who had been formerly retain'd for the ſame Purpoſe, undertook to put it in Execution while the King was at Loo; but miſſing their Opportunity, they followed his Majeſty to his Camp in Flanders. From hence Granvale returned to the French Army, and Dumont, according to the Orders given him, enter'd into the Confederate Army, that he might take his Opportunity when his Majeſty went to viſit the Grand Guard, or the Lines, to ſhoot him in the Back, and then make the beſt of his way to a Body of Horſe that Granvale and Colonel Parker, the chief Contriver Deſign to Aſſaſſinate the King.

(a) While King William was in Holland, 1691, M. Baille wrote thus in a Letter to M. Minutoli; "I think I have already "told you, that his Britannick Majeſty deſir'd to have no Encomium beſtow'd upon him by the Miniſters who preach before him; the Pulpit not being deſigned to praiſe Men but "God. The King has been three times at the French Church "and heard Monſieur Claude Preach the firſt and ſecond time, "and the third time M. de Superville, who is one of the "French Miniſters Refugees, and Penſioners of Roterdam: thoſe "Gentlemen have not ſpar'd the Incenſe, but they made it "ſmoke indirectly, and in ſuch a manner as to be inoffenſive "to that GREAT PRINCE.

1691. 3 W. M.

of this bloody Deſign, ſhould have in readineſs upon a previous Intimation, to reſcue and carry him off. But Providence took care of the Preſervation of Europe, that ſo viſibly depended upon his Majeſty's ſingle Life; and whether Dumont's Heart fail'd him, or whether his Confederates deſerted him, or whatever elſe was the reſtraining Cauſe, after ſome Weeks Attendance, he went to the Court of Hanover; and for this Year gave over the accurſed Project of aſſaſſinating his Majeſty, who ſafely return'd to Loo; and having ſpent there near two Months in Hunting, he came to the Hague to ſettle the State of the War for the enſuing Year. On Sunday, October 18. he embark'd on the Mary Yatch in the Maeſe, being attended by a Squadron of Men of War, under Command of Sir Cloudeſly Shovel, Rear Admiral of the Blue. On Monday about Nine in the Morning his Majeſty landed at Margate, and came that Night to (a) Kenſington; upon which the Cannon were fired from the Tower, and all the Streets were fill'd with Bonfires, Illuminations, and all poſſible Signs of Joy for his Majeſty's ſafe Return.

The King returns ſafe to England.

Affairs in Ireland.

To take a ſhort View of the Affairs in Ireland: The greateſt Miſchief done there to the Engliſh, was by the Iriſh Robbers, called Rapparees, who committed great Spoils and Cruelties, and then retreated into their Boggs and Faſtneſſes, where the Regular Forces could not reach them. Nor were the Lords Juſtices more ſucceſsful in their Attempts to ſuppreſs 'em, either by Offers of Mercy to ſuch of them as ſhould ſubmit to their Majeſties Obedience, or by promiſing a Reward for every Head of a Rapparee. King William's Forces being conſiderably augmented by the Addition of thoſe Troops, which under Mackay, had happily compleated the Reduction of the Scotch Highlands, Lieutenant-General Ginkle, Commander in chief, decamped from Mullingar on June 6. and came the next Day before Ballimore, the Marquis de Ruvigny, Major-General, being ſent before with a Detachment of Horſe and Dragoons, to poſſeſs himſelf of a Paſs between that Place and Athlone. The Batteries being rais'd, the General ſent a Meſſage on June 8. to Colonel Ulicke Bourke, Governor of the Town, That if he and the Gariſon would ſurrender within Two Hours, he would ſave their Lives, and make them Priſoners of War; if not, they were to expect no Mercy. To which the Governor made a ſhuffling ſort of Reply, in hopes of getting better Terms; but the Cannon and Bombs having made two ſeveral Breaches, the Pontoons being put into the Water, and all things ready for a Storm, it ſtruck ſo great a Conſternation, that the ſame Evening the Gariſon, which conſiſted of 780 Men, beſides Four Field-Officers, and 259 Rapparees, laid down their Arms, and ſubmitted at Diſcretion.

Ballimore ſurrendred.

The Engliſh put this Town into a better Condition, and march'd from thence on June 18. when being join'd by the Prince of Wirtemberg, they encamp'd at Balymony's Paſs, whilſt a ſtrong Detachment of Horſe advanc'd towards Athlone. On the 19th the Van Guard march'd from Balymony, and beat the Enemy from ſeveral Out-Ditches of the Engliſh Town of Athlone, on this ſide the Shannon, and lodg'd themſelves there. The next Day, a Battery of Ten 18 Pounders having ruin'd a Baſtion near the Water-ſide, the General order'd an Aſſault to be made. The Engliſh at the Word went deſperately on, and in the midſt of the reſiſting Iriſh, kept firing till they came to the Breach; which a French Captain of Grenadiers firſt mounted, throwing his Grenado, firing his Piece, and ordering his Men to do the ſame. His Bravery ſo encourag'd his Party, that tho' he was kill'd in the Action, yet the Iriſh were ſoon forc'd to quit the Place; ſome flying over the Bridge to Connaught's ſide, and the reſt leaping into the Shannon, where many were drown'd.

Siege of Athlone.

1691. 3 W. M.

After this Succeſs, Batteries were planted againſt the Iriſh Town of Athlone; and by the 22d, the Cannons and Mortars began to play very briſkly on the North-Eaſt-ſide of the Caſtle. The 25th was ſpent in raiſing more Batteries, one below, and another above the Bridge, while another was erected oppoſite to a Baſtion the Iriſh had made on the other ſide the River. At the ſame time the General was concluding Methods to march part of his Army over the Shannon, at a Ford towards Laneſborough; but that Deſign being fruſtrated, he reſolved to force his way thro' the Engliſh Town, and therefore laboured hard to gain the Bridge, wherein he found no ſmall Difficulty. However, on the 27th, the Engliſh burnt the Wooden Breaſt-work the Enemy had made on the other ſide of the broken Arch; and the next Morning had laid their Beams over, and partly Plank'd them; which a Party of the Beſieged endeavouring to ruin, they were all killed in the Attempt. This did not diſcourage another Party of theirs to ſet about the ſame Work, which they deſperately effected, throwing down the Planks and Beams into the River. This made the General reſolve to carry on the Work by a cloſe Gallery on the Bridge; but this too was burnt by the Enemy, and there ſeem'd no way left to paſs the Shannon. So on the 30th a Council of War was held, and it was warmly debated, whether to attempt the River, or to march off. There were not wanting great Reaſons for the latter; but the Duke of Wirtemberg, the Major-Generals Mackay, Talmaſh, Ruvigny and Tetteau, and Colonel Cambon, urg'd, That no brave Action could be perform'd without Hazard; that the Attempt of taking the River and paſſing it ſafely, was like to be attended with Succeſs; and proffer'd themſelves to be the Leaders of the Reſt. Their Opinion prevail'd; and all things being ready about Six that Evening, upon a Signal given, Captain Sandys, and two Lieutenants, led the firſt Party of Sixty Grenadiers, all in Armour, and Twenty a-Breaſt, ſeconded by another ſtrong Detachment of Grenadiers, (which were to be ſupported by Six Battalions of Foot) who intrepidly took the River, a little to the left of the Bridge, againſt a Baſtion of the Enemies, the Stream being very rapid, and the Paſſage very difficult, by reaſon of ſome great Stones that were in the River. At laſt, by an incredible Piece of Bravery, they forc'd their way thro' Water, Fire and Smoak, and gain'd the oppoſite Bank, while the reſt were laying Planks over the broken Part of the Bridge, and bringing down the Pontoons. By theſe means the Engliſh paſſed over ſo faſt, that in leſs than half an Hour they were Maſters of the Town, while the Gariſon in Diſtraction fled away to the Army near encamp'd. The Engliſh were no ſooner enter'd the River, but an Expreſs was ſent from the Town to Monſieur St. Ruth, who commanded the Army, for ſpeedy Succours; but he anſwer'd, It was impoſſible for the Engliſh to pretend to take a Town, and he ſo near with an Army to defend it. He would give a Thouſand Piſtoles they durſt attempt it. The brave and active Sarsfield replied, He knew it was a difficult Enterprize, but not too difficult for Engliſh Courage to attempt; and therefore preſs'd St. Ruth to ſend away ſome Forces to relieve the Town. Which that General refuſing to do, and ſtill turning the Attempt into a Jeſt, ſome hot Words paſſed betwixt him and Sarsfield, that were thought to have their Bravery in paſſing the Shannon.

(a) See a Form of Thankſgiving to be uſed in all Churches in and near about London, immediately upon his Majeſty's Return, and to be continued till the Day of Publick Thankſgiving. By her Majeſty's Special Command. Whitehall, October 17. 1691.

fatal

1691. 3 W. M.

fatal Conſequence not long after. St. Ruth being ſoon convinced that the Engliſh were in actual Poſſeſſion of the Place, order'd ſeveral Detachments to beat them out again: But then he was ſenſible of another Overſight, in not Levelling of thoſe Fortifications of Athlone that were next his Camp: For now the Engliſh us'd the Enemies Works againſt themſelves, and ſtruck ſuch a Terror upon the whole Army of French and Iriſh, that they decamp'd that very Night.

Athlone taken.

Thus was the Iriſh Town of Athlone (when proudly thought inacceſſible) reſolutely taken in an Hour's Time. It is a hard Matter to match in Hiſtory ſo brave an Enterprize; a fortified Town attack'd croſs a deep and wide River, only by Three Thouſand Men; in the Face of a great Army, who were Maſters of all the Fords by the Retrenchments they had caſt before them: And therefore it was but Juſtice, that General Ginkle ſhould entail on his Family the Honour of this Atchievement, by the Title which was afterwards beſtow'd upon him, of Earl of Athlone.

General Ginkle deſerv'd the Title of Earl of Athlone.

This Happy General having continued at Athlone till he had put it into a Poſture of Defence, march'd out with his Army on July the 10th; and having reach'd Ballinaſloe, encamp'd along the River Suck, upon Roſcommon ſide; which was a very good Paſs, and which if the Iriſh had ſecur'd, they would have given the Engliſh a great deal more Trouble. But they indeed poſſeſs'd themſelves of a more advantageous Poſt; for they lay on the other ſide of Aghrim Caſtle, Three Miles beyond Ballinaſloe, and were extended from the Church of Kilcommodon on their Right, to a Place call'd Gourtnapon, about two Miles in Length: On their Left run a Rivulet, having ſteep Hills and little Bogs on each ſide; next to which was a large red Bog, almoſt a Mile over; in the End whereof ſtood the Caſtle of Agrim, commanding the Way that led to their Camp; paſſable for Horſe no where but juſt at the Caſtle, by reaſon of a ſmall River, which running thro' a moiſt Ground, made the whole a Moraſs. This Moraſs extended it ſelf along to the right, where there was another Paſs at Urachres, having a riſing Ground on each ſide; and the Iriſh Camp lay along the Ridge of a Hill, on the ſide of which ſtood two Daniſh Forts, about Half a Mile's Diſtance from the Bog below, and this cut into ſmall Encloſures, which the Iriſh lined very thick with Muſqueteers, and kept a Communication between them.

His good Conduct and Progreſs.

General Ginkle having viewed the Enemy's Camp, found it of very difficult Acceſs; but conſidering he had now advanced ſo far, that he muſt either fight his way through, or retreat with Loſs and Shame, he brought up his Army to front the Enemy, and provoke them to Battel. St. Ruth ſuppoſing by the way of Appearance in the Engliſh, that they were reſolv'd to attack him, he made a ſolemn Speech, and told the poor Iriſh, "How ſucceſsful "he had been in ſuppreſſing Hereſy in France and "Savoy, and bringing over a vaſt Number of deluded Souls into the Boſom of the Mother-Church. "That for this Reaſon his Maſter had made choice "of him, before others, to eſtabliſh the Church in "Ireland on ſuch a Foundation, that it ſhould not "for the future be in the Power of Hell or Hereticks to diſturb it: And that all good Roman-Catholicks depended on their Courage, to ſee thoſe "Glorious Things effected. He confeſs'd, Matters "did not entirely anſwer his Expectation, ſince he "came among them; but that ſtill All might be "eaſily recover'd. He was now inform'd, that the "Prince of Orange's Heretical Army was reſolv'd to "give them Battel; that therefore now or never "was the Time for them to recover their loſt Honours, Privileges, and Eſtates of their Anceſtors. "They ought now to remember, that they were "no Mercenary Soldiers; that their All was now "at Stake, and the happy Event would be, to reſtore a pious King to his Throne, to propagate "the Holy Church and Faith, and at a Blow to extirpate Hereſy. He begg'd them to raiſe their Courage, by aſſuring themſelves that they ſhould have "King James's Love and Gratitude, Lewis the "Great's Protection, himſelf to lead them on, the "Church to pray for them, and the Saints and Angels "to carry their Souls into Heaven." Then he concluded with a ſtrict Order, to give Quarter to none, eſpecially not to ſpare any of the French Hereticks in the Service of the Prince of Orange.

Reſolves to fight the Enemy.

Speech of Monſieur St. Ruth.

1691. 3 W. M.

On Sunday, July the 12th, the Engliſh Army march'd early in the Morning towards the Enemy; but the Weather proving foggy, they halted till about Noon, when they advanced in as good Order as the Nature of the Ground would permit. The General having view'd the Poſture of the Iriſh, and ſeeing the Neceſſity of making himſelf Maſter of the Paſs of Urachres, he ſent a Daniſh Captain to force it; but they failing in the Attempt, he order'd Two Hundred of Cunningham's Dragoons to march to certain Ditches nigh the Ford, to keep the Enemy from coming over; while the Army in the mean Time continued their March. By this Time it was Two a Clock; and the General finding it neceſſary to gain that Ford, and the other Ways that led to the Right of the Iriſh Camp, as the moſt proper Means to attack them, commanded Cunningham's Dragoons at the Ditch to advance towards a Party of the Enemy that were poſted on the other ſide; who thereupon, with another Party that ſuſtained them, retired behind a Hill nearer the Camp, where a great Body was poſted. Now all theſe being ſtill reinforced by others, oblig'd the Engliſh Dragoons to retreat: Upon which the General order'd Eppinger's Dragoons to get between thoſe Bodies and the Camp of the Enemy; who preſently diſcovering this Motion, would (by the Advantage of quick Reinforcements) have been too hard for the Engliſh, had not the Dragoons been ſeconded by my Lord Portland's Horſe, who behav'd themſelves here with exceeding great Bravery. Now what was at firſt only a Skirmiſh, engaged a conſiderable Body on both ſides; but the Enemy retiring in ſome Time, brought the Generals together to conſult, Whether it was not better to defer the Battel till next Morning? Which was agreed on ſo far, that the Tents were order'd to be ſent for; but when (by what had already happen'd) they perceiv'd the Enemy to be in ſome Diſorder, the Battel was fully reſolved on. Wherefore it was agreed, by the Advice of Major-General Mackay, to begin the Fight on the Enemy's Right; whereby it was propoſed to draw Part of their Strength from Agrim Caſtle, near to which their Main Body was poſted; that ſo the Right Wing of the Engliſh might have an eaſier Paſſage over, to attack their Left; and then the whole Engliſh Army might have the Opportunity to engage, which otherwiſe could not poſſibly be: And this Advice had its deſired End. About Half an Hour after Four in the Afternoon, the Engliſh Left Wing moved towards the Enemy, and the Battel began afreſh by Five. The Ditches were ſtrongly lined by Iriſh Muſqueteers, and their Horſe advantageouſly poſted to ſupport them: And here the Iriſh behav'd themſelves like Men of another Nation, or at leaſt as if they had been out of their own Country, defending their Poſts with unparallel'd Obſtinacy. Nor would they ſtir from one ſide, till the Engliſh put their Pieces over at the other; and then having Lines of Communication from one Ditch to another, they would preſently poſt themſelves, and flank the Engliſh; which occaſion'd great Firings on both ſides, and continued on the Left almoſt an Hour and half, before the Centre and the Right Wing of the Army began to engage. In the mean Time the main Army advanc'd, and Major-General Mackay (and the other Officers) obſerving ſeveral Bodies of the Enemy's Horſe and Foot draw off

Advance of the Engliſh toward the Iriſh Army.

The Battel.

1691. 3 W. M. from the Left, and move towards the Right, where they were hard put to it by the Engliſh; our General laid hold of the Opportunity, and order'd the Foot to march over the Bog which fronted the Enemy's main Body. Now the Regiments of Erle, Herbert, Creighton, and Brewer, going over the narroweſt Place, where the Hedges on the Enemy's Side ran fartheſt into the Bog, they had Orders to march to the loweſt of the Ditches adjoining to the Side of the Bog, and there to poſt themſelves till the Horſe could come about by Agrim Caſtle, and ſuſtain them; and till the other Foot had marched over the other Bog before, where it was broader, and were ſupported by Foulk's and Brigadier Stuart's Regiments. Erle's and the other Three Regiments, purſuant to their Orders, advanced over the Bog, moſt of them paſſing up to the Middle in Mud and Water; and upon their near Approach to the Ditches, received the Enemies Fire; which yet did not hinder them from marching to the loweſt Hedge, and to beat the Iriſh from thence, and ſo on from Hedge to Hedge, till they were got very near their main Body: But the Iriſh had ſo well order'd the Matter, that they had an eaſy Paſſage for their Horſe among all thoſe Hedges and Ditches; which yet being obſerved by the valiant Colonel Erle, he encouraged his Men, by telling them, There was no way to come off, but to be brave. However, the Engliſh being both flanked and fronted, and expoſed to all the Enemy's Fire from the neighbouring Hedges, they were forced from their Ground, and to retreat again to the Bog with conſiderable Loſs. And among others, the brave Colonels Erle and Herbert being taken Priſoners, the former (after being Twice taken and retaken) at laſt got clear of the Enemy; but the other (as was reported) was barbarouſly murther'd by the Iriſh, when they ſaw he was like to be reſcued.

Difficulties and Diſadvantages to the Engliſh Side.

While Things paſſed after this manner on this ſide, Colonel St. John's, Colonel Tiffin's, the Lord George Hamilton's, the French Refugees in Engliſh Service, and ſeveral other Regiments, were marching over below upon the Bog; while the Iriſh lay ſo cloſe in their Ditches, that many of the Engliſh were doubtful whether they had any Men at that Place or no. But no ſooner were the French Proteſtants (and the reſt) got within Twenty Yards of the Ditches, but the Iriſh fired very furiouſly upon them; which the other ſuſtained with Intrepidity, and ſtill bravely preſs'd forwards, tho' they could ſcarce ſee one another for Smoak. And now the Battel ſeem'd ſo doubtful for ſome Time, that a Stander-by would rather have judg'd the Victory inclin'd to the Iriſh; for they had driven the Engliſh Foot in the Centre ſo far back, that they were almoſt got even with the great Guns, (planted near the Bog) of which the Engliſh had no Benefit in that Conjuncture, becauſe of the Mixture of the Iriſh with their own Men.

The Battel very doubtful.

We hear little all this while of the Horſe; but while the Infantry was thus engaged, Major-General Ruvigny's Regiment of French Horſe, and Sir John Lanier's, being both poſted on the Right, the latter was afterwards drawn to the Left, where they did great Service; and the Right Wing of the Engliſh Horſe were in the mean Time making the beſt of their way to ſuccour the Foot; being ſenſible of the extream Danger they were in, and that all lay at Stake. The Cavalry, beſides the Showers of Bullets pour'd on them from a Body of the Enemy's Dragoons and Foot, that were conveniently poſted under a Covert Place, was likewiſe obliged to preſs and tumble over a very dangerous Paſs; but having with incredible Bravery ſurmounted all theſe Difficulties, they lodg'd themſelves at laſt in a dry Ditch, in the hotteſt of the Enemy's Fire from Agrim Caſtle, and ſome old Walls and adjoining Hedges. It was reported, That St. Ruth obſerving the great Difficulties the Engliſh Horſe encounter'd with upon this Occaſion, ſhould ſay, They are brave Fellows; 'tis pity they ſhould be ſo expoſed. 1691. 3 W. M.

The Engliſh Foot all this while labour'd under very great Diſadvantage in the Centre; which being obſerved by the brave Talmaſh, he haſted with ſome freſh Men to their Relief, and order'd the broken Regiments to halt and face about; which they immediately obeyed, and bravely charged the Iriſh, who had advanced upon them to the very Centre of the Bog, kill'd above Three Hundred of them before they could retreat out of it, and then march'd boldly up to their old Ground from whence they had been beaten. At the ſame Time Mackay fell upon the Enemy with a good Body of Horſe, on their Left; and, among the reſt, the French Regiment of Horſe had forced a Regiment of Iriſh Dragoons from an advantageous Poſt, and put Tyrconnel's Horſe to flight. Whereupon Ruvigny, at the Head of Oxford's Horſe, ſupported by his own Regiment, went along the Side of the Bog, and bore all down before him. And now the Horſe and Foot of the Engliſh Right and the Iriſh Left Wing being mix'd, there was nothing but a continual Fire, and a very ſharp Diſpute all along the Lines; the Iriſh with great Reſolution endeavouring to maintain their Ditches, and the Engliſh to beat them out from thence. However, the Fight did not appear much longer to be doubtful: For tho' St. Ruth, when he ſaw the Engliſh Foot in the Centre repulſed, in an Extaſy of Joy told thoſe about him, He would now beat the Engliſh Army to the very Gates of Dublin; yet ſeeing (with great Concern) Oxford, Ruvigny, Langſton, and Bierly's Horſe, with Leviſon's Dragoons, preſſing over towards the Caſtle, he order'd a Brigade of his own Horſe to march up. Then riding to one of his Batteries, and giving the Gunners Orders where to fire; and afterwards leading on ſome Horſe towards the Place where he ſaw the Engliſh endeavour to get over, as he rode down the Hill of Kilcommodon, (the Place where the main Streſs of the Battel was fought, being juſt under the Iriſh Camp) he was kill'd with a Cannon-Ball. As ſoon as he fell, his Body was removed behind the Hill, and his Guard going off at the ſame Time, this was no ſooner obſerved by the Iriſh Horſe, but many of them drew off alſo, and in a ſhort Time their Army was driven to the Top of Kilcommodon Hill, where their Camp had lain; which being levell'd and expoſed to the Engliſh Shot more openly, they began now to betake themſelves to an open Flight, the Foot towards a large Bog behind them on the Left, and the Horſe on the Highway towards Longhreah.

St Ruth kill'd.

The Iriſh Army defeated.

While all this was doing in the Right Wing and Centre, the Engliſh to the Left, that firſt Engaged, bravely maintained their Ground; and though the Iriſh once or twice did make themſelves Maſters of the Chevaux de Friſe that covered the French Foot of Refugees, yet they couragiouſly regained them again: However, little happened on their ſide for near Two Hours together; neither did the Daniſh Horſe and Foot that were on the Left of all, diſturb the Enemy as yet, but kept in Awe ſeveral Bodies of Horſe and Foot that Faced them on the other ſide of the Rivulet; but then perceiving Mackay's Battalions in the Centre to drive the Enemy before them, leſt thoſe Bodies that Faced them ſhould fall back to the Relief of the Flying Party, they engaged them very briskly, and were at firſt received with great Reſolution; but the Iriſh being on the Decline, they all fled out of the Field, their Foot being miſerably ſlaughter'd by the Engliſh Horſe and Dragoons, and their Horſe being purſued near Three Miles; but the Night coming on, with a thick miſty Rain, prevented the Engliſh from getting between them and a very advantageous Paſs near Longhreah, which gave many of them an Opportunity to eſcape: However it was computed, that no leſs than Four Thouſand of the Iriſh were ſlain ſlain upon the Spot; and of the Engliſh Seven Hundred Killed, and as many Wounded; which ſtill makes the Victory to be the more conſiderable, ſince the Engliſh Army did not make up above Eighteen Thouſand effective Men; whereas the Iriſh were computed at Twenty Thouſand Foot, and Five Thouſand Horſe and Dragoons. As for the Honour of this great Day, the Renowned General Ginkle had ever the Modeſty to confeſs, that it was principally owing to the Conduct and Bravery of the Marqueſs of Ruvigny, and of the Oxford and French Regiments of Horſe.

1691. 3 W. M.

The Victory very great.

The Engliſh march to Galloway.

The Engliſh lay upon their Arms all Night, and then after a few Days of Refreſhment, the General march'd them on to Galloway, the moſt conſiderable Place now left in the Hands of the Iriſh next to Limerick, and having Poſted his Troops about the Town he ſent them a Summons to Surrender. The Lord D*illon* Governor, ſent Anſwer, That Monſieur D' Uſſon, who commanded in Chief, as well as himſelf, and the reſt of the Officers, were reſolved to defend the Place to the laſt Extremity. But for all this Boaſt, the Engliſh had no ſooner march'd part of their Forces over the River, and taken a Fort the Iriſh were then Building, but a Parly was Beat, and Hoſtages were immediately exchanged. But the Iriſh demurring upon the Manner of Surrender, the General grew impatient, and ſent once or twice to come to a ſpeedy Concluſion. At laſt Lieutenant-General Bourke, one of the Iriſh Hoſtages was allow'd to go in, to whom Major-General Talmaſh, who ſeem'd rather inclined to lay the Treaty aſide, and take the Town by Storm, ſaid, When you are ready to begin again, give us a Sign by firing a Gun into the Air. But the other Reply'd, they would not fire a Gun from within, till they were provoked from without. After ſome time the Articles were agreed on, and the Town deliver'd into the Hands of the Engliſh on July the 20th. The Conſequence of which was the Submiſſion of Balderick O Donnel, with a conſiderable Number of Men under his Command, and a March of the Engliſh Army towards Limerick, where Tyrconnel Died on Auguſt the 14th, as if the ill Condition of his Maſter's Affairs had broke his Heart.

And take the Place.

Death of Tyrconnel.

Siege of Limerick.

On Auguſt the 25th, the Engliſh Army reached Limerick, and that ſame Day made themſelves Maſters of Ireton and Cromwell Forts, which were now order'd to be called Mackay and Naſſaw's, becauſe gained by thoſe Commanders; two Days after, Caſtle Connel, and Caſtle Carruck, a Gunnel that ſtood upon the Shannon, three Miles below the Town were Attacked, and the Gariſons of both made Priſoners of War. At the ſame time ſome Engliſh Ships came up the River, and Fired among the Iriſh Horſe that were encamped near the Banks of it, who were much ſurpriz'd, becauſe they had been made to believe that the Engliſh had no Ships there, or elſe, that thoſe they had muſt Fly or be Deſtroyed by the French Fleet which they Hourly expected. But though the Siege was vigorouſly carried on, and the Bombs did great Execution upon their Camp, and in their Town, yet on the 17th of September it was warmly debated in a Council of War, whether they ſhould proſecute the Siege, or March over the River, and Deſtroy all the Enemies Forage in the County of Clare, and then turn the Siege into a Blockade. It was ſo far carried for the latter, that an Engineer was ordered to go with a Detachment towards Kilmalock; and Fortify that Place; but before he got out of the Camp he was countermanded, and a great many Paliſadoes were brought into Mackay's Fort, as if the Army intended to Winter there. On the 19th, it was reſolved to paſs the River with a great Party, either to preſs the Siege on that ſide, or at leaſt to burn the Enemies Forage. On the 22d, General Ginkle with indefatigable Courage paſſed the Shannon over a Bridge of Boats, with ſtrong Detachments of Horſe and Dragoons, Ten Batallions of Foot, and Fourteen Pieces of Cannon, leaving Prince Wirtemberg, Mackay and Talmaſh to command on this Side. The Enemy continually Fired upon them all the Morning from ſeveral Batteries, but without any great Harm; and in the Afternoon a Party of Colonel Mathews's Dragoons was vigorouſly Attacked by a ſtronger Detachment, till the Engliſh Foot coming up, the Iriſh retreated under their Cannon. Then all the Engliſh Grenadiers, ſuſtained by Four Regiments of Foot, were commanded to Aſſault the Works that covered Thomon Bridge, wherein the Enemy had Poſted above two Hundred Men. The Diſpute was Hot and Obſtinate for a while, and the Attack extreamly hazardous, the Beſieged plying the Aſſailants with their Cannon from the King's Caſtle, and two or three more Batteries, as alſo with their ſmall Shot from the Wall; however, the Iriſh being furiouſly preſt upon by the Grenadiers, were abandoning their Poſts, when a ſtrong Detachment was ſent from the Town to ſupport them; but the Engliſh advanced with ſuch Courage and Bravery, that they beat the Enemy, and purſued them over the Bridge into the Town. A French Major who commanded at Thomon Gate, fearing the Engliſh would enter into the Town Pell-mell with the Run-aways, ordered the Draw-bridge to be drawn up, and left the whole Party expoſed to the Fury of their Purſuers, who killed Six Hundred of them, and made above a Hundred and Sixty Priſoners, beſides a great Number were puſhed into the Shannon.

Engliſh paſs the Shannon.

1691. 3 W. M.

And puſh on the Siege with great Bravery.

Hereupon the Engliſh lodged themſelves within Ten Yards of the Bridge, notwithſtanding a high Tower that ſtood near the hither end of it; the Iriſh finding all Communication cut off between them and their Horſe, and beginning to deſpair of the French Succours, entertained ſome Thoughts of Surrendring; for Colonel Wachop looking out of the Tower, called to Lieutenant-General Scravenmore, and deſired leave to come and ſpeak with him, which was readily granted. After ſome Diſcourſe, he deſired the ſame Liberty for Sarsfield to ſpeak with Major-General Ruvigny, which was likewiſe allowed him; and accordingly they both diſcourſed about Offers and Terms of Surrendry, and towards the Evening they return'd into the Town; the next Day Sarsfield and Wachop came out again, and deſired a Ceſſation of Arms for Three Days, till they could ſend to Lieutenant-General Sheldon, who lay with about fifteen Hundred Horſe at Six Mile Bridge, to the end they might be included in the general Capitulation; which being granted, the Priſoners in the Town were thereupon releaſed. On the 26th, Sarsfield and Wachop dined with the General, and it being then agreed that Hoſtages ſhould be exchanged in order to a farther Treaty, my Lord Cutts, Sir David Collier, Colonel Tiffin, and Colonel Piper, were ſent into the Town in the room of the Lords Weſtmeath, Evagh, Timelſtone and Lowth, who remained in the Engliſh Camp; the next Day the Iriſh ſent out their Propoſals, but in ſuch extravagant Terms that General Ginkle returned Anſwer, That though he was a Stranger to the Laws of England, yet he underſtood that what they inſiſted upon was ſo far contradictory to them, that he could not grant any ſuch Thing; and thereupon ordered a new Battery to be raiſed; but upon the Requeſt of the Iriſh he ſent them in Twelve Articles, which proved to be the Sum of the Capitulation. On October the 1ſt, the Lords Juſtices of Ireland arrived in the Engliſh Camp, and after ſome farther Conferences with the Commiſſioners, on the part of the Gariſon, and their Troops in the County of Clare, the Articles were finally concluded on October the 3d for a Surrendry of the Caſtle of Limerick, and the Caſtles of Roſs and Clare, with all other Places and Caſtles that were ſtill in the Hands of the Iriſh. Theſe Articles conſiſted of two Parts, Civil and Military; the firſt being ſigned by the Lords-Juſtices and General,

The Iriſh diſpoſed to a Surrendry.

Hoſtages exchang'd

Articles of Surrendry

1691. 3 W. M.

neral, but the latter by the General only: By the Military Articles, all Perſons that were willing to leave the Kingdom were to have liberty for paſſing into France, or to have Protection if they were willing to remain here; but General Ginkle receiving a Letter on the 5th of October, from a Lieutenant-Colonel in the Iriſh Army, wherein he complained of being confined for refuſing to go into France, he reſented this Violence to that Degree, that he immediately ordered Four Guns to be planted on Bolls-Bridge, and ſaid in ſome Paſſion, He would teach the Iriſh to play Tricks with him. Sarsfield thereupon came into the Engliſh Camp, and ſome ſharp Words paſſed between him and the General; Sarsfield ſaid at laſt, It is true Sir, I am now in your Power. Not ſo (reply'd General Ginkle,) but you ſhall go in again, and do the worſt you can. However, all things were calmed at laſt, and the Priſoners enlarged, and as many of the Iriſh as were willing to go were ſhipp'd off for France; when upon their Arrival they were welcom'd with a comforting Letter from King James, Directed to Lieutenant-General Sheldon, then the Officer in Chief with them; the Subſtance of which was, "That "having been informed of the Neceſſities which "forced the Lords-Juſtices, and the General Officers "of his Forces to Surrender Limerick, and the "other Places that remained to him in his Kingdom of Ireland; he would not defer to let him "and the reſt of the Officers know that he was extreamly ſatisfied with his and their Conduct, and "with the Valour of the Soldiers, but moſt particularly with their Reſolution of coming to ſerve "where he himſelf was in Perſon; aſſuring them "that he ſhould never forget this Act of Loyalty, "nor fail when in a Capacity to give them above "others particular Marks of his Favour. In the mean time he charged Sheldon to inform them that they were to ſerve under his Majeſty's Command, and by his Commiſſions, and that his Brother the King of France had already given Orders to Cloath them, and furniſh them with all Neceſſaries, and to give them Quarters of Refreſhment.

K. James's Letter.

End of the War in Ireland.

Thus ended the Iriſh War with the Surrendry of Limerick, to the immortal Honour of General Ginkle, and with ſo much the more Glory to the Engliſh, in that the Iriſh were ſo powerfully ſupported by the King of France, who had ſent out another Fleet of Men of War, and Store-Ships for the Relief of Limerick, who happen'd to arrive in Dingle-Bay but a Day or Two after the Articles were Sign'd. The News of the Surrender of Limerick was carried over to King William at the Hague, by Mr. Henry Furnace, and his Majeſty beſtowed the Honour of Knighthood upon the welcome Meſſenger.

Affairs at Sea.

There was nothing extraordinary done this Year at Sea, for the Fleets being now of almoſt equal Strength on both Sides, the French as cautiouſly avoided an Engagement as they ſought it the Year before. Their chief Aim was to intercept our Turkey Fleet, which was exceeding Rich; and to that end they hover'd a long time about the Iriſh Coaſt; but through a particular Providence they had but ſome few Days left the Offing of Kingſale before the Smyrna Fleet on July the 3d came all ſafe into that Harbour, under a Convoy of Fourteen Men of War, commanded by Captain Aylmer, having been held back Seven Weeks by contrary Winds in their Paſſage from Cadiz. The Engliſh Grand Fleet all this while kept another Courſe, not for want of Zeal or Fidelity in the Commander in Chief, but of Intelligence; for as ſoon as the Brave Admiral Ruſſel was inform'd that they were got into Kingſale, he ſteer'd thither from Cape Clear, and afterwards took all imaginable care for their being ſafely conveyed into their reſpective Ports, and then ſtood over to Uſhant in queſt of the Enemy, who, he was informed were return'd that way to their own Coaſts. Being come within ſome Leagues of Breſt, he underſtood they lay at Belle-Iſle, ſecured in ſuch a manner that it was impoſſible to Attack them; whereupon he returned towards the Engliſh Shore, but met with ſuch a violent Storm, that the Coronation, and One or Two more Ships of leſs Conſideration were loſt; and the Admiral himſelf had much a-do to get the reſt of the Fleet ſafe into Plymouth.

Parliament meet.

On Thurſday, October 22. the Parliament met at Weſtminſter; and his Majeſty made this Speech to both Houſes.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Have appointed this Meeting of the Parliament as ſoon as ever the Affairs abroad would "admit of my Return into England, that you "might have the more time to conſider of the Beſt "and moſt Effectual Ways and Means for the carrying on of the War againſt France this next "Year.

"I am willing to hope, That the good Succeſs "with which it hath pleaſed God to bleſs my Arms "in Ireland this Summer, will not only be a great "Encouragement to you to proceed the more "chearfully in this Work, but will be look'd upon "by you as an Earneſt of future Succeſſes, which "your timely Aſſiſtance to me, may, by God's Bleſſing, procure to us all. And as I do not doubt, "but you will take Care to pay the Arrears of that "Army, which hath been ſo deſerving and ſo proſperous in the Reducement of Ireland to a "peaceable Condition; ſo I do aſſure you, there "ſhall no Care be wanting on my part to keep that "Kingdom, as far as it is poſſible, from being burthenſome to England for the future.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I do not doubt but you are all ſenſible, that it "will be neceſſary we ſhould have a ſtrong Fleet "next Year, and as early at Sea as we had this "Summer. And I muſt tell you, that the great "Power of France will as neceſſarily require, that "we ſhould maintain a very conſiderable Army "ready upon all Occaſions, not only to defend our "ſelves from any Inſult, but alſo to annoy the Common Enemy, where it may be moſt ſenſible to "them: And I do not ſee how it is poſſible to do "this with leſs than Sixty five thouſand Men.

"I ſhall only add, that by the Vigor and "Diſpatch of your Counſels and Aſſiſtance to me "in this Seſſion of Parliament, you have now an "Opportunity in your Hands; which, if neglected, "you can never reaſonably hope to ſee again, not "only to eſtabliſh the future Quiet and Proſperity "of theſe Kingdoms, but the Peace and Security of "all Europe.

Proceedings of the two Houſes.

Both Houſes congratulated his Majeſty "upon "his ſafe and happy Return, after ſo many Hazards "to which he had expoſed his Royal Perſon; and "upon the Succeſs of his Majeſty's Arms in reducing Ireland; and did aſſure his Majeſty, that "they would aſſiſt him to the utmoſt of their "Power in carrying on a vigorous War againſt "France, in order to procure an honourable and "laſting Peace to his own Dominions, and to ſecure his Neighbours from the Injuries and Invaſions of the Common Oppreſſor; hoping with his "Majeſty, that the Victories of this laſt Summer, "were happy Preſages of the Proſperity of his future Enterprizes." Addreſſes were alſo preſented to the Queen, to acknowledge her prudent Care in the Adminiſtration of the Government during his Majeſty's Abſence. And on the ſame Day the Parliament met, a Proclamation was publiſh'd for a General and Publick Thankſgiving, to be obſerv'd on November 26. "Foraſmuch as it had pleas'd "Almighty God, of his infinite Goodneſs, to protect his Majeſty from great and manifold Dangers "in his late Expedition beyond the Seas, and bring Publick Thankſgiving.

" him

1691. 3 W. M.

" him back in Safety; and preſerve their Majeſties " and their Government againſt all the wicked Machinations and Deſigns of open and ſecret Enemies; and by a wonderful Succeſs of their Arms " to reduce the Kingdom of Ireland entirely to their " Obedience, whereby their Majeſties are now eſtabliſh'd in the full Poſſeſſion of their Three Kingdoms, and in a Condition, with the Bleſſing of " God, to ſettle the ſame in a firm and laſting " State of Safety, Honour, and Proſperity.

Bill for the Oaths in Ireland.

On Octob. 28. the Commons receiv'd and read a Bill, For abrogating the former Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance in Ireland, and inſtead thereof to eſtabliſh the Oaths of Fidelity and Allegiance taken here to their Majeſties. At the ſecond Reading of this Bill, the Statute of 2. Eliz. made in Ireland, appointing the former Oaths to be taken, was alſo read; after which the Bill was committed, and upon the Third Reading, paſſed. When it was ſent up to the Lords for their Concurrence, their Lordſhips made ſome Amendments to it, which occaſion'd two Conferences between both Houſes. But the Reſult of the laſt was, Dec. 10. That the Lords gave their Concurrence without inſiſting on their Alterations.

Votes for a Supply.

A Motion for a Supply to his Majeſty had been made on Octob. 30. but was not debated till Nov. 6. when it was unanimouſly reſolved, That a Supply be granted to their Majeſties for the carrying on a vigorous War againſt France; and at the ſame time it was ordered, That his Majeſty be deſired to cauſe the State of the War for the next Year's Service, in relation to both the Fleet and Land-Forces, to be laid before the Houſe.

For the Admiralty

On Nov. 9. An Eſtimate of the Charge of their Majeſties Navy for the Year 1692, was deliver'd in by the Commiſſioners of the Admiralty; which having been examin'd, the Commons voted the Sum of Fifteen hundred ſeventy five thouſand eight hundred and ninety eight Pounds, for thoſe Uſes, including the Ordnance, and the Charge of building One Dry Dock, and Two Wet Docks at Portſmouth. And the Lord Raneleugh, purſuant to his Majeſty's Directions, having laid before the Commons a Liſt of the Land-Forces, it was reſolved,

For an Army.

Nov. 19. That an Army of Sixty four thouſand nine hundred twenty four Men, without including Officers, was neceſſary for the Service of the Year 1692, in order to the ſecuring the Peace of the Kingdom, and the carrying on a vigorous War againſt France. Much Time was ſpent in ſtating and examining the Eſtimate of the Charge of the Army, General Officers, Hoſpitals, Train of Artillery, and their Tranſport-Ships; as alſo in conſidering how far the Kingdom of Ireland could contribute toward the Charge of the Forces there. But it was at laſt reſolved, Jan. 4. That a Sum not exceeding 1935787 Pounds, together with the Sum of 165000 Pounds, to be anſwer'd out of the Revenue of Ireland, be the Sum for the Land-Forces, for the Service of the Year 1692. So that the Money granted this Year for the Fleet and Army, amounted to Three Millions four hundred eleven thouſand ſix hundred ſeventy ſeven Pounds.

Ways and Means.

Upon Ways and Means to raiſe theſe great Supplies, it was reſolved, Firſt, " That the Duties of " Exciſe for Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, which " were payable for a Year, from the 17th of November laſt, be continued for another Year. " Secondly, That the Sum of One Million ſix hundred fifty one thouſand ſeven hundred and two " Pounds be granted upon Land. And, Thirdly, " That the Salaries, Fees, and Perquiſites of all " Offices under the Crown, ſhould be to the Uſe of " the War, except Five hundred Pounds, to be " allowed to ſuch reſpective Officers, and except " the Salaries of the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, the Lords Commiſſioners of the Great " Seal, the Judges, Foreign Miniſters, and the Pay " of Commiſſion-Officers ſerving in the Fleet and " Army." But many other incident Affairs obſtructed the Buſineſs of the Supply, eſpecially " the Caſe of the Eaſt-India Company.

Affair of the Eaſt-India Company.

For on October 28, ſeveral Merchants, their Majeſties Subjects, preſented a Petition to the Commons againſt the Eaſt-India Company; and at the ſame time the Eaſt-India Company put up another Petition in behalf of themſelves; the Conſideration of both which was referr'd to a Committee of the whole Houſe. About a Fortnight after, the Heads of the Complaints againſt the Eaſt-India Company, were deliver'd to their Governor; to which they having put in their Anſwer, the ſame was communicated to the Petitioners, and the Eaſt-India Company ordered to make their Defence on the 20th of November. Not only the appointed Day, but ſeveral others were ſpent in examining the Accompts which Sir Joſeph Herne, the Governor of the Eaſt-India Company, deliver'd in as a State of their Stock and Debts at home and abroad; and in conſidering ſeveral other Petitions relating to the Eaſt-India Trade; till at laſt the Commons agreed to the following Reſolutions. " 1. That a Sum not leſs " than 1500000 l. and not exceeding Two Millions, " was a Fund neceſſary to carry on the Eaſt-India " Trade in a Joint-Stock. 2. That no one Perſon " ſhould have any Share in a Joint-Stock for the " Eaſt-India Trade, exceeding 5000 l. either in his " own Name, or any other in Truſt for him. 3. " That no one Perſon ſhould have above one Vote " in the ſaid Company; and that each Perſon who " had 5000 l. Stock therein, ſhould have one Vote. " 4. That the Company to Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, " ſhould be obliged to export every Year in their " Trade, Goods, being the Growth and Manufacture of this Nation, to the Value of 200000 l. " at leaſt. 5. That no private Contracts ſhould be " made, but all Goods ſold at Publick Sales by " Inch of Candle, except Salt-Petre, for the Uſe of " the Crown. 6. That the Eaſt-India Company be " oblig'd to ſell to the King yearly, Salt-Petre refin'd (the Refraction not exceeding Four or Five " per Cent. out of 112.) Five hundred Tuns at the " Rate of 30 l. per Tun. 7. That no Lot ſhould " be put at any Sales in the Eaſt-India Company " at one Time, exceeding 500 l. 8. That no Perſon ſhould be Governor or Deputy Governor of " the Company to Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, who " had leſs Share in the Stock than 2000 l. or Committee-Man, that had leſs than 1000 l. 9. That " the Election of Governor, Deputy-Governor, and " Committee for the Company to Trade to the " Eaſt-Indies, be made every Year. 10. That all " Dividends be made in Money. 11. That no " Dividends be made without leaving a ſufficient " Fund to pay all Debts, and carry on the Trade. " 12. That a Valuation of the Stock be made every " Five Years by the Accomptant of the Company " upon Oath, to be ſeen by all ſuch as are concern'd " therein. 13. That no Ships, either with Permiſſion or without, for the future, be allowed to " go to the Eaſt-Indies, except only ſuch as ſhould " be of a Company, or be eſtabliſh'd by Act of " Parliament. 14. That no By-Laws ſhould be " binding to the Company, but ſuch as were approved by a General Court of Adventurers, and " were not repugnant to the Laws of the Land. " 15. And Laſtly, That the Joint-Stock of a Company to Trade to the Eaſt-Indies be for Twenty " one Years, and no longer." The next Day the Three following Reſolutions were added to the reſt, viz. " That all Perſons now having above the " Sum of 5000 l. in the Stock of the preſent Eaſt-India Company, in their own or other Perſons " Names, be obliged to ſell ſo much thereof, as " ſhould exceed the ſaid Sum of 5000 l. at the " Rate of 100 l. for every Hundred. That the " Members of the Committee of the Eaſt-India

" Company

1691.
3*W. M.*

" Company be obliged to give Security, to be ap- " prov'd of by the Houſe; that the Stock and Eſtate " they now had ſhould be made good 749000 l. all " Debts paid. And Laſtly, That (Security being " firſt given) an humble Addreſs be preſented to " his Majeſty, to incorporate the preſent Eaſt India " Company by Charter, according to the Regula- " tions agreed upon by the Houſe, that the ſame " might paſs into an Act." On the 23d of Dec. Sir Thomas Cook, Sir William Langborne, Sir Thomas Rawlinſon, and others, the Committee of the Eaſt-India Company, deliver'd in Propoſals concerning Security to be given; which being diſapproved, the ſaid Committee was order'd to produce the Perſons they propoſed to be Security; and an Account of the Sums for which each Perſon would be Security. Which being done accordingly, the Commons, after a long Examination of the whole Matter, approv'd of the Security propos'd; and appointed a Committee to prepare and bring in a Bill to eſtabliſh the Eaſt-India Company, according to the Regulations and Reſolutions agreed upon by the Houſe.

Regulations in payment of the Army.

On the 3d of November, the Commons having conſider'd the State of the Nation, reſolv'd, That the paying the Army any other ways, than by Muſters of effective Men, was a great waſting of their Majeſties Treaſure. And a Bill was order'd to be brought in for paying of the Army accordingly; and for better paying of Quarters: And likewiſe for preventing of falſe Muſters, and puniſhing Mutineers and Deſerters. At the ſame time the Commons reſolv'd, That the Miſcarriages of the Fleet ſhould be enquir'd into by a Committee of the whole Houſe. A Week after, Admiral Ruſſel preſented to the Houſe the Inſtructions given by the Commiſſioners for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of England; a Liſt of the Ships; and an Extract of ſeveral Letters and Orders, touching the Proceedings of the ſaid Fleet, during the laſt Summer's Expedition: All which were compar'd and examined with the Copies of the ſeveral Orders that had been iſſued by the Commiſſioners of the Admiralty to the ſaid Admiral; and a Liſt of the Ships that had been Loſt or Damag'd ſince the Year 1688, deliver'd to the Houſe of Commons by the Lord Falkland, from the Commiſſioners of the Admiralty.

And of Miſcarriages in the Fleet.

On the 12th of Nov. the Commons were acquainted, That Mr. Bridges, a Member of their Houſe, could give an Account of an Information given him by a Captain in their Majeſty's Fleet, that Sir Ralph Delaval had lately taken a French Boat going for Ireland, with Papers of dangerous Conſequence to the Government. Whereupon Mr. Bridges was Ordered to name the Perſon; and he having named the Lady Danby, a Conference was deſired with the Lords upon Matters relating to the Safety of the Kingdom; but upon a full and tedious Examination of the whole Affair, it was found that there was not a Copy of any Letter from the Earl of Nottingham to Sir Ralph Delaval, in the Packet taken on Board the ſaid French Veſſel, but only a Letter written by his Lordſhip to Sir Ralph, for ſending up the Papers by him Intercepted. Upon this Occaſion the Commons took into their Conſideration the Confeſſions and Examinations of the Lord Preſton, and Mr. Crone, which according to their Deſire the King had order'd to be laid before the Houſe.

Suſpicion of intercepted Papers.

1691.
3 W. M.

About this time, (a) Dr. Wellwood, a Doctor of Phyſick, to ſignalize his Affection to the Government, employ'd his Eloquent Pen in detecting and expoſing the ſiniſter Deſigns of their Majeſties Enemies, in a Weekly Paper, Entituled, Mercurius Reformatus, or the New Obſervator; but his Zeal having carried him ſo far as to reflect on the Proceedings of the Commons, that Houſe, ever jealous of their Privileges, order'd both the Author and Printer of the ſaid Paper to be ſent for in Cuſtody of their Serjeant at Arms, from whence they were at laſt diſcharg'd, after having been reprimanded for their Offence. However, Dr. Wellwood was fully recompenced for the Trouble and Charge of his Confinement, being ſoon after made one of the Phyſicians in Ordinary to his Majeſty.

Dr. Wellwood queſtion'd by the Commons.

Several other Affairs amuſed the Houſe of Commons to little Purpoſe; as a Bill for Regulating Abuſes in Elections and Returns to Parliament, which was rejected after a third Reading; A Bill for the (b) better Improvement of the Woollen Manufacture of this Kingdom; which was alſo thrown out before a Second Reading; A Bill for the better Repair of the Harbour of Dover; which was likewiſe rejected; A Bill to Regulate the Hackney Coaches; another to Diſcourage the Exportation of Bullion, and Encourage the Importation of it, and converting the ſame into the Coin of this Realm; And a Third, to encourage Privateers, wherein no Progreſs was made.

Several Bills rejected.

On Thurſday Dec. 24. his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave his Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for granting to their Majeſties certain Impoſitions upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors for One Year. 2. An Act for Abrogating the Oath of Supremacy in Ireland, and appointing other Oaths. 3. An Act for Preſerving Two Ships Lading of Bay-Salt taken as Prize, for the Benefit of their Majeſties Navy. 4. An Act for the better aſcertaining the Tythes of Hemp and Flax; and to ſeveral Private Acts. On the Thurſday following, being the laſt Day of the Year, his Majeſty came again to the

Acts paſſed.

(a) There was a Printed Dialogue addreſſed to King William in the next Year, 1692, ſpeaking thus boldly. " We will " paſs by thoſe who refuſe to ſwear Allegiance, and only treat " of thoſe who have accepted of Places of Profit and Truſt. " Have not even thoſe in the Government, both in England " and Scotland, been plotting the dethroning this King, who " has ſo generouſly truſted them, and courted them ſo kindly. " Particularly, did not one of your Party [ſpeaking to the " Tories] at the beginning of this Reign, give notice to the " King's Enemies of Warrants againſt them, in order to their " making their Eſcape, and was diſcharged his Employment " upon it. Did not a Brother of a certain Secretary give out " blank Paſſes under the Hand and Seal of that Secretary, by " which a Correſpondence was carried on between this Place " and France ſecurely? And was not this Gentleman on this " Account laid aſide gently and privately, and the Buſineſs " huſht up. Have not ſome Women lately been taken going " with Letters to King James, having a Scotch Secretary's Paſs " under his Hand and Seal? Was not an Officer of the Poſt-houſe found correſponding with France, and without any " other Puniſhment for his Capital Crime than loſing his Office? " The Story of Capt. John Layton, late Commander of the " Saint Albans, which has been told in the Houſe of Commons, " will ſhew you how faithfully you Tories ſerve the Govern- " ment, and how fit you are to be truſted. Captain Layton " being ordered to cruiſe Twenty Leagues off Uſhant, was dri- " ven by a Storm of Wind to Cape Clear, where he met a " French Privateer and took her. The Captain of the Priva- " teer ask'd Layton the Name of his Ship, which he told " him; upon this looking into his Pocket-Book, he demanded " of Layten how he came there, for by his Intelligence, the " Station of the St. Albans was to be Twenty Leagues from " Uſhant, and no further.

" A like Story is told of a Tranſport Ship going to France " with his Priſoners ſome few Months ſince, who meeting with " ſeveral Privateers, ask'd them how they durſt be ſo bold as " to cruiſe there, when Four Engliſh Men of War were within " Six Leagues of them: They reply'd, they knew the Station of " thoſe Engliſh, and that they could not come where they were " cruiſing without breaking ther Orders. But the Relation of the " Sailor who was taken, and for ſome time ſerv'd aboard an " Iriſh Privateer is yet more remarkable; for he depoſes, that " they told him three Months before the Streights Fleet Sail'd " from Spithead, both the time when they were to Sail, and the " Number of their Convoy, and that the main Fleet was to " go no further than beyond Uſhant.

(b) See the Draught of a Bill prepared to have been offered to the Parliament for the reſtraining of Plurality of Benefices with Cure of Souls. With Reaſons for the ſaid Bill, Drawn up at the Motion of the Biſhop of Saliſbury, by Dr. Humphry Prideaux, and by his Lordſhip offered to the Archbiſhop, and approved at a Meeting of the Biſhops at Lambeth. Annnexed by Dr. Prideaux to his Original and Right of Tithes, 1709, 8vo.

1691. 3 W. M.

Houſe of Peers, and gave his Royal Aſſent to the Act for granting an Aid to their Majeſties, of the Sum of Sixteen Hundred Fifty One Thouſand Seven Hundred Fifty Two Pounds Eighteen Shillings, towards the carrying on a Vigorous War againſt France: As alſo to one private Act. After which his Majeſty concluded with this Gracious Speech.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Muſt not loſe this Occaſion of returning you my hearty Thanks, for the great Proofs you continue to give me of your Zeal and Reſolution, to Support and Aſſiſt me in the vigorous Proſecution of the War againſt France next Year; and I do aſſure you it ſhall be my greateſt Care, that the Aſſiſtances you give Me may be ſo applied, as to render them moſt effectual for the Aids you deſign them. But I muſt take notice to you at the ſame time, with ſome Trouble, that the New Year is already come, while our Preparations for it are not only more backward, but thoſe of our Enemies, as we have reaſon to think, in greater forwardneſs than they were the laſt Year: I find my ſelf therefore neceſſitated from this Conſideration, moſt earneſtly to recommend to you Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons, the haſtning ſuch further Supplies as you deſign to enable me with, for the Proſecution of the War.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"The Seaſon being ſo far advanced, this preſent Seſſions cannot admit of a much longer Continuance, and therefore I muſt recommend to you the Diſpatch of all ſuch other Bills alſo, as you ſhall judge neceſſary for the Publick Good.

Bill for regulating Tryals in Caſes of High Treaſon.

Both Houſes were now engag'd in a warm Diſpute, rais'd by the Bill for Regulating Tryals in Caſes of High Treaſon. This Bill having been laid aſide by the Lords in the preceding Seſſion, was now again brought in and paſſed by the Commons; and on Nov. 18. ſent up to the Lords for their Concurrence. The Lords, beſides other Amendments, added this Clauſe to it: That upon the Tryal of any Peer or Peereſs, for any Treaſon or Miſpriſion of Treaſon, all the Peers who have a Right to Sit and Vote in Parliament, ſhould be duly Summoned Twenty Days at leaſt before every ſuch Tryal, to appear at every ſuch Tryal; and that every Peer ſo ſummoned, and appearing on ſuch Tryals, ſhould Vote in the Tryal of ſuch Peer or Peereſs ſo to be tryed; he and they firſt taking the Oaths mentioned in an Act of Parliament made in the Firſt Year of King William and Queen Mary; Entitled, An Act for Abrogating the Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance, and appointing other Oaths; and Subſcribing and audibly Repeating the Declaration mentioned in an Act of Parliament made in the Thirtieth Year of King Charles the Second, Entituled, An Act for the more effectual preſerving the King's Perſon and Government, by diſabling Papiſts from Sitting in either Houſe of Parliament.

Conference and Debates on this Matter.

This Clauſe being diſagreed to by the Commons, and at two ſeveral Conferences inſiſted on by the Lords; a free Conference was manag'd between both Houſes on Jan. 5. wherein Mr. Charles Mountague, the Chief of thoſe who ſpoke for the Commons, argued, "That this Bill was begun by the Commons, for the equal Advantage of ſuch Lords and Commons who had the Misfortune to be accus'd of Treaſon, or Miſpriſion of Treaſon. That when it was firſt returned from their Lordſhips with very many Amendments, the Commons were ſo willing to comply with the deſire of their Lordſhips, and to give the Bill a ſpeedy Paſſage, that they Agreed to all thoſe Amendments, except two; that ſome of them were of a very nice Nature, and related to Things of which the Commons have ever been moſt tender. That at the firſt Conference, the Commons gave their Lordſhips the Reaſons that induced them to make ſuch Amendments, which did ſo far ſatisfy their Lordſhips, that they did agree to the firſt Amendment propoſed by the Lower-Houſe, though they did inſiſt upon this other, for which they delivered their Reaſons at the ſecond Conference. That thoſe Reaſons had been ſolemnly and deliberately conſidered by the Commons, and that they had not found them ſufficient to convince them; ſo that they did ſtill diſagree with the Lords in the forementioned Clauſe. That it was very unfortunate, that no Bill for the Relief of the Subject in theſe Caſes had been tendred for many Years laſt paſt, but either this Clauſe, or ſomething of the like Nature had unhappily clogged it, and been the occaſion of loſing it; and as this was never thought reaſonable to be admitted formerly, ſo neither could the Commons conſent to ſo great an Alteration of our Conſtitution as this would introduce; That ſuch an Alteration was far beyond the Intent and Deſign which the Commons had in preparing this Bill; That they were deſirous that all Men ſhould have a fair and equal way of making their Defence; They wiſhed, that the Guiltleſs ſhould by all neceſſary Proviſions be protected, allowed all juſt Means of making their Innocence manifeſt; but they did not deſign to ſubvert the Eſſence and Conſtitutions of the Courts, nor intend to diſable the Crown in one of its moſt neceſſary Prerogatives, or to place a Judicature in other Hands, than thoſe to whom the Laws of England, and the Cuſtom of the Realm had committed it. That the Clauſe now in Diſpute ſtruck at no leſs than this, and in Conſequence at the Alteration of the Government of England. That the Government of England is Monarchical, and the Monarch has the Power of Conſtituting Courts and Offices for Adminiſtration of Juſtice, tho' they are to proceed according to the known Rules and Limitations of Law. That the Judges are conſtituted by his Commiſſion, the Sheriffs are of his Nomination and Appointment, and theſe are to return the Pannel of Jurors, who are to paſs on the Lives of the Commoners; and that in like manner 'tis the Prerogative of the Crown to conſtitute a Lord High Steward, who by his Serjeant at Arms does ſummon a competent Number of Peers to be Tryers of their Lordſhips. But that this Clauſe took away theſe Powers from the High Steward, and therefore it took away ſo much from the Regal Authority; and it would amount to no leſs, than to render the Subjects independent on the Crown, in the Pleas of the Crown, wherein above all other Things, the Life, Peace, and Safety of the Government is concern'd. That the Commons had ſtill the ſame Opinion of the Honour and Integrity of the Lords, which they had received from the Experience of paſt Times; but that their Deſign in paſſing that Bill, was to prevent thoſe Abuſes in Tryals for Treaſon in inferior Courts for the future; by means of which, during the Violence of the late Reign, they had obſerved many had loſt their Lives. That the Things to which the Bill extended, were of ſuch a Nature, that except only in one Inſtance, (that is, the time of the delivery of the Copy of the Pannel; for it was agreed even in my Lord Ruſſel's Caſe That the Subject hath a Right to have a Copy of the Pannel) the Lords had an equal Benefit with the Commons. That the Commons did not obſerve, that the Clauſe ſent down by the Lords does relate to the like Grounds of Complaint; for no Inſtance could be given of any Peer who ſuffered during the late Reign, from whence a juſt Cauſe of Objection might ariſe to the preſent Method of Trying Peers; That the only Two Perſons

1691. 3 W. M.

" proſecuted, came off, tho' purſued with great " Violence; the one, becauſe the Grand Jury could " not be prevail'd upon to find the Bill; the other
" was acquitted upon his Tryal, by the Juſtice of " his Peers. That by all the Circumſtances of the " Tryal of the Lord Delamere, it is manifeſt, that " if there was any Unfairneſs in the Method of " Tryal, it then would have appear'd: That the " Violence of thoſe Times was ſuch, that the Com" mons were not protected by that Innocency which " has ſince been declared in Parliament; yet then
" the Lord Delamere was acquitted by the Juſtice
" and Honour of his Peers. And it might ſeem
" ſtrange to future Ages, that the Commons ſhould
" be contented, that the Method of Tryals ſhould
" be continued, which was not ſufficient to protect " their Innocency; and their Lordſhips alter that " which had proved a Bulwark to their Lives.
" That the Commons alſo thought the Clauſe to be " of a different Nature from the Bill, becauſe the " Bill did not make any Alteration in the Court,
" or in the Nature of the Tryal, which the Com" mons apprehended was done by the Clauſe; for " thereby the Court is no longer conſtituted by the " Precept of the Lord High Steward, who receives
" his Commiſſion from the Crown; but the whole
" Order of Peers have a Right to make up the " Court; and all the Friends, Relations, and Ac-
" complices of the Perſon, are to be his Triers.
" That there was another great Alteration in the " Conſtitution of the Court, as the Clauſe was " penn'd; for this Method (preſcrib'd by the " Clauſe) was for the Tryal of every Peer; and
" according to that Method, every Peer who had a " Right to Sit and Vote in Parliament, was to " be ſummon'd, and might Appear and Vote.
" Now it was agreed by the moſt Learned Authors,
" that the Lords Spiritual are Peers; and whoſo-
" ever would go about to defend the contrary Opi" nion, would find it very difficult to anſwer the " ſeveral Records of Parliaments, and other Autho" rities, where this Point is aſſerted; particularly
" the well known Claim in Parliament of Arch-
" biſhop Stafford, in the Reign of Edward III. and
" the famous Proteſtation in the Second of Ri" chard II. (when the Biſhops thought fit to abſent
" themſelves from Parliament, becauſe Matters of " Blood were to be agitated there) wherein their " Right of Peerage is directly aſſerted; and this " Proteſtation being enrolled at the Deſire of the " King, and with the Conſent of the Lords and " Commons, ſeemed to be of the Nature of an Act
" of Parliament. That if the Law-Books might " come in for Authorities in ſuch a Point, there
" are Caſes where the Pleas of the Biſhops, as " Peers, have been judicially allow'd; ſo that this
" Clauſe did directly let in the Lords Spiritual to " Try and be Tried, as other Peers who are No" ble by Deſcent: Not that the Commons were
" diſſatisfied with this, if this were the only Mat" ter; for the Lords Spiritual (in all Probability)
" by their Learning and Integrity would greatly aſ-
" ſiſt at the Tryal of Peers; and the Commons
" were well enough diſpoſed to let in theſe Noble
" Prelates to any Privileges in Point of Tryal,
" which ſhould be propoſed by the Houſe of Peers.
" But this was urged to make good the Poſition " laid down before, that by this Clauſe the Conſti-
" tution of the Court was quite alter'd; it having " been taken for Law, That the Lords Spiritual are " to be tried as other Peers, or to be preſent and
" Vote at the Tryal of any other Peer, at leaſt out
" of Parliament: For as to their Right in Parlia" ment, how far they are reſtrained by the Canons
" agitare Judicium; how far theſe Canons have " been receiv'd in England; and what the Uſage of " Parliament hath been, was not the preſent Buſi-
" neſs. That had this Bill come down from the " Lords firſt, and the Commons had added a
" Clauſe, That no Commoner ſhould be tried for " Treaſon, but before all the Twelve Judges, and a " Jury of Twenty four Perſons, and to have taken " away all Challenges for Conſanguinity; which if " it was conſider'd, was ſomewhat of the Nature of " the Lords Clauſe, tho' it did not go ſo far; if
" the Lords had thought fit to have uſed the ſame
" Reaſon for diſagreeing to ſuch a Clauſe, as the " Commons had done in the preſent Caſe, *That it
" was different from the Deſign of the Bill*, it would " have ſatisfied the Commons. And that the ſame
" Reaſons which the Commons received from the " Lords at the laſt Conference, if they had been de-
" liver'd by the Commons, would not have been " convincing to their Lordſhips. (a)

" The Commons likewiſe obſerved, That the " Lords in the Clauſe, or in their Reaſons, had " not ſtated any Cauſe of Objection to the pre-
" ſent Method of their Tryals; and therefore the " Commons wonder'd, That the Lords (as they ex-
" preſs'd themſelves in their Reaſons) *ſhould con-
" ceive that they were diſtinguiſhed, ſo as to be more
" expoſed in their Trials than the meaneſt Subject*;
" ſince the Commons did not find, but that they " enjoy'd this great and high Privilege (upon " which ſo great a Value has been juſtly put) as " fully as ever any of their Noble Anceſtors did.
" That 'tis by this Privilege the Body of the " Peers has been preſerved ſo long; That if " any Lord, at any Time, ſhould be diſpoſed to
" expoſe himſelf in Defence of the common Li" berties of the People, the Commons are Secu" rity to him from being oppreſs'd by falſe Accu-
" ſations; Twelve of them muſt agree to find a
" Bill, before he can be indicted; and that Bill
" cannot be found, but upon the Oaths of Two " credible Witneſſes. That the Commons look'd
" upon the Method of Tryals, which the Lords
" would alter, to have been as ancient as the Con-
" ſtitution of the Government. That it appears " in the Year-Books to have been practiſed in the " Firſt Year of Henry the IVth, and to have been " well known at that Time. That indeed it could " not be ſuppoſed to have been an Innovation then;
" the Lords (who had juſt before depoſed King
" Richard the IId) being too great to ſuffer ſuch an " Innovation, and Henry the IVth's Title not ſuffi-
" ciently eſtabliſhed to attempt it. That the Rea-
" ſon, why no older Inſtances of Proceedings before
" the Lord High Steward are to be found, is this;
" that this very Henry IV. when Duke of Lancaſter,
" was the laſt High Steward who ever had any fix'd
" Intereſt in the Office; ſo that the Office being
" ſo long ſince ceaſed, all the Records are loſt; and
" the very Nature and Power of the Office, except

(a) In this Seſſion, the Jacobites began to load the Government with their not bringing a Diſproof of the Birth of the Prince of Wales before the Parliament. " Some lay (ſays " Biſhop Burnet) the main Streſs of their Cenſure upon a " great Failure in the Proceedings at that Time, ſince no En- " quiry was made into the Birth of the Pretender: But the " whole Nation, as well as the next Heirs of the Crown, ha- " ving (by the ſtrange Management of that Affair) con- " ceived great and reaſonable Jealouſies of an Impoſture in it, " the Prince of Orange did (by his Declaration) refer the En- " quiry into it to a Parliament. The King upon that did, by " his ſending the Pretender with the Queen out of the King- " dom, (together with all thoſe who were more immediately " concern'd in that ſuppoſed Birth,) make it impoſſible to " examine into it. Beſides, if a Subverſion of the Conſtituti- " on, and a Deſertion, rather than that the King would come " to juſt and legal Remedies, gave the Nation a Right to pre- " ſerve it ſelf; that muſt give likewiſe a Power to ſecure it " from the deſperate After-Game of Relapſing into the like " State, and of falling under ſevere Revenges for their aſſert- " ing their Laws and Liberties; which might juſtly be appre- " hended in that Caſe, even if there had been the greateſt E- " vidence poſſible of an unconteſted Birth." Biſhop of Sarum's Preface to his Sermons, 1713. 8vo.

2 " in

1691. 3 W. M.

"in this Inſtance of Trying Peers, and determining "Claims at Coronations, is likewiſe loſt: But "ſince that Time the High Steward being only "Pro hac vice, the Proceedings are commonly tranſ-"mitted into other Courts, and ſo come to be "found.

"The Commons urg'd, that if there be any Ob-"jectiou to that Method of Trying Peers, it muſt "be founded on a Suppoſition of Partiality and "Unfairneſs of conſtituting a High Steward, or in "the High Steward himſelf, and the Peers ſum-"moned by him, and that the Commons were un-"willing to enter into ſuch kind of Suppoſals. As "to the partial conſtituting of the High Steward, "if that might be ſuppoſed, it was an Objecti-"on to the Conſtitution, which entruſts the Crown "with the Adminiſtration of Juſtice. That that "Suppoſal might as well extend to the Conſtitution "of the Judges and Sheriffs, and every other Part "of the Adminiſtration. And if upon ſuch a Sup-"poſal or Diſtruſt, the Remedy muſt be to take "away that Part of the Adminiſtration out of the "Crown, (as was done in this Clauſe) the Rea-"ſon muſt carry the Thing ſo far, that the Nature "of the Government would be alter'd. As to the "Partiality of the Lord High Steward and the "Peers; the Commons were unwilling to ſuppoſe "that it is poſſible, That Twelve Peers ſhould be "ever found, (for that Number muſt agree, or the "Perſon accuſed is ſafe) who can ſo far forget their "Honour, and the Noble Order they are of, as for "Revenge or Intereſt to ſacrifice an innocent Per-"ſon. But if the Lords would ſuppoſe that ſuch "a Number of Peers might be capable of being "engaged in ſo ill and ſo diſhonourable Things, "then the Commons thought themſelves excus'd, if "they ſuppos'd, that other Paſſions and Motives "might alſo prevail on the Peers; ſuch as Pity in "Friends, Partiality in Relations, and the Conſi-"deration of their Safety in Caſe of Accomplices. "The Commons further alledg'd, That moſt Men, "and eſpecially Engliſhmen, enter unwillingly into "Matters of Blood: That the moſt indifferent "Peers would be moſt likely to abſent them-"ſelves, either from a Conſideration of diſſatisfy-"ing the Crown on the one hand, or drawing on "themſelves the Miſchiefs of a Breach with the "Family of the Perſon accuſed on the other; (for "it is to be obſerved, that a Reſtitution of the Fa-"mily follows generally in a ſhort Time;) or at "leaſt the Love of Security, and Care of not en-"gaging too far, (for thoſe Tryals for the moſt part "happen in unquiet and troubleſome Times;) would "keep indifferent Men away. But the Care for a "Friend muſt not fail to bring Friends to the Try-"als: The Concern to preſerve the Family from "that Stain, would bring Relations; and if there "be any Accomplices, they muſt be ready for their "own Sakes to acquit the Accuſed: And proba-"bly their Number muſt be conſiderable in theſe "Caſes; for it is not to be imagin'd, that a Lord "can enter into thoſe baſe and deteſtable Actions "which may be performed by ſingle Perſons; ſuch "as Poiſoning or Aſſaſſinating the Prince. That "the Treaſons which it can be imagin'd that Lords "might be engag'd in, muſt be ſuch as ariſe from "Faction in the State, which many muſt be en-"gag'd in; and if ſome Accident diſcovers ſuffici-"ent Matter for a Charge againſt one of the Par-"ties, the reſt (who are conceal'd ſtill) would "have as good Right to try their Confederate, as "any indifferent Lord: And no doubt but it is their "Intereſt to acquit him; and how far at ſome "Times this alone might go towards turning the "Scale of Juſtice, might deſerve to be conſi-"der'd; eſpecially in Times which might happen "hereafter, becauſe they happen'd heretofore, when "there might be ſeveral Titles ſet up to the Crown, "and great Parties form'd. That this was a Law "that was to have a perpetual Continuance: And "that the ſame Loyalty, Wiſdom and Zeal, which "appear'd now in their Lordſhips, ſhould be de-"riv'd down to all their Poſterity, was a Thing ra-"ther to be wiſh'd than depended upon: If therefore "the Clauſe had a Tendency towards letting in an "Impunity for Treaſon, the Commons look'd up-"on themſelves as juſtified in diſagreeing to it: For "they thought it obvious to every one, of what "Conſequence it would be to the Conſtitution, if "ſuch a Body as the Peers, who have already ſuch "Privileges of all ſorts, ſhould have Impunity of "Treaſon added, and what that muſt naturally "end in.

"The Commons agreed with the Lords, That "a good Correſpondence between the Two Houſes "was neceſſary for the Safety, Honour, and Great-"neſs of the Nation; and could never think, that "it was to be interrupted by their refuſing any "Thing which might endanger the Conſtitution: "Aſſuring them, The Commons would never fail "in improving all true Intereſts of the Lords; but "they perſwaded themſelves, that the Lords would "be of Opinion, That to introduce any Thing "which tended to an Impunity for Treaſon, was "neither the true Intereſt of the Crown, the Lords, "nor the Commons.

Arguments of the Lords.

"The Managers for the Lords who ſpake at the "Conference, were, the Duke of Bolton, the Mar-"quis of Halifax, the Earls of Pembroke, Roche-ſter, Mulgrave, Nottingham, Monmouth, and "Stamford: And the Subſtance of what they al-"ledg'd, was, That the Lords were ſorry to be "of any Opinion different from the Commons, "eſpecially in a Clauſe of ſo great Importance, "which did concern not only their Well-being, but "their Being. That they had not differ'd from "the Commons in any Thing propounded for their "Security; and hop'd the Commons would have "the ſame Conſideration for theirs. That nothing "was ſo proper for a Parliament, as to provide "Defences for Innocency; that in ill Times, Ne-"ceſſity; in good, Prudence puts them upon it: "And tho' theſe were good Times in reſpect of "the preſent Government, yet they might ſay, "they were unquiet and unſafe: And ſince none "but a good Prince would ever paſs ſuch Laws as "theſe are, this was the moſt proper Time to pro-"vide for the Subjects; for a good King would "not only be willing to protect them while he "lives, but to provide for their Security after "his Death. That this concerned not only them-"ſelves, and therefore they would ſpeak the more "freely. That 'tis too narrow a Conſideration, for "a Parliament to ſeek only their preſent Ends: "That their Anceſtors had further Thoughts; and "the Lords did not doubt but the Commons would "have ſo too. That there can be no good done in "Times of Trouble and Invaſion of Right, but by "Agreement of both Houſes. That there might "come a Prince that might endeavour to invade "the Liberties of the People, and then the Com-"mons would be glad to have the Concurrence of "the Lords: And they deſir'd the Commons would "conſider in ſuch a Caſe, whether it would not be "a great Diſcouragement for the Lords to act, un-"leſs they might be as ſecure (at leaſt) as the "Commons? That if there might be ſuch Princes, "was it fitting, that Part of the Government, "which is ſo neceſſary to their Concurrence, ſhould "be under ſuch Terms for their Lives, that they "dare not oppoſe them with Vigor, nor act, be-"cauſe they lie under Shackles? That the Lords "would do what is juſt, tho' this Clauſe ſhould "not paſs; but they would be loth that theſe Lords "that are eminent for their Publick Service, ſhould "be eminent for their ſuffering for it.

1691. 3 W. M.

"That in the Caſe of Impeachments, which are the Groans of the People, and for the higheſt Crimes, which carry with them a greater Suppoſition of Guilt than any other Accuſation; there all Lords muſt judge: But when there comes a private Proſecution, which may proceed from the Influence of particular Men, then the Lord lies under the Hardſhip of being try'd by a few Peers choſen to try him; when all the People may ſigh and wiſh for him, but ſuch a Clauſe would do him more good. That ſuppoſe an ill Miniſter ſhould apprehend an Impeachment in Parliament; what manner of way could that Man hope better to come off by, than by being try'd before a Parliament ſits; where his Judges may be choſen ſo partially, as he ſhall come off; and it ſhall be ſaid, no Man can legally undergo Two Trials for the ſame Offence?

"That this way of Trial was not ancienter than Henry the VIIIth; and that it was introduc'd then to take off thoſe that he did not like. That in his Time the Duke of Bucks was taken off in this manner by Cardinal Woolſey; and Anne of Bullen was condemn'd by her own Father. And afterwards, a Party was choſen to condemn the Duke of Somerſet, and the Duke of Northumberland. That the Caſe of the Earl of H---- is no good Caſe, nor truly reported; for the Parliament-Rolls, 2 Richard IV. mention his being beheaded by the Rabble in Eſſex.

"That this Clauſe did not alter the Conſtitution any more, than as in ſome Senſe every new Law may be ſaid to alter the Conſtitution: And if the Commons ſay it is alter'd, becauſe formerly it was by a ſelect Number, and now all muſt appear; that did not ſeem to alter the Conſtitution, for the High Steward might ſummon them all. That the Lord High Steward formerly ſummon'd the Court, and he ſummons it ſtill. That the Nature of the Court was not alter'd by the Magis or Minus, any more than the King's-Bench ceaſes to be the ſame Court, when there are Three or Four Judges in it.

"That tho' this Clauſe did not (as was ſaid) purſue the Ends of the Bill, yet either Houſe has a Power of adding what they think may make it better. And tho' this was of a different Nature, there had been Inſtances of Additions of different Natures; but this was ſo far from it, that it agreed entirely with it, and was as ſuitable and neceſſary as any Part of it. That the Commons were not well ſatisfied, when the Commiſſions of the Judges ran durante bene placito: And could it be thought reaſonable, that the Lords, who are the Supreme Judicature, ſhould not ſtay in their Lives, quam diu ſe bene geſſerint? That tho' the King did now appoint the Sheriffs, it was not always ſo: And ſince the Crown has made them, the Commons have this Security, That they may challenge Thirty five of the Pannel peremptorily, and all the reſt for Cauſe. But that the Judges and Sheriffs are made before the Crime committed; ſo that it is impoſſible for the Judges or Sheriffs to have Prejudice againſt any Man; but the Lord High Steward is appointed after they know the Priſoner, and he ſhall be try'd according to the Humour of the Times they are in. There may be Lords inclin'd one way or other: But in this Place there is a ſtrong Thing join'd with this Paſſion; which is, Making their own Fortunes, by ſerving the preſent Times. That ſince the Tryal of the Peers (in Time of Parliament) muſt be by the whole Houſe; where was the Inconveniency, that at all Times they ſhould be try'd as in Parliament? That 'twas a little Favour the Lords asked in this Clauſe, conſidering the Privilege of Parliament for Three Years laſt paſt had always been ſubſiſting, and was likely to continue ſo during this War; ſo that the Objection was taken away as to the preſent Government: For they would have the Advantage of a Parliamentary Tryal; and poſſibly in Time to come, there might be an Inquiſition for what was done now; and it would be well to have the faireſt way of proceeding in that Matter. That in the Caſe of the Lord Delamere, there were ſeveral Lords then in Town, and there were a great many of theſe Lords not choſen: And 'tis a greater Queſtion, whether that Noble Lord had come off as he did, if he had not receiv'd ſuch Notice from the Grand Jury, and every Thing had been made out ſo plain. That the Argument uſed by the Managers, that they would not allow any Thing that tends to an Impunity, was a large Aſſertion, and ought to be an Argument againſt the Bill: Becauſe it might happen, that by giving a Copy of the Indictment, and Witneſſes being upon their Oaths, a guilty Man might eſcape; and then he had an Impunity, tho' this was not intended. That all that could be done in theſe Caſes, was to put in ſuch reaſonable Caution, and as far as the Bill could provide for. That this Clauſe could not extend to the Biſhops, for it related only to Tryals out of Parliament; and they are only Peers in Parliament, where they may take their Privilege to hear, and then go out again, and do not Vote in Blood. And by the word Peers, it muſt be underſtood of ſuch Peers only, as are Peers in reſpect of their Blood. That the Lords were of Opinion, Seven Peers were ſufficient to condemn a Peer; but this made no Alteration in the Argument, for there is not much more Difficulty in getting Twelve than Seven. Indeed, there might be a greater Difference, where a Crown or Government was not concern'd. That the Excellency of a Jury is, that they are taken ex Vicinitate. What is the Reaſon of this? Why, in Caſe of falſe Witneſſes, it is his Neighbour that is to ſave the Man. But what Security have the Lords, when the Lords are pick'd out to try them who are not of their Acquaintance; and the Lords, that know the whole Courſe of their Lives to be contrary to what is ſworn againſt them, ſhall not be choſen? That it is implied in the Commiſſion of the Lord High Steward, that all the Peers ſhould be ſummon'd; for by the Commiſſion, all the Peers of the Realm are commanded to attend him, and be obedient to him: So that the King does not only give Liberty, but ſeems to command it.

The Commons Reply.

"The Managers of the Commons, by way of Reply, ſaid, That this Clauſe would alter the Conſtitution of this Court; and thereby a very conſiderable Part of the Conſtitution of the Government, and that for the worſe. That 'tis not to be granted, That any new Law does alter the Conſtitution. That a new Law may be made to ſtrengthen or reſtore the Conſtitution againſt Abuſes: It may be declaratory; it may aſcertain Things that were left to reaſonable Diſcretion, which are the Circumſtances and Accidents; and notwithſtanding ſuch new Laws, the Subſtance of the Conſtitution remains the ſame. That ſo by this Bill the Perſon indicted was to have a Copy of his Indictment Ten Days before he ſhould plead; whereas now by the Common Law, he was to have the Indictment read to him as often as he needs, and to have Copies of ſo much of it as he hath Occaſion to uſe, and reaſonable Time to plead. That by this Bill, he was to have his Witneſſes ſworn; which, in ſome Learned Men's Opinion, was the Law before: However, it was but a Circumſtance added to the Teſtimony. That likewiſe by this Bill he was to have a Copy of the Pannel before the Tryal; whereas by the Courſe uſed now, he hath a Co“ py a reaſonable Time before. And that by the Law now, he is to have a reaſonable Time to prepare for his Trial; which Time this Bill aſcertain'd to a Number of Days. But the Commons urg'd, that the Alteration by the Clauſe in Queſtion, was in a moſt ſubſtantial Part, and which highly affected the Conſtitution of the Government.

"py

1691. 3 W. M.

“ That if a like Clauſe were brought in, that every Commoner ſhould be try'd by all the Freeholders of the County that would appear, (or ſuch of them as they ſhould depute) it could not be well denied, that this were a Change to the Conſtitution of the Government. That it might as well be ſaid, that it is not any altering of the Conſtitution, to diveſt the Crown of the Power of making Judges in Courts of Law and Equity, and other Courts; or making Juſtices of the Peace, or other Officers. That it was granted in Parliament 28 Edw. I. that the People of any County ſhould chuſe the Sheriffs; but thereupon enſued ſuch Factions, Confuſions and Miſchiefs in the County, that by the Deſire of the People in Parliament 1 Edw. II. the Power of making Sheriffs was ſettled in the Crown. That tho' the High Steward be ſaid to be the Court, yet the Peers Triers are ſo neceſſary a Part of the Court, that the Conviction or Acquittal depends entirely on them; and therefore not only the Number of Triers, but the Nature of the Court might be properly affirm'd to be alter'd by this Clauſe. That the Commons were ſurpriz'd when they heard it alledg'd, that this Court and Courſe of Trial was firſt introduc'd in Henry VIII's Time, by Cardinal Woolſey, in the Caſe of the Duke of Bucks; and that all Trials of Peers before were in Parliament. That the Statute made 15 Edw. III. manifeſtly proves the contrary; it ordain'd that Peers ſhould be tried by the Peers in Parliament; but provides, that if any Peer ſhould chuſe to be tried elſewhere than in Parliament, he might. That indeed the Statute was repeal'd 17 Edw. III. (becauſe it was ſo injurious to the Prerogative); but yet it ſhews there was then ſuch a Court and Courſe of Trial as this out of Parliament; for they could not in Edw. III's Time divine that there ſhould be ſuch a new Court and Manner of Trial erected in Henry VIII's Time. That the Trial of the Earl of H---, Henry IV. reported in the Year-Books, is no more to be queſtion'd than any other Caſe there. And it is cited as authentick, by Stamford, in his learned Treatiſe of the Pleas of the Crown. And his Opinion alſo is, that this way of Trial was meant in the Judicium Parium, mention'd in Magna Charta; and Stamford is of greater Authority in this behalf, for that he was Contemporary to the Reign of Henry VIII. and could not have been unacquainted with this Innovation, if ſuch there had been made in that Time. That the very Clauſe now in queſtion did affirm the Legality of this way of Trial; for it diſtinguiſhes Treaſons, which corrupt the Blood, from others, and left all other Treaſons and all Felony to be tried by Peers, ſummon'd by the High Steward, as was now uſed; which ſhew'd too, that there was no great Danger apprehended to the Peers from this kind of Trial. That the Commons did not admit that a Peer can be convicted by Seven Peers; that there muſt be Twelve at leaſt to concur in the Verdict. That it is not only ſaid by my Lord Cook, but the Law is, That no Man ſhall ſuffer capitally at the King's Suit, unleſs his Offence be form'd by 24 at leaſt; that is, Twelve to find the Indictment, and Twelve to give the Verdict. That Twelve Peers muſt agree in the Verdict, was reſolv'd in the Lord Dacres's Caſe, 26 Hen. VIII. which is remembred in Moor's Reports. And that the Caſe of every Peer that has been convicted, is a Proof of this; for it cannot be ſhown that ever any Peer was convicted by fewer than Twelve. That this Duodecim Virile Judicium, (ſome time in uſe in Foreign Countries) was always approv'd and eſtabliſh'd by the Law of England, and underſtood to be that Authority, to which the Determination of conteſted Facts is intruſted.

“ And therefore in all other Commiſſions and Precepts, as well as theſe of the High Steward, wherein the Commiſſion is in general Words, viz. To Return or Summon, tot & tales, ſuch and ſo many Perſons, by whom the Truth of the Matter may be tried; it is to be anſwer'd and perform'd by the bringing of Twelve Perſons, who are to agree in the determining of the Matter enquired of. And as to that Clauſe which requires all Peers to be attending, it is but a Clauſe of the ſame Form and Nature, as in the Commiſſions of Oyer and Terminer, and other Commiſſions; and imports no more than that all Perſons ſhould attend, that are required to do ſo by Law; and it can be no more inferr'd from theſe Words, that the High Steward is to ſummon all the Peers, than from the like Words in other Commiſſions, that all Freeholders are to be ſummoned.

“ That it is the common Notion of our Law, that no Man ſhall be convicted of a Crime, but by the unanimous Judgment of Twelve unexceptionable Perſons, ſummon'd by the King's Officer; that the Commons have Liberty of Challenging, becauſe that Fear, or Corruption, or other Cauſe of Partiality, may be ſuppoſed among them. That the Lords have no Challenge, but all Peers are eſteem'd unexceptionable, becauſe nothing ſo mean and diſhonourable, is to be preſumed among them. That their Lordſhips Anceſtors choſe to diſtinguiſh themſelves from their Inferiors, and always claimed and enjoyed a Privilege to be intruſted otherwiſe than the Commons are, viz. they are upon Honour, not upon Oath; are not changeable; give their Verdict Seriatim; may have more than Twelve on a Trial, and have claimed a Liberty to eat and drink before their Verdict; and they uſed to value themſelves upon theſe Things, as Dignities and Privileges. That now the Commons that are forbid to ſpeak otherwiſe of the preſent Peers, than of their Anceſtors, are to be excuſed, if they think no otherwiſe of them.

“ Moreover, the Commons obſerved, that what their Lordſhips had alledged concerning the Inconveniences or Abuſes that had been, or might be in this way of Trial, was grounded upon undue Suppoſitions concerning the Peers, or upon Miſtakes, and not warranted by Experience. They ſaid, they thought it a ſtrange and foreign Suppoſition, that a Great and Guilty Miniſter finding himſelf liable to an Impeachment next Seſſion of Parliament, ſhould by his Power procure himſelf to be tried and acquitted by an Inqueſt of Peers, on purpoſe by a Plea of Autre fuits, to prevent a ſecond and true Examination of his Crimes; for he muſt firſt be indicted of the Treaſon, and then run a Hazard, whether his Power will be and continue ſufficient to oblige ſo many Peers to acquit him by an untrue Verdict. That there is no Example in this kind, and if ſuch an unheard-of Proceeding ſhould ever happen, it is left to Conſideration, whether a Parliament could not vindicate a Kingdom againſt ſo groſs and fraudulent a Contrivance. Beſides, that the Court as it was ordered by this Clauſe, would be no leſs liable to ſuch Abuſe. That their Lordſhips did not aſſign any ſufficient Inſtances of any Injuſtice in this Court; and perhaps this Court has continued the moſt unblemiſhed in point of Juſtice of any Court whatſoever. That in the few

1691. 3 W. M.

" few Trials which have been there for Treaſon, there have been Two Acquittals, viz. of the Lord Dacres, and the Duke of Somerſet, beſides that of the Lord Delamere. That the Duke of Northumberland's Crime was notorious, he having been in open Rebellion againſt Queen Mary. That if the Earl of Wiltſhire had been forced to ſit on the Trial of his Daughter Anne Bullen, it ſeems to ſhew a greater Fairneſs; and if the Court had been conſtituted according to this Clauſe, he muſt have been ſummon'd; and if the Trial had been in Parliament, he (as well as all other Peers) had been obliged to come. But that the Tradition about that Matter was rectified by the Diſcovery made by a Reverend Prelate, in his Hiſtory of the Reformation, (a Book approved of by their Lordſhips) where it is made appear that that Earl did not ſit upon the Trial of the Queen. That if all Power muſt be aboliſhed, which is poſſible to be abuſed, there muſt be no Power left to the King, or Lords, or Commons; and perhaps there were no harder Caſes to be found, than thoſe wherein all Three have concurred, of which the attainting Cromwell Earl of Eſſex, without ſuffering him to come from the Tower to be heard, is an Inſtance. That if any Inquiſition might be made into what is now doing, twere better to lay aſide the Clauſe, that no Body might have any Dependance, but upon the Safety of the preſent Government.

" That the High Steward is made pro hac vice, or after the Crime, is no ſingular Thing; for the Juſtices of Oyer and Terminer, and of Gaol Delivery, are made ſo twice a Year or oftner, and all hold all their Places during the King's Pleaſure. That notwithſtanding this Clauſe, the High Steward is ſtill to be appointed by the King in the ſame manner as before; and in all Treaſons, (but thoſe mention'd) and in all Felonies, he continues to have the ſame Power of trying a Peer, by an Inqueſt of Peers, ſummon'd by his Precept, as is now uſed; by which alone the Lives and Fortunes of the Peers will remain expoſed to as much Danger, as they were (if any there were) before this Bill. The Commons acknowledged they had known, that when a Peer hath ſtood indicted, ſitting a Parliament, the Indictment hath been by the King's Writ of Certiorari, removed into the Houſe of Peers, there to be tried by all Peers; but they did not know that of Neceſſity that muſt be done, or that ſuch Peers might not then be tried in the ordinary Court; and it would be highly inconvenient in caſe of Long Parliaments, if it might not be ſo. But that is no concluding Argument, that becauſe there is this extraordinary way of Trial, therefore the ordinary ſhould be taken away.

" That there is alſo another way of Trial, which in other capital Offences concerns the Peers too, that is, by a Jury of Freeholders; which their Lordſhips in this Debate diſcommend, becauſe thoſe Freeholders were of the Vicinage, and the Priſoner might challenge Thirty five without Cauſe; and by this the Peers as well as Commons are to be tried in an Appeal of Rape, Murther, or other Felony; but it was ſuppoſed, that their Lordſhips would not allow it to be a good Argument, that therefore they ſhould be ordered to be tried ſo in Treaſon, and in Indictments of Treaſon, but they held it a Privilege to be tried in ſuch Caſes by their Peers, in the manner now uſed.

" That the Method of Trial appointed by this Clauſe, was worſe than this now in being, and it had nothing of the Nature and Virtue of a Trial in Parliament; for the Lords Houſe hath Power to ſend for, and cauſe all the Peers to come; (as they did upon the Trial of the late Lord Stafford) but to this intended Court none are to come but ſuch as voluntarily will; nor is it required that there ſhould be Twelve, or any certain Number; if but two or three appear, it is enough, and probably none would come but the Complices, and Abettors, and Favourers, and Friends, and Relations of the Party; nor is it poſſible to bring together all the Peers there, as in Parliament; for in Parliament the Houſe of Peers may appoint or adjourn the Proceedings at or to any time or times, and as often as they think fit, till the Houſe be full; but the Proceeding in this Court before the High Steward is the Work but of one Day.

" In the laſt place the Commons replied, That they did not find Reaſon to paſs this Clauſe from what was ſo much preſſed by their Lordſhips, viz. That the Clauſe did provide ſuch Defence for the Peers, as would encourage them to adventure to join boldly with the Commons in aſſerting the publick Liberties. For the Commons did not find by the preſent Conſtitution, the Lives and Fortunes of innocent Peers were (as their Lordſhips intimated) expoſed to the Will of a Great and Malicious Monſter; and if they were, they did not ſee that they would be protected by this Proviſion, ſince it extended but to ſome Treaſon, and to no Felonies; and it might ſay, It did not deſerve the Name of Adventure for their Lordſhips to act only upon Terms of perfect Safety. And on the other hand, the Commons apprehended it would afford too great a Proſpect of Safety to guilty Peers, and might embolden them to attempt againſt the Crown or publick Liberties.

" The Commons acknowledged, that theſe were good Times, and if they were unquiet or unſafe, 'twas in relation to the Crown, and not to the Peers; the Peerage was in no Danger; the Peers had Power enough; and the Crown had not too much, nor ought to be rendred leſs ſafe. Therefore the Commons would inſiſt upon the old ways, keep the Balance of the Government as they found it, and not change the Laws of England, which had hitherto been uſed and approved.

This Conference occaſion'd great Debates in both Houſes, and was followed by Three other free Conferences; the Reſult of all which was, that the Lords inſiſted upon their Clauſe, and that the Commons adher'd to their Diſagreement to it.

Other Affairs in Parliament.

Beſides this Diſpute between the Two Houſes of Parliament, ſeveral other Affairs contributed to draw this Seſſion into a greater Length than the King deſired. The Conſideration of the Moneys due to the Orphans of the City of London, and the Bill brought in for their Relief, took up a great deal of Time; as did alſo the Additional Bill for appointing and enabling the Commiſſioners to examine, take, and ſtate the Publick Accounts of the Kingdom; which having paſſed the Lower Houſe, was on Jan. 19. ſent up to the Upper for their Concurrence. But (a) the Lords having made ſome Amendments to it, which the Commons did not approve, the Bill was thereupon loſt.

Caſe of William Fuller.

The Amuſement given to both Houſes by one William Fuller, was another Cauſe of Delay and Interruption to publick Buſineſs. The Conſpiracy of the Papiſts in Lancaſhire to raiſe a Rebellion in this Kingdom, in order to Re-enthrone the late King James, was atteſted by ſeveral Witneſſes, and was abundantly confirm'd by the Papers taken with the Lord Preſton and Mr. Aſhton. Upon this moral Demonſtration of a Plot, ſome Perſons of Note were ſeized, and Search was made after others, which brought

(a) See a true Account of the Proceedings before the Houſe of Lords, from Jan. 7. 1691. to Feb. 17. following, between the Duke and Dutcheſs of Norfolk, upon the Duke's Bill, entitled, An Act to diſſolve the Marriage, &c. Printed Fol. 1692.

1691. 3 W. M.

brought the Buſineſs to be examined before the Commons. At this Juncture, the ſaid Fuller being then a Priſoner in the Kings-Bench, ſet up for an Evidence, and at his own Deſire was brought to the Bar of the Commons; where he produced ſeveral Papers, which were peruſed by the Houſe; and according to his Prayer, it was Reſolved on Jan. 4. That an Application be made to his Majeſty, That He would pleaſe to give to Mr. Fuller a Blank Paſs for Two Perſons, for their ſafe coming from beyond Sea or any other Place hither, to give their Evidence, for their Protection while they were here, and for their ſafe Return, if deſired. About Six Weeks after, Fuller was ordered to attend the Houſe of Commons with the Perſons mentioned by him; but he counterfeiting himſelf ſick, and not able to come abroad, ſeveral Members on Feb. 22. were ordered to repair to him to ſecure his Papers, and to take his Information upon Oath. The next Day Fuller's Examination was preſented to the Houſe and read, wherein he mention'd Mr. James Hayes and Colonel Thomas Delaval to be the Two Witneſſes he intended to produce: Upon which, ſeveral Members, attended by Meſſengers, were order'd to go to the Places directed by Fuller, and bring the ſaid Perſons with them. They went, but found no ſuch Perſons; whereupon Fuller was ordered to produce them himſelf, and alſo one Mr. Jones; which he not being able to do, the Commons unanimouſly declared on Feb. 24. That William Fuller is a notorious Impoſtor, a Cheat, and a falſe Accuſer; having ſcandaliz'd their Majeſties and their Government, abuſed this Houſe, and falſly accuſed ſeveral Perſons of Honour and Quality. And they farther Reſolved, That an Addreſs be preſented to His Majeſty, to command his Attorney-General to proſecute the ſaid Impoſtor. Fuller was accordingly proſecuted, and ſentenc'd to ſtand in the Pillory; which Ignominy he underwent with no Modeſty or Remorſe.

Cenſur'd for an Impoſtor, Cheat, and falſe Accuſer.

Civil Liſt.

The Houſe of Commons having conſidered of the Supply to be granted to their Majeſties, order'd on Jan. 6. That a particular State of the Revenue, and a Computation of the Civil Liſt, be laid before them: Which was accordingly done the next Day by his Majeſty's Vice-Chamberlain. On Jan. 12. a Committee was appointed to receive Propoſals for raiſing a Sum of Money towards carrying on the War againſt France, upon a Fund of Perpetual Intereſt: And Three Days after, it was reſolved, That towards the making good the Sums of Money intended to be given by an Act made in the Second Year of their Majeſty's Reign, For granting ſeveral Additional Duties of Exciſe, upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, for Four Years, &c. the Additional Duties granted by the ſaid Act, be continued till the 17th Day of May, 1697, for the Uſes in the ſaid Act mentioned.

The Commons having examined the Papers relating to the Revenue and Civil Liſt, repealed the Reſolution they had taken on the 12th of December, concerning the Salaries, Fees, and Perquiſites of all Offices under the Crown; and likewiſe Reſolved on Jan. 19. That all Penſions granted by the Crown, except Penſions payable to the Queen Dowager, and the Princeſs Anne of Denmark, and ſuch other Penſions as ſhould be excepted by the Houſe, be applied towards carrying on the War: And that towards raiſing the Supplies for the ſame Purpoſes, a Tax by a Quarterly Poll be granted to their Majeſties. By a Bill brought in for that Purpoſe, all Perſons (except ſuch as received Alms of the Pariſh, poor Houſekeepers and their Children,) were to pay 12*d.* Quarterly for One Year: All Tradeſmen and Artificers, having an Eſtate of the clear Value of Three hundred Pounds and upwards, Ten Shillings: All Gentlemen, or reputed Gentlemen, having an Eſtate of Three Hundred Pounds or more, as alſo all Clergymen and Teachers who had any Eccleſiaſtical Benefice or Contribution, to the Value of Eighty Pounds per Ann. or upwards, Twenty Shillings: Every Lord of Parliament, either Spiritual or Temporal, the Sum of Ten Pounds: And all Perſons who ſhould refuſe to take the Oaths to their Majeſties, double the Sums charged by the reſpective Heads.

A Poll-Tax.

1691. 3 W. M.

Bill for Forfeited Eſtates in England and Ireland.

Beſides the Taxes already mentioned, the Commons again Reſolved, That the Forfeited Eſtates in England and Ireland ſhould be veſted in their Majeſties, to be applied to the Uſe of the War: But the two Bills which they had paſſed for that Purpoſe on Feb. 12. lay neglected in the Houſe of Lords, notwithſtanding the repeated Meſſages ſent to their Lordſhips to put them in mind of the ſame.

Thanks of the Houſe to General Ginkle.

On Jan. 4. The Commons ordered the Lord Caſtleton, Sir Henry Goodrick, and Five more of their Members, to attend upon General Ginkle with the Thanks of the Houſe both to him and the Officers who under him had contributed to the Reduction of Ireland, for the great Services they had thereby performed to their Majeſties and theſe Kingdoms. General Ginkle made a very grateful Anſwer; He acknowledged this diſtinguiſhing Honour done him by the Houſe of Commons, which he valued above a Triumph; adding with a great deal of Modeſty and Juſtice, That the Succeſs of their Majeſties Arms in Ireland, was owing chiefly to the Valour of the Engliſh; and that he would take care to communicate the Vote of that Houſe to the Officers that ſerv'd in Ireland; and always endeavour the Proſperity of Their Majeſties and the Government. And for a farther Mark of Honour, his Majeſty was pleaſed on Feb. 20. to create this brave General Earl of Athlone, in the County of Roſcommon, and Baron of Aghrim in the County of Galloway in Ireland, for the great Services he had performed to their Majeſties, in the Reduction of that Kingdom. A Week after, that General, the Duke of Wirtemburgh, the Lieutenant-Generals Scravenmore, Lanier and Talmarſh, Major-General Ruvigny, with other the General and Field-Officers in Town, who had ſignaliz'd themſelves in the Iriſh Expedition, were Invited and Nobly Entertained at Merchant-Taylors-Hall, by Sir Thomas Stamp, Lord-Mayor, the Aldermen, Sheriffs, and the moſt Eminent Citizens and Merchants of London; who upon this Occaſion gave all imaginable Demonſtrations of their Affection and Loyalty to the Government, and of Honour and Reſpect to thoſe who had ſupported it by their Valour.

A Bill for the Eſtabliſhment of an Eaſt-India Company, having been received by the Commons on Jan. 16. ſeveral Petitions were preſented to the Houſe againſt it; to which an unſatisfactory Anſwer being delivered by the Committee of the Eaſt-India Company, the Houſe Reſolved thereupon on Feb. 6. That an humble Addreſs be made to his Majeſty, to diſſolve the preſent Eaſt-India Company, according to his Power reſerved in their Charter; and to conſtitute another Eaſt-India Company, for the better preſerving the Eaſt-India Trade to this Kingdom, in ſuch manner as his Majeſty in his Royal Wiſdom ſhould think fit. This Addreſs being preſented to the King on Feb. 10. his Majeſty expreſs'd himſelf to this Effect: That it was a Matter of very great Importance to the Trade of this Kingdom; that he would conſider of it, and in a ſhort time give the Commons a poſitive Anſwer. In the mean time his Majeſty on Feb. 8. conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on Capt. John Goldsborough, who was going for the Eaſt-Indies, in the Quality of the Company's Commiſſary-General.

Petition of the Commons to diſſolve the Eaſt-India Company.

Caſe of the French Refugees.

About the middle of January, many of the French Proteſtants preſented a Petition to the Commons, praying the Conſideration of that Houſe, in order to their Relief. This Petition having had but little Effect, by reaſon of the multiplicity of Affairs that were depending in that Houſe; thoſe diſtreſſed Refugees apply'd themſelves to the King, with their Caſe in Print, and their Majeſties Declaration of the 25th of April, 1689, in their Favour. Both which which his Majeſty commanded to be laid before the Commons on February the 17th. A Week after, the Commons conſidered his Majeſty's Meſſage, and the Motion already made for a Supply to be given towards the Relief of the Petitioners; but before they came to a Reſolution his Majeſty's Affairs required their Riſing by a ſudden Adjournment, which prevented the paſſing ſeveral Bills that were depending; ſuch as firſt, A Bill for leſſening the Intereſt of Money, which the Commons had paſſed and ſent up to the Lords for their Concurrence. Another, for Diſabling Minors to Marry without the Conſent of their Fathers or Guardians, (a) and for preventing Clandeſtine Marriages, which the Lords had ſent down to the Commons. A Third, for the paying of the Army according to the Muſters of effective Men, puniſhing Mutineers and Deſerters, and preventing falſe Muſters, to which the Lords had made ſome Amendments that occaſioned great Diſputes. A Fourth, for aſcertaining the Commiſſions and Salaries of the Judges; which, tho' it had paſſed both Houſes, was not confirmed by the Royal Aſſent. A Fifth, againſt the Buying and Selling of Offices. A Sixth, for the better apprehending of Highway-Men. A Seventh, To prevent Frauds by Clandeſtine Mortgages. And an Eighth, againſt Duelling. As for the Bill to empower the Courts of Chancery and Exchequer to accept of the Solemn Anſwer in Evidence of any of the People called Quakers: And another, for Confirming the Charters of the Univerſity of Cambridge: Both theſe came to the Queſtion in the Houſe of Commons, That they ſhould paſs; but in both it was carried in the Negative.

Bills dropped.

His Majeſty being deſirous to be early in Holland, came on Wedneſday, Feb. 24th to the Houſe of Peers, attended with the uſual Solemnity; and gave his Royal Aſſent to 1. An Act for raiſing Money by a Poll, payable Quarterly for one Year, for the carrying on a Vigorous War againſt France. 2. An Act for Raiſing the Militia of this Kingdom, for the Year 1692, altho' the Month's Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 3. An Act to take away the Benefit of the Clergy from ſome Offenders, and to bring others to Puniſhment. 4. An Act againſt correſponding with their Majeſties Enemies. 5. An Act for the better Explanation and Supplying the Defects of the former Laws for the Settlement of the Poor. 6. An Act for the better Repairing and Amending the Highways; and for Settling the Rates of Carriage of Goods. 7. An Act for the better Ordering and Collecting the Duty upon Low Wines and Strong Waters, and preventing the Abuſes therein. 8. An Act for the Encouragement of the Breeding and Feeding of Cattle. 9. An Act for the more effectual Diſcovery and Puniſhment of Deer-ſtealers. 10. An Act for Relief of Creditors againſt fraudulent Deviſes. And to ſeveral Private Acts. After which, his Majeſty made this Speech to both Houſes.

Acts paſſed.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech.

" I Return my hearty Thanks to you all, for the " great Demonſtrations you have given Me of " your Affections in this Seſſions, and for your Zeal
" for the Support of the Government.

" And I muſt thank you, Gentlemen of the Houſe
" of Commons in particular, for the great Supplies
" you have granted for the Proſecution of the War.
" I aſſure you, I ſhall take care ſo to diſpoſe of the " Money you have given Me for the publick Occa-
" ſions, as that the whole Nation may be entirely
" ſatisfied with the Application of it.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" I think it proper to acquaint you with my In" tentions of going beyond Sea very ſpeedily, which " I am afraid have been already retarded, more than
" is convenient for the preſent Poſture of Affairs;
" and upon that Account I think it neceſſary to put " an end to this preſent Meeting; the Seaſon of " the Year being now ſo very very far advanced,
" that it may prove of the laſt ill Conſequence to " continue it any longer.

Then the Lord Chief-Baron, Speaker of the Houſe of Peers, ſignified to them his Majeſty's Pleaſure, that they ſhould Adjourn themſelves to the 12th Day of April next; and accordingly both Houſes ſo Adjourned. But on March 19. a Proclamation was publiſh'd for proroguing the Parliament from the 12th Day of April to the 24th Day of May next; at which Day their Majeſties would expect the Attendance only of ſuch Members, as ſhall be Reſident in or near the Cities of London and Weſtminſter; and that convenient Notice ſhould be given by another Proclamation, of the time when the Parliament ſhall meet, and ſit for the Diſpatch of Buſineſs, to the end that the Members of the Houſes may order their Affairs accordingly.

Parliament Adjourned, and then Prorogued.

As to the Civil Honours and Preferments beſtowed this Year, on April 30. his Majeſty was pleaſed as a Mark of his Royal Favour, to confer the Honour of Knighthood on Abſtrupus Danby of Maſſamſhire in the County of York, Eſq; on May 7. John Earl of Bridgwater was Sworn one of their Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy-Council; and ſoon after the ſame Honour was done to John Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who on June 4. took his Place at that Board. On October 22, when the Lord-Mayor and Aldermen of London waited on the King to congratulate his Majeſty's ſafe Return into England, and the happy Succeſs of his Majeſty's Arms in the entire Reducing of the Kingdom of Ireland, his Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Richard Levett, Eſq; one of the Sheriffs. In the beginning of Michaelmas Term his Majeſty was pleaſed to appoint Sir Edward Nevill, one of the Barons of the Court of Exchequer, to be one of the Juſtices of the Common-Pleas, in the Place of Peyton Ventris, Eſq; Deceaſed, and John Powel, Eſq; Serjeant at Law to be in his room one of the Barons of the Exchequer, on whom his Majeſty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on his Birth-Day, Nov. 4. About the ſame time the King was pleaſed upon the Death of Sir William Huſſy, his late Ambaſſador at the Ottoman Port, to appoint William Harbord, Eſq; one of the Privy-Council, to be his Ambaſſador Extraordinary to the Grand-Seignior, who Embarked for Holland, November 10. to proceed by the way of Vienna on his Journey towards Turkey. On Tueſday, Feb. 2d, at a Chapter of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, held at Kenſington, in the Preſence of the Sovereign, his moſt Serene Highneſs John George the Fourth, Elector of Saxony, and the Right Honourable Charles Earl of Dorſet and Middleſex, Lord Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold, were elected Knights Companions of the ſaid moſt Noble Order. About the Middle of February, his Majeſty was pleaſed

Honours and Preferments.

(a) See the Caſe of Clandeſtine Marriages ſtated, wherein are ſhewn the Cauſes from whence this Corruption ariſeth, and the true Methods whereby it may be remedied. In a Letter to a Perſon of Honour, Dated Dec. 11. 1691. By Humphry Prideaux, D. D. London, 1691. 4*to*.

The Purport of the Bill was, that from the 30th of March, 1693. no Son under 18, nor Daughter under 16, ſhall Marry or Contract without their Father if Living; or Guardian being preſent, or expreſly declaring Conſent, —— otherwiſe the Marriage to be ipſo facto void, —— and the Minor proceeded againſt in the Eccleſiaſtical Court, to have the Marriage annulled. —— None to grant Licenſes but Vicars-General. —— He that Marries a Minor contrary to this Act to ſuffer as a Felon. —— A Miniſter marrying without Banns or Licenſe, or at any unlawful Time, to be Suſpended and Fined, &c.

See " A Repreſentation of the Prejudices that may ariſe in " time from an intended Act concerning Marriages, &c.
" proving the ill Conſequences of a Bill, Entitled, An Act
" diſabling Minors to Marry without the Conſent of their Fa" ther or Guardian, and againſt their untimely Marriage after " the Death of their Father, and for preventing all Clande-
" ſtine Marriages. London. Printed for R. Clavel, 1691, 4*to*.

1691. 3 W. M.

to appoint Sir William Phipps, Knight, to be Governor of the Province of the Maſſachuſetts Bay, and Commander in Chief of all the Militia of New England; as alſo Sir Edward Andros, Knight, to be Governor of Virginia; Benjamin Fletcher, Eſq; to be Governor of New York; and Samuel Allen, Eſq; to be Governor of New Hampſhire, in New England. On February the 27th, James Johnſton, Eſq; late Envoy Extraordinary from their Majeſties to his Electoral Highneſs of Brandenburgh, kiſſed their Majeſties Hands, upon his being made conjunct Secretary of State with the Lord Secretary Stair, in the Kingdom of Scotland. On March the 1ſt, Lawrence Earl of Rocheſter, Richard Earl of Ranelagh, Charles Lord Cornwallis, and Sir Edward Seymour, Baronet, were ſworn of their Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy Council: And on the ſame Day, William Earl of Bedford took the uſual Oaths, as Lord Lieutenant of the County of Middleſex; and his Majeſty delivering the Privy Seal to Thomas Earl of Pembroke, his Lordſhip's Place of Commiſſioner in the Admiralty was given to Charles Lord Cornwallis; and at the ſame Time, Sir Edward Seymour, Bar. and Charles Montague, Eſq; were conſtituted Commiſſioners of their Majeſties Treaſury, in the Places of Sir John Lowther, of Lowther, Bar. Vice-Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold, and Thomas Pelham, Eſq; who had reſigned the ſame. On March 3. Henry Lord Viſcount Sidney, one of their Majeſties Principal Secretaries of State, deliver'd up the Seal to his Majeſty, being prepared to go their Majeſties Lieutenant-General, and General Governor of the Kingdom of Ireland: And on the ſame Day, his Majeſty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Godfrey Kneller, Eſq; Principal Painter in Ordinary to their Majeſties. On March 17. Anthony Lord Viſcount Falkland, and Robert Lord Lexington, were ſworn of their Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy Council: And near the ſame Time, his Majeſty was pleas'd to create Thomas Coningsby, Eſq; one of the Lords Juſtices of Ireland, a Baron of that Kingdom, by the Name and Stile of Thomas Baron Coningsby, of Clanbrazile in the County of Armagh. On the laſt Day of the Year, March the 24th, Vere Earl of Weſtmoreland took the uſual Oaths, as Joint Lord Lieutenant of the County of Kent, with the Right Honourable Henry Lord Viſcount Sidney; and Charles Lord Lanſdown was ſworn likewiſe Joint Lord Lieutenant of the County of Devon and Cornwall, with John Earl of Bath: And the ſame Time, John Dive, Eſq; was ſworn Clerk of their Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy-Council in Ordinary.

Death of Don Pedro de Ronquillo the Spaniſh Ambaſſador.

Among other Occurrences of this Year, it may be obſerv'd, That on Tueſday, July 20. his Excellency Don Pedro de Ronquillo, Conde de Gramedo, Ambaſſador Extraordinary from the King of Spain, after having reſided many Years at this Court, and been employ'd in ſeveral Eminent Negotiations, in which he acquitted himſelf with great Zeal and Ability, died; and on July 30. in the Evening, his Body was (by her Majeſty's Order) privately depoſited in King Henry the VIIth's Chapel at Weſtminſter, till it could be tranſported to Spain. On November 8. Signior Hain Tolledano, Envoy Extraordinary from the Emperor of Fez and Morocco, had his Publick Audience of their Majeſties, with the uſual Ceremonies.

1691. 3 W. M.

State of Religion.

In the Affairs of Religion, nothing ſeem'd more to diſturb the Peace of the Church, and to threaten the Security of their Majeſties Reign, than the Perſeverance of the Nonjuring Biſhops and Clergy: And therefore when a ſufficient Time had been allow'd to bring 'em into the ſettled Government, his Majeſty was now reſolv'd to fill up their (a) Vacant Dignities; and therefore, among other Preparations for his going over to the Campaign in Flanders, he publiſh'd his Intentions of filling up the Vacant Dignities in Manner following.

The King reſolved to fill up the vacant Dignities.

The ſeveral Promotions.

Dr. Tillotſon, Dean of St. Paul's, was to be promoted to the Archbiſhoprick of Canterbury, in the room of Archbiſhop Sancroft; Dr. Patrick, Biſhop of Chicheſter, to be tranſlated to the Biſhoprick of Ely, in the room of Biſhop Turner; Dr. Beveridge, Rector of St. Peter's Cornhill, was to be promoted to the Biſhoprick of Bath and Wells, in the room of Biſhop Ken; Dr. Fowler to the See of Gloceſter, in the room of Biſhop Frampton; Dr. Cumberland to the See of Peterborough, in the room of Biſhop White; Dr. Moore to the See of Norwich, in the room of Biſhop Lloyd; and Dr. Grove to the See of Chicheſter, void by the Tranſlation of Biſhop Patrick; and Dr. Sherlock, Maſter of the Temple, (now reconcil'd to the Government) was nominated to the Deanery of St. Paul's; Dr. Comber to the Deanery of Durham, in the room of Dr. Greenvill; Mr. Talbot to the Deanery of Worceſter, in the room of Dr. Hickes; and Dr. Woodward to the Deanery of Sarum. On May 9. his Majeſty was pleaſed, upon the Death of Dr. Lamplugh, late Archbiſhop of York, to nominate Dr. Sharp, Dean of Canterbury, to be Archbiſhop of that See. On May 16. in Purſuance of (b) their Majeſties Conge de Elire, and Letter Miſſive, Dr. John Tillotſon was (by the Dean and a full Chapter) unanimouſly elected Archbiſhop of Canterbury; and in like manner, on May 21. Dr. John Moore, Rector of St. Andrew's Holborn, was elected Biſhop of Norwich. On May 27. their Majeſties were pleaſed, upon the Death of Dr. Herbert Crofts, late Biſhop of Hereford, to nominate Dr. Gilbert Ironſide, Biſhop of Briſtol, to ſucceed him in that See; and the next Day, the Queen was pleaſed to grant to Dr. George Hooper, Rector of Lambeth, the Deanery of Canterbury, vacant by the Promotion of Dr. Sharp. On May 31. (c) Dr. Tillotſon was conſecrated Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, in the Church of St. Mary-le-Bow in London, by the Biſhops of Wincheſter, St. Aſaph, Salisbury, Worceſter, Briſtol, and Oxford, appointed by Commiſſion for that purpoſe; which was perform'd with the uſual Order and Solemnity: All the Great Officers of State, and moſt of the Nobility in Town, with many other Perſons of Quality, being preſent,

(a) Biſhop Burnet, in his Vindication, (publiſh'd 1696. 8*vo.*) p. 104. relates, "Their Majeſties proceeded in this Matter "ſlowly, and ſeem'd unwilling to fill their Sees, till thoſe "Letters were diſcover'd that ſhewed what Correſpondencies "and Engagements there were among them: That determin'd "the Matter, which perhaps without that Accident might "have been hung up for another Year. Now let the World "judge, what a Sort of an Epiſcopacy this would have been: "Biſhops would have eat and drunk well at the Church's "Charge, and done nothing; neither have ſerv'd the Government that protected them, nor have declared for that "to which they in their Thoughts adhered; but would have "liv'd eaſy, pretending they were quiet and doing nothing "againſt the State, till they had found a favourable Opportunity (like the Invaſion deſign'd from La Hogue) to have "declar'd themſelves to ſome Purpoſe.

(b) The greateſt Oppoſition and Defiance to the Act of Deprivation, was ſtoutly made by Dr. George Hickes, Dean of Worceſter; who having been the warmeſt Aſſerter of Paſſive Obedience, and the indefeaſible Right of a Popiſh Succeſſor, choſe to act and ſuffer upon thoſe Principles: But when his Deanery (thereby voided) was conferr'd on the worthy Mr. William Talbot, (afterward Lord Biſhop of Oxford, now of Sarum) Dr. Hickes ſet up a ſolemn Proteſtation of his own continued Right to the ſaid Dignity, againſt the Intruſion of any other Perſon; directed to Dr. Jephcot, Sub-Dean; and dated May 2. 1691. Of which a full Account was given, in a Tract entitled, Paſſive Obedience in Actual Reſiſtance; By Remarks upon a Paper fix'd up in the Cathedral-Church of Worceſter, by Dr. Hickes: With Reflexions on the preſent Behaviour of the reſt of the Family. London, Printed for E. Hawkins, 1691. Quarto.

(c) See the Prayers and Devotions uſed by Dr. John Tillotſon, in his Retirement to Edmonton, on Whitſun-Eve, May 30. 1691. the Day before his Conſecration, as written by himſelf. Sermons, Vol. III. p. 672.

1691. 3 W. M.

to expreſs the great Eſteem and Reſpect they had for his Grace, and the Satisfaction they receiv'd in his Promotion. Four Days after, his Grace was ſworn of the Privy Council; and their Majeſties always repoſed a moſt entire Confidence in his Prudence, Moderation, and Integrity. On June the 9th, the Dean and Chapter of York, with unanimous Conſent, elected Dr. John Sharp (Dean of Canterbury) to be Archbiſhop of that See. And the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough unanimouſly elected Dr. Richard Cumberland, Rector of Brampton in Northamptonſhire, and Miniſter in Stamford in Lincolnſhire, to be Biſhop of Peterborough. The next Day, the Dean and Chapter of Ely elected Simon Lord Biſhop of Chicheſter, to be Biſhop of Ely. The Dean and Chapter of Gloceſter did alſo (with unanimous Conſent) elect Dr. Edward Fowler, Miniſter of Cripplegate in London, to be Biſhop of that See. And becauſe Dr. Beveridge (after ſome Conſideration) thought fit to decline the Acceptance of the See of Bath and Wells, their Majeſties were pleaſed to (a) nominate Dr. Richard Kidder, Dean of Peterborough, to be Biſhop of that See; and Dr. John Hall, Maſter of Pembroke-College in Oxford, to be Biſhop of Briſtol: And Dr. Samuel Freeman, Miniſter of Covent-Garden, London, was promoted to the Deanery of Peterborough.

Conſecration of new Biſhops.

When all Preliminaries had been rightly adjuſted, on Sunday, July the 8th, the New Prelates, Dr. John Sharp, Lord Archbiſhop of York; Dr. John Moore, Lord Biſhop of Norwich; Dr. Richard Cumberland, Lord Biſhop of Peterborough; and Dr. Edward Fowler, Lord Biſhop of Gloceſter; were conſecrated at St. Mary-le-Bow, by the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the Biſhops of Wincheſter, Salisbury, Worceſter, Ely, and Briſtol, with the uſual Order and Solemnity. The Ceremony of the Biſhop of Ely's Tranſlation, with that of the Confirmation of the other Biſhops aforementi-on'd, had been perform'd the Thurſday before in the ſame Church, with the accuſtomed Formalities. On Auguſt the 30th, Dr. Robert Grove, Biſhop of Chicheſter; Dr. Richard Kidder, Biſhop of Bath and Wells; and Dr. John Hall, Biſhop of Briſtol, were conſecrated at St. Mary-le-Bow, by the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the Biſhops of Salisbury, Worceſter, Norwich, and Gloceſter, with the uſual Solemnity. On November the 25th, his Majeſty was pleaſed (upon the Death of Dr. Thomas Barlow, late Biſhop of Lincoln) to nominate (b) Dr. ThomasTeniſon, Vicar of St. Martin's, to ſucceed him in that See; being recommended (ſays a late Writer) to their Majeſties Favour and Eſteem, by his Exemplary Piety, and his great Moderation towards Diſſenters; whom their Majeſties ſtill endeavoured, by all gentle (which indeed are the moſt effectual) Methods, to bring over to the National Church.

Care for Reformation of Manners.

Their Majeſties began the New Year with an Exemplary Care for the Publick Reformation of Manners; and for that Purpoſe, iſſued out this Excellent Proclamation againſt vicious, debauch'd, and prophane Perſons.

WILLIAM R.

" AS we cannot but be deeply ſenſible of the " great Goodneſs and Mercy of Almighty
" God, (by whom Kings reign) in giving ſo hap" py Succeſs to our Endeavours for Reſcuing theſe
" Kingdoms from Popiſh Tyranny and Superſtiti-
" on; and in Preſerving our Royal Perſons, Sup" porting our Government, and Uniting the Arms
" of moſt of the Princes and States in Chriſtendom
" againſt our common Enemy: So we are not leſs
" touched with a Reſentment, that (notwithſtand-
" ing theſe great Deliverances) Impiety and Vice
" do ſtill abound in this our Kingdom; and that
" the Execution of many good Laws, which have " been made for ſuppreſſing and diminiſhing there-
" of, have been groſly neglected, to the great Diſ-
" honour of God and our Holy Religion: Where" fore, and for that we cannot expect Increaſe or " Continuance of the Bleſſings we and our Sub" jects enjoy, without providing Remedies to pre" vent the like Evils for the future; we judge
" our ſelves bound, by the Duty we owe to God,
" and the Care we have of the People committed
" to our Charge, to proceed in taking ſome effectu-
" al Courſe therein. And being thereunto moved
" by the pious Addreſs of our Archbiſhops and Bi-
" ſhops, we have thought fit, by the Advice of " our Privy-Council, to iſſue this our Royal Pro-
" clamation; and do declare our Princely Intention
" and Reſolution, to diſcountenance all manner of " Vice and Immorality in all Perſons, from the " higheſt to the loweſt Degree in this our Realm.
" And we do hereby for that Purpoſe ſtraitly re-

(a) See a Vindication of Their Majeſties Authority to fill the Sees of the deprived Biſhops. In a Letter out of the Country; occaſion'd by Dr. B——'s Refuſal of the Biſhoprick of Bath and Wells. Licenſed May 29. 1691. 4to.

Mr. Kettlewell, one of the leading Nonjurors, had not excepted againſt the Validity of Lay-Deprivation by Act of Parliament, as Mr. Dodwell did; but made it rather a Nullity, becauſe done by an Unrightful King and Parliament. Otherwiſe he granted, that a Rightful State may puniſh the Refuſal of Allegiance in Clergymen with Deprivations, as being an Offence againſt Morality and Religion; ſo as ſuch Refuſers ſhall no longer hold Benefices and Preferment. His Diſcourſe of Chriſtian Communion, Part II. Chap. 3.

(b) See a Sermon preach'd at the Conſecration of the Right Reverend Father in God, Thomas Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, in Lambeth-Chapel, Jan. 10. 1691. By William Stanley, D. D. Clerk of the Cloſet to Her Majeſty. London; for Robert Clavel, 1692. Quarto.

The Nonjurors, who had ſufficiently diſtinguiſh'd themſelves by their own Prayers, and very often by private ſeparate Congregations, began to ſet up a more profeſs'd Principle of Separation, by pretending the Invalidity of the Deprivation of their Biſhops by Act of Parliament, which they call'd a Lay-Deprivation; not conſidering, that all the qualifying and incapacitating Acts for Archbiſhops, Biſhops, and Clergy of the Church of England by Law Eſtabliſh'd, ever ſince the Reformation, have been enacted by the like Authority; and the Execution of ſuch Statutes was never objected againſt, as if the Power were incompetent, or the Obligation null and void. However, the very Behaviour of the deprived Biſhops, and of their Clergy and People, did ſufficiently argue, that they acquieſced in the Validity of ſuch Deprivation. For no one of the Biſhops ſo depriv'd did exert, or challenge any Epiſcopal Power or Juriſdiction in any Dioceſe; nor did any of the Clergy, or Lay-People, profeſs their ſole Obedience or Subjection to them. The Biſhop of Sarum, in his Vindication, 8vo. 1696. p. 126. well argues; "Their Silence has " continued ever ſince. Their Archbiſhop lived and died in " this Silence; having never by any publick and expreſs Act " declared himſelf, nor given Warning to the Nation. He nei- " ther required the Biſhops of his Province, nor the Clergy " of his Dioceſe, to adhere to himſelf, or to the late King; " to refuſe the Oaths, and to reject his Succeſſor. He " did not require it of thoſe of his own Family. He did " neither fly nor abſcond, but was all the while at Home both " ſafe and ſilent. All the reſt have followed his Example, " and continue to this Day ſilent: That is, whatſoever any of " them may talk in Corners, or may write and print without " Name, they have not by any Publick Inſtrument, or Epiſco- " pal Act, declar'd themſelves."

Nay, the Biſhops now depriv'd had, in effect abandon'd their Sees, and abdicated their Offices, near Two Years before they were fill'd up; as the ſame Prelate writes, p. 135. "I think " it is fully made out, that the late King did abandon his Peo- " ple; but They did it much worſe: For from Auguſt 1689, " till May 1691, (for near Two Years together) they lived " in their Sees without taking any Care of the Church, or " doing any of their Functions. They thought that they were " all that while Lawful Biſhops; and for a good Part of the " Time they were certainly ſo; and yet they did nothing as " Biſhops all that while: They neither fed their Clergy nor " their People, with Inſtructions, Admonitions, Reproofs or " Cenſures: And if in ſo critical a Time, a Body of Men " who are entruſted with the Care of Feeding the Flock of " Chriſt, will leave them to themſelves, to the Wolves that " devour them, or to the Poyſon that muſt deſtroy them; it " is hard to tell what is Abandoning, and what is not.

" quire,

1691. 3 W. M.

"quire, charge and command, all and ſingular our Judges, Mayors, Sheriffs, Juſtices of the Peace, and all other our Officers Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, in their reſpective Stations, to execute the Laws againſt Blaſphemy, prophane Swearing and Curſing, Drunkenneſs, Lewdneſs, and Prophanation of the Lord's Day, or any other diſſolute, immoral, or diſorderly Practices, as they will anſwer it to Almighty God, and upon Pain of our higheſt Diſpleaſure. And for the more effectual Proceeding herein, we do hereby direct and command our Judges of Aſſizes, and Juſtices of Peace, to give a ſtrict Charge at the reſpective Aſſizes and Seſſions, for the due Proſecution and Puniſhment of all Perſons that ſhall preſume to offend in any the kinds aforeſaid; and alſo of all Perſons that, contrary to their Duty, ſhall be remiſs or negligent in putting the ſaid Laws in Execution.

Given at our Court at Whitehall, the One and twentieth Day of January, 169½. in the Third Year of our Reign.

Account of the good Deſign for a Reformation of Manners.

This Royal Piety and Zeal laid the Foundation of the laudable and uſeful Societies for the Reformation of Manners; of which this Account has been ſince given. "It is very well known, that in the late Times, prophane Swearing and Curſing, Drunkenneſs, open Lewdneſs and Prophanation of the Lord's-Day, were generally diſcouraged and ſuppreſſed. And as it is as well known, to our Shame, that theſe Sins have not only revived among us, by reaſon of the Impunity of Offenders, the Countenance and Preferment they have met with, and the Contagion of great and ill Examples; but have been committed with great Impudence, and without Controul; without either Shame or the Fear of the Law; ſo that they were ſeen and heard at Noon-day, and in our open Streets. And, as if we were reſolved to outdo the Impieties of the very Heathens, Prophaneneſs, and even Blaſphemy, was too often the Wit and Entertainment of our ſcandalous Play-Houſes; and ſincere Religion became the Jeſt and Scorn of our Courts in the late Reigns.

"And even after the Acceſſion of King William to the Crown, tho' Popery immediately vaniſhed, Immorality and Prophaneneſs ſtill kept their Ground, as if they expected an Eſtabliſhment with our Liberties, after ſo long and peaceable a Poſſeſſion. Reformation was indeed talk'd of by ſome Perſons, as an excellent Thing; and as a proper way of expreſſing our Thankfulneſs to Almighty God for his Mercies to this Nation; and to procure a Continuance of 'em to us, and to our Poſterity. But Vice was look'd upon as too formidable an Enemy to be provok'd; and publick Reformation was thought ſo difficult an Undertaking, that thoſe who gave it very good Words, judged it not ſafe to ſet about it in the Time of War, whilſt there was ſo many in Arms on the other ſide; and therefore they ſeemed to decline the Thoughts of it, till we ſhould ſee the End of the uncertain War we were engaged in. When Things were in this diſmal and almoſt deſperate State, it came into the Hearts, it ſeems, of Five or Six private Gentlemen of the Church of England, to engage in this difficult and hazardous Enterprize; who conſidering, that the higher the Tide of Wickedneſs was, the more need there was of oppoſing it; that our crying Sins were our greateſt Enemies, and moſt threaten'd our Ruin; that they found Laws in force againſt 'em; and that they ſhould have the Laws of God, with the Prayers of good Men on their ſide; reſolved, whatever Difficulties they met with, to make their Efforts for promoting the Execution of our Laws againſt Prophaneneſs and Debauchery, and the ſuppreſſing of 'em by adviſable Methods.

Notwithſtanding a furious Oppoſition from Adverſaries, the ill Offices of thoſe from whom better Things might have been expected, and the unkind Neutrality of Friends, theſe (a) Gentlemen, who in a little Time began to add others to their Number, not only kept their Ground, but made further Advances. And this Affair being laid before the Queen, in the Abſence of his Majeſty, by a Prelate of great Learning and Fame, (the late Lord Biſhop of Worceſter) She had juſt Sentiments of it; and therefore thought it became her to give it Countenance. She graciouſly condeſcended to thank thoſe who were concern'd in it, and readily promiſed them her Aſſiſtance. And afterwards, upon this Application made to her Majeſty, ſhe was pleaſed to direct this gracious Letter to the Juſtices of the Peace in the County of Middleſex, for the ſuppreſſing of Prophaneneſs and Debauchery.

Mary R.

Queen's Letter.

"TRuſty and Well-beloved, we Greet you well. Conſidering the great and indiſpenſible Duty incumbent upon us, to promote and encourage a Reformation of the Manners of all our Subjects; that ſo the Service of God may be advanced, and thoſe Bleſſings be procured to theſe Nations, which always attend a conſcientious Diſcharge of our reſpective Duties, according to our ſeveral Relations. We think it neceſſary, in order to the obtaining of this Publick Good, to recommend to you the putting in Execution, with all Fidelity and Impartiality, thoſe Laws which have been made, and are ſtill in force againſt the Prophanation of the Lord's-Day, Drunkenneſs, Prophane Swearing and Curſing, and all other Lewd, Enormous, and Diſorderly Practices; which by a long continued Neglect, and Connivance of the Magiſtrates and Officers concern'd, have univerſally ſpread themſelves, to the Diſhonour of God, and Scandal of our Holy Religion; whereby it is now become the more neceſſary for all Perſons in Authority, to apply themſelves with all poſſible Care and Diligence to the ſuppreſſing of the ſame. We do therefore hereby charge and require you, to take the moſt effectual Methods for putting the Laws in Execution againſt the Crimes above-mention'd, and all other Sins and Vices, particularly thoſe which are moſt prevailing in this Realm; and that eſpecially in ſuch Caſes where any Officer of Juſtice ſhall be guilty of any of thoſe Offences, or refuſe or neglect to diſcharge the Duty of his Place, for the ſuppreſſing them; that ſo ſuch Officer, by his Puniſhment, may ſerve for an Example to others. And to this end, we would have you careful and diligent in encouraging all Conſtables, Church-Wardens, Headboroughs, and all other Officers, and Perſons whatſoever, to do their Part in their ſeveral Stations, by timely and impartial Informations, and Proſecutions againſt all ſuch Offenders; for preventing ſuch Judgments which are ſolemnly denounced againſt the Sins above-mention'd. We cannot doubt of your Performance hereof; ſince it is a Duty to which you are obliged by Oath, and are likewiſe engaged to the Diſcharge of it, as you tender the Honour of Almighty God, the flouriſhing Condition of his Church in this Kingdom, and the Continuance of

(a) See a Vindication of an Undertaking of certain Gentlemen, in order to the ſuppreſſing Debauchery and Prophaneneſs. London, 1692. 4*to*. [Said to be written by the Lord Biſhop of Gloceſter.]

1691. 3 W. M. "his Holy Religion among us, and the Proſperity of "your Country. And ſo we bid you farewel.

Given at our Court at Whitehall, the Ninth Day of July, One Thouſand Six Hundred and Ninety One. In the Third Year of our Reign.

By Her Majeſty's Command. Nottingham.

It is ſaid of her Majeſty, that when there was further Occaſion, ſhe ſhow'd ſhe was in earneſt to promote this Deſign, by taking more effectual Methods for that purpoſe. The ſame Writer asks Leave to preſent the World with this ſhort Scheme of the Deſign, and this Account of the Managers of it.

Scheme of the Deſign, and Managers of it.

"I. There is a very large Body of Perſons compoſed of the Original Society before-mention'd, "with the Additions that have been ſince made of "Perſons of Eminency in the Law, Members of "Parliament, Juſtices of Peace, and conſiderable "Citizens of London, of known Ability, and great "Integrity, who frequently meet to conſult of the "beſt Methods for carrying on the Buſineſs of Reformation, and to be ready to adviſe and aſſiſt "others that are already engaged, or any that are "willing to join in the ſame Deſign.

"This Society is at a conſiderable Yearly Charge, "for the effectual managing their Buſineſs; but takes "no Contributions of any but their own Members, "by whoſe Endeavours, as was ſaid before, Thouſands of Offenders in London and Weſtminſter "have been brought to Puniſhment, for Swearing, "Drunkenneſs, and Prophanation of the Lord's-Day. And a great Part of the Kingdom has been "awakened, in ſome meaſure, to a Senſe of their "Duty in this reſpect; and thereby a very hopeful Progreſs is made towards a General Reformation.

"A Second Society is of about Fifty Perſons, "Tradeſmen and others, who have more eſpecially "applied themſelves to the Suppreſſion of Lewdneſs, by bringing the Offenders to Legal Puniſhment. Theſe may have actually ſuppreſſed and "routed out about Five hundred diſorderly Houſes, "and cauſed to be puniſh'd ſome Thouſands of Lewd "Perſons, beſides Swearers, Drunkards, and Prophaners of the Lord's-Day; as may appear by their "Printed Liſts of Offenders. Theſe Perſons by their "prudent and legal Management of their Buſineſs, "have received great Countenance and Encouragement in our Courts of Judicature, and very particular Encouragement and Aſſiſtance for ſeveral "Years paſt, from the Lord-Mayor and Court of "Aldermen, who are ſenſible of the great Service that is done by them, which they expreſs "upon proper Occaſions.

"III. A Third Society is of Conſtables, (of "which ſort of Officers, Care is taken to form "Yearly a new Body in this City) who meet to "conſider of the moſt effectual Way to diſcharge "their Oaths; to acquaint one another with the "Difficulties they meet with; to reſolve on proper "Remedies; to divide themſelves in the ſeveral "Parts of the City, ſo as to take in the whole to "the beſt Advantage; for the inſpecting of diſorderly Houſes, taking up of Drunkards, Lewd "Perſons, Prophaners of the Lord's-Day, and "Swearers, out of the Streets and Markets; and "carrying them before the Magiſtrates: And I "muſt obſerve, that is found a very ſucceſsful Method for Conſtables to take, for the ſuppreſſing of "the abominable Sin of Swearing, when Private "Perſons are negligent in giving Informations, and "the Magiſtrate is careleſs of his Duty.

"IV. A Fourth Rank of Men, who have been "ſo highly Inſtrumental in this Undertaking, that "they may be reckon'd a Corner Stone of it, is of "ſuch as have made it ſome part of their Buſineſs "to give Informations to the Magiſtrates, as they "have had Opportunity, of ſuch Breaches of the "Laws as were before-mention'd. Many of theſe "Perſons have given the World a great and almoſt "unheard-of Example, in this corrupt Age, of "Zeal and Chriſtian Courage, having undergone "at the Beginning more eſpecially of their Proceedings, many Abuſes and great Reproaches, "not only from exaſperated and hardned Offenders, but often from their lukewarm Friends, "irreligious Relations, and ſometimes from Unfaithful Magiſtrates, by whom they have been reviled, Brow-beaten, and diſcouraged from performing ſuch important Service, ſo neceſſary to the "Welfare of their Country. And herein theſe "brave Men have acted with ſo great Prudence as "well as Zeal, that foreſeeing it might one Day "be the Policy of the Enemy of all Goodneſs, and "the Buſineſs of wicked Men, who are his Inſtruments, and who could not generally be brought "to Shame and Puniſhment for their infamous "Practices, but by their Means, to raiſe Prejudices "in the Minds of bad and unthinking People againſt "them, and to diſparage their Proceedings, by "whiſpering of Jealouſies of being influenced in "what they did by worldly Conſiderations; that "the World may be challenged to make appear, "that theſe Societies have been ſo much as treated "with by any Perſon whatſoever, to give Informations with any Promiſe of a Reward, or that they "have ever received the leaſt Advantage by any "Convictions upon theſe Statutes againſt Prophaneneſs and Debauchery; the Money ariſing thereby, "being wholly appropriated to the Poor, except "the Third Part of the Penalty upon the Statute "againſt Prophanation of the Lord's-Day; which, "in ſome Caſes, the Magiſtrate hath a bare Power to "diſpoſe of; but was never, that we know of, received by any one of theſe Perſons. Which I "thought fit to obſerve, as a laſting Anſwer to any "Objection of this kind, in Juſtice to them who "have gone through Reproaches for the ſake of doing ſo much Good. And that all Men may ſee "with how great Reaſon it is, both from the Character of the Perſons concerned in the diſcharging "of this Service to Religion and their Country, as "well as from the Nature and Neceſſity of it "(which I ſhall hereafter enquire into) that the "Name of an Informer is now become much more "Glorious among wiſe and good Men, than it was "grown contemptible by the ill Practices of ſome in "our Days. And that it does therefore appear truly "Honourable for Perſons of the greateſt Quality, "to give Informations in theſe Caſes for the Service "of the moſt High God, as ſome among us of "greater Ranks than the World does perhaps think "of, have of late done, and which it hath been obſerved in divers Diſcourſes lately publiſhed, that "even Princes under the Jewiſh Diſpenſation were "not aſhamed to do. Now when theſe Things were "done, the Princes came to me, ſaying, The People "of Iſrael, and the Prieſts, and the Levites have "not ſeparated themſelves from the People of the "Lands, doing according to their Abominations, &c.

Ezra 9. 1, 2.

"V. There are Eight other regulated and mixt "Bodies of Houſe-keepers and Officers in the ſeveral Quarters of London, and Southwark, who "differ in their Conſtitution from thoſe before-mention'd, but generally agree in the Methods "of inſpecting the Behaviour of Conſtables and "other Officers, and going along with them, and "aſſiſting them in their ſearching diſorderly Houſes, "in taking up of Offenders, and carrying them before the Magiſtrate; and alſo in giving Informations themſelves, as there is Occaſion.

"VI. Beſides theſe before-mention'd, there are "about Nine and thirty Religious Societies of "another kind in and about London and Weſtminſter, which are propagated into other Parts "of the Nation; as Nottingham, Glouceſter, &c. "and even into Ireland, where they have been

1691. 3 W. M.

" been for ſome Months ſince ſpreading in divers Towns and Cities of that Kingdom; as Kilkenny, Drogheda, Monmouth, &c. eſpecially " in Dublin, where there are about Ten of theſe " Societies, which are promoted by the Biſhops " and inferior Clergy there. Theſe Perſons meet " often to pray, ſing Pſalms, and read the Holy " Scriptures together; and to reprove, exhort, and " edify one another by their Religious Conferences. " They moreover carry on at their Meetings, Deſigns of Charity of different kinds; ſuch as relieving the Wants of Poor Houſe-keepers, maintaining their Children at School, ſetting of Priſoners at Liberty, ſupporting of Lectures and Daily " Prayers in our Churches.

" Theſe are the Societies, which our late gracious Queen, as the Learned Biſhop that " hath writ her Life, tells us, took ſo great " Satisfaction in, that ſhe enquired often and much " about them, and was glad they went on and prevailed; which, thanks be to God, they continue " to do; as the Reverend Mr. Woodward, who hath " obliged the World with a very particular Account of the Riſe and Progreſs of them, hath " lately acquainted us. And theſe likewiſe are Societies that have proved ſo exceedingly ſerviceable " in the Work of Reformation, that they may be " reckoned a chief Support to it; as our late great " Primate, Archbiſhop (a) Tillotſon, declared upon " ſeveral Occaſions, after he had examined into " their Orders, That he thought they were the beſt " Friends to the Church of England.

1692. 4 W. M.

Proclamation for a General Faſt. The Queen being now in the Adminiſtration of Affairs, began the Year with a ſeaſonable Proclamation, Dated March the 26th, for appointing a Publick and General Faſt, to be obſerved throughout this Kingdom, on Friday, April the 8th, and thenceforth on the Second Wedneſday of every Month during the preſent War; for imploring the Bleſſing and Protection of Almighty God, in the Preſervation of their Majeſties Sacred Perſons, and Proſperity of their Arms both at Sea and Land.

Queen Dowager returns to Portugal. The Queen Dowager, who under all the Exigencies of Publick Affairs, had behaved her ſelf, and govern'd her Family in a very prudent and inoffenſive Manner, was now reſolved to leave this Kingdom, and to retire to her Native Country; and therefore, committing the Care of her Palace, and Servants, and Eſtate, to the Charge of the Earl of Feverſham, her Majeſty departed from Somerſet-Houſe on Wedneſday, March the 30th, and lay that Night at Rocheſter, the next at Canterbury, on Friday at Dover, whence ſhe embark'd for Calais, from thence to continue her Journey by Land to Portugal.

Sir Rowland Gwyn accuſed of Scandal. Sir Rowland Gwyn, Treaſurer of their Majeſties Chamber, was complained of by the Lord Sidney, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, for ſpeaking ſome Words reflecting on his Lordſhip, as if he had been Guilty of Bribery and Corruption. Sir Rowland was requir'd before her Majeſty in Council to ſhew what Grounds he had for his Accuſation: And not being able to make it out, he was turn'd out of his Place; tho' otherwiſe a Perſon who had been very much Inſtrumental to the preſent Settlement. And to vindicate the Honour of the Lord Sidney, this Order of Council was publiſhed from the Court at Whitehall, April the 7th, 1692.

1692. 4 W. M.

Vindication of the Lord Sidney. " A Complaint having been made by the Lord " Sidney, Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, againſt Sir " Rowland Gwyn, for Words ſpoken on the 21ſt, " or 22d Day of March laſt by him, reflecting " upon his Lordſhip, as if he had taken Money for " diſpoſing of Places in Ireland; and Sir Rowland " Gwyn having been required by her Majeſty to " ſhow what Grounds he had for ſpeaking the ſaid " Words; (for doing whereof he had Time given " him to this Day;) And now being called in and " heard, and not being able to make out the ſaid Matter, or to ſhow any Ground for ſpeaking the ſaid " Words, her Majeſty thereupon in Council was " pleaſed to declare, That the ſaid Words were " Groundleſs and Scandalous, and that her Majeſty " is fully ſatisfied of the Falſhood of the ſame.

The King in Holland. His Majeſty had embarked for Holland on the 5th of March, had arrived the next Morning in the the Maeze, had landed at Orange-Polder, had gone the ſame Day to the Hague, and not long after to Loo. But before he could begin the Campaign, the Jacobites in England began to be Elevated with the Hopes of their Maſter's Reſtoration, and induſtriouſly to conſpire for him. Plots of the Jacobites. One Lunt, who was employ'd to bring over and diſperſe King James's Commiſſions, having had the good Fortune to be diſcharg'd from Impriſonment, was again entertained in 1691, by the Lancaſhire Papiſts, to Liſt Men, and Buy Arms; that if his Majeſty ſhould be taken off in Flanders, they might be ready for an Inſurrection in England, as ſoon as the Blow was given. Theſe Preparations having ſpent the Summer of the Year, 1691, and the Campaign in Flanders being ended, without any News either of the Aſſaſſination or Invaſion, Lunt was ſent in November into France, to acquaint the Abdicated Monarch, that they were in a Condition to receive him; and therefore deſired him to inform them, when his Affairs would permit him to make a Deſcent into this Kingdom. Lunt return'd in December following, with Advice, that King James would be in England the next Spring; and that in the mean time, Colonel Parker, and others, ſhould be ſent over with full Inſtructions how to put themſelves into a Poſture fit for his Majeſty's Reception; for now the Deſcent from La Hogue was reſolv'd upon.

Colonel Parker, and Johnſon the Prieſt, who in Conjunction with ſome few others, had projected the intended Murder of the King, Landed in England about the latter end of Jan. laſt; and thinking the Aſſaſſination of his Majeſty to be the only means to make the Invaſion practicable, and the Conqueſt of England eaſy, they communicated this Deſign to as many as they could Truſt: And (as Mr. Goodman depoſed) were in hopes to have done it before the King went to Holland; but they were ſo long in contriving how, by whom, when, and where it was to be done, that the time happily

(a) As to other Affairs of Religion. See 1. A Declaration of the Opinion of the French Miniſters who are now Refugees in England, about ſome Points of Religion, in oppoſition to the Socinians, ſubſcribed by about Ninety Six Miniſters. Dat. London 30, March, 1691; occaſioned by a Letter, which the Biſhop of London, at preſent in Holland, wrote to Monſieur le Coq, Counſellor in the Parliament of Paris, complaining of Reports ſpread, that the ſaid Miniſters were not ſound in the Faith. Printed at the End of Monſieur Lamothe's Diſcourſes, 1693, 4to. —— 2. Heads of Agreement aſſented to by the United Miniſters in and about London, formerly called Presbyterian and Congregational, not as a Meaſure for any National Conſtitution, but for the Preſervation of Order in our Congregations, that cannot come up to the common Rule by Law eſtabliſhed; Read unto moſt of the Diſſenting Miniſters in and about London, on Friday, March 6, 1690--91, 4to. —— 3. Two Sticks made one, or the Excellency of Unity. A Sermon Preached by the Appointment of the Miniſters of the Congregational and Presbyterian Perſuaſion, at their happy Union on the 6th Day of April, 1691, which was a Day ſet apart by them, partly to bewail former Diviſions, and partly as a Thankſgiving to God for their preſent Agreement. By Matthew Mead, Paſtor of a Church of Chriſt at Stepney. London, Printed for Tho. Parkhurſt, 1691, 4to. —— 4. Free Thoughts, occaſioned by the Heads of Agreement, aſſented to by the United Miniſters in and about London. By a Miniſter of the Church of England. Licenſed, Sept. 1. 1691, 4to. —— 5. The Biſhop of London's Eighth Letter to his Clergy, upon a Conference how they ought to behave themſelves under the Toleration. I. To conſider what Diſcipline we have left. II. How to prevent the Abuſe of this Liberty. III. How to prevail with our Diſſenting Brethren, to join heartily with us in diſcouraging Looſe and Prophane Perſons. Dat. March, 1691-2. London, for B. Motte, 4to.

lapſed

1692. 4 W. M.

lapſed before their Conſultations came to Maturity: However, Parker aſſur'd them that the Aſſaſſination Plot would be re-aſſum'd in Flanders, by the ſame Perſons who had undertaken it laſt Campaign. While King James was preparing for a Deſcent, he was to leave his Queen big with Child, and drawing near her Time; upon which Occaſion, he ſent a Letter, Dated April 2. to ſeveral Lords and others of his late Privy-Council, requiring ſuch of them as could poſſibly come, to pay their Attendance at St. Germains, to be Witneſſes of the Labour of his Royal Conſort; which Letter was alſo directed to the Dutcheſſes of Somerſet and Beaufort, the Marchioneſs of Hallifax, the Counteſſes of Derby, Mulgrave, Rutland, Nottingham, Lumley, and Danby; the Ladies Brooke, Fitzharding, and Fretchvile; and to the Wives of theſe following Commoners, of Sir John Trevor, Speaker, Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Chriſtopher Muſgrave, Sir Thomas Pope Blount, Sir John Gayſe, Thomas Foley, Eſq; Sir Thomas Stamp, Lord-Mayor, Sir William Aſhburſt, Sir Richard Levett, the Two Sheriffs; and in Concluſion, to Dr. Hugh Chamberlain, a Perſon eminent for the Practice of Midwifery; but none of theſe Perſons anſwer'd that Invitation. So that without their Appearance the Queen was ſaid to be ſoon after delivered of a Daughter.

Letters of K. James, to attend at the Queen's Delivery.

Progreſs of the Jacobite Plot.

When the Scheme of a Deſcent was fully laid in France, Colonel Parker and others, were ſent over to communicate it to the Jacobite Party here. This the Colonel did, by calling ſome General Officers, and other Confederates together, and acquainting them (according to the Depoſitions of Captain Blaire, before the Privy-Council) That their Old Maſter had now obtained of the Moſt Chriſtian King Thirty Thouſand effective Men, and that when the Spring was a little more advanced, K. James, who was already marching into Normandy, would be wafted over with them into England; with aſſurance, that if that Number was not great enough to reduce his rebellious Subjects, France would ſpare him Thirty Thouſand more. Therefore he deſir'd all to be in a readineſs with the greateſt Speed and Secrecy imaginable: And addreſſing himſelf particularly to Captain Blaire, (at the Inſtance of Johnſon the Prieſt) he told him, he was going to Command in Lancaſhire, but intended to move Southward at his Majeſty's Landing; and therefore deſired the Captain to join him, in regard his own Men were Raw, and the Captain's, for the moſt part, were all old Officers and Soldiers.

When Parker went into Lancaſhire, he took with him ſeveral good Officers; ſome of which ſtaid with him in that County, and others he diſpos'd of in Yorkſhire, and the Biſhoprick of Durham. His Head-Quarters were at Mr. Walmſley's at Dungan-Hall; from whence he iſſued out his Orders. And becauſe their Arms were (for fear of Diſcovery) hid in Woods or Hedges, or buried between Walls, or laid up in Cellars and Out-houſes, he ordered them all to be taken out and diſtributed among the Officers and Liſted Men: While Mr. James Fountaine, a Lieutenant-Colonel to the Lord Montgomery, and Colonel Holman, were compleating each a Regiment of Horſe in London, to join the late King at his Landing.

For by this time K. James had left Paris, and was come to La Hogue with a conſiderable Army of Engliſh, Scotch, Iriſh, and French, ready to embark for England. And to prepare the way, he had ſent over a very formal Declaration to this Effect. (a)

1692. 4 W. M.

K. James prepares for a Deſcent. Sends over a Declaration.

"That whereas the French King according to his "Promiſe, had put him into a way of endeavouring "his Reſtoration, and to that end had lent him as "many Troops as were enough to untye the Hands "of his Subjects, and to make it ſafe for them to "return to their Duty, and repair to his Standard; "and yet purpoſely declined the ſending over ſuch "numerous Forces, as might raiſe Jealouſy in the "Minds of any his good Subjects; as if he intend- "ed to take the Work out of their Hands, and de- "prive them of ſo glorious an Action as the Reſto- "ration of their Lawful King (all which Troops "he promiſed to ſend away, as ſoon as he was put "into peaceable Poſſeſſion) though the thing was "obvious enough in it ſelf, and that he did not "think himſelf obliged to ſay any more upon that "Occaſion, than that he came to aſſert his own juſt "Rights, and to deliver his People from the Op- "preſſions they lay under: Yet, conſidering how "ſtrangely they were deluded by the Prince of "Orange's Declaration, and to prevent as much as "in him lay, the ſame for the future, he was wil- "ling to look back, and take the Matter from the "beginning. And it could not be forgotten, that "as ſoon as he had notice of the Prince's Inten- "tions to invade him, he put himſelf both by Sea "and Land, into the beſt poſture of Defence he "was able; and ſeemed to have done the ſame ſo "effectually, that tho' the French King offer'd him "conſiderable Succours, he refuſed them, and threw "himſelf wholly upon the Fidelity of the Engliſh "Army; and at the ſame time applied himſelf to "give reaſonable Satisfaction to the Minds of his "good Subjects, and undeceive them in reſpect to "the Danger of the intended Invaſion: But they "perceiv'd it not till it was too late, and the De- "fection grown ſo general, that he was at length "neceſſitated to retire into France, in order to "avoid the preſent Danger which threatned him, "and to preſerve himſelf for better Times, and a "more happy Opportunity, which was then put "into his Hands.

"Upon that Foundation of Juſtice or common "Senſe, the Prince's Faction in England were "pleas'd to Treat his Eſcape out of the Hands of "his Enemies, in the Style of an Abdication; "which was never before uſed to ſignify any Thing "but a voluntary Reſignation: But upon which "they built ſuch a Superſtructure, as to make an "Ancient Hereditary Monarchy become Elective. "Then he goes on to ſhew the Miſeries and In- "conveniencies, which he ſuppoſes had already, "and would ſtill attend ſuch unwarrantable Pro- "ceedings; inſiſts upon the indiſputable Title of "his only Son, hoping his Queen was then with "Child of another; ſets forth the calamitous Con- "dition of Europe, by reaſon of that War, an End "of which there could be no reaſonable Proſpect of "till his Reſtoration; he comes to prohibit his "Subjects to pay any Taxes to ſupport the preſent "Uſurpation; and to gain them all over to his

(a) This Declaration was ſaid to be penned by Sir James Montgomery, who liv'd to be an Example of the Ingratitude of the Popiſh Court to the Proteſtant Servants in it. We have this Account given of him. It is well known, that Sir James Montgomery was indefatigable in his Endeavours to re-eſtabliſh King James in Scotland, by the ſame Parliament that declared him to have forfeited his Right. He was after that for ſeveral Years his moſt active Miniſter in England. He Wrote and Publiſhed that Declaration in his Name, which was to have attended the La Hogue Invaſion; and afterwards, another Treaſonable Pamphlet, Entituled, Britain's Juſt Complaints. In a Word, he was his conſtant Champion on all Occaſions, always drawing his Pen in his Quarrels, and ready always to do the ſame with his Sword: Yet this very Sir James Montgomery, who had done ſuch great Things, and run ſuch hazards for him, being obliged to fly to France, having eſcaped from a Meſſenger, could not obtain any Share in that Prince's good Graces, meerly becauſe he was a ſtaunch Church-Man. He was Browbeaten by the Court-Prieſts, upbraided every Day with having been once in the Prince of Orange's Intereſt, and at laſt forced to retire to Paris, where he dy'd neglected with the melancholy Reflection of the miſerable State he had brought himſelf into.

"Service,

1692.
4 W. M.

“ Service, he declares he would pardon all of them “ that ſhould return to their Duty, (except the Perſons hereafter named) provided all Magiſtrates, “ upon notice of his Landing, made ſome publick “ Manifeſtation of their Allegiance to him, and “ Submiſſion to his Authority : And he further de- “ clared, that if any of the Soldiery, who were in “ the Prince's Service, ſhould come in to him, they “ ſhould be pardoned, and have their Pay and Ar- “ rears. Likewiſe he promiſed to Maintain the “ Church of England, and earneſtly recommended “ to his Parliament the ſettling of Liberty of Con- “ ſcience, and in a Word, to do every Thing that “ might tend to the Honour and Welfare of the “ Nation.

Perſons excepted out of K. James's Pardon.

But out of this Offer of Pardon, he was pleaſed to except the Duke of Ormond, the Marqueſs of Wincheſter, the Earls of Sunderland, Bath, Danby and Nottingham ; and the Lords Newport, Delamere, Wiltſhire, Colcheſter, Cornbury, Dunblain and Churchill ; the Biſhops of London and St. Aſaph ; Sir Robert Howard, Sir John Worden, Sir Samuel Grimſton, Sir Stephen Fox, Sir George Treby, Sir Baſil Dixwell, Sir James Oxenden, Dr. John Tillotſon, Dr. Gilbert Burnet, Francis Ruſſel, Richard Leveſon, John Trenchard, Eſq; and Charles Duncomb, Citizen of London ; together with all ſuch as offered Perſonal Indignities to him at Feverſham, and thoſe who as Judges and Jurymen had a Hand in the Murder of Mr. Aſhton, Mr. Croſs, &c. and likewiſe all Spies and ſuch as had betrayed his Councils during his late Abſence from England.

The Queen's wiſe Conduct.

The Queen being informed of the deſigned Invaſion, with a Maſculine Courage and aſſiduous Care, gave Orders for haſtening out the Fleet, and putting the Militia in readineſs. (a) She ſent over for Three Regiments of Foot, Colonel Selwin's, Beveridge's and Lloyd's from Holland, under the Command of Lieutenant-General Talmaſh, which together with ſome other Troops remaining then in the Kingdom, did afterwards form a Camp near Portſmouth. To be the better ſecured from the Dangers of an Inſurrection, She publiſhed a Proclamation May 4. “ Commanding all Papiſts and reputed Papiſts, “ forthwith to depart from the Cities of London “ and Weſtminſter, and from within Ten Miles of “ the ſame. And to provide for the Advice and “ Aſſiſtance of a fitting Parliament, ſhe publiſhed “ another Proclamation, May 5. requiring the At- “ tendance of the Members of both Houſes, on “ May 24. the Day to which the Parliament had “ been prorogued ; declaring that they ſhould on the “ ſaid Day Meet and Sit for the Diſpatch of ſuch “ Weighty and Important Affairs, as may be re- “ quiſite for the Safety of the Kingdom, in a Time “ when it was threatned with a powerful Invaſion “ from abroad”. In the next Place ſhe cauſed a diligent Search to be made after ſeveral of the moſt Diſaffected Perſons, and ordered Warrants to be iſſued out againſt them ; upon which they withdrawing themſelves from their uſual Places of Abode, and being fled from Juſtice, ſhe publiſhed a Proclamation, May the 9th, to diſcover, take and apprehend Robert Earl of Scarſdale, Edward Henry Earl of Litchfield, Edward Lord Griffin, Charles Earl of Newbourg, Charles Earl of Middleton, Charles Earl of Dunmore, the Lord Forbes, Eldeſt Son of the Earl of Granard ; James Griffin, Eſq; Sir John Fenwick, Sir Theophilus Oglethorpe, Sir Andrew Foreſter, Colonel Henry Slingsby, James Grahme, Eſq; ------ Orby, Second Son of Sir Thomas Orby, deceas'd, Colonel Edward Sackville, Oliver St. George, Eſq; Son of Sir Oliver St. George, Major Thomas Soaper, Charles Adderly, Eſq; David Lloyd, Eſq; George Porter, Eſq; Son of Thomas Porter, Eſq; deceaſed, and Edward Stafford, Eſq;. And to be the better guarded, ſhe order'd the Militia of Weſtminſter, being Two Regiments of Foot of about Fifteen Hundred Men each, and a Troop of Horſe, to appear in Hide-Park on Monday, May the 9th, under the Earl of Bedford, Lord Lieutenant of Middleſex ; and the next Day, the Train'd Bands of the City of London, in Six Regiments, under the Command of the Lord-Mayor, and other their reſpective Colonels, (conſiſting together of above Ten Thouſand Men) were drawn out in the ſame Place. Her Majeſty was pleaſed to go in Perſon among 'em on both Days, and was extreamly pleaſed with the good Order they appeared in, and the great Zeal and Readineſs they ſhew'd for her Majeſty's Service.

1692.
4 W. M.

Proclamation to apprehend ſuſpected Perſons.

The Fleet ſet out.

The (b) Fleet under the Command of Admiral Ruſſel paſſed through the Downs on May the 8th, where they were joined by Admiral Allemond, with the Dutch Squadron under his Command ; and ſoon after met the other Part of our Fleet from St. Helens, under Command of Sir Ralph Delaval, and Rear-Admiral Carter. Some Time before, the (c) Jacobites had ſent over Captain Lloyd Expreſs to the Lord Melford, to acquaint his Lordſhip, “ That “ they had corrupted ſeveral of the Engliſh Sea- “ Commanders, particularly Rear-Admiral Carter ; “ and with that falſe Intelligence, they tranſmitted “ to him an exact Liſt of the Number and Rates of “ the Engliſh Fleet ; and how long it would be be- “ fore it was poſſible they could be joined by the “ Dutch : Praying his Lordſhip to lay it before the “ moſt Chriſtian King, and procure his Command “ to Mareſchal de Tourville, to ſeek, and immedi- “ ately to fight the Engliſh, before they could be “ reinforced by the Hollanders.” Upon the Receipt of this Meſſage, the Lord Melford applied himſelf to the King of France ; who immediately gave his poſitive Commands to Tourville, to (d) engage the Intelligence ſent from France.

(a) The Earl of Warrington, in a Treatiſe, ſoon after the Invaſion of La Hogue was prevented by Admiral Ruſſel beating the French Fleet, wrote thus : “ I ſee ſo much Treachery in “ the whole Management of the King's Affairs, that I have “ ſcarce Patience to think of it. The whole Adminiſtration “ is put into ſuch Hands, as would make a Man believe, that “ a Deſign is deeply and ſtrongly laid to bring back King “ James. Moſt of the Juſtices of Peace throughout England “ (whoſe faithful Execution of the Laws is the Strength of the “ Government) are now ſuch as would be certainly ready to “ bid him welcome. And many of them are ſo very ſcanda- “ lous in their Morals, that the Queen was conſtrained by “ Proclamation to order the Execution of the Laws againſt “ Debauchery among themſelves.

(b) See A Form of Prayer, to be uſed next after the Prayer in Time of War and Tumults throughout the Kingdom, in all Churches and Chapels, at Morning and Evening Prayer, as often as there is Divine Service, during the Time of their Majeſties Fleets being at Sea. Whitehall, May 19. 1692. 4to.

(c) The great Dependance of King James was on the Nonjuring Biſhops and Clergy, who ſeem'd reſolved to ſtand out in the utmoſt Defiance to the preſent Government. And upon that Occaſion there was publiſh'd, May 20. 1692. a Diſcourſe entitled, Solomon and Abiathar ; or, The Caſe of the Depriv'd Biſhops and Clergy diſcuſs'd, &c. wherein it is ſaid, “ The “ Time aſſigned by the Law, and the King's long Forbearance “ to fill the Sees after the Day of Deprivation, argues a Wil- “ lingneſs in the State to give Men Time to conſider, and to “ allay their Prejudices, and uſe Means to come under the “ Publick Shelter ; of which the Reſtitution and Preferment “ of Dr. Sherlock is a clear Inſtance. But the Recuſants ſeem “ (againſt all Intreaties) wanting to themſelves, and a happy “ Coalition. They have made no Offers, no Applications ; “ but receded further from Sacred and Civil Communion than “ at firſt they did ; which Neglect muſt look like a Con- “ tempt at leaſt, if not an Hatred of the Conſtitution. Nay, “ I know a Dioceſe, where the Biſhop utterly ſuppreſs'd a Pe- “ tition ſign'd by his Clergy, and ready to be preſented to “ their Majeſties, for the Reſtitution of the Metropolitan, the “ Biſhop, and the ſuſpended Clergy of that Dioceſe. And I “ have it from a good Hand, that a Motion for ſuch a Petition “ was ſtifled in the Lower Houſe of Convocation, upon a Re- “ port made of my Lord Archbiſhop Sancroft's Requeſt to “ the contrary.”

(d) See The Pretences of the French King's Invaſion examin'd ; for the Information of the People of England. Licenſed. Nottingham, May 25. 1692. London, 1692. 4to.

Engliſh

1692. 4 W. M.

Engliſh Fleet, without waiting for the Toulon Squadron under Monſieur D'Eſtrees. Upon this Occaſion, a Report was ſpread abroad, as if ſome of the Officers of their Majeſties Fleet were diſaffected, or not hearty in their Service; and that the Queen had thereupon order'd the Diſcharge of many of 'em from their Employments. Her Majeſty was with great Wiſdom ſenſible, that nothing could prevent the Truth of this Rumour more effectually, than to declare her ſelf convinc'd of the Falſhood of it: And therefore ſhe commanded the Earl of Nottingham to write to Admiral Ruſſel, and to let him know, That her Majeſty was ſatisfy'd that this Report was raiſed by the Enemies of the Government; and that ſhe propoſed ſo entire a Confidence in their Fidelity and Zeal for their Majeſties Service, and the Defence of their Country, that ſhe had reſolved not to diſplace any one of them. Which being communicated to 'em by the Admiral, they ſent up a very Dutiful and Loyal Addreſs, wherein ſay they, We humbly preſume to addreſs our ſelves to your Majeſty at this Juncture, to undeceive the World in thoſe falſe and malicious Reports, that have been lately ſpread in Prejudice of your Majeſty's Service, by People of an unreaſonable Diſaffection to your Majeſty's Government, and an obſtinate Averſion to the Quiet and Good of our Country; That there are ſome amongſt us, that are not truly zealous for, and entirely devoted to your Majeſty's Service. We do therefore moſt humbly beg your Majeſty's Leave, to add to our repeated Oaths this Aſſurance of our Fidelity; That we will, with all imaginable Alacrity and Reſolution, venture our Lives in the Defence of your Majeſty's undoubted Rights, and the Liberty and Religion of our Country, againſt all Foreign and Popiſh Invaders whatſoever. This Addreſs was ſign'd by Sir John Aſhby, Admiral of the Blue; Sir Ralph Delaval, Vice-Admiral of the Red; Mr. Rooke, Vice-Admiral of the Blue; Sir Cloudeſly Shovel, Rear-Admiral of the Red; Mr. Carter, Rear-Admiral of the Blue; and by other Commanders in the Fleet; and was preſented on May the 16th, by the Lords Commiſſioners of the Admiralty. Her Majeſty accepted it very graciouſly; being pleaſed to ſay, That ſhe always had this Opinion of the Commanders; but was very glad this was come, to ſatisfy others.

Prudence of the Queen.

Loyalty of the Seamen.

Parliament prorogu'd.

Upon this Aſſurance which the Queen gave and receiv'd from her Fleet, ſhe publiſh'd a Proclamation the ſame Day; declaring, That the Parliament ſhould be prorogued from May the 24th, to the 14th of June next; giving this for the chief Reaſon: Our Navy being now at Sea, and joined with that of our Allies, and in a Readineſs (by the Bleſſing of God) to reſiſt and repel the Deſigns and Attempts of our Enemies. Whereby her Majeſty expreſſed an intrepid Temper, and indeed a Prophetick Spirit.

Whilſt the Jacobites were pleaſing themſelves with Hopes of approaching Succeſs, the firſt Thing that put a Damp upon 'em, was, the various Reports about the Joining of the Engliſh and Dutch Fleets. Once they had Notice they were joined; but this being contradicted the next Day, leſt that Report ſhould have Influence upon the French, they ſent over Sir Adam Blaire, to aſſure them that the Dutch were not yet come up: Yet ſo it happen'd, that before the Gentleman could reach Dover, they had certain News that the Fleets were join'd indeed; and therefore one Mr. Clark was diſpatch'd into France, to acquaint them with this fatal Junction. But Mr. Clark was ſo far from gaining Credit to his Report, (Sir Adam Blaire averring the contrary) that he was impriſon'd as a Spreader of falſe News, till ſeveral other Expreſſes confirm'd his Account. Thereupon the King of France ſent Meſſenger upon Meſſenger to Tourville, to decline fighting; but theſe Counter-Orders arrived too late.

French Fleet engage the Engliſh;

For on the 19th of May, whilſt both (a) France and England were at a Gaze in dubious Expectation of this important Event; about Eleven in the Morning, the French Admiral bore down and engaged the Confederate Fleet off Cape Barfleur; and both Fleets continued Fighting till about Half an Hour paſt Four in the Afternoon, when the French towed away with all their Boats, the great Firing on both Sides having ſoon occaſioned a Calm. But a freſh Gale ſpringing up about Six, the Blue Squadron renewed the Fight, and maintained it till Ten at Night, when the French being worſted, and having had Four Ships blown up, ſteer'd away for Conquet-Road. All that Night it was very Calm, and Foggy the next Morning; but about Eleven it beginning to clear up a little, the Engliſh ſaw the French Fleet about two Leagues from them, very much leſſened in their Number, not ſeeming to be above Thirty Eight Men of War, after whom they made all the Sail they could. But about Ten it grew Calm again; and at Three in the Afternoon the two Fleets came to an Anchor, but weighed about Eleven at Night, and anchored next Morning. On the 21*ſt*, the Engliſh Sailed again againſt the Enemy, the Admiral ſteering towards Barfleur, and the Dutch and Blue Squadron towards the Road of Alderney, through which part of the French Fleet got ſafe to St. Maloes, the Engliſh not thinking it ſafe to purſue them that way, for which Sir John Aſhby was queſtioned in Parliament. Sir Ralph Delaval had better Succeſs; for off of Cherbourg he burnt the Royal Sun, a Ship of a Hundred and Four Guns, commanded by Admiral Tourville; the Admirable, a Ship of a Hundred and two Guns; and the Conquerant, that carried Eighty Guns; with three more of leſſer Rate. Admiral Ruſſel was no leſs ſucceſsful in purſuit of Thirteen French Men of War, who hawl'd in for La Hogue, in which Bay he Anchor'd the 21*ſt*, and next Day ſtood in, and ſent Vice-Admiral Rook with ſeveral Men of War, Frigats, Fireſhips, and Armed Boats, to endeavour to deſtroy that Part of the Enemies Fleet. But the French had got their Ships ſo very near the Shore, that not any of the Men of War, except their ſmall Frigats could do any Service, however, that Night Six of the Enemies Men of War were burnt, and

And are beaten.

Deſtruction of French Ships.

(a) Upon the Proſpect of a Foreign Invaſion, all Parties ſhewed the Inclinations they had before concealed; the Papiſts who had pretended to Retirement came up in great Numbers toward London and the Sea-Coaſts. The Proteſtant Jacobites, and Non-Jurors, who had pleaded Conſcience only, began to be viſibly full of Revenge and Ambition. The Clergy who had complied with the Revolution without overcoming their Prejudices to it, ſeem'd willing to think their late Oaths unlawful, and to have little or no Obligation in them; and even ſome who had been moſt forward in the driving out King James, not finding their own private Account in it, were ready to atone for that Miſcarriage by a warmer Zeal to undo all that had been done. Biſhop Burnet, in the Sermon he prepar'd for the Thankſgiving after this great Danger, Octob. 27. 1692, was to ſpeak theſe Truths. The Number of thoſe that ſerve at the Altar, that could have pretended to Favour, was ſo ſmall, that how great ſoever their Merit might have been, in the hoped-for Invaſion, yet they would ſoon have found, that they had to do with Men of good Memories, who would have remembred their worthy Behaviour Four Years ago. A Pardon for that, and ſome ſmall Appointments to them perſonally, would have been thought a large Reward. But they muſt be given up to believe Lies, that could fancy their ſingle Services could have atoned for the Zeal and Fidelity that ſo many Thouſands have ſhewed to the preſent Government. Others might have pleaded a Merit of a very ſtrange Nature, and have ſaid, that they had taken Oaths on purpoſe to betray thoſe to whom they ſwore, and for whom they pray'd; and kept Faſts and Thankſgiving Days, but in ſo awkward a manner as if they had deſign'd that all Men ſhould take notice, that they were acting aginſt their Conſciences, of which to the Reproach of the Age and of Religion, there are but too many, and too viſible Inſtances. But this is ſo high a ſtrain of Wickedneſs, that even Papiſts, even when they ſeem to cheriſh it, cannot but condemn it.

the

1692. the next Day the other Seven, beſides ſeveral Tranſport-Ships. The Attempt was very difficult and
4 W. M. dangerous, but was perform'd with that Conduct and Reſolution, and the Seamen in the Boats were ſo animated by their Victory, that they took poſſeſſion of ſeveral of the Enemies Ships, and drove the French with their own Guns, from their Platforms and Batteries on Shore; and all this in the ſight of the French and Iriſh Camp, that lay ready to invade England.

Relation of this Victory in Two Letters. The moſt Authentick Relations of this Glorious Action at Sea, are given in two Letters from our Fleet which deſerve to be here inſerted. The Firſt from Admiral Ruſſel; the Second from Sir Ralph Delaval.

Admiral Ruſſel's Letter, dated May 20. 1692.

Cape Barfleur, S. W. Diſtance Seven Leagues.

" YEſterday about Three in the Morning, Cape-Barfleur bearing S. W. and by S. Diſtance " Seven Leagues, my Scouts made the Signal for " ſeeing the Enemy. The Wind Weſterly, the " French bore down to me, and at Eleven engaged " me, but at ſome Diſtance. We continued Fight" ing till half an Hour paſt Five in the Evening, at " which Time the Enemy towed away with all their " Boats, and we after them. It was calm all Day. " About Six there was a freſh Engagement to the " Weſtward of me, which I ſuppoſed to be the " Blue. It continued calm all Night. I can give " no particular Account of Things; but that the " French were beaten, and I am now ſteering away " for Conquet Road, having a freſh Gale Eaſterly " but extream Foggy: I ſuppoſe that is the Place " they deſign for. If it pleaſe God to ſend us a " little clear Weather, I doubt not but we ſhall de" ſtroy their whole Fleet. I ſaw in the Night Three " or Four Ships blow up; but I know not what " they are. So ſoon as I am able to give you a more " particular Relation, I will not be wanting.

Sir Ralph Delaval's Letter to the Earl of Nottingham; on Board the Royal Sovereign near Cherburgh, May 22.

" I Believe it my Duty to acquaint you, that on " the 21ſt Inſtant, Admiral Ruſſel having made " the Signal for the Fleet to cut their Cables, I obſerv'd " the French to be forced from the Race of Alderney, " (where they anchor'd) to the Eaſtward; and find" ing that ſome of them endeavour'd for the Bay of " Cherburgh, I ſtood in for that Place, where I " found Three Three-Deck'd Ships of the Enemies, " but ſo cloſe to the Shore, and within ſome Rocks, " that it was not ſafe for me to attempt them, till I " had informed my ſelf of the Road, they being " hawled into Shoal-Water. I immediately took " my Boats, and ſounded within Gun-ſhot of them; " which they endeavour'd to prevent, by firing at us. " And that no Time might be loſt, I went immediately " on Board the St. Albans, where, for the Encourage" ment of the Seamen, I hoiſted my Flag; and " having order'd the Ruby, with Two Fire-ſhips, to " attend me, I ſtood in with them, leaving the " great Ships without, as drawing too much Water. " But coming very near, they galled ſo extremely, " and finding the Fire-ſhips could not get in, I " judged it beſt to retreat without Shot, and there " Anchor'd; and immediately called all the Cap" tains: Where it was reſolved to attempt them on " the Morning with all the Third and Fourth Rates, " and Fire-ſhips. But after having drawn them in" to Four Fathom and a half Water, I found we " could not do our Buſineſs, the Water being ſhoal. " Upon which I order'd Three Fire-ſhips to prepare " themſelves to attempt the burning of them; go" ing my ſelf with all the Barges and Tenders, to " take them up, if by the Enemies Shot they " ſhould miſcarry. Indeed, I may ſay, and I hope, " without Vanity, the Service was warm; yet, God " be praiſed, ſo effectually performed, that not" withſtanding all their Shot both from their Ships " and Forts, Two of our Fire-ſhips had good Suc" ceſs, by burning Two of them; the other by an " unfortunate Shot was ſet on Fire, being juſt going " on Board the Enemy. Indeed ſo brave was the " Attempt, that I think they can hardly be ſuffi" ciently rewarded; and doubt not but their Maje" ſties will do them Right. The Third French " Ship being run aſhore, and obſerving the People " on Board to go aſhore by Boats full, I order'd the " St. Albans, the Reſerve, and others, to fire up" on her, judging it might cauſe them to quit her; " and after having battered her ſome time, I ob" ſerved ſhe made no Reſiſtance. I took all the " Boats armed, and went on Board her. I found " abundance of Men on Board, and ſeveral wound" ed, but no Officers. And having cauſed all the " People, as well thoſe that were wounded as others, " to be taken out, I ſet her on fire; and had I not " had Notice by my Scouts, that Thirty Ships " were ſtanding with me, had ſent all the French " on Shore, who are now very troubleſome to me. " The Ships we ſaw proved to be Sir John Aſhby " and the Dutch, coming from the Weſtward. We " are proceeding together to the Eaſtward to La " Hogue, where I am informed Three or Four of " the Enemies Ships are; and if ſo, I hope God " will give us good Succeſs. I expect to find the " Admiral To-morrow, where I hope to hear he " has deſtroy'd ſome of the Enemies Ships, having " left him in Chaſe of them laſt Night, ſtanding to " the Eaſtward, and pretty near them, as I judged. " My Lord, I hope you will excuſe me, if I pre" ſume to pray, you will uſe your Intereſt with the " Queen, that a Reward may be given to the Three " Captains of the Fire-ſhips, and ſeveral of the " others; for greater Zeal, and greater Bravery, I " never ſaw. I pray your Excuſe for being thus " tedious, and thus particular. Pray God preſerve " their Majeſties, and that their Arms may be ever " crowned with Succeſs by Sea and Land, ſhall be " the Prayers and Endeavours of, &c.

P. S. Captain Heath burnt Tourville's Ship, the Royal Sun, which was the moſt difficult. Captain Greenway burnt the other, called the Conquerant. The Admirable was burnt by our Boats. Captain Fowlis attempted the Royal Sun, but was ſet on Fire by the Enemies Shot; yet deſerves as well as the others.

After theſe two Relations, there came other Letters from the Fleet, which gave this farther Account of proſecuting our happy Succeſs. " On May 23. " in the Afternoon, Admiral Ruſſel ſent in Vice- " Admiral Rook with ſeveral light Frigats and " Fire-ſhips, together with all the Boats of the " Fleet well Armed, to burn the French Ships " which he had forced aſhore near la Hogue. The " Attempt was very difficult and dangerous; but it " was made with ſuch Conduct and Reſolution, and " our Men in the Boats behav'd themſelves ſo brave" ly, taking Poſſeſſion of ſeveral of the Enemies " Ships, and beating the French with their own " Guns from their Platforms on the Shore, that Six " of the ſaid Ships were burnt that Night, and Six " more the next Morning, in ſight of the French " and Iriſh Camp, who fired upon us. Of theſe, " Six were of Three Decks, and the other Six, " from Sixty to Seventy Guns; and one Ship of " Fifty Six Guns was overſet, and utterly loſt. " Many of the French Seamen periſhed with their " Ships, and a great Number were taken Priſoners.

1692. 4 W. M.

" From the latter, we hear, that they loſt Four or " Five great Ships in the Fight, one of which was
" Monſieur Gabarel's, Admiral of the Blue Squa" dron, of Ninety odd Guns; ſo that we have de-
" ſtroy'd about Twenty one of their biggeſt Ships,
" beſides the Two Frigats, and other ſmall Craft;
" and had it not been for the Foggy Weather, few
" of the reſt would have eſcaped. On the other
" ſide, we have not loſt one Ship, except Fire-
" ſhips, which were ſpent upon Action; and be-
" ſides Rear-Admiral Carter, and Colonel Haſtings,
" we have not loſt one Commiſſion Officer. As to " the Number of Seamen that were killed or " wounded in the Engagement, we can yet give no
" certain Account thereof.
" On the 25th, Admiral Ruſſel ſet ſail from " La Hogue, and Anchored the 26th off of St. He-
" lens, after having burnt Twenty of the Enemy's " Tranſport Ships, (they having there about Fify
" in all) and ſent Sir John Aſhby with a Squadron
" of Engliſh and Dutch Men of War, and ſeveral
" Fire-ſhips, to make the like Attempt, if he found
" it practicable, upon their Shipping at Havre de
" Grace. The Admiral had given Orders, that " publick Prayers and Thankſgivings ſhould be " made to Almighty God on the 27th throughout " their Majeſties Fleet, for this great and ſignal
" Victory.

K. James deſponds, and writes a melancholy Letter.

King James felt this to be ſo heavy a Blow, that he never recover'd the Impreſſion of it. He ſeem'd now to recede from all Hopes of his Reſtoration, and fell to writing this melancholy Letter to the French King.

Monſieur, My Brother,

" I Have hitherto with ſomething of Conſtancy
" and Reſolution ſupported the Weight of all
" the Misfortunes, which it hath pleaſed Heaven to " lay upon me, ſo long as my ſelf was the only
" Sufferer: But I muſt acknowledge this laſt
" Diſaſter utterly overwhelms me; and I am alto-
" gether comfortleſs, in reference to what concerns
" your Majeſty, through the great Loſs that has be" fallen your Fleets. I know too well, that my " unlucky Star it is, that has drawn down this Miſ-
" fortune upon your Forces, always victorious, but " when they fought for my Intereſts. And this is " that which plainly tells me, that I no longer
" merit the Support of ſo great a Monarch, and " who is always ſure to vanquiſh when he fights
" for himſelf. For which Reaſon it is that I re-
" queſt your Majeſty, no longer to concern your
" ſelf for a Prince ſo unfortunate as my ſelf; but " permit me to retire with my Family to ſome
" Corner of the World, where I may ceaſe to ob-
" ſtruct the uſual Courſe of your Proſperities and " Conqueſts, which only my Misfortune could in" terrupt. It is not juſt, that the potenteſt Mo-
" narch in the World, and the moſt flouriſhing
" above all others, ſhould ſhare in my Diſgrace,
" becauſe you are too generous: 'Tis better much,
" that I ſhall only retire till it pleaſe Omnipotent
" Providenee to be more propitious to my Affairs.
" But howſoever it pleaſes over-ruling Heaven to " diſpoſe of me and mine, or into whatſoever Re-
" ceſs I may be thrown, I can aſſure your Majeſty,
" that I ſhall always preſerve, to the laſt Gaſp of " my expiring Breath, that due Acknowledgment
" which I ſtill retain, of your Favour and conſtant
" Friendſhip. Nor can any thing more contribute
" to my Conſolation, than to hear, as I hope to do,
" when I have wholly quitted your Dominions, of
" the quick Return of all your wonted Triumphs
" both by Sea and Land, over your Enemies and " mine, when my Intereſt ſhall be no longer inter-
" mixed with yours. I am,

Monſieur, my Brother,

Yours, &c.

James Rex.

The Queen wiſely improves this great Succeſs.

The wiſe and happy Queen was no ſooner inform'd of the Victory, but ſhe ſent a Gratuity of Thirty thouſand Pounds down to Portſmouth, to be diſtributed among the Seamen and Soldiers; order'd Medals to be made for Tokens of Honour to the Officers; and cauſed the Bodies of Rear-Admiral Carter, and Colonel Haſtings, who were ſlain in the Engagement, to be honourably interr'd. At the ſame time, her Majeſty conſidering to what Advantage this Succeſs might be improv'd, by making a Deſcent into France, before the Enemy had recover'd their Conſternation, order'd great Preparations to be made towards it. On the 23d of July, all the Forces deſign'd for this Expedition were ſhipp'd off at Portſmouth; and on the 25th, the Duke of Leimſter, who commanded in chief, embark'd on Board the Breda. The Orders, as 'tis uſual, were not to be open'd till they were at a certain Diſtance at Sea; and in regard they ſet Sail with a fair Wind in the moſt favourable Seaſon of the Year, there was no ſmall Expectation of ſome conſiderable Enterprize. In 4 or 5 Days after, Intelligence came, that all the Tranſport-Ships had put into St. Hellens Road, with part of the Fleet which they met off of Torbay. This unexpected Return occaſion'd various Conjectures; but all that came to publick Notice was, that the next Day after the Fleets were join'd, Admiral Ruſſel and the reſt of the Commanders went on Board the Breda, where the Duke of Leimſter's Commiſſion was open'd; and that on the 29th a Council of War was held on Board the General, where it was reſolv'd that they ſhould ſteer towards the Coaſt of England. On the 8th of Auguſt, the Tranſport-Ships and a Squadron of Men of War arriv'd in the Downs, from whence they ſailed on the 20th, and two Days after landed at Oſtend, after having kept the French upon their own Coaſts in continual Alarms.

The Queen and her (a) Three Kingdoms being now ſecured at Home; let us ſee how Affairs are carried on Abroad. The Duke of Bavaria, through the Influence of King William, was this Year made Gover-

Campaign Abroad.

(a) The Security of the Government was more owing to a wonderful Providence, than to the faithful Allegiance of the People. Their Minds were ſadly corrupted; the Papiſts, to a Man, were devoted to King James for his Religion ſake; and the Non-jurors upon a Principle as ſacred to them. But the greateſt Danger to the Government, was from the ſeeming Friends, who had given Security to it by taking the Oaths, and acting in any Places they could get of Profit or Preferment to them. Theſe Perjurors, who had either taken the Oaths in ſome ſort of Conceit that there was no Obligation in them; as impos'd by what they call'd Force, and ſubmitted to by what they call'd Neceſſity; or elſe had been taught that their antecedent Oaths to the late Kings and their Heirs were ſtill valid; or, poſſibly, had no Conſcience at all in the taking of any Oaths; theſe were the worſt and moſt dangerous Men. The honourable Hugh Hare, Eſq; one of their Majeſties Juſtices of the Peace for the County of Surrey, in a Charge given at the Quarter-Seſſions at Darking, April 5. within this Year 1692. complain'd chiefly of theſe perfidious Subjects.— " But, Gen" tlemen, after all that I have ſaid of the Popiſh Recuſants,
" and of the Proteſtants who are diſaffected to this Govern" ment, and will not take the Oaths; both theſe we may look " upon as our Friends and Adherents, if we compare their " Character with that of thoſe Proteſtants who ſwear Alle-
" giance to their Majeſties, only that they may worm them-
" ſelves into Places of Truſt and Power, and to have the bet" ter Opportunity to betray us.— It would ſeem a high De" gree of ill Nature, to ſuſpect thoſe of Treachery, who con-
" firm all their Proteſtations of Sincerity by the ſacred Bond
" of an Oath; and indeed, in ſuch a Caſe, one ought not to " be too ready to ſuſpect, for Chriſtian Charity thinketh no
" Evil; but yet when Mens Diſcourſe, Actions and Beha" viour, ſhew the ſecret Inclinations of their Hearts, we may " then judge of the Tree by its Fruits. When Men who have " taken

1692. 4 W. M. Governor of the Spaniſh Netherlands; who put theſe Provinces into a far better State than formerly: Yet this did not hinder the King of France from attempting the Siege of Namur, one of the ſtrongeſt Places in all thoſe Parts, both by its advantageous Situation on the Confluence of the Sambre and the Maeſe, and by the excellent Fortifications; eſpecially a Caſtle built upon a Hill, in an Angle form'd by thoſe Two Rivers. His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty inveſted the Town in Perſon, May the 25th, N. S. open'd the Trenches on the 29th, and purſued the Siege with ſo much Vigor and Diligence, that in Four Days he made himſelf Maſter of all the Outworks next St. Nicholas Gate. The Gariſon ſeeing it was in vain to withſtand an Army encourag'd by the Preſence of their Monarch, ſurrender'd the City on June the 5th upon Articles, and retir'd into the Caſtle.

Namur taken by the French.

Upon the News of this Siege, King William (with the Confederate Army under his Command) decamp'd from Anderleck on the 27th of May, N. S. marched to Diegon, the next Day towards Louvain, and pitch'd his Camp near Bethlem Abby; from whence he continued his March towards Namur, on the 3d of June. But before his Majeſty removed, he gave the Enemy Notice of his great Victory at Sea, by a Triple Diſcharge of his Cannon; which were anſwer'd by Vollies of ſmall Shot from the Two Lines of the Army. 'Tis reported, that the French King heard this Noiſe with a great deal of Unconcern; ſaying to this Effect, Here's a mighty Pother indeed about burning Two or Three Ships. But what Face ſoever he put upon the Matter, the Conſequence ſhew'd it was the unhappieſt Blow he receiv'd during the whole Courſe of this War: For thereby his Sea-Coaſts remain'd expoſed to the Inſults of the Engliſh; nor has he been ever able to put out a Fleet to meet the Confederates in the Channel.

K. William attempts to raiſe the Siege.

The Duke of Luxemburgh, who cover'd the Siege of Namur with an Army of Seventy Thouſand Men, upon Information that the King of England moved towards the Mehaigne, marched that way; and on June the 8th, the Two Armies (almoſt equal in Numbers) advanced in ſight of one another, the River only remaining between 'em. King William poſſeſs'd himſelf of all the Poſts upon the Mehaigne on his ſide, as Luxemburgh did of Two Villages (ſurrounded with ſtrong Hedges and Thickets) on the oppoſite Banks. The Confederates had ſuch an entire Command of the River by their Batteries, that the ſame Evening his Majeſty order'd the Pontoons to be laid over it, in order to attack the Enemy the next Day. All Things were in a Readineſs for that Deſign; but the ſame Night, and ſome following Days, the Weather proved ſo rainy, that a Stop was put to King William's Glorious Enterprize. The moſt remarkable Action before the Caſtle of Namur, was the taking of Fort-William, which was raiſed by that great Engineer Colonel Cohorn, and defended by himſelf. The King of France being reſolved to carry this Work at any rate, cauſed it to be aſſaulted on June the 21ſt; and tho' all the Efforts of his Men prov'd unſucceſsful, yet they return'd to the Storm the next Day. The Beſieged made an incredible Reſiſtance, repulſing Twice the Enemy with great Slaughter; but they return'd with freſh and redoubled Force, till they made themſelves Maſters of the Cover'd Way, and cut off the Beſieged from their Communication with the Caſtle. Monſieur Cohorn being dangerouſly wounded, the Gariſon (who thought themſelves no longer in a Condition to hold out) deſired to Capitulate, reſerving only ſo much Time to themſelves, as to ſend to the Prince of Barbanſon, Governor of the Caſtle, to give him notice of their Reſolution; which he readily allow'd: And thereupon Fort William, which from this Time was called Fort Cohorn, was ſurrender'd up to the French; and the Conſequence of this Loſs was, the Surrender of the Caſtle it ſelf on July 10. 1692. 4 W. M.

Forms a Deſign of ſurprizing Mons.

At this Time King William lay encamp'd at Melle, where he form'd a Deſign to ſurprize Mons, but was diſappointed in it. From Melle, his Majeſty marched his Army to Genap, thence to Hall; and on Auguſt 1. over the River Seine, when he was joined by the Hanover Troops, to the Number of Eight Thouſand Men. On the other hand, the King of France contenting himſelf with the Glory of having taken Namur in ſight of the Confederate Army, left the Command of his Forces to Luxemburgh, who pitch'd his Camp in an advantageous Poſt, cover'd by a Wood and thick Hedges, between Enghin and Steenkirk, where his Britannick Majeſty reſolved to attack him, upon the Information of ſome Perſons that were thought to underſtand the Nature of the Ground.

Battel of Steenkirk.

Accordingly, on Sunday, Auguſt 3. our Army marched early in the Morning; the heavy Baggage being order'd to repaſs the Seine at Hall. There were ſeveral Defiles to paſs, and the Ways to be made, which made it a tedious March: But however, about Ten a Clock, the Prince of Wirtemburgh with the Van-Guard (which conſiſted of Four Battalions of Engliſh Foot, Two of Danes, and a Detachment of Churchill's Brigade) advanced towards the Enemy, and fell upon them with ſo much Vigor, that he drove them from Hedge to Hedge, poſted himſelf in the Wood that fronted the Right Wing of their Army, and erected Two Batteries of Cannon on little Eminences, one on the Right, and the other on the Left of the Wood. Whilſt theſe Batteries were playing upon the Enemy, the Confederate Army march'd up to the Head of the Defile, (about Half an Engliſh Mile from the Wood) where it open'd in a little Plain, not above Half a League over, which terminated upon the Right of the Wood, and upon ſeveral Rows of high Trees planted in Order. Upon the Right of this Plain there was a Farm, which ſoon after the Engagement was ſet on Fire by the Enemy, to cover (by the Smoak) ſeveral of their Battalions that were order'd this way. From the Head of the Defile, upon the Left of the Plain, there was a deep hollow Way with high Trees and Hedges upon the Banks of it, which reach'd as far as the Wood where the Van-Guard was poſted, and where it branch'd it ſelf into Two other deep Ways, and going thro' the Wood upon the Left to the Danes Attack, and to that of the Guards; and the other upon the Right, going along the Outſide of the Wood.

" taken the Oaths to the preſent King and Queen, and perhaps by " that Means enjoy ſome Office of Truſt under the Government; " nay, perhaps, when they ſtand in Competition with a Man more " truly and ſincerely Loyal, and carry their Point againſt him, " either by Force or Fraud, Bribery, or ſome other Artifices, too " mean for an Engliſh Gentleman to ſtoop too; when, I ſay ſuch " Men as theſe ſhall take (nay ſeek) all Occaſions to magnify " the Grandeur, and the Power, the Courage, the Juſtice, " and the Policy of the French Monarch; to envy the Happi-" neſs of his Subjects, and to applaud the vaſt Conqueſts; to " rejoice at every ſmall Advantage he gains over us; to wiſh " every Merchant-Ship that is outwards or homewards bound, " may fall into his Hands; to aggravate our Loſſes, and detract " from our Victories; as if the one were irreparable, and the " other not worth taking Notice of; to repine at our Plenty, " and to murmur at our Taxes, which yet are light Burdens " in compariſon of thoſe our Neighbours at this Time bear; to " cenſure the moſt juſtifiable Proceedings of this Reign, and " to palliate the moſt enormous Exceſſes of the laſt; to " triumph at Tourville's burning a ſmall Village on the Weſtern " Coaſt, and doing ſome ſmall Damage to our Fleet; and to " be ſtruck with Surprize and Melancholy at the King's Victory " at the Boyne; when, I ſay, Men's Actions are ſo contrary to " their Profeſſions, what can we think of them, but that they " are the moſt egregious Hypocrites in Nature, a Scandal to " Mankind, and a Reproach to the Religion they profeſs?

1692. 4 W. M. Between theſe Two laſt were poſted the Regiments of Sir Robert Douglas, Colonel Fitz-Patrick, and Colonel O-Farrel.

When the Confederate Army was come up to the Head of theſe Defiles, and juſt entring into the ſmall Plain, they were order'd to halt, except the Engliſh Life-Guards, and Horſe and Dragoons, and the Lord Cuts's, Lieutenant-General Mackay's, Sir Charles Graham's, and the Earl of Angus's Regiments; which being interlin'd with the Horſe, were commanded at the ſame time to the Right Skirts of the Wood, whilſt the Prince of Heſſe's, Colonel Lowther's, and the Earl of Leven's Regiments were alſo intermix'd with the Left Wing of Horſe, and poſted upon the Outſide of the Wood. Things being thus diſpoſed, and the Army continuing in their Halt, Prince Wirtembergh (after he had cannonaded for above Two Hours) began the Attack with the Danes upon the Right, which was immediately followed by the other Four Engliſh Regiments as compos'd the Van-Guard, and ſeconded by Cuts's, Mackay's, Angus's, Graham's, Lowther's, the Prince of Heſſe's, and Leven's Regiments. Never was more terrible, and at the ſame Time more regular Firing heard; for during the Space of Two Hours, it ſeem'd to be continued Claps of Thunder. The Van-Guard behav'd themſelves with ſo much Bravery and Reſolution, that tho' they receiv'd the Charge of ſeveral Battalions of the Enemies one after another, yet they drove them beyond one of their Batteries of Seven Pieces of Cannon; of which the Danes and the Second Battalion of the Regiment of Engliſh Guards poſſeſs'd themſelves, and which Colonel Wachop (who commanded the Engliſh) would have ſent away, had not the French cut off the Traces, and carried away the Horſes. Sir Thomas Douglas with his firſt Battalion charged ſeveral of the Enemies, and beat them from Three ſeveral Hedges, and made himſelf Maſter of the Fourth; when going through a Gap to get on the other ſide, he was unfortunately kill'd upon the Spot. All the other Regiments behav'd themſelves with equal Bravery, firing Muzzle to Muzzle thro' the Hedges, they on the one ſide, and the Enemy on the other.

The King being made ſenſible of the Difficulties the Van-Guard had to encounter, (by one of Prince Wirtembergh's Aids de Camp, who had already ſent Two Meſſengers to Count Solmes to no purpoſe) his Majeſty diſpatch'd away Count Paulin, one of his Aids de Camp, with poſitive Orders to Count Solmes, who commanded the Main Body, to ſend more Foot to the Prince's Aſſiſtance: But Default of Count Solmes.

Count Solmes, who ever was envious of the Engliſh, and who beſides had a particular Jealouſy of Prince Wirtemburgh's Commanding the Attack, (an Honour which he would have had himſelf) inſtead of obeying his Majeſty's Commands, order'd the Horſe to march, and the Foot to halt; which prov'd the Loſs of the Day: For the Ground was ſo ſtrait, and the Enemy had ſuch Hedges, Copſes, and Ditches to cover them, that there was nothing to do for the Horſe; ſo that when the Van-Guard began to engage, they had none but Part of the Infantry (interlin'd with the Left Wing of the Horſe) to ſecond them, the Body of the Foot being almoſt a Mile in the Rear. However, the King made all poſſible Diligence to get the Infantry up; ordering a Brigade to march to the Wood, and forming a Line of Battel in the Plain, with ſuch Foot as could come up. The Eagerneſs of the Soldiers to follow their Royal Leader, and to engage the Enemy, was ſuch, that they put themſelves into ſome Diſorder, and took more Time to form their Battalions, than could now conveniently be ſpar'd; ſo that before they could reach the Wood, the Van-Guard and Infantry of the Left Wing being over-power'd by Thirty Battalions of the Enemy, (that charged them continually one after another) and by a freſh Body of Dragoons brought up by Boufflers, they were forc'd to retreat in great Confuſion, and to leave the Wood to the Enemies Poſſeſſion. The Engliſh Life-Guards ow'd their Preſervation to the Daniſh Foot-Guards; and Baron of Pibrack's Regiment of Lunenburghers being in Diſorder upon the Skirt of the Wood, and the Colonel himſelf being dangerouſly wounded upon the Place; Sir Bevil Grandville, who commanded the Earl of Bath's Regiment, marched up to his Relief, receiving the Enemies Fire, before he ſuffer'd any Perſon of his Battalion to diſcharge once. By this Method he lodg'd himſelf in the hollow Way near the Wood, order'd his Serjeants to carry off the Baron of Pibrack, and maintain'd his Poſt, till he was commanded to leave it by the Prince of Naſſau.

Great Loſs of the Engliſh.

The King, enrag'd at the Diſappointment of the Van-Guard for want of a timely Relief, expreſs'd his Concern, by often repeating theſe Words; Oh my poor Engliſh! how they are abandon'd! Nor would he admit Count Solmes to his Royal Preſence for many Months after. And now, conſidering the Fight was not to be renew'd without endangering the Loſs of the whole Army, (Luxemburgh being conſiderably reinforc'd by Boufflers, and beſides, the Night drawing on;) his Majeſty commanded a Retreat, which was perform'd with admirable Order, and without any great Diſturbance from the Enemy, who never durſt engage the Engliſh in the Rear.

In this Battel, the Confederates loſt the brave Lieutenant-General Mackay, Sir John Lanier, Sir Robert Douglas, the Earl of Angus, and divers other Gallant Officers; above Two Thouſand Men kill'd, Three Thouſand wounded, or made Priſoners, and ſeveral Pieces of Cannon. As for the French, bating the Honour of remaining Maſters of the Field, they had not much Reaſon to boaſt of any Advantage; having had the Prince de Turenne, the Marquis de Bellefonds, the Marquis de Tilladet, the Brigadier Stoupa, the Marquis de Firmacon, and ſeveral other Men of Diſtinction, and Two Thouſand private Soldiers kill'd, and near as many wounded. Neither had they come off ſo cheap, had it not been for the Chevalier de Millevoix, one of the Elector of Bavaria's Domeſticks, who had already given, and ſtill endeavour'd to give further Intelligence to the Mareſchal de Luxemburgh, of the King's Motion and Deſigns; for which he was hang'd on a Tree in the Right Wing of his Majeſty's Army.

A more infamous Criminal was about this Time deliver'd up into the Hands of Juſtice: For the Chevalier de Granvale returning from Paris, where he had engag'd one Leefdale (a Perſon of a good Family near Boiſleduc) to join with Dumont in the helliſh Deſign of Aſſaſſinating King William, he appointed a Meeting at Uden, whither Dumont was come from Hanover. There it was agreed, That when the King ſhould paſs along the Lines, or when the Army ſhould decamp, Dumont ſhould be in Ambuſh, and ſhoot his Majeſty; and that as ſoon as the Murder was committed, a Party of Three Thouſand Horſe from the Duke of Luxemburgh's Army, and headed by Monſieur Chamlays and Colonel Parker, ſhould reſcue the Aſſaſſins, to colour the Villany with the Shew of a Stratagem of War. But Providence ſtill watching for his Majeſty's Safety, permitted the black Conſpiracy to be diſcover'd by Leefdale and Dumont; who related all the Circumſtances of the Contrivance, and who they were that put Granvale upon this wicked Attempt. Thereupon Granvale was taken at Eyndenhoven; afterwards try'd by a Court-Martial, and according to his Sentence, Hang'd, Drawn and Quartered, after he had made a full Confeſſion of his Crimes, without being put to the Torture.

Granvale executed.

(a) At

1692. 4 W. M.

(a) At his Execution he ſeem'd very Penitent, and expreſs'd ſome Reſentment againſt thoſe by whom he was undone. And 'tis with Horror that Hiſtory is obliged to ſay, that if we may give Credit to this Criminal's Dying Words, and the Depoſitions upon Record; not only Miniſters of State and Ambaſſadors, but even an Archbiſhop, nay, a Crown'd Head were at leaſt Privy to that deteſtable Project.

There was little more done this Campaign in Flanders, except the Defeat of a Party from Namur, by a Detachment from the Troops of Liege, commanded by Count Serclaes de Tilly; and the Bombarding of Charleroy by Monſieur de Boufflers. As for the Engliſh Forces which landed at Oſtend on the 1ſt of September, (N. S.) under the Command of the Duke of Leimſter; they poſſeſſed themſelves of Furnes and Dixmuyde, which they began to fortify, and by which the King ſeem'd to have ſome great Deſign that Way: But whatever it was, all miſcarried, both theſe Places being abandoned to Boufflers by Count Horn, towards the beginning of the Year 1693; which King William much reſented in him, who, till now, always had a great Share in his Majeſty's Eſteem. Perhaps the ſame touch'd the Count very near, for he did not live long after.

Actions of the D. of Savoy. The Duke of Savoy, who had been brought into the Confederacy by the powerful Intereſt of King William, and was ſupported in it by great Sums of Money, and by conſiderable Forces under the Duke of Leimſter, now Duke of Schomberg, marched in the Month of July at the Head of Twenty Thouſand Men, invaded the Province of Dauphine; and having plunder'd La Roche, Chantelone, and ſome other Villages, he made himſelf Maſter of the Caſtle and High-Lands of Guilleſtre; whence on Auguſt the 5th he croſs'd the River Durance, and moved towards the City of Ambrun, which, after a briſk Siege of about Nine Days, was ſurrendered upon Articles on Auguſt the 15th. Here the Duke of Savoy found Twenty Pieces of Cannon, and a conſiderable Quantity of Proviſions; and the City preſently granted him Forty Thouſand Livres Contribution, which they borrowed at Grenoble for that Purpoſe. Beſides which, his Highneſs ſeiz'd upon Sixty Thouſand Livres in Gold, which was the French King's Money in the Hands of the Pay-Maſter of the Troops: And not only the City of Ambrun, but all the Neighbouring Towns and Villages were at the ſame time put under Contribution. Here likewiſe, the Duke of Schomberg publiſh'd a Declaration on Auguſt the 29th, in the Name of his Britannick Majeſty, inviting People to join him; and aſſuring them, That the King of England had no other End in cauſing his Forces to enter France; but only to reſtore the Nobility and Gentry to their ancient Splendor, the Parliaments to their priſtine Authority, the People to their juſt Privileges, and even to grant his Protection to the Clergy; and, in ſhort, to cauſe the Edict of Nants to be revived, of which the Kings of England had been made Guarantees. Encourag'd by this Declaration, ſeveral of the French Proteſtants that had been forc'd to abjure their Religion, took this Opportunity to make their voluntary Recantation before Monſieur Du Bourdieu, the Duke of Schomberg's Chaplain. From Ambrun, the Army marched directly to Gap, a City upon the Frontiers of Provence, whoſe Inhabitants open'd their Gates to Prince Eugene of Savoy, upon his firſt Appearing before it, and gladly conſented to pay Contributions, to preſerve their Houſes from being burnt and pillag'd: A Treatment, which near Eighty Caſtles and Villages received from the Germans, in Retaliation of the Barbarities committed by the French in the Palatinate. Not only Grenoble, the Capital of Dauphiné, but the Neighbouring Provinces, and the Wealthy City of Lyons, began already to tremble; and, indeed, never had the Allies a fairer Opportunity of ſhaking the immenſe Power of France. But the Duke of Savoy's falling ſick of the Small Pox, and which was of more fatal Conſequence, the Spirit of Diviſion that crept among the Generals, not only hindered the Deſign that had been form'd of taking Briangon and Quieras, but likewiſe incapacitated them to keep what they had already conquer'd. Thus having plunder'd the Country, deſtroy'd all the Proviſions they could not conſume or carry away, burnt all that refus'd to contribute; they blew up the Fortification of Ambrun, took Money to ſave the Houſes, and ſo put an end to the Campaign. It is obſerv'd, that Monſieur Du Bourdieu carried away with him above Two Hundred French Proteſtants, who choſe rather to expoſe themſelves to Beggary and Contempt in Foreign Nations, than to live in Plenty and Honour in their Native Land, where they muſt be forced to join in Divine Worſhip, with thoſe whom they and their Fore-fathers did account to be Idolaters. It is farther obſervable, that their Majeſties improv'd the Duke of Savoy's Alliance, toward the Reſtoration of the Vaudois; who, thro' the Violence of their late Perſecutions, were unable to keep up the Form of any Diſcipline, or even any Publick Worſhip; being unable to maintain a Miniſter, or a School-maſter, among them. Monſieur Du Bourdieu acquainted the Biſhop of St. Aſaph with their miſerable Condition, deſiring him to ſollicit her Majeſty's Bounty in their Behalf. That worthy Prelate, eminent for Piety, Charity, and Learning, chearfully laid hold on this Occaſion to ſerve the Proteſtant Intereſt; and finding the Queen as ready to Grant as he was to Ask, a Fund was eſtabliſhed out of her Majeſty's Privy Purſe, for the maintaining of

The Duke viſited with the Small Pox.

Retires with his Army.

Good Offices to the Vaudois and other Poor Proteſtants.

(a) There was firſt an Aſſaſſin hir'd by the Faction to have murder'd his Majeſty King William in England; the Perſon unknown: Probably it was Parker, who was then employ'd by Monſieur Louvois, the French King's Prime Miniſter, and afterwards by his Son, Monſieur Barbeſieux, in the ſame Conſpiracy with Monſieur Granvale, and other Aſſaſſins, to ſhoot the King in Flanders. The Story of which is this: Monſieur Louvois left the Plan of this inglorious Deſign in Writing, ſeal'd up in his Cabinet; and his Son, who ſucceeded him in the Miniſtry, carry'd it on by Granval, Dumont, and Parker; empowering Granval to promiſe Dumont Twenty Thouſand Livres of Eſtate, and a Knighthood of St. Lazar; himſelf being to be made a Duke, and to have an Eſtate proportionable, if the Blow ſucceeded. The Manner in which the Aſſaſſination ſhould be done, was concerted at a Meeting of all the Conſpirators; as the Marquis de Barbeſieux, Madam Maintenon, Monſieur Paperel, Pay-Maſter-General of the French Army, Monſieur Granval, Monſieur Dumont, and Colonel Parker. Dumont, after having enter'd himſelf in the Confederate Army, was to take his Opportunity (when his Majeſty viſited the Grand Guard, or the Lines,) to ſhoot him behind his Back. Granval and Parker were (upon a previous Intimation) to have a Body of Horſe in Readineſs, to reſcue him, and bring him off. Accordingly Dumont went to the Confederate Army in the Year 1691. and Parker and Granval to the French; where they waited with Impatience at the Grand Guard Night and Day, to hear from Dumont; whoſe Heart failing him, he retir'd to the Court of Hanover. Granval and Parker return to Paris, and are again ſet to work by Barbeſieux, and the reſt of the Conſpirators; among whom Monſieur Chanlais, Quarter-Maſter-General to the French Army, then firſt appear'd; as alſo a new Aſſaſſin engag'd by Granval, Monſieur Leefdale, formerly a Horſe-Officer in the States Service. Dumont takes Courage again at Hanover, and renews his Correſpondence with Granval; and new Inſtructions being given them, Granval, Leefdale, and Parker, (to uſe the Words of Granval's Sentence, ſign'd by the Earl of Athlone) went to St. Germain's on the 16th of April, 1692. to ſpeak with the late King James about the ſaid Deſign, who had Knowledge of it, and to take Leave of him before they began their Journey. Granval had Audience of King James, the late Queen being preſent; the King telling him, "Parker "has given me an Account of the Buſineſs: If you and the "other Officers do me this Service, you ſhall never want:" And Parker, Granval, and Leefdale, enter'd into a Diſcourſe about this Deſign. A Rendezvous was appointed at Uden, in the County of Raveſtein, where the Buſineſs was to be finally adjuſted; but a Diſcovery of the Conſpiracy being made by Leefdale, Granval was ſeized at Eyndhoven, beyond Antwerp; and Dumont confeſs'd it all to the Duke of Zell; which ended in Granval's full Confeſſion to the Court-Martial. See Secret Hiſt. of Europe, P. II. p. 274.

1692.
4 W. M.

Ten Preachers, and as many Schoolmaſters, in the Valleys of Piedmont.

A Sham Plot by Young.

To look home again: There was a famous Sham Plot, invented with great Villany in Newgate, by one Robert Young, who had been committed to that Place till he diſcharg'd a Fine impos'd upon him for other Rogueries; and being very expert in counterfeiting Hands, he was inſtructed by one Henry Pierſon, a Priſoner in the ſame Place for Debt, to contrive a Plot, and father it upon the Earls of Marlborough and Saliſbury, the Biſhop of Rocheſter, and ſome others. Pierſon being ſoon after at Liberty, employ'd one Stephen Blackhead to carry Letters between himſelf and Young. By a certain Stratagem, Young happened to ſee the Earl of Marlborough's Hand, which he counterfeited ſo cunningly, that it was very difficult to diſcern the true from the falſe. Afterwards he drew up an Aſſociation, and affix'd to it the Hands of the Earls of Marlborough and Saliſbury, as alſo Sir Bazil Firebraſs's, the Biſhop of Rocheſter's, and the Lord Cornbury's; which two laſt were writ by another Hand. And that the more Credit might be given to this pretended Plot, Young forg'd ſeveral Letters in the Name of the Lord Marlborough, ſuppoſed to be directed to himſelf; which Blackhead uſed to bring to him again. In the Month of April, Blackhead went three times to the Biſhop of Rocheſter's Houſe at Bromley, upon a Sham-Errand from a ſuppos'd Divinity Doctor; but with no other Intent than to convey the forg'd Aſſociation into a ſecret Place, where it was afterwards found by the King's Meſſengers; who upon Information given by Young againſt that Reverend Prelate, came firſt to ſecure his Perſon, and then to ſearch his Houſe. His Lordſhip was ſome Days under Confinement, but upon a ſtrict Examination of the whole Matter before the Council, and the Confronting of Blackhead with Young, the Forgery was evidently diſcover'd, and his Lordſhip's Innocence made manifeſt.

Biſhop of Rocheſter accuſed.

Earthquake.

On Thurſday, September the 8th, about Two in the Afternoon, there happen'd an Earthquake in London and other Parts adjacent, which laſted about a Minute, and was felt very ſenſibly, not only in England but in Flanders and other Parts of the Continent. The King was then in his Camp at Dinner, in an old decay'd Houſe, which ſhaking very much, and every one apprehending it was ready to fall, his Majeſty was prevailed with to riſe from Table, and go out of the Houſe: But the Surprize was ſoon over. On September the 13th, the Queen publiſh'd a Proclamation for the better Diſcovery of Seditious Libellers, who endeavour'd not only to Traduce and Reproach the Eccleſiaſtical and Temporal Goverment of this Kingdom, and the Publick Miniſters of the ſame; but alſo to ſtir up and diſpoſe the Minds of their Majeſties Subjects to Sedition and Rebellion. And on the ſame Day another Proclamation was publiſh'd, For the more effectual Diſcovery and Apprehending of Highway-Men and Robbers; by promiſing a Reward of Forty Pounds to the Diſcoverers or Apprehenders, after the Conviction of them.

The King withdraws from the Army.

His Majeſty parted from the Camp at Grammen on Friday September the 27th, having left the Command in Chief of the Army with the Elector of Bavaria. On Saturday his Majeſty arriv'd at Breda, and went thence to his Court at Loo, to divert himſelf for ſome few Days. After ſome Refreſhment he went to Bruſſels, and held a Council of War, wherein he gave Orders for the March of the Forces into Winter-Quarters, and went thence to the Hague. He ſoon after embarked on Board the Mary Yatch, attended by Sir Cloudeſly Shovel with ſeveral Men of War, and landed ſafe at Yarmouth on October the 18th. He lay the next Night at Sir John Duke's, near Saxmondham. On Thurſday, October the 20th, the Queen met him near [illegible]hall; and about Eight in the Evening, their Majeſties came to Kenſington, having paſſed through the City of London amidſt the Acclamations of the People, and continued Illuminations of the Houſes, which was follow'd with Bonfires, Diſcharging of Cannon, Fireworks, and other Demonſtrations of an extraordinary Joy for his Majeſty's ſafe Return.

Returns to England.

On the Saturday following, the Lord-Mayor, Aldermen, and Recorder of London, attended his Majeſty at Kenſington, where they Congratulated his Majeſty's ſafe Return; and declared their high Satisfaction in his Majeſty's Great and Glorious Enterprizes for the Preſervation of theſe Nations, and the Good of Chriſtendom*; with Aſſurance of their ſteady Reſolutions to aſſiſt his Arms, and ſupport his Government to the utmoſt of their Power.* His Majeſty received them very graciouſly; and, as a Mark of his Favour, was pleaſed to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Salathiel Lovel, Serjeant at Law their Recorder; who then in the Name of the reſt humbly invited the King and Queen to honour the City at Dinner upon the Lord-Mayor's Day at Guildhall. Their Majeſties were pleaſed to accept the Invitation; and on October the 29th, the Day of Sir John Fleet's being Sworn Lord-Mayor, their Majeſties came into the City, attended by all the great Officers of the Court, and a numerous Train of Nobility and Gentry in their Coaches; the Militia of London and Middleſex making a Lane for them. Their Majeſties were pleaſed from a Balcony prepared for them in Cheapſide, to ſee the Show. After which they were conducted by the Two Sheriffs to the Guildhall; where their Majeſties, the Nobility, Privy-Counſellors, the Judges, and the Ladies of the chiefeſt Quality, Dined at ſeveral Tables. The Entertainment was Great and Magnificent, and their Majeſties were extreamly well ſatisfied with it; and the King was pleaſed to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon John Wildman, William Gore, James Houblon, Aldermen; Leonard Robinſon, Chamberlain; Rowland Aynſworth, William Scowen, Joſiah Child, and John Foach, Citizens.

Congratulated by the Lord-Mayor & Aldermen.

King and Queen dine in the City.

Citizens Knighted.

On Octob. 10. it had been ordered by her Majeſty in Council, that the Monthly Faſt appointed by their Majeſties Proclamation, of the 24th Day of March, 1691, be for the preſent diſcontinued till further Order; and on Octob. 22. a Proclamation was publiſhed for a Publick Thankſgiving, on Thurſday, Octob. 27. in London and Weſtminſter, and within the Bills of Mortality; and on Thurſday, Nov. 10. in all other Parts of the Kingdom: Foraſmuch as it hath pleaſed Almighty God of his infinite Goodneſs, to preſerve their Majeſties and their Government, againſt the Deſigns and Attempts of their open and ſecret Enemies, to give their Majeſties a great and ſignal Victory at Sea againſt the French Fleet, to protect his Majeſty's Perſon from the many and great Dangers of the War in his late Expedition beyond the Seas: To diſappoint and defeat the barbarous and horrid Conſpiracy, for taking away his Sacred Life by Aſſaſſination, and to bring him back in Safety to this Kingdom. (a) On Friday, Nov. 4. his Majeſty's Birth-day, the Parliament met at Weſtminſter, whither his Majeſty went by Water, and Publick Thankſgiving.

Parliament meet.

(a) "I prepar'd, (ſays Biſhop Burnet) by the Queen's Order, who ſent me the Text, Exod. iv. 13. a Thankſgiving-Sermon for the Glorious Victory before La Hogue. I firſt obey'd her Majeſty's Order; but then I humbly repreſented to her, That I having preach'd the Two Thankſgiving-Sermons in the Two preceding Years, it would look as if no body elſe was willing to perform that Office, if it was ſtill laid on me. The Queen ſaw how reaſonabe this was; and order'd the Archbiſhop of Canterbury to preach on that Occaſion: So this Sermon, tho' prepar'd, was not preach'd, but is now publiſh'd." 1713. 8*vo*.

being

1692. being ſeated on the Throne made this Speech to both Houſes.
4 W. M.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

"I Am very glad to meet you again in Parliament, where I have an Opportunity of Thanking you for the great Supplies you have given Me for the Proſecution of this War. And I hope by your Advice and Aſſiſtance which has never failed Me, to take ſuch Meaſures as may be moſt proper for ſupporting our Common Intereſt againſt the exceſſive Power of France.

"We have great Reaſon to rejoyce in the happy Victory, which by the Bleſſing of God we obtained at Sea: And I wiſh I could tell you, That the Succeſs at Land had been anſwerable to it: I am ſure my own Subjects had ſo remarkable a Part in both, that their Bravery and Courage muſt ever be remembred to their Honour.

"The French are repairing their Loſſes at Sea with great Diligence, and do deſign to augment their Land-Forces conſiderably againſt the next Campaign; which makes it abſolutely neceſſary for our Safety, that at leaſt as great a Force be maintained at Sea and Land as We had the laſt Year; and therefore I muſt ask of you, Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons, a Supply ſuitable to ſo great an Occaſion.

"I am very ſenſible how heavy this Charge is upon my People; and it extreamly afflicts Me that 'tis not poſſible to be avoided, without expoſing our ſelves to inevitable Ruin and Deſtruction. The Inconvenience of ſending out of the Kingdom great Sums of Money for the Payment of the Troops abroad, is indeed very conſiderable; and I ſo much wiſh it could be remedied, that if you can ſuggeſt to Me any Methods for the Support of them, which may leſſen this Inconvenience, I ſhall be ready to receive them with all the Satisfaction imaginable.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"None can deſire more than I do that a Deſcent ſhould be made into France; and therefore, notwithſtanding the Diſappointment of that Deſign this laſt Summer, I intend to Attempt it the next Year with a much more conſiderable Force; and ſo ſoon as I ſhall be enabled, all poſſible Care and Application ſhall be uſed towards it.

"And upon this Occaſion I cannot omit taking Notice of that ſignal Deliverance, which by the good Providence of God we received the laſt Spring, to the Diſappointment and Confuſion of our Enemies Deſigns and Expectations: This has ſufficiently ſhewn us how much We are expoſed to the Attempts of France, while that King is in a Condition to make them: Let us therefore improve the Advantage we have at this time of being joyned with moſt of the Princes and States of Europe againſt ſo dangerous an Enemy: In this ſurely all Men will agree, who have any Love for their Country, or any Zeal for our Religion: I cannot therefore doubt but you will continue to ſupport Me in this War againſt the declared Enemy of this Nation; and that you will give as ſpeedy Diſpatch to the Affairs before you, as the Nature and Importance of them will admit, that our Preparations may be timely and effectual for the Preſervation of all that is dear and valuable to Us.

"I am ſure I can have no Intereſt but what is yours: We have the ſame Religion to defend; and you cannot be more concern'd for the Preſervation of your Liberties and Properties than I am, that you ſhould always remain in the full Poſſeſſion and Enjoyment of them; for I have no Aim but to make you a happy People.

"Hitherto I have never ſpared to expoſe my own Perſon for the Good and Welfare of this Nation; and I am ſo ſenſible of your good Affections to Me, that I ſhall continue to do ſo with great Chearfulneſs upon all Occaſions, wherein I may contribute to the Honour and Advantage of England.

1692.
4 W. M.

This Judicious Speech was received with the Univerſal Approbation it deſerv'd, and made a proper Impreſſion in the Minds of both Houſes of Parliament. The Commons by an Addreſs to the King, Nov. 14. "Acknowledged the great Affection his Majeſty ſhow'd to his Subjects, by taking Notice of their Bravery and Courage; by that ſenſible Concern he expreſs'd for the Charges on his People, and by that tender Regard for the Preſervation of their Religion, Liberties, and Properties, as muſt ever be remembred with Gratitude by all his Faithful Subjects. They likewiſe acknowledged the Favour of God in reſtoring his Majeſty in Safety to his People, after ſo many Hazards and Dangers to which he had expoſed his Sacred Perſon, that there might be nothing wanting on his Part to oppoſe the Ambitious Deſigns of his Enemies, and to maintain the Honour of England, and the Liberties of Europe. They alſo congratulated his Deliverance from the ſecret and open Deſigns, which the Malice of his Enemies had form'd againſt him. And aſſur'd him, That they would always Adviſe and Aſſiſt his Majeſty in the ſupporting of his Goverment againſt all his Enemies.

The Commons at the ſame time preſented their Thankful Acknowledgment to the Queen, "For her gracious and prudent Adminiſtration of the Government, whilſt his Majeſty was hazarding his Royal Perſon abroad; and for the Bleſſings of Peace they enjoyed at Home, under her auſpicious Reign, at a time when the greateſt Part of Europe was ſuffering the miſerable Effects of War. They alſo congratulated, not only the ſignal Deliverance they received from a bold and cruel Deſign, form'd and proſecuted for their Deſtruction, when it was juſt ready to be executed, but likewiſe the Return of her Majeſty's Fleet, with ſo compleat and glorious a Victory, as was not to be equall'd in any former Reign; aſſuring her Majeſty, That the greateſt Senſe they had of their Happineſs under her Government, ſhould be always manifeſted in conſtant Returns of Duty and Obedience, and a firm Reſolution to do all that was in their Power, to render her Reign Secure and Proſperous.

The firſt Buſineſs of Importance the Commons went upon on November 11. was the Bill formerly projected, for Regulating Tryals in Caſes of High Treaſon; which at the Second Reading on Nov. 18. was referr'd to a Committe of the whole Houſe; and a Clauſe being preſented Dec. 1. to be added to the Bill, a Debate aroſe thereupon; the Reſult of which was, That the Bill was Order'd to lye upon the Table; and no farther mention was made of it during this Seſſion. Proceedings of the Commons.

On the ſame Day, Nov. 11. The Thanks of the Commons, by Order of the Houſe, were given by the Speaker to Admiral Ruſſel, one of their Members, for his great Courage and Conduct in the late Victory obtained at Sea; and this ſeem'd to ſecure that Admiral againſt any Reflections on his Behaviour in that memorable Action. But through Envy or Prejudice, it was the next Day ſuggeſted, that the Advantage gain'd upon the Enemy might have been much better Improv'd. Upon which, the Houſe enter'd upon Examining the ſeveral Inſtructions, Orders and Reſults of Councils of War, touching the laſt Summer's Expedition, in relation to the Proceedings of the Fleet, and the Deſcent intended to be made upon France, after the Victory at Sea. Upon Nov. 19. Sir John Aſhby being examined, particularly in relation to the French Men Thanks to Admiral Ruſſel.

1691. 4 W. M.

Sir John Aſhby honourably acquitted.

of War that made their Eſcape into St. Malo, he gave the Commons an Account of the Proceedings of the Ships under his Command, in and after the Engagement; with which they were ſo well pleas'd, that the Speaker, by Direction of the Houſe, acquainted him, That the Houſe took Notice of his ingenuous Behaviour at the Bar; and that he had given an Account to the Satisfaction of the Houſe, and was diſmiſs'd from farther Attendance. The next Thing the Houſe took into Conſideration, was, Why a Deſcent had not been made into France? Admiral Ruſſel was queſtion'd about it; but he excus'd himſelf, by ſaying, That Twenty Days had paſs'd between his firſt Letter to the Earl of Nottingham, after the Fight, and his Lordſhip's Anſwer. And on the other hand, the Earl made it appear, that he had acted according to the Orders he had receiv'd, which was all he could do as Secretary of State. Whilſt theſe Things were in Agitation, the Lords, at a Conference, communicated to the Houſe of Commons ſome Papers which their Lordſhips had receiv'd from the King, relating to thoſe Affairs; which Papers being read in the Lower Houſe, it was reſolved, That Admiral Ruſſel, in his Command of the Fleet during laſt Summer's Expedition, had behav'd himſelf with Fidelity, Courage, and Conduct.

On the 14th of November, Sir Edward Seymour deliver'd to the Commons a Meſſage from his Majeſty, in anſwer to their Addreſs the laſt Seſſion, in relation to the Eaſt-India Company. Upon occaſion of this Meſſage, the Houſe took into Conſideration the Matter relating to that Company; and after a great deal of Time ſpent in it, a Bill was, Dec. 14. brought in for Preſerving, Regulating, and Eſtabliſhing the Eaſt-India Trade. The Bill was near Two Months depending, and occaſioned ſeveral Debates; the Reſult of which was, that the Commons, March 3. preſented an Addreſs to his Majeſty, That he would pleaſe to diſſolve the Eaſt-India Company upon Three Years Warning to the ſaid Company, according to the Power reſerv'd in their Charter. To this, the King, with his uſual Prudence and Reſerve, made Anſwer, That he would always do all the Good in his Power for this Kingdom; and that he would conſider of their Addreſs.

Affairs of the Eaſt-India Company.

The Supply which was mov'd for on the 15th of November, was unanimouſly granted on the 22d of the ſame Month; and after Conſideration of the State of War for the Year 1693. it was Decemb. 2. Reſolved, That the Sum of 1926516 Pounds be granted to their Majeſties for the Charge of the Navy; (including the Charge of the Ordnance, and the finiſhing their Majeſties Naval Yard at Hamoſe, near Plymouth; and the building Four Bomb Veſſels, and Eight new Ships of the Fourth Rate.) And Dec. 10. the Sum of Two Millions and Ninety thouſand five hundred fixty three Pounds for the Land-Forces, including the extraordinary Charge of the Office of Ordnance, in relation to the Land-Service, and the Charge of the Tranſports, Hoſpitals, Contingencies, and other extraordinary Charges of the War. Beſides which, it was reſolved, Dec. 3. That for the making good the Sum of 1341700 Pounds, intended to be rais'd by the Act for a Quarterly Poll, the Sum of 750000 Pounds be granted to their Majeſties.

Supply granted.

To levy theſe vaſt Sums, it was reſolv'd, Dec. 13. Firſt, That there be a Pound Rate of Four Shillings in the Pound for One Year, charg'd upon all Lands, according to their Yearly Value; as alſo upon all Perſonal Eſtates; and upon all Offices and Employments of Profit, other than Military Offices in the Army and Navy. Secondly, That there be a Fund of 70000 Pounds per Annum, ſet apart out of the Hereditary Exciſe till the 17th of May, 1697. And afterwards by an Additional Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, for the Payment of the Intereſt of a Million of Money, to be rais'd by Perſons voluntarily paying in that Sum, the Principal paid in to be ſunk, and the Perſons paying in the ſame, to receive during their Lives, their reſpective Proportions of the ſaid 70000 Pounds, according to the Sums paid by them, with the Advantage of Survivorſhip, till all the Lives be determin'd. And Thirdly, Feb. 3. That certain Additional Impoſitions be laid upon Merchandize.

Ways and Means.

1692. 4 W. M.

That part of the King's Speech, whereby his Majeſty ſeem'd to deſire the Advice of the Commons, took up a great deal of Time. After ſeveral Debates, a Committee was appointed, Dec. 12. to conſider how the Army Abroad, in their Majeſty's Pay, might be ſupplied with Bread, Cloaths, and other Proviſions, of the Growth of this Kingdom, to prevent the Exportation of the Coin thereof. And as for the Navy, a Motion being made, Jan. 11. That his Majeſty be humbly advis'd to conſtitute a Commiſſion of the Admiralty, of ſuch Perſons as were of known Experience in Maritime Affairs, it paſs'd in the Negative: But however, it was carried, that his Majeſty ſhould be advis'd by that Houſe, That for the future, all Orders for the Management of the Fleet, ſhould paſs through the Hands of the Lords Commiſſioners for the executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of England. Which Vote ſeem'd to be occaſion'd by the Difference between the Earl of Nottingham, and Admiral Ruſſel.

The Conſideration of the Petition preſented Nov. 7. by the Sheriffs, and ſeveral Aldermen of the City of London, in favour of the Orphans of the ſaid City, being put off from time to time, William Goodwin, and Henry Goodwin, and others of the diſtreſſed Orphans, preſented alſo a Petition to the ſame Effect: Both which being conſidered, the Commons at length, Feb. 17. order'd a Bill to be brought in for ſatisfying the Debts due to the ſaid Orphans. But upon a Debate that aroſe at the ſecond Reading, the Bill was committed to a Committee of the whole Houſe, where it remain'd unfiniſh'd.

Caſe of the Orphans.

A Bill for the better Preſervation of their Majeſties Perſons, which by the unanimous Conſent of the Commons, was order'd to be brought in on the 1ſt of December, was nevertheleſs rejected at the ſecond Reading, the 14th of that Month. The ſame Fate, Dec. 17. attended the Bill to aſcertain the Fees of the Officers of Juſtice.

Bills rejected.

Not many Days before, Sir Edward Huſſey preſented to the Houſe of Commons, a Bill touching free and impartial Proceedings in Parliament; which was receiv'd, read the firſt Time, and ſome Time after paſs'd, and ſent to the Lords for their Concurrence. By this Bill, ſeveral Perſons in Employments, both Military and Civil, were incapacitated to ſit in the Houſe of Commons; which caus'd it to be very much oppos'd by the Lords that ſtood up for the Court; tho' on the other hand, ſeveral Peers ſpoke vehemently for it; and among the reſt, the Earl of Mulgrave, who upon this Occaſion, made this moſt memorable Speech.

My Lords,

Earl of Mulgrave's Speech.

" THIS Debate is of ſo great Conſequence, " that I reſolved to be ſilent, and rather to be " adviſed by the Ability of others, than to ſhew " my own Want of it; beſides it is of ſo nice a " Nature, that I who ſpeak always unpremedi- " tately, apprehend extreamly ſaying any thing " which may be thought the leaſt reflecting; tho' " even that ought not to reſtrain a Man here from do- " ing one's Duty to the Publick, in a Buſineſs where " it ſeems to be ſo highly concern'd.

" I have always heard, I have always read, that " Foreign Nations, and all this part of the World, " have admired and envied the Conſtitution of this " Government. For not to ſpeak of the King's " Power, here is a Houſe of Lords to adviſe him on " important Occaſions, about Peace or War; about " all Things that may concern the Nation, the Care of

1692. 4 W. M.

" of which is very much intruſted to your Lordſhips. But yet, becauſe your Lordſhips cannot be ſo converſant with the Generality of the People, nor ſo conſtantly in the Country as is neceſſary for that Purpoſe; here is a Houſe of Commons alſo choſen by the very People themſelves, newly come from among them, or ſhould be ſo, to repreſent all their Grievances, to expreſs the true Mind of the Nation, and to diſpoſe of their Money, at leaſt ſo far as to begin all Bills of that Nature: And if I am not miſtaken, the very Writ for Elections ſent down to the Sheriffs does empower them to chuſe; What? Their Repreſentatives.

" Now, my Lords, I beſeech you to conſider the Meaning of that Word Repreſentative: Is it to do any Thing contrary to their Mind? It would be abſurd to propoſe it: And yet how can it be otherwiſe; if they, after being choſen, change their Dependency, engage themſelves in Employments plainly inconſiſtent with that great Truſt repoſed in them? And that I will take the Liberty to demonſtrate to your Lordſhips they now do, at leaſt according to my humble Opinion.

" I will inſtance, Firſt, in the leaſt and loweſt Incapacity they muſt be under, who ſo take Employments.

" Your Lordſhips know but too well, what a general Careleſsneſs there appears every Day more and more in the publick Buſineſs: If ſo, how is it likely that Men ſhould be as diligent in their Duty in Parliament, as that Buſineſs requires, where Employments and a great deal of other Buſineſs ſhall take up both their Minds and their Time.

" But then in ſome Caſes 'tis worſe; as in Commands of the Army, and other Employments of that kind, when they muſt have a divided Duty; for it does admirably become an Officer to ſit voting away Money in the Houſe of Commons, while his Soldiers are, perhaps, taking it away at their Quarters, for want of his Preſence to reſtrain them, and of better Diſcipline among them; nay, perhaps, his Troop or Regiment may be in ſome Action Abroad, and he muſt either have the Shame of being abſent from them at ſuch a Time, or from that Houſe where he is intruſted with our Liberties.

" To this I have heard but one Objection by a Noble Lord; That if this Act ſhould paſs, the King is not allowed to make a Captain, a Colonel, without diſabling him to ſit in Parliament.

" Truly, if a Captain has only deſerved to be advanced for expoſing himſelf in Parliament, I think the Nation would have no great Loſs in the King's letting alone ſuch a Preferment.

" But, my Lords, there is another ſort of Incapacity yet worſe than this, I mean that of Parliament-Men's having ſuch Places in the Exchequer, as the very Profit of them depends on the Money given to the King in Parliament. Would any of your Lordſhips ſend and intruſt a Man to make a Bargain for you, whoſe very Intereſt ſhall be to make you give as much as he can poſſibly?

" It puts me in mind of a Farce, where an Actor holds a Dialogue with himſelf, ſpeaking firſt in one Tone, and then anſwering himſelf in another.

" Really, my Lords, this is no Farce; for it's no Laughing matter to undo a Nation: But is altogether as unnatural for a Member of Parliament to aſk firſt in the King's Name for ſuch a ſort of Supply; give an Account from him how much is needful towards the paying ſuch an Army, or ſuch a Fleet; and then immediately give by his ready Vote, what he had before aſk'd by his Maſter's Order.

" Beſides, my Lords, there is ſuch a Neceſſity now for long Seſſions of Parliaments, and the very Privileges belonging to Members are of ſo great Extent, that it would be a little hard and unequal to other Gentlemen, that they ſhould have all the Places alſo.

" All the Objections that have been made, may be reduc'd to theſe.

" Firſt, 'Tis told us, that 'tis a Diſreſpect to the King, that his Servants or Officers ſhould be excluded.

" To this, I deſire it may be conſidered, that 'tis in this Caſe, as when a Tenant ſends up any Body to treat for him: Would any of your Lordſhips think it a Diſreſpect; nay, would the King himſelf think it any, if the Tenant would not wholly refer himſelf to one of your own Servants, or the King's Commiſſioners, in the Caſe of the Crown? And if he chuſes rather ſome plain honeſt Friend of his own, to ſupply his Abſence here, Will any blame ſuch a Proceeding, or think it unmannerly?

" Beſides, your Lordſhips know even this Act admits them to be choſen, notwithſtanding their Employments, provided the Electors know it firſt, and are not deceived in their Choice.

" All we would prevent, is, that a good rich Corporation ſhould not chuſe to intruſt with all their Liberties, a plain honeſt Country Neighbour, and find him within Six Months changed into a preferr'd cunning Courtier; who ſhall tye them to their Choice, tho' he is no more the ſame Man, than if he were turn'd Papiſt; which by the Law, as it ſtands already, puts an Incapacity upon him.

" Another Objection is, that this Act may by its Conſequence prolong this Parliament; which they allow would be a very great Grievance, and yet ſuppoſe the King capable of putting it upon us; which I have too much Reſpect for him, to admit of: Tho' I am glad however, that 'tis objected by Privy-Counſellors in Favour, who conſequently, I hope, will never adviſe a Thing which they now exclaim againſt as ſo great a Grievance.

" But, pray my Lords, What ſhould tempt the King to ſo ill a Policy? Can he fear a Freedom of Choice in the People, to whoſe Good-will he owes all his Power, which theſe Lords ſuppoſe he may uſe to their Prejudice?

" And therefore give me Leave to ſay, as I muſt not ſuſpect him of ſo ill a Deſign, as the perpetuating this Parliament; ſo he cannot, he ought not to ſuſpect a Nation, ſo entirely, I was going to ſay, ſo fondly devoted to him.

" My Lords, no Man is readier than my ſelf to allow that we owe the Crown all Submiſſion, as to the Time of calling Parliaments according to Law, and appointing alſo where they ſhall ſit. But with Reverence be it ſpoken, the King o[...] the Nation entire Freedom in chuſing their [...]preſentatives; and it is no leſs his Duty, than his true Intereſt, that ſuch a fair and juſt Proc[...]ing ſhould be uſed towards us.

" Conſider, my Lords, of what mighty C[...]quence it may be, that ſo many Votes ſhould [...] free, when upon one ſingle one may depend [...] whole Security or Loſs of this Nation; by [...] ſingle Vote ſuch Things may happen, tha[...] almoſt tremble to think; by one ſingle Vote [...] General Exciſe may be granted, and then we [...] all loſt; by one ſingle Vote the Crown ma[...] impower'd to name all the Commiſſioners fo[...]ſing the Taxes; and then ſurely we ſhou[...] a fair only way towards it.

" Nay, whatever has happen'd, may [...] apprehended; and I hope thoſe Rever[...] will reflect, that if they grow once [...]

1692. 4 W. M. "a prevalent Party, one ſingle Voice may be as "dangerous to that Bench, as a general Diſſatiſ-"faction among the People proved to be once in a "late Experience: Which I am far from ſaying by "way of Threatning, but by way of Caution.

"My Lords, We may think, becauſe this con-"cerns not the Houſe of Lords, that we need not "be ſo over-careful of the Matter; but there are "Noblemen in France, at leaſt ſuch as were ſo be-"fore they were enſlav'd; who, that they might "domineer over others, and ſerve a preſent Turn, "perhaps, let all Things alone ſo long till the Peo-"ple were quite maſter'd, and the Nobility them-"ſelves too, to bear them Company.

"So that I never met a Frenchman, even of the "greateſt Rank, (and ſome had Ten Thouſand Pi-"ſtoles a Year in Employments) that did not en-"vy us here, for our Freedom from that Slavery "which they groan under. And this I have ob-"ſerv'd univerſally; except juſt Monſieur de Lou-voy, Monſieur Colbert, or ſuch People: Becauſe "they were the Miniſters themſelves who occaſi-"on'd theſe Complaints, and thriv'd by the Op-"preſſion of others.

"My Lords, This Country of ours is very apt to "be provok'd; We have had a late Experience of it. "And tho' no wiſe Man but would bear a great "deal, rather than make a buſtle; yet really the "People are otherwiſe, and at any Time change a "preſent Uneaſineſs for any other Condition, tho' a "worſe. We have known it ſo too often, and ſome-"times repented it too late.

"Let them not have this new Provocation, in "being debarr'd from a Security in their Repreſen-"tatives: For malicious People will not fail to in-"fuſe into their Minds, that all thoſe vaſt Sums "which have been, and ſtill muſt be rais'd towards "this War, are not diſpos'd away in ſo fair a man-"ner as ought to be; and I am afraid they will ſay, "their Money is not given, but taken.

"However, whate're Succeſs this Bill may have, "there muſt needs come ſome good Effect of it; "for if it paſſes, it will give us Security; if it be "obſtructed, it will give us Warning.

The Courtiers being too numerous, the other Party took an Occaſion from an Objection they made; to wit, That this Act might, by its Conſequence, prolong this Parliament, which they allow'd would be a very great Grievance; to bring in and paſs another Bill, for the frequent Calling and Meeting of Parliaments; which they ſent down to the Commons, Jan. 21. for their Concurrence. But the King having no Mind to part with this Parliament ſo long as the War laſted, refus'd his Aſſent to this Bill; altho' the Lords had agreed to the Amendments made to it by the Commons.

Bill for frequent Parliaments refus'd by the King.

On Friday, January the 20th, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, attended with the uſual Solemnity; and gave his Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for granting to their Majeſties an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound for one Year, for carrying on a vigorous War againſt France. 2. An Act that the Inhabitants of the Province of York may diſpoſe of their Perſonal Eſtates by their Wills, notwithſtanding the Cuſtom of that Province. And to Eleven Private Bills.

Acts paſſed.

Jan. 2[illegible] Complaint having been made to the Houſe of Commons of a printed Pamphlet, entitled, King William and Queen Mary Conquerors; as containing Aſſertions of dangerous Conſequence to their Majeſties, to the Liberty of the Subject, and Peace of the Kingdom; the Houſe, upon Examination of the Matter, order'd the ſaid Pamphlet to be burnt by the Hands of the Common Hangman; and that his Majeſty be deſir'd to remove Mr. Edmund Bohun, the Licenſer, from his Employment, for having allow'd the ſame to be printed. In this Debate it was ſuggeſted, that Dr. Burnet, Biſhop of Sarum, had recommended this Notion of Conqueſt, in his Paſtoral Letter to the Clergy of his Dioceſe; tho' he had done it only upon a favourable Suppoſition, not in a way of Aſſertion. However, the Majority (in the Warmth of debating, and ſome of 'em for the Sake of Alluſion to the Author's Name,) paſſed the ſame Cenſure on that excellent Letter, and order'd it publickly to be burnt by the Common Executioner. On Jan. 24. the Lords came to a like Reſolution; That the Aſſertion of King William and Queen Mary's being King and Queen by Conqueſt, was highly injurious to their Majeſties, and inconſiſtent with the Principles on which this Government is founded, and tending to the Subverſion of the Rights of the People. Which Vote being communicated to the Commons, that Houſe (on the next Day) unanimouſly concurr'd with their Lordſhips, with the remarkable Addition of ſome Words; viz. injurious to their Majeſties Rightful Title to the Crown of this Realm.

Pamphlet condemned.

1692. 4 W. M.

The Biſhop of Sarum's Paſtoral Letter.

In Deteſtation of the Notion of Conqueſt.

On Thurſday, January the 26th, his Majeſty came again to the Houſe of Peers, and gave his Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for granting to their Majeſties certain Rates and Duties of Exciſe, upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors; for ſecuring certain Recompences and Advantages in the ſaid Act mention'd, to ſuch Perſons as ſhall voluntarily advance Ten Hundred Thouſand Pounds, towards carrying on the War againſt France. 2. An Act for taking Special Bails in the Country, upon Actions and Suits depending in the Courts of King's-Bench and Common-Pleas, and Exchequer at Weſtminſter. And to one Private Act.

Acts paſſed.

About this Time, ſeveral Officers of the Army wanting Men to compleat their Companies, agreed with thoſe that had Warrants to Preſs for the Sea; who, under Pretence of Preſſing for the Navy, took up great Numbers of young Men, whom they ſhipp'd off for Holland, and there forc'd them into Land-Service: Among the reſt, a Servant belonging to one of the Members of the Houſe of Commons happen'd to be thus ſpirited away. Upon which the Houſe order'd this Grievance to be repreſented to the King by Sir Edward Seymour; and on February the 9th, his Majeſty (by the ſame Meſſenger) return'd a Gracious Anſwer to the Houſe, to let them know, How much he reſented it, that his Subjects ſhould meet with ſuch hard Uſage; and that he would take all Care poſſible for the future to puniſh the Authors of it. And that in the firſt place, his Majeſty had call'd before him the Officers of the Army, and given them a ſtrict Charge, that they ſhould receive no Men that were impreſſed: And that he had given Orders to the Admiralty, to examine the Preſs-Maſters that had committed thoſe Abuſes; and that there ſhould be ſuch Exemplary Puniſhment inflicted on 'em, that others ſhould be deterr'd from doing the like. And on the ſame Day, his Majeſty, to that Effect, publiſhed the following Order.

Grievances in Preſſing Soldiers.

Redreſs'd by the King.

WILLIAM R.

"WHereas we are informed of Abuſes committed by Preſs-Maſters in the Impreſſing "of Land-Men, whom they have deliver'd over to "ſome Officers of our Army, to ſerve as Soldiers "in Flanders: And for preventing the ſame for "the future, we do hereby ſtrictly charge and re-"quire all Colonels, Commanders of Battalions, "and all other Officers whom it may concern, not "to Liſt, receive into, or detain in their Compa-"nies, any Man whatſoever that ſhall have been "impreſſed; upon Pain to any Commiſſion-Officer "Liſting, Receiving into, or Detaining ſuch im-"preſſed Men, of being immediately caſhier'd; "and to the Non-Commiſſion Officers, of the ſe-"vereſt Puniſhment that may be inflicted on 'em. "We have likewiſe given Orders, that the Preſs-1692. 4 W. M. "Maſters offending herein be puniſhed with the "utmoſt Rigor, according to their Demerits.

"Maſters

Given at our Court at Whitehall, this 9th Day of February, 1692.

The good Correſpondence which had hitherto appear'd between the King and Parliament, was likely to be diſturb'd by the Informations given to the Commons of the ill State of Ireland: Upon which the Houſe order'd an Addreſs to be drawn up, which was preſented to His Majeſty on March 10. in this Form.

Addreſs of the Commons upon the State of Ireland. "We your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal "Subjects the Commons in Parliament aſſembled, "having taken into our ſerious Conſideration, the "State of your Majeſty's Kingdom of Ireland, "find our ſelves obliged by our Duty to your Ma-"jeſty, with all Faithfulneſs and Zeal to your Ser-"vice, to lay before your Majeſty the great Abuſes "and Miſmanagements of the Affairs of that "Kingdom.

"By expoſing your Proteſtant Subjects to the "Miſery of free Quarter, and the Licentiouſneſs of "the Soldiers, to the great Oppreſſion of the Peo-"ple, which we conceive hath been occaſion'd "chiefly by the want of that Pay, which we did "hope we had fully provided for.

"By Recruiting your Majeſty's Troops with Iriſh "Papiſts, and ſuch Perſons who were in open Re-"bellion againſt You, to the great endangering and "diſcouraging of your Majeſty's Good and Loyal "Proteſtant Subjects in that Kingdom.

"By Granting Protections to the Iriſh Papiſts, "whereby Proteſtants are hindred from their Legal "Remedies; and the Courſe of Law ſtopt.

"By reverſing Outlawries for High-Treaſon "againſt ſeveral Rebels in that Kingdom, (not "within the Articles of Limerick), to the great "Diſcontent of your Proteſtant Subjects there.

"By letting the forfeited Eſtates at under Rates, "to the prejudice of your Majeſty's Revenue.

"By the great Embezlement of your Majeſty's "Stores in the Towns and Gariſons of that King-"dom left by the late King James.

"And by the great Embezlements which have "been made in the Forfeited Eſtates and Goods, "which might have been employ'd for the Safety "and better Preſervation of your Majeſty's King-"dom.

"We crave leave alſo to repreſent to your Ma-"jeſty, that the Addition to the Articles of Lime-"rick, after the ſame were finally Agreed to and "Signed, and the Town thereupon Surrendred, "hath been a very great Encouragement to the "Iriſh Papiſts, and a weakening to the Engliſh In-"tereſt there.

"Having thus, moſt Gracious Sovereign, out of "our Affectionate Zeal to your Majeſty's Service, "with all humble Submiſſion to your great Wiſ-"dom, laid before you theſe Abuſes and Miſma-"nagements in your Kingdom of Ireland, we "moſt humbly beſeech your Majeſty for Redreſs "thereof,

"That the Soldiers may be paid their Arrears, "and the Country what is due to them for Quar-"ters; and that no Iriſh Papiſt may ſerve in your "Army there.

"And foraſmuch as the Reducing of Ireland "hath been of great Expence to this Kingdom, we "do alſo humbly beſeech your Majeſty, that (ac-"cording to the Aſſurance your Majeſty has been "pleaſed to give us) no Grant may be made of the "Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland, till there be an Op-"portunity of ſettling that Matter in Parliament, in "ſuch manner as ſhall be thought moſt expedient.

"That a true Account of the Eſcheats and For-"feited Eſtates, both Real and Perſonal, and Stores "left by the late King James, may be laid before 1692. 4 W. M. "the Commons in Parliament; to the end that the "ſaid Eſcheats, Forfeitures, and Stores, and the Em-"bezlements thereof may be enquired into.

"That no Outlawries of any Rebels in Ireland "may be Reverſed, or Pardons granted to them, "but by the Advice of your Parliament; and that "no Protection may be granted to any Iriſh Papiſt, "to ſtop the Courſe of Juſtice.

"And as to the Additional Article, which opens "ſo wide a Paſſage to the Iriſh Papiſts, to come "and Repoſſeſs themſelves of the Eſtates which "they had Forfeited by their Rebellion; we moſt "humbly beſeech your Majeſty, that the Articles "of Limerick, with the ſaid Addition, may be laid "before your Commons in Parliament; that the "manner of obtaining the ſame may be enquired in-"to, to the end it may appear by what means the "ſaid Articles were ſo engaged, and to what Value "the Eſtates thereby obtained do amount to.

"Thus, may it pleaſe your Majeſty, we your "moſt Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, do lay theſe "Matters in all Humility before You; and as your "Majeſty hath been pleaſed to give us ſuch graci-"ous Aſſurances of your readineſs to comply with "us, in any Thing that may tend to the Peace and "Security of this Kingdom, we doubt not of "your Majeſty's like Grace and Favour to that "of Ireland; in the Safety and Preſervation where-"of, this your Majeſty's Kingdom is ſo much con-"cerned.

To which Addreſs his Majeſty return'd this prudent Anſwer: Gentlemen, I ſhall always have great Conſideration of what comes from the Houſe of Commons; and I ſhall take great Care that what is amiſs ſhall be remedied. The Houſe ſeem'd to be well ſatisfied with this Anſwer; and proceeded vigorouſly in the remaining Part of the Supplies; being ſenſible that his Majeſty was deſirous to go early into Holland.

Bills left unfiniſh'd. And to ſhew the greater Expedition, ſome Bills were to be left unfiniſh'd. The Commons had paſſed one, To enable their Majeſties to make Grants, Leaſes, and Copies of Offices, Lands and Hereditaments, Parcel of their Dutchy of Cornwall, or annexed to the ſame; and for Confirmation of Leaſes and Grants already made: To which the Lords made ſome Amendments, that were diſagreed to by the Commons. As for the Bill for Prohibiting the Uſe of all Lotteries, which had alſo paſs'd the Lower Houſe, the Patentees of the Royal-Oak Lottery found Means to have it ſtopp'd in the Upper. The Bill for preventing the Prophanation of the Lord's-Day, lay neglected after the firſt Reading; as alſo the Bill for removing Doubts, and preventing Controverſies concerning Royal Mines, after it had been ingroſſed. Neither was any Progreſs made in the Bill for preventing the Exportation of Gold and Silver, and the Melting down of the Coin of this Realm.

Bills paſſed. On Tueſday, March 14. his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for granting to their Majeſties certain Additional Impoſitions upon ſeveral Goods and Merchandizes, for the proſecuting the preſent War againſt France. 2. An Act for Review of the Quarterly Poll, granted to their Majeſties in the laſt Seſſions of this preſent Parliament. 3. An Act for continuing certain Acts therein mentioned, and for charging ſeveral Joint-Stocks. 4. An Act for preventing Suits againſt ſuch as acted for their Majeſties Service, in Defence of this Kingdom. 5. An Act for Reviving Two former Acts of Parliament, for the Repairing the Highways in the County of Hertford. 6. An Act for Encouraging the Apprehending of Highwaymen. 7. An Act to prevent Abuſes committed by the Traders in Butter and Cheeſe. 8. An Act for Raiſing the Militia of this Kingdom for the Year 1693. although though the Month's Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 9. An Act for Examining, Taking, and Stating the Publick Accounts of this Kingdom. 10. An Act for prohibiting the Importation of all Foreign Hair Buttons. 11. An Act for delivering Declarations to Priſoners. 12. An Act for the more eaſy Diſcovery and Conviction of ſuch as ſhall deſtroy the Game of this Kingdom. 13. An Act for the Regaining, Encouraging, and Settling the Greenland Trade. 14. An Act for Puniſhing Officers and Soldiers, who ſhall mutiny, or deſert their Majeſties Service; and for Puniſhing falſe Muſters, and for the Payment of Quarters. 15. An Act to prevent malicious Informations in the Court of King's-Bench; and for the more eaſy Reverſal of Outlawries in the ſame Court. 16. An Act to prevent Frauds by clandeſtine Mortgages. 17. An Act for Reviving, Continuing, and Explaining ſeveral Laws therein mentioned, which are expired, and near expiring. 18. An Act to make Pariſhioners of the Church United, Contributors to the Repairs and Ornaments of the Church to whom the Union is made. 19. An Act for Regulating Proceedings in the Crown-Office of the Court of King's-Bench at Weſtminſter. 20. An Act for the better Diſcovery of Judgments in the Courts of King's-Bench, Common-Pleas, and Exchequer at Weſtminſter. 21. An Act for Continuing the Acts for prohibiting all Trade and Commerce with France; and for the Encouragement of Privateers. And to Twenty two Private Acts.

1692. 4 W. M.

After which, his Majeſty made this moſt Gracious Speech to both Houſes of Parliament.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech.

"THE large Supplies which you have given "me this Seſſion, are ſo great Teſtimonies "of your good Affections, that I take this Occaſion "(with great Willingneſs) to return my hearty "Thanks to you: And I aſſure you, it ſhall be "my Care, to ſee that that Money you have given "may be effectually applied to ſuch Services, as "may be moſt for the Honour and Intereſt of Eng"land.

"I muſt recommend to your Care the Peace "and Quiet of the ſeveral Counties to which you "are now returning, and doubt not but by your "Care, the Supply which you have ſo freely gi"ven, will not only be effectually levied, but with "the greateſt Equality too, and the leaſt Uneaſi"neſs to the People that is poſſible.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"The Poſture of Affairs does neceſſarily require "my Preſence Abroad; but I ſhall take care to "leave ſuch a Number of Troops here, as may be "ſufficient for the Security of the Kingdom againſt "any Attempts of our Enemies.

"I ſhall add no more, but that as I ſhall conti"nue to expoſe my own Perſon upon all Occaſions, "for the Good and Advantage of theſe Kingdoms, "ſo I do likewiſe aſſure you, that my hearty and "ſincere Endeavours ſhall never be wanting in any "other kind, to make this a Great and Flouriſh"ing Nation.

1692. 4 W. M.

And then the Parliament was, by his Majeſty's Command, prorogued to the Second Day of May next. (a)

Honours and Preferments.

As to the Honours and Preferments that were this Year the Marks of Royal Favour; about the Middle of April, his Majeſty was pleas'd to create the Right Honourable Sir Henry Capel, Baron Capel of Tewksbury, in the County of Glouceſter. On April 27. Sir George Treby, Kt. Samuel Eyre, Francis Purley, William Coward, George Pricket, Thomas Gooding, Henry Gould, Roger Moor, Reginald Bretland, John Darnel, Joſeph Girdler, Littleton Powis, Nathan Wright, and Charles Bonython, Eſqs; were called by their Majeſties Writ to the State and Degree of Serjeants at Law. About the Middle of June, their Majeſties were pleaſed to appoint Nicholas Horne, Eſq; to be their Conſul at Alicant. The Lord Sidney was again appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and arrived at Dublin Aug. 5. where the Lords Juſtices reſigned the Sword to him, and the Lord Chancellor made a ſhort Speech to this Effect.

"That it being uſual upon ſuch Occaſions as this "was, to give his Excellency an exact Account of "the Condition and Affairs of the Kingdom, they "now thought it wholly unneceſſary, being ſenſible "his Lordſhip was thoroughly acquainted there"with. That their Majeſties could not have fix'd "upon a Perſon more to the Mind and general Sa"tisfaction of the Kingdom, than his Excellency; "and that they were in Hopes the Work which "was ſo ſucceſsfully begun, in bringing this Nati"tion out of the Ruin it was involved in, into an "entire Peace, (to which his Excellency has been "the greateſt Contributor) would now be fully "perfected." On September the 28th, Sir John Macklain, Chief of the Macklains, and Proprietor of the Iſland of Mull, in the Weſt Highlands of Scotland, having ſubmitted himſelf to their Majeſties Government, and deliver'd up his Caſtles to be govern'd by their Majeſties Forces, came to Whitehall, and had the Honour to kiſs the Queen's Hand; and went thence to Holland, to throw himſelf at his Majeſty's Feet. In the Beginning of October, their Majeſties were pleaſed, by Letters Patents, to conſtitute and appoint William Broderick, Eſq; their Attorney-General of the Iſland of Jamaica, in the Place of Simon Muſgrave, Eſq; lately deceaſed. And on October the 30th, his Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Colonel William Beeſton, Lieutenant-Governor and Commander in Chief of Jamaica; who kiſs'd his Majeſty's Hand, in order to his going to that Government.

About the End of December, his Majeſty granted to Sir John Trevor, Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, and firſt Lord Commiſſioner of the Great Seal, the Office of Maſter of the Rolls, in the Place of Henry Powle, Eſq; lately deceaſed. On (a) The depriv'd Clergy had yet ſuffer'd very little in their Fortunes, and yet had the Advantage of growing a little Popular, upon ſeeming to be the Perſecuted Party. Many were conniv'd at in holding their Benefices, or reſigning them to Friends. Biſhop Burnet, indeed, was repreſented as harder than any of his Brethren upon them; and yet he appeal'd to the World in this manner. "As for my perſecuting the "Nonjurors, I have been ſo far from it, that I ſhould rather "have needed a Pardon from the Government for my Beha"viour towards them, but that I knew that in ſo doing I con"form'd my ſelf to the Spirit of the Government, as well as "I acted conform to my own Principles. I had but Five "Nonjurors in my Dioceſe: One of theſe, Mr. Martin, was "continued by me in his Living to his Death, which was "Two Years ago, [from 1696] and I ſtill paid him the An"nual Income of his Prebend out of my own Purſe. He "would not indeed take the Oaths; but he would never join "in the Schiſm with the reſt of the Nonjurors, whoſe Princi"ples and Practices (he ſaid to me) he deteſted. Another "of them, Mr. Spinkes, enjoys a Donative to this Day, which "I ſuffer him to ſerve by a Curate; whereas I could require "his ſerving the Cure in Perſon: And he enjoy'd his Pre"bend a Year beyond the Time prefix'd by Law. Another "of them, Mr. Jones, had the Nomination of his own Suc"ceſſor, whom I collated to his Living. A Fourth, Mr. Dick"ſon, died immediately after the Deprivation by the Act of "Parliament; but I ſhewed all poſſible Regard to him as "long as he liv'd. I reſerve Dr. Beach to the laſt place: He "has taken Liberties, that few (if any) of them have taken." "He kept himſelf violently in his Living for Two Years, af"ter he was by Law depriv'd.—— In Return of a great ma"ny Kindneſſes, he has held a Conventicle ever ſince at Sa"liſbury, and pours out all the malicious Stuff he can againſt "me."

1692.
4 W. M.

Jan. 12. William Bridgman, Eſq; was ſworn one of the Clerks of the Privy-Council, in the Place of John Dyve, Eſq; deceaſed. On Sunday, Jan. 22. Colonel Edwin Stede, late Lieutenant-Governor of Barbadoes, preſenting an Addreſs to his Majeſty, from the Grand-Jury of that Iſland, received the Honour of Knighthood. On Jan. 26. his Majeſty conferred the Honour of Knighthood upon Chriſtopher Greenvil of Preſton in Lancaſhire. His Majeſty being now intent upon preparing his Fleet for the next Summer's Expedition, thought fit to lay aſide Admiral Ruſſel, and put the chief command of the Fleet into the Hands of Henry Killigrew, Eſq; Sir Ralph Delaval, and Sir Cloudeſly Shovel, and conſtituted them to be Admiral by a Joint Commiſſion; and on Feb. 8. his Majeſty was pleaſed to appoint George Rooke, Eſq; to be Vice-Admiral of the Red; George Lord Barclay, Vice-Admiral of the Blue; Colonel Matthew Aylmer, Rear-Admiral of the Red; and Captain David Mitchel, Rear-Admiral of the Blue. On Feb. 16. the King came to Portſmouth to ſee the Men of War at Spithead, and went on Board Vice-Admiral Rook; upon whom his Majeſty conferred the Honour of Knighthood. When his Majeſty was ſetting Things in order for his Journey to Holland, to leave the Adminiſtration of Affairs upon a ſurer Bottom in his Abſence, he was pleaſed on March the 23d, (the Day before his Departure) to commit the Cuſtody of the Great Seal to Sir John Somers, Attorney-General; who was accordingly Sworn Lord-Keeper of the Great Seal of England, and one of their Majeſties moſt honourable Privy-Council. The ſame Day Sir John Trenchard, Knt. was Sworn one of their Majeſties Principal Secretaries of State, and of the Privy-Council. His Majeſty ordered a new Commiſſion to paſs under the Great Seal, conſtituting Sir John Lowther of Whitehaven, Baronet, Henry Prieſtman, Eſq; Anthony Lord Viſcount Falkland, Robert Auſtin, Eſq; Sir Robert Rich, Baronet, Henry Killegrew, Eſq; and Sir Ralph Delaval, Knt. to be Commiſſioners for executing the Office of Lord High-Admiral of England. And at the ſame time his Majeſty was pleaſed to grant to the Honourable Edward Ruſſel, Eſq; the Office of Treaſurer of their Majeſties Chamber.

Admiral Ruſſel laid aſide. Commiſſioners appointed for the Fleet.

Civil Officers.

On the Death of Dr. Thomas Wood, Biſhop of Litchfield and Coventry, their Majeſties were pleaſed to nominate William Lord Biſhop of St. Aſaph to be Tranſlated to that See. On Sunday, Feb. 19. Dr. John Hartſtongue, Chaplain to his Grace the Duke of Ormond, kiſſed their Majeſties Hands for the Biſhoprick of Oſſery in the Kingdom of Ireland, void by the Death of Dr. Thomas Otway.

1692.
4 W. M.

William Mountford, the famous Comedian, was ſet upon in the Street, in a Quarrel on the Account of Mrs. Bracegirdle, an eminent Actreſs, and was barbarouſly Murdered; the Lord Charles Mohun being unhappily in the Company, was Indicted for this Murder, and brought a Priſoner from the Tower to his Tryal before the Peers in Parliament, in a Court prepared for that Purpoſe in Weſtminſter-Hall, the Marquis of Carmarthen being Conſtituted Lord High-Steward of England, pro hac Vice. The Court was opened on Jan. 31. and the Tryal began between Twelve and One, and laſted till near Six in the Afternoon, when the Peers adjourn'd to their own Houſe, and after ſome Debate Adjourned there till the next Day; when after ſome further Debate they adjourn'd to Friday, Feb. the 3d, when in the ſaid Court in Weſtminſter-Hall, ſeveral Queſtions were propoſed in Points of Law to the Judges then preſent, to which they gave their Reſolutions. On the next Day their Lordſhips came into the Hall, and deliver'd their Judgment Seriatim, upon their Honours; and by a very great Majority the Lord Mohun was Acquitted of the ſaid Murder.

Lord Mohun Indicted for the Murder of Mr. Mountford.

Acquitted by his Peers.

On the laſt Day of the old Year his Majeſty parted from Kenſington very early, and came to Harwich that Night, but was not able to Embark by reaſon of the contrary Winds; ſo on Monday, March 27. his Majeſty came back to Colcheſter, and Dined and Lay that Night at the Houſe of Mr. Iſaac Rebow, upon whom his Majeſty conferred the Honour of Knighthood, and return'd to Kenſington on March the 28th, and on the 31ſt, parted from thence again for Graveſend, where he Embarked and ſet Sail about Five that Afternoon, with a fair Wind for Holland, being attended by ſeveral Yatchts, and a Squadron of Men of War, under the Command of Rear-Admiral Mitchell, and was accompanied by the Duke of Ormond, the Earl of Eſſex, and other Perſons of Quality. He arrived ſafely in the Maeſe on April the 2d, went to the Hague, and from thence to Loo, from whence he went to the Army, and with great Diligence poſſeſſed himſelf of the Camp at Parks, by which he entirely broke the French King's Deſigns upon Brabant, who was thereby obliged to ſend a ſtrong Detachment under the Command of the Dauphin and the Mareſchal de Boufflers into Germany, and he himſelf return'd to Verſailles, without attempting any Thing. The French under the Duke of Luxemburgh, were all this while Encamped at Meldert, and though their Convoys were very much diſturb'd by the Gariſon of Charleroy, yet it ſeem'd a Trial of Skill between both Armies, which ſhould continue longeſt in their 1693.

The King goes for Holland.

The Non-Jurors, when diſappointed of their Hopes from the Power of France, began to be more eager in their Pretences of Spiritual Power, and to make themſelves the Church, and to declare the Eſtabliſh'd Church to be in a Schiſm from them, and their deprived Fathers to be the only Biſhops, on Account of the Invalidity of their Deprivation by a Lay-Authority. The chief Writer who manag'd this Pretence was Mr. Dodwell; and the chief Expoſer of his Pretenſions was Dr. Hody. The Biſhop of Sarum in his Vindication, P. 146. Summ'd up their Evidence in theſe Words: "Upon this "whole Matter there are two Particulars, in which we can "boldly appeal to the Practice of the Catholick-Church in all "Ages. The Firſt is, We challenge them to ſhew us any one "Inſtance, where after a Revolution in the State happened, "that was generally received and ſettled, the Biſhops and Paſtors of the Church refuſed to acknowledge the preſent Civil "Government, and to act in their Stations under it; and more "particularly where any Revolution happened, which reſcued "and ſettled the true Religion, that was not received with a "general Joy and Gratitude, even though the Methods of it, "and Steps to it, were liable to great and juſt Exceptions. "We are ſure, they cannot ſhew us any Inſtance that looks "like a Precedent to their Proceedings; but that the whole "Courſe of Hiſtory is one continued Precedent in our Favour. "The Second is, We challenge them to ſhew us, where ever a "Schiſm was formed upon the Lay-Deprivation of a Biſhop, "even when the Grounds that it proceeded on were viſibly "unjuſt, if the Faith of the Church was not pretended to be "concerned in that Matter. More particularly we challenge "them to ſhew us an Inſtance, where the Biſhops or Clergy "of a Church adhered to a Metropolitan or a Biſhop ſo turned "out, or made a Schiſm upon his Account, when he did not "by any publick Act or Inſtrument aſſert his own Right, and "challenge the Obedience of thoſe who were ſubordinate to "him.

The Diſſenters carried on the good Deſign of agreeing at leaſt among themſelves. See 1. The Agreement in Doctrine among the Diſſenting Miniſters in London, upon ſome Differences which have of late ariſen, occaſioned by a Book written by Mr. Williams, &c. Subſcrib. Decemb. 15, 1692, 4to. —— 2. The Senſe of the United Non-conforming Miniſters, in and about London, concerning ſome of the Erroneous Doctrines, and Irregular Practices of Mr. Richard Davis of Rothwell in Northamptonſhire, bearing Teſtimony againſt his Doctrines, and his Unchriſtian Practices. Dat. Decemb. 26. 1692, 4to.

King James was put in Hopes again by the French, that their Arms would be ſtill able to reſtore Him to a divided Kingdom, and therefore to create an Expectation of it, He ſent forth another Declaration, Given at St. Germains, Apr. 17. 1693, in the Ninth Year of his Reign, telling all his Loving Subjects, that upon his Reſtoration to his Realms, he will defend the Church of England, —— and recommend an impartial Liberty of Conſcience, —— and not diſpenſe with, or violate the Teſt, &c. —— See An Anſwer to the laſt Declaration of the late King James, Dated at St. Germains, Apr. 17. N. S. 1693. Licenſed by Mr. Secretary Trenchard. Printed for R. Baldwin, 1693, 4to.

Poſts;

1693. W. M

Poſts; but at length, the French, July the 13th, were forced to quit theirs firſt, marching to Heilſheim in their way towards the Maeſe, which gave the King an Opportunity to ſend a ſtrong Detachment under the Command of the Prince of Wirtemburgh, to force the Lines which the French had made to cover their conquer'd Countries, from the Scheld to the Lys, and ſo to Ipres, Bing, St. Winox, and to the very Sea by Dunkirk. At the ſame time Count Tilly, General of the Troops of Liege, was marching with a Reinforcement to joyn the King; of which Luxemburgh being inform'd, he march'd immediately with a good Body of Troops to hinder that Conjunction, which he did effectually, ſurpriſing the Count in the Hollow-Way, through which he was marching, and forcing him to retreat to Maeſtricht, leaving near two Hundred of his Men killed, and all his Baggage behind him. The Prince of Wirtemburgh's forcing the Lines with good ſucceſs, July 18. and raiſing great Contributions, did not hinder the Duke of Luxemburgh from laying Siege to Huy on the 19th of July, which made the King advance nearer the Country of Liege; but when his Majeſty came to Tongres, he was ſurpriz'd to hear that the Caſtle of Huy had Capitulated. Upon further Information, that Monſieur Luxemburgh was drawn nearer Liege, his Majeſty ſent Ten Battalions thither, which with great Difficulty got at length into the Place; that now abſolutely rejected the Neutrality Luxemburgh offer'd. Thereupon the French General made a Feint of beſieging Liege, though his real Deſign was to Attack the King, now Encamped at Neerheſpen, ſo much weaken'd by the ſeveral Detachments he had made to reinforce the Gariſons of Liege and Maeſtricht, that it was generally computed that the French were at leaſt Thirty-five Thouſand Men ſtronger. The King to know the certainty of the Enemies Deſigns, before he went farther off from the Maeſe, ſent out daily ſome Parties of Horſe, one of which returned on the 28th of July, (N. S.) and gave his Majeſty an Account they could not go beyond Warem, becauſe they met there with a great Party of French Horſe; which was indeed the Left Wing of their Army upon the March. As ſoon as the King had notice of the Enemies Approach, he got on Horſeback, with the Elector of Bavaria and chief Officers of the Army, and finding by the Enemies Countenance, that 'twas the Vanguard of their whole Army that was coming to Attack him in his own Camp, his Majeſty immediately ordered to Arms, and to draw in Battel to expect the Enemy. Moſt of the General Officers were for repaſſing the Geet, but his Majeſty choſe to make the Advantage of the Ground he had, and venture a Battel, notwithſtanding the vaſt diſproportion of the two Armies, rather than expoſe his Rear to the Enemies Charge. Beſides, the French were now near the great and defenceleſs Towns of Brabant, which muſt feel the Effects of their Fury, unleſs they had been ſtopp'd by venturing an Engagement; and as the Benefits of a Victory were great, ſo upon the worſt Suppoſition of the Event, the King had ſtill Prince Wirtemburgh's Victorious Army, ready to make up the Breaches of his own, an Advantage which the Enemy had not ſo ready on their ſide. The Right of the Confederates in this Campaign was at Heyliſſem, and Wangen, upon the River Geet, and reach'd as far as Neerwinden, being covered with a ſmall Brook, ſeveral Hedges and Hollow-Ways. The Elector of Bavaria had his Quarters at Wangen; the Body of Foot, and Left Wing of the Horſe, reached from thence as far as Dormal, upon the Brook of Beck, where Lewe remain'd in their Rear.

The French forced to Decamp.

Luxemburgh reſolves to Attack the King.

The King prepares for it.

There are hereabouts two Rivers, both which have the Name of Geet, the greater and the leſs: The greater Geet comes from Judoign to Tillemont; The leſſer, which did run upon the Right Part of the Rear of the Confederates Camp at Neerheſpen, has its Spring about Lens les Reguines, and ſo runs to Hannuge, and ſeveral other Villages, to both the Heyliſſems, to Heerheſpen, and ſo to Lewe. The Brook of Beck riſes about Putſay, runs to Landen and ſo to the Lewe, where it joins with the leſſer Geet, and all theſe three ſmall Rivers join in one below Lewe. About Six in the Afternoon the Mareſchal de Joeyuſe came up with the Left Wing of Horſe; and about Eight the Body of Foot, which for more Expedition the Prince of Conti had order'd to March, after they had paſſed the Jecker upon Four Columns, with the beſt Part of the Artillery; but as 'twas too late then to engage a Battel, Luxemburgh contented himſelf to diſpoſe his Army, in order to begin early the next Day; and for this End poſſeſſed himſelf of the Villages of Landen, St. Gertruydenland and Overwinden.

1693. 5 W. M

As ſoon as the Enemy drew up by the Confederate Camp, the King order'd Brigadeer Ramſey with his Brigade, then compoſed of Five Batallions, viz. O Farel, Mackay, Lowder, Lowen, and Monroe, to the Right of all, to guard ſome Hedges and Hollow-Ways, upon the Right of the Village of Laire. The Brandenburgh Battalions were poſted to the Left of this Village; and more to the Left the Infantry of Hanover; Prince Charles of Brandenburgh, as Major-General, commanding the Six Batallions of Brandenburgh, and Lieutenant-General Dumont the Hannoverians, with whom he went to defend the Village of Neerwinden, that cover'd part of the Confederate Camp, between the Right Wing of Horſe, and their Main Body. Theſe were afterwards reinforced by the Firſt Battalion of the Firſt Regiment of Guards and a Second Battalion of Scotch Guards. Upon the Left at Neer-Landen, the King ordered the Firſt Battalion of the Royal Regiment, Churchill's Selwin's, and Trelawney's, Prince Frederick's Battalion of Dane's and Fagel's, to poſſeſs this Village that covered the Left of the Confederates Body of Foot, which upon the Enemies Approach had wheel'd from the Left to the Right, to bring up their Left to the Brook of Beck, where 'twas covered by the Village of Neer-Landen. The Ground was open between the Villages of Neer-Winden and Neer-Landen; whereupon his Majeſty order'd a Retrenchment to be made in the Night from the one to the other, to cover the Body of Foot, which was indeed but a ſlight Breaſt-work, as may eaſily be judged by the ſhort time they had to make it, and the ſmall Number of Men that work'd about it, to wit, Thirty Men per Battallion. What remained of the Body of the Foot was drawn up in one Line within this Intrenchment to defend it. The Dragoons upon the Left were order'd to the Village of Dormal, to guard that Paſs upon the Brook of Beck, and from thence the Left Wing of Horſe reach'd to Neer-Landen, where 'twas covered by this Brook; and from thence turned off to the Right behind the Body of Foot.

Battel of Landen.

The King who had been on Horſeback till late in the Evening, not only to give all the neceſſary Commands, but to ſee them executed, ordered his Coach to be brought to the Rear of Stanley's Regiment, where he repoſed himſelf about two Hours; and early in the Morning ſent for Dr. Menard, one of his Chaplains, into the Coach to pray with him, ſuitable to the Occaſion: A rare Example to all Military Men, who from this may learn, that the moſt Heroick Valour is that which is grounded on a good Conſcience, and a true Chriſtian Piety.

By Sun-Riſing the French were drawn up within the reach of the Confederates Cannon, which played upon them with good Succeſs, and which the French ſuſtained with admirable Conſtancy, till about Six a Clock, when they made a Motion to draw nearer the King's Retrenchment. About Eight Luxemburgh order'd a ſtrong Body of Troops to Attack the Villages of Lare and Neer-Winden; which they did with great Fury and various Succeſs, having gained and loſt theſe Poſts once and again; but at length the 1693.

5 W. M.

the Allies maintain'd their Ground; and here the Duke of Berwick was taken Priſoner by Brigadier Churchill. This ill Succeſs did not diſcourage the French from trying their Fortune againſt the Confederates Left-Wing at Neer-Landen. 'Tis true, this Poſt was not weak, but it was Attack'd with a great diſproportion of Forces, and the Fire was very ſmart on both Sides. The Firſt Battalion of the Royal Regiment was after a ſharp Diſpute forced to retire, but was ſoon after encouraged by his Majeſty's Preſence (who rode immediately from the Right to the Left) and ſuſtain'd by Selwin's, who obſerving a Paſſage in this Place where Horſe could come upon his Rear, order'd Trees to be cut down, and ſtopp'd it up. The Houſe were Hamilton's Grenadiers had before been Poſted, was likewiſe ſet on Fire, and by this time the two forementiοn'd Regiments being ſupported by Prince Frederick's and Fagel's, the Enemy after a ſharp Diſpute of about two Hours, were entirely beaten off, and purſued quite out of the Defile into the very Plain, ſo that they attempted this Place no more.

Succeſs at firſt on the Confederates ſide.

Hitherto the Succeſs of the Day was viſibly on the Confederates ſide; and the French who continued a faint Fire at Neer-Winden, ſeem'd by their Countenance as if they deſign'd to draw off: But Luxemburgh having ſtill ſeveral Brigades of freſh Men, reſolved to gain the Village of Neer-Winden, and order'd the Prince of Conti to make the Attack. The Enemy had remain'd Maſters of the outermoſt Hedges of this Village; for though our rally'd Forces had made the French give way conſiderably, yet they could not entirely clear the Village. The Prince of Conti with the beſt Foot in the French Army, charg'd the Confederates ſo vigorouſly, that the latter being already ſpent by the former Encounters, were ſoon obliged to yield to the Enemy the Avenues of Neer-Winden; upon which Succeſs Luxemburgh came to obſerve the Paſſages that led to the Confederates Camp for his Horſe to march in. As the Mareſchal de Villeroy was marching with a ſtrong Body of Horſe this way, Count de Arco, General of the Bavarian Cuiraſſiers, charged them with ſo much Vigor, that notwithſtanding their brave Reſiſtance, he repuls'd them quite within their Foot; the Count de Chartres who charg'd with them, narrowly eſcaped being made Priſoner. Thereupon the Confederates endeavour'd to regain once more the Poſt of Neer-Winden; and the Elector of Bavaria ordered two Battalions to charge the Enemy in Front, whilſt three others ſhould charge them upon their left Flank; but the French Rallying, and being conſiderably Reinforced, the Attempt became impoſſible; the Dutch and the Scotch Guards having ſpent all their Ammunition by their continual Fire. The King who had left Neerlanden upon the Enemies freſh Attempt upon Neer-Winden, led twice the Engliſh Battalions to the Charge, up to the Right of the Retrenchments (which was now Flank'd, and under the Enemies Command) where they Fought with great Bravery. In the mean time, Luxemburgh, who had found a more convenient Paſſage for the Horſe, between the Poſts of the King's and Zurbeck's Brigades, came in himſelf with the Prince of Conti and Count de Marſin, into the Plain of the Confederates Camp, with the Carabineers, and ſeveral other Regiments, whilſt the Mareſchal de Joyeuſe paſs'd between Neer-Winden and Lare, with Three Brigades. The firſt that had come in with Prince Conti, join'd with the King's Horſe, and fell upon the Hanover Horſe, and broke them; whilſt Part of the Enemy's Second Line of Horſe, and the Reſerve, came in upon their Left, along the Hedges of Lare. The Marquis of Harcourt, who had been ſent for from Huy, with his Detachment of Twenty Two Squadrons, came time enough to have his ſhare of the Day: He join'd theſe, and made his Dragoons alight to chaſe our Foot out of the Village of Laire. The Duke of Villeroy came in upon our Right of the Retrenchments, which Place the Engliſh Foot diſputed with undaunted Reſolution, till being over-powered, the French remain'd Maſters of this Part of the Retrenchment, which they levelled, to make room for a Body of Horſe to come after the Hanover Horſe had been broken; the reſt of the Confederates Right Wing of Horſe being cut off from the Body of Foot, was ſoon overthrown by the Enemy, who now had the Opportunity to charge them both Front and Flank. The Elector of Bavaria did what he could to reſiſt the numerous Multitude of the Enemies Horſe that charged him thus; but finding it impoſſible, with no ſmall difficulty he retreated over the Bridge, and rally'd on the other Side, as many of the ſcattere'd Horſe and Foot as could get over, to favour the Retreat of thoſe who were ready to paſs. The King did what he could to remedy this Diſorder; Riding to the Left to bring up the Engliſh Horſe for the Relief of the Right Wing. But the Enemy had now got another Body of Horſe in our Camp, commanded by the Duke d' Elboeuf. At the ſame time the Duke de Montmorency, Luxemburgh's Son, fell upon the Right Flank of the Dutch Horſe, and put them in Diſorder, before the Engliſh Horſe, which were led on by the King, could come up and form their Squadrons; ſo that they were forced to charge the Enemy in the ſame Order they rid up to them; (and moſt of them had rid as faſt as their Horſes could gallop) but that did not hinder them from doing extraordinary Service. The King himſelf charged at the Head of my Lord Galloway's Regiment, which diſtinguiſhed it ſelf very much on this Occaſion. Colonel Wyndham, at the Head of his Regiment, charg'd ſeveral times through and through the Enemies Squadrons. Colonel Langſtone was made Priſoner; and the Duke of Ormond having charged at the Head of one of Lumley's Squadrons, received ſeveral Wounds, and had his Horſe ſhot under him, but was reſcued by a Gentleman of the French King's Guards, from the Hands of a Villain who was offering to ſtab him.

By degrees overpower'd by the French.

The King ſeeing the Battel loſt, order'd the Infantry to retreat to Dormal, upon the Brook of Beck, which Poſt had hitherto been kept by the Dragoons of the Left Wing, who had nothing to do this Day; and finding that the Enemies were ſurrounding him on all ſides, his Majeſty order'd the Regiments of Wyndham, Lumley, and Galloway, to cover his Retreat over the Bridge at Neerheſpen, which he gain'd with great Difficulty. There was now nothing but Confuſion and Diſorder in the Confederates Camp; all thoſe who could not get the Paſſes for the Retreat, being preſſed by the Enemy, were forc'd to fling themſelves into the River, where abundance were drowned; the Earl of Athlone narrowly eſcaping the ſame Fate. Lieutenant-General Talmaſh brought off the Engliſh Foot with great Prudence, Bravery, and Succeſs; but ſome of the Engliſh Life-Guards were ſo fear'd with the Fury of a purſuing Enemy, that they did not think themſelves ſecure till they reach'd Breda. Sixty Pieces of Cannon and Nine Mortars were loſt; but all the Baggage had been ſent to Lewe the over-Night, where it was ſafely brought off in reſpect of the Enemy, but generally plunder'd by our own Soldiers. As for the Loſs of Men, the Confederates owned but Six thouſand killed, wounded, or taken Priſoners; and the French could not deny, but that they had above Two thouſand Officers killed or wounded; let the Reader gueſs how many private Soldiers they loſt in Proportion.

The King's Retreat.

The King, in the Day of Battel, ſhew'd himſelf as he had always done, a Hero and a Commander; and it was by a wonderful Providence, that he eſcap'd Three Muſquet-Shots, one through his Peruke, another through the Sleeve of his Coat, and a third, which carried off the Knot of his Scarf, and left a ſmall Contuſion on his Side. In ſhort, his

The King's Courage, and Conduct.

1693. 5 W. M. Majeſty gain'd ſo far the Reſpect and Admiration of his very Enemies, that 'twas a common Saying amongſt them, That they wanted but ſuch a King to make them Maſters of Chriſtendom. And the Prince of Conti, in his intercepted Letter to the Princeſs his Wife, ſaid, He ſaw the King expoſing himſelf to the greateſt Dangers; and that ſurely ſo much Valour very well deſerv'd the peacable Poſſeſſion of the Crown He wore.

The Confederates gave it out, that the French had loſt 18000 Men in the Battel; which Aſſertion ſeem'd to be confirm'd, by Luxemburgh's not purſuing his Victory, and his continuing Fifteen Days together at Waren, without attempting any thing. However, after they had been reinforc'd with ſome Troops from the Sea-Coaſt, and a great Detachment under Boufflers from the Rhine, they ſat down before Charleroy, Sept. 10. The Place was attack'd with great Fury; but the Gariſon made ſuch a vigorous Reſiſtance, that tho' they had little or no Proſpect of Relief, yet they held out Six and twenty Days, from the opening of the Trenches; and then made an honourable Capitulation, Octob. 10. The French were not leſs ſucceſsful in Catalonia, where ſo early as the 29th of May, they inveſted Roſes both by Sea and Land; and carried the Siege of it on with that Diligence, that they made themſelves Maſters of the Place in Seven Days.

The French take Charleroy.

Actions on the Rhine.

On the other hand, the Germans were ſo ſlow, and the French ſo forward on the Rhine, that the latter paſs'd that River about the middle of May at Philipsburg; and, without any Oppoſition, the Marquis of Chamilly inveſted the City of Heidelberg. At the ſame Time, the Duke de Lorge croſſed the firſt Mountains, to oppoſe the Prince of Baden, who was not yet in a Condition to act but defenſively; ſo that the Town muſt now ſhift for it ſelf. But beſides its natural Weakneſs, there was at this Time ſuch a Diviſion between the Gariſon and the Townſmen, about the Money that was call'd in, and which the former would have go current again, that when the Regiment of Sconbeck was ready to enter the Place to reinforce the Gariſon, the Townſmen would not ſuffer them to come in; which gave Monſieur de Melac an Opportunity to ſeize a Redoubt which commanded that part of the Town. In ſhort, the French on the 21ſt of May, made themſelves Maſters of the Suburbs with little Oppoſition; and their Grenadiers drove the Beſieged with ſo much Fury to the Caſtle-Gate, that the latter left above 600 of their Soldiers without, who were all put to the Sword. The Governor of the Caſtle apprehending the ſame Fate, accepted the Conditions which Monſieur de Lorge impos'd upon him, June 2. and was contented to be conducted to Wimpel with the reſt of his Gariſon, conſiſting of 1200 Men, 2 Pieces of Cannon, and 12 Waggons laden with Baggage. The Imperialiſts were no ſooner out of the City, but the French ſet both that and the Caſtle on fire, and committed ſeveral other Barbarities in the Palatinate, not ſparing ſo much as the ſacred Repoſitories of the Aſhes of the Deceaſed Electors. Fluſh'd with this eaſy Succeſs, the Mareſchal de Lorge advanced towards the Neckar, with a Deſign to attack the Prince of Baden, who lay encamp'd with his Army on the other ſide of the River; which the French Twice endeavoured to paſs, but were forced to abandon their Enterprize, with the Loſs of near a Thouſand Men. Some time after this, the Dauphin in Perſon join'd the Army, which conſiſted of near 70000 Men; and having croſs'd the Neckar, made a Shew of attacking the Prince of Baden; but found his Highneſs ſo well poſted, that he repaſs'd the River without attempting any thing; and having put a Gariſon into Stugard, and ſent a Detachment into Flanders and Piedmont, he returned in the Month of Auguſt to Verſailles.

Affairs of Italy.

Let's now take a ſhort View of the Affairs of Italy. The Duke of Savoy was no ſooner recover'd of his long Indiſpoſition, but he put himſelf at the Head of the Army; which being conſiderably ſtrong, made the Inhabitants of Dauphine apprehenſive of a worſe Irruption into their Country than the laſt. But the Confederates ſeem'd now chiefly to aim at the driving the French out of Italy, by diſpoſſeſſing them of Cazal and Pignerol; neither of which was effected this Year. 'Tis true, Cazal was block'd up for ſome Time, and the Fort of St. George carried by Aſſault, which compleated the Blockade of that Place; but Things went no farther. And the Duke of Savoy, with the Main Army, laid Siege to Pignerol, took the Fort of St. Bridget, that cover'd the Place; but paid ſo dear for this Poſt, that after all, it was debated, Whether they ſhould carry on the Siege, or only bombard the Town? While the Allies were thus deliberating among themſelves, Monſieur Catinat being conſiderably reinforc'd, deſcended into the Plains, and gave the Duke ſuch Umbrage for Turin, that he drew off from about Pignerol, and encamp'd at Marſaglia, having firſt blown up the Fort of St. Bridget. The Army was preſently drawn up in Battalia. The Marquis de Leganez commanded the Left Wing, compos'd of the King of Spain's Troops; his Royal Highneſs, and under him the Count of Caprara, commanded the Right Wing; and Prince Eugene the Main Battel, having under him the Marquis de la Parelle, and the Count de las Torres. As for the Duke of Schomberg, being denied the Poſt due to him, he reſolved to fight on Foot at the Head of his own Regiment, like an ordinary Colonel. The Confederate Army being thus diſpos'd, marched on the 3d of November into the Neighbourhood of Orbaſſon; from whence they perceived the Enemy towards the Hills, between Orbaſſon and Pioſaſque. Early the next Day the French advanced towards the Confederates, making uſe of the Advantage they had in the Ground, which was full of Wood and Vineyards; and ſoon after the Cannon began to play on both Sides. About Half an Hour after Eight, the French fell upon the Confederate Left Wing with near Twenty thouſand Men, without firing a Shot, having their Bayonets at the End of their Fuzees, and their Swords in their Hands. They were received and driven back with great Vigor; but renewing their Attack, they took in Front and Flank the Neapolitan and Milaneze Horſe; who, after having couragiouſly withſtood the Fury of their Enemy, were at laſt overpower'd by their Numbers, and puſh'd upon the German Horſe. Theſe being at the ſame time charg'd by the Little Gendarmerie, were no longer able to maintain their Ground, but fell upon the Infantry, which was put alſo into Diſorder. The Second Line was brought on to oppoſe the Enemy, while the Firſt Line rallied; but the Horſe giving way, the Foot was quickly routed.

While Things paſſed thus on this ſide, the French were Thrice repulſed with great Loſs by the Confederates Main Battalia, and Right Wing; till their Horſe, which had made the Left Wing give way, attack'd the Confederates Infantry behind and in Flank; who had no longer any Horſe to cover them, and were at the ſame Time attack'd by the Enemies Foot. All the Troops fought with great Courage, and the Diſpute was deſperate on both Sides. His Britannick Majeſty's Forces, which were poſted in the Main Battalia, particularly diſtinguiſh'd themſelves; and the Duke of Schomberg, their General, was deſir'd by the Count de las Torres, after the Enemies Third Attack, to take upon him the Command, and cauſe a Retreat to be made by the Body of Foot, and the Right Wing: But his Grace being piqu'd at the Uſage he had met with before, told him, that it was neceſſary firſt to have his Royal Highneſs's Order; and until it came, he would bear the Enemies Fire; adding, that he found Things were gone ſo far, that they muſt now either van-1693. 5 W. M. quiſh or die. The Confederates reſiſted the repeated Efforts of the Enemy with extraordinary Reſolution; but were at laſt forced to abandon the Field of Battel, and to retire with the Loſs of the greateſt Part of their Cannon, and of Seven or Eight thouſand Men. The Duke of Schomberg having fought with unparallel'd Valour, received a Wound in the Thigh, of which he died not many Days after. With this Action ended the Campaign in Piedmont.

Affairs at Sea.

Our Affairs at Sea were as unfortunate as thoſe at Land. The Engliſh and Dutch Fleet was large and ſtrong, and ſet out early. There was alſo a great Fleet of Merchant-men, making in all near 400 Sail of Engliſh, Dutch, Hamburghers, &c. bound for the Streights, under the Convoy of 23 Men of War, commanded by Sir George Rooke, with whom the Grand Fleet was to keep Company till they came to ſuch a Latitude; or, as ſome reported, till they had certain Intelligence where the French Fleet was. Sir George at the appointed Time, left the Main Fleet, and ſailed on, leaving by the way the Veſſels bound for Bilboa, Lisbon, St. Ubes, and other Ports, under Convoy of Two Men of War, and ſo purſued his Voyage towards the Streights. On June 15. being come within 60 Leagues of Cape St. Vincent, he diſcovered Part of the French Fleet, which made him call a Council of War; wherein it was reſolved, that the Wind being freſh Weſtwardly, and giving a fair Opportunity to haſten their Paſſage to Cadiz, the Merchants ſhould make the beſt of their way. Upon the Diſcovery of the Enemies whole Fleet, commanded by Monſieur de Tourville, and conſiſting of Eighty Sail, Sir George Rook brought to, and ſtood off with an eaſy Sail, to give what Time he could to the heavy Sails to work away to the Windward, ſending away the Sheerneſs to order the ſmall Ships that were under the Shoar to get in the Night into Faro, St. Lucar, and Cadiz. About Six in the Evening, June 16. the French Admiral, and Vice Admiral of the Blue, came up with the Leeward, and ſtern'd moſt of the Confederate Fleet, which were Three Dutch Men of War, who fought firſt Eleven, and then Seven French Men of War, but were at laſt forc'd to yield. This made the Dutch Merchant-men that were there, tack for the Shore, and the Enemy after them, which gave an Opportunity for the Ships to Windward, and a-head, to make Sail off, and ſaved a great Part of the Fleet. And yet the Loſs was very conſiderable; for beſides Four of the greateſt Smyrna Ships, and one Dutch Man of War, which Monſieur Coetlogon burnt or ſunk at Gibraltar, and Seven which he took, Monſieur de Tourville, and Count de Eſtrees, took Two Dutch Men of War, burnt a rich Pinace, and an Engliſh Man of War, took 29 Merchant-men, and deſtroyed about 50 more. Upon this Diſaſter Sir George Rook with the Men of War, and ſome Merchant-men made the beſt of his way for Ireland. This Misfortune lay heavy upon the Hearts of the Merchants, and indeed upon the Minds of all the People of England; and therefore at the next meeting of the Parliament, the firſt Thing they did, was to enquire into the Miſcarriages of the Fleet the laſt Summer, and to conſider how beſt to preſerve the Trade of the Nation. Some Time was ſpent in examining the Inſtructions and Orders given to the Fleet; the Number of Ships for the Line of Battel, and of the Convoys and Cruiſers; the Admirals that commanded both, and the Reſults of the ſeveral Councils of War held by them; and then on Nov. 17. the Commons Reſolved, It was the Opinion of that Houſe, That there had been a Notorious and Treacherous Miſmanagement in the Miſcarriage of the Smyrna Fleet. Their next Enquiry was, Why the Streights Fleet was ſtopp'd till the Main Fleet went out? And then, Why the Main Fleet did not convoy Sir George Rook's Squadron, and the Merchant-Ships, out of danger of the French Fleet? And it being alledged, That the Main Fleet was not ſufficiently victualled; the Commons examin'd the State of their Stores at ſailing from Spithead, and thereupon Reſolved, Nov. 27. That there were ſufficient Beer and other Stores on Board the Main Fleet when Sir George Rook ſeparated, to have convoy'd his Squadron, and the Merchant-Ships out of danger of the Breſt Fleet. But though the Miſcarriage was very notorious they knew not where to fix the particular Blame: For on Nov. 29. the Queſtion being put, That it did appear to that Houſe, that the Admirals that commanded the Fleet the laſt Summer, had on the 11th of May laſt, Information that part of the Breſt Fleet was going out to Sea, it paſs'd in the Negative. And on the 6th of December another Queſtion being put, That the Admirals, by not ſending into Breſt for Intelligence, before they left the Streights Squadron, were guilty of a high Breach of the Truſt that was repoſed in them, to the great Loſs and Diſhonour of the Nation; it was likewiſe carried in the Negative. Before this Enquiry in Parliament, the Admirals had been examin'd before the Council-Board; but nothing could be made appear to the Prejudice of their Honour, only ſome flying Reports, which gave Occaſion to this Order of Council on Octob. 25. "Whereas a Report has been raiſed "and ſpread by Henry Killigrew, Eſq; Sir Ralph "Delaval, and Sir Cloudeſly Shovel, Knt. Admirals "of their Majeſties Fleet, That the Right Honourable the Lord Viſcount Falkland, one of the "Lords of their Majeſties moſt Honourable Privy-"Council, did upon reading a Paper at the Board, "ſtifle ſomething that was material to their Juſtification: The Lords of the Council having conſidered of, and examined into the Matter, are ſatisfied, and do declare, that the ſaid Report is "falſe and ſcandalous; altho' upon the ſaid Examination, it did alſo appear, that ſomething happen'd which might miſlead the Admirals into "that Error. And it is ordered in Council, that "this be printed and publiſhed in the Gazette." But however, his Majeſty, to ſhew his juſt Reſentment of theſe unhappy Proceedings at Sea, immediately upon his Return declared in Council, that he had appointed Edward Ruſſel, Eſq; to be Admiral of the Fleet.

Our Fleet of Merchant-men ſurprized by the French.

Enquiry in Parliament into this Miſcarriage.

And yet for all theſe Victories and Triumphs of France, that Monarch ſaw his own Country ſo oppreſs'd with Famine, and his Troops abroad ſo intolerable a Burthen on him, that in the midſt of his Glories, he was glad to make Propoſals of Peace to the Emperor; which being rejected, a Memorial was preſented to King William, by the Miniſter of the King of Denmark, dated London Dec. 19. 1693. wherein great Offers were made of Reſtitution and Satisfaction to the Empire, Spain and Holland; concluding thus. "Upon the whole Matter, the King "my Maſter is perſuaded, that no Body has more "Reaſon to contribute to this Peace than your Majeſty, ſince it will confirm to you the Glory and "Advantages you have gain'd during the War; and "will, beſides, make Europe to be eternally beholden to your Majeſty for the Peace ſhe groans "after. If your Majeſty thinks that there is any "thing defective, in relation to the Security of the "Peace, or that wants to be either alter'd or explain'd; the King my Maſter engages to procure "to your Majeſty all the Satisfaction imaginable. "And if you are pleaſed to confide in his Mediation, he will manage it to your Majeſty's entire "Satisfaction. Laſtly, the King my Maſter has "commanded me to aſſure your Majeſty, that being, upon ſeveral Accounts, concern'd in the "Proſperity of your Royal Family, he will, to the "utmoſt of his Power, promote its Intereſt and "Advantage. And deſires your Majeſty to be perſuaded, that all the Advances he has made in this "Affair, have no other Aim, and are grounded upon no other Principle.

1693. 5 W. M.

Honours and Preferments. On March 30. Edward Southwell, Eſq; was, by his Majeſty's Command, ſworn Clerk of the Council Extraordinary. On the ſame Day, Edward Ward, of the Inner Temple, Eſq; kiſs'd his Majeſty's Hand for the Place of Attorney-General, in the room of Sir John Somers; and on April 4. he was ſworn before his Predeceſſor, then Lord Keeper. About the ſame Time, his Majeſty granted to John Lord Cutts, the Office of Captain and Governor of the Iſle of Wight, in the room of Sir Robert Holmes, deceas'd. On April 13. Thomas Lord Coningsby, was by her Majeſty's Command, ſworn of the Privy-Council, and took his Place at the Board. On May 3. their Majeſties granted by Letters Patents to Samuel Travers, Eſq; the Office of Surveyor-General, vacant by the Death of Mr. Harbord, their Majeſties late Ambaſſador in Turkey. In the beginning of July, my Lord Capel, Sir Cyril Wych, and William Duncomb, Eſq; were conſtituted Lords Juſtices of Ireland, in the room of the Lord Sidney, who return'd to London on July 19. and for a Reward of his good Services, was on July 22. made Maſter-General of the Ordnance. Richard Earl of Bellamont, and James Hamilton, Eſq; did in July petition her Majeſty, that a Stop might be put to the paſſing of Pardons to the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter, Knt. late Lords Juſtices of Ireland, until the Petitioners, and many other of their Majeſties Subjects of Ireland, might be permitted to produce their Proofs againſt them. The Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter, upon hearing of ſuch Petition, did likewiſe requeſt her Majeſty to put a Stop to the ſaid Pardons, till their Accuſers might be heard in the moſt publick Manner, before her Majeſty in Council. Thereupon it was order'd in Council, the 27th of July, that the Matters of the ſaid Petitions ſhould be heard the next Council-Day; at which Time the Earl of Bellamont and Mr. Hamilton deliver'd a Paper, excuſing their giving any Charge againſt the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter; which being read, it was order'd, that the Matter ſhould be farther examin'd at the Board that Day Six Weeks; and that in the mean time, the Accuſers ſhould deliver their Charge againſt the late Lords Juſtices in Writing to the Board, on the 17th of Auguſt. The Earl of Bellamont and Mr. Hamilton exhibited ſeveral Accuſations on the appointed Day; but ſtill declining to be heard to make good the ſame; and on the contrary, the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter offering to prove their Innocency, the Queen order'd the ſaid Petitions and Charge to be diſmiſs'd.

Accuſation againſt Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter.

The King arriv'd at the Hague from Loo, on Octob. 1. and perſuaded the States of Holland to agree to the raiſing of Fifteen thouſand Men for augmenting their Land-Forces; and likewiſe to the Addition of a conſiderable Number of Ships to their Navy. For which his Majeſty thank'd them in their Publick Aſſembly. The King had waited almoſt a whole Month for a fair Wind; and at laſt embark'd on Saturday Octob. 28. on the Mary Yatch, and ſail'd that Morning out of the Maeſe, being attended by a Squadron of Men of War, under the Command of Rear-Admiral Mitchel. On Sunday, about Four in the Afternoon, his Majeſty landed at Harwich, and ſtaid that Night at Sir Iſaac Rebow's in Colcheſter; and about Eleven the next Night came to Kenſington. On Nov. 2. a Proclamation was publiſh'd for a Publick Thankſgiving, "Inaſmuch as "it had pleaſed Almighty God, to preſerve their "Majeſties and their Government againſt the De"ſigns and Attempts of their open and ſecret Ene"mies; and to protect his Majeſty's Perſon from "the many and great Dangers of the War in his "late (a) Expedition beyond the Seas; and to "bring him back in Safety to this Kingdom." On the ſame Day the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen waited upon his Majeſty at Whitehall, humbly to congratulate his wonderful Preſervation and happy Return. His Majeſty gave them a gracious Anſwer; and as a Mark of his Royal Favour, was pleaſed to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Thomas Abney, Eſq; one of the Sheriffs.

The King returns for England.

Publick Thankſgiving.

1693. 5 W. M.

Parliament meet. According to the laſt Prorogation from Octob. 26. the Parliament met at Weſtminſter on Tueſday November 7. And his Majeſty made this Speech to both Houſes.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Am always glad to meet you here, and I "could heartily wiſh that our Satisfaction were "not leſſened at preſent, by reflecting upon the "Diſadvantages we have received this Year at "Land, and the Miſcarriages in our Affairs at Sea. "I think it is evident, that the former was only oc"caſioned by the great Number of our Enemies, "which exceeded ours in all Places. For what re"lates to the latter, which has brought ſo great a "Diſgrace upon the Nation, I have reſented it ex"tremely; and as I will take Care that thoſe who "have not done their Duty, ſhall be puniſhed, ſo "I am reſolved to uſe my utmoſt Endeavours, that "our Power at Sea may be rightly managed for the "future. And it will well deſerve your Conſidera"tion, Whether we are not defective both in the "Number of our Shipping, and in proper Ports "to the Weſtward, for the better annoying our Ene"mies, and protecting our Trade, which is ſo eſ"ſential to the Welfare of this Kingdom.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I am very ſenſible of the good Affection where"with you have always aſſiſted me to ſupport the "Charges of this War, which have been very "great; and yet I am perſuaded that the Expe"rience of this Summer is ſufficient to convince "us all, that to arrive at a good End of it, there "will be a Neceſſity of increaſing our Forces both "by Sea and Land the next Year. Our Allies have "reſolved to add to theirs; and I will not doubt, "but you will have ſuch Regard to the preſent Exi"gency, as that you will give me a ſuitable Supply "to enable me to do the like. I muſt therefore "earneſtly recommend it to you, Gentlemen of the "Houſe of Commons, to take ſuch timely Reſolu"tion, as that your Supplies may be effectual, and "our Preparations ſo forward, as will be neceſſa"ry both for the Security and the Honour of the "Nation.

Proceedings of the Commons. In anſwer to this Speech, the Commons unanimouſly reſolved, that they would ſupport their Majeſties and their Government, and grant a ſufficient Supply for the vigorous Proſecution of the War. On Nov. 25. they agreed that the Sum of 500000*l.* be raiſed towards the diſcharging the Wages due to the Seamen; and that a farther Sum of Two Millions be granted to their Majeſties in full, for the Maintenance of the Fleet, including the Ordnance, by reaſon of the Revenue now falling ſhort. As for the Army the Commons having examin'd the Offenſive Treaties and Alliances his Majeſty was now under with the Confederates, and the Proportions of Forces that the Confederates were obliged to make for carrying on this preſent War, unanimouſly reſolved on Dec. 20. "That the Number of the "Land Forces in their Majeſties Pay, be increaſed, Reſolved to augment our Forces.

(a) See a Form of Prayer and Thankſgiving to Almighty God, to be uſed on Sunday Novemb. 12. for the Preſervation of his Majeſty from the great and manifold Dangers to which his Royal Perſon was expoſed during his late Expedition, and for his ſafe Return to his People. Licenſed November 2. 1693. Jo. Cant. 410.

I   by

1693.
5 W. M.

"by the raiſing Six new Regiments of Engliſh "Horſe, Four new Regiments of Engliſh Dragoons, "and Fifteen new Regiments of Engliſh Foot, to "be commanded by Officers that were their Maje-"ſties Natural-born Subjects; that 83121 Men, "including Commiſſion and Non-commiſſion Offi-"cers, were neceſſary for the Service of the Year "1694. to be employ'd in England, and beyond "the Seas; and that the Sum of Two Millions "five hundred thirty thouſand five hundred ninety "Pounds be granted, for the Maintenance of the "Land Forces; to wit, 210773 Pounds for the "Office of Ordnance; 31808 Pounds for the Pay "of the General Officers; 11060 Pounds for Levy "Money; 40808 Pounds for the Tranſports; "147000 Pounds for Hoſpitals and Contingencies; "and 1990781 Pounds for the Pay of the Horſe, "Dragoons, and Foot.

And give proportionable Supplies.

Beſides theſe large Supplies, it was found, that the Sum of One hundred eighteen thouſand Pounds was wanting to compleat the Sum of One Million granted to their Majeſties by an Act made in the laſt Seſſion of this preſent Parliament, for ſecuring Recompences to ſuch Perſons as ſhould voluntarily advance the ſaid Million. And likewiſe that the Sum of Two hundred ninety three thouſand ſix hundred ninety two Pounds was wanting, to compleat the Sum of Three hundred thouſand Pounds, granted by a late Act for the Review of the Quarterly Poll. The firſt of which defective Funds the Commons reſolved on December 9. to make good, "By "enlarging the Time for Perſons to pay in the reſt "of the Sum of One Million. And that towards "the raiſing of Money for the Maintenance of the "Fleet, any Perſons be at Liberty to add a Second "Life to the Life that was or ſhould be nominated "upon the Act for ſecuring the Recompences before-"mention'd, upon paying the Sum of Thirty five "Pounds for every One hundred Pounds paid in, "or to be paid in upon the ſaid Act; and for add-"ing a Third Life, the Sum of Twenty Pounds, "for every the ſaid One hundred Pounds, and ſo "for any greater Proportion.

Towards raiſing the Two Millions granted for the Fleet, it was reſolved on December 21, "That "the Sum of One Million be charg'd upon Land; "and that a Duty of Three-pence per Gallon be "laid upon all Foreign Salt imported; and a Duty "of One Penny Half-penny per Gallon, upon all "Engliſh Salt, except all Salt employ'd in the curing "Fiſh and Fleſh to be exported.

The Commons being very much embaraſſed how to levy the reſt of the vaſt Sums they had already granted, on December 26. reſolved, "That a far-"ther Sum of One Million be charged upon Land. "And on December 29. That an Aid, not exceeding "Four Shillings in the Pound, be granted to their "Majeſties, by charging each reſpective County "with double the Sum return'd, charg'd by an Act "made in the firſt Year of their Majeſties Reign, "for a Grant of Two Shillings in the Pound." But becauſe the Committee appointed to draw up the Bill, met with great Difficulties in framing it after that manner, the Houſe gave them Power to alter the ſame, and to frame it into a Bill of Four Shillings in the Pound.

Bill for frequent Parliaments rejected.

A Bill for the more frequent Elections of Parliaments, having, after the Third Reading, been rejected by the Commons, on November 28. another Bill to the ſame purpoſe was ſent down to 'em by the Lords; which being read the Third Time, was likewiſe rejected.

Acts paſſed.

On Thurſday Jan. 25. his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, Firſt, An Act for granting to their Majeſties an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound for One Year, for carrying on a vigorous War againſt France: Second, An Act for Repealing of ſuch Parts of ſeveral former Acts, as prevent or prohibit the Importation of Foreign Brandy, Aqua-vitæ, and other Spirits, and Bacon, except from France. Third, An Act for the Repeal of a Clauſe in the Statute made in the 34th and 35th Years of King Henry VIII. by which Juſtices in Wales are limited to Eight in each County. Fourth, An Act for the Importation of Fine Italian, Sicilian and Naples Thrown Silk. Fifth, An Act to enable John Vivian, Eſq; and Thomas Vivian his Son, to ſell ſome Part of their Eſtate for Payment of Debts, and making Proviſion for younger Children, and for ſettling other Part of their Eſtate in lieu thereof. There was another Bill lay ready for the Royal Aſſent, touching free and impartial Proceedings in Parliament, which had been prepar'd the laſt Year, and was now again brought in and paſs'd by both Houſes: But his Majeſty thought fit again to refuſe his Aſſent to it; which the Commons took ſo ill, that the next Day, upon conſidering the State of the Nation, they reſolved, That whoever adviſed the King not to give the Royal Aſſent to that Act, was an Enemy to their Majeſties and the Kingdom. And a Repreſentation was drawn up by a Committee, and agreed to by the Houſe, wherein they humbly laid before his Majeſty, "That what Bills had been agreed by both "Houſes for the Redreſs of Grievances, or other "Publick Good, had, when tender'd to the Throne, "obtain'd the Royal Aſſent. And that there were "very few Inſtances in former Reigns, where ſuch "Aſſent in ſuch Caſes had not been given; and "theſe attended with great Inconveniences to the "Crown of England, eſpecially where the ſame had "been withheld by Inſinuation of particular Perſons, "without the Advice of the Privy-Council, thereby "creating great Diſſatisfaction and Jealouſies in the "Minds of the People. That the Commons there-"fore, out of their ſincere Deſire of the Welfare of "his Majeſty and his Government, could not with-"out Grief of Heart, reflect, that ſince his Maje-"ſty's Acceſſion to the Crown, ſeveral Publick Bills, "made by the Advice of both Houſes of Parlia-"ment, had not obtain'd the Royal Aſſent; and in "particular One Bill, Entitled, An Act touching "Free and Impartial Proceedings in Parliament, "which was to redreſs a Grievance, and take off a "Scandal relating to the Proceedings of the Com-"mons in Parliament, after they had freely voted "great Supplies for the Publick Occaſions; which "they could impute to no other Cauſe than the In-"ſinuations of particular Perſons, who took upon 'em "for their own particular Ends, to adviſe his Ma-"jeſty contrary to the Advice of Parliament; and "therefore could not but look on ſuch as Enemies "to his Majeſty and his Kingdoms. Upon which "Conſiderations they humbly pray'd, that for the "future his Majeſty would be pleaſed to hearken "to the Advice of his Parliament, and not "to the ſecret Advices of particular Perſons, "who might have private Intereſts of their own, "ſeparate from the true Intereſt of his Maje-"ſty and his People." To this Repreſentation the King anſwer'd January 29. "That he "was very ſenſible of the good Affections the "Commons had expreſs'd towards him upon many "Occaſions, and of the Zeal they had ſhewn for "the common Intereſt. That no Prince ever had a "higher Eſteem for the Conſtitution of the Eng-"liſh Government than himſelf, and that he ſhould "ever have a great Regard to the Advice of Par-"liaments. That he was perſuaded that nothing "could ſo much conduce to the Happineſs and Wel-"fare of this Kingdom, as an entire Confidence "between the King and People, aud that he ſhould "look upon ſuch Perſons to be his Enemies, "who ſhould adviſe any thing that might leſſen "it." Three Days after, the Commons took his Majeſty's Anſwer into Conſideration, and the "Queſtion being propounded, That an humble Ap-"plication be made to his Majeſty for a farther An-"ſwer, it paſſed in the Negative.

Act for impartial Proceedings in Parliament rejected by the King.

Repreſentation of the Commons.

1693. 5 W. M.

State of the Eaſt-India Company.

The Eaſt-India Company having obtain'd a Charter, whereby they were empower'd to raiſe the Sum of Seven Hundred Forty Four Thouſand Pounds, to be added to a General Joint-Stock, and ſubſcribed by their Majeſties Natural-born Subjects, Naturalized, or Endenized; the Subſcriptions of each Perſon not exceeding Ten Thouſand Pounds: Several Merchants, and others, in and about the City of London, petition'd the Commons, December the 7th, for Erecting a New Eaſt-India Company. The Houſe did thereupon examine the Charters of the Eaſt-India Company, the Book of New Subſcriptions, the State of their preſent Stock, and the Petition abovemention'd; and after mature Deliberation, January the 19th, Reſolved, That all the Subjects of England have equal Right to Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, unleſs prohibited by Act of Parliament: And this gave Occaſion to the Erecting of a New Eaſt-India Company, more to the Diviſion of the Merchants, than to the Benefit of Trade.

Socinian Pamphlet burnt.

A Complaint was made to the Commons of a blaſphemous Pamphlet, entitled, A Dialogue concerning the Deity; and a Brief, but Clear Confutation of the Doctrine of the Trinity; which had been diſpers'd, and ſent inclos'd under Covers, directed to ſeveral Members of that Houſe. It was thereupon reſolv'd, on December the 16th, That the ſaid Pamphlet ſhould be burnt by the Common Hangman; and an Enquiry made after the Author, Printer, and Publiſher.

Caſe of Lord Bellamont and Sir Charles Porter.

The Earl of Bellamont, who had not ſucceeded in his Application to the Queen and Council, did now preſent to the Houſe of Commons Articles of Impeachment of High Treaſon, and other Crimes and Miſdemeanors, againſt the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter, late Lords Juſtices of Ireland. This Matter was taken into Conſideration on December the 29th; and the Debates upon it, together with the Examination of Witneſſes, having taken up a great deal of Time, the Houſe agreed at laſt to this Reſolution, January the 29th; That conſidering the State of Affairs in Ireland at that Time, the Houſe did not think fit to ground an Impeachment againſt the Lord Coningsby and Sir Charles Porter, for the Matters charg'd upon them.

Project of Lotteries.

The Humour of the Nation run much upon Lotteries; and ſome private Projectors had enriched themſelves that way: Some Members therefore of the Houſe of Commons propoſed a like Method of Adventures, to raiſe a Million Sterling for the Government. This Deſign having been communicated to the Houſe, it was reſolved on February the 6th, 1. That a Fund of 140000 l. per Annum be raiſed, and veſted in their Majeſties for the Term of Sixteen Years, for recompenſing ſuch Perſons as ſhall advance the Sum of One Million. 2. That the Impoſitions lately reſolv'd by the Houſe to be laid upon Salt, be Part of the ſaid Fund. 3. That towards the further anſwering of the ſaid yearly Fund, one Moiety of the Duties of Exciſe, granted to their Majeſties by an Act made in the Second Year of their Majeſties Reign, be granted and continued to their Majeſties, after the Monies charg'd upon the ſaid Duties ſhall be ſatisfied. And 4. That a Bill be brought in upon the ſaid Reſolutions.

Acts paſſed.

On Thurſday, February the 8th, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave his Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act to ſupply the Deficiency of the Money raiſed by a former Act, entituled, An Act for granting to their Majeſties certain Rates and Duties of Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors; for ſecuring certain Recompences and Advantages in the ſaid Act mention'd, to ſuch Perſons as ſhall voluntarily advance the Sum of Ten Hundred Thouſand Pounds, towards carrying on the War againſt France. 2. An Act to prevent Diſputes and Controverſies concerning Royal Mines. 3. An Act to indemnify the Truſtees of James Clayton, Eſq; for joining with him in Selling Lands for Payment of his Debts.

1693. 5 W. M.

While the Commons were debating of greater Supplies, the Commiſſioners they had appointed for taking the Publick Accounts, were order'd to lay before the Houſe an Account of what Money had been paid for ſecret Service, and to Members of Parliament, out of the Publick Revenue. Upon Examination of the whole Matter, it was reſolv'd on February the 17th, That the Lord Falkland, being a Member of that Houſe, by begging and receiving Two Thouſand Pounds from his Majeſty, contrary to the ordinary Method of iſſuing and beſtowing the King's Money, was guilty of a high Miſdemeanor and Breach of Truſt; and that he be committed to the Tower of London, during the Pleaſure of the Houſe. Accordingly his Lordſhip was ſent to the Tower; from whence (on February the 19th) he preſented a Petition to the Houſe, ſetting forth, That he was highly ſenſible of their Diſpleaſure; and that a longer Continuance of his Confinement would be extreamly prejudicial to him. Whereupon it was order'd, That he ſhould be diſcharg'd from his Impriſonment in the Tower.

Caſe of Lord Falkland.

Ways and Means.

Among other Ways and Means to raiſe a ſufficient Supply, the Commons laid a Duty upon Leather, Soap, Wine, and the Tonnage of all Ships and Veſſels. And becauſe even all theſe Impoſitions came ſhort of anſwering the Monies to be Levied within this Year, they reſolv'd to grant a Poll-Tax to their Majeſties, as alſo a Duty upon all Hackney and Stage-Coaches; and laſtly, upon Paper and Parchment.

Acts paſſed.

On Friday, March the 23d, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and (with uſual Solemnity) gave his Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for granting to their Majeſties certain Rates and Duties upon Salt, and upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors; for ſecuring certain Recompences and Advantages in the ſaid Act mention'd, to ſuch Perſons as ſhall voluntarily advance the Sum of Ten Hundred Thouſand Pounds, towards carrying on the War againſt France. 2. An Act for Relief of the Orphans, and other Creditors of the City of London. 3. An Act for Repeal of a Clauſe in the Statute of the Fifth Year of Queen Elizabeth, (containing divers Orders for Artificers and others); which relates to Weavers of Cloth. 4. An Act to take away the Proceſs for the Capiatur Time, in the ſeveral Courts at Weſtminſter. 5. An Act to repeal the Statute made in the Tenth Year of King Edward the Third, for finding Sureties for the good Abearing by him or her that hath a Pardon for Felony. 6. An Act to prevent Delays of Proceedings at the Quarter-Seſſions of the Peace. 7. An Act for the Explaining, and for the more effectual Execution of a former Act for Relief of poor Priſoners. 8. An Act to enable Roger Whitley the Elder, Eſq; and Thomas Whitley, Eſq; to exchange certain Lands of equal Value within the County of Cheſter. 9. An Act for Payment of the Debts of George Turner, Eſq; deceas'd. 10. An Act to enable Sir Charles Barrington, Baronet, to ſettle a Jointure on Dame Bridget his Wife, and to make Proviſion for their younger Children. 11. An Act for ſettling the Inheritance of ſome Parts of the Eſtate of Charles Turner, Eſq; (which lie diſperſed) in him and his Heirs; and ſettling an entire Eſtate of greater Value in Lieu thereof, to the Uſes that the ſaid other Parts of his Eſtate were ſettled. 12. An Act to enable John Whitehall to charge certain Lands with the Sum of Fifteen Hundred Pounds, towards Portions for his younger Children. 13. An Act to enable Thomas Earl of Thanet, and the Honourable Sackville Tufton, Eſq; his Brother, to make a Leaſe of Sixty Years of Thanet-Houſe, in the Pariſh of St. Botolph's Alderſgate; to commence after the Remainder of a Term of One and thirty Years now in being. 14. An Act for Sale of Part of the Eſtate of Henry Frere

an

1693. 5 W. M. an Infant, to raiſe Monies for Inning and Recovering other Parts thereof now under Water, and for Payment of Debts charged thereon. 15. An Act for making a Bridge over the River Axe, in the County of Somerſet. 16. An Act for Sale of the Eſtate of Suſan Chaplin, and Dorothy Chaplin her Daughter; for Payment of Debts, and making Proviſion for the ſaid Suſan and Dorothy. 17. An Act to enable the Truſtees of Alice Turner, Widow, and her Children, to make Sale of certain Houſes or Ground in or near Lincolns-Inn-Fields, in the County of Middleſex, during the Minority of the younger Children. 18. An Act to enable Thomas Edwards to ſell Part of his Eſtate, for Payment of Debts; and to reſtrain and diſable him to commit Waſte upon the Reſidue of the ſaid Eſtate. 19. An Act for Sale of the Eſtate of William Stevens, deceaſed, for Payment of the Mortgage thereupon, and applying the Overplus for the Benefit of his Sons who are Infants. 20. An Act to veſt the Eſtate of Mary, Elizabeth, and Jane Mildmay, and Edward Dixy and Arabella his Wife, and Lucy and Anne Mildmay, in Truſtees, to be ſold for Satisfaction of Mortgages and Debts thereupon, and Preſerving the Overplus for their Benefit. And afterwards his Majeſty made a moſt Gracious Speech to both Houſes, as follows.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech. "WHen I conſider how far the Year is advanced, what Preparations our Enemies "make to be early in the Field, and how neceſſary "it is that we ſhould be ready to meet them both "by Sea and Land; I muſt earneſtly recommend "to you the Diſpatch of thoſe important Affairs "which you have under your Deliberation.

"I am very ſenſible of the good Affection which "you have ſhewn in this as well as former Seſſions, by enabling me to carry on the War we are "engaged in for our common Safety: There is nothing I have ſo much at my Heart as the Eaſe and "Happineſs of my People; and it is with great "Reluctance that I am forced to ask ſuch large "Supplies: But ſince our preſent Circumſtances "make this unavoidable, it ſhall be my Endeavour, "that the Sums which are given ſhall be laid out "in the beſt manner to the Uſes for which they are "deſign'd.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

"I take this Occaſion to mention to you the "Debt for the Tranſport-Ships, which were uſed "in the Reducing of Ireland: It grieves me exceedingly, to ſee ſuch a Number of Perſons, who "came ſo freely in for ſo good a Service, brought "to the laſt Extremities for want of what is due "to them. It is not poſſible for me to diſcharge "this Debt without your Help; and as I doubt not "but you have a juſt Commiſeration of their Caſe, "ſo I hope you will find out ſome Way for their "Relief.

Caſe of the Duke of Norfolk. During this Seſſion, the Town was entertained with the Tryal of an indecent Cauſe in Weſtminſter-Hall. The Duke of Norfolk bearing with Impatience the ſuſpected Commerce which Mr. Jermaine had maintained with his Dutcheſs, had the laſt Winter lodg'd a Bill of Divorce in the Houſe of Peers; but their Lordſhips being unwilling to proceed in that Affair before there were ſome Proofs of the Fact made in the Courſe of the Common Law, his Grace did thereupon bring an Action of Adultery againſt Mr. Jermaine, before the Court of King's-Bench. This Notorious Cauſe was tried on the 24th of November; and upon a full Hearing of many obſcene Evidences, the Jury found for the Plaintiff, and allow'd his Grace One Hundred Marks Damages, with Coſts of Court: Where the Slightneſs of Satisfaction was almoſt as great a Reproach as the Crime it ſelf.

1693. 5 W. M. Affairs at Sea. Towards the Middle of November, Captain Bembow, with a Squadron of Men of War, bombarded St. Malo Four Days together, tho' without any great Succeſs; having only deſtroyed ſome few Houſes, and thrown down Part of the Town-Wall. Towards the End of the Month, we had much worſe News from Sea: A Fleet of Merchant-Ships, under a Convoy of Men of War commanded by Sir Francis Wheeler, having ſailed on the 17th of February from Gibralter up the Streights, met the next Day with a moſt violent Storm, which continued all that Day and the following Night; ſo that on the 19th, about Five in the Morning, Sir Francis Wheeler's own Ship (the Suſſex) was founder'd, and himſelf with all his Men, except Two Moors, drowned; the Cambridge and Lumley-Caſtle Men of War, the Serpent Bomb-Ketch, and the Mary Ketch, together with the Italian Merchant, the Aleppo Factor, the Great George, and the Berkſhire, bound for Turkey, the William for Venice, and the Golden Merchant for Leghorn, (all Engliſh) were driven aſhore on the Eaſt Side of Gibralter, and moſt of the Men loſt. The ſame Fate attended Three Dutch Ships richly laden; but Rear-Admiral Nevill, with Two Dutch Men of War, had the good Fortune to be blown out of the Streights, and put ſafe into Cadiz; as did the reſt of the Fleet, on the 19th, into Gibralter. This Loſs (how great ſoever) was ſoon after repaired; his Majeſty having cauſed the Men of War on the Stocks to be finiſhed with extraordinary Diligence.

Violent Storm. Great Loſs.

Prince Lewis of Baden comes into England. On Sunday, December 31. Prince Lewis of Baden arriv'd at Graveſend, and on Tueſday he came up the River in the King's Barge, and was conducted to the Apartment prepared for him at Whitehall: He was ſplendidly entertained and diverted, not only by His Majeſty, but by ſeveral Peers of the Realm, and eſpecially by the Generous Duke of Ormond, who treated him with a Magnificent Banquet, and a very ſplendid Ball.

Honours and Preferments. On November the 22d, his Majeſty was pleaſed to grant to the Earl of Abingdon the Office of Chief Juſtice in Eyre on this ſide Trent, vacant by the Death of the Lord Lovelace; and was alſo pleaſed to appoint the Right Honourable the Lord Viſcount Sidney Maſter-General of the Ordnance, to be Colonel of their Majeſties Firſt Regiment of Foot-Guards, in the Place of the late Duke of Schombergh. On November the 24th, his Majeſty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Charles Lloyd, Eſq; one of the Deputy-Lieutenants of the County of Cardigan. On Decemb. 2. his Majeſty did the like Honour to John Buckworth, Eſq;. On Novemb. 30. the Duke of St. Albans was ſworn Captain of their Majeſties Band of Penſioners, in the Place of the Lord Lovelace, deceaſed. Upon the Death of the Duke of Schombergh, his Majeſty appointed the Lord Viſcount Galway to command his Forces in Piedmont, in the Quality of Lieutenant-General, and to give him likewiſe the Character of Envoy Extraordinary to the Duke of Savoy. His Lordſhip ſet out on December the 6th, in order to embark for Holland, and thence to continue his Journey by Land to Piedmont. Toward the End of the Month, his Majeſty was pleaſed to nominate Colonel Francis Nicholſon, to be Governor in Chief of the Province of Maryland, in the Place of Colonel Copley, lately deceaſed. About the Middle of January, his Majeſty was pleaſed to create the Honourable Mr. Charles Butler, Brother to his Grace the Duke of Ormond, a Baron of England, by the Name and Stile of Charles Lord Butler, Baron of Weſton in the County of Huntingdon; and a Baron, Viſcount, and Earl of Ireland, by the Name and Stile of Baron of Cloghgrenan, Viſcount Tullo, and Earl of Arran. On February the 19th, Peregrine Bertie,

1693. 5 W. M.

Bertie, Eſq; was ſworn Vice-Chamberlain to his Majeſty, in the Place of Sir John Lowther, of Lowther, Baronet, who had deſir'd his Majeſty's Leave to reſign the ſame. His Majeſty was pleaſed to appoint Samuel Eyre, Serjeant at Law, to be one of the Judges of the King's-Bench, in the room of Mr. Juſtice Dolben, deceas'd; and Henry Gould, Eſq; to be one of the King's Serjeants: And on February the 22d, his Majeſty conferr'd upon them the Honour of Knighthood. On March 4. his Majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute Charles Earl of Shrewſbury Principal Secretary of State, in the room of the Earl of Nottingham. (a)

The Oxford Hiſtorian and Antiquary, Mr. Anthony à Wood, had lately publiſh'd Two uſeful Volumes, entitled, Athenæ Oxonienſes: An Exact Hiſtory of all the Writers and Biſhops, who have had their Education in the moſt Ancient and Famous Univerſity of Oxford, from the Year 1500, to 1690. wherein he gave Characters of Men with great Freedom, tho' to the beſt of his own Opinion, and often with great Truth and Impartiality. Among other Things, in the Life of Judge Glynne, he takes notice, "That after the Reſtoration of "King Charles II. he was made his Eldeſt Serjeant "at Law, by the corrupt Dealing of the then Lord "Chancellor;" meaning Edward Earl of Clarendon. It was chiefly for this Expreſſion, that the late Earl, as Eldeſt Son and Heir of the ſaid Chancellor, preferr'd an Action in the Vice-Chancellor's Court againſt the Author, for Defamation of his deceaſed Father. The Iſſue of the Proceſs was a hard Judgment given againſt the Defendant; which, to be made the more publick, was put into the Gazette in theſe Words: "Oxford, July 31. 1693. On the "29th Inſtant, Anthony à Wood was condemn'd in "the Vice-Chancellor's Court of the Univerſity of "Oxford, for having written and publiſhed, in the "Second Volume of his Book, entitled, Athenæ "Oxonienſes, divers infamous Libels againſt the "Right Honourable Edward late Earl of Clarendon, "Lord High-Chancellor of England, and Chancel-"lor of the ſaid Univerſity; and was therefore ba-"niſhed the ſaid Univerſity, until ſuch Time as he "ſhall ſubſcribe ſuch a Publick Recantation, as the "Judge of the Court ſhall approve of, and give "Security not to offend in the like Nature for the "future: And his ſaid Book was therefore alſo de-"creed to be burnt before the Publick Theatre; "and on this Day was burnt accordingly: And "publick Programma's of his Expulſion are already "affixed in the Three uſual Places.

This Cenſure was the more grievous to the Blunt Author, becauſe it ſeem'd to come from a Party of Men whom he had the leaſt diſobliged. His Bitterneſs had been againſt the Diſſenters; but of all the Zealous Church-Men, he had given Characters with a ſingular Turn of Eſteem and Affection: Nay, of the Jacobites, and even of the Papiſts themſelves, he had always ſpoke the moſt favourable Things; and therefore it was really the greater Mortification to him, to feel the Storm coming from a Quarter where he thought he leaſt deſerved, and might leaſt expect it. For the ſame Reaſon, this Correction was ſome Pleaſure to the Presbyterians, who believ'd there was a Rebuke due to him, which they themſelves were not able to pay.

Death of Archbiſhop Sancroft.

On Nov. 24. Died Dr. William Sancroft, the depriv'd Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who had retir'd to the Place of his Birth and Eſtate, Fretchingfield in Suffolk, where by his own Order he was Buried in the Church-Yard, with this Inſcription on his Tomb (b).

P. M. S.

Lector; Wilhelmi nuper Archipræſulis
(Qui Natus in Vicinia)
Quod Morti cecidit, prope hunc Murum jacet;
Atqui Reſurget. Tu interim
Semper paratus eſto; Nam hora quam non Putas
Dominus venturus eſt.
Obijt XXIV. November. Anno { Nat. Dom. MDCLXXXXIII. Ætat. ſuæ LXXVII. }

P. M. S.

"William Sancroft, Born in this Pariſh, afterwards by the Providence of God, Archbiſhop of "Canterbury; and at laſt depriv'd of all that he "could not keep with a good Conſcience, return'd "hither to end his Life, where he begun it; and "profeſſeth here at the Foot of his Tomb, That as "he Naked came forth, ſo he Naked muſt return; "The Lord giveth, and the Lord hath taken away; "As the Lord pleaſeth ſo Things come to paſs; "Bleſſed be the Name of the Lord". ------- And over his Effigies was wrote this Text, "St. Matth. "24. v. 27. As the Lightning cometh out of the "Eaſt, and ſhineth even unto the Weſt, ſo ſhall "alſo the coming of the Son of Man be.

We left the Parliament ſitting, but the King was (a) See a Declaration of Shadrach Cooke, Prieſt of the Church of England, upon Receiving the Bleſſed Sacrament, of his being altogether ignorant and innocent of what was witneſſed againſt him, That he did forge a Tranſport to France in my Lord Nottingham's Name. Dat. Newgate, October the 22d, 1693.

(a) Archbiſhop Sancroft, after his See was filled, received and accepted the Miniſtry of his Chaplains, who had ſworn to the Government; tho' a mighty noiſe was made upon his being prevailed with to ſuffer the Miniſtrations of Dr. Trumbal and Mr. Snatt, in his Chapel at Lambeth, upon the Firſt Sacrament which was Adminiſtred there after his See was filled. But even there his Chaplains, tho' they did not officiate, did however communicate; and at the Evening Service of the ſame Day, as they had done in the Morning before it, they officiated to his Grace; according to their uſual Cuſtom the Conſecration of the Holy Elements, was at the Noon Service of that Day performed by his Grace himſelf, when Mr. Snatt read Prayers, and Dr. Trumbal preached, and all communicated together, as hath been before related. After the Evening Service of that Day, he thus accoſted both his Chaplains, (who were the Reverend Mr. Wharton, now Deceaſed, and the Reverend Mr. Needham ſtill living, from the latter of whom I have the Favour of this Relation) Sirs, You have hitherto ſerved me to my very great ſatisfaction; but I think the time is now come, in which we muſt part. Upon being asked, Why he was pleaſed to expreſs himſelf in this manner? His Grace reply'd; Why, there is another come into my Place, and it will now be dangerous to continue with me any longer. Upon which both the Chaplains agreed to tender him their Services afreſh in regard to their Perſonal Obligations, tho' they had happen'd to differ from him with reſpect to the Publick. Whereupon, with an Air of Satisfaction, he made them this quick and ſhort Return; Say you ſo, then go on in the Name of God. And they did ſo, continuing to officiate as his Chaplains, after his Retirement from Lambeth, till near the time of his Removal into Suffolk. In September, 1692. Mr. Needham viſited him there, and joined with him in the Evening-Prayers of the Day, and read the Leſſons by his Grace's appointment. In the September of the Year following, he viſited him again, and found him much weakened by Sickneſs, and confined to his Bed. He then gave Mr. Needham his Bleſſing very affectionately, (which by the way ſuppoſed Mr. Needham to be no Schiſmatick) and after ſome other Talk his Grace ſaid thus to him; You and I have gone different Ways in theſe late Affairs; but I truſt Heaven Gates are wide enough to receive us both: What I have done, I have done in the Integrity of my Heart. Upon Mr. Needham's modeſt Attempt to give an Account of his own Conduct, his Grace was pleaſed to reply, I always took you for an honeſt Man; What I ſaid concerning my ſelf was only to let you know, that what I have done I have done in the Integrity of my Heart, indeed in the great Integrity of my Heart. Upon the Offer of Mr. Needham to officiate to his Grace in the Viſitation of the Sick, he ſaid, He had juſt before received that Office according to the Liturgy of the Church of England, in the preſence of a great deal of Company, who had left the Houſe a little before Mr. Needham came into it. Whether this Office was Adminiſtred by a Non-Juror or not, is nothing to the Purpoſe, except it had appeared that his Grace thought none but a Non-Juror capable of Adminiſtring to him. It is no wonder he ſhould prefer the People of that Perſuaſion; but ſo long as he thought Communion with our People lawful, it is moſt evident that the Schiſm of the Nonjuring-Biſhops had no countenance from their Metropolitan. Defence of our Conſtitution by Mr. Marſhal, 1717, 8vo.

impatient

1693. 5 W. M.

impatient for their Diſpatch of Buſineſs, that he might have Liberty to begin an Early Campaign: So on April 14. the Second Troop of Guards commanded by the Duke of Ormond; and the Regiment of Horſe-Guards commanded by the Earl of Portland, with a great Number of Recruit-Horſes, were ſhipp'd in the River, and Sail'd that Day, together with the Train of Artillery for Flanders. April 16. His Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and with the uſual Solemenity, gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for Raiſing Money by a Poll payable Quarterly for One Year, for carrying on a Vigorous War againſt France. 2. An Act for continuing the Act for Puniſhing Officers and Soldiers, who ſhall Mutiny or Deſert their Majeſties Service; and for Puniſhing of Falſe Muſters, and for the Payment of Quarters for one Year longer. 3. An Act for the Exportation of Iron, Copper, and Mundick Metal. 4. An Act for the Importation of Salt-Petre for one Year; and to ſeveral Private Acts.

Some Bills were depending that were left uniniſh'd; ſuch as, A Bill to regulate Tryals in Caſes of High Treaſon, which the Commons had ſent to the Lords for their Concurrence. A Bill for Naturalizing of all ſuch Proteſtants as ſhould take the Oaths to their Majeſties, and proteſt againſt Popery. A Bill concerning the Forfeitures both in England and Ireland. A Bill for Regiſtring of Wills: Another againſt Stock-Jobbers, and another for the Encouragement of Privateers. But all other Bills being now ready for the Royal Aſſent, his Majeſty came on Wedneſday, April 25. to the Houſe of Peers, and paſs'd the following Acts. 1. An Act for Granting to their Majeſties ſeveral Rates and Duties upon Tonnage of Ships and Veſſels, and upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, for ſecuring certain Recompences and Advantages in the ſaid Act mentioned, to ſuch Perſons as ſhall voluntarily advance the Sum of Fifteen Hundred Thouſand Pounds towards carrying on the War againſt France. 2. An Act for granting to their Majeſties ſeveral Duties upon Vellum, Parchment, and Paper, for Four Years, towards carrying on the War againſt France. 3. An Act for Licenſing and Regulating Hackney-Coaches, and Stage-Coaches. 4. An Act for enabling their Majeſties to make Grants, Leaſes, and Copies of Offices, Lands, and Hereditaments, part of their Dutchy of Cornwall, or annexed to the ſame, and for Confirmation of Leaſes and Grants already made. 5. An Act for raiſing the Militia of this Kingdom for the Year 1694, although the Months Pay formerly advanced be not paid. 6. An Act for appointing and enabling Commiſſioners to Examine, Take, and State the Publick Accompts of the Kingdom. 7. An Act for Building Good and Defenſible Ships. 8. An Act for the better Diſcipline of their Majeſties Navy Royal, and to two private Acts. After which, his Majeſty made a Gracious Speeech to both Houſes, as follows:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech.

"THE Proofs you have given of your Affection to Me, and the Zeal you have expreſſed for the Support of the Government, oblige me to return you Thanks before I put an End to this Seſſion; and in particular, to Thank You, Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons, for the Large Supplies you have provided to carry on the War.

"I will endeavour to do my Part; and it is from the Bleſſing of God that We muſt all expect ſuch Succeſs as may anſwer our Deſires.

My Lords and Gentlemen;

"The Poſture of Affairs making it neceſſary for Me to be abſent for ſome time out of this Kingdom, I recommend it to you, That in your ſeveral Stations you be careful to preſerve the Publick Peace.

1693. 5 W. M.

Then the Lord-Keeper by his Majeſty's Command prorogued the Parliament to Tueſday the 18th Day of September next.

The King goes for Holland. Is forced to return.

The ſame Day about Four in the Afternoon his Majeſty went for Graveſend, in order to Embark for Holland; but finding the Wind contrary, he returned to Kenſington the next Day. To leave Things in the better Order, and the People in greater Content and Satisfaction, his Majeſty gave the Garter, vacant by the Death of William Duke of Hamilton, to the Right Honourable Charles Earl of Shrewsbury, lately made principal Secretary of State; who in a Chapter held at Whitehall, April 25. was Elected, Inveſted, and Knighted with the uſual Ceremony; and on the ſame Day was Created a Marquis and Duke of this Kingdom, by the Name and Stile of Marquis of Alton, and Duke of Shrewsbury. His Majeſty was likewiſe pleaſed to Create the Right Honourable John Earl of Mulgrave, Marquis of Normanby; and Henry Herbert of Ribisford in the County of Worceſter, Eſq; a Baron of this Kingdom, by the Name and Title of Baron of Cherbury in the County of Salop. At the ſame time his Majeſty was pleaſed to appoint the Right Honourable, Edward Ruſſel, Eſq; Sir John Lowther of Whitehaven, Baronet, Henry Prieſtman, Eſq; Robert Auſtin, Eſq; Sir Robert Rich, Baronet, Sir George Rook, and Sir John Houblon, Knts. Commiſſioners for Executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of England and Ireland, and the Dominions thereunto belonging. On April the 26th, his Majeſty was pleaſed, upon the Death of Sir Thomas Duppa, Gentleman Uſher of the Black Rod, to confer that Place upon Fleetwood Shepherd, Eſq; Gentleman Uſher Daily Waiter to his Majeſty; and conferr'd upon him the Honour of Knighthood. On April the 30th his Majeſty was pleaſed to Create Thomas Lord Marquis of Carmarthen, Preſident of the Council, Duke of Leeds; William Earl of Bedford, Marquis of Taviſtock, and Duke of Bedford; William Earl of Devonſhire, Lord Steward of their Majeſties Houſhold, Marquis of Hartington, and Duke of Devonſhire; John Earl of Clare, Marquis of Clare, and Duke of Newcaſtle; Francis Lord Viſcount Newport, Treaſurer of their Majeſties Houſhold, Earl of Bradford in the County of Salop: And ſoon after, Henry Lord Viſcount Sidney, Lord Warden of the Cinque-Ports, was Created Earl of Romney in the County of Kent. On May the 2d, his Majeſty was pleaſed to Conſtitute Sidney Lord Godolphin, Sir Stephen Fox, Knight, Charles Mountague, Eſq; Sir William Trumbal, Knt. and John Smith, Eſq; Lords Commiſſioners of the Treaſury: And for a Reward of Eminent Services done in the Houſe of Commons with great Dexterity and Induſtry, his Majeſty granted to Charles Mountague, Eſq; one of the ſaid Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, the Offices of Chancellor and Under-Treaſurer of the Exchequer. On May the 3d, John Lord Marquis of Normanby, and Charles Lord Viſcount Durſley, were by his Majeſty's Command, Sworn of the Privy-Council, and took their Places at the Board.

Honours and Preferments.

When Perſons were thus wiſely ſoftened; on Thurſday in the Evening, May the 3d the King and Queen went down to Graveſend, where his Majeſty embarked about Five the next Morning, the Wind being then fair; but it changing ſoon after, his Majeſty came aſhoar again at Graveſend about Ten; and for better Expedition went the ſame Day with the Queen to Canterbury, and on May the 6th went early from thence to Margate, where he Embarked on the Fubs Yatch, and ſet Sail about Eleven with a fair Wind for Holland; being attended by Eight Dutch Men of War who came about from the Downs. His Majeſty Landed the next Day at the

The King embarks for Holland.

Hock

1694. 6 W. M.

Hock of Holland, over-againſt the Brill, at Six in the Evening; and having ſupp'd with Monſieur Reningburgh, he came about Midnight to the Hague; and next Morning he went firſt into the Aſſembly of the States of Holland, and afterwards that of the States General, and made a ſhort Speech in each of them; and receiv'd their Compliments on his ſafe Arrival. And after a few Days, his Majeſty went to Loo, for ſome Diverſions of that Place.

The Confederate Fleet.

Here leaving his Majeſty, we ſhall firſt obſerve the Motions of the Confederate Fleet, which was out early this Year; but yet were not able to block up the French Fleet in Breſt, nor to meet 'em for a Fight at Sea: For the French induſtriouſly avoided an Engagement; and were no ſooner out of Harbour, but they made all the Sail they could toward the Mediterranean, having form'd great Deſigns againſt Spain this Campaign. In order to break their Meaſures, and to prevent the Loſs of Catalonia, King William thought fit to order his Fleet into thoſe Seas. But before Admiral Ruſſel left the Coaſt of France, being inform'd that there was a Fleet of Merchant-Men in Bertram Bay, bound to the Eaſtward, he ſent Captain Pickard, and the Roebuck Fire-ſhip, either to take, or deſtroy 'em. Theſe Orders the Captain executed with ſo good Succeſs, that of Fifty two Sail of them, he burnt or ſunk Thirty five, beſides the Man of War that was their Convoy, the which run among the Rocks, and ſoon after blew up with her Two Sloops, of between Ten and Fifteen Guns.

The French Fleet deſtroy'd in Bertram Bay.

Unſucceſſful Attempt on Breſt.

The ſame good Fortune did not attend the Deſign of deſtroying the Harbour of Breſt; the Execution of which deſperate Attempt was committed to Lieutenant-General Talmaſh, who fell a Sacrifice in it; and therefore, as ſome pretend, was deſtin'd to that Fall by the Envy of ſome of his pretended Friends. This is certain, that the French had Time to provide themſelves againſt a Deſign that was become a Town-Talk in London ſome Months before it was put in Execution. But to give an Account of this unfortunate Attempt. On the 5th of June, the Lord Berkley, Admiral of the Blue Squadron, parted from Admiral Ruſſel with Twenty nine Men of War of the Line of Battel, Engliſh and Dutch, beſides ſmall Frigats, Fire-ſhips, Bomb-ketches and Tranſport-ſhips; and upon the 7th he came to an Anchor between Cameret and Bertram Bay, though continually play'd upon by the Enemies Bombs; firſt from Cameret Weſtern Point, then from a Caſtle on a high Rock in Bertram Bay; and laſtly, from two Forts on each ſide of the Iſthmus going into Breſt Road. The ſame Day the Lord Cutts, and the Marquis of Carmarthen, in his own Galley, ſtood in a conſiderable Way into the Bay; and having taken a good View of it amidſt the Enemies Fire, they return'd and gave the Lord Berkley an Account of the Poſture of the Bay, and the Situation of the Caſtle; which they found very advantageous to defend the Landing Places. It was at firſt order'd, that the Monk, a Ship of 60 Guns, and the Diamond, of equal Force, ſhould go in; but the Marquis repreſented, that thoſe two Men of War would not be ſufficient to cover the Boats at their Landing, becauſe the Enemy are better prepared, and more numerous than was expected, and ready to be ſeconded by 14 Squadron of Horſe. Hereupon on June 8. in a Conſultation of the Engliſh and Dutch Flags, and the General Officers of the Land Forces, it was reſolved, that ſix other Men of War ſhould be added to the two former; which the Marquis undertook to poſt ſo as to bear upon the Caſtle to the beſt Advantage, and to cover the Deſcent of our Land Forces. This was a Work of great Difficulty and Danger; for no ſooner was the Monk come within Reach of the Enemies Mortars, but they began to throw at her from Point Des Fillettes, and the Weſtern Point of Cameret Bay; and the reſt of the Ships that followed, were ſurpriz'd with Three Batteries more, which they never perceived till they felt their Shot. But under all theſe Difficulties, the brave Marquis made a ſhift to poſt the Eight Ships in ſuch a manner, as gave great Succour to the Landing Forces, and did the French conſiderable Miſchief; dropping their Anchors, and firing with ſo much Reſolution, that they forc'd the French to run twice out of Cameret Fort; but they could eaſily perceive the Enemy very advantageouſly intrench'd at every Place where there was any Poſſibility of Landing, and great Numbers of Foot were drawn behind the Trenches.

Amidſt theſe Difficulties, there could be no Proſecution of that regular Landing which was propoſed by my Lord Cutts, and had been agreed on. However, the undaunted General Talmaſh was reſolute in the Enterprize, tho' unlikely to ſucceed; and therefore with a ſmall Number of Well-Boats, and about Nine hundred Men, went aſhoar in a confuſed manner, under a little Rock on the South ſide of the ſmall Bay; but immediately a Detachment of French Marines fell in upon 'em with ſo much Fury, that the Engliſh were forc'd to retire to their Boats in great Diſorder; and it happening at the ſame time to be ebbing Water, moſt of the Boats ſtuck faſt; ſo that the Men on Board 'em were either miſerably ſlaughter'd, or forc'd to beg Quarter. The Signal being now given to bring off the Ships, who had all their Rigging cut to pieces, and moſt of their Sails and Yards diſabled, the Marquis of Carmarthen, with incredible Labour and Hazard, brought off all the Ships, except the Weſep, a ſmall Dutch Man of War of 30 Guns. The brave Talmaſh ſoon after died of his Wounds. Four hundred Men were loſt in the Ships under the Marquis's Command; and of the Land Troops, they reckon'd at leaſt Seven hundred of them either ſlain, wounded, or taken Priſoners.

The Bombing of Diepe.

To make ſome Amends for this Diſappointment, the Lord Berkley ſail'd towards Diepe; and on the 12th of July, threw One thouſand one hundred Bombs and Carcaſſes into the Town, which ſet it on Fire in ſeveral Places. The Townſmen deſpairing to quench the Flames, began to run away in great Conſternation; whereupon two Regiments of the Militia of Britany were ſent to encourage them; but the Diſorder was ſo great, and the Fire ſo dreadful, that the Soldiers themſelves fled with the reſt. Had the Engliſh known what had paſſed, they might in all Probability have poſſeſs'd themſelves of the Place: However, they ſo ruin'd it, that the greateſt Part of the Houſes were reduc'd to Aſhes, and ſcarce any left unſhatter'd. From Diepe the Fleet

---

There was a great Infatuation, and Enthuſiaſtick Madneſs upon the Minds of People, that work'd them up to believe and to do the moſt extravagant Things. Among other Deluſions, one Mr. Maſon, Miniſter of Water-Stratford, in the County of Bucks, had carried himſelf and many People into Raptures and Ecſtaſies, upon immediate expectation of the coming of Chriſt from Heaven. See 1. "The Trial and Condemnation of the two falſe Witneſſes unto the late Midnight-Cry. Publiſhed by Mr. Maſon, the Author of that preſent great Aſſembly in Buckinghamſhire, who are met together under a deluding Expectation of Chriſt's coming to Judgment on Whitſunday approaching, ſhewing of what dangerous Conſequence this may prove to the preſent Government, &c. Licens'd May 14, 1694. London, Printed for R. Baldwin, 4to". —— II. "A Letter from a Gentleman in Buckinghamſhire near Water-Stratford, to his Brother Mr. Thomas Pickfat, at the Three Kings in Whitecroſs-ſtreet in London, giving an Account of the Doctrine and Manner of Behaviour of Mr. Maſon, Miniſter of Water-Stratford, with the Hymns they uſually ſing. London; Printed for Rand. Taylor, 1694, 4to". —— III. An Account of ſeveral remarkable Paſſages, in the Life and Death of Mr. John Maſon late Miniſter of Water-Stratford, as they were put in a Letter by his Siſter in Law, directed to a Friend in London, Dat. May 28, 1694. To which were added the Letters that Mr. Maſon ſent to ſeveral of his Friends. London, 1694, 4to.

1694. 6 W. M.

alarming all the Coaſt of France, ſail'd toward Havre-de-Grace; and on the 16th they began to bombard the Town, under the Direction of Captain Bembow; which they continued to do till the next Morning, when the Wind blowing hard, they gave over ſhooting. The 18th towards the Evening, the Weather being calm, the following Night was ſpent in throwing Two hundred and fifty Bombs more into the Town; but the Wind growing high, the Bomb-Ketches ſtood off again: and on the 24th, my Lord Berkley ſail'd from Havre-de-Grace, leaving it conſiderably damag'd.

And of Havre-de-Grace.

Triumphs of the Engliſh Fleet in the Mediterranean.

But theſe Misfortunes at Breſt were in great meaſure repair'd by the Glory of our Grand Fleet in the Mediterranean, under the Command of Admiral Ruſſel, who rode there in Triumph, and coopt up the French Fleet in the Harbour of Thoulon; and tho' Mareſchal de Tourville once adventur'd out to Sea, with a Deſign to ſlip by the Engliſh Admiral; yet he quickly found ſo watchful an Eye upon him, that he was forc'd to return to his Port again. Indeed nothing is more illuſtrious in the whole Courſe of King William's Reign, than his Fleet riding thus triumphantly in the Mediterranean; for by this means the Engliſh Dominion of the Streights was added to that of the Narrow Seas; a Stop was put to the conquering Arms of France in Catalonia; all the French Coaſts were expoſed to the Inſults of the Confederates; and even all the Italian Princes were kept in Awe; and the Venetians began now to think of ſending a ſolemn Embaſſy into England, to court the Friendſhip of his Britannick Majeſty.

Campaign in Flanders.

We muſt now look to the Campaign in Flanders. The Confederate Army under the King's Command, was encamp'd at Mont St. Andre, conſiſting of Thirty one thouſand Horſe and Dragoons, and Fifty one thouſand Foot; beſides a Body of Seven thouſand Men, under the Command of Count Thyan, near Ghent. The French were not much inferior in Number; but the Dauphin, who commanded them in Perſon, declared, that he had receiv'd Orders from his Father, not to ſtir from his Camp near Huy as long as the Confederates continu'd in theirs at Mont St. Andre. The King made a Shew of attacking them more than once; and the Duke of Luxemburgh being at one Time more particularly apprehenſive of it, is ſaid to have gone in great Haſte to the Dauphin, and to have expoſtulated with him, that he ſhould be prepared for Battel in that dangerous Conjuncture; while the Dauphin having Cæſar's Commentaries in his Hand, told the Mareſchal, He had been reading that Book, and conſidering of it; as if he were a Prince fitter for Study than Action.

The French forc'd to decamp.

It ſeem'd to be a new Trial of Skill between the Two Armies, who ſhould continue longeſt in their reſpective Camps; but the French being not able to ſubſiſt any longer, had reſolved to decamp; but thought to have conceal'd their Deſign, by ſending out divers ſmall Bodies of Horſe, under the Pretence of Foraging, to reinforce the Marquis of Harcourt's Body on the other ſide the Meuze, who was to ſeize the advantageous Poſt of Pieton, and by that means to get before the Confederates; yet the King, who was apprehenſive of it, prevented their Deſign, and decamping on the 8th of Auguſt, he ſoon gained the Poſt of Pieton, where there was not Forage for above Four Days. So that being inform'd of the Enemy's March, his Majeſty moved on the 10th from Sombref to Nievelle, on the 11th to Soignes, on the 12th to Chevre, and on the 13th to Grames near Aeth. On the 14th the Elector of Bavaria was detach'd with a conſiderable Body of Horſe and Foot, and ſome Pieces of Cannon, to poſſeſs himſelf of a Poſt upon the Scheld, and the Army follow'd, with an Intention to have paſſed that River at Pont-Eſperies; but tho' the Confederates made great Diligence to get thither, yet the French made more to prevent them; for on the 15th the Elector having advanced towards Pont d' Eſchouſſe, in order to force the Paſſage of the River, he found the French, to the Number of Thirty thouſand, ſo well intrench'd on the other ſide, that he did not think it Prudence to purſue his Enterprize. This haſty March coſt the French abundance of Men and Horſes, but that Loſs was inconſiderable in compariſon of the Advantage they gain'd by hindring the Allies from penetrating into French Flanders, where, conſidering their Strength, they would, in all Probability, have made ſome important Conqueſt, or at leaſt ſecured Winter Quarters. The King of France was ſo ſenſible of it, that he writ a Letter, which he order'd to be read at the Head of the Army, wherein he return'd Thanks in the firſt Place to the Princes of the Blood; next to the Mareſchal de Luxemburgh, as having a principal Share in the Conduct; then to the reſt of the Mareſchals of France, and all the General Officers; and laſtly to all the French and Swiſs Infantry, Regiment by Regiment, acknowledging how much he was beholden to their Zeal and incredible Diligence.

The King prevents their Deſign.

1694. 6 W. M.

Whilſt the French were deeply intrench'd near Courtray, from whence they had ſent ſtrong Detachments to cover Ipres, Menin, Berg St. Winox, Furnes, and Dunkirk; the King finding it impoſſible to attempt any thing on that ſide, reſolved to lay hold on this Occaſion to diſpoſſeſs the Enemy of the Town and Caſtle of Huy. In purſuance of this Deſign, the Prince Tſerclaes de Tilly paſſed the Meuſe, and inveſted the Place with all the Horſe and Dragoons of the Biſhoprick of Liege, a Party of Brandenburgh Horſe, and ſome Battalions of Foot. The next Day arriv'd Sixteen Regiments of Foot, with the Duke of Holſtein Ploen, who was appointed to command the Siege, and at whoſe Approach the Town immediately ſurrendred. By the 19th of September, N. S. the Batteries were raiſed againſt the Caſtle; the 21ſt the Trenches were open'd; and the following Days the Attack carried on with ſo much Vigor, that all Things being ready for an Aſſault the 27th, the French Governor beat a Parley, and ſurrendred that Fortreſs the next Day. By this Conqueſt the French were totally expell'd out of the Biſhoprick of Liege; Dinant at the ſame Time being a part of France. And thus ended the Campaign in Flanders.

Siege of Huy.

During the King's Abſence, there was little remarkable in England, but the eminent Prudence of the Queen, in preſerving the Peace of the Nation. On May 10. Thomas Earl of Stamford, and Charles Montague, Eſq; were by her Majeſty's Command ſworn of the Privy-Council, and took their Places at the Board. On June 5. his Electoral Highneſs Frederick the Third, Marquis of Branderburgh, Prince Elector, and Great Chamberlain of the Sacred Roman Empire; his Serene Highneſs George William Duke of Brunſwick and Lunenburgh, Prince of the ſaid Empire; and his Grace Charles Duke of Shrewsbury, being Knights Elect of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, were inſtalled in St. George's Chapel at Windſor; the two former by their Proxies, and the latter in Perſon, the Archievements of the late Elector of Saxony and of Duke Hamilton, Two Defunct Knights of the Order, having been firſt offer'd at the Altar. The Jacobites were induſtrious and implacable in their Plots againſt the Government, tho' the Vigilance of the Queen, and the Hearts of the People, prevented the Succeſs of their Hopes and Projects. Colonel John Parker had been committed to the Tower for High Treaſon, and a Bill of Indictment was found againſt him in Trinity Term; but on Saturday Auguſt 11. by a ſingular Stratagem, he made his Eſcape in the Night, and fled from Juſtice; and tho' there was a Proclamation for the diſcovering and apprehending of him, with a Reward of Four hundred Pounds for ſo doing, yet he

The Queen's great Prudence.

Jacobite Plots.

1694. ſafely got to France, where his treaſonable Deſigns
6 W. M. were firſt laid and undertaken.

The King returns to England.

On Thurſday November 8. the King embark'd on the William and Mary Yatch in the Maeſe, being attended by a Squadron of Men of War, under the Command of the Lord Marquis of Carmarthen, and the next Day about Twelve a Clock his Majeſty landed at Margate, and lay that Night at Canterbury; the Queen met him next Day at Rocheſter, and between Eleven and Twelve at Night their Majeſties came to Kenſington. As they went through the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, Illuminations, Bonfires, Ringing of Bells, and the continual Acclamations of vaſt Numbers of People, ſhew'd a univerſal Joy for his Majeſty's ſafe Return.

Parliament meets.

On Monday November 12. the Parliament met at Weſtminſter, and with uſual Solemnity the King made this Speech to both Houſes.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Am glad to meet you here, when I can ſay "our Affairs are in a better Poſture both by Sea "and Land, than when we parted laſt.

"The Enemy has not been in a Condition to op-"poſe our Fleet in theſe Seas; and our ſending ſo "great a Force into the Mediterranean, has diſap-"pointed their Deſigns, and leaves us a Proſpect of "further Succeſs.

"With reſpect to the War by Land, I think I "may ſay, that this Year a Stop has been put to "the Progreſs of the French Arms.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

"I have had ſo much Experience of your good "Affection to me, and of your Zeal for the "Publick, that I cannot doubt of your Aſſiſtance at "this Time. I do therefore earneſtly recommend "to you, to provide ſuch Supplies, as may enable "me to proſecute the War with Vigor; which is "the only Means to procure Peace to Chriſtendom, "with the Safety and Honour of England.

"I muſt likewiſe put you in mind, that the Act "of Tonnage and Poundage expires at Chriſtmaſs; "and I hope you will think fit to continue that Re-"venue to the Crown; which is the more neceſſary "at this Time, in regard that ſeveral Branches of "the Revenue are under great Anticipations, for ex-"traordinary Expences of the War, and ſubject to "many Demands upon other Accounts.

"I cannot but mention to you again, the Debt "for the Tranſport-Ships employed in the reducing "of Ireland, which is a Caſe of Compaſſion, and "deſerves Relief.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I ſhould be glad you would take into your "Conſideration the preparing ſome good Bill for "the Encouragement of our Seamen. You cannot "but be ſenſible, how much a Law of this Nature "would tend to the Advancement of Trade, and "of the Naval Strength of the Kingdom, which is "our great Intereſt, and ought to be our principal "Care.

Proceedings of the Commons.

The Commons adjourn'd to the 19th of November, when the firſt thing they did was to order Mr. Harley to prepare and bring in a Bill for the frequent Meeting and Calling of Parliaments, which they had been ſo earneſt for in former Seſſions, and were reſolved to inſiſt upon in this. The Bill was eaſily drawn up, and preſented November 22. and read with Diſpatch the Third Time, and paſs'd December 13. and ſent up to the Lords, who on December 18. gave it their Concurrence, without any Amendments. 1694. 6 W. M.

Supply granted.

November 21. the Commons unanimouſly voted a Supply to their Majeſties, and examin'd the Eſtimate for the next Year's Service for the War; the Accounts of Monies paid to the Fleet, to the Army, to the Allies, and for Forage; and enquir'd into the Quota's that the Confederates were ſeverally to furniſh. After this Review, they reſolved on November 30. "That the Sum of Two Millions "three hundred eighty two thouſand ſeven hundred "and twelve Pounds be granted for the Maintenance "of the Navy; and that of Two Millions three "hundred eighty two thouſand Pounds, for the "Support of the Land Forces, for the Service of "the Year 1695.

Ways and Means.

To raiſe theſe immenſe Sums, it was reſolved on December 4. to take theſe Ways and Means. Firſt, That an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound be granted to their Majeſties, to be laid and levied in the ſame manner as formerly. Secondly, That the Subſidies of Tonnage and Poundage be continued for the Term of Five Years longer, beginning on the 26th of this Inſtant December.

Acts paſſed.

To loſe no Time, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers on December 22. and with the uſual Solemnity gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for granting to their Majeſties a Subſidy of Tonnage and Poundage, and other Sums of Money, payable upon Merchandizes exported and imported. 2. An Act for the frequent Meeting and Calling of Parliaments. The ſame Day one Dyer, a very impudent Writer of News-Letters, was juſtly reprimanded by the Speaker, for preſuming to miſrepreſent the Proceedings of that Houſe. But ſuch a gentle Rebuke could not reform a Fellow, who wrote for two very neceſſitous Cauſes, for the Jac. Party, and for Bread.

Death of the Queen.

On Friday December 21. the Queen was taken ill at Kenſington, and her Diſtemper proved to be the Small-Pox, with incurable Symptoms; ſo that in ſpight of the moſt exquiſite Care and Conſult of Phyſicians, her Majeſty departed this Life on Friday December 28. about One in the Morning, leaving the King under an unexpreſſible Grief and Affliction; and the whole Kingdom under the deepeſt and moſt ſenſible Sorrow, for the Loſs of a Princeſs of ſo much Piety, Clemency, Goodneſs, and other great and exemplary Virtues. (a)

The manner of her dying is thus delivered by the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, in her Funeral Sermon. "Some few Days before the Feaſt of our Lord's "Nativity, ſhe found her ſelf indiſpos'd. I will "not ſay, that of this Affliction ſhe had any formal "Preſage; but yet there was ſomething that look'd "like an immediate Preparation for it; I mean, "her chuſing to hear read more than once a little "before it, the laſt Sermon of a good and learned "Man (now with God) upon this Subject; What, "ſhall we receive good from the hand of God, and "ſhall we not receive evil? This Indiſpoſition ſpee-"dily grew up into a dangerous Diſtemper. "As ſoon as that was underſtood, the earlieſt "Care of this charitable Miſtreſs was, for the re-"moving of ſuch immediate Servants, as might "by Diſtance be preſerved in Health. Soon "after this, ſhe fix'd the Times of Prayers in that

(a) On Wedneſday, April 13. 1695. the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Dr. Teniſon, then confined to his Bed, told me, that he was ſent for to the Queen at her firſt Illneſs; and that her greateſt Danger was owing to the different Opinions of the Two Phyſicians. Sir Tho. Millington ſaid rightly, it would be the Small-Pox, and would have had ſome ſuitable Evacuations; but Dr. R—— ſe ſaid, it would be the Meaſles only, and would not agree to any proper Preſcriptions till it was too late. When I came to viſit her at the beginning of her Diſtemper (thus the Archbiſhop) ſhe bid the Company withdraw; and when they ſeem'd to be all gone out, ſhe bid me again look behind the Screen; For (ſays ſhe) Dr. R—— ſe has put a Popiſh Nurſe upon me, and ſhe is always liſtning to what is ſaid about me; that Woman is a great Diſturbance to me.

1694. 6 W. 3.

“ that Chamber to which her Sickneſs had confined her.

“ On that very Day, ſhe ſhew'd how ſenſible ſhe was of Death, and how little ſhe fear'd it. She required him who officiated there, to add that Collect in the Communion of the Sick, in which are theſe Words, - - - That whenſoever the Soul ſhall depart from the Body, it may be without Spot preſented unto thee. I will, ſaid ſhe, have this Collect read Twice every Day. All have need to be put in mind of Death, and Princes as much as any body elſe.

“ On Monday, the flattering Diſeaſe occaſioned ſome Hopes, tho' they were but faint ones. On the next Day, the Feſtival of Chriſt's Birth, thoſe Hopes were raiſed into a kind of Aſſurance; and there was Joy, a great Joy ſeen in the Countenances of all good People: That Joy endured but for a Day, and that Day was cloſ'd with a very diſmal Night: The Diſeaſe ſhew'd it ſelf in various Forms, and ſmall Hopes of Life were now left. Then it was, that he who performed the Holy Offices, believed himſelf obliged to acquaint the Good Queen with the Apprehenſions all had of an Unlikelihood at leaſt of her Recovery. She receiv'd the Tidings with a Courage agreeable to the Strength of her Faith. Loth ſhe was to terrify thoſe about her; but for her ſelf, ſhe ſeem'd neither to fear Death, nor to covet Life. It was, you may imagine, high Satiſfaction to hear her ſay a great many moſt Chriſtian Things, and this among them: I believe I ſhall now ſoon die; and I thank God I have from my Youth learned a true Doctrine, that Repentance is not to be put off to a Death-bed. That Day ſhe call'd for Prayers a Third time, fearing ſhe had ſlept a little when they were the Second time read; for ſhe thought a Duty was not perform'd, if it was not minded.

“ On Thurſday ſhe prepared her ſelf for the bleſſed Communion, to which ſhe had been no Stranger from the Fifteenth Year of her Age. She was much concerned that ſhe found her ſelf in ſo dozing a Condition; ſo ſhe expreſs'd it. To that ſhe added, Others had need pray for me, ſeeing I am ſo little able to pray for my ſelf. However, ſhe ſtirred up her Attention, and prayed to God for his Aſſiſtance: And God heard her; for from thenceforth, to the End of the Office, ſhe had the perfect Command of her Underſtanding, and was intent upon the Great Work ſhe was going about; and ſo intent, that when a Second Potion of a certain Draught was offer'd her, ſhe refuſ'd it, ſaying, I have but a little Time to live, and I would ſpend it a better way.

“ The Holy Elements being ready, and ſeveral Biſhops coming to be Communicants, ſhe repeated piouſly and diſtinctly, but with a low Voice, (for ſuch her Weakneſs had then made it) all the Parts of the Holy Office which were proper for her, and received (with all the Signs of a ſtrong Faith, and fervent Devotion) the bleſſed Pledges of God's Favour, and thanked him with a joyful Heart, that ſhe was not deprived of the Opportunity. She own'd alſo, that God had been good to her beyond her Expectation, tho' in a Circumſtance of ſmaller Importance; ſhe having (without any Indecency or Difficulty) taken down that Bread, when it had not been ſo eaſy for her, for ſome Time, to ſwallow any other. 1694. 6 W. 3.

“ That Afternoon ſhe call'd for Prayers ſomewhat earlier than the appointed Time, becauſe ſhe fear'd, (that was her Reaſon) that ſhe ſhould not long be ſo well compos'd. And ſo it came to paſs; for every Minute after this, 'twas plain, Death made nearer and nearer Approaches. However, this true Chriſtian kept her Mind as fix'd as poſſibly ſhe could upon the beſt Things; and there were read, by her Direction, ſeveral Pſalms of David, and alſo a Chapter of a Pious Book concerning Truſt in God. Toward the latter End of it, her Apprehenſion began to fail; yet not ſo much, but that ſhe could ſay a devout Amen to that Prayer, in which her pious Soul was recommended to that God who gave it.

“ During all this Time, there appear'd nothing of Impatience, nothing of Frowardneſs, nothing of Anger: There was heard nothing of Murmuring, nothing of Impertinence, nothing of ill Sound, and ſcarce a Number of disjointed Words. (a)

“ In all theſe Afflictions, the King was greatly afflicted; how ſenſibly, and yet how becomingly, many ſaw, but few have Skill enough to deſcribe it: I am ſure I have not. At laſt the Helps of Art, and Prayers and Tears not prevailing, a Quarter before One, on Friday Morning, after Two or Three ſmall Strugglings of Nature, and without ſuch Agonies as in ſuch Caſes are common, ſhe fell on ſleep.

On Monday, Decemb. 31. the Houſe of Peers went in a Body to Kenſington, and preſented to his Majeſty the following Addreſs on this ſad Occaſion.

“ We your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, do with inexpreſſible Grief, humbly aſſure your Majeſty of the deep Senſe we have of the Loſs your Majeſty and the whole Kingdom doth ſuſtain by the Death of that Excellent Princeſs, our Sovereign Lady the Queen: Moſt humbly beſeeching your Majeſty, that you would not indulge your Grief upon this ſad Occaſion, to the Prejudice of the Health of your Royal Perſon, in whoſe Preſervation not only the Welfare of your own Subjects, but of all Chriſtendom is ſo much concerned. We farther beg Leave upon this ſad Occaſion, humbly to renew to your Majeſty, the hearty and ſincere Aſſurances of our utmoſt Aſſiſtance againſt all your Enemies, both at Home and Abroad, and of all other Demonſtrations of the greateſt Duty and Affection, that can poſſibly be paid by the moſt faithful Subjects.

To this Addreſs his Majeſty gave this Decent Anſwer: “ I heartily thank you for your Kindneſs to me; but much more, for the Senſe you ſhow of our Great Loſs, which is above what I can expreſs.

On the ſame Day, his Majeſty was attended by the Houſe of Commons, who preſented this Addreſs of Condolance.

(a) The Biſhop of Glóceſter, Dr. Fowler, in a Preface to his Diſcourſe on Occaſion of the Queen's Death, writes thus, “ Upon having the firſt Intimation of the Danger ſhe was in, ſhe replied to this Effect: I have been inſtructed by the Divines of our Church, how very hazardous a Thing it is to rely upon a Death-bed Repentance; and I am not now to begin the great Work of Preparing for Death; and I praiſe God, I am not afraid of it. And ſhe was ſo compoſed throughout her Sickneſs, that 'tis as evident ſhe had not the leaſt Diſturbance upon her own Mind, but that all was calm and ſerene within her. One of her Phyſicians (a very worthy Gentleman) was ſo affected with the Obſervations he then made of her, as ſince to ſay, She ſeemed to me more like an Angel, than a Woman. —— Frequently ſhe called for the Prayers, which my Lord of Canterbury ſtill read to her; and about Twelve Hours before her Departure, ſhe comfortably received the Holy Communion at his Hands; Seven Biſhops communicating with her.'

1694. 6 W. 3.

Moſt Gracious and Dread Sovereign,

"We your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal "Subjects, the Commons in Parliament aſſembled, "being deeply ſenſible of the great Misfortune "which hath befallen your Majeſty and this King- "dom, by the Death of our moſt Gracious Queen, "do with unſpeakable Grief of Heart, humbly beg "Leave to condole the irreparable Loſs of that "Moſt Excellent Princeſs, the Beſt of Women; to "enumerate whoſe Virtues, were to aggravate our "Sorrow.

"We cannot, at the ſame Time, but bleſs God "for the Preſervation of your Majeſty to us, on "whoſe Life the Welfare and Happineſs of this "Kingdom, and the Liberties of Europe do in ſo "great a meaſure depend; humbly beſeeching your "Majeſty ſo to moderate your Grief under this "Affliction, as not to prejudice or endanger your "Health: And that your Majeſty would pleaſe to "take ſuch further Care of your Royal Perſon, that "we may all enjoy the Bleſſing of your Majeſty's "long Life, and happy Reign.

"We do alſo look upon it as a Duty we owe "to your Majeſty, to our ſelves, and to thoſe we "repreſent, to take this Occaſion of aſſuring your "Majeſty, That we your faithful Commons will "always, to the utmoſt of our Power, ſtand by, "ſupport and defend your Majeſty and your Go- "vernment, againſt all your Enemies both at Home "and Abroad.

To which his Majeſty was pleaſed to anſwer; "Gentlemen, I take very kindly your Care of me; "eſpecially at this Time, when I am able to think "of nothing but our great Loſs.

The City of London, and moſt of the Corporations in England, preſented the like Addreſſes upon this ſad Occaſion. But next to the King himſelf, the Death of the Queen was moſt affectionately lamented by her Royal Siſter, the Princeſs Anne of Denmark; who, at this lamentable Juncture, was willing to forget the Reaſons that had oblig'd her to leave the Court, and to live in an obſcure Retirement, more like a private Perſon in Diſgrace, than like the next Heir to the Crown.

Under the deepeſt Impreſſions of Grief, ſhe wrote a moſt kind and reſpectful Letter to the King; wherein "ſhe begg'd his Majeſty's favourable Ac- "ceptance of her ſincere and hearty Sorrow for his "great Affliction in the Loſs of the Queen: And "did aſſure his Majeſty, ſhe was as ſenſibly troubled "with his Misfortune, as if ſhe had never been ſo "unhappy as to fall under Her Diſpleaſure. She "did earneſtly deſire his Majeſty, to give her Leave "to wait upon him as ſoon as it could be, with "no Inconveniency to him, and without Danger of "increaſing his Affliction; that ſhe might have an "Opportunity in Perſon, not only of repeating "this, but of aſſuring his Majeſty of her real In- "tention to omit no Occaſion of giving him con- "ſtant Proofs of her ſincere Reſpect, and Concern "for his perſonal Intereſt and Safety." This Generous Affection of her Royal Highneſs was ſuitably received by the King: And his Grace the new Archbiſhop of Canterbury laying hold on this favourable Opportunity to reconcile the Royal Family, repreſented to his Majeſty the Prudent and Loyal Conduct of her Royal Highneſs and the Prince of Denmark, during their Receſs from Court. That they had been ſo far from giving any Obſtruction to his Majeſty's Affairs, that they were alway in the ſame Publick Meaſures with him; and thoſe Members of either Houſe of Parliament, who had Places under their Highneſſes, had always appeared forward in promoting his Majeſty's Intereſt. Theſe Reaſons being offer'd as a Comment on the Letter of the Princeſs, work'd ſo effectually on the Heart of the King, that as a Mark of his Favour and Affection, he did immediately preſent her Royal Highneſs with moſt of the late Queen's Jewels; and his Sorrow for the Loſs of ſo good a Wife was in ſome meaſure alleviated, by the Reconcilement of ſo kind a Siſter.

Towards the Beginning of this Seſſion of Parliament, the Popiſh Lancaſhire Gentlemen, inſtead of bleſſing God for their late Deliverance, and acknowledging the Lenity and Mercy of the preſent Government, endeavour'd to repreſent their Legal Proſecution, as a Trick of the State, and the Court's Plot againſt them, rather than their Plot againſt the Government. They thought they had an Intereſt ſufficient to ſubmit this Matter to the Examination of the Houſe of Commons; who after the Reading of ſeveral Papers, diſappointed the Petitioners; and juſtly reſolved, on February the 6th, "1. That "there does appear to this Houſe, that there was "ſufficient Grounds for the Proſecution and Tryals "of the Gentlemen at Mancheſter. 2. That up- "on the Informations and Examinations before this "Houſe, it does appear, that there was a dange- "rous Plot carry'd on againſt the King and Govern- "ment." The Houſe farther order'd, That Mr. Standiſh, of Standiſh Hall in Lancaſhire, ſhould be taken into Cuſtody: And their Meſſenger reporting he was not to be found; they addreſs'd the King to iſſue out his Royal Proclamation, for the apprehending of him. This Repulſe in the Houſe of Commons, did not diſcourage that bold Party from laying their Complaint alſo before the Houſe of Peers; where, after Examining ſome Witneſſes, and entring into proper Debates, the Queſtion being put, "Whether the Government had ſufficient Lancaſhire Plot. "Cauſe to proſecute the late Perſons accuſed of a "Plot in Lancaſhire and Cheſhire? It was carry'd in the Affirmative.

The Commons had proceeded on the Ways and Means of raiſing Money, to anſwer the great Occaſions of the War; and had agreed on a Land-Tax, with (a) appropriating ſome Part of the Cuſtoms to the ſame Publick Uſes: So on Monday, February the 11th, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for granting to his Majeſty an Aid of Four Acts paſſed. Shillings in the Pound, for One Year; and for applying the yearly Sum of Three Hundred Thouſand Pounds, for Five Years, out of the Duties of Tonnage and Poundage, and other Sums of Money, payable upon Merchandize exported and imported, for carrying on the War againſt France with Vigor. 2. An Act for exempting Apothecaries from ſerving the Offices of Conſtable, Scavinger, and other Pariſh and Ward Offices, and from ſerving upon Juries. 3. An Act for Rebuilding the Town of Warwick, and for Determining Differences touching Houſes burnt or demoliſh'd,

(a) In the midſt of all theſe Publick Burdens, the voluntary Charity of the Nation raiſ'd very conſiderable Sums of Money for Relief of the French Refugees. See the Letters directed to the ſeveral Lords the Biſhops within the Province of Canterbury, ſent with their Majeſties Letters Patents, in Behalf of the poor French Proteſtants fled into this Kingdom; ſubſcribed by the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Lord Keeper, Lord Biſhop of London, Lord Mayor of London, Lord Chief-Juſtice Holt, and Lord Chief-Juſtice Treby. Dat. June 20. 1694. —— The Writer of the Life of Mr. Firmin tells us, "There "had been Four Briefs granted to the French Proteſtants; One "by King Charles, in 1681; a Second by King James, in "1686; another by King James, in 1687; the Fourth by "King William, in 169$\frac{1}{4}$. Beſides which, King William gave "to them a Thouſand Pounds per Month, for Thirty nine "Months. It was Mr. Firmin that was chiefly concern'd in "the Diſtribution of all this Money, eſpecially of the Thirty "nine Thouſand Pounds; which was committed to Two Bi- "ſhops, Two Knights, and a Gentleman; but almoſt the whole "Diſtribution was left to Mr. Firmin."

1694. 6 W. 3. by reaſon of the late dreadful Fire there. There ſeem'd to be a particular Providence, that directed the King to the Wiſdom of Paſſing the Popular Bill, for the frequent Meeting of Parliaments, before the Death of the Queen; for if it had been deferr'd to this Time, ſome People would not have fail'd to ſay, that he had been forc'd to it by the Neceſſity of his Affairs.

The Commons look back into Abuſes and Corruptions. While the Commons were raiſing Money for the future, they wiſely enquired into the Diſpoſal of former Taxes; and diſcovered ſo much Corruption, as was high time to puniſh and prevent. The Occaſion of looking back was given by a Petition of the Inhabitants of Royſton, complaining of the great Abuſes committed by Officers and Soldiers, in exacting Subſiſtence-Money. This Petition was Read in the Houſe on Jan. 12. and after Examining Mr. Tracy Pauncefort, Agent of Colonel Haſtings's Regiment, and the Officers complained of; it was Reſolved, "That the Officers and Soldiers of the "Army, Demanding and Exacting Subſiſtence-Mo"ney in their Quarters, or upon their March, is "Arbitrary and Illegal, and a great Violation of the "Rights and Liberties of the Subject". And it was thereupon Ordered, "That the Commiſſioners for "Taking and Stating the Publick Accounts, do up"on Friday Morning next, lay before this Houſe "their Obſervations of the Abuſes and Ill Practices "committed by the ſeveral Agents of the Regiments "of the Army. And that the Commiſſioners ſhould "lay before them the Names of ſuch Agents as "have neglected to attend them upon Summons. "And that Agent Pauncefort lay before the Houſe "a particular Account of all the Moneys received "from the Earl of Ranelagh, and how he has paid "or diſpoſed of the ſaid Money.

Offenders puniſh'd. Purſuant to this Order, on Jan. 25. Mr. Harley, from the Commiſſioners for Taking and Stating the Publick Accounts, preſented to the Houſe their Obſervations of the Abuſes and Ill Practices committed by the ſeveral Agents. On Jan. 28. Mr. Tracy Pauncefort preſented his Accounts, and was Examin'd to the Truth of them. Agent Roberts, Agent Wallis, Lieutenant Turner, Colonel Haſtings, and Major Montall, were likewiſe Examined; the two latter were Diſcharged, the others were taken into Cuſtody. Mr. Pauncefort was brought in Cuſtody to the Houſe on Feb. 12. where refuſing to anſwer to ſeveral Queſtions demanded by the Houſe, it was Reſolved, "That by obſtinately refuſing to anſwer "to a Matter of Fact, demanded of him by this "Houſe, he had thereby violated the Privilege, and "contemned the Authority of this Houſe, and the "Fundamental Conſtitution thereof". For which he was brought to the Bar, and upon his Knees received the Judgment of being committed Priſoner to the Tower of London. On Feb. 15. upon his Petition, acknowledging his Offence, and expreſſing his Sorrow, he was again brought to the Bar of the Houſe; but not giving ſatisfactory Anſwers, he was Remanded back to the Tower.

His Brother Mr. Edward Pauncefort was likewiſe called in and Examined; and on Feb. 16. it was Reſolved, "That Mr. Edward Pauncefort, for con"triving to Cheat Colonel Haſtings's Regiment of "Five Hundred Guineas, and for giving a Bribe to "obtain the King's Bounty, be taken into Cuſtody. "And that Mr. Henry Guy, a Member of the Houſe, "for taking a Bribe of Two Hundred Guineas, be "committed Priſoner to the Tower of London." And the Houſe at the ſame Time agreed, "That a Com"mittee be appointed, to prepare an Humble Re"preſentation to be made to his Majeſty, lay"ing before him the ſeveral Abuſes, ill Practices, "and intolerable Exactions of the Agents of the "Regiments of the Army, upon the Inferior Offi"cers and Common Soldiers, whereby they have "been forced to raiſe their Subſiſtence on the "People.

1694. 6 W. 3. This Humble Repreſentation of the Houſe of Commons to his Majeſty, was preſented on Monday, March the 4th.

Repreſentation of the Commons. "We your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal "Subjects, the Commons in this preſent Parlia"ment aſſembled, do from a true and unfeigned "Zeal for your Majeſty's Perſon and Government, "(which God long preſerve) and from the Obliga"tion that lieth upon us in behalf of thoſe whom "we repreſent, moſt humbly lay before your Ma"jeſty the Grievance we lie under, by ſome of the "Officers and Soldiers of the Army, in raiſing Mo"ney upon the Country, under pretence of Sub"ſiſtence; which is ſuch a Violation of the Liber"ty and Property of your Subjects, that it needeth "no Aggravation.

"This is, in great Meaſure, occaſioned by the "undue Practices of ſome of the Agents and Offi"cers; the Particulars of which, we beg leave to "lay before your Majeſty, in order to the more "effectual preventing the like Miſcarriages for the "future.

"I. Some of the Agents, amongſt other their "Ill Practices, have detained the Money due to the "Soldiers, in their Hands; and made uſe of it for "their own Advantage, inſtead of immediately ap"plying it to the Subſiſtence of the Officers and "Soldiers, for whom they were entruſted.

"II. Their intolerable Exactions, and great Ex"tortions upon the Officers and Soldiers, for Pay"ing Money by way of Advance; Their Charging "more for the Diſcounts of Tallies than they actu"ally paid: By which fraudulent Impoſing upon "thoſe who ſerve in your Majeſty's Armies, it ap"peareth, That notwithſtanding they have a great"er Pay than is given in any other Part of the "World, they are yet reduced to Inconveniences "and Extremities, which ought not to be put upon "thoſe who venture their Lives for the Honour and "Safety of the Nation.

"III. In particular, Colonel Haſtings hath com"pell'd ſome Officers of his Regiment to take "their Cloaths from him at extravagant Rates, by "confining and threatning thoſe that would not "comply therewith; by which the Authority that "may be neceſſary to be lodged in the Colo"nel over the Inferior Officers in ſome Caſes, is "miſapplied, and extended ſo as to promote a "private Advantage of his own, without any Re"gard to your Majeſty's Service, or to the Diſci"pline of the Army.

"IV. Colonel Haſtings's Agent hath preſumed "fraudulently to detain Five Hundred Guineas out "of a Bounty given by your Majeſty to the Of"ficers of that Regiment, under Pretence of gi"ving them as a Bribe to obtain the ſame; to the "Diſhonour of your Majeſty, and Injury to the "Officers thereof. And hath taken Two-pence per "Pound out of the Money due to the Officers and "Soldiers; for which Deduction there being no "Warrant, the Colonel (whoſe Servant the Agent "is) is anſwerable.

"V. Colonel Haſtings's Agent hath refuſed, or "neglected to give an Account of the Pay due to "the Captains of his Regiment, and their Com"panies; which tends apparently to the defraud"ing the Officers and Soldiers.

"VI. Some of the Agents aſſume to them"ſelves the Liberty of making great Deducti"ons; which, ſince they know not how to juſti"fy, they endeavour to cover, by putting them "under the Shelter of the uncertain Head of "Contingencies; which giveth them the better "Opportunity of hiding the Fraids and Abuſes, "that would otherwiſe be more liable to be "detected.

"VII.

1694. 6 W. 3.

" VII. Colonel Haſtings hath diſcharged an Enſign " by putting another in his Room, contrary to the " true Diſcipline of an Army; from which the " Colonels have no Right to exempt themſelves, to " enlarge their own Authority, to the Prejudice of " your Majeſty's Service, and of the Officers who " ſerve under them.

" VIII. Colonel Haſtings hath taken Money for " the recommending to Commands in his Regi- " ment, to the great Diſcouragement of the Offi- " cers who are to ſerve in your Majeſties Armies; " who ought to be ſuch as deſerve their Commands, " and not ſuch as Pay for them.

" Theſe Things we moſt humbly repreſent to " your Majeſty, in confidence of having them re- " dreſs'd by your Majeſty's Juſtice and Wiſdom.

" Your Loyal Commons, as they have been al- " ways ready to Supply your Majeſty, cannot but " be ſenſible of ſuch Miſcarriages, as may either " diminiſh the Strength of your Armies, or the " Affections of your People: And it is from a Prin- " ciple of the higheſt Duty, That we take this " Way of applying our ſelves to your Majeſty for " Redreſs; having an entire Aſſurance, That this " our moſt humble Repreſentation will not only be " graciouſly accepted, but that our Expectations " from it will be fully Anſwered.

The King Regulates the Abuſes.

His Majeſty was pleaſed to give this ſoft and prudent Anſwer: Gentlemen, I will conſider your Repreſentation, and take all Care poſſible to have the Grievances Redreſſed. Accordingly, Colonel Haſtings was immediately Caſhier'd, and his Regiment given to Sir John Jacob, his Lieutenant Colonel. And while the Complaint was depending, the King in Council was pleaſed to Order, Feb. 19. That the chief Officers of the Army ſhould meet twice a Week in the great Chamber at the Horſe-Guards, to Receive and Examine all Informations and Complaints that ſhould be brought before them, of any Wrong or Injury done by any Officer or Soldier of his Majeſty's Land Forces, in order to redreſs the ſame: And on March the 11th his Majeſty iſſued out a Declaration for the ſtrict Diſcipline of the Army, and due Payment of Quarters; ſtrictly forbidding to Exact or Demand any Subſiſtence-Money, or to commit any Spoil or Diſorder, or to uſe any Violence or Threatning Words, or otherwiſe to miſbehave themſelves under pain of Caſhiering, and Loſs of their Pay.

Farther Enquiry into Abuſes.

To proſecute the Diſcovery of Ill-Practices, Mr. James Craggs, one of the Contractors for Cloathing the Army, was Summoned to Attend the Houſe: And after he had given in his Anſwer to the Commiſſioners for Taking and Stating the Publick Accounts, it was demanded of him, March the 7th, whether he would produce his Books, and be Examined before the ſaid Commiſſioners upon Oath: He excuſed himſelf, and refuſed to produce his Books. Upon which it was reſolved, that for ſo refuſing, and thereby obſtructing the Enquiry of the Houſe into the Diſpoſal of the Publick Moneys, he be committed Priſoner to the Tower of London.

1694. 6 W. 3.

Soon after, Mr. Harley reported the further Examination of Mr. Edward Pauncefort, and acquainted the Houſe, that Mr. Richard Harnage, another of the Contractors for Cloathing of the Army, had refuſed to be Examin'd upon Oath before the Commiſſioners: Whereupon it was Ordered, That " A " Bill be brought in to oblige Mr. Edward Paunce- " fort to diſcover how he diſpoſed the Moneys paid " into his Hand, relating to the Army, and for pu- " niſhing him in caſe he ſhould not make ſuch Di- " ſcovery; and that Mr. Tracy Pauncefort, Mr. " James Craggs, and Mr. Richard Harnage, be in- " cluded in the ſaid Bill.

Amidſt the Noiſe of Bribery and Corruption, there was a Petition to the Houſe of Commons, of Thomas Kemp and others, on behalf of themſelves and others, the ancient Four Hundred Licenſed Hackney Coach-Men; which being referred to a Committee, it was their Opinion, That the Petitioners the Hackney Coach-Men had proved the Subſtance of their Complaint, and were worthy the Conſideration and Relief of the Houſe: And that ſeveral of the Commiſſioners for Licenſing and Regulating Hackney-Coaches, and Stage-Coaches, had, by receiving Bribes, and by other undue Means, acted Corruptly and Arbitrarily, contrary to the Authority and Truſt repoſed in them by Act of Parliament. Thereupon the Houſe ordered the Committee to diſtinguiſh the Commiſſioners, which they accordingly did; and by their Report on March 20, Henry Aſhurſt and Walter Overbury, Eſquires, were honourably Clear'd, and the others were declar'd Guilty; and an humble Addreſs was made to his Majeſty, that he would remove Henry Killegrew, Henry Villers, and Richard Gea, Eſquires, from the Commiſſion for Licenſing Hackney-Coaches: And they were accordingly removed.

Commiſſioners for Hackney-Coaches.

From theſe Diſcoveries a common Murmur aroſe, that an univerſal Corruption had overſpread the Nation; that Court, Camp, City, nay, and the Parliament it ſelf were infected: Hereupon to wipe off the Suſpicion from the honourable Members, and to expoſe the Guilty, On March 7. the Houſe appointed Paul Foley, Eſq; Sir Richard Onſlow, John Pollexfen, Eſq; Sir John Thompſon, Foot Onſlow, Eſq; Thomas Tekham, Eſq; Sir Samuel Bernardiſton, Thomas Wharton, Eſq; and Francis Gwynne, Eſq; as a Committee to inſpect the Books of the Eaſt India Company, and alſo the Books of the Chamberlain of London.

Eaſt-India Company.

On March 17. Mr. Foley reported from the ſaid Committee, That as ſoon as they came to the Eaſt-India Houſe, they called for an Account of all Moneys paid for the ſpecial Service of the Company; upon peruſal of which, obſerving, that the greateſt Payment was in the Year 1693, they ſearch'd for the Orders for the iſſuing of that Money; the chief of which were, one Dated the 13th of April, 1693, another Dated the 24th of November, 1693. and another the 22d of January, $169\frac{3}{4}$. In purſuance of which, the Sums of 22227 l. 24983 l. and 30000 l. were ſeverally paid out of the Caſh, amounting in all to 77258 l. beſides ſeveral ſmaller

(a) An Appeal was brought into the Houſe of Peers, upon the Caſe depending on a Grant ad retinendum, made to the Right Reverend Thomas Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, for holding the Vicarage of St. Martin in the Fields, together with his Biſhoprick for a certain Term only, and upon the Expiration of that Term, the Queſtion was, whether the Right of Preſentation to the ſaid Benefice of St. Martin ſhould belong to the Crown, or revert to the ordinary Patron the Biſhop of London " In this Debate the Biſhop of Worceſter, Dr. Stillingfleet, made " a very learned Speech, pleading for the Right of the " Crown (ſays the Writer of his Life) with great clearneſs " of Expreſſion, great ſtrength of Reaſon, cloſeneſs of Ar- " gument, and numerous Precedents both from Law and Hi- " ſtory, and anſwering all the Arguments brought on the con- " trary Part. And Judgment was given purſuant to the In- " tent and Aim of his Speech. —— Upon the Merit of the " ſame Cauſe depended the Appeal brought by Henry Lord " Biſhop of London, and Peter Birch, D. D. againſt the At- " torney-General pro Domino Rege & Regina, for the Rectory of " St. James's, Weſtminſter, lately taken out of the ſaid Pariſh " of St. Martins, wherein upon Judgment for the Crown, the " ſaid Rectory was granted to the Reverend Dr. William Wake. " This Caſe is printed at large in Caſes in Parliament, Re- " ſolved and Adjudged upon Petitions and Writs of Error. " London, 1698, Fol.

The Biſhop drew up his own Report, which was inſerted in the Second Part of his Eccleſiaſtical Caſes, 8*vo. p.* 437. The Caſe of Commendams as delivered in a Speech in the Honourable Houſe of Lords by Dr. Edward Stillingfleet, Biſhop of Worceſter, 1694-5, upon theſe three Points, I. The King's Prerogative in Right of Promotion. II. The Power of granting a Commendam. III. The Act of Parliament made about St. James's Church.

Sums,

1694. 6 W. 3. Sums, amounting in the whole to 10144 l. which with the former Sum makes 87402 l. All iſſued in the Year 1693, while Sir Thomas Cooke was Governor, and Francis Tyſſen, Eſq; Deputy-Governor, for the ſpecial Service of the Houſe, and obtaining a new Charter. That they found by Examination of moſt of the Perſons preſent at the Committees of the Eaſt-India Company, where the ſaid Orders were made, that the Governor in the ſaid Committees, did only in general inform what Sums he hath disburſed, without naming the Particulars to whom, or to what Service; which ſeveral of them ſaid was a new Courſe ſince Sir Thomas Cooke came to be Deputy-Governor or Governor. That in a State of the Company's Caſh, Dated at the Eaſt-India Houſe the 7th of March, 169¾, and drawn up by ſeveral Members of the Company, empower'd for that Purpoſe, near all the aforeſaid Sums were obſerved to be paid, and placed to the Company's Account of Charges General, paid out of Caſh, viz. in 1688, and 1689, Sir Benjamin Bathurſt, Governor, and Sir Joſiah Child, Deputy-Governor, 2230 l. 14 s. In 1690 and 1691, Sir Joſeph Herne, Governor, and Sir Thomas Cooke, Deputy-Governor, 13532 l. 9 s. In 1692, and 1693, Sir Thomas Cooke, Governor, and Mr. Tyſſen, Deputy-Governor, 87402 l. 12 s in the whole 103165 l. 15 s. That upon Examination of the Company's Caſh-Book, having found the Balance of the 31ſt of October, 1694, was 124249 l. they demanded of Mr. Portman the Caſhier, if he had the ſame in Caſh? That he replied he had not; but inſtead thereof, laid before them in Writing that 90000 l. was lent upon Sir Thomas Cooke's Notes, (which he produced) with other Particulars, which made up the above-mention'd Balance. That in his Note, Sir Thomas Cooke own'd the Receipt of 90000 l. which he had Diſburs'd and Paid for 99197 Pounds Stock in the Eaſt-India Company for their Account; tho' they did not find any Warrant for the ſaid Sum, or any of that Stock transferr'd in the Company's Books for their Account, exceeding 18300 l. Stock, the 16th of January, 169¾. The Committee of the Houſe of Commons further reported, that they found a Contract Dated the 26th of February, 1693, for 200 Tun of Salt-Petre, to be brought Home in the Ship Seymour from India, to Pay 12000 l. for the ſame, and 25 l. Freight per Tun, beſides all Charges here. That 2000 l. which was the Sum ſent out to purchaſe the ſaid Salt-Petre, was actually paid out of the Company's Caſh, and that a Bond for the remaining 10000 l. was given under the Seal of the Company, payable the 31ſt of March, 1695, whether the Ship arrived in Safety or not: With this Limitation only, that if two Hundred Tun of Salt-Petre be not Laden upon the ſaid Ship, then to Repay in proportion to the want thereof. So that the Reſult of this Contract was, that the Company ran the Adventure of 12000 l. for that which coſt 2000 l. and muſt conſequently loſe 12200 l. if the Ship miſcarried: And on the contrary, the Seller on the other hand got Ten Thouſand Pound clear, without disburſing, or running the hazard of one Penny; and what is yet more, a certain Loſs of 9 or 10000 l. would attend it, if the Ship arriv'd in ſafety. That the Committee having Examin'd the Members of the Company, concerning this Contract, they own'd it to be true, That the 2000 l. was Paid, and the 10000 l. Bond given to Mr. Thomas Colſton. That about the ſame time this Contract was made, ſo many of the Interlopers as would ſell their Shares in the Interlopers to the Eaſt-India Company were allow'd their firſt Coſt, and 25 l. per Cent. advance; which was done by giving them Credit for ſo much in the Eaſt India Books. That the Committee found Sir Samuel Daſhwood, Sir John Fleet, John Perrey, Eſq; Sir Joſeph Herne, and Sir Thomas Cooke, were preſent at the Court of Committees, when the Orders above-mentioned were made; but they being all Members of the Houſe of Commons, the Committee did not think fit to Examine them. That the reſt of the Committees, who were preſent at making thoſe Orders, and moſt of whom had been Examin'd, could give no Account of the Diſpoſal of the Money iſſued out, during the time of Sir Joſeph Herne, and Sir Thomas Cooke's Government; but only that the ſame was paid for ſpecial Service, and that a great Part thereof was put into the Hands of Sir Baſil Firebraſs. That one of them, viz. Sir Benjamin Bathurſt ſaid, Sir Joſeph Herne had the greateſt Part of the 13932 l. 9 s. to diſpoſe of; and Sir Benjamin Bathurſt would have call'd for an Account thereof, but Sir Thomas Cooke deſired he would not. That the Company's Committee of Nine, had often call'd upon Sir Thomas Cooke to give an Account to whom he had diſtributed the Money he received, which he had ſome time promis'd, and afterwards declined to do: So that the Secret of that Service, and the placing of that Money, lay principally with Sir Thomas Cooke, and Sir Joſeph Herne. That Sir Benjamin Bathurſt finding ſo great a Sum as 30000 l. charged for Secret Services, he had ſome warm Diſcourſe with Sir Thomas Cooke about it, to know how it was Disburs'd: But Sir Thomas refus'd to give him any Particulars; and told him, he ſhould remember he was bound by his Oath to the Company, to keep their Secrets. To which Sir Benjamin reply'd, He was under the ſame Obligation to be true to the Intereſt of the Company. Sir Benjamin Bathurſt further ſaid, That about April, 1694, underſtanding that they were in want of Money, he look'd into the Caſh-Book, which caſting up he found a conſiderable Sum in Caſh; and taking ſome Perſons with him, diſcourſed Sir Thomas Cooke about it, who ſaid, The 90000 l. he had received, was to gratify ſome Perſons in caſe the Bill ſhould paſs. As for the Contract about Salt-Petre, Sir Benjamin Bathurſt ſaid, that it was made by Sir Thomas Cooke, and Sir Baſil Firebraſs; but he knew nothing of it till it came into Court.

The Committee likewiſe reported, that Sir Baſil Firebraſs being examin'd, own'd he had receiv'd upwards of 16000 l. which was for buying Shares of Stocks, and of which the Company had allow'd; but ſaid he knew no ground the Committee of Nine had to ſay, that a great Part of the other Sums were put into his Hands. He confeſſed he invited ſeveral Perſons to come into the Company; and offer'd to lay down Money for ſeveral; and that if they liked it not at the Years End he would then take it off their Hands; which Offer he made to Members of the Houſe of Commons, among others, and gave an Account to the Company of his doing ſo, who promiſed to indemnify him. That concerning the Accommodation with the Interlopers, the Company had a Letter from the Lord Nottingham, That it was the King's Pleaſure that they ſhould come to an Agreement with the Interlopers: That the Propoſal to them was 25 per Cent. for bringing in their Stock to the Company, and one half of the Profit beſides; which one half of the Interlopers accepted; but Mr. Godfry, and ſome others, ſtanding upon 30 per Cent. Mr. Colſton went off with them, and did not come into the Company. That Mr. Ward ſaid it was agreed by the Interlopers that only 2000 l. ſhould be employ'd in buying of Salt-Petre; that Mr. Colſton was to have the Advantage of it, which he believed was not for Mr. Colſton himſelf, but for ſome other Gentleman; and laſtly, that the original Inducement to the Leave of the Interlopers going out, was that Agreement with Mr. Colſton.

The ſame Committee of the Houſe of Commons reported, That having inſpected the Chamberlain of London's Books, they found an Order made by a Committee of the Common Council for the City of London, (appointed to conſider of Ways and Means for ſatisfying the Debts due to the Orphans 1694. 6 W. 3. of the ſaid City) and dated the 12th of February, 169¾. by which Mr. Chamberlain was directed to pay to Sir John Trevor, Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, the Sum of 1000 Guineas, ſo ſoon as a Bill was paſſed into an Act of Parliament, for ſatisfying the Debts of the Orphans, and other Creditors of the ſaid City: Which Sum was paid and delivered to Sir John Trevor, on the 22d of June, 1694, in the Preſence of Sir Robert Clayton and Sir James Houblon: That they obſerved, that the Order of the Committee of the Common Council, which now ſtood dated the 12th of February, was at firſt dated the 13th of February; and that the Perſon named therein, was put in a different Hand: That examining who firſt writ the Warrant, Mr. Borret, the City Sollicitor, own'd it was his Hand-Writing; and at firſt ſaid, that he believed the Blank at firſt left therein was fill'd up with the Speaker's Name before the Committee ſign'd it, becauſe he believed they would not ſet their Hands to a Blank. But all the Committee who ſign'd it, and who appear'd upon Summons, declared moſt of them poſitively, that there was a Blank for the Perſon's Name when they ſign'd it; and the reſt being doubtful, Mr. Borret then ſaid the Blank might be filled up afterwards, though he could not tell the Time; however, he own'd he fill'd it up with another Pen. That they found another Order of the ſaid Committee, dated the 26th of April, 1693. directing the Chamberlain to pay to Paul Jodrell, Eſq; the Sum of 100 Guineas, for his Pains and Service in aſſiſting the Orphans Bill to paſs in Parliament: Which Sum was paid him the 22d of June, 1694. That in the Chamberlain's Books were entred ſeveral Sums paid to Mr. Borret, to defray the Charge of drawing the Bill, making Copies thereof, and of the Petitions and Orders relating to the ſame: Amongſt which Payments they found 5 Guineas paid to Mr. Sollicitor-General, for his Advice therein; 5 Guineas to Mr. Harcourt; 20 Guineas to Mr. Hungerford, Chairman of the Grand Committee, for his Pains and Service; and 60*l.* 9*s.* to Mr. Jodrell. That they underſtood that the Orphans, for the procuring of this Bill, had given Bond to Mr. Smith and Mr. Charles Nois to allow them 12*d.* in the Pound, when the Bill was paſs'd, for their Pains and Charges in that Matter; which Contract being made void in that Bill, the Court of Aldermen were impower'd to ſatisfy them their real Expences. That upon this, Smith and Nois applied themſelves to the Court of Aldermen, and got a Petition to be ſign'd by many of the Orphans, that they were willing, notwithſtanding the Act of Parliament, they ſhou'd be allow'd 12*d.* in the Pound. That the ſaid Nois and Smith brought in a Bill to the Committee of the Common Council of their Charges, amounting to 3457*l.* 16*s.* but, as was alledg'd, they pretended to be more than 10000*l.* out of Purſe; by which Argument they got Subſcriptions to the ſaid Petition; in which Bill there was charg'd 16,0*l.* paid to Mr. George Finch for carrying on the Act. That Mr. Nois and Mr. Smith being examin'd, they did utterly deny that they had given any Money to any Member of Parliament, on the Account of the ſaid Bill, or knew of any to be given; but they were willing to get what they could, having taken a great deal of Pains in long ſolliciting the ſame; and that they did ſay, that notwithſtanding they did charge 8650*l.* to be paid Mr. George Finch, yet they had not paid him any Money; but having deliver'd up his Bond for the 12*d.* in the Pound, they valued his Share of the Orphans Debt to amount to that Sum. That Mr. George Finch being examin'd, did deny to have receiv'd any thing from Mr. Nois and Mr. Smith, or his paying any Money to any Member of Parliament: But wavering in his Diſcourſe, and being again asked, If he ever did diſtribute, or know of any Money diſtributed on Account of the Orphans Bill? he ſaid, It was a hard thing to be asked ſuch Queſtions: That however he own'd, that upon Suggeſtion that there were Obſtructions to the Bill, which muſt be removed by Money, he apply'd himſelf to ſeveral of the Orphans, and did receive 100*l.* from Mr. John Chadwick, 100*l.* from Mr. Harvey, 100*l.* from Mr. Scott, 50*l.* of Mr. Herne, and had a Promiſe of 100*l.* from Sir John Smith, which was not yet paid. And laſtly, they reported that Mr. Chadwick and Mr. Herne proved the Payment of the Money to Mr. George Finch, but could give no Account what he had done with it. 1694. 6 W. 3.

The Speaker charg'd with Corruption. The Commons having debated and weigh'd theſe Reports, came to this Reſolution on March 12. That Sir John Trevor, Speaker of this Houſe, receiving a Gratuity of a Thouſand Guineas from the City of London, after paſſing of the Orphans Bill, is guilty of a High Crime and Miſdemeanor. Upon this Sentence, Sir John did not think fit to juſtify himſelf; but ſent the Mace to the Houſe, and wiſely abſented himſelf. So on March 14. the Commons reſolved to proceed to the Election of a New Speaker; Sir Thomas Littleton, and Paul Foley, Eſq; were propoſed; the Majority inclined to chuſe the former; but Mr. Wharton, Comptroller of the King's Houſhold, ſpeaking up for him with more than ordinary Zeal, the Majority did from thence preſume that Sir Thomas Littleton was too much in the Court Intereſt, and upon that Prejudice only they Elected Mr. Foley; who on the next Day, Friday, March 15. was approved by his Majeſty on the Throne, who then gave his Royal Aſſent to theſe Two Bills, 1. An Act for ſupplying certain Defects in the Directions made in and by a Deed of Truſt, and the Laſt Will of George Pitt, Eſq; deceas'd, for ſettling his Eſtate. 2. An Act for Naturalizing of Bernard Cofferat, alias Mourte, and Alexander Ringly, and others.

Leaves the Houſe. Mr. Foley choſen Speaker. Acts paſſed.

Sir John Trevor Expell'd. On March 16. the Commons proceeded upon the Report from their Committee, and reſolv'd, "That "That Sir John Trevor, late Speaker of this Houſe, "being guilty of a High Crime and Miſdemeanor, "by receiving a Gratuity of a Thouſand Guineas "from the City of London, after the paſſing the "Orphans Bill, be Expell'd this Houſe". And ſo he retired to enjoy his other beneficial Place, the Maſterſhip of the Rolls. On March 11. Mr. Bird made his Excuſe for offering of Money to a Member of the Houſe, to preſent a Petition againſt a Bill depending in the Houſe, and upon his Knees had a Reprimand from Mr. Speaker. And it was then reſolved, "That whoſoever ſhall diſcover any "Money or other Gratuity given to any Member of "the Houſe, for Matters tranſacted in the Houſe "relating to the Orphans Bill, or the Eaſt-India "Company, ſhould have the Indemnity of the "Houſe for ſuch Guilt". And to carry on the needful Inquiſition, they order'd, that Mr. Charles Nois, Mr. James Smith, Mr. George Finch, Mr. Dowſe, Mr. Hern, Mr. Chiſwell, and Mr. Chadwick, ſhould attend the next Morning. They did ſo; and it was then reſolved, That Mr. Charles Nois having to ſeveral Perſons pretended he was out of Purſe, or engaged to give great Sums of Money to ſeveral Members of this Houſe, in order to paſs the Orphans Bill; which on his Examination he denied to have given or promiſed, has been an Occaſion of Scandal to this Houſe and the Members thereof; for which he was taken into the Cuſtody of the Serjeant at Arms. And the Houſe proceeding to clear and purge themſelves, did ſoon after reſolve, That Mr. Hungerford, a Member of the Houſe, having received Twenty Guineas for his Pains and Service as Chair-man of the Committee of this Houſe, to whom the Orphans Bill was committed, is guilty of a high Crime and Miſdemeanor; for which he was Expelled the Houſe.

This Humour of Complaining and Accuſing was likely to have been carried too far; for now ſeveral Perſons betrayed a mighty Diſſatisfaction that our Fleet was ſent into the Streights; and pretended a Jealouſy,

1694. W. 3.

Jealouſy, that they were there to be ſold, or ſacrificed to the French. This ill-natur'd Rumor got into the Houſe of Lords; and ſome of the Peers began to argue for the recalling of our Fleet, for fear of the many Inconveniencies that might attend that Voyage. But upon debating this Matter, the Majority of the Lords were of different Sentiments; and inſtead of a Remonſtrance, they thought it proper to make this Addreſs of Thanks to his Majeſty, for ſending his Fleet thither.

Addreſs of the Lords.

" We the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, having reſolved, by the unanimous Vote of this Houſe, That the ſending ſo great a Fleet into the Mediterranean, and continuing it in thoſe Parts, has been to the Honour and Advantage of your Majeſty and your Kingdoms; and having ſpent ſome time upon Conſideration of the Condition of the Fleet both at Home and Abroad, and of the great Increaſe of the Naval Force and Strength of our Neighbours, conceive it to be our Duty to your Majeſty and the Kingdom, humbly to repreſent, That the Honour and Safety of this Nation, under the Providence of God, chiefly depends upon your Strength at Sea. And whereas by the long Continuance of this War, the Number of your Ships muſt have been diminiſhed, and thoſe remaining greatly impaired; We think it of the higheſt Importance to your Majeſty's Service, and the Security and Intereſt of your People, That you would be pleaſed to give ſuch ſpeedy and effectual Directions for the Repair and Increaſe of your Royal Navy, as may enable your Majeſty not only to continue a Strength in the Mediterranean during this War, which may be ſuperior to that of our Enemies; but likewiſe to maintain ſuch a Force here at Home, and in the Weſt-Indies, as ſhall be a Security for our Coaſts and Plantations, and a Protection of our Trade; and ſufficient both for the Annoying of our Enemies, and for the protecting and convoying all ſuch Stores and Proviſions as muſt be ſent to the Fleet in thoſe Parts; upon the effectual and timely providing whereof, the Safety of that Part of your Majeſty's Navy does ſo much depend.

To which his Majeſty was pleaſed to return a moſt gracious Anſwer to the Effect following:

I am very ſenſible how much our Safety depends upon our Strength at Sea; and therefore cannot but deſire the Increaſe of it.

And I ſhall not be wanting to do what is in my Power, as to the Matters mentioned in your Addreſs.

Honours and Preferments.

As to the Honours and Preferments during this Seſſion of Parliament: On the firſt Day of their Meeting, Nov. 12. his Majeſty, as a Mark of his Royal Favour to the City of London, conferred the Honour of Knighthood on Sir John Sweetapple and Sir William Cole, the preſent Sheriffs: And on Nov. 28. he conferr'd the like Honour upon Thomas Day, Eſq; Mayor, and William Danes, Eſq; Sheriff of Briſtol. On Dec. 20. Captain Elliot, Commander of a Ship belonging to Jamaica, having made his Eſcape from the French, and giving timely Intelligence of the Deſign of the French upon that Iſland, received from his Majeſty a Medal and Chain of One hundred Pounds Value, and Five hundred Pounds in Money, as a Reward of his Service; and his Majeſty was pleaſed to order, that he ſhould be recommended to the Lords Commiſſioners of the Admiralty for an Employment in his Majeſty's Service.

1694. 6 W. 3.

State of Religion. Death of Archbiſhop Tillotſon.

The Church (a) this Year loſt the great Ornament of it, Archbiſhop Tillotſon, who died at Lambeth on Friday, Nov. 22. His Sickneſs and Death are thus delivered in his Funeral Sermon. " He kept nothing in Reſerve for his laſt Hours; he was ſtill ready waiting for them, ſo he could not be ſurprized, though every Body elſe was. The firſt Attacks came upon him while he was in that Employment in which he delighted moſt, at Church, and in the Worſhip of God: He bore them with the uſual Neglect of himſelf; and though his Countenance ſhew'd he was ill, he would neither interrupt nor break off from thoſe Sacred Exerciſes, nor make haſte to look after his Health. Ah, the unhappy Neglect of a Life that deſerv'd ſo well to be carefully preſerved! The Fit came on ſlowly, but ſeemed to be fatal: All Symptoms were melancholy: It ſoon turned to a Dead Palſy. The Oppreſſion was ſo great, that it became very uneaſy for him to ſpeak; but it appeared that his Underſtanding was ſtill clear, though others could not have the Advantage of it: He only ſaid, That he had no Burden on his Conſcience. All Remedies proved ineffectual: He expreſſed no Concern to Live, nor Fear to Die; but patiently bore his Burden, till it ſunk him on the Fifth Day, and in the Sixty-fifth Year of his Age (b).

Account of his Sickneſs.

His Body was interr'd, at his own Deſire, in the Church of St. Lawrence Jury, in London, where he had been the Tueſday Lecturer for many Years. The Funeral Sermon was preach'd by the Right Reverend Gilbert Lord Biſhop of Sarum, whoſe Account and Character of him deſerve to be remembred.

His Character given by the Lord Biſhop of Sarum.

" His firſt Education and Impreſſions were among thoſe who were then called Puritans, but of the beſt Sort. Yet even before his Mind was opened to clearer Thoughts, he felt ſomewhat within him, that diſpoſed him to larger Notions, and a better Temper. The Books which were put in the Hands of the Youth of that Time were generally heavy; he could ſcarce bear them, even before he knew better Things: He happily fell on Chillingworth's Book; which gave his Mind the Ply that it held ever after, and put him on a true Scent. He was ſoon freed from his firſt Prejudices, or rather he was never maſtered by them; yet he ſtill ſtuck to the Strictneſs of Life to which he was bred, and retained a juſt Value, and a due Tenderneſs for the Men of that Perſuaſion; and by the Strength of his Reaſon, together with the Clearneſs of his Principles, he brought over more ſerious Perſons from their Scruples to the Communion of the Church, and fix'd more in it, than any Man I ever knew.—— That which gave him his laſt Finiſhing, was his cloſe and long Friendſhip with Biſhop Wilkins. He went into all the beſt Things that were in that Great Man; but ſo, that he perfected every one of them; for tho' Biſhop Wilkins was the more univerſal Man, yet He was the greater Divine; if the one had more Flame, the other was more Correct. Both (a) There were Two private Acts paſſed in this Seſſion with regard to Churches. " 1. An Act for enabling the Inhabitants of the Pariſh of Chriſt-Church in the County of Surrey, to make Rates for raiſing a Maintenance for a good and able Miniſter; and for the impowering the Truſtees of the Will of John Marſhall, deceas'd, to employ Moneys for the finiſhing the ſaid Church. 2. An Act to confirm a Grant made by the Rector of the United Pariſhes of St. Michael Royal and St. Martin in the Vintry, Lnodon, Part of St. Martin's Church-yard.

(b) There has been ſince publiſh'd, " The Life of the moſt Reverend Father in God, John Tillotſon, Archbiſhop of Canterbury. Compiled from the Minutes of the Reverend Mr. Young, late Dean of Saliſbury. By F. H. M. A. With many curious Memoirs communicated by the late Right Reverend Gilbert, Lord Biſhop of Sarum. London: Printed for E. Curll, 1717. 8*vo*. With a Defence of Archbiſhop Tillotſon, and his Writings. By Mr. Le Clerc. And yet ſome Perſons have Reaſon to believe, that Biſhop Burnet and Dean Young had little or no hand in that Life of A.Bp. Tillotſon.

The Town of Hallifax, in Reſpect to this Great Man, put up an Inſcription in their Church in Letters of Gold.

Johannes Tillotſon Archiepiſcopus Cantuarienſis, natus Sowerbiæ, renatus Halifaxiæ, tertio Octobris 1630. Denatus Lambethæ 22. Novemb. A. D. 1694. Ætat. 65.

1694. 6 W. 3.

" acted with great Plainneſs, and were raiſed above " regarding vulgar Cenſures.------

" Having dedicated himſelf to the Service of " the Church; and being ſenſible of the great " Good that might be done by a plain and edifying " Way of Preaching, he was very little diſpoſed to " follow the Patterns then ſet him, or indeed thoſe " of former Times. And ſo he ſet a Pattern to " himſelf; and ſuch a one it was, that 'tis to be " hoped it will be long and much followed. He " begun with a deep and cloſe Study of the Scrip- " tures, upon which he ſpent Four or Five Years, " till he had arrived at a true Underſtanding of " them. He ſtudied next all the Ancient Philoſo- " phers and Books of Morality. Among the Fa- " thers, St. Baſil and St. Chryſoſtom were thoſe he " chiefly read. Upon theſe Preparations, he ſet " himſelf to compoſe the greateſt Variety of Ser- " mons, and on the beſt Subjects, that perhaps any " one Man has ever yet done. (a) His joining with " Biſhop Wilkins in purſuing the Scheme of an uni- " verſal Character, led him to conſider exactly the " Truth of Language and Stile; in which no Man " was happier, and knew better the Art of pre- " ſerving the Majeſty of Things under a Simplicity " of Words; tempering theſe ſo equally together, " that neither did his Thoughts ſink, nor his Stile " ſwell; keeping always a due Mean between a low " Flatneſs, and the Dreſſes of falſe Rhetorick.---- " He read his Sermons with ſo due a Pronouncia- " tion, in ſo ſedate and ſolemn a Manner, that they " were not the feebler, but rather the perfecter, even " by that Way which often leſſens the Grace, as much " as it adds to the Exactneſs of ſuch Diſcourſes.

" He look'd on the whole Complex of Popery, " as ſuch a Corruption of the whole Deſign of " Chriſtianity, that he thought it was incumbent on " him to ſet himſelf againſt it with the Zeal and " Courage which became that Cauſe, and was ne- " ceſſary for thoſe Times. He thought the Idolatry " and Superſtition of the Church of Rome did ener- " vate true Piety and Morality; and that their " Cruelty was ſuch a Contradiction to the Meekneſs " of Chriſt, and to that Love and Charity which " he made the Character and Diſtinction of his " Diſciples and Followers, that he reſolved to ſacri- " fice every thing, except a good Conſcience, in a " Cauſe for which he had reſolved, if it ſhould " come to Extremities, to become a Sacrifice him- " ſelf.

" His Enemies were not wanting in the Arts of " Calumny.------ His endeavouring to make out " every thing in Religion from clear and plain Prin- " ciples, and with a Fulneſs of demonſtrative Proof, " was laid hold on to make him paſs for One that " could believe nothing that lay beyond the Com- " paſs of human Reaſon. And his tender Method " of treating with Diſſenters; his Endeavours to " extinguiſh that Fire, and to unite us among our " ſelves, againſt thoſe who underſtood their own " Intereſt well, and purſued it cloſely, inflaming our " Differences, and engaging us into violent Animo- " ſities, while they ſhifted Sides, and ſtill gained " Ground, whether in the Methods of Toleration, " or of a ſtrict Execution of Penal Laws, as it might " ſerve their Ends; thoſe calm and wiſe Deſigns of " his, I ſay, were repreſented as the want of Zeal " in the Cauſe of the Church, and an Inclination " towards thoſe who departed from it. But how " unhappily ſucceſsful ſoever they might be, in " infuſing thoſe Jealouſies of him into ſome warm " and unwary Men, he ſtill went on in his own " way: He would neither depart from his Modera- " tion, nor take Pains to cover himſelf from ſo falſe " an Imputation.----

" After the Reſtoration of the Church, Anger " upon thoſe Heads was both more in faſhion, and " ſeemed more excuſable: Men coming then out of " the Injuſtice and Violence by which they had " been ſo long ill uſed, and were ſo much pro- " voked; yet neither that, nor the Narrowneſs of " his Fortune, while he needed Supports, and ſaw " what was the ſhorteſt Way to arrive at them, " could make him change his Strain. A Benefice " being offered him in the Country, he once in- " tended to have left this great Scene, and gone to " that Retirment, where he ſpent almoſt a Year: " But he was happily recalled by that Honourable " Society, for whom he always retained juſt Im- " preſſions of Gratitude. And tho' in the Inter- " vals of Terms, he could have given a large Part " of the Year to his Pariſh; yet ſo ſtrict he was to " the Paſtoral Care in the Point of Reſidence, that " he parted with it, even when his Incomes here " could ſcarce ſupport him.

" I need not tell you for how many Years, and " with what Labour and Succeſs, he divided him- " ſelf between that Society and this Place.----- " The numerous Aſſembly that this Lecture brought " together, even from the remoteſt Parts of this " wide City; the great Concourſe of Clergymen, " who came hither to form their Minds; the happy " Union that thereby the Clergy of this great Body " grew into; and the bleſſed Effects this had, are " Things which it is to be hoped an Age will not " wear out of Men's Minds. Some great Charity, " ſome Publick Service, or good Deſign, was the " Work of moſt of thoſe Days.----

" Thoſe great Preferments, to which his ex- " traordinary Worth ſeemed to have forced ſome " who had no Kindneſs to him, to advance him af- " terwards, had no other Effect on him, but to en- " large his Capacity of doing Good. He neither " ſlackned his Labours, nor advanced his Fortunes " by them. He did not content himſelf with ſuch " a Reſidence as anſwer'd the Statute, conſidering " his Obligations to attend at Court; but gave as " much of his Time and Labours to his Cathedral, " as could agree with his Obligations here. He " neither aſpired nor hearken'd to the Motions of a " further Advancement; and all that he deſired up- " on this happy Revolution, was ſuch a Change as " did conſiderably leſſen his Income, but deliver'd " him from the invidious Load of having Two Dig- " nities. He bore this in the former Reigns, be- " cauſe the Practice was common; and he was ena- " bled by it to go far in his Charities: But as he " intended to put a Stop to that Abuſe, ſo he re- " ſolved to ſet an Example to others in it.----

" He did truly rejoice in the happy Deliverance " of theſe Nations. He could not but obſerve thoſe " amazing Steps of Providence that accompanied (a) Dr. Sherlock, Dean of St. Paul's, in his Sermon at the Temple on the Queen's Death, ſpeaking of the great and noble Deſigns Queen Mary had form'd, to promote true Religion and the Service of the Church of England, gave this Encomium of the Archbiſhop. " I have (ſays he) Reaſon to ſay this, from " thoſe frequent Intimations I have had from our late admira- " ble Primate, who had great Deſigns himſelf to ſerve the " Chriſtian Religion and the Church of England in its trueſt " Intereſts, and had inſpired their Majeſties, and particularly the " Queen, who had more Leiſure for ſuch Thoughts, with the " ſame great and pious Deſigns. It may be, no Church-Man " ever had; and, I am ſure, not more deſervedly, a greater " Intereſt in his Prince's Favour; and the great Uſe he made " of it, was to do Publick Service to Religion: and, whatever " ſome Men might ſuſpect, to the Church of England; tho' " it may be, not directly in their Way. And the greateſt " Fault I knew he had, was, That ſome envious and ambi- " tious Men could not bear his Greatneſs, which he himſelf " never courted; nay, which he induſtriouſly avoided. Be- " fore this, all England knew and own'd his Worth; and had " it been put to the Poll, there had been vaſt odds on his ſide, " that he would have been voted into the See of Canterbury; " for no Man had ever a clearer and brighter Reaſon, a truer " Judgment, or more eaſy and happy Expreſſion, nor a more " inflexible, fearleſs Honeſty, &c.

1694. 6 W. 3.

“it; and hoped it was a Beginning to great Bleſſings that were to follow it. Many of thoſe who had longed for it, and wiſh'd well to it, did of a ſudden ſtart back; and ſome in high Stations of the Church, would neither declare openly for it, nor act againſt it, according to the Authority of their Characters; one of which they certainly ought to have done. If they did then judge it ſo unlawful as they would now repreſent it, they ought to have Thundred, both with their Sermons and Cenſures againſt it. - - - -

“Our Sovereigns, after a long Forbearance, beyond the Term prefixed by Law, reſolved at laſt to fill the vacant Sees; and that great Judgment which they have ſhewed upon other Occaſions, made them ſoon ſettle on him as the fitteſt Perſon to ſteer this Church. It is well known how long, and how earneſtly he withſtood this. - - - - That which went the deepeſt in his own Mind, and which he laid out the moſt earneſtly before their Majeſties, was, That thoſe groundleſs Prejudices with which his Enemies had loaded him, had been ſo induſtriouſly propagated, while they were neglected by himſelf; that he believed, that He, who (as his Humility made him think) could at no Time do any great Service, was leſs capable of it now than ever. But their Majeſties perſiſting in their Intentions, he thought it was the Voice and Call of God to him, and ſo he ſubmitted. - - - - But he formed Two ſettled Reſolutions, from which he never departed. The one was, That whenſoever the State of their Majeſties Affairs was ſuch, that he could hope to be diſmiſs'd from that Poſt, he would become a moſt importunate Suitor to be delivered from it. The other was, That if the Infirmities of Age ſhould have ſo overtaken him, that he could not go thro' the Fatigue and Labours of it, then he would humbly offer it up to their Majeſties.

“- - - - He had one great Encouragement in that high, but invidious Station; which was, not only the conſtant Favour of their Majeſties, but that which gave him a Support of another Nature, ſince the other was only Perſonal, and ſo was leſs regarded by One that conſidered himſelf very little, was, That he perceived in them ſuch ſerious Deſigns, ſo true a Zeal, and ſo right a Judgment in all the Concerns of Religion, and of this Church, that he often ſaid, He did not think that any Age had produced Princes who underſtood the true Intereſts of our Church ſo well, and were ſo much ſet on promoting them, as their Majeſties were. A Zeal he obſerved in them, that was ſo tender, and yet ſo well guided, that he did indeed expect greater Bleſſings from it, than ſo corrupt an Age is either capable of, or can well deſerve and hope for. - - - -

“But as this was the greateſt, ſo it was almoſt the ſingle Satiſfaction that he enjoyed in his Elevation; while he was from other Hands aſſaulted with the moſt boiſterous, the moſt injurious, as well as the falſeſt Calumnies that Malice could invent. And yet how falſe ſoever theſe were generally known to be, the Confidence with which they were averred, joined with the Envy that accompanies a high Station, had a greater Operation than could have been imagined; conſidering how long he had lived on ſo publick a Scene, and how well he was known. It ſeemed a new and unuſual Thing, That a Man who in a Courſe of above Thirty Years had done ſo much Good, ſo many Services to ſo many Perſons, without ever once doing an ill Office, or a hard Thing to any One Perſon; who had a Sweetneſs and Gentleneſs in him, that ſeemed rather to lean to Exceſs, ſhould yet meet with ſo much Unkindneſs and Injuſtice. - - - - Nor had this any other Effect on him, either to change his Temper or his Maxims; tho' perhaps it might ſink too much into him, with relation to his Health. He was ſo exactly true in all the Repreſentations of Things, or Perſons, that he laid before their Majeſties; that he neither raiſed the Characters of his Friends, nor ſunk that of thoſe that deſerved not ſo well of him; (I love not to ſay, Enemies); but offered every thing to them with that Sincerity that did ſo well become him, that Truth and Candor was almoſt perceptible in every thing he ſaid or did. His Looks and whole Manner ſeem'd to take away all Suſpicion concerning him; for he thought nothing in this World was worth much Art, or great Management. With all theſe Things he ſtruggled, till at laſt they overcame him, or rather he overcame them, and eſcaped from them.

1694. 6 W. 3.

“His Life was not only free from Blemiſhes, which is but a low Size of Commendation, it ſhined in all the Parts of it. In his Domeſtick Relations, in his Friendſhips, in the whole Commerce of Buſineſs; he was always a Pattern, eaſy and humble, frank and open, tender-hearted and bountiful, kind and obliging, in the greateſt, as well as in the ſmalleſt Matters. A decent, but grave Chearfulneſs, made his Converſation as lively and agreeable, as it was uſeful and inſtructing. He was ever in good Humour; always the ſame, both acceſſible and affable. He heard every thing patiently; was neither apt to miſtake, nor to ſuſpect; his own great Candor diſpoſing him to put the beſt Conſtructions, and to judge the moſt favourably of all Perſons and Things. He paſs'd over many Injuries, and was ever ready to forgive the greateſt, and to do all good Offices, even to thoſe who had uſed him very ill. He was never imperious, nor aſſuming, and tho' he had a ſuperior Judgment to moſt Men, yet he never dictated to others. Few Men had obſerved Human Nature more carefully, could judge better, and make larger Allowances for the Frailties of Mankind, than he did. He lived in a due Neglect of his Perſon, and Contempt of Pleaſure; but never affected pompous Severities. He deſpiſed Wealth, but as it furniſhed him for Charity, in which he was both liberal and judicious.

“Thus his Courſe in the private Virtues and Capacities of a Chriſtian, was of a ſublime Pitch. His Temper had made him incapable of the Practices either of Craft or Violence. (a)

“In his Function, he was a conſtant Preacher; and diligent in all the other Parts of his Duty; for tho' he had no Care of Souls upon him, yet few that had, laboured ſo painfully as he did, in viſiting the Sick, in comforting the Afflicted, and in ſettling ſuch as were either ſhaking in their Opinions, or troubled in Mind. He had a great Compaſs in Learning; what he knew, he had ſo perfectly digeſted, that he was truly the Maſter of it. But the Largeneſs of his Genius, and the Correctneſs of his Judgment, carried him much further than the Leiſure he had enjoyed for Study ſeem'd to furniſh him; for he could go a great way upon general Hints.

(a) Not to add the many Panegyricks upon him from Printed Books, I can't paſs by one, (ſays the Writer of his Life) from a Manuſcript Diary of a late learned and pious Divine, becauſe there is a Particular in it, which muſt ariſe from a Perſonal Knowledge of Biſhop Tillotſon. “He taught (ſays he) by his Sermons more Miniſters to Preach well, and more People to Live well, than any other Man ſince the Apoſtles Days. He was the Ornament of the laſt Century, and the Glory of his Function in the Pulpit; another Chryſoſtom; and in the Epiſcopal Chair, a Second Cranmer. He was ſo exceeding charitable, that whilſt in a private Station, he always laid aſide two Tenths of his Income for charitable Uſes.

1694. 6 W. 3.

There needs nothing to be added to this Character, but that a greater was given to him by King William, who underſtood Mankind, and could not flatter. His Majeſty, after the Archbiſhop's Death, never mention'd him, but with ſome Teſtimony of his ſingular Eſteem for his Memory. He uſed often to tell his Son-in-Law, Mr. Chadwick, I loved your Father: I never knew an Honeſter Man; and I never had a Better Friend. The Queen was ſenſibly afflicted with the Loſs of him; and tho' ſhe did not ſurvive him above a Month, ſhe found a way to reverence his Memory, by ſetling an Honourable Penſion on his (a) Relict, who by her Lord's Generoſity and Charity, had the leſs Proviſion made for her.

Care to fill up the See of Canterbury,

It was the ſollicitous Care of the Court to fill up the See of Canterbury: The firſt Perſon that ſeem'd to be offer'd to the Eye of the World, was Dr. Stillingfleet, Biſhop of Worceſter; but his great Abilities had raiſed ſome Envy, and ſome Jealouſies of him; and indeed his Body would not have bore the Fatigues of ſuch a Station. Even the Biſhop of Briſtol was recommended by a great Party of Men, who had an Opinion of his Piety and Moderation. But the Perſon moſt eſteem'd by their Majeſties, and moſt univerſally approved by the Miniſtry, and the Clergy, and the People, was Dr. Teniſon, Biſhop of Lincoln; who had been exemplary in every Station of his Life, had reſtored a neglected large Dioceſe to ſome Diſcipline and good Order; and had before, in the Office of a Parochial Miniſter, done as much Good as perhaps was poſſible for any one Man to do. It was with great Importunity, and after the rejecting of better Offers, that he was prevailed with to take the Biſhoprick of Lincoln; and it was with greater Reluctancy that he now received their Majeſties Deſire and Command for his Tranſlation to Canterbury, to which he was nominated December the 8th, ſoon after elected by the Dean and Chapter, and that Election confirm'd in the Church of St. Mary-le-Bow in London, on January the 10th. He obtain'd the Favour of Recommending his Succeſſor in the See of Lincoln, the wiſe and good Doctor James Gardiner, Sub-Dean of the Cathedral-Church of Lincoln; who was nominated by his Majeſty on January the 18th, and conſecrated on the Tenth of March following.

with Dr. Teniſon, Biſhop of Lincoln.

The new Archbiſhop of Canterbury preaches the Queen's Funeral Sermon.

The firſt diſtinguiſhing Duty which was laid upon the new Archbiſhop, was to preach a Solemn Sermon at the Funeral of the Queen. The Parliament had taken into Conſideration the Reſpect due to this ſad Occaſion; and on February the 19th, an Order of Council was publiſh'd, That Tueſday the Fifth of March being appointed for the Funeral of her late moſt Gracious Majeſty, of Bleſſed Memory, the biggeſt Bell in every Cathedral, Collegiate, and Parochial Church of England and Wales, ſhould be Tolled from the Hour of Nine till Ten in the Forenoon, and from Two of the Clock till Three, and from Five till Six in the Afternoon of the ſaid Day.

The Funeral Proceſſion begun from the Royal Palace of Whitehall, to the Collegiate Church of St. Peter Weſtminſter; all the way being boarded, rail'd in, and cover'd with black Bays. The Proceeding was, Firſt, The Knight-Marſhal's Men and Deputy, Three Hundred Poor Women, in Mourning Gowns and Hoods; after whom follow'd the Banner of Union, ſeveral Claſſes of their Majeſties Servants; the Children and Gentlemen of the Chapel Royal; more of their Majeſties Servants, Chaplains to their Majeſties, Aldermen of London; other of their Majeſties Servants; the Lord-Mayor of London; the Houſe of Commons in long Cloaks, with their Speaker, and the Mace born before him, and his Train carried up; and the Houſe of Peers in their Robes, with their Speaker, the Lord Keeper, having the Mace and Purſe carry'd before him, and his Train carried up: The Banners of Cheſter, Cornwall, and Wales, born by the Lord Spencer, the Lord Willoughby of Eresby, and the Lord Viſcount Longueville; the Banners of Ireland and Scotland, by the Earls of Montrath and Selkirk; the Banners of England and France quarterly, of England, and the great Banner, born by the Earl of Denbigh, the Earl of Stamford, and the Earls of Bridgewater and Suffolk. Then followed the Mourning Horſe, led by the Lord Viſcount Villers, Maſter of the Horſe to her late Majeſty, attended by Two Equeries; the Helmet and Creſt, Target and Sword, and Surcoat of Arms, born by Officers at Arms, followed by the Lord Marquis of Wincheſter, Lord Chamberlain to her late Majeſty. Then the Queen's Body, in a Purple Velvet Coffin, with a rich Cloth of Gold Pall, and thereon the Crown, Orb, and Sceptres on a Cuſhion; one of the Queen's Bed-Chamber Women ſitting at the Feet, and another at the Head, in an open Chariot richly adorn'd, drawn by Eight Horſes cloſe cover'd with Purple Velvet, and adorn'd with Eſcutcheons and Feathers, Six Banerolls on each ſide, born by Baronets; the Pall being ſupported by the Earls of Derby and Kent, Lord Marquis of Normanby, Dukes of Northumberland, Somerſet, and Norfolk; the Dutcheſs of Somerſet Chief Mourner, ſupported by the Lord Privy Seal, and the Lord Preſident of his Majeſty's Council; the Dutcheſſes of St. Albans and Southampton Supporters to the Trains, aſſiſted by the Queen's Vice-Chamberlain. Aſſiſtants of the Chief Mourner were, Two Dutcheſſes, Twelve Counteſſes, and Four Baroneſſes. Then the Ladies of the Bed-Chamber; then the Maids of Honour; then the Bed-Chamber Women; all in the deepeſt Mourning. The ſeveral Parts of the Proceeding were attended by the Kings, and other Officers of Arms, with Drums and Trumpets; and the whole cloſed with the Band of Gentlemen-Penſioners, and Yeomen of the Guard. And when the Body was taken out of the Chariot at the Door of the Church, a Canopy of Purple Velvet was carried over it by the Gentlemen of the Privy-Chamber; and the Crown, Orb, and Sceptres on the Cuſhion, carried by Clarencieux King of Arms. The Dean and Prebendaries, with the Choir of Weſtminſter, attended at the Entrance of the Church, (which was illuminated with a great Number of Lights) and proceeded before the Body; which was depoſited under a Magnificent Mauſoleum, erected in the Middle of the Croſs of the ſaid Church, and there remain'd during the Service and Sermon preach'd by the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury. The Chief Mourner, and the reſt of the Ladies that went in the Proceeding, were placed about the Body; and the Houſe of Peers and Houſe of Commons were ſeated on each ſide. After Sermon, the late Queen's Secretary and Treaſurer, Maſter of the Horſe, and Lord Chamberlain, the Dean and Prebendaries of Weſtminſter, and both Choirs, with the Officers of Arms, and thoſe that bare the Atchievements and Regalia, proceeded before the Body to King Henry the VIIth's Chapel; which was attended by the Supporters of the Pall, and follow'd by the Chief Mourner. The Dean of Weſtminſter perform'd the Office of Burial; which ended, Garter pro-

(a) " Anno Septimo Gulielmi III. Maij Secundo. The King " granteth unto Elizabeth Tillotſon, Widow and Relict of John " late Archbiſhop of Canterbury, an Annuity of Four Hundred " Pounds, during the Term of her Natural Life.

" Anno Decimo Guliel. III. Auguſti Decimo octavo. The King " granteth unto Elizabeth Tillotſon, Relict of Archbiſhop Tillotſon, Two Hundred Pounds per Annum; as an Addition to " her Annuity of Four Hundred Pounds per Ann. granted to " her by Letters Patents, dated May 2. 1695.

claimed

1694. 6 W. 3.

claimed the Royal Stiles, and the Body was interr'd in a Vault on the South Side of the ſaid Chapel.

The Archbiſhop, in a grave and pathetical way, gave theſe agreeable (a) Characters.

Character of the Queen given by the Archbiſhop.

“ This Incomparable Princeſs was endowed with more than common Accompliſhments of Mind, whether we have Reſpect either to her Knowledge, or her Wiſdom.

“ Towards her Knowledge, Nature had done a great deal; Education and Converſation of the beſt kind, more ſtill; and moſt of all, the Grace of God. Her Underſtanding was clear and ſteddy, and there was a great Compaſs and Comprehenſion in it. It reached both to the greater Things of Religion, and the leſſer of Oeconomy. It was perpetually fed and improved by Reading, by Hearing Books read, by Diſcourſing, by Meditation.

“ Her Books were many, and well choſen; much delighted in, and therefore well ſtudied, and well remember'd: For her Majeſty's Memory was great, and it was properly exerciſed by Books of Hiſtory. One I may name which ſhe much valued, and often took into her Hands, Father Paul's Celebrated Hiſtory of the Council of Trent.

“ But the Holy Scriptures were the Oracles which ſhe chiefly conſulted: In them, if any Thing occcur'd which was not at firſt ſo well underſtood, it was by her noted down, as a Subject for After-Thoughts, and to be clear'd by them, or by ſome Comment, or ſome Perſon of eſpecial Ability.

“ Neither was her Wiſdom and Prudence inferior to her Knowledge: And of theſe there are many Inſtances, and of which I ſhall ſelect a few.

“ 1. Her Wiſdom ſhew'd it ſelf in the Governing of her Knowledge: She troubled not her ſelf, or others, with ſuch Curious Queſtions, which the Prudent neither ask, nor think themſelves concern'd to anſwer. Neither was ſhe wrought up to any Bigotry in unneceſſary Opinions: She was moſt converſant in Books of Practical Divinity; of which ſome of the lateſt uſed by her, were certain Sermons, and ſome Diſcourſes concerning Happineſs, Death, and Judgment. She knew good Things, in order to the doing of them. It is true, ſhe read many Volumes of Controverſies betwixt the Reformed and thoſe of the Church of Rome; but it was for the Sake of neceſſary Defence, not of vexatious Diſpute.

“ 2. Her Wiſdom was made known, by the wonderful Art ſhe had attained to for the Governing of Time; upon which all Managements do much depend. Her Hours were ſo adjuſted to the ſeveral Affairs of her own, and others, that notwithſtanding the Multiplicity of them, ſhe found a Seaſon for every Thing; and frequently, a Time for diſpatching many Things together. Dreſſing did not wholly prevent Reading, or Hearing, or Working; and nothing prevented the Service of that God, who gives all Time, and expects an Account of it. It was well underſtood by this wiſe Princeſs, That in the Current of Time, Affairs meet at laſt with a Stop, if by Diſpatch ſome of them are not taken out of the way, but all are ſuffer'd to float down together.

1694. 6 W. 3.

“ 3. Her Wiſdom ſhin'd very gloriouſly in her Adminiſtration of Publick Affairs; for which ſhe has received deſervedly the Publick Thanks, having conducted them with Wiſdom and Temper, and unwearied Application: Application, which was made a Jeſt in a late Age, and the want of which is a Lamentation in this. It was an Obſervation of ſome, who were in Circumſtances to make it, That when ſecret Difficulties occurr'd, this wiſe Princeſs had a due Senſe of them; and together with that, ſuch a Command of her Paſſions, that there appear'd few Signs of Trouble, none of Dejectedneſs in her Countenance; leſt either the Friends of the Government ſhould be diſhearten'd, or its Enemies encourag'd. Add to all this, That the Wiſdom of this Princeſs, was that true Wiſdom which chuſeth the beſt Things in the firſt place; the Honour of God, before the Pomp of Life; the Salvation of the Soul, before the Gaining of the World.

“ She was a Princeſs eminent for Piety: Her Private Devotions were extraordinary; and tho' ſhe ſhut out the World, yet in her high Circumſtances, her very Retirements could not paſs wholly unobſerv'd: And it has at laſt been underſtood, that her Exerciſes of Devotion which were known, were not the Half of thoſe which were then not known. If all were as diligent in examining, and noting down the Condition of their Souls, and comparing the former and the preſent Eſtate of them, Heaven would in ſome meaſure be upon Earth.

“ In Publick, how Pious an Obſerver of the Lord's-Day was this Religious Princeſs! How conſtant at Prayers, at the bleſſed Communion, at Sermons! And at all of them, how reverent, how attentive! Inſomuch that thoſe who gave themſelves any Diverſion from their own Duties, to obſerve the Manner in which ſhe perform'd hers, found her intent upon them; and no further drawn off, than by a ſolemn Look to check any Interruption which might ſometimes happen. So Judicious and Devout a Saint, the degenerate Church of Rome can by no means ſhew us; the Zeal of their moſt Pious Recluſes being (from the very Rules of their ſeveral Orders) embaſed with Superſtition; whilſt in hers appear'd no Allay of it.

“ The Genuine Fruit of the True Devotion of this Princeſs, was Chriſtian Charity. Her Charity was as great as her Power, and as diſcreet as it was great; the diſtreſſed French, and Scotch, and Iriſh, and the Needy at Home, were daily refreſhed by it. It extended to Perſons of Condition who were fallen into Decay, and to a very great Number of meaner People, and eſpecially (as I am well aſſur'd) to the Wives and Widows of inferior Soldiers and Seamen. Her Charity was generous and unconſtrain'd: When it was ready, nothing was denied which was fit to be asked: It could not be extorted by the unworthy, and by the worthy it needed not.

“ In granting Charities, there appeared in her Countenance an Air of Satisfaction; and when Supplies were not at hand, it was a Grief to deny, but the manner of it was obliging; whilſt many others, almoſt as often as they give a De-

(a) Dr. Edward Fowler, Lord Biſhop of Glocester, in a Preface to a Diſcourſe of Reſignation to the Will of God, 8*vo.* gives a great many Inſtances of the Queen's Piety and Goodneſs:—— Particularly, p. 18. “ The Queen had enjoined Preaching in the Chapel Royal after Evening Prayers, (tho' there were always Prayer and a Sermon Twice every Sunday Morning) and likewiſe Two Sermons with the Prayers on all Monthly Faſts; ſo was ſhe conſtantly a moſt ſerious and devout Attender on them, both Parts of thoſe Days; as ſhe was alſo on the Lord's Supper the Firſt Sunday of every Month. And ſhe was obſerved to ſpend more Time than ordinary in her Cloſet, not only the Day, but alſo the Week before every Communion. Nor could any Buſineſs detain her from her Private Chapel, neither Mornings nor Evenings throughout the Week. In all the Times of my Waiting, I never knew her once abſent.

1694. 6 W. 3.

"nial, create an Enemy. If God had thought us worthy of her Life, ſhe had done more publick and laſting Charities; and particularly in an Hoſpital for Seamen at Greenwich, in which the Wiſdom and Goodneſs of the King concurr'd with hers whilſt ſhe was Alive, and which at this time his Majeſty is going on with for the Encouragement of Navigation, the Engliſh Nerve of War and Peace.

"To all theſe Graces ſhe gave Ornament by Humility. In this Princeſs, Authority, Majeſty, and Humility met together; that dwelt in her to ſuch a Degree, that in her Preſence, or within her hearing, the ſpeaking of this which I have ſaid, or any thing like this, would have been exceedingly offenſive. But the Juſtice of Nations gives thoſe Praiſes to the Merit of Good Princes, which their own Modeſty would not bear. An ordinary Inſtance may ſuffice, for the ſhewing her Averſeneſs not only to Flattery but to Praiſe: Of a Book addreſs'd to her, ſhe ſaid ſhe had read it, and lik'd it well; but much the better becauſe the Epiſtle was a bare Dedication. This Grace of Humility did eminently diſcover it ſelf, when at any time her publick Adminiſtration was to ceaſe: It was laid down with the like Unconcernedneſs, as one uſes when he puts off his Garments, and goes to Reſt.

"It is true, this Grace was accompanied with a remarkable Smoothneſs of Demeanor; but it was not ſuch as the Artificial uſe; it was the Effect of an excellent Spirit, and not of Worldly Craft: It was alſo attended with Familiarity; but with ſuch a good ſort of it as bred rather Veneration than Contempt; and increas'd the Love and Duty even of her Servants, tho' ſhe treated them as her Children. It procur'd that Regularity, and good Order, and Diligence in her greater Family, which in private Ones is ſo much to be deſired.

"Such Accompliſhments as theſe are uſually increas'd by Fame, but diminiſh'd by Preſence; which diſcovers thoſe Imperfections that at a diſtance are not diſcerned. But here, the more this Queen was underſtood, the more ſhe was admir'd; and thoſe who knew her beſt could not but moſt eſteem her.

"After this excellent Princeſs had been very well known for ſeveral Years in a Neighbouring Country, ſhe was ſo extreamly valued, that her Removal from it was lamented as a Death, and occaſioned a deep and univerſal Sorrow.

"Theſe Graces and Virtues were not blemiſhed by Vanity or Affectation. Had that been ſo, ſhe would ſcarce have made ſuch a Profeſſion as this a little before her Death: I know, ſaid ſhe, what looſe People think of theſe who pretend to Religion; they think it is all Hypocriſy: Let them think what they will, I may now ſay, and I thank God I can ſay it, I have not affected to appear what I was not.

"She was a Wiſe and Good Queen, and Incomparable Wife, and one who (I am well aſſur'd) had all the Duty in the World for other Relations, which after long and laborious Conſideration, ſhe judg'd conſiſtent with her Obligations to God and her Country. She was likewiſe one of the great Supports of God's Church Eſtabliſhed among us; and not without due Temper towards the Scrupulous; A Patroneſs of Religion and Learning; A Miſtreſs whoſe Service was a Pleaſure; A True and Certain Friend; and a Chriſtian Mild and Merciful to her Enemies: Marvel not that ſhe had ſome, the Son of God himſelf was not without them. 1694. 6 W. 3.

"In fine, there was in her Life a perpetual Courſe of Chriſtian Practice. She was not diſtemper'd with Fits of unſubſtantial Piety, which are ſuddenly raiſed, and as ſuddenly vaniſh. The Spring was in the Judgment and the Heart; and from thence the Exerciſes of Holy Living were regular and conſtant. O, how good, how happy a Life was this! &c.

As ſoon as the Archbiſhop was ſettled in his great Charge, he wiſely ſuggeſted to the King the great neceſſity of preſerving and reſtoring the Diſcipline of the Church: And prevailed with his Majeſty to iſſue out theſe Injunctions, given by the King's Majeſty to the Archbiſhops of this Realm, to be communicated by them to the Biſhops and the reſt of the Clergy.

William Rex,

MOST Reverend Father in God, Our Right Truſty and Right entirely beloved Counſellor, and moſt Reverend Father in God, We Greet you well. We being very ſenſible, that nothing can more effectually conduce to the Honour and Glory of God, and the Support of the Proteſtant Religion, than the Protecting and Maintaining of the Church of England, as it is by Law Eſtabliſhed, which we are reſolved to do to the utmoſt of our Power, have therefore, upon mature Deliberation with you and other our Biſhops, by virtue of our Royal and Supreme Authority, thought fit, with the Advice of our Privy Council, to Ordain and Publiſh the following Injunctions. King's Injunctions.

"I. That the 34th and 35th Canons concerning Ordination, be ſtrictly obſerved. Anno Dom. 1603.

"II. That every Perſon to be admitted to Holy Orders, do ſignify his Name and the Place of his Abode to the Biſhop Fourteen Days before he is Ordained, to the end that Enquiry may be made into his Life and Converſation. And that he appear at the furtheſt on Thurſday in Ember-Week, that ſo ſuch, who upon Examination ſhall be found fit, may have time to prepare themſelves by Faſting and Prayer, before the Day of Ordination.

"III. That every Biſhop ſhall be well ſatisfied, that all Perſons that are to be Ordained have a real Title with a ſufficient Maintenance, according to the 33d Canon; in which Matter we require the Biſhops to uſe an eſpecial Care. Anno Dom. 1603.

"IV. That a Certificate of the Age of the Perſon to be Ordained, be brought, if it can be, out of the Pariſh-Regiſter, or at leaſt, a Certificate very well Atteſted.

"V. That the Part of the 34th Canon, which relates to the giving Certificates, concerning the Lives and Manners of thoſe who are to be Ordained, be ſtrictly looked to. And that the Biſhops lay it on the Conſciences of the Clergy, That they Sign no Certificates, unleſs upon their own Knowledge they judge the Perſons to be duly Qualified.

' As to the Behaviour of the Deprived Biſhops, Mr. Marſhal repreſents it right in theſe Words of his Defence of our Conſtitution, 8vo, P. 161. "Our Nonjuring Biſhops gave the People all the reaſonable Marks of their Acquieſcence in their Deprivation which could be deſired. It doth not appear by any Authentick Evidence, that they expected or claimed the Obedience of their Eccleſiaſtical Subjects, for divers Years after the Commencement of the (pretended) Schiſm. They communicated long after the vacant Sees were filled, even to this Year 1694, in the moſt ſolemn Acts of Chriſtian Worſhip, with thoſe whom now they call Schiſmaticks, and who were Schiſmaticks then if they are ſo now. I do not ſay that the Prayers, or thoſe Parts in them which they call Immoral, were uſed at ſuch Times of Worſhip; but Perſons who at all other times uſed them, who themſelves were Jurors, and were tainted (according to the preſent Notion) with the Contagion of Schiſm, were ſuffered to communicate with them; and Dr. Hickes himſelf hath been often preſent, and communicated at ſuch times, and with ſuch Perſons, all which is utterly inconſiſtent with the Plan which is lately publiſhed.

"VI. That

1694. 6 W. 3.

Articuli pro Clero.

"VI. That every Biſhop ſhall tranſmit, between Michaelmas and Chriſtmas to the Archbiſhop of the Province, a Liſt of all ſuch Perſons as have been Ordained by him during that Year, according to the Conſtitutions in the Year 1584, in order to be put in a Publick Regiſter, which ſhall be prepared by you for that uſe.

Anno Dom. 1603.

"VII. That the Biſhops ſhall reſide in their Dioceſes; and ſhall take care to oblige their Clergy to ſuch Reſidence as the Laws of the Land and the Canons do require, particularly the 41ſt Canon.

Anno Dom. 1603.

"VIII. That they who keep Curates, have none but ſuch as are Licenſed by the Biſhop of the Dioceſe, or in Exempt Juriſdictions by the Ordinary of the Place, having Epiſcopal Juriſdiction, as is required both by the Act of Uniformity, and the 48th Canon; that ſo when the Incumbent does not reſide, the Biſhop or ſuch other Ordinary, may know how the Cure is ſupplied: And that no Perſon ſhall preſume to ſerve any Cure without Licenſe from the Biſhop or ſuch Ordinary, upon pain of Suſpenſion.

"IX. That you uſe the moſt effectual Endeavours to ſuppreſs the great Abuſes occaſioned by Pluralities, and reſtrain them as much as you can, except where the Pariſhes lie near one another, and the Livings are ſmall: That all Qualifications be carefully examined: We being determined to have no Chaplains to be qualified by Us, but ſuch as are admitted to attend upon Us. And that due Caution be taken before any Faculty is granted. And, that ſuch Perſons as are legally Qualified, ſhall reſide at leaſt two Months in the Year in each of their Livings; and provide a Curate to ſerve where they are not in Perſon, with a due Maintenance, to be determin'd by the Biſhop of the Dioceſe; unleſs the two Pariſhes lie ſo near, that the Incumbent can conſtantly ſerve both Cures.

Anno Dom. 1603.

"X. That the Biſhops ſhall look to the Lives and Manners of their Clergy, that they may be in all Things Regular and Exemplary, according to the 75th Canon.

"XI. That the Biſhops do uſe their utmoſt Endeavours to oblige their Clergy to have Publick Prayers in the Church, not only on Holidays, but as often as may be; and to celebrate the Holy Sacrament frequently.

"XII. That the Biſhops ſhall require the Clergy to uſe their utmoſt Endeavours, That the Lord's Day be religiouſly obſerved, That they ſet a good Example to their People, and exhort them frequently to their Duty herein.

Anno Dom. 1603.

"XIII. That the Biſhops remind their Clergy to viſit the Sick frequently; and require them to perform that Duty with great Care and Diligence, according to the 67th Canon.

Anno Dom. 1603.

"XIV. That Catechizing be duly performed according to the 59th Canon.

"XV. That the Biſhops be careful to Confirm, not only in their Triennial Viſitations, but at other convenient Seaſons.

"XVI. That care be taken, that the Arch-deacons make their Viſitations perſonally; and that as much as may be they live within the Bounds of their Juriſdiction, and do their Duty according to the Canons.

"XVII. That no Commutation of Penance ſhall be made, but by the expreſs Order and Directions of the Biſhop himſelf, which ſhall be declared in open Court. And that the Commutation Money ſhall be applied only to Pious and Charitable Uſes, Articuli pro Clero, made in the Year 1584, and the Conſtitutions made in the Year 1597.

Anno Dom. 1603.

"XVIII. That no Licenſe for Marriage without Banes ſhall be granted by any Eccleſiaſtical Judge, without firſt taking the Oaths of two ſufficient Witneſſes; and alſo ſufficient Security for performing of the Conditions of the Licenſe, according to the 102d and 103d Canons.

"Theſe Injunctions we do require you to tranſmit to the Biſhops of your reſpective Provinces, to be by them communicated to their Clergy and to be ſtrictly obſerved, and often enquired after both by you and them. For as we eſteem it the chief Part of our Princely Care to promote true Religion, as it is eſtabliſhed in this Church; and in order thereunto we have determin'd not to diſpoſe of any Church Preferments in our Gift, but to ſuch of our Clergy as we ſhall have reaſon to believe do live moſt Exemplary, and Preach and Watch moſt faithfully over the People committed to their Charge: So we aſſure our ſelves, that theſe our Pious Intentions will be effectually ſeconded by you, and the reſt of our Biſhops; and that you will without Favour or Partial Affections, ſtudy to ſuppreſs Impiety and Vice, and to reform all Diſorders as far as in you lies; well knowing that nothing will ſo much advance the great Ends of Religion, and ſo certainly Secure and Eſtabliſh this Church, as the Exemplary Lives, and Faithful Labours of thoſe who Miniſter in it. And ſo we commend our ſelf to your Prayers, and bid you very heartily Farewel.

Given at our Court at Kenſington the Fifteenth day of February, 1694. In the ſeventh Year of our Reign.

By His Majeſty's Command,
SHREWSBURY.

We left the Parliament ſitting, and enquiring into the Bribery and Corruption of their own Members.

1695.

Proceedings of the Commons, About Bribery and Corruption.

On March the 26th, the Commons proceeding on the Report relating to the Members of this Houſe taking Money,

"Reſolved, That Mr. Hungerford a Member, being Guilty of a High Crime and Miſdemeanor, by receiving Twenty Guineas for his Pains and Service, as Chairman of the Committe to whom the Orphans Bill was committed, be expelled the Houſe. And Order'd, that Sir Thomas Cook, a Member, having refuſed to give an Account of the Money of the Eaſt-India Company by him diſtributed, be committed Priſoner to the Tower; and a Bill be brought in to oblige him to give ſuch Account". This Bill was preſented by Mr. Bridges on March the 28th, and Received and Read the firſt time; the next Day it was Read a ſecond

The Form of Retractation and Submiſſion made before the Biſhop of London by John Smith, Clockmaker of the Pariſh of St. Auguſtin in the City of London, on Wedneſday the 23d of January, 1694.

"Whereas I John Smith, Citizen of London, preſuming too far upon my private Reaſon and Underſtanding, have lately compiled, and raſhly againſt my Duty, ſet forth a Book Entitled, A deſigned End to the Socinian Controverſy. Printed in the Year 1694, and thereto with uſual Confidence have ſet my Name; in which Book I have undertaken to aſſert, maintain, and prove, ſeveral Points in Divinity contrary to the Articles of Religion, commonly called The 39 Articles of the Church of England, and contrary to the Eſtabliſh'd Laws and Statutes of the Realm: I John Smith do hereby declare, That I am very ſorry for the ſame, and wiſh with all my Heart, I had not either Written or cauſed to be Printed the ſaid Book, asking Forgiveneſs of all ſuch as have been hurt thereby, or juſtly ſcandalized hereat, and retracting all Pernicious, Erroneous, and Heretical Poſitions, contained in the ſaid Book. And I do hereby promiſe with Sincerity and Truth to abſtain from all Occaſions of falling into the like Miſcarriage, as much as in me lies, and to behave my ſelf for the time to come, as befits an Humble, Peaceable, Modeſt and Quiet Chriſtian. In Witneſs whereof, I have hereunto ſet my Hand, &c. John Smith.

See Sir Duncomb Colcheſter's Penitential Declaration, ſigned by his own Hand, and deſired by him to be publickly Read in the Pariſh Churches of Michael-Dean and Weſtbury, in the County of Glouceſter, in Novemb. 1694.

1695. 7 W. 3.

time, and the Caſhier to the Eaſt-India Company, according to Order, produced the Warrants for the Sums paid for Special Service or Charges General.

On March the 30th, Sir Baſil Firebraſs delivered in an Account of Moneys by him paid for the Service of the Eaſt-India Company; and Sir Thomas Cooke Petition'd the Houſe, that he might be heard by Council before the Bill do paſs, which was Granted.

Bill againſt Sir Thomas Cooke.

On April the 2d, the Commons in a Grand Committee went through the Bill and made Amendments, which were reported the next Day.

On April the 6th, Sir Thomas Cooke's Council were heard, and the Bill was read a Third time and paſs'd, and ſent to the Lords for their Concurrence.

Oppos'd by the D. of Leeds.

At the firſt reading of this Bill in the Houſe of Peers, the Duke of Leeds, Preſident of the Council, made a ſerious Speech againſt it, and introduced his Diſcourſe with a ſolemn Proteſtation of his own Innocence and Diſintereſt in the Matter.

On April the 13th their Lordſhips ſent a Meſſage to the Commons, deſiring that Sir Thomas Cooke might be permitted and order'd to appear at their Bar; and the Commons did accordingly order by Warrant from the Speaker, that Sir Thomas ſhould attend the Lords at their Bar. He declared himſelf Ready and very Willing to make full Diſcovery, and ſaid he would have done it before in the Houſe of Commons, if he could have obtained there an indemnifying Vote. It was demanded of him, what he would be indemnified from? He Anſwered from Scandalum Magnatum, and all Actions and Suits, except from the Eaſt-India Company, whom if he had Injured he would be bound to Satisfy in the utmoſt Rigor.

Sir Thomas Cooke being withdrawn, the Duke of Leeds ſtood up and declared, "He was very glad "that Gentleman was come to ſuch a Temper, as "to be willing to diſcover, and thereby to prevent a "Bill, which he thought to be of a pernicious Na"ture". Then his Grace minded their Lordſhips, how the Commons took care of the Reputation of their Houſe, in asking Sir Thomas Cooke, Whether he had diſtributed any Money among any of their Members? Who purged them by a ſolemn Proteſtation, That he had not. His Grace therefore thought it ſeaſonable, that the Lords ſhould have ſome Regard to their own Honour; and that Sir Thomas might be called in, and asked, Whether he were willing upon Oath to purge all that ſat there? This Motion was rejected, and the Lords reſolved, that the Bill ſent up from the Commons againſt Sir Thomas Cooke, ſhould not be proceeded upon; but that a Committee ſhould be appointed to draw up a Bill to indemnify him upon due Diſcovery. This Committee being withdrawn, and having made ſome Progreſs, Notice came from Sir Thomas Cooke, that he was afraid he might be miſapprehended as to what he had ſaid concerning a Diſcovery, by having expreſs'd himſelf that he was Ready and Willing; for by Ready, he only meant the more Willing; and that he ſhould need at leaſt Four Months to make the Diſcovery he promiſed. This was highly reſented by ſome of the Lords of the Committee, who immediately mov'd, that the Committee might riſe, and report to the Houſe this freſh Matter, and the trifling of Sir Thomas Cooke, that ſo the Bill deſign'd to oblige him to give an Account, might now proceed. But ſome other of the Lords mollified the Meaning of Sir Thomas Cooke, and prevailed with him to beg a favourable Treatment, and engage to diſcover within Seven Days; upon which the Committee went on with the ſofter Bill, to Indemnify him from any Actions he might be liable to, by reaſon of his Diſcovery, &c. And Sir Thomas had Leave to go abroad in Cuſtody to inſpect his Papers, that he might the better prepare for ſuch Diſcovery. This Bill of Indemnifying had ſome

Excuſes of Sir Thomas Cooke.

Amendments made to it by the Commons, to which the Lords agreed on April the 19th. 1695. 7 W. 3.

The King was uneaſy at the long Seſſion, and therefore to quicken the Diſpatch of Affairs, on Monday, April 22. his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to,

The King for diſpatch of Affairs.

Acts paſſed.

1. An Act for enabling ſuch Perſons as have Eſtates for Life in Annuities, payable by ſeveral former Acts therein mention'd, to Purchaſe and Obtain further or more certain Intereſts in ſuch Annuities: and in default thereof, for admitting other Perſons to Purchaſe or Obtain the ſame, for Raiſing Moneys for carrying on the War againſt France.

2. An Act for Granting to his Majeſty certain Rates and Duties upon Marriages, Births and Burials, and upon Batchelors and Widowers, for the Term of Five Years, for carrying on the War againſt France with Vigor.

3. An Act for Granting to his Majeſty ſeveral additional Duties upon Coffee, Tea, Chocolate, and Spices, towards Satisfaction of the Debts due for Tranſport-Service for the Reduction of Ireland.

4. An Act for Appointing and Enabling Commiſſioners to Examine, Take, and State the Publick Accounts.

5. An Act for the more effectual ſuppreſſing Prophane Curſing and Swearing.

6. An Act for continuing two former Acts for Puniſhing Officers and Soldiers, who ſhall Mutiny or Deſert his Majeſty's Service; and for Puniſhing of falſe Muſters, and for Payment of Quarters for one Year.

7. An Act for explaining and regulating ſeveral Doubts, Duties and Penalties in the late Act for Granting ſeveral Duties upon Vellum, Parchment and Paper; and for aſcertaining the Admeaſurement of the Tonnage of Ships.

8. An Act for raiſing the Militia of this Kingdom for the Year 1695, and for Repealing the Statute of the 2d and 3d Years of King Edward IV. Intituled, An Act againſt ſhooting in Hail-Shot.

9. An Act for continuing ſeveral Laws therein mention'd.

10. An Act for the better Admeaſurement of Keels and Keel-Boats in the Port of Newcaſtle, and the Members thereunto belonging.

11. An Act to indemnify Sir Thomas Cooke from Actions which he might be liable to, by reaſon of his Diſcovering to whom he Paid and Diſtributed ſeveral Sums of Money therein mentioned, to be received out of the Treaſure of the Eaſt-India Company, or for any Proſecution for ſuch Diſtribution.

12. An Act to prevent Exactions of the Occupiers of Lakes and Wyers upon the River of Thames Weſtward, and for aſcertaining the Rates of Water-Carriage upon the ſaid River.

13. An Act for ſettling divers Manors and Lands upon the Marriage of the Marquis of Taviſtock, Grandſon of William Duke of Bedford.

14. An Act for enabling the Inhabitants of the Pariſh of Chriſt-Church, in the County of Surrey, to make Rates for raiſing a Maintenance for a good and able Miniſter; and for the Impowering the Truſtees of the Will of John Marſhal, Deceas'd, to employ Moneys for the Finiſhing the ſaid Pariſh Church. And to ſeveral other Private Bills. After which, his Majeſty made this Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Take this Occaſion to tell You, That the "Seaſon of the Year is ſo far Advanced, and "the Circumſtances of Affairs are ſo Preſſing, that "I very earneſtly Recommend to You, the ſpeedy "Diſpatching ſuch Buſineſs as you think of moſt "Importance for the Publick Good, becauſe I muſt "put an End to this Seſſion in a few Days.

King's Speech.

On April 23. Sir Henry Goodrick acquainted the Houſe, that according to Order, their Adreſs had been

1695. 7 W. 3.

Addreſs of the Commons.

been preſented to his Majeſty, "That he would "pleaſe to give ſuch effectual Directions, that the "Colonels and other Officers of the Army employ- "ed for the Reduction of Ireland might ſpeedily "account with, and ſatisfy their inferior Officers "and Soldiers, as far as they had received Money "from his Majeſty." And that his Majeſty was pleaſed to ſay, That he had already given Orders, as well in Flanders, as in England, for the doing what is mention'd in the Addreſs; and that ſome Officers who neglected to comply with the Directions, have been caſhier'd: However, that he will repeat thoſe Orders under the ſeveral Penalties, to ſuch as ſhall diſobey 'em.

And Anſwer of the King relating to the Accounts of Officers.

On the ſame Day, Mr. Comptroller acquainted the Houſe, that according to Order, their Addreſs had been preſented to his Majeſty; "Praying that "his Majeſty, in his great Wiſdom, would pleaſe "to take care for the future, that this Kingdom be "put upon an equal Foot and Proportion with the "Allies, in bearing the Charge of the preſent War." And that his Majeſty was pleaſed to anſwer in theſe Words: In this, as in every thing elſe, I ſhall always endeavour to have a due Regard to the Intereſt, and to the Honour of this Nation.

Addreſs and Anſwer about our Allies.

In purſuance of the Act to indemnify Sir Thomas Cooke, a Committee of both Houſes was appointed to receive the Diſcovery to be made by him. He appeared before them on April 23. and being ſworn, he deliver'd in Writing an Account of the Diſpoſal and Application of ſeveral large Sums; as of 10000 l. deliver'd to Francis Tyſſen, Eſq; 12000 l. to Mr. Richard Acton, 338 l. to Mr. Nathaniel Molineux, 220 l. to Sir John Chardin, 350 l. to Paul Dominicque, Eſq; 382 l. to Captain John Germain, 1000 Guineas to Colonel Fitz-Patrick, 545 l. to Charles Bates, Eſq; and 40000 l. to Sir Baſil Firebraſs. All which Sums were ſaid to be paid for ſpecial Service of the Eaſt-India Company, to defray the Charges, and acknowledge the Pains and Services of thoſe Perſons and their Friends, on ſolliciting to prevent a Settlement of a New Eaſt-India Company, and to endeavour to eſtabliſh the Old; beſides 500 Guineas paid to the Attorney-General, 200 to the Sollicitor, and 200 more to Mr. Sambrook.

Sir Thomas Cooke's Account.

The Original being read by Sir Thomas Cooke, the Committee conceived it was imperfect, and not ſuch as the Act required; and therefore they acquainted Sir Thomas, that they expected a more particular Account from him. Upon this, Sir Thomas began to be more plain, and ſaid, "That as to the firſt Sum of 10000 l. paid to "Mr. Tyſſen, he gave him no Directions how it "ſhould be diſpoſed; but it was in Expectation to "have the Charter of the Eaſt-India Company con- "firmed; that it was intended for the Service of "the King, tho' he could not ſay the King had it; "but he believed, that Mr. Tyſſen told him, that "he deliver'd it to Sir Joſiah Child, who preſented "it to his Majeſty, as a Cuſtomary Preſent; for "the like had been done in former Reigns, as by "the Books of the Company might appear. That "as to the 12000 l. next mention'd, it was paid to "Mr. Richard Acton, who declared, He had ſeve- "ral Friends capable of doing great Service to the "Company's Affairs, and ſeveral of them would "ſpeak with Parliament-Men; That he could not "particularize who they were; but the End aimed "at, was to get an Act of Parliament. That "Mr. Acton did again ſay, He could tell ſome Per- "ſons employ'd in that Affair; that he did under- "ſtand that this Money was to be laid out for pro- "moting their Affairs in Parliament; That he could "not ſay to whom it was given; but underſtood it "went no further than the Houſe of Commons; and "that he found no good Fruit by ſuch Diſtribution. "As to the 338 l. paid to Mr. Molineux, Sir Tho- "mas ſaid, that Mr. Molineux told him, this Mo- "ney was to be diſpos'd of to the Lord Rivers; "but ſince his Confinement, Molineux had told "him, that my Lord never had it, but he had "made uſe of it himſelf. As to the 1000 Guineas "paid to Mr. Fitz-Patrick, deceas'd, Fitz-Patrick "told him, he had a great Intereſt with the Lord "Nottingham, that he would try what he could do, "and he did not doubt but he might do great Ser- "vices, provided he had ſuch a Sum of Money; "yet he believed, Fitz-Patrick kept the Money "himſelf; and that there was a Promiſe of a fur- "ther Sum, if the Act for a New Company did "not paſs. That the 545 l. was to be paid to "Mr. Charles Bates, when the Charter was ſettled, "and was paid accordingly in October 1693. That "he had no Acquaintance with Mr. Bates; but Sir "Baſil Firebraſs told him, that Bates had Acquain- "tance with ſeveral Lords, and named the Marquis "of Carmarthen, now Duke of Leeds. That as to "the firſt 10000 l. paid to Sir Baſil Firebraſs in "November, 1693. it was always his Apprehenſion, "that Sir Baſil kept it for himſelf, to recompence "his Loſſes in the Interloping-Trade: And as to "the ſeveral other Sums, compleating the Sum of "Thirty thouſand Pounds paid to Sir Baſil, he pre- "ſumed he had occaſion to diſtribute it to ſeveral "Perſons. As to the Sums paid to Sir John Char- "din and Mr. Dominicque, he believ'd they were "expended in the Company's Service. As to the "382 l. to Captain Germain, it was paid to bring "him off from the Interlopers, and engage him in "the Company's Intereſt.

On April 24. Mr. Comptroller reported this Examination to the Houſe of Commons; upon which the Debates were very warm. One Member ſaid, No Man is innocent if every Man be guilty. We cannot be innocent, if we do not lay our Hands upon theſe Men that have betray'd Us, and the Company, and, I hope, Themſelves. Let us go as far as we can, and then the Fault will not lie at our Doors. In the middle of theſe Debates, a Meſſage came from the Lords, deſiring a preſent Conference in the Painted Chamber; which was immediately had. Their Lordſhips propoſed, that all future Examinations of any of the Perſons mention'd in the Report of Sir Thomas Cooke, be had before a Committee of both Houſes. To which the Commons agreed.

Conference of both Houſes.

This Committee met the ſame Day; and Sir Baſil Firebraſs there depoſed, that the firſt Ten thouſand Pounds were given to him, as a Gratuity for his Loſſes, ſome Time before the Charter for the Eaſt-India Company paſſed. That Ten thouſand more was received by him, by virtue of a Contract with Sir Thomas Cooke, for Favours and Services done. That the Stock at the Time of the Contract, valued at 150 l. per Cent. falling afterwards to 100 per Cent. the Difference was Thirty thouſand Pounds; which they made up to him. He was poſitive the 10000 l. and 30000 l. were for himſelf, and for the Uſe of no other Perſon; except 500 l. paid to Mr. Powell, becauſe he had good Intereſt amongſt the Interlopers.---- The Committee ask'd Sir Baſil, What particular Service he did, or was to do, for procuring a New Charter? To which he anſwer'd. That he was unwilling to take too much upon himſelf; that he thought he did great Service to the Company, in ſolliciting their Cauſe; but wiſh'd he might be excuſed to another Time, being now much indiſpos'd.

Examination in a Committee of both Houſes.

The next Day Sir Baſil Firebraſs being again examined, further depoſed, "That having had a "Treaty with Mr. Bates, whom he thought able to "do Service in paſſing the Charter, and to have "Acquaintance with ſeveral Perſons of Honour, he "gave Two Notes for 5500 Guineas to Mr. Atwell, "payable to Mr. Bates, or Bearer; one Note for "3000 Pounds, the other for 2500 Guineas, intend- "ed for the doing Buſineſs. That he had theſe "Notes from Sir Thomas Cooke, and was accountable "to him for the ſame. That he believed, Sir Thomas "did not know how theſe Notes were to be diſpos'd "of; but that he had told Sir Thomas, that Mr. Bates had Foul Practices diſcovered.

1695. 7 W. 3. " had Acquaintance with ſeveral Lords; naming the " Lord Preſident, and others. That the Deponent " could not tell who this Money was deſign'd for, " or what Bates did with it; for that Bates would " not deal on ſuch Terms of Telling Names. That " Bates did introduce him ſeveral Times to the " Lord Preſident; who made ſome Scruples in " point of Law, which were removed by the At- " torney-General. That one Day laſt Week, the " Five thouſand Guineas were offered by Bates back " again to him; Bates ſaying, That this might make " a Noiſe. That on Tueſday laſt, 4400 Guineas " were brought to this Deponent; and that " the other 400 Guineas were ſtill in Bates's " Hands.---- That they found great Stops in the " Charters, which they apprehended proceeded " ſometimes from my Lord Nottingham, and ſome- " times from others. That Colonel Fitz-Patrick " received a Thouſand Guineas on the ſame Terms " as was with others, if the Charter paſs'd. " That he pretended great Intereſt with the Lord " Nottingham; and that he could get Information " from the Lady Derby, how the Queen's Pleaſure " was. That Colonel Fitz-Patrick ſaid, he would " try to prevail with the Lord Nottingham for Five " thouſand Guineas upon paſſing the Charter, and " Five thouſand Pound on the Act of Parliament; " but that the Earl of Nottingham abſolutely re- " fuſed to take it. That the Deponent heard, a " Note ſign'd by Sir Joſiah Child and Sir Thomas " Cook, for Fifty thouſand Pounds, was lodged in " Tyſſen's Hands for about a Year, to be paid in caſe " the Act paſſed; and that it was refus'd, as he " underſtood, by my Lord Portland, to whom he " had offer'd it.

Depoſition of Mr. Acton " Mr. Richard Acton being examined before the " ſame Committee, depoſed, That he received the " Sums of Ten thouſand, and Two thouſand Pounds " of Sir Thomas Cooke. That he told Sir Thomas, " he had Friends who would take Pains to do the " Company Service; but they would have Ten " thouſand Pound. That he had Two thouſand " Pound for his Trouble in attending Two Seſſions; " and that if the Bill for a New Company had " paſſed, he was to have had nothing. That he " did not diſtribute the Ten thouſand Pound to " Members, but to thoſe who had Intereſt with " Members. That ſome of them to whom he " gave Money to be diſtributed, were Mr. Craggs, " with whom this Deponent was concern'd in " Cloathing the Army, Mr. Wallis, Mr. Ridley, Mr. " Dominicque, &c. and that Colonel Goldwell, and " Colonel Dean (who were ſince dead) were the " only Perſons which he himſelf gave Money to.

Depoſition of Mr. Bates. The next Day, April 26. the Committee of both Houſes proceeded upon the Examination of the reſt of the Perſons mentioned in their Report; and Mr. Bates being ſworn, depos'd, " That Sir Baſil " Firebraſs did apply himſelf to him, to uſe his " Intereſt for obtaining a Charter for the Eaſt-India " Company, the old Charter being forfeited; and " told him, they would be grateful. That the De- " ponent did uſe his Intereſt with the Lord Preſi- " dent; who ſaid, He would do what Service he " could. That the Lord Preſident had deliver'd his " Opinion publickly for confirming the Charter; " and thought the Forfeiture an Hardſhip. That " having received Notes for Five thouſand five hun- " dred Guineas, he told the Lord Preſident what " Sum he had; and would have paſſed it upon " my Lord, but he refus'd it. That thereupon in " regard he could not very well tell Money himſelf, " he did ask Leave of my Lord, that his Servant " might tell the Money: To which my Lord an- " ſwered, He gave Leave; and accordingly Mon- " ſieur Robart did receive the Money. That after " Monſieur Robart had received it, he brought the " ſame to the Deponent, in whoſe Poſſeſſion it re- " main'd, till he paid 4400 Guineas thereof back " again to Sir Baſil. That as to the 600 Guineas " remaining of the 5000, he ſaid he had ſpent " ſome of them. That the Reaſon he paid back " the 4400 Guineas, was the Noiſe that it made; " and that People might think that he did not de- " ſerve them; and that the whole 5500 Guineas " were for his own private Uſe." However, being ſoon after re-examin'd, he own'd, That the 4400 Guineas which he paid back, were brought to him by Monſieur Robart. 1695. 7 W. 3.

Sir Baſil Firebraſs being once more examin'd, depos'd, " That Sir Thomas Cooke, and others, ob- " ſerving him active, and to have Intereſt among " Noblemen, applied themſelves to him to endea- " vour the procuring a new Charter. That Sir " Thomas Cooke was apprehenſive, That it ſtuck with " the Duke of Leeds; and told the Deponent, " that ſome Way muſt be found out to the Duke. " That he thereupon applied himſelf to Mr. Bates, " who would not pretend to talk with the Duke; " but ſaid, the Deponent muſt tell him what the " Company would do. That he told Mr. Bates, " he thought a Preſent might be made of 2, or " 3000 l. That Mr. Bates told him, he went to " St. James's, and ſaid, he had ſpoke with his " Friend; and that more had been offer'd him by " the other ſide: And that at another Time Bates " ſaid, that 5000 l. had been offer'd him by ano- " ther Hand on the ſame ſide. That it was at laſt " agreed, that if the Duke did act in favour of the " Company, he ſhould have 2 or 3000 Guineas, " and Bates 500 Guineas to himſelf. That from " the Time the Notes for the 5500 Guineas were " given to Bates, they had free Acceſs to my Lord " Preſident, and found him eaſy and willing to give " the Company his Aſſiſtance. That Mr. Bates was " ſhy, and call'd it, His Friend at St. James's. " That the Condition of one Draught of a Counter- " Note which Mr. Bates brought, was worded, " In caſe the Lord Preſident did not aſſiſt the Com- " pany in paſſing the Charter: To which this De- " ponent made an Alteration, by putting out my " Lord's Name, and making it not payable, in caſe " the Charter ſhould not paſs. That about a Week " before the Money was brought back again, this " Deponent went to Bates about it, who then told " him, it was all for himſelf. That the Deponent " did intend a Diſtribution of the above-mention'd " Sum of Thirty thouſand Pound, in manner follow- " ing. To Sir Edward Seymour, Sir John Trevor, and " Mr. Guy, Ten thouſand Pound, in caſe the Char- " ter and Act of Parliament paſſed: To the Mer- " chant Interlopers Ten thouſand Pound; and to " himſelf Ten thouſand Pound. That as to Five " thouſand Pound, part of the ſaid Thirty thouſand " Pound, he did deſign One Third thereof to Sir Ed- " ward Seymour, One Third to Sir John Trevor, " and One Third to Mr. Guy. That Mr. Guy, to " whom he made the Propoſal, told him, they did " not deſire to meddle with the Stock, but would " do any Service they could to promote getting the " Charter. That Sir Edward Seymour afterwards " meeting this Deponent, chid him for making " that Propoſal; and told him, he would never " have any thing to do with him, if he ever made " any ſuch Offers. That the Deponent thought " himſelf obliged in Honour, to pay Two thirds of " the Five thouſand Pound, when received, to Sir " John Trevor and Mr. Guy; and intended to keep " the other Third (which Sir Edward Seymour re- " fuſed) for himſelf. And that Sir John Trevor " did ſome Time afterwards give him ſome Hints of " his Expectation.

Sir Joſiah Child being examin'd, ſaid, " He ne- " ver diſpoſed of Ten Pounds of the Eaſt-India " Company's; that he did recommend it, that a " Preſent of Fifty thouſand Pounds ſhould be made " to the King, if his Majeſty would ſo far " wave his Prerogative, that an Act of Parliament might

1695. 7 W. 3. "might be paſſed for ſettling the Company; that "Mr. Tyſſen had told him, the King would not meddle in that Matter, as he had been inform'd from "my Lord Portland.

Debates of the Commons. Theſe Examinations being reported to the Houſe of Commons April 27. One of the Members ſtood up, and urg'd the Neceſſity of ſearching this Matter to the bottom; and to provide Laws for the future to prevent the Members of the Houſe taking Money. That Ten thouſand Pound had been pretended to be given to the King; and Fifty thouſand Pound offer'd to buy an Act of Parliament, or gain their Charter. That the Facts proved themſelves, and that Mr. Bates had proved an unfortunate Perſon, whom the Care of his Friend (the Duke of Leeds) and the Senſe of his Oath, had cauſed to make ſuch Contradictions. Another Member ſaid, that there were never greater, and more general Inſtances of Corruption. He inſiſted on the Neceſſity of a ſpeedy Remedy; and that it was very fit the Houſe ſhould let the World ſee that they were in earneſt. He put them in mind of the Practices and Arts that had been uſed to ſtop their Diſcovery; ſo that what they had, was got as it were, by the utmoſt Force and Conſtraint; at which they could not wonder, when they found ſo great a Man at the Bottom. But there is, added he, no Perſon in a Poſt ſo high, that this Houſe cannot reach; no Man's Practice or Art ſo deep, that this Houſe cannot diſcover. Here have been all imaginable Endeavours us'd to obſtruct the Enquiry. Firſt, His Majeſty's Name was made uſe of at the Committees, with Hopes, perhaps, that that might ſtop any further Search; and if it were made uſe of there, you may reaſonably expect it was made uſe of elſewhere. But that appear'd to be ſo far from being a Reflection on the King, that Sir Joſiah Child often complain'd of it as a Rudeneſs to his Majeſty, that what other Kings had yearly as a Preſent, they had not offer'd to his Majeſty in Three Years. It was indeed, if not a Matter of Right, a Matter of Cuſtom. As for the Earl of Portland, who may be nam'd for his Honour upon this Occaſion, when the great Sum of Fifty thouſand Pound was preſs'd upon him, he did abſolutely refuſe it, and told them, He would for ever be their Enemy and Oppoſer, if they offer'd any ſuch Thing to him. Having thus mention'd the Innocent, I muſt, continued he, ſay ſomewhat of the Guilty. A Stop having been put, the Duke of Leeds muſt be applied to. Certainly there never was a more notorious Bribery; and that in a Perſon, whom we might have expected to have been free from ſuch a Crime, if you reſpect either the Greatneſs of his Place, or of his former Obligation. It is fit to ſpeak plainly on ſuch Occaſions: The Houſe ought to endeavour to remove ſuch a Perſon from the King's Council and Preſence. What Security can the Nation have, when we are bought and ſold to one another? We have ſeen our Deſigns defeated, our Attempts betrayed; And what Wonder is it? Can any Man think it more ſtrange, that our Counſels ſhould be ſold abroad, than that Charters ſhould be ſold at home? Certainly a Man may reaſonably believe, that he who will Sell the Subjects, will ſell the Kingdom, if he can have a ſufficient Bribe. What Prince can be ſafe in ſuch Counſels which are given for private Advantage? Several Propoſals, ſaid he, in the Concluſion, may here be offer'd for Remedy. One, That this Houſe ſhould Addreſs his Majeſty to remove the Duke of Leeds; but, with Submiſſion, an Addreſs is too mean, too low a Thing for this Houſe to do at this Time, and upon ſuch an Occaſion; I therefore move we may lodge an Impeachment.

Tho' this Speech was approved in the main, yet ſome Expreſſions in it were thought too reflecting; and another Member ſtood up and ſaid, He wondred the Gentleman who ſpoke laſt, ſhould ſay that, which he hop'd he did not believe, That that Lord ſhould have ſold our Counſels to France. Thereupon the other roſe again, and ſaid, It was with ſome Uneaſineſs he ſtood up, for he did not take Pleaſure to rake in a Dunghill. That he was far from ſaying the Duke had betray'd our Counſels; but argued only from Poſſibility, that it was as reaſonable to believe one as the other; and that when Honour and Juſtice were not the Rule of Men's Actions, there was nothing incredible that might be for their Diſadvantage.

Several Members ſeconded the Motion for an Impeachment; adding, That ſuch Actions as theſe were a Blemiſh, if not a Scandal to the Revolution it ſelf. And it being demanded, By what Law it was a Crime to take Money at Court? It was anſwer'd, That if there was not a Law, it was time there ſhould be a Law to prevent it; that the Law of God was againſt the Duke; and that there were Parliaments to puniſh ſuch Crimes. It was again ſuggeſted, that it was doubtful, whether there was Matter in this Report for an Impeachment; and therefore, before the Houſe went to an Impeachment, they ought to put the Queſtion upon the Report; and ſee whether it be a Crime. Thereupon, ſome of the Duke's Friends objected, That there was no Law, and ſo no Tranſgreſſion; and mov'd for excuſing him. But the Queſtion being put, That there did appear, that there was in the Report made from the Committee of both Houſes, ſufficient Matter to Impeach Thomas Duke of Leeds of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors, it was carried in the Affirmative; and Mr. Comptroller was order'd to go up to the Lords, and at their Bar, in the Name of the Houſe, and of all the Commons of England, to lodge the ſaid Impeachment, which in due Time they would make good. Reſolution to Impeach the Duke of Leeds.

About the ſame Time that Mr. Comptroller made the Report to the Commons from the Committee of both Houſes, the Lord Privy-Seal made the Report to the Lords; after the Hearing of which, the Duke of Leeds ſaid, "That as he had formerly proteſted "himſelf to be clear in this Matter, ſo he ſtill de-"nied upon his Faith and Honour, that he was "guilty of any ſuch Corruptions as were ſuggeſted "againſt him; and that if the whole Truth were "laid open, it would tend to his Honour and Ad-"vantage. That he would be very free in telling "their Lordſhips now before-hand all that paſſed, "in which he was any ways concerned. That Mr. "Bates introduc'd Sir Baſil Firebraſs to him; and "that he had Conferences with Sir Baſil upon the "Subject of the Eaſt-India Company, which Fire-"braſs was concern'd for. That ſome time after, "Mr. Bates inform'd him, that he was to have "a Sum of Money of Sir Baſil Firebraſs, and de-"ſired his Lordſhip to lend him one of his Ser-"vants, (Mr. Bates keeping but a Footman) to re-"ceive the Money; and ſo he lent him Monſieur "Robart. That he knew nothing of the Sum; but "afterwards Mr. Bates came to him, and told him, "he had received 5000 Guineas; and that in Ac-"knowledgment of the many Favours he had re-"ceived from his Lordſhip's Hands, he humbly de-"ſired him to accept the ſame; which he refuſing, "Mr. Bates preſſed him earneſtly to take one Half, "or a Quarter; which he ſtill refuſed, declaring "he would not touch a Penny of them. That "however, he told him, ſince he had taken them, "he thought there was no need of returning them; "that they were his own, and wiſh'd him good "Luck with them. And thus, concluded his Grace, "I was but a Shadow to Mr. Bates. Defence of the Duke in the Houſe of Lords.

The Duke of Leeds had ſcarce ended his Speech, when private Notice came to the Houſe of Lords, that the Commons were proceeding to an Impeachment againſt him; whereupon he left the Houſe in great Haſte, and going to the Door of the Houſe of Commons, deſired to be admitted to be heard. This being granted, and a Chair placed for him within the Bar, his Grace ſat 1695. 7 W. 3. down, put on his Hat; then roſe, uncover'd himſelf, and made a Speech to the Houſe: Wherein, in the firſt place, "He thank'd them heartily for this Favour of hearing him; and then "proceeded, declaring his Innocence, and that "he had attended ſooner, if he had had the leaſt "Intimation what the Houſe was upon. That "the Occaſion of his coming, was from the "Two Votes upon the Report from the Committee "of both Houſes; That he had done all he could "to be inform'd of the Particulars, but could not. "That hearing of a Report, a monſtrous long Report, and finding himſelf concern'd, he was earneſt to be heard, to the end he might not lie under the Diſpleaſure of either, or both Houſes. "He ſaid, It is a bold word, but 'tis a Truth, This Houſe had not now been ſitting, but for me. He "added, That he was formerly purſued by this "Houſe in Two Points; For being for the French "Intereſt, and for Popery: That he had then, if "he might have been heard, juſtified himſelf; and "hoped he had ſince, and would by all the Actions of his Life. That one Firebraſs, by the "means of Mr. Bates, was introduced to him: "That he had long known Mr. Bates; and if he "was not much deceived in him, he could not believe that Gentleman would have tranſacted ſuch "a Matter, if put upon it. That the Evidence "was but a Hearſay; and he hoped they would "not condemn on Hearſay. That as well as a Money-Part, there was alſo a Treaty-Part. That as "to the Money-Part, much of it was falſe; and "what was true, he made no Secret. That he "could and did ſay, upon his Faith and Honour, "That neither directly nor indirectly, He never "touched one Penny of the Money. That he obſerved a great deal of Pains had been taken to "hook in this Matter by a Side-Wind: That this "Firebraſs thought his Merit would deſerve 10000 l. "and 30000 l. That this 5500 Guineas was no "Part of the 40000 l. That the Witneſſes were "called in by the Committee; but that Firebraſs, "after his firſt Hearing, deſired to be called in "again himſelf, contrary to all Rules; which "ſhew'd him at leaſt a very willing Witneſs. "That he had a Thread which he hoped to ſpin "finer, and make it appear, That this was a Deſign laid againſt him long before the naming of "this Committee: That Warning was given him "ſome Time ſince, That this Matter would be improved againſt him; and that Firebraſs had been "told, He ſhould be excus'd, if he ſhould charge "the Duke." His Grace in the Concluſion ſaid, "He asked no Favour, but their favourable Juſtice; "and that no ſevere Senſe might be put on what "would bear a candid one. That if it might be, "the Houſe would reconſider what was done, or "at leaſt preſerve him from Cruelty; and not let "him lie on the Rack, and be blaſted, until a Parliament ſhould ſit again; and that if they would "not reconſider, that then he might have ſpeedy "Juſtice: For he had rather want Counſel, want "Time, or want any Thing, than lie under their "or the Nation's Diſpleaſure. (a)

The Duke's Plea in the Houſe of Commons.

This Speech being ended, and the Duke withdrawn, Mr. Comptroller (attended by many Members) went up to the Lords with the Impeachment; and at the ſame time it was propoſed in the Houſe, that the Articles ſhould be forthwith drawn up; and thereupon the Committee which were joined with the Lords were order'd to withdraw, and prepare the ſame.

The Duke's Speech conſider'd.

Afterwards the Houſe of Commons took the Duke's Speech into Conſideration; and one of the Members ſtood up, and ſaid, "That by this Noble "Lord's Speech, the Point was now, Whether "the Houſe would arraign the Committee of both "Houſes, or go on with their Impeachment? "That the Duke, when he came to the Matter, "would not enter into Particulars, but paſs'd it "over with Excuſe of wanting Time. That he "made no Excuſe as to the Facts: That his Arguments of a Contrivance was, That the 5000 "Guineas charged on him, was no Part of the "40000 l. Firebraſs was to account for. That "this was rather an Aggravation of the Crime; "for Sir Thomas Cooke had a double Account, one "with, and another without the 5000 Guineas; "which was an Indication, That if there was a "Contrivance, it was not by the Committee, but "with Sir Thomas Cooke, to ſtifle the Enquiry, and "conceal the Corruption. That the ſpeedy Juſtice "of the Houſe was to be wiſh'd and deſir'd: And "that if there was ſuch a Contrivance, ſuch a "Thread as was mention'd by that Noble Lord, "'twas not to be doubted, but that Houſe (where "he was impeached) would clear him." Another Member moved, "That a Committee might "be appointed to withdraw, to conſider what was "to be done, in order to gratify that Noble Lord "by ſpeedy Juſtice; and obſerved, That his Friend "Mr. Bates, contradicting himſelf, was more than "the Evidence of Firebraſs. That Monſieur Robart was a Servant of my Lord Preſident's, and "was fled: That Mr. Bates ſaid, he kept the Money in his Houſe; that ſometimes he had ſpent "it, that ſometimes it was in his Cloſet. That he "did own the Money was not in his Houſe on "Sunday, but on Tueſday Morning Monſieur Robart brought it to him; but he would never declare from whom he brought it.

In the Middle of theſe Debates, a Meſſage was ſent from the Lords, to acquaint the Houſe of Commons, "That it was the Opinion of their Lordſhips, That the Diſcovery made by Sir Thomas Cooke was not ſatisfactory, nor ſo full as to entitle him to the Benefit of the Act to indemnify "him; and that their Lordſhips deſired the Concurrence of the Commons." They therefore paſs'd a Vote, as the Lords had done, and ſent it up by the Lord Coningsby.

Bill for impriſoning Sir Tho. Cooke, &c.

On Monday, April the 29th, the Lords acquainted the Commons that they had paſſed a Bill, entitled, An Act for Impriſoning Sir Thomas Cooke, Sir Baſil Firebraſs, Charles Bates, Eſq; and James Craggs, and for reſtraining them from Alienating their Eſtates; to which they deſired the Concurrence of the Commons. After the Reading of this Bill, Mr. Comptroller repeated the Articles of Impeachment againſt the Duke of Leeds, for Contracting and Agreeing with the Merchants Trading to the Eaſt-Indies, or their Agents, for 5500 Guineas, to procure them a Charter of Confirmation, and a Charter of Regulation; or by his Agents and Servants, with his Privity and Conſent. Theſe Articles were agreed to by the Commons, and by their Order ſent up to the Houſe of Peers; where upon Reading of them, the Duke of Leeds made another Vindication of himſelf much to the ſame purpoſe; adding, "That this Storm which was now fallen "upon him, was ſome Time a gathering; and it "was promoted by a Faction and a Party, who had "a Pique againſt him, and an Intention to delay "the King's Buſineſs: That he had an Original "Letter, which gave him an Account of this ſome "Time before it brake out; and it appear'd only "levell'd againſt him, becauſe none elſe were proſecuted: That there appear'd a Joy they could (a) See a Collection of the Debates and Proceedings in Parliament, within the Years 1694, and 1695. upon the Enquiry into the late Briberies and Corrupt Practices. 4*to.* 1695.

"catch

1695. 7 W. 3.

"catch at this Pretenſion; and that Sir Baſil Fire- "braſs was treated with to diſcover only this Part, "and ſo he ſhould be excuſed from any further "Diſcovery." His Grace concluded with praying a Copy of the Articles of Impeachment, and of the Report of the Committee of both Houſes; which was readily granted.

Duke of Leeds anſwers the Articles.

April the 30th, the Commons were acquainted by a Meſſage from the Lords, that the Duke of Leeds had put in his Anſwer to the Articles exhibited againſt him, of which their Lordſhips had ſent a Copy to them. Whereupon the Commons ordered, "That the Committee who were appointed "to prepare the Articles againſt the Duke, ſhould "draw up a Replication to his Anſwer.

On May the 1ſt, the Ingroſſed Bill from the Lords for Impriſoning Sir Thomas Cooke, &c. was read the Third Time by the Commons, and ſent up to the Lords by Sir Herbert Crofts, with ſome Amendments. At the ſame Time, a Meſſage was brought from the Lords, That their Lordſhips conceiving the Seſſion may not continue much longer, they think themſelves obliged in Juſtice to put the Houſe of Commons in mind of the Impeachment brought up againſt the Duke of Leeds; to which the Anſwer of the Duke of Leeds having been tranſmitted to the Commons, the Lords deſire they may be acquainted when this Houſe can be ready to make good the Articles of the ſaid Impeachment, to the end a certain Day may be appointed by the Lords for that Purpoſe. The Commons reſolved to ſend an Anſwer by Meſſengers of their own; and to proceed according to the Courſe of Parliaments.

The Lords deſire the Commons to make good their Articles.

Duke of Leeds complains of the Delay of the Commons.

On May the 2d, the Duke complained in the Houſe of Peers of the Delay of the Commons in not Replying to his Anſwer; alledging, "That "the Impeachment was only to load him with "Diſgrace; and that they never intended to Try "him. That a Set of Men uſed great Partiality "towards him, and did not intend to enquire af- "ter others: And that they ſhew'd their Partiality "and Spleen, in their Amendment to the Bill for "Impriſoning Sir Thomas Cooke, Sir Baſil Firebraſs, "and the others; whereby Sir Baſil was to be bail- "ed, becauſe he was the Witneſs againſt him." The ſame Day the Commons reſolved, That the Offer of any Money, or other Advantage, to any Member of Parliament, for the Promoting any Matter whatſoever depending, or to be tranſacted in Parliament, was a High Crime and Miſdemeanor, and tended to the Subverſion of the Engliſh Conſtitution. Then Mr. Comptroller reported from the Committee, "That Monſieur Robart, who was a Mate- "rial Witneſs for making good the Articles againſt "the Duke of Leeds, had been ſummon'd to at- "tend the Committee, but could not be found; "and it not being yet known where he was, they "were of Opinion not to make any further Pro- "greſs in the Matter to them referred, until they "had the further Direction of the Houſe." Upon this Reſolution agreed to by the Houſe, it was ordered, "That Monſieur Robart ſhould attend the "Houſe to be examined, and ſhould be ſummon'd "by the Serjeant at Arms.

On Friday, May the 3d, a Motion being made in the Houſe of Lords, to read the Bill for granting to the King a Duty upon Glaſs, &c. the Duke of Leeds roſe up, and ſpoke to this Effect: "That it grieved him to think, that he who was "as much as any Man for the Diſpatch of the Mo- "ney-Bills, and never oppoſed any, ſhould be now "conſtrained to do it: But he hoped their Lord- "ſhips would conſider his Caſe, not only as his, "but the Caſe of any of their Lordſhips; for it "was in the Power of a Tinker to Accuſe at the "End of a Seſſion; and one might lie under it "without Remedy. But ſince the Commons, by "Miſmanagement, had delay'd this Money-Bill for "Six Weeks, it would not be of mighty ill Conſe- "quence, if it ſhould lie a Day or two longer. "In the mean Time, he muſt earneſtly preſs, that "if the Commons did not reply, the Impeach- "ment might be diſcharg'd; for if it were not, "he might lie under the Reproach of it all his Life. "He had Reaſon to believe the Commons would "do nothing in it; for tho' they had appointed a "Committee to meet, they had met but once, and "that for Form ſake.

1695. 7 W. 3.

Monſieur Robart not to be found.

On the ſame Day, Mr. Speaker of the Houſe of Commons acquainted them, "That the Serjeant at "Arms had inform'd him, that his Meſſenger had "been at the Duke of Leeds's, and ſpoke to his "Porter, and enquired for Monſieur Robart, to "ſummon him to attend this Houſe: And that "the Porter ſaid, He was not within; nor could "tell when he would be: And that he had not ſeen "him for Three Days paſt; and that he believ'd he "was in the Country, but could not tell where." Upon this the Commons deſired a Conference with the Lords; to which they agreed immediately in the Painted Chamber: Where the Managers delivered a Paper to their Lordſhips, importing, "That the Commons will make good the Charge "againſt the Duke of Leeds, in Manner and "Form as in the Articles mentioned: That the "Committee appointed to draw the ſaid Articles, "had been daily employed in looking into the "Evidences againſt the ſaid Duke, but had met "with an Obſtruction, in that Monſieur Robart, a "Material Witneſs, was withdrawn ſince the Im- "peachment carry'd up; which hath been the Rea- "ſon the Commons have not yet acquainted their "Lordſhips when they can be ready to make good "the ſaid Impeachment; the Commons being de- "ſirous that Juſtice be done without any manner of "Delay." This Paper being read in the Houſe of Lords, it was moved and agreed to, without any Objection made by the Duke of Leeds, That an Addreſs ſhould be made to the King, to iſſue a Proclamation for Stopping the Ports, and Seizing Monſieur Robart; which was accordingly done. Then the Duke roſe up, and blamed the Commons for doing an unprecedented Thing, "To "charge a Man with Crimes, before they had all "the Evidences to make it good: That it was "ſtrange they ſhould ſay they wanted a Material "Witneſs, and lay it upon him to produce this "Witneſs. As if a Perſon were obliged to pro- "duce Evidence to accuſe himſelf. He would be "very ingenuous, and tell their Lordſhips, That "in truth he had ſent Monſieur Robart to ſee his "Daughter Lempſter; and order'd him to call at "Mims, to ſee his Daughter Plimouth; where the "Meſſenger of the Houſe of Commons might "have known he was gone, if he had asked. "That he had ſent a Meſſenger on purpoſe for "Robart; That Robart return'd about Two of the "Clock on Sunday Morning; but being inform'd "that his Lord was impeach'd, and Mr. Bates in "Priſon, he was frighted, and went towards Har- "wich, deſigning for his own Country, (Switzer- "land) thro' Holland. That his Grace knew by "the Temper of the Man, and by a particular "Knowledge he had of him, that he would not "be ſeen here again in Haſte. So that my Lords, "ſaid his Grace, if this Man be inſiſted upon as a "Material Evidence, and that my Tryal is to be "delay'd till this Perſon is forth-coming, When am "I likely to be try'd? I humbly move your Lord- "ſhips, that you will come to ſome Reſolution, that "if this Matter be not immediately proceeded upon, "ſo that I may be tried before the Ending of this "Seſſion, the Impeachment may be diſcharged." To which ſome Lords cry'd, Well Moved; but the King's Coming to the Houſe prevented any further Reſolution.

TheDuke's Vindication of himſelf.

On

1695.
7 W. 3.

Impeachments interrupted.

On the ſame Day the Houſe of Commons having read a Report of the Committee of both Houſes, proceeded towards the Impeaching other Perſons therein mentioned, and in particular, Sir John Trevor : But they were interrupted by the Black Rod, and commanded to attend the King in the Houſe of Peers, where his Majeſty was come to reconcile the Fatal Differences, by the only Method, that of putting an End to the Seſſion.

Ill State of the Coin.

We muſt firſt obſerve, that amidſt all theſe Diſputes, a great Thing was done for the Honour and Intereſt of the Nation, by Redreſſing the bad State of the common Coin of the Kingdom. This Difficulty lay ſo heavy upon the Government, that a ſtop was almoſt put to Trade and Taxes : The Current Silver Coin had for many Years began to be Clipp'd and Adulterated, and the Miſchief of late had been ſo ſecretly carried on by a Combination of all People concerned in the Receipt of Money, and ſo induſtriouſly promoted by the Enemies of the Government, that all Pieces were ſo far diminiſh'd and debaſed, as that Five Pounds in Silver Specie was ſcarce worth Forty Shillings, according to the Standard ; beſides an infinite deal of Iron, Braſs, or Copper waſh'd over, or Plated. The Nation had ſuffer'd moſt grievouſly by this Evil, and the Cure of it could be no longer delay'd, without apparent and inevitable Ruin to the Publick, and an Obſtruction to all Private Commerce. Under this Neceſſity, the Houſe of Commons on Jan. 8. appointed a Committee to receive Propoſals, How to prevent Clipping of the Coin of this Kingdom for the future, and the Exportation of Silver. This Committee having ſat ſeveral times, Mr. Scobel at laſt reported their Opinion : 1. That the beſt way to prevent Clipping the Silver Coin, was to New-Coin the ſame into Mill'd Money. 2. That 1000000 l. was a ſufficient Sum, to make good the Deficiency of the preſent Clipped Coin of this Kingdom. 3. That the Money hereafter to be Coined, ſhould be of the preſent Weight and Fineneſs. 4. That the Crown-Piece ſhould go for 5 s. and 6 d. and the Half-Crown for 2 s. and 9 d. 5. That all Money to be Coined under the Denomination of the Half-Crown, ſhould have a Remedy of Sixpence in the Ounce. 6. That for as much of the preſent Coin as any Perſon brought into the Mint, he ſhould have Weight for Weight, and the Overplus by a Bill or Ticket at - - - per Cent. on a Fund to be appropriated for that Purpoſe. 7. That the preſent Laws againſt Clipping be enforced by ſome Additions. 8. That all Perſons, whoſe Profeſſions require ſuch like Tools or Engines as may be made uſe of for Coining or Clipping, be obliged to Regiſter their Names and Places of Abode ; and that it ſhould be Penal on ſuch as ſhould neglect to do the ſame. 9. That it be Penal on all ſuch Perſons, as give more for any Silver Coin than it ought to go for by Law. 10. That it be Penal on all ſuch Perſons, on whom Clippings are found. 11. That no Preſſes, ſuch as are uſed for Coining, be in any other Place than his Majeſty's Mint. 12. That it be Penal in all ſuch Perſons as ſhall import any Clipp'd or Counterfeit Money. 13. That it be Penal in any Perſon to export Engliſh Bullion, and the Proof to lie upon the Exporter. 14. That it be Penal in any Perſon to Counterfeit any Foreign Mark upon Bullion.

This Report lay ſome Time neglected in the Houſe of Commons, till the Lords having paſs'd an Act to prevent the Counterfeiting and Clipping the Current Coin of this Kingdom, and on March the 19th, ſent it down to the Commons for their Concurrence. Then the former Reſolutions of the Committee were taken into Conſideration, and out of them ſeveral Amendments were inſerted in the Lords Bill ; to which Amendments the Lords agreed, and ſo made the moſt Expedient Act ready for the Royal Aſſent.

1695.
7 W. 3.

Bills left unfiniſh'd.

Several Bills were left unfiniſh'd this Seſſion ; ſuch as, 1. A Bill touching Free and Impartial Proceedings in Parliament ; which was begun in the Houſe of Commons, and there rejected after the Third Reading. 2. A Bill for Regulating Tryals in Caſes of High Treaſon ; which having paſs'd the Lower Houſe, was amended by the Lords, and occaſion'd ſeveral further Conferences and Debates between both Houſes. 3. A Bill for Regiſtring Memorials of Deeds, Conveyances, and Wills ; which was obſtructed by the Lawyers in the Houſe of Commons, as tending to abridge Law-Suits, and ſo to prejudice their Profeſſion. 4. A Bill for the Encouragement of Privateers. 5. A Bill for the better Encouragement of Seamen. 6. A Bill to diſable Perſons from Voting in Elections of Members to ſerve in Parliament, who ſhould refuſe to take the Oaths to the Government ; which never came to a Second Reading. 7. A Bill for the better Diſcovery of Bankrupts Eſtates ; which was only read Twice. 8. A Bill to veſt the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland in his Majeſty ; wherein as little Progreſs was made. 9. A Bill to Regulate Printing Preſſes. 10. A Bill requiring certain Perſons to take the Oaths to his Majeſty ; which having paſs'd the Lords, and coming down to the Commons, was by them rejected after the Second Reading. 11. A Bill for Naturalizing Foreign Seamen ; which being ſent from the Lords, was likewiſe rejected by the Commons. 12. A Bill to aſcertain the Aſſize of Bread. 13. A Bill to oblige James Craggs and Richard Harnage, to diſcover how ſome of the Monies for Cloathing the Army had been diſpos'd of. And laſtly, A Bill for Puniſhing Tracy Pauncefort, and his Brother Edward Pauncefort, for Corrupt Practices ; which having been read Three Times by the Commons, was order'd to lie upon the Table.

In the midſt of the Debates in both Houſes, upon the ſame Subject of Impeachments, (as before obſerv'd) on Friday, May 3. the King came to the Houſe of Peers, attended with the uſual Solemnity, and gave the Royal Aſſent to,

Acts paſſed.

1. An Act for Granting to his Majeſty certain Duties upon Glaſs Wares, Stone and Earthen Bottles, Coals and Culm, for carrying on the War againſt France.

2. An Act for the King's moſt Gracious, General, and Free Pardon.

3. An Act to prevent Counterfeiting and Clipping the Coin of this Kingdom.

4. An Act for Impriſoning Sir Thomas Cooke, Sir Baſil Firebraſs, Charles Bates, Eſq; and James Craggs, and reſtraining them from Alienating their Eſtates.

5. An Act for Reverſing the Attainder of Jacob Leiſler, and others.

After which, his Majeſty made this Speech to the Two Houſes.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" I Am come to give You Thanks for the Supplies provided for carrying on the War in which We are Engaged ; and at the ſame time to conclude this Seſſion, which cannot be continued longer, without manifeſt Prejudice to the Ends for which theſe Supplies are given : The Seaſon of the Year making it ſo neceſſary for Me to be Abroad, that it were to be wiſh'd our Buſineſs at Home would have allowed Me to have been there ſooner.

" I will take Care to place the Adminiſtration of Affairs, during my Abſence, in ſuch Perſons on whoſe Care and Fidelity I can entirely depend : And I doubt not, My Lords and Gentlemen, but every one of you, in your ſeveral Stations, will be aſſiſting to them. This is what I require of " You,

1695. 7 W. M.

"You, and that You be more than ordinarily vigilant in preſerving the Publick Peace.

Then the Lord-Keeper, by his Majeſty's Command, ſaid,

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Parliament Prorogued

"It is his Majeſty's Royal Will and Pleaſure, "That this Parliament ſhould be prorogued to "Tueſday, the Eighteenth Day of June next, and "this Parliament is accordingly Prorogued to Tueſday the Eighteenth Day of June next.

Lords Juſtices in his Majeſty's Abſence.

On the ſame Day the Parliament was Prorogued, his Majeſty was pleaſed to declare in Council, that he had appointed Thomas Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Sir John Somers, Kt. Lord-Keeper of the Great Seal, Thomas Earl of Pembroke, Lord Privy-Seal, William Duke of Devonſhire, Lord Steward of his Majeſty's Houſhold, Charles Duke of Shrewsbury, one of his Majeſty's principal Secretaries of State, Charles Earl of Dorſet, Lord Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold, and Sidney Lord Godolphin Firſt Commiſſioner of his Majeſty's Treaſury, to be LORDS JUSTICES of England, for the Adminiſtration of the Government during the King's Abſence: And at the ſame time his Majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute Sir William Trumball one of the principal Secretaries of State, in the room of Sir John Trenchard lately Deceaſed; the next Day his Majeſty was pleaſed to declare, that he had thought fit to appoint Henry Lord Capel to be Lord Deputy of Ireland. And within Four Days after William de Naſſau Signeur de Zuleſtein, was created a Baron, Viſcount, and Earl of this Kingdom, by the Name and Stile of Baron of Enfield, Viſcount Tunbridge, and Earl of Rochford; and Ford Lord Grey of Werke, was created Viſcount Glendale and Earl of Tankerville. On the next Day May the 9th, the Duke of Schomberg, the Earl of Tankerville, and Peregrine Bertie, Eſq; Vice-Chamberlain to his Majeſty, were Sworn and Admitted of the Privy-Council.

Honours and Preferments.

King goes to Holland.

On May the 12th the King went in the Morning from Kenſington to Graveſend, and went Aboard the William and Mary Yatch about Six that Evening, attended by the Duke of Ormond, the Earls of Eſſex and Portland, and too few other Perſons of Quality. (a) On Monday about Four in the Morning his Majeſty Sailed from the Buoy in the Nore, with a fair Wind, Convoy'd by Sir George Rook, who lay at the Gunfleet with a Squadron of Eighteen Men of War; and by Nine the next Morning his Majeſty Landed at Orange Polder, Dined with Monſieur Regnenburgh, and came that Evening to the Hague, being there received with great Acclamations of Joy. On the Morrow being Wedneſday, May the 17th, his Majeſty was complimented upon his ſafe Arrival, by the States-General, the States of Holland, and the Council of State, and by all Foreign Miniſters; after which his Majeſty went into the ſeveral Aſſemblies, and having concerted the proper Meaſures of the Campaign, he diverted himſelf ſome Days at Loo, and then appear'd at the Head of the Army.

The King opens the Campaign.

The King was reſolved to form ſome conſiderable Enterprize either in Flanders or on the Maeſe, according as the beſt Opportunity ſhould offer to put it in Execution on either ſide. In order to this, before his Majeſty left Holland, he had given Directions for the ſetting up and ſtoring of great Magazines in ſeveral Places, and for the making all other neceſſary Preparations; and order'd two Armies in the Field, to keep the French in Awe on both Sides, and draw their whole Strength on that for which their Jealouſie ſhould be the greateſt, and afterwards fall on the other with more probability of Succeſs. A Siege in Flanders ſeem'd to be attended with leſs Difficulty than on the Maeſe, where the only Place that could be Attempted was Namur, the ſtrongeſt of all the Low Countries; and therefore as moſt People looked upon ſuch an Undertaking to be impoſſible, ſo the French themſelves did leaſt ſuſpect it, and turned their greateſt Precautions towards Flanders, where they drew a new Line from the Lys to the Scheld, before the Allies could form a Body of Troops to oppoſe them. By this Act of Security, it ſeem'd probable, that the French would content themſelves to act defenſively this Summer; to which they might be the more diſpos'd by the loſs of their beſt General, the Duke of Luxemburgh, whoſe Place was unequally ſupplied by the Mareſchal de Villeroy.

The Confederates Superior to the French.

While the French were perfecting their Lines, the Confederates who were grown ſuperior to them by near two Thouſand Men, formed two great Armies in Flanders and Brabant; the firſt conſiſted of Seventy Battallions of Foot, and 82 Squadrons of Horſe and Dragoons, moſt Engliſh and Scotch, and the reſt Dutch, encamped between Shields and Deynſe, to be commanded by the King in Perſon, and under him by the Old Prince of Vaudemont; to be reinforc'd upon Occaſion by Twenty Battallions, and Ten Squadrons that lay near Dixmuyde, under the Command of Major General Ellemberg: The other Army conſiſted of Thirty-ſix Battallions of Foot, and 130 Squadrons of Horſe, of Spain, Holland, and Bavaria, encamp'd on the Road from Bruſſels to Dendermond, to be Headed by the Elector of Bavaria, and under him by the Duke of Holſtein Ploen. There was another little Army which was called the Body of the Maeſe, encamped on the Mehaigne, conſiſting of 18 Battallions of Brandenburghers, and 7 Dutch, and of 17 Squadrons of Brandenburgh, and 15 of Liege, commanded by the Baron de Heydon, Lieutenant-General of Brandenburgh, and Count de Earlo, General of the Liege Cavalry. On the other Hand the Mareſchal de Villeroy, who commanded the French Forces in chief, had drawn his Army together at Leuze, between Conde, Tournay, and Aeth. Mareſchal de Bouſflers, and Count Guiſcard, with a Body of 12000 Horſe and Foot lay Encamped about the Sambre, and Monſieur Montal, with another ſmall Body, lay near Ipres, to obſerve Major-General Ellemberg.

Opening of the Campaign.

This was the Poſture both Parties were in when the King arrived at Ghent, on June 5. N. S. where the Elector of Bavaria, and the Duke of Holſtein Ploen waited on him, and the Governor and Burghers received his Majeſty with the like Reſpects that are uſually paid to a King of Spain. His Majeſty went that Evening to his Army at Arſeele, and upon a Review of his Forces finding them in a very good Condition, he detach'd on June the 11th three Brigades of Horſe, to reinforce the Elector of Bavaria in his Camp at Ninove, from whence the Earl of Athlone had by the King's Order marched with 40 Squadrons to obſerve Bouſflers, who had paſſed the Sambre, and was now advanced to Flerus. On June 12. the King decamp'd from Arſeele, and march'd his Army to Bourſelaer, having ſent all the heavy Baggage to Bruges. On the 13th he encamp'd at Berelder, from whence a Party was ſent out that Routed two Parties of the Enemy, and purſued them to the very Walls of Ipres. Mareſchal de Villeroy march'd at the ſame time from Eſranaſſe, and retired behind the Lines between Menin and Ipres, having detach'd ten thouſand Men to reinforce Bouſflers, who was advanced to Pont-Eſpierre.

(a) "By the Lords-Juſtices; A Proclamation for a General "Faſt, on Wedneſday the 19th of June, for ſupplicating Almighty God for the Pardon of our Sins, and for imploring "his Bleſſing and Protection in the Preſervation of his Majeſty's Sacred Perſon, and Proſperity of his Arms both at "Land and Sea. Given at Whitehall, May 23, 1695.

The

1695.
7 W. 3.

The ſame Day in the Evening, the King went to view the Enemies Lines, and found the main Body of their Army Encamped within them, ſtanding to their Arms, as expecting to be Attacked; but tho' there was little Probability of Succeſs in attempting to force their Lines, yet it was highly convenient for his Majeſty's Project to give the French ſuch Umbrage as to oblige them to bring all their Forces to defend them. Therefore the Body of the Maeſe advanced towards Namur, and the Elector of Bavaria march'd the 12th from Ninove, paſſed the Scheld on the 16th, poſted himſelf at Herkhaven near Hunterine, facing the new Lines, and forced Mareſchal Boufflers to retreat within them.

The King ſent the Duke of Wirtemburg to make an Attempt upon the Fort Kenoque to increaſe the Enemies Jealouſy for Flanders, and draw their Force the more on that ſide, ſending Orders at the ſame time to the Baron de Haden to advance towards Flanders, with the Troops under his Command, but directed him ſoon after to make a Counter-March. By this and ſeveral other Stratagems, the King brought on his Deſign of beſieging Namur, and directed the Earl of Athlone and the Baron de Haden to inveſt it, and by an Expreſs communicated the whole Scheme of the Siege to the Duke of Bavaria, who highly approved it: The Earl of Athlone being join'd by the Brandenburgh Troops on June 28, marched toward Charleroy, and the King himſelf leaving his Army at Rouſelaer, under Command of Prince Vaudemont, advanced with a ſtrong Guard toward the Maeſe. Theſe Motions put the French in ſuſpence whether the Confederates deſigned to attack Namur or Charleroy; the latter was moſt feared by the Marquis de Harcourt, who therefore reinforced that Gariſon with a good Body of Dragoons. But the Earl of Athlone having paſſed the Sambre at Caſſelet below Charleroy, marched again down that River towards Namur; ſo that his Lordſhip being by this time reinforced by a Body of Horſe and Dragoons from the Elector of Bavaria's Army, took all the Poſts from the Sambre to the Maeſe, whilſt the Baron de Haden, with the Brandenburgh and Dutch Forces, inveſted the Place between the Maeſe and the Sambre. Another Detachment was order'd to ſurround Namur on the Condroz ſide, but their not coming in time, by the reaſon of the difficulty of the Ground, and the vaſt Extent of the Circumvallation, gave Mareſchal Boufflers an Opportunity to throw himſelf into the Place, with ſeveral Regiments of Dragoons, and many Engineers; ſo that with this Reinforcement the Gariſon conſiſted of near Fifteen Thouſand Men, and moſt of them the beſt Troops of France.

Siege of Namur.

Boufflers throws himſelf into Namur.

The King came to the Caſtle of Faliſe on July 2. and the next Day the Elector of Bavaria having brought up the reſt of his Army with great Expedition, the Town and Caſtle of Namur were entirely inveſted, and his Majeſty diſpoſed the Troops into three General Quarters. The French prepared themſelves for a vigorous Reſiſtance, and depended on the Strength of the Place, which had always been accounted impregnable; and by the Advantage of its Situation, as well as the Nature of its Fortifications, was the beſt Bulwark of Brabant. And the Strength of the Place was very much improved, ſince it fell into the Hands of a Monarch who never ſpared Charges to put his Frontiers and Conquered Cities into the beſt defence they are capable to receive from Art and Nature; and the Caſtle was ſo ſituate upon a Hill, in an Angle formed by the Confluence of the Sambre and the Maeſe, that it was hardly poſſible to make ſo much as an Attack upon it: Beſides, the Place was provided with all Neceſſaries for many Months, ſo that the King's Enterprize of this Siege was look'd upon by the French as a raſh Project, that muſt needs be fatal in breaking the Confederate Army. But all theſe Obſtacles, however to appearance invincible, were not able to ſhake the Reſolution of King William, they ſerved only to keep up his Fortitude, Prudence and Vigilance, and to make him concert effectual Meaſures to ſurmount all Difficulties, which he did to his own Immortal Glory, the Aſtoniſhment of his Enemies, and the Admiration of all Europe.

Condition of the Town.

1695.
7 W. 3.

To raiſe this Siege, the Mareſchal de Villeroy marched toward the Prince of Vaudemont, to attack him in his Camp at Aeerſele: The Prince had Fifty Batallions of Foot, and Fifty-one Squadrons of Horſe and Dragoons; Villeroy with double the Number came up to him on July 14. but found the Prince's Camp ſo ſtrongly fortified, that he would not hazard a Battel till Montal had taken his Poſt in the Rear of the Prince's Right, ſo to inviron him, as to fall on all ſides the next Morning. The Prince found it neceſſary to provide for a Retreat, which he manag'd with ſo much Conduct and Bravery, that the Honour of it was equal to a Victory; and this Senſe the King expreſs'd in a Letter to him in theſe Words:

Attempt to raiſe the Siege.

Retreat of Prince Vaudemont.

Couſin,

" You cannot believe how much your Letter of " Yeſterday Noon, which I received this Morning " by break of Day diſturbed Me: On the other ſide, " how joyful I was upon the Receipt of the other " Letter, Dated from Mary-kirk, near Ghent, this " Day at Three in the Morning. I am much " obliged to you, for in this Retreat you have gi-" ven greater Marks of a General conſummate in " the Art of War, than if you had gained a Vi-" ctory. I abſolutely approve of your Conduct up-" on this Occaſion, and I hope it will hinder the " Enemy from undertaking any more of the ſame " Nature: Nevertheleſs, I ſhall be impatient till I " know which way they bend their March, ſince this " Blow has failed them,

Letter of K. William.

I remain always, &c.

The Siege of (a) Namur was carried on with great Application; the Beſieged had made two or three ſmall Sallies with no Succeſs, and made another more conſiderable on July 18, with Twelve Hundred Horſe, and Four Squadrons of Dragoons, but after a ſharp Encounter were beaten back, with the Loſs of 200 Men. On the ſame Day the King reſolved to ſtorm the advanced Works and Traverſes of the Enemy; and accordingly Major-General Ramſey, and the Lord Cutts, at the Head of Five Batallions of the Foot-Guards, Engliſh, Scotch, and Dutch,

(a) Captain Denty, now living, who had the honour to be an Officer in this Siege, took theſe Minutes of it: " June 26. being " Wedneſday, we arrived before Namur. July 2. Trenches " opened. 5th. Attack made upon the Fort called Coquett, " and the Enemy beaten out of it. 16th. The Redoubt before " the Port St. Nicholas ſurrendred upon Diſcretion. 17th. An " Attack was made upon the Town, and our Men lodg'd in " the Cover'd-Way; the ſame Day the Enemy was beaten from " the Abby Salrines. 20. The Enemy was Attack'd in three " ſeveral Places, and beaten out of their Lines toward the Ca-" ſtle. The 23d. The Enemy was again attack'd and beaten " three times from the Baſtion by St. Nicholas Port. The 24th " the Town hung out a Flag to Parley. The 25th they capi-" tulated. The 26th they ſurrendred. The 31ſt we march'd " with the King, and join'd Prince Vaudemont's Army at Water- " loo three Hours from Bruſſels. Aug. 2. we march'd back to " Namur. The 11th, Our Batteries were finiſhed, and we be-" gan to Thunder upon the Caſtle. The 15th, we took the " Redoubt near the Sambre. The 20th, we ſtorm'd the Caſtle " and Fort Cohorn. 21ſt, we march'd to obſerve the French " Army, and encamp'd at Longchamp. 22d; The Enemy beat " a Parley, and Capitulated at Night. 23. We march'd back " and encamp'd at Bougitt. 26. The French march'd out of the " Caſtle about 10 in the Morning, being about 5500 ſtrong. " Mareſchal Boufflers was ſtopp'd, and kept Priſoner. 29. We " march'd out of our Camp towards Breda.

began

1695. 7 W. 3. began the Onſet on the Right, while Major-General Saliſch, with Eight Regiments, and Nine Thouſand Pioneers, inſulted the Enemy on the Left. To defend themſelves from this Attack, the Beſieged brought out Eight Batallions, a great Detachment of Dragoons, and all their Grenadiers to defend their Retrenchments; the Diſpute was obſtinate for two Hours, but at laſt the French were beaten back, and purſued to the very Gates of the Town. The King, who according to his Cuſtom remain'd upon the Place during the whole Action, was ſo well pleas'd with the Bravery and Excellent Order of his Men, that laying his Hand over the Duke of Bavaria's Shoulder, he told him ſeveral times in a way of Tranſport, See my Brave Engliſh; See my Brave Engliſh.

Bravery of the Engliſh.

The great Rains that fell about this Time very much incommoded the Beſiegers, and interrupted their Approaches: However, on the 25th they plied their Batteries with Succeſs, rais'd new ones, ſet on Miners to the Redoubt of Balart, near St. Nicholas Gate, and the next Day forc'd the Captain that commanded in it, to ſurrender at Diſcretion. On the 24th, the King went into the Trenches, and perceiving the Batteries had made great Breaches in St. Nicholas Baſtion, the Demi-Baſtion of Roche, and at the End of the Counterſcarp of the Town; his Majeſty diſpos'd all things for the general Attack of the firſt Counterſcarp, which was perform'd towards Five a-Clock that Afternoon, in this manner: The Engliſh and Scotch, commanded by Major-General Ramſey, and Brigadier George Hamilton, came out of the Trenches to the Right, and attack'd the Point of the foremoſt Counterſcarp, which encloſed the Sluys or Water-ſtop: The Enemy receiv'd them with a furious Diſcharge; which however did not hinder them to go on briskly, and maugre the diſmal Eruption of Three or Four Fougades of Bombs that lay buried in the Glacis, which put them at firſt into ſome Diſorder; they return'd more animated to the Charge, and drove the Enemy from that Counterſcarp. But it unluckily fell out, that whilſt the Workmen were making a Lodgment, ſome Sacks of Wool took Fire, whereby Part of the Lodgment was conſum'd, and the Engliſh expos'd to the Shot of the Counter-Guard and Demi-Baſtion of St. Roche: Which they ſuſtain'd and anſwer'd with incredible Reſolution, till the Fire was extinguiſh'd, and ſome Traverſes caſt up. On the other hand, the Hollanders ſeeing the Engliſh in ſo hot a Place, immediately went up along the Maeſe, towards the Breach of the Counter-guard, and ſo vigorouſly attack'd the Enemy with their Hand-Granado's, that the latter thought it ſafer to retreat than to defend themſelves; which very much eas'd the Engliſh. Thereupon the Dutch lodged themſelves upon the Counter-guard; and thus both they and the Engliſh preſerved the foremoſt Covered Way before St. Nicholas Gate, from the Maeſe to the Water-Stop, with Part of the Counter-guard. The Valour and Firmneſs of the Confederates Infantry in this Action is ſcarce to be parallel'd: And it muſt alſo be acknowledg'd, that the French Officers behaved themſelves like Men of true Courage, expoſing themſelves on the Breach of the Counter-guard, with their Swords in their Hands, in order to encourage their Soldiers. The Enemy did not throw many Bombs, but they fir'd inceſſantly into the Trenches with Five or Six Pieces of Cannon; which kill'd ſeveral Perſons about his Majeſty; particularly Mr. Godfrey, Deputy-Governor of the Bank of England, who being come into the Camp to wait on the King about Money for the Payment of the Army, had the Curioſity to ſee this Attack; and ſought his Death, where he ſhould have only minded his Profit.

General Attack.

Death of Mr. Godfrey.

In the mean time, the Elector of Bavaria, poſted between the Sambre and the Maeſe, commanded an Attack to be made toward the Abbey of Salſines; which was performed with ſo much Vigor, that he not only forc'd the Retrenchments next the Sambre, but made himſelf Maſter of the Fort of La Balance, repuls'd Four Squadrons of Horſe that came out of the Caſtle, laid a Bridge over the Sambre, paſſed that River amidſt the Enemies continual Fire, and poſſeſſed himſelf of the ſaid Abbey: A Poſt of great Importance, and which favour'd the Attack of Vauban's Line that ſurrounded the Works of the Caſtle. This Line the Elector reſolv'd to ſtorm, and order'd General Coehorn to diſpoſe all things for that Purpoſe towards Salſines, and General Fleming to do the ſame on the other Side of the Maeſe. On the 30th of July, by Break of Day, his Electoral Highneſs, with the Spaniſh and Bavarian Generals, and General Coehorn, began the Attack towards Salſines; and aſſaulted the Retrenchment in Flank with about 3000 Foot, ſuſtain'd by ſome Battalions, and 1000 Spaniſh and Bavarian Horſe. Major General Swerin attacked the Line in Front with 500 Grenadiers, as many Muſqueteers, and 1000 Pioneers; and the Brandenburgh Generals, with 500 Grenadiers, ſupported by 2000 Foot, and their Grand Muſqueteers, Gens d'arms, and Horſe-Grenadiers, inſulted the Enemies Flank on the Maeſe Side. The Beſieged at firſt made ſome Reſiſtance, by Favour of a Line of Communication of one Redoubt and Two Trenches; but being aſſailed on all ſides, and that too with extraordinary Bravery, they were driven to the Counterſcarp of Coehorn Fort. Animated with this Succeſs, the Beſiegers purſued the Runaways as far as the Devil's Houſe; where the French had ſeveral Cannon laden with Cartouches, and about 900 Men laid flat upon their Bellies; who now ſtanding up on the ſudden, pour'd in Vollies of Shot upon the Aſſailants. The latter receiv'd the Fire with incredible Undauntedneſs, forc'd the French to quit the Counterſcarp of the Fort, and made themſelves Maſters of it; however, it being impoſſible for them to lodge themſelves there, they retired in pretty good Order. By this brave Action, at the Expence of about 200 Men kill'd or wounded, the Beſiegers gain'd a Lined Redoubt, ſome advanc'd Batteries, and Vauban's Retrenchments from the Sambre to the Maeſe; which, with immenſe Labour, the French had cut through the Rock, and which they boaſted would coſt the Allies 5000 Men before they ſhould take it. This Attack on the Caſtle-ſide, where the King was preſent, being over, his Majeſty went to view the Trenches of the Town-ſide; and finding that a Mine had been ſprung, which had overturn'd a good part of the Water-Stop into the Ditch, whereby the Water was lower by Two Foot; he order'd the Miners to work on, in order to drain the Moat, and all things to be ready to make a Lodgment on the Demi-Baſtion. The Two following Days, the Beſiegers batter'd the Works before St. Nicholas Gate with great Fury, and threw many Bombs, which did conſiderable Execution; and particularly one fir'd by Lieutenant-Colonel Brown, which ſet on fire the Enemies Magazine in the Demi-Baſtion. On the 2d of Auguſt, towards Evening, my Lord Cutts with 2000 Engliſh Grenadiers, and Brigadier Dedem with a like Number of Dutch, both which were to be ſuſtain'd by the Battalions in the Trenches, were order'd to attack the Saillant Angle, and the other the Demi-Baſtion; which they perform'd with great Bravery, and after ſome Reſiſtance lodg'd themſelves on the Second Counterſcarp. The Cannon having by this time widen'd the Breaches, and all things being ready for a General Aſſault, Count Guiſcard, the Governor, demanded to capitulate for the Town: Which being readily granted, the Articles were agreed upon, and ſign'd on the 4th of Auguſt, by the Elector of Bavaria for the Allies, and by Count Guiſcard for the Beſieged. The ſame Day the Iron-Gate was deliver'd to the Beſiegers; and on the 6th, the French evacuated the Town, and retired into the Caſtle.

Freſh Attacks.

The Town capitulates.

1695. 7 W. 3.

Motions of M. Villeroy. He takes Dixmude & Deynſe.

To wait awhile upon the Mareſchal d'Villeroy, after he fail'd in his Deſign upon Prince Vaudemont, and loſt his Opportunity of ſurprizing Newport, he march'd towards Dixmude, and order'd Montal to lay Siege to it. The Town was indeed but weak; yet conſidering the Strength of the Gariſon, it might have held out a Fortnight, or at leaſt have ſurrendred with leſs Ignominy; but Major-General Ellenburgh, the Governor, being a Soldier of Fortune, was ſo far diſpirited, that after a ſlight Reſiſtance of 36 Hours, he yielded himſelf and his whole Gariſon Priſoners of War. Deynſe followed the Example of Dixmude, which Colonel O Farrell ſurrendred to the French at Diſcretion, without firing a Gun. Villeroy order'd the Fortifications of theſe Two Places to be raz'd, and then paſs'd the River Lys at Warker, and march'd up the Lines to the Scheld, which he croſs'd at Eskanaff, in order to continue his March to Ninove; giving out, that he was going to the Relief of Namur. Upon Advice of this Motion, the Prince of Vaudemont decamp'd on Auguſt 4. from Ghent, and paſſing the Canal at Vilvoerd and the Burnt-Bridge, pitch'd his Camp at Dighem, having his own Quarters at the Caſtle of Beaulieu. His Highneſs ſent to the French to demand the Gariſons of Dixmude and Deynſe, according to the Agreement about the Exchange of Priſoners; but the Mareſchal of Villeroy, upon frivolous Pretences, refus'd to ſend them back: And contrary to the Cartel, moſt of the Soldiers were forced to Liſt themſelves in the French Service, or were ſent to Catalonia, and other remote Parts.

Engliſh Fleet.

The Engliſh Fleet this Summer, commanded by the Lord Berkley, was ſpreading Terror and Conſternation all along the Coaſts of France. On July 4. they Bombarded St. Malo, that Neſt of Privateers, which of all others had moſt infeſted the Channel, and moleſted our Merchants, and now felt a Retaliation ſevere enough. Colonel Richards, and Captain Bembo, who had the Direction of the Bomb Ketches, on July 6. came before Granville, a little Town on the Sea-ſhore, which they ſet on fire in ſeveral Places: But we fail'd in our Attempts upon Dunkirk, and were able only to burn ſome few Houſes at Calais. Theſe repeated Inſults could not but be reſented by the King of France, who thereupon ſent Orders to Mareſchal Villeroy to Bombard Bruſſels. Upon the French marching to Engbein with a great Number of Wagons laden with Bombs and Fireworks, Prince Vaudemont immediately gueſs'd their Deſign; which could not be prevented, unleſs the Confederate Army, which might be reinforc'd by the Detachments under the Command of the Earl of Athlone and Connt Naſſaw, ſhould advance and encamp in the Plain of Gigot and St. Anne Pee: But becauſe this could not be done neither, without giving Villeroy an Opportunity to poſt himſelf between the Prince's Army and Namur, whereby he might have been able to raiſe that Important Siege; his Highneſs did prudently leave the Earl of Athlone and Count Naſſau, with the Forces under their Command, between Water-Loo and Genap; and maintain'd a Communication with 'em, by paſſing his Infantry on the Eminences about Bruſſels, between Fort Montera and the Counterſcarp of Ikſel, extending his Horſe and Dragoons along the Canal to hinder the Enemy from paſſing it.

Villeroy Bombards Bruſſels.

After ſeveral Marches and Counter-Marches, Villeroy appear'd before Bruſſels on Auguſt 13. and taking his Quarters at Anderleck, he wrote a Letter to the Prince of Bergin the Governor, to acquaint him, "That the King his Maſter ſeeing the Prince "of Orange had ſent his Fleet upon the Coaſts of "France to Bombard his Sea-port Towns, and en"deavour to ruin them, without getting any other "Advantage by it; had thought that he could not "put a ſtop to ſuch Diſorders, but by uſing Repri"ſals; which was the Reaſon that his Maſter had "ſent him an Order to Bombard Bruſſels; and at "the ſame time to declare, That 'twas with Relu"ctancy his Majeſty had put himſelf upon it; "and that as ſoon as he ſhould be aſſur'd, that the "Sea-Ports of France ſhould be no more Bombard"ed, the King his Maſter would not Bombard any "Places belonging to the Princes againſt whom he "was at War; reſerving nevertheleſs the Liberty on "both Sides, to do it in ſuch Places as ſhould be "beſieged. That his Majeſty had reſolv'd upon "the Bombarding of Bruſſels with ſo much the "more Pain, that the Electoreſs of Bavaria was "there. That if the Governor would let him "know in what Part of the Town ſhe was, the "King his Maſter had commanded him not to fire "there: Concluding, that he ſhould ſtay for his "Anſwer till Five of the Clock in the Evening; af"ter which time he ſhould obey his Orders without "Delay". The Prince of Berghen, after having communicated this Letter to the Elector of Bavaria, who was come in great haſte to Bruſſels upon this Occaſion, ſent an Anſwer to Monſieur Villeroy: "That "the Reaſon the King of France aſſigned for his Or"ders to the Mareſchal to Bombard Bruſſels, did ſole"ly regard the King of Great Britain, who was be"fore the Caſtle of Namur: That his Electoral "Highneſs would acquaint the King with it, to "have an Anſwer in 24 Hours, if Monſieur Ville"roy would agree to it. And that as for the Con"ſideration his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty had for the "Electoreſs, that ſhe was at the Royal Palace". It ſoon after appeared, that Villeroy's Meſſage was but an inſignificant Compliment; for inſtead of allowing the Governor time to get his Britannick Majeſty's Anſwer to the French King's Propoſal, he began that very Evening to fire upon the City with 25 Mortar Pieces, and 18 Pieces of Canon, that ſhot red-hot Bullets. It was not long before the Fire broke out in ſeveral Places, eſpecially about the Town-Houſe. The Enemy continued firing without Intermiſſion all that Night, the Day following, and the next Night after that; during which aroſe a high Wind, which would have ſpread the Conflagration throughout the whole City, if the Inhabitants had not wiſely blown up ſeveral Houſes on the 15th of Auguſt: The ſame Day about Noon the French gave over firing, and ſoon after drew off towards Enghien. The Lower-Town ſuffer'd the moſt by the Enemies Bombs; and ſeveral Houſes near the Market-place were quite laid in Rubbiſh: And as for the Electoreſs of Bavaria, though ſhe was remov'd to the Suburbs, beyond the Reach of the Canon; yet ſhe was ſo frighted with its continual Roaring, that ſhe miſcarried upon it.

Siege of the Caſtle of Namur.

In the mean time, the Siege of the Caſtle of Namur was carried on with ſteddy Reſolution; the Beſiegers broke Ground on Auguſt 12. and carried on their Trenches about 150 Paces before the Coehorne Fort towards the Sambre, and made a good Lodgment. Beſides the Batteries already erected between the Sambre and the Maeſe, ſome others were order'd to be rais'd, both of Cannon and Mortars, as well in the Ramparts as in the Gardens of the City, in order to batter Terra Nova and Fort Coehorne both at once. On the 13th, the Beſiegers began to play from no leſs than Twelve Batteries; and one of their Bombs falling upon the Magazine of the Devil's-Houſe, blew up above 1000 Grenadoes charg'd, ruin'd a great Quantity of Arms, and kill'd and wounded ſeveral Perſons. Boufflers himſelf being unuſed to this unequal way of fighting, began to wiſh himſelf in the open Field, and form'd a Deſign to break through the Confederates Camp with his Cavalry; but the King having notice of it, ordered ſtrong Guards to be placed at all the Paſſages of the Sambre, and the ſame was done along the Maeſe by General Flemming; ſo as Boufflers was forced to ſhare the Fate of his Gariſon. However, on the 18th, towards Midnight, they made a Sally 1695. 7 W. 3. Sally of the Beſieged. with 200 Dragoons mounted, and 500 Grenadiers: Of the latter, 150 made the Attack on the Right Hand, but were repulſed by the Count de Rivera; and the reſt on the Left, where my Lord Cutts had juſt poſted the Advanced Guards to ſecure the Workmen: The Dragoons fell upon Lieutenant-Colonel Sutton, who being poſted in the Plain of Salſine, with about Forty Fuſileers, let them come on till they were very near him, then gave them a round Volley, and retreated to his Body; but the Dragoons preſſing upon him, he commanded his Men to fire upon them: The French being little daunted at it advanced boldly on, and had their Grenadiers charged at the ſame time, they would undoubtedly have cauſed a great Confuſion in the Trenches; but the Spaniſh and Bavarian Horſe, who were near at Hand, fell upon the Enemy with ſo much Vigor, that they drove them to the very Palliſadoes of the Caſtle, killing ſome, and making others Priſoners.

I with

Villeroy pretends to raiſe the Siege. After the Bombardment of Bruſſels, the Mareſchal de Villeroy being conſiderably reinforced with all the Troops that could be ſpared out of the Gariſon, and the Forces from the Sea-Coaſts, marched directly towards Namur with an Army of Ninety Thouſand Men, with which they confidently boaſted to raiſe the Siege of the Caſtle: When they were come as far as Flerus, they gave the Beſieged a Signal of their Approach, by the Diſcharge of Ninety Pieces of Cannon; which was anſwer'd by a great Light ſet upon the higheſt Part of the Caſtle. This obliged the King to leave the Care of the Siege to the Elector of Bavaria, and the Duke of Holſtein Ploen, and on Auguſt the 26th, to repair to the Army ſtrongly encamped at Mazy, within Five Engliſh Miles of Namur. On Auguſt the 29th, the Mareſchal de Villeroy advanced toward the Confederates Camp, but found them ſo well poſted, that he thought fit to retire in the Night without Noiſe. The next Day he moved along the Mehaigne, extending his Right to Perwys, and his Left to the Abby of Boneffe; whereupon his Britannick Majeſty cauſed his Army to move towards Oſtin and Longchamp, to obſerve the Enemy, who durſt not make any nearer Approaches to raiſe the Siege.

General Aſſault appointed. Auguſt the 30th was appointed for a General Aſſault upon the Caſtle, when the Beſiegers began early to batter the Breaches of Coborn Fort, and Terra Nova, and continued till Eleven of the Clock; when his Electoral Highneſs ſent Count de Horn, accompanied by the Earl of Portland, to ſummon the Beſieged. The Batteries having given over firing, Count de Horn called to the Enemy, and told Count de Lanmont, Commander of the French Foot; who anſwer'd him from the next Baſtion, attended by the Marquis of Grammont and St. Hermine, That the Mareſchal de Villery, after having been Three Days in ſight of the Confederate Army, had thought fit to retire towards the Mehaigne without fighting: That the Gariſon could not expect now to be relieved; and that his Electoral Highneſs being willing to ſpare the Lives of ſo many brave Men on both ſides, had charg'd him to offer honourable Terms to Count Guiſcard, if he would ſurrender; but that he gave him but a quarter of an Hour to deliberate upon the Propoſals. Thereupon Count Lanmont took upon him to acquaint Parley. Count Guiſcard, and Mareſchal de Boufflers, with Count de Horn's Meſſage, and promiſed to bring back a ſpeedy Anſwer; but not returning in half an Hour, Count de Horn grew impatient, and told the Marquis de Grammont that he had already outſtay'd his Time, and therefore deſir'd him to ſend ſomebody to the Governornor for an immediate Anſwer: A Second Meſſenger was thereupon diſpatch'd away; but he tarrying alſo above a Quarter of an Hour, and ſeveral Officers of the Gariſon being come to view the Breach of Terra Nova, the Earl of Portland did not think it convenient to wait any longer. Thus the Parley was broke, and the Batteries play'd inceſſantly againſt the Breaches till between One and Two, when the General Aſſault began in the following manner. 1695. 7 W. 3.

As ſoon as the Signal was given, my Lord Cutts, at the Head of Three Hundred Grenadiers, ruſhed out of the Trenches of the Second Line, which were 7 or 800 Paces diſtant from the Breach of Terra Nova, where he was commanded to lodge himſelf; and Colonel Marſigly marched on his Right, to poſſeſs himſelf of the Line of Communication next Coborn Fort; Count de Rivera, Major-General of the Bavarians, with 3000 Men, march'd out of the Trenches of the firſt Line in order to Attack the Breaches of Coborn-Fort; Major-General le Cave advanced to attempt the ſame Fort at the Point; and Major-General Swerin march'd againſt the Caſotte with 2000 Brandenburghers. The Engliſh Grenadiers under my Lord Cutts, born away by their own Native Ardor, and animated by the Example of their brave Leader, and of Colonel Windſor, Colonel Stanhope, Mr. Thompſon, and ſeveral other Engliſh Gentlemen, who expoſed themſelves as Volunteers, ran faſter toward the Enemy than they could be followed by the Batallions of Couthorp, Buchan, Hamilton, and Mackay, who mov'd from Salſine to ſupport them. The Grenadiers mounted the Breach without oppoſition, the Enemy not expecting to be Attack'd on that Side, by reaſon of the great diſtance of the Trenches; but as ſoon as the French ſaw that theſe bold Adventurers were not ſuſtained, they brought down 2000 of their beſt Foot and Dragoons, into the Space between the Coeborn and the Terra Nova, to fall on the Engliſh in Flank and in Rear, which obliged the latter to make a ſpeedy Retreat. The Beſieged made a ſhew of purſuing them, but by this time three of the forementioned Regiments being come up to their Aſſiſtance, the French retired through the Breach of Terra Nova, after having ſurpriz'd and defeated the 500 Men under Colonel Marſigly. The Colonel himſelf being wounded was made Priſoner, and ſoon after kill'd by a Cannon-Ball from the Beſiegers Batteries, with the French Officer that carried him into the Caſtle. The Engliſh having born ſix ſeveral Diſcharges, had ſeveral kill'd and wounded; and among the latter was my Lord Cutts himſelf, who received a Shot in his Head, which diſabled him for ſome time. General Aſſault made.

Whilſt this paſſed on the ſide of Terra Nova, Count de Rivera, with the Bavarians, inſtead of marching to the left of the Platform, went a little too much to the Right towards the Cover'd Way, which was well Palliſado'd, and thick ſet with Muſqueteers, who made a terrible Fire. Through this Miſtake, inſtead of ſtorming the two ſmall Breaches of the Angle of the Platform, according to the Scheme made for this Attack, the Bavarians attempted to force the Cover'd Way before the great Breach, whereby they remain'd expoſed for two Hours to the Enemies double Fire, which killed them abundance of Men, and amongſt them Count Rivera himſelf, with moſt of the Officers of the Bavarian Guards.

The Lord Cutts was ſcarce dreſs'd of his Wounds, when growing impatient to be idle, while others were ſtill engaged, he put himſelf again at the head of his brave Countrymen; but finding the Aſſault of the Terra Nova not poſſible to be retrieved, and obſerving that the Bavarians notwithſtanding the loſs of their Leader, had fix'd themſelves upon the uttermoſt Retrenchment of the Point of Coborn, next to the Sambre, and maintain'd that Poſt with a great deal of Obſtinacy, but could not gain any more Ground; he thereupon reſolved to make good their Attack. To effect this, he order'd that a Detachment of 200 Men ſhould be made out of ſuch as were moſt forward to ſignalize themſelves, whom he ſtill encouraged by Pro- Hard Service.

 miſes

1695. 7 W. 3.

miſes of diſtinguiſhing Rewards: That thoſe ſhould be ſuſtain'd by the Regiment of Mackay; and that the other Engliſh Forces ſhould rally, and follow as ſoon as poſſible. Being come to the Place of Action, his Lordſhip detach'd a Party of the forementioned choſen Men, headed by Lieutenant Cockle of Mackay's Regiment, whom he ordered to attack the Face of the Saillant Angle next to the Breach, Sword in Hand, without Firing a Gun; to paſs the Palliſadoes, and enter the Cover'd-Way; and there to make a Lodgment, if they found any Place capable of it. And at the ſame time, his Lordſhip commanded the Enſigns of Mackay's Regiment to march ſtrait to the Pllalliſadoes, and place their Colours upon them. All this was ſo well executed, that Lieutenant Cockle breaking through the Palliſadoes beat the Enemy from the Cover'd-Way, lodg'd himſelf in one of their Batteries, and then turn'd their own Cannon againſt themſelves. On the other hand, whilſt Mackay's Enſigns advanc'd to the Palliſadoes, the Bavarians renew'd their Attack with undaunted Vigor, and ſo this Poſt was made good. The Troops were already ſo fatigu'd by an Aſſault that had laſted ſeveral Hours, that the Beſiegers contented themſelves to have gain'd the Cover'd-Way before the Breach of Coehorn, and the Saillant-Angle towards the Sambre, and to make a Lodgment there without any further Attempt upon the Breach. However, this ſeaſonable Reinforcement which the Lord Cutts brought to the Bavarians, had this further good Effect, that it kept the Enemy employ'd in the Defence of this moſt important Poſt, which very much facilitated Major-General La Cave's Enterprize upon the Cover'd-Way before the Ravelin, and upper Point of the Coborne, and ſo up towards the Caſotte, where he lodg'd himſelf without any conſiderable Loſs. On the other Hand, Major-General Swerin, who commanded the Right Attack of all before the Caſotte, made up boldly towards the Cover'd-Way and Retrenchment between the Caſotte and the Maeſe; overcame the Enemies Reſiſtance, drove them from their Poſts, ſecur'd all the Avenues, and made a very good Lodgment all along this Cover'd-Way and Retrenchment, of about 300 Paces, which he extended to the Left, turning in towards the Coehorne about 140 Paces more, to join it to that of Major-General La Cave, that reach'd to the Ravelin of the Coehorne. Thus, altho' for want of a due Correſpondence among the ſeveral Attacks, either by the Failure or Miſtake of the Signals, the Beſiegers miſcarried in the great Deſign of this general Storm, which was to have taken the Caſtle with all its prodigious Outworks all at once; yet they were now Maſters of one of the greateſt Lodgments that ever was made in one Aſſault, being near an Engliſh Mile in extent. Such a vaſt Lodgment could not be done in a Moment; neither could the Aſſault, which laſted till Evening, be maintain'd without conſiderable Loſs on both Sides.

Great Loſs.

The Beſiegers, by their own Confeſſion had two Thouſand Men Kill'd or Wounded, and among them many Perſons of Note. Count de Rivera, Major-General; the Colonels Couthorp, Marſigly, Lindroot; the Baron de Herkeren; Lieutenant-Colonel Fabricius of Du Theil's Regiment; and Captain Mitchel of the Engliſh Guards were counted among the Slain: And among the Wounded were reckoned the Prince of Holſtein Norburgh and the Lord Cutts Brigadier-Generals; the Prince of Heſſe Homburgh, Eppingen, Zinzenburgh, Caunits, Horne, Count Dona, Luzelburgh, Mehn, Count de Denhoff and Hamilton; all Ten Colonels. Several Officers of his Majeſty's Engliſh Guards; particularly Colonel Windſor, Colonel Stanhope, Colonel Evans, and Mr. Thompſon; beſides a great many Lieutenant-Colonels, Majors, Captains, and Subaltern Officers of other Regiments. The Loſs of the Beſieged in this Action did not exceed 600 Men, either Kill'd or Wounded. The Elector of Bavaria expos'd himſelf to a Degree not to be imagin'd, riding from Place to Place, and giving his Orders where the Diſpute was moſt obſtinate, inſomuch that ſeveral Perſons were Killed and Wounded about him. Neither was his Electoral Highneſs contented to encourage the Officers and Soldiers by his own Example; but animated the Firſt by extolling their Valour; and the Latter by the more powerful Incentives of immediate Rewards, diſtributing Handfuls of Gold amongſt them. All the Troops of the ſeveral Nations behaved themſelves with equal Intrepidity: However, it may be ſaid, that the Engliſh were the moſt bold and puſhing, the Bavarians the moſt firm, and the Brandenburghers the moſt ſucceſsful. In Acknowledgment of which Service, his Majeſty writ with his own Hand the following Letter to the Elector of Brandenburgh, now King of Pruſſia.

K. William's Letter to the Elector of Brandenburgh.

" You Intereſt your ſelf ſo far in the Publick " Good, that you muſt needs receive a particular " Satisfaction in hearing of the Surrender of the " Caſtle of Namur, eſpecially conſidering what ſhare " you had in that Enterprize, which could not poſ- " ſibly have ſucceeded without the Aſſiſtance of " your Troops, whom I cannot enough commend; " nor can be leſs pleas'd with the admirable Con- " duct of your Generals. They have gain'd to " themſelves the greateſt Glory and Reputation by " this Action: And I aſſure you, 'tis impoſſible for " any one to be more ſenſible of an Obligation, " than I am of that you have laid on Me, by Aſſiſt- " ing Me in an Undertaking of ſuch Conſequence, " which God has vouchſafed to bleſs; and which, " I hope will be a conſiderable Advantage to all the " Allies. And you may aſſure your ſelf, I ſhall " omit no Occaſion of giving you effectual Proofs " of my Gratitude.

The 31ſt of Auguſt, (N. S.) was wholly ſpent by the Beſiegers in perfecting the Lodgments they had made the Day before, and in preparing all Things for a ſecond general Aſſault: But the next Day, the Beſieged having demanded a Ceſſation of Arms to bury their Dead, which was readily granted; the Count de Guiſcard came upon the Breach a little before the Truce was over, and deſired to ſpeak with the Elector of Bavaria.

The Beſieged demand a Ceſſation of Arms.

His Electoral Highneſs having mounted the Breach, the Count offer'd to Surrender the Coehorne Fort: But the Elector anſwering, that if he would Capitulate it muſt be for the whole; Count Guiſcard replied, That the Mareſchal de Boufflers commanded in the Caſtle, and that he would let him know; and deſired, that in the mean while the Ceſſation of Arms might be continued: To which his Electoral Highneſs having agreed, Mareſchal de Boufflers conſented to Treat for the whole.

Treaty of Surrender.

Thereupon an Adjutant was immediately diſpatch'd to give the King an Account of it at Oſtend; Which Expreſs met his Majeſty, with the Prince of Vaudemont, then coming to the Siege in his Coach, to give Directions concerning a further Attack. Upon his Majeſty's Arrival, Hoſtages were exchang'd, and Propoſitions brought from the Caſtle; the chief of which was, That they might have Ten Days to expect Succours. This being abſolutely denied, the French, after ſome Debates amongſt themſelves, were contented to receive ſuch Terms, as the Elector, with his Majeſty's Conſent, would grant them; being ſuch as are uſual upon the Surrender of a ſtrong Fortreſs, whoſe Gariſon has made a gallant Defence. The Capitulation was agreed on that very Night, and ſign'd the next Morning; and part of the Outworks were given up preſently after to the Allies; the Beſieged having three Days more allow'd them to evacuate the Caſtle. 'Tis remarkable, that the Count de Guiſcard oblig'd the Mareſchal de Boufflers to ſign the Articles, becauſe he had commanded in the Caſtle during the Siege; whereas the Count had only commanded in the Coehorn, and the Outworks: And that perhaps this was the firſt Capitulation that was ever ſign'd by a Mareſchal of France; which was ſo much the more to the Honour of the Confederate Arms, that they took this almoſt impregnable Place in Sight of another Mareſchal of France, who was advanc'd to relieve it with 100000 Men, but was only a Spectator of the Bravery in the former, and of a conſummate Prudence in the King of Great Britain, under whoſe Conduct and Direction all was happily atchieved; it being univerſally acknowledged, that no Siege was ever carried on with more Regularity.

Capitulation Signed.

2 manded

1695. 7 W. 3.

Motion of the Two Armies.

The Firſt of September the Two Armies obſerved one another; but the next Day the Mareſchal de Villeroy being informed of the Surrender of the Caſtle of Namur, by a Triple Diſcharge of all the Artillery, and Three Salvo's in a running Fire along the Lines of the Confederate Army, he retired from his Camp at Gemblours, and paſſed the Sambre near Charleroy with great Precipitation. Upon Advice of this Motion, the King order'd ſeveral Brigades towards Salſines, and a Bridge to be laid over the Sambre, to oppoſe the Enemy, in caſe they ſhould make any Attempt between the Sambre and the Maeſe, whilſt the French Gariſon was ſtill in Poſſeſſion of the Terra Nova. But it ſeems Monſieur de Villeroy had quite laid aſide all Thoughts of Fighting; for having ſent Two Thouſand Men to reinforce the Gariſon of Dinant, he marched with the reſt of his Army towards the Lines near Mons.

The French retire.

Surrender of the Caſtle of Namur.

On the 5th of September, the Day prefixed for the French to evacuate the Caſtle, the Horſe and Foot that were encamp'd between the Sambre and the Maeſe, were commanded to make a Lane on both Sides, from the Breach of Terra Nova, thro' which the Gariſon was to march out up the Hill, and ſo down again to the Maeſe, to the way that leads to Givet; whither (it was agreed) they ſhould be ſafely conducted. About Ten of the Clock in the Morning, the Gariſon (which from 14000, was reduced to 5538 Men) began their March. The Mareſchal de Bouſſlers's Guard de Corps went out firſt; then his Domeſticks, and next himſelf, with Monſieur de Guiſcard the Governor, at the Head of the King's and Alfeld's Dragoons, as many as were mounted, that is, between Eighty and Ninety in all. The King was incognito in a Coach, and the Elector of Bavaria, the Landgrave of Heſſe, and the Chief Officers of the Army on Horſeback, to ſee them paſs, within Two Hundred Paces of the Breach, and were ſaluted by the French Mareſchal and Count with their Swords. This Civility was hardly over, when Monſieur Dyckvelt accoſted Bouſſlers with a Meſſage, which ſomewhat diſcompos'd his Countenance; and as they were riding up to the Top of the Hill, Monſieur de l'Etang, Brigadier-General of the Brigade of the Life-Guards, made up boldly to the Mareſchal, with about Twelve of the Gentlemen of the Life-Guard, and arreſted him in his Britannick Majeſty's Name, by way of Repriſal for the Gariſons of Dixmuyde and Deynſe, which were detain'd and ill treated by the French, contrary to the Cartel. The Mareſchal ſeem'd at firſt very much incens'd; alledging, in a broken Speech, "That the Laws and Cuſtoms of "War were violated, and particularly the Capitu-"lation lately ſign'd by the Duke of Bavaria, where-"in he was expreſly mention'd. That the King "of France his Maſter would reſent this Treat-"ment of a Man of his Character, and revenge it "to the utmoſt of his Power: And that for his "Part, he had defended the Place like a Man of "Honour, and did not deſerve it." To this Monſieur Dyckvelt reply'd, "That the French King his "Maſter, by detaining the Gariſons of Dixmuyde "and Deynſe, contrary to their Capitulation, (by "which they were made Priſoners of War, and "conſequently ſhould have been diſcharged within "the limited Time, paying their Ranſom, which "was offer'd) had forced his Britannick Majeſty "to that way of demanding Satisfaction for that "Infraction. That the Mareſchal's being arreſted, "was not out of any Diſreſpect to his Perſon, but "rather the contrary: For when it was propoſed to "the King of Great Britain to detain the whole "Gariſon by way of Repriſal, his Majeſty had "expreſs'd ſo much Value of his Perſon, that he "look'd upon him as a ſufficient Caution to anſwer "for 6000 Men, the Number of the Two Gariſons of Dixmuyde and Deynſe: But that at the "ſame Time he had his Majeſty's Order, to offer "him his Liberty, if he would paſs his Word for "ſending back the ſaid Gariſons, or return himſelf "a Priſoner within a Fortnight." To which Bouſſlers anſwer'd, That he could not paſs his Word of Honour in a Matter which he could not execute himſelf: That if he were at the Head of 50000 Men, he would not ſuffer himſelf to be arreſted; but now he muſt ſubmit. Thereupon he put up his Sword, and went back with his Domeſticks to Namur; where the Earl of Portland gave him a Viſit, and told him as from himſelf, "That he made no "doubt of his Releaſement upon his Parole of "Honour:" But the Mareſchal anſwer'd, "That "in regard he knew not the Reaſons why his Ma-"ſter detain'd thoſe Gariſons, he could not engage "for any Thing." From Namur he was conducted to Maeſtricht; and treated in both Places with all the Civility and Reſpect due to his Quality. His Confinement was not long; for upon the Return of the Captain of his Guard, whom he ſent to give the King of France an Account of what had happen'd; and the Mareſchal engaging his Word that the Gariſons of Dixmuyde and Deynſe ſhould be ſent back, as ſoon as he himſelf ſhould be ſet at Liberty; his Britannick Majeſty order'd the Governor of Maeſtricht to releaſe him, and give him a Guard to conduct him ſafe to Dinant.

Mareſchal Bouſſlers arreſted.

The Mareſchal releaſed.

Joy in England.

The News of the Surrender of the Caſtle of Namur no ſooner reach'd England, but it filled the Hearts of all the well-affected to the preſent Government with an unſpeakable Joy: And K. William's expreſſing his juſt Reſentment for the Affront lately put upon his Majeſty, by the detaining the Gariſons of Dixmuyde and Deynſe, was highly applauded by a Nation, which, of all others, is impatient of Injuries, and jealous of the Honour of their Sovereign. The Lords Juſtices having appointed a (a) Day of Publick Thankſgiving for the Glorious Succeſs of his Majeſty's Arms, the ſame was religiouſly obſerved at London, and throughout all England. On this Occaſion, on September the 9th, the Earl of Romney, Maſter-General of the Ordnance, order'd a Firework to be prepared in St. James's Square; which being fired to the General Satisfaction, his Lordſhip gave a great Entertainment to ſeveral Perſons of Quality; the Night ending with Bonfires, Illuminations, and Ringing of Bells. Amidſt theſe Publick Rejoicings, the diſaffected remain'd (as it were) Thunder-ſtruck: And indeed, their Diſappointment ſeemed to allow their Concern; for not only their Hopes of ſeeing the Confederates Attempt upon Namur baffled, were fruſtrated, but a great many of them were totally ruin'd, by the Loſs of conſiderable Wagers they had laid upon it.

(a) See a Form of Prayer and Thankſgiving, on Sunday Sept. 8. and Sunday Sept. 22. for the great Succeſs of his Majeſty and his Allies, in taking the Town and Caſtle of Namur, and protecting his Majeſty's Sacred Perſon. 4*to*.

In

1695. 7 W. 3. In the mean Time, the King having left the Command of the Army to the Elector of Bavaria, his Majeſty went to Dieren, and from thence to Loo, his uſual Receſs for Diverſion from Buſineſs: whilſt both Armies continued in the Field till the Twenty fifth of September, and then began to ſeparate. The French King's Houſhold return'd into their Quarters, and moſt of the reſt of his Troops retir'd within the Lines. As for the Allies, their Forces were diſtributed into ſeveral Neighbouring Gariſons, except ſome Detachments which marched towards Newport, under the Command of the Prince of Wirtembergh, for the Security of that Place. And thus the Campaign in Flanders ended on both ſides, much about the Cloſe of the Month of September. (a)

The King leaves the Campaign.

Affairs in Ireland.

To caſt an Eye upon Ireland, we muſt obſerve, That on Auguſt the 27th, the Parliament was open'd in Dublin Caſtle; and the Lord Capel, Lord Deputy, being attended with all the uſual Ceremonies, made this Speech to both Houſes:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"MAny and great are the Obligations you owe "to his Majeſty; I ſhall mention but a "few of them. His Majeſty has appear'd him"ſelf in your Cauſe; He has fought your Battels, "and at his own Perſonal Hazard, has reſtored you "to your Religion and Eſtates. And that every "Thing may concur to make you happy, his Ma"jeſty has now called you together in Parliament, "that by Reaſonable and Neceſſary Laws, you may "prevent the like Dangers for the Time to come, "and ſecure your ſelves and your Poſterity upon the "beſt and ſureſt Foundations.

"I ſhall not, I am ſure I ought not to doubt, "but you will make Returns of Loyalty and Af"fection ſuitable to the extraordinary Benefits you "have received; which cannot be better expreſſed, "than by a dutiful and grateful Comportment to"wards his Majeſty, and by ſhewing a perfect and "forward Zeal in ſuch Things as tend to his Ho"nour, and your own Advantage.

"I muſt acquaint you, That his Majeſty's Re"venue has fallen ſhort of the Eſtabliſhment, which "has occaſion'd great Debts to the Civil and Mili"tary Liſts: That it is with Difficulty, and ſtop"ping of all manner of Payments, but what are "abſolutely neceſſary, that the Army hath hither"to been ſubſiſted. There are alſo ſeveral other "Debts due from the Crown; a State whereof I "have order'd to be laid before you, Gentlemen of "the Houſe of Commons; by which you will ſee "that Supplies are neceſſary for Diſcharge of thoſe "Debts, and for the Support of the Govern"ment.

"For raiſing ſome Part of this Money, his Ma"jeſty has ſent you a Bill for an Additional Duty "of Exciſe; and he expects from you, Gentlemen "of the Houſe of Commons, that you will conſi"der of Ways and Means for raiſing ſuch other "Sums as are requiſite for his Service, and pre"pare Heads of Bills to be paſſed into Laws in due "Form. And you will be the more chearful in "giving, when I aſſure you, that what Money you "give ſhall be applied to the Uſes for which it "is given.

1695. 7 W. 3.

'One Thing I muſt recommend to you; That "you will take ſome Care for the Rebuilding and "Repairing of Churches in the ſeveral Parts of "your Country; that the People having Decent "Publick Places of Worſhip, may be better in"ſtructed in their Duty to their God, and Obedi"ence to their King. It is a Tribute due to Al"mighty God for our late Preſervation and Deli"verance; and will, I am verily perſuaded, be one "of the beſt Means you can think of, to preſerve "the true Eſtabliſh'd Religion, and to provide a"gainſt future Rebellions.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I muſt inform you, That the Lords Juſtices of "England have, with great Application and Diſ"patch, conſider'd and retranſmitted all the Bills "ſent to them. That ſome of theſe Bills have more "effectually provided for your future Security, than "hath ever heretofore been done: And in my Opi"nion, the want of ſuch Laws has been one of the "great Cauſes of your paſt Miſeries: And it will "be your Fault, as well as Misfortune, if you "neglect to lay hold of the Opportunity now put "into your Hands by our Great and Gracious King, "of making ſuch a laſting Settlement, that it may "never more be in the Power of your Enemies to "bring the like Calamities again upon you, or to put "England again to that vaſt Expence of Blood and "Treaſure, it hath ſo often been at for ſecuring this "Kingdom to the Crown of England.

"His Majeſty has been pleaſed to appoint me "his Deputy in this Government: I am truly ſen"ſible of my Unfitneſs for this great Station, and "the Difficulties which attend it; yet I aſſure you "I have, and will diſcharge the Truſt repoſed in "me, with a ſtedfaſt Loyalty and Truth to his Ma"jeſty's Intereſt and Service, and with a perfect "Sincerity to yours; and that I have no other End "or Ambition, than to ſee you ſettled under his "Majeſty's moſt Happy Government in Peace and "Proſperity.'

The Lords and Commons return'd their Thanks, in Addreſſes to his Excellency for his Speech; and paſs'd this Vote, That they would to the utmoſt of their Power, ſtand by and aſſiſt his Majeſty and his Government, againſt all his Enemies, Foreign and Domeſtick. After this, both Houſes proceeded with great Unanimity and Diſpatch to the Conſideration of the Matters before them; ſo that on the 6th of September, the Lord Deputy gave the Royal Aſſent to, An Act for an Additional Duty of Exciſe upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors. Another, For taking away the Writ de Heretico Comburendo. A Third, declaring all Attainders, and all other Acts made in the late pretended Parliament, to be void. A Fourth, to reſtrain Foreign Education; which was principally deſign'd to hinder the Growth of Popery. A Fifth, for the better Securing the Government, by diſarming Papiſts: And a Sixth, for the better ſettling of Inteſtates Eſtates. Three Days after, the Houſe of Commons, by unanimous Conſent, granted to his Majeſty a Supply of 163325 l. to be

(a) The Jacobites in England kept a ſecret Correſpondence with the Court of St. Germains, and received back Advices and Directions, chiefly from the Earl of Middleton; who having the greateſt Intereſt of any of King James's Followers in the Friends they left here, King James carry'd it moſt kindly to him, and ſeem'd to have ſome Confidence in him. However, he was never Prime Miniſter, as Melfort was; nor had any Concern in the Management of Affairs between Verſailles and St. Germains; that being done by Innes and Porter. He was ſeldom call'd to Council; and the French Court never depended on his Correſpondence. He always declared againſt Reſtoring King James by a French Power; wiſely and honeſtly conſidering, That it would be to reduce Britain to the State of being a Province to France: For which he ſo incurr'd the Diſpleaſure of that Court, that he was at laſt abridg'd of his Penſion; and to gain a ſorry Subſiſtence, oblig'd to abandon that Religion, which had till then been the Occaſion of his Misfortunes. The worſt of it all was, his Converſion was never thought ſincere; and he could not get above Five Hundred Crowns yearly for his Maintenance. A poor Bargain he made; and his unhappy Life and Death ſhew, what thoſe may expect, who place their Hopes in the Eſtabliſhment of Popery and Tyranny. Secret Hiſt. of Europe, P. II. p. 257.

1695. 7 W. 3. be raiſ'd, partly by a Poll-Tax: And on the 18th of the ſame Month, having conſider'd the State of the Nation, they reſolved, That the great Intereſt and Countenance the Iriſh had in the Court of England during the Two laſt Reigns, had been the chief Cauſe of all the Miſeries and Calamities that had ſince befallen this Kingdom. On the 12th of October, the Commons proceeded upon the farther Conſideration of Ways and Means to raiſe the Supply; and having agreed upon a Computation of what the Exciſe and Poll-Tax might amount to, they paſs'd a Vote, That the Exciſe ſhould be continued Two Years longer, after Expiration of the preſent Act: And afterward reſolved to lay a Duty upon Tobacco, Old and New Drapery, Muſlins, Callicoes, and all Sorts of Linnen, and on Wine, to compleat the Supply granted. Which done, both Houſes adjourn'd themſelves for ſome Time.

State of Scotland.

As to the State of Scotland, a Parliament met there according to Summons, on May 9. when the Marquis of Tweedale, his Majeſty's Commiſſioner, went thither, attended in the uſual manner; and his Majeſty's Letter to the Lords Temporal, and Shires, and Burghs, was to this Effect.

King's Letter.

"That the Continuation of the War ſtill hindred "him from purſuing his Reſolution of being a"mongſt them in Perſon, and ſo obliged him to "call them together once more in his Abſence. "That therefore he had appointed the Marquis of "Tweedale to be his Commiſſioner, and to repre"ſent his Perſon and Authority among them. That "the Marquis had given Proofs of his Capacity "and Experience in Buſineſs, as well as of his Fi"delity and Zeal, by his many and long Services "to the Crown and Nation, particularly ſince his "being Lord Chancellor; which would render him "very acceptable to them. That his Majeſty had "fully entruſted him with his Mind, and given "him Powers to paſs all ſuch Laws for the Good of "that his Majeſty's ancient Kingdom, as had been pro"poſed to his Majeſty at this Time. That the Mar"quis was to ask nothing of them in his Majeſty's "Name, but that which the Intereſt of the Coun"try made neceſſary to be done. That therefore "his Majeſty need not mention to them, that the "Subſidies for paying the Forces were now expired, "and that their Peace and Safety required the re"newing of them during the War. That his Ma"jeſty was glad of any Appearances of a Diſpoſi"tion to Moderation and Union about Church"Matters; and he hop'd they would encourage it, "and promote it, by removing the Subjects of "Differences as much as they could. That he "was not unmindful of the Letter to him in the "Cloſe of the laſt Seſſion. That the known Inter"ruptions he had had in Buſineſs this Winter, had "been a great Hindrance to him; but he was re"ſolved to do whatſoever might be for the Security "of the Government, and the Satisfaction of his "good Subjects. In the Concluſion, his Majeſty "recommended to them Calmneſs and Unanimity in "their Proceedings; not doubting but they would "act ſuitably to the Confidence he had put in them, "in calling them again in his Abſence.

This Letter was back'd by the High Commiſſioner's Speech, who told that Great Aſſembly, "That "his Majeſty's tender Care and Concern for their "Safety and Welfare did evidently appear, in every "thing that might contribute thereto; particularly "as to the Church, that all Differences might be "compos'd; it being his Majeſty's Purpoſe to main"tain Preſbyterian Government in the Church of "Scotland; and that the Peace and Security of the "Kingdom againſt Foreign Invaſion, and Inteſtine "Commotion, be provided for. That if they "found it would tend to the Advancement of "Trade, that an Act be paſſed for the Encourage"ment of ſuch as ſhould acquire and eſtabliſh a "Plantation in Africa or America, or any other "Part of the World, where Plantations might be 1695. 7 W. 3. "lawfully acquired, his Majeſty was willing to "declare, that he would grant to the Subjects of "this Kingdom, in favour of theſe Plantations, "ſuch Rights and Privileges as he granted in like "Caſes to the Subjects of his other Dominions; and "that the Judicatories, Higher and Subaltern, be ſo "regulated in their Proceedings, as that Juſtice "might be adminiſtred with the greateſt Diſpatch, "and leaſt Charge to the People. That theſe "things had taken up ſome part of his Majeſty's "Time and Thoughts theſe Months paſt, and had "been frequently diſcours'd by him; and then put "in the Method of Inſtructions and Directions for "his Grace's Behaviour. That therefore it only re"main'd for them to take theſe weighty Affairs into "Conſideration, and to conſult of the beſt Ways "and Means to enable his Majeſty to perfect ſo "good Deſigns, by granting him Supplies for main"taining the preſent Land-Forces, and for pro"viding and entertaining a competent Naval Force, "for the Defence of the Coaſt, and ſecuring of "Trade. In order to which, his Majeſty had "granted a Commiſſion of Admiralty for managing "the Affairs thereof; not omitting to take Care for "the other unavoidable Contingencies of the Go"vernment, wherein the Civil Liſt came ſhort; "concluding, that the Diſpatch of theſe great Af"fairs with Chearfulneſs and Alacrity, would per"fect a good Underſtanding, and perpetuate a Con"fidence between the King and them." The Earl of Annandale, Lord Preſident of the Parliament, made likewiſe a Speech to them on this Occaſion. He acknowledged his Majeſty's gracious Letter, wherein he asked nothing for himſelf, but only prevented their neceſſary Cares for the Peace, Welfare, and Advantage of this Kingdom. He took Notice of the freſh Aſſurances they had of his Majeſty's firm Reſolutions to maintain the "Preſbyterian "Government of this Church; and ſaid, He hop'd "the Moderation and Calmneſs that ſhould at this "Time appear in all their Proceedings in Church"Matters, would ſatisfy the World, That this is "the Government moſt agreeable to the Temper and "Inclination of this People, and moſt ſuitable for "the Intereſt and Support of their King, the Civil "Government, and Peace of this Kingdom." And in the Concluſion, he enforced all that had been ſaid, "by one thing, which did juſtly challenge a more "than ordinary Zeal and Vigor in their Duty at "this Time, which was the ſad and irreparable Loſs "they had ſuſtained of the beſt of Queens; wiſh"ing they might all of them make this uſe of it, "that as now the whole Sovereignty was lodg'd in "his Majeſty, it might appear by their Actings, "that they had doubled their Forwardneſs and "Endeavours to ſerve him; which was the only "way now left them to ſhew their juſt Senſe of "their inexpreſſible Loſs, and to make it, in ſome "meaſure, more ſupportable by his Majeſty.

Theſe Speeches had the deſir'd Effect. The Parliament order'd an Anſwer to his Majeſty's Letter, and an Addreſs of Condolance for the Death of the Queen, to be drawn up and ſent to his Majeſty; and appointed a Committee for the Security of the Kingdom, and another for Trade. The firſt of theſe Committees having made their Report concerning the Supplies to be given to the King, it was unanimouſly reſolv'd, that the Sum of 1440000 Pounds Scots, be granted for Maintenance of the Land-Forces, and for providing and maintaining Cruiſers and Convoys for Defence of the Coaſts and Trade. Towards the raiſing of which Sum, they made an Act for a General Poll, another for a Supply of Six Months Ceſs out of the Lands Rents, and a Third for an Additional Exciſe; and a Fourth for three Months Ceſs more. The other Committee, after ſeveral Sittings, prepared an Act for ſettling a Trade in the Weſtern Plantations; which was approved and paſſed.

1695. 7 W. 3. paſſed. Several other good Laws were made by this Parliament: As an Act againſt Popiſh Parents making Deeds, or Diſpoſitions, in prejudice of their Heirs who turn Proteſtants. An Act in favour of the Linnen Manufactory. An Act for obviating the Frauds of Apparent Heirs. An Act for a Manufactory of Paper. An Act for ſettling the Poſt-Stages within the Kingdom of Scotland. An Act for Sale of Bankrupts Eſtates, for the Uſe of their Creditors. An Act for the Regulation of the Mint. An Act againſt Intruders into Churches, without a Legal Call and Admiſſion. An Act againſt Blaſphemy: Another againſt Prophaneneſs: Another againſt irregular Baptiſms and Marriages: And another concerning the Church. An Act to raiſe 1000 Men Yearly, to recruit the Scotch Regiments now Abroad. An Act for Burying in Scotch Linnen. And Laſtly, An Act for Erecting a Publick Bank in this Kingdom.

But this Seſſion of the Scotch Parliament is chiefly remarkable in this Piece of Hiſtory, for their ſtrict Enquiry into a Paſſage that made a great Noiſe in the World. In January 1692. the King ſent Inſtructions to the Commanders of his Forces in Scotland, touching the Highland Rebels, who did not in due Time accept of the Benefits of his Majeſty's Indemnity; and which contain'd a Warrant of Mercy to all, without Exception, who ſhould offer to take the Oath of Allegiance, and come in upon Mercy, tho' the Firſt Day of January, 1693. prefix'd by the Proclamation of Indemnity, was paſt. Contrary to his Majeſty's Intention, 38 of the Inhabitants of Glencoe, a Town in the North of Scotland, after they had laid down their Arms, were inhumanly butcher'd in their Beds, their Houſes plunder'd, and their Cattle carried away in February 169½. Which Piece of Barbarity having given the King's Enemies a ſeemingly juſt Occaſion of reflecting on his Government, the Committee for Security of the Kingdom, made a Motion for enquiring into that Matter. Thereupon his Majeſty's Commiſſioner acquainted the Parliament, that the King had given Commiſſion to ſeveral Perſons to make Enquiry into that Affair; which Commiſſion being produced, read, and agreed to, it was unanimouſly voted, that the High Commiſſioner ſhould be deſired to tranſmit their humble Thanks to his Majeſty, for his Care to vindicate the Honour of the Government, and the Juſtice of the Nation, by granting ſuch a Commiſſion.

Caſe of Glencoe.

The Commiſſioners appointed by the King to enquire into the Slaughter of the Glencoe Men, having ſpent ſome Weeks in that Affair, on June 10. preſented to the Parliament the private Articles agreed in July 1691. between the Earl of Brodalbine and Major-General Buchan, with ſeveral of the Highland Clans; as alſo the Depoſitions of the Laird of Glengarie and Colonel Hill, containing Informations of High Treaſon againſt the ſaid Earl of Brodalbine; which being read, after ſome Debate, an Order was made for his Proſecution before the Parliament, and for his Commitment to the Caſtle of Edinburgh. A Fortnight after, the Report of the Commiſſioners was communicated to the Houſe, and the ſame being read, with the Depoſitions of Witneſſes, the King's Inſtructions, and ſeveral Letters from the Maſter of Staires, Secretary of State, it was voted by unanimous Conſent, That his Majeſty's Inſtructions to Sir Tho. Levingſtone, and Colonel Hill, contained no Warrant for the Execution of the Glencoe Men; that the ſaid Execution was a Murder; that the Maſter of Staires Letters did exceed the King's Inſtructions; and that Sir Thomas Levingſton had reaſon to give the Orders he had given. On the 2d of July the Parliament went upon the ſame Affair, and Colonel Hill and Lieutenant Hamilton were call'd: The firſt appear'd, was examin'd and clear'd; but the latter not appearing, was order'd to be apprehended, and afterwards on July the 8th, voted Guilty of the Murder of the Glencoe Men. Then the Houſe proceeded againſt the other Perſons that were Actors therein; and agreed upon an Addreſs to his Majeſty, that he would ſend them home to be proſecuted, or not, as his Majeſty ſhould think fit; and that he would take into his Princely Conſideration the Caſe of the Glencoe Men. This Addreſs was on July the 10th recommended to the King's Commiſſioner, to be tranſmitted to his Majeſty, with Duplicates of his Majeſty's Inſtructions, and the Maſter of Staire's Letters. At the ſame time his Majeſty's Commiſſioners received the unanimous Thanks of the Parliament, for laying the Diſcovery of the Matter of Glencoe before them, and for their careful Procedure in their Commiſſion; and a new Protection was granted to the Glencoe Men.

Vindication of the King's Honour.

On the 1ſt of July, the Earl of Brodalbine being brought to the Bar of the Parliament, in order to his Trial, delivered in a Petition, Praying he might be allowed ſome competent Time for bringing of Witneſſes from remote Places, and for Recovery of ſuch Documents, as he was to make uſe of for his Vindication, both from the Secretaries Office at London, and his Houſe in the Country. The Advocates on both Sides having been heard upon this Petition, it was put to the Vote, whether the Day for his Lordſhip to give in his Defence, ſhould be the 8th, or 15th of the current Month; and it was carried the 15th, and that in the mean time, he might raiſe Letters of Exculpation. Then the Indictment againſt him was read, and he remanded to Priſon. The ſame Day the Proceſs of Treaſon, at the Inſtance of the King's Advocate, againſt the Earl of Melfort, and others in France, being call'd, the King's Advocate produced his Warrant from the Privy-Council, for raiſing this Proceſs againſt them, and deſired that it might be Recorded, Afterwards the Indictment was read, and the King's Advocate declared, he inſiſted at that time only againſt the Earls of Middleton and Melfort, and Sir Adam Blair, and on that Part of the Indictment which recited, that by the Act of Parliament 1693. it was declared Treaſon to be in France after the 1ſt of Auguſt 1693. and therefore craved the Indictment might be found to be good in Law; which being put to the Vote, it was carried in the Affirmative. The next Day the Houſe paſſed Sentence againſt the Earls of Middleton and Melfort, and Sir Adam Blair, to forfeit Life and Fortune; and order'd the reſt who adhered to his Majeſty's Enemies, and were then in France, to be proſecuted before the Lords of the Juſticiary. On the 15th of July, the Earl of Brodalbine being again brought to the Bar, begg'd more Time to make his Defence, which was granted him till the 25th of the ſame Month; but all the Publick Affairs being happily concluded by the 17th, it was moved and agreed to, that the Proceſs of Treaſon againſt him ſhould be continued till the next Seſſion of Parliament. After which his Majeſty's Commiſſioner gave the Parliament Thanks for their real and hearty Compliance with his Majeſty's Demands; recommended to them the Preſervation of the Publick Peace in their ſeveral Countries; and adjourn'd them till the 7th of November next.

Whilſt the Parliament of Scotland was ſitting, Mr. Craven, Mr. Burnet, and Mr. Thompſon, Three of the Miniſters in the Synod of Aberdeen, who proteſted againſt the Commiſſion of the late General Aſſembly, were called before the Houſe, and examin'd. After ſome Debate, the Churches of the ſaid Miniſters were on July the 1ſt, declared to be vacant, and they debarred of their Miniſterial Function, until they had qualified themſelves by taking the Oath of Allegiance to his Majeſty, and ſubſcribing the Aſſurance; and impriſon'd till they gave Caution not to go on the North ſide of the River Forth, under the Penalty of 100*l.* Sterling. However the ſaid Miniſters were Four Days after ſet at Liberty, upon their ſingle Promiſe not to go beyond that River.

We

1695. 7 W. 3.

The King returns to England.

We now return to England with his Majeſty, who on October the 9th embark'd in the Maeſe on Board the William and Mary Yatch, and the next Day landed ſafely at Margate, convoy'd by a Squadron under Command of Sir Cloudeſly Shovel. That Night his Majeſty lay at Canterbury, and on the 11th came to Kenſington, the People expreſſing a ſingular Joy for his ſafe and glorious Return.

Places and Honours.

From the Time of his Majeſty's Abſence, theſe Honours and Preferments were well beſtowed. On May 23. John Smith, Eſq; one of the Lords Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, was ſworn of the Privy-Council, and Chriſtopher Muſgrave, Eſq; was ſworn Clerk of the Council in Extraordinary. On June 8. Sir Edward Ward, his Majeſty's Attorney-General, was made Serjeant at Law, and in the Evening was ſworn Lord Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer, and receiv'd his Patent. In his room, Sir Thomas Trevor, on June 11. was ſworn his Majeſty's Attorney-General; and on July 13. John Hawles, Eſq; of Lincolns-Inn, was ſworn his Majeſty's Sollicitor-General. The ſame Evening his Majeſty came to Kenſington, he held a Council, and therein ordered a Proclamation to be iſſued for diſſolving the preſent Parliament, and iſſuing out of Writs for the calling of a new Parliament, to begin at Weſtminſter, on Friday November 22.

Parliament Diſſolved.

The King's Progreſs.

In the mean time, his Majeſty took a Progreſs, and went firſt to Newmarket on Thurſday, October 17. where he received the Compliments of the Univerſity of Cambridge. He went thence to Althrop in Northamptonſhire, the Seat of the Earl of Sunderland, whoſe Counſels and Converſation b[illegible] to be more and more acceptable to his Majeſ[illegible] While he lay here, he made a Viſit to the Earl of Northampton at Caſtle-Aſhby, and to the Earl of Montague at Boughton; and was entertain'd at both thoſe Places with a ſplendid Dinner. From Althrop the King went to Stamford, Octob. 28. and in his way took a View of Burleigh-Houſe, without ſeeing the Owner of it. On October 30. his Majeſty went to Lincoln, and having heard Prayers at the Cathedral, purſued his Journey to Welbeck, the Duke of Newcaſtle's Seat in Nottinghamſhire. Here the Archbiſhop of York, with his Clergy, waited upon his Majeſty on November 2. to congratulate his happy Succeſs and ſafe Return, expreſſing their Gratitude for his Majeſty's Care of the Church, and for ſhewing himſelf truly a Defender of the Faith. On November 3. the King left Welbeck, and came that Evening to the Earl of Stamford's Houſe at Broadgate. On November 4. he went to the Lord Brook's at Warwick Caſtle. Next Day he dined with the Duke of Shrewsbury at Eyeford, and came that Evening to Burford, and Three Days after to Woodſtock; from whence, on November 10. his Majeſty came to Oxford, being met by the Duke of Ormond, Chancellor of the Univerſity, Dr. Adams, Vice-Chancellor, with other Doctors and Maſters, in their Academical Habits. The King alighted at the Eaſt Gate of the Schools, and paſſed directly to the Theatre, where a Noble Banquet was provided, with great Variety of Muſick. Mr. Codrington, Fellow of All-Souls, expreſſed the Publick Thanks of the Univerſity, in an Elegant Oration. The Chancellor on his Knees preſented his Majeſty with a large Engliſh Bible and Common-Prayer-Book, the Cuts of the Univerſity, and a Pair of Gold-Fring'd Gloves. It was expected his Majeſty ſhould have ſat down to the Banquet; but whether he was indiſpoſed to eat, or whether diſcouraged by an idle Letter dropt in the Street, and intimating the Deſigns of Poiſon, his Majeſty roſe up, and immediately took Coach for Windſor; declaring, as a Reaſon of his ſhort Stay, and his not going to ſee the Colleges, That this was a Viſit of Kindneſs, not of Curioſity, he having ſeen the Univerſity before.

1695. 7 W. 3.

Meeting of the New Parliament.

On Friday, Nov. 22. The (a) Parliament met according to the Writs of Summons, and the King being ſeated on the Throne, the Commons were ſent for up, to whom my Lord Keeper ſignified his Majeſty's Pleaſure, that they ſhould forthwith proceed to the Choice of a Speaker. After which, the Commons return'd to their Houſe, and unanimouſly made choice of Paul Foley, Eſq; who being preſented the next Day, his Majeſty did graciouſly approve of him, and then made this Speech to both Houſes.

Paul Foley, Eſq; Speaker.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"IT is with great Satisfaction that I meet you "here this Day, being aſſured of a good Diſpo"ſition in my Parliament, when I have had ſuch "full Proofs of the Affection of my People, by "their Behaviour during my Abſence, and at my "Return.

"I was engaged in this preſent War by the Ad"vice of my firſt Parliament, who thought it ne"ceſſary for the Defence of our Religion, and the "Preſervation of the Liberties of Europe. The "laſt Parliament with great Chearfulneſs did aſſiſt "me to carry it on; and I cannot doubt but that "your Concern for the Common Safety will oblige "you to be unanimouſly zealous in the Proſecution "of it. And I am glad that the Advantages which "we have have had this Year, give us a reaſonable "Ground of hoping for further Succeſs hereafter.

"Upon this Occaſion, I cannot but take Notice "of the Courage and Bravery which the Engliſh "Troops have ſhewn this laſt Summer; which I "may ſay, has anſwer'd their higheſt Character in "any Age: And it will not be denied, that without "the Concurrence of the Valour and Power of "England, it were impoſſible to put a Stop to the "Ambition and Greatneſs of France.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

"I think it a great Misfortune, that from the Be"ginning of my Reign, I have been forced to ask "ſo many, and ſuch large Aids of my People; and "yet I am confident you will agree with me in "Opinion, that there will be at leaſt as great Sup"plies requiſite for carrying on the War by Sea and "Land this Year, as was granted in the laſt Seſſion; "rather, becauſe our Enemies are augmenting their "Troops, and the Neceſſity of increaſing our Ship"ping does plainly appear.

"The Funds which have been given, have proved "very deficient.

"The Condition of the Civil Liſt is ſuch, that it "will not be poſſible for me to ſubſiſt, unleſs that "Matter be taken into your Care.

"And Compaſſion obliges me to mention the "miſerable Circumſtances of the French Proteſtants, "who ſuffer for their Religion.

"And therefore, Gentlemen, I moſt earneſtly re"commend to you to provide a Supply ſuitable to "theſe ſeveral Occaſions.

"I muſt likewiſe take Notice of a great Diffi"culty we lie under at this Time, by reaſon of the "ill State of the Coin, the Redreſs of which may "perhaps prove a further Charge to the Nation; but "this is a Matter of ſuch general Concern, and of "ſo very great Importance, that I have thought fit "to leave it entirely to the Conſideration of my "Parliament.

(a) By the King, A Proclamation for a General Faſt and Humiliation throughout the whole Kingdom, for imploring a Bleſſing upon the Conſultations of this preſent Parliament, on Wedneſday the 11th of December next. Given at Kenſington the 30th of November, 1695. A Form of Prayer to be uſed on the ſaid Faſt Day. A Sermon preached before the Houſe of Lords at the Abbey-Church of St. Peter's Weſtminſter, on Wedneſday the 11th of December, 1695. by the Right Reverend James Lord Biſhop of Lincoln. London, for Jo. Everingham, 4to.

1695. 7 W. 3.

"I did recommend to the laſt Parliament the "Forming ſome good Bill for the Encouragement "and Increaſe of Seamen; I hope you will not let "this Seſſion paſs without doing ſomewhat in it; "and that you will conſider of ſuch Laws as may "be proper for the Advancement of Trade, and "will have a particular Regard to that of the Eaſt-Indies, leſt it ſhould be loſt to the Nation. And "while the War makes it neceſſary to have an Army Abroad, I could wiſh ſome Way might be "thought of to raiſe the neceſſary Recruits, without giving occaſion of Complaint.

"My deſire to meet my People in a new Parliament, has made the Opening of this Seſſion "very late; which I hope you will have ſuch regard to, as to make all poſſible Diſpatch of the "great Buſineſs before you; and will call to mind, "that by the long continuance of the laſt Seſſion, "We did not only loſe Advantages which we might "have had at the beginning of the Campaign, but "gave the Enemy ſuch an Opportuuity as might "have proved very fatal to Us. And I am the more "concern'd to preſs this, becauſe of the great Preparations which the French make to be early in "the Field this Year.

My Lords,

"I have had ſuch Experience of your good Affections; and I have ſuch an entire Satisfaction in "the Choice which my People have made of You, "Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons, that I promiſe my ſelf a happy Concluſion of this Seſſion, "unleſs you ſuffer your ſelves to be miſled into "Heats and Diviſions; which being the only Hope "our Enemies have now left, I make no doubt but "you will entirely diſappoint by your Prudence and "Love to your Country.

Addreſſes of the two Houſes.

Both Houſes in their reſpective Addreſſes, with great Zeal and Unanimity, congratulated the glorious Succeſs of his Majeſty's Arms Abroad, and his ſafe Return Home; and likewiſe return'd his Majeſty Thanks for the Truſt and Confidence he repoſed in their Affections; aſſuring Him, that they would ſupport his Majeſty and his Government againſt all his Enemies Foreign and Domeſtick, and effectually aſſiſt him in the Proſecution of the preſent War, in which he was engaged for the Safety of England, and Liberty of Europe. The Commons Addreſs being preſented by the whole Houſe, his Majeſty gave them this Anſwer:

Gentlemen,

"I heartily thank you for the Marks you give "me of your Affection: Our Intereſts are inſeparable, and there is nothing I wiſh ſo much as the "Happineſs of this Country where God has placed "Me.

The next Buſineſs of the Commons was to addreſs the King, that he would pleaſe to appoint a Day of Faſting and Humiliation for imploring the Bleſſing of Almighty God upon the Conſultations of this preſent Parliament; and his Majeſty was pleaſed to appoint Wedneſday, Dec. 11. to be ſtrictly kept and obſerved within the Bills of Mortality; and Wedneſday 18. in all other Places. Dr. Haley being appointed to preach before the Commons in the Morning; and Dr. Williams in the Afternoon.

Order for no Written Protections.

The many Protections given to the Servants of Parliament-Men, and the taking Men into Cuſtody upon Complaints of the Breach of thoſe Protections, was really become a Grievance to the Subject; and therefore on Nov. 30. it was ordered, "That "all Protections and Written Certificates of the "Members of this Houſe be declared void in Law, "and be forthwith withdrawn, and called in, and "that none be granted for the future; and that if "any ſhall be granted by any Member, ſuch Member ſhall be liable to the Cenſure of this Houſe; "and that the Privileges of their Menial Servants "be obſerved according to Law: And that if any "Menial Servant ſhall be arreſted and detained contrary to Privilege, he ſhall (upon Complaint "thereof made to the Speaker) be diſcharged by "Order from him. And that no Perſon ſhall be "taken into Cuſtody upon Complaint of any Breach "of Privileges of this Houſe before the Matter be "firſt examined; which Order was not to extend "to any Breach of Privilege upon the Perſon of "any Member of this Houſe.

1695. 7 W. 3.

Reſolutions for Supply.

The next Thing conſidered, was a Supply to be granted to his Majeſty, which was referred to a Committee; from which Sir Thomas Littleton reported theſe Reſolutions, which were agreed to by the Houſe. They granted the Sum of Two Millions, Five Hundred Thouſand Pounds Sterling for the Navy. Sixteen Thouſand, Nine Hundred, Seventy and Two Pounds for the Officers of the two Marine Regiments. Two Millions, Seven Thouſand, Eight Hundred Eighty-Two Pounds for the Pay of 87440 Men, including Commiſſion and Non-Commiſſion Officers, making up the Horſe, Dragoons and Foot, which according to the Liſt of the Land-Forces, deliver'd into the Houſe, they had voted neceſſary for the Service of the Year 1696. And laſtly, 500000 l. for the Office of Ordnance, the Pay of the great Officers, Tranſports, Hoſpitals, Contingencies, and other extraordinary Charge of the War: In all, Five Millions, Twenty-Four Thouſand Eight Hundred Fifty Three Pounds.

Bill for regulating Tryals in Caſes of Treaſon.

The Bill for regulating Tryals in Caſes of Treaſon, and Miſpriſion of Treaſon, which has been ſeveral times loſt in the former Parliaments, was again brought into the Houſe of Commons, Nov. 26. and in a ſhort time read three times there, and ſent up to the Lords for their Concurrence, by which many Hardſhips upon the Liberty of the Subject were removed, or mitigated: For it was hereby Enacted, "That all Perſons indicted for High-Treaſon, or "Miſpriſion of it, ſhall have a Copy of the Indictment five Days before their Tryal, and ſhall be "admitted to make their Defence by Counſel "learned in the Law, not exceeding Two. That "no Perſon ſhall be Indicted or Attainted but by "the Oaths of two Lawful Witneſſes. That no "Perſon ſhall be proſecuted, unleſs the Indictment "be found within three Years after the Offence "committed. That all Perſons Indicted ſhall have "Copies of the Jury two Days before their Tryal; "and ſhall have like Proceſs to compel their Witneſſes to appear for them, as is uſually granted "to Witneſſes againſt them". To this Bill the Lords added the Clauſe they had always inſiſted upon; "That upon the Tryal of any Peer or Peereſs for Treaſon or Miſpriſion, all the Peers who "have a Right to ſit and vote in Parliament, ſhall "be duly ſummoned Twenty Days at leaſt before "ſuch Tryal, and ſhall not Vote without firſt taking "the Oaths appointed by the Act of the Firſt of "William and Mary, and ſubſcribing and repeating "the Declaration mentioned in the Act made 30. "Car. II. which Clauſe was agreed to by the Commons". It is remarkable, that whilſt this Bill was depending in the Houſe of Commons, the Lord Shaftsbury roſe up in order to ſpeak for it; and having begun his Speech, he ſeemed to be ſo ſurpriz'd, that for a while he could not go on; but having recover'd himſelf, he took Occaſion from his very Surprize, to Enforce the Neceſſity of allowing Counſel to Priſoners who were to appear before their Judges, ſince he who was not only innocent and unaccuſed, but one of their own Members, was ſo daſh'd when he was to ſpeak before that Auguſt Aſſembly. This Turn of Wit did Service in promoting that Expedient Bill.

The Lords were conſidering that part of the King's Speech that related to the ill State of the Coin,

1695. 7 W. 3.

Ill State of the Coin.

Coin, and had drawn up an Addreſs, to which in a Conference they deſir'd the Concurrence of the Commons; who choſe rather to proceed in their own Way, by appointing a Committee, who ſhould have Power to conſider of a Fund to make good the Deficiency of the Clipt Money. And here the great Queſtion was, Whether it was neceſſary or expedient to recoin the Silver Money? The Country Party held the Negative; the Court Party the Affirmative; and the Arguments were weighty on both ſides. The Reaſons againſt calling in, and recoining the Money were; "That this was no fit "Juncture for it, while the Nation was engaged in "a burthenſome and doubtful War, by which the "Kingdom had already greatly ſuffer'd, and of "which it grew every Day more ſenſible. That "therefore the People, on whoſe Good Affection "the Government ſo much depended, ſhould not "be provoked by freſh Grievances, greater than "any they had yet felt, as thoſe would certainly "be, that muſt ariſe from the calling in the Silver "Coin. That if this was done, however Things "might be managed and accommodated at Home, "it were impoſſible to maintain either the Commerce or the War abroad; for neither the Merchant could be paid his Bills of Exchange, nor "the Soldier receive his Subſiſtence. That this was "to lay the Axe to the Root, and to dig up the "Foundation of the Government. That if this "Deſign was proſecuted, Trade muſt ſtand ſtill for "want of mutual Payments; whence ſuch Diſorder and Confuſion would certainly follow, as "would diſcourage and diſhearten the People in "the higheſt meaſure, if not drive them to a perfect "Deſpair, as Deſpair would to the moſt terrible "Extremities. That therefore the recoining the "Money at this time was by no means to be attempted without hazarding All.

Arguments for recoining the Silver Money.

'Twas alledged by thoſe of the contrary Opinion, at the Head of whom appear'd Mr. Charles Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, "That the "Miſchief would be fatal, if a preſent Remedy "was not found out and apply'd. That by Reaſon "of the ill State of the Coin, the Exchange abroad "was infinitely to the Nation's Prejudice. That "the Supplies that were rais'd to maintain the Army would never attain their End, being ſo much "diminiſh'd and devour'd by the unequal Change, "and exorbitant Premiums before they reach'd the "Camp. That this was the unhappy Cauſe that "the Guineas advanc'd to Thirty Shillings, and "Foreign Gold in proportion: That therefore to "the Nation's great Loſs, not only the Dutch, but "indeed all Europe ſent that Commodity to this "Market, and would continue to do ſo, till the "Nation ſhould be impoveriſh'd and undone by "Plenty of Gold. That we muſt exchange for "Gold our Goods, or our Silver, till at laſt we "ſhould have only Guineas to trade withal; which "no body could think our Neighbours would be "ſo kind to receive back at the Value they were at "here. That therefore this Diſeaſe would every "Day take deeper root, infect the very Vitals of "the Nation, and if not remedied, would ſoon become incurable. That our Enemies muſt be mightily intimidated by ſo great an Action, and would "ſooner be induc'd to agree to Honourable Terms "of Peace, in caſe they ſaw us able to ſurmount "this Difficulty, by the retrieving the ill State of "the Coin, on which their Hopes of the Nation's "ſpeedy Ruin ſo much depended; and that it "would juſtly create a mighty Eſteem abroad, of "the Greatneſs and Wiſdom of the Parliament of "England, which was able to conquer ſuch an obſtinate and almoſt inſuperable Evil in ſuch a Juncture of Affairs.

Theſe Matters being fully debated, the Parliament reſolved to call in, and recoin the Silver-Money, chuſing rather to run the Hazard of ſome great Inconveniencies, than by a longer Neglect to expoſe the Kingdom to apparent Ruin. The next Step was to conſider, Whether the ſeveral Denominations of the New Money ſhould have the ſame Weight and Fineneſs as the Old; or, Whether the Eſtabliſh'd Standard ſhould be rais'd? This Queſtion produced many Debates: Thoſe who were for raiſing the Standard did argue, "That the Price of an Ounce "of Silver Bullion was advanced to Six Shillings "and Three Pence, and therefore the Standard "ought to be rais'd to an Equality. That the raiſing "the Standard would prevent the Exportation of "our Coin, and the melting of it down, which of "late Years has been much practiſed, to the great "Prejudice of this Kingdom; and that it would "encourage People to bring in their Plate and Bullion into the Mint." The Court-Party, who were for preſerving the Old Standard, urged, "That "as to the Price of Bullion, now rais'd to Six Shillings and Three-pence, it was impoſſible the Price "of Silver could riſe and fall in reſpect of its ſelf, "but the Alteration of the Value of Bullion was "merely in relation to diminiſh'd Money; for it "was ſtill Matter of Fact, that with Five Shillings "and Two-pence of New Mill'd Money, they "could buy an Ounce of Bullion; whilſt thoſe "who bought it with Clipp'd Pieces, paid Six "Shillings and Three-pence.

1695. 7 W. 3.

Queſtion, Whether the Standard ſhould continue?

As to the Argument of preventing the Exportation of Money by raiſing the Standard, it was anſwer'd, "There was no way poſſible to keep our "Money at home, but by out-trading our Neighbours; that is, by ſending them more Commodities, or of greater Value than thoſe we received "from them, &c.

Reſolutions about the Coin.

After theſe Debates, the Commons reſolv'd on Dec. 10. "That all Clipp'd Money be recoined according to the Eſtabliſh'd Standard of the Mint, "both as to the Weight and Fineneſs. That the "Loſs of ſuch Clipp'd Money ſhall be born by the "Publick. That a Day be appointed, after which "no Crowns or Half-Crowns be allowed in any "Payment. That another Day be appointed for all "Perſons to bring in their Clipp'd Money to be recoined into Mill'd Money: And that a Fund be "ſettled for ſupplying the Deficiencies." After this Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer reported the Form of an Addreſs, to deſire his Majeſty to regulate the Currency of Clipp'd Money, according to the foregoing Reſolutions; which Addreſs being preſented to the King, he cauſed his Royal Proclamation to be iſſued out for that Purpoſe. And the Lords had already Addreſs'd his Majeſty to the ſame Effect.

Some time before, the Commons having conſidered, that the maintaining an Army Abroad occaſioned the Exportation of the Coin, which could not be prevented, but by ſupplying the ſaid Army with Neceſſaries out of this Kingdom, on Dec. 13. Ordered an Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, That he would pleaſe to procure, that all Commodities and Proviſions, that ſhould be Tranſported from England for the Uſe of the Forces in his Majeſty's Pay abroad, might be exempted from any Duty or Exciſe, throughout the Spaniſh and United Netherlands. To which the King anſwer'd, That what was deſired by the Commons, had been done in a good Meaſure for ſeveral Years; and that he would ſee what could be further done in it.

Bill for regulating Coinage.

The Commons having conſidered the Bill for Regulating the Coinage of the Silver Money, which the Chancellor of the Exchequer had prepared, and preſented to the Houſe on Dec. 17. ordered on Dec. 23. a Clauſe of Loan to be inſerted in it, in favour of ſuch as would advance Money on Credit of the Exchequer in general, transferrable to ſuch Funds as ſhould be ſettled by Parliament, towards making good the Deficiencies of the Clipp'd Money; and likewiſe order'd the ſame Committee to take care, that all Perſons who ſhould bring in Clipp'd Money 1695. 7 W. 3. ney (above what was for Taxes) ſhould have a Recompence for the ſame. This Bill was amended accordingly, and Four Days after paſs'd, and ſent up to the Lords for their Concurrence.

On the 31ſt of December, the Commons reſolv'd to raiſe the 1200000*l.* for ſupplying the Deficiency of the Clipp'd Money, by a Duty laid upon all Dwelling-Houſes, except Cottages; to wit, Two Shillings Yearly upon each Houſe; Four Shillings upon every Houſe having Ten Windows; and Eight Shillings upon ſuch Houſes as have Twenty Windows, over and above the ſaid Two Shillings; which Duty was to be paid by the Inhabitants of the ſaid Houſes, and to be continued for the ſpace of Seven Years, and no longer.

The Days appointed by the King's Proclamation for putting a ſtop to the Currency of Clipp'd Money, were ſo ſhort, that an immediate ſtop was thereby put to Trade: So as the Houſe of Commons were obliged in a Grand Committee to conſider the State of the Nation, and how to prevent the Stop of Commerce during the Recoining of the Clipp'd Moneys. After ſome Debates for ſeveral Days, the Commons reſolv'd on Jan. 9. Firſt, "That the Recompence for ſupplying the Deficiency of Clipp'd Money, ſhould extend to all "Clipp'd Money which was Silver, although of a "courſer Allay than the Standard. Secondly, That "the Collectors and Receivers of his Majeſty's "Aids and Revenues, be enjoined to receive all "ſuch Moneys. Thirdly, That a Reward of Five "Pounds per Cent. be given to all ſuch Perſons as "ſhould bring in either Mill'd or Broad Unclipp'd "Money, to be applied in Exchange of the Clipp'd "Money throughout the Kingdom. Fourthly, That "a Reward alſo of Threepence per Ounce be given "to all Perſons who ſhould bring in wrought Plate "to the Mint to be re-coined. Fifthly, That for "the ſooner bringing in the Clipp'd Money to be "recoined, any Perſons might pay in their whole "next Years Tax of Four Shillings in the Pound, "in the ſaid Clipp'd Money, at one convenient "time appointed for that Purpoſe. Laſtly, That "Commiſſioners be appointed in every County, to "pay and diſtribute the Mill'd and Broad Unclipp'd "Money, and the New Coin'd Money, and to receive the Clipp'd Money". And at the ſame time appointed a Committee to prepare and bring in a Bill upon the ſaid Reſolutions. This Bill was accordingly preſented, and after a ſecond Reading on Jan. 21. committed to a Committee of the whole Houſe; who Reſolved, "That a further Encouragement be given for bringing in Plate to be "Coined, and Broad-Money in order to be exchang'd for Clipp'd Money: And that a Clauſe "be inſerted in the ſaid Bill, to prevent the Melting down and Exportation of Coin, or any Bullion; and another Clauſe to prohibit the Uſe of "Plate in Publick Houſes"; which at laſt prov'd the beſt Expedient to ſupply the Mints with Bullion.

The Lords having made ſeveral Amendments to the Bill for Regulating the Coinage of the Silver Money of this Kingdom; moſt of them, after ſeveral Debates and Conferences, were diſagreed to by the Commons: Whereupon Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer, according to Order, preſented to the Houſe another Bill for Remedying the Ill State of the Coin of this Kingdom: Which was receiv'd, and after ſome Amendments order'd to be Engroſs'd, and ſent up to the Lords, who gave their Concurrence to it.

Addreſs againſt the Scots Eaſt-India Company.

On Dec. 14. the Lords in a Conference communicated to the Commons an Addreſs to his Majeſty, in relation to an injurious Act of Parliament made in Scotland, for Erecting a Company Trading to Africa and the Eaſt-Indies: To which Addreſs the Commons gave their Concurrence; and on the 17th they appointed a Committee to examine what Methods were taken for obtaining that Scotch Act; and who were the Subſcribers for Eſtabliſhing that Eaſt-India Company, and who were the Promoters and Adviſers of it. On the ſame Tueſday Afternoon, both Houſes attended the King with that Addreſs: To which his Majeſty was pleaſed to make this Anſwer; I have been Ill-Served in Scotland; but I hope ſome Remedies may be found to prevent the Inconveniences which may ariſe from this Act.

This Buſineſs purſued in other Reſolutions.

This Buſineſs did not ſtop here: For the Committee appointed by the Commons to examine by what Methods the ſaid Act was obtained, having made their Report, and delivered a Copy of an Oath de Fideli, taken by the Directors of the Scotch Eaſt-India Company, and of the Journal of the Proceedings of the ſaid Directors; and the ſaid Report, Oath, and Journal being Examin'd; as alſo the Petition preſented to the Houſe by the Engliſh Eaſt-India Company, it was reſolv'd on Jan. 26 "That the Directors of the Company of Scotland, "Trading to Africa and the Indies, adminiſtring "and taking here in this Kingdom an Oath de Fideli; and under Colour of a Scotch Act of Parliament, ſtiling themſelves a Company, and "acting as ſuch, and raiſing Moneys in this Kingdom for carrying on the ſaid Company, were "guilty of a high Crime and Miſdemeanor; and "that the Lord Belhaven, William Paterſon, David Nairne, James Smith, James Cheiſly, William Shepherd, Robert Blackwood, James Balfour, "James Fowlis, Thomas Coutts, Abraham Wilmer, "Daniel Van Mildert, Robert Williamſon, Anthony Merry, Paul Dominique, Robert Douglas, Thomas Skinner, Hugh Fraizer, James Bateman, "Walter Stewart, and Joſeph Cohen D' Azevedo, "be Impeached of the ſaid High Crimes and Miſdemeanors". Whilſt a Committee was drawing up the Impeachments, Roderick Mackenzee endeavour'd to ſuppreſs the Evidence he had given againſt the ſaid Perſons, for which he was order'd to be taken into Cuſtody, but he made his Eſcape; nor could he be apprehended, although the King, at the Requeſt of the Commons on Feb. 13. had iſſued out a Proclamation for that Purpoſe. However, the worſt of this Affair was, That the Commons having ſeveral times in a Grand Committee conſider'd the State of the Nation, in relation to Trade; and Reſolved, Firſt, "That a Council of Trade be eſtabliſhed by Act of Parliament, with Powers for "the more effectual Preſervation of the Trade of "this Kingdom. Secondly, That the Commiſſioners "conſtituting the ſaid Council, be Nominated by "Parliament. Thirdly, That none of the Commiſſioners be of this Houſe. Fourthly, That the "ſaid Commiſſioners ſhould take an Oath, acknowledging, That King William was Rightful and "Lawful King of this Realm; and that the late "King James had no Right or Title thereunto; "and that no other Perſon has any Right or Title "to the Crown, otherwiſe than according to the "Act of Settlement, made in the Firſt Year of his "Majeſty's Reign, &c." And theſe and Ten more Reſolutions relating to the ſaid Council, being reported to the Houſe on Jan. 13. the Firſt and Second, with ſome others, were indeed approv'd, but ſeveral others, and eſpecially the Fourth, whereby King William was to be acknowledg'd Rightful and Lawful King; and which occaſion'd a warm Debate, were rejected by the Houſe. And a Bill was ordered to be brought in upon the Reſolutions agreed unto.

Reſolutions for Trade.

Ways and Means.

Amidſt theſe Important Affairs, the Commons did not forget the Ways and Means of raiſing the Neceſſary Aids for the War. They Tax'd Land Four Shillings in the Pound, and laid the ſame Impoſition upon all Perſonal Eſtates, and upon all Offices and Employments of Profit other than Military Offices in the Army, Navy, and Ordnance. They proceeded to theſe further Reſolutions. 1. "To "enlarge the Times for Perſons to come in and "purchaſe certain Annuities, mentioned in a for-1695. 7 W. 3. "mer Act. 2. To continue the Duties formerly "charg'd on Low Wines and Spirits of the firſt "Extraction. 3. To continue the Duties upon all "Wines, Vinegar, and Tobacco, from the 24th of "June, 1698, to the 29th of Sept. 1701. 4. To "continue the Duties upon all Eaſt-India Goods "and Manufactures, and upon all Wrought Silks, "and ſeveral other Goods, from the 10th of Nov. "1697, to the 29th of Sept. 1701. 5. To ſettle "a Fund by continuing the Duties upon Salt, for "the Payment of Intereſt, not exceeding 7*l. per* "Cent. redeemable by Parliament. And 6. That "the Duties of 25 l. per Tun be laid upon all "French Wine, 30 l. per Tun upon all French Brandy, and 15 l. per Tun on all French Vinegar, and "25 l. per Cent. ad Valorem, upon all other Goods "of the Growth, Product, or Manufacture of "France, Imported after the Twelfth Day of "March, 1697, for the Term of 21 Years, over "and above the Duties already charged thereupon; "and ſeveral Bills were prepared and brought in "according to the ſaid Reſolutions.

"mer

Acts paſſed.

On Tueſday, Jan. 21. his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for Enlarging the Times to come in, and Purchaſe certain Annuities therein mentioned; and for continuing the Duties formerly charg'd on Low Wines, or Spirits of the Firſt Extraction, for carrying on the War againſt France. 2. An Act for Regulating of Tryals in Caſes of Treaſon, and Miſpriſion of Treaſon. 3. An Act for Remedying the ill ſtate of the Coin of the Kingdom. 4. An Act for preventing Charge and Expence in Elections of Members to ſerve in Parliament. 5. An Act for Enabling Sir Thomas Parkins, Bart. to ſell certain Meſſuages, Lands and Hereditaments in Huby and Eaſingwould in the County of York; and for ſettling other Lands and Hereditaments of greater Value in lieu thereof. 6. An Act to enable Sir Thomas Pope Blount, Bart. to make a Settlement upon the Marriage of his Eldeſt Son. 7. An Act for Veſting the Mannor of Madeley, in the County of Salop, in Truſtees, for certain Purpoſes therein mentioned. 8. An Act for Enabling the Lady Katherine Fane to ſell the Reverſion of certain Fee-Farm Rents, given to her by her Grandfather, John Bence, Eſq; 9. An Act for Enabling Thomas Stoner, Eſq; (Son and Heir of John Stoner, Eſq; Deceaſed) to make a Jointure and Settlement of his Eſtate in Marriage, notwithſtanding his Minority. 10. An Act for veſting ſeveral Meſſuages and Lands belonging to Samuel Powell, Eſq; in Truſtees for Payment of his Debts.

Grants to the Earl of Portland.

There was another Affair depending in this Seſſion, which very ſenſibly concern'd his Majeſty. The Earl of Portland had begg'd of his Majeſty the Lordſhips of Denbigh, Bromfield, and Yale, and other Lands in the Principality of Wales; which his Majeſty readily Granted to him and his Heirs for ever: The Warrant coming to the Lords of the Treaſury, the Gentlemen of the County upon ſhort Notice were heard on May 10. before their Lordſhips. Sir William Williams then alledg'd, That theſe Lordſhips were the Ancient Demeſnes of the Prince of Wales; that the Welſh were never Subject to any but God and the King. That in the Statute for Granting Fee-Farm Rents, there was an Exception of the Rents belonging to the Principality of Wales; which imported, that the Parliament took thoſe Revenues to be unalienable; that upon Creation of a Prince of Wales there were many Acknowledgments payable out of thoſe Lordſhips; and though there were at preſent no Prince of Wales, yet he hop'd to ſee one of the King's own Body, &c. Sir Roger Puleſton alledg'd, That the Revenues of theſe Lordſhips did ſupport the Government of Wales, by paying the Judges and other Officers their ſtated Salaries; and if given away there would be a Failure of Juſtice. And Mr. Price, a Gentleman of great Parts, (ſince one of the Barons of the Exchequer) did boldly urge, "That the "Grant was of a large Extent, being Five Parts in "Six of a whole County, which was too great a "Power for any Foreign Subject to have; and that "the People of the Country were too great to be "ſubject to any Foreigner. Let it be conſidered, "(ſays he) Can it be for his Majeſty's Honour or "Intereſt, (when the People hear this and underſtand it,) That he daily gives away the Revenues "of his Crown, and what is more, the Perpetuity "of them to his Foreign Subjects? Good Kings, "after a long and chargeable War, were wont to "tell their People, That they were ſorry for the "Hardſhips the Nation underwent by a long War "and heavy Taxes; and that now they would Live "upon their own: But it is to be feared, if Grants "are made ſo large and ſo frequent, there would be "nothing for the King or his Succeſſors to call "their own to Live upon. He concluded thus: "It is to be hop'd your Lordſhips will conſider, "That we had but one Day's Notice of this Attendance, and muſt come therefore very much "unprovided; yet we doubt not, theſe Hints "and broken Thoughts we have offer'd to your "Lordſhips, you will, by your great Judgments "improve, whereby the ill Conſequences of this "Grant may truly be repreſented to his Majeſty". The Lord Godolphin, the Firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, ask'd for Satisfaction, "Whether the "Earl of Leiceſter had not thoſe Lordſhips in Grant "to him in Queen Elizabeth's Time? Sir Robert Cotton anſwered, He believ'd he could give the beſt Account in that Caſe: "That the Earl of Leiceſter "had but one of thoſe Lordſhips; and that was "Denbigh: That he was ſo oppreſſive to the Gentry of the Country, that he occaſion'd them to "take up Arms, and to oppoſe him; for which, "Three or Four of his (Sir Robert Cotton's) Relations were hang'd; but that it ended not there, "for the Quarrel was kept ſtill on foot, and the "Earl glad to be in Peace, and to Grant it back to "the Queen; ſince which time it had ever been "in the Crown". Whereupon the Lord Godolphin ſaid, "They had offer'd many weighty Reaſons, "which they ſhould repreſent to his Majeſty." From the Treaſury the Gentlemen of Wales attended the Grant to the Privy-Seal, where their Reaſons and Complaints againſt it were heard and receiv'd with all Candor and Goodneſs. Yet notwithſtanding all this, the ſaid Grant being only ſuperſeded, but not recalled, Sir Thomas Groſvener, Sir Richard Middleton, Sir John Conway, Sir Robert Cotton, Sir William Williams, Sir Roger Puleſton, Edward Vaughan, Edward Brereton, and Robert Price, Eſq; addreſs'd themſelves by Petition to the Commons.

Offenſive to the Gentry of Wales.

Upon this Occaſion the ſame Mr. Price, a Member of that Houſe made a memorable Speech; wherein he ſaid, "That this Petition, though ſubſcribed by "a few Hands, had the Approbation of many "Thouſands who were not influenced by their own "Intereſt, but acted for the Honour of the Crown, "and Welfare of the Britiſh Nation. That if he "could conceive how the Glory and Grandeur of "England was, or could be upheld by a poor Landleſs Crown, and a miſerable neceſſitous People, he "could be then eaſily perſuaded to believe that his "Majeſty was well adviſed to grant away all the "Revenues of the Crown; and that his Government thereby would be well ſecured, and his "People beſt protected, when they had little or "nothing left; but he was ſure they were not "Engliſh, but Foreign Politicians, who might "revere the King, and yet hate his People. "That the Kings of England always reigned beſt, "when they had the Affections of their Subjects; "of which they were ſecure, when the People "were ſenſible the King was entirely in their Intereſt, and lov'd the Engliſh Soil, as well as the "People's Money, &c." When he had repreſented

to

1695. 7 W. 3. to 'em the Nature of that mighty Grant to this Noble Lord, the ill Conſequences that muſt attend the Publick, and more particularly the Dominion of Wales, and eſpecially the County of Denbigh, by the paſſing of it; he concluded thus: "I muſt "needs confeſs, that my Thoughts are troubled "with ſtrange Apprehenſions of our deplorable "State: We are in a Confederacy in War, and "ſome of thoſe Confederates our Enemies in Trade, "tho' planted amongſt us; Some of the King's "Council; Some in the Army; and the Common "Traders have poſſeſs'd themſelves of the Out-"Skirts of this Great City. We find ſome or other "of them naturaliz'd, and others made Denizens: "Every Parliament we find Endeavours for a General Naturalization, and that warmly ſollicited "from Court. We ſee our good Coin all gone, "and our Confederates openly Coining baſe Money "of Dutch Alloy for us. We ſee moſt Places of "Power and Profit given to Foreigners. We ſee "our Confederates in Conjunction with the Scotch, "to ruin our Engliſh Trade. We ſee the Revenues "of the Crown daily given away to one or other, "who make Sale of them, and tranſmit their E-"ſtates elſewhere. We do not find any of them "buy Lands or Eſtates amongſt us; but what they "can get from us, they ſecure in their own Coun-"try. How can we hope for Happy Days in Eng-"land, when this Great Lord, and the other Fo-"reigners, (tho' Naturaliz'd) are in the Engliſh, "and alſo in the Dutch Councils? If theſe Stran-"gers (tho' now Confederates) ſhould be of diffe-"rent Intereſts, (as moſt plainly they are in point "of Trade) to which Intereſt is it to be ſuppoſed "thoſe Great Foreign Counſellors and Favourites "would adhere? So that I foreſee, that when we "are reduced to extreme Poverty, (as now we are "very near it) we are to be ſupplanted by our Neigh-"bours, and become a Colony to the Dutch.

"I ſhall make no ſevere Remarks on this Great "Man, for his Greatneſs makes us little, and will "make the Crown both poor and precarious: "And when God ſhall pleaſe to ſend us a Prince "of Wales, he may have ſuch a Preſent of a "Crown made him, as a Pope did to King John, "who was firnam'd Sans Terre, and was by his "Father (King Henry the Second) made Lord of "Ireland: Which Grant was confirm'd by the "Pope, who ſent him a Crown of Peacocks Fea-"thers, in Deriſion of his Power, and the Poverty "of his Revenue. I would have us to conſider that "we are Engliſhmen, and muſt (like good Patri-"ots) ſtand by our Country, and not ſuffer it to "become tributary to Strangers. We have re-"joiced that we have beat out of this Kingdom "Popery and Slavery, and do now with as great Joy "entertain Socinianiſm and Poverty; and yet we "ſee our Properties daily given away, and our Li-"berties muſt ſoon follow.

---- "I deſire Redreſs rather than Puniſhment; "therefore I ſhall neither move for an Impeach-"ment againſt this Noble Lord, nor for the Ba-"niſhment of him; but ſhall only beg that he "may have no Power over us, nor we any Depen-"dance upon him: And ſo concluded with this Mo-"tion, That an Addreſs be made to his Majeſty, "to ſtop the Grant that is paſſing to the Earl of "Portland, of the Lordſhips of Denbigh, Brom-"field and Yale, and other Lands in the Principality "of Wales; and that the ſame be not granted, but "by Conſent of Parliament.

This ſtout and Eloquent Speech made ſo great an Impreſſion, that Mr. Price's Motion was carry'd by an unanimous Conſent; and on January 22. this Addreſs was preſented to the King by the Speaker, attended by the whole Houſe.

Addreſs of the Commons.

May it pleaſe your moſt Excellent Majeſty,

"We your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal "Subjects, the Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes in "Parliament aſſembled, humbly lay before your "Majeſty, That whereas there is a Grant paſſing to "William Earl of Portland, and his Heirs, of the "Manors of Denbigh, Bromfield and Yale, and di-"vers other Lands in the Principality of Wales, to-"gether with ſeveral Eſtates of Inheritance, enjoy'd "by many of your Majeſty's Subjects, by virtue of "Ancient Grants from the Crown:

"That the ſaid Manors, with the large and ex-"tenſive Regalities, Powers and Juriſdictions to "the ſame belonging, are of great Concern to your "Majeſty and the Crown of this Realm; and that "the ſame have been uſually annex'd to the Princi-"pality of Wales, and ſettled on the Princes of "Wales for their Support: And that a great Num-"ber of your Majeſty's Subjects in thoſe Parts hold "their Eſtates by Royal Tenure, under great and "valuable Compoſitions, Rents, Royal Payments, "and Services to the Crown and Princes of Wales; "and have by ſuch Tenure great Dependance on "your Majeſty and the Crown of England; and "have enjoy'd great Privileges and Advantages with "their Eſtates under ſuch Tenure.

"We therefore moſt humbly beſeech your Ma-"jeſty, to put a Stop to the Paſſing this Grant to "the Earl of Portland, of the ſaid Manors and "Lands; and that the ſame may not be diſpoſed "from the Crown, but by Conſent of Parlia-"ment: For that ſuch Grant is in Diminution of "the Honour and Intereſt of the Crown, by pla-"cing in a Subject ſuch large and extenſive Royal-"ties, Powers and Juriſdictions, which ought only "to be in the Crown, and will ſever that Depen-"dance which ſo great a Number of your Majeſty's "Subjects in thoſe Parts have on your Majeſty and "the Crown, by reaſon of their Tenure, and may "be to their great Oppreſſion in thoſe Rights "which they have purchaſed, and hitherto enjoy'd "with their Eſtates; and alſo an Occaſion of great "Vexation to many of your Majeſty's Subjects, "who have long had the abſolute Inheritance of "ſeveral Lands (comprehended in the ſaid Grant "to the Earl of Portland) by Ancient Grants from "the Crown.

His Majeſty, in Anſwer, was pleaſed thus to expreſs himſelf:

Gentlemen,

I have a Kindneſs for my Lord Portland, which he has deſerved of me by long and faithful Services; but I ſhould not have given him theſe Lands, if I had imagined the Houſe of Commons could have been concerned: I will therefore recall the Grant, and find ſome other way of ſhewing my Favour to him.

Acts paſſed.

On Tueſday, February the 13th, his Majeſty went to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for granting to his Majeſty an Aid of Four Shillings in the Pound for one Year, for carrying on the War againſt France. 2. An Act to prevent Falſe and Double Returns of Members to ſerve in Parliament. 3. An Act for the more eaſy Recovery of Small Tythes. 4. An Act to enable Anthony Earl of Kent, and Henry Gray, his Son and Heir apparent, to make a Jointure for Jemima, Wife of the ſaid Henry Gray. 5. An Act to enable the Lord Francis Pawlett to charge his Eſtate with Proviſions for his Younger Children. 6. An Act for Veſting the Eſtate late of Sir Nicholas Stoughton, and Sir Lawrence Stoughton, Baronets, deceas'd, in Truſtees, to be ſold for the Payment of their Debts, and raiſing Portions for the Daughters of the ſaid Sir Nicholas Stoughton. 7. An Act to enable Richard Haynes, Eſq; to ſettle a Jointure on his own Wife, and to exchange Lands with the Truſtees of Thomas Stephens, Eſq; deceas'd. 8. An Act for enabling Truſtees to ſell Part of the Eſtate of Edward Warner, deceas'd, for Payment of his Debts, and for preſerving the reſt for 1695. 7 W. 3. for the Benefit of his Heirs. 9. An Act to enable John Aunger, an Infant, and his Mother, to make a Leaſe of his Eſtate for the Improvement thereof. 10. An Act to enable Truſtees to ſell Part of the Manor of Barkhamſted, and to pay off the Incumbrances charged upon the ſame; and to lay out the Overplus in an Eſtate, to be ſettled as the ſaid Manor is now veſted.

The horrid Aſſaſſination Plot.

And now broke out the horrid Conſpiracy of Aſſaſſinating the King's Perſon; a Villany that was firſt laid beyond the Seas: For Captain Waugh of Brentford, who in November 1694. was ſent over by the Jacobites to concert their Affairs in France, addreſſes to Colonel Parker, Mr. Caryl, and other Confederates of that Party; who telling him, The French were not yet at Leiſure to furniſh them with ſo many Men as were deſir'd for the Invaſion, they fell upon what they thought would more ſpeedily accompliſh the Reſtoration of their Maſter, and that was, the Taking off King William. Theſe Perſons had been long in the Secret, and had agreed upon the Methods; but becauſe many of the Jacobites abhorred ſuch a black and deteſtable Enterprize, (and even others refus'd to engage in it, unleſs they had a Special Order) a Commiſſion muſt be had from the Abdicated King for the doing of it, under the Phraſe of Attacking the Prince of Orange in his Winter-Quarters. Now leſt the Year 1695 ſhould be left without putting this wicked Deſign in Execution, Mr. Waugh was ſent into England from the Court of St. Germains, to give the Jacobites here Aſſurance, that thoſe who would engage in the Aſſaſſination, ſhould have ſuch a Commiſſion ſent them as was deſired: And thoſe who were for the Invaſion only, ſhould have their Spirits kept up with the Hopes of a powerful Aſſiſtance from France, as ſoon as the Blow was given. And Major Croſby came over with Aſſurance, (as was depoſed by Sir John Fenwick, in a Paper annexed to his Lady's Petition for his Reprieve) That he ſaw the Commiſſion ſign'd, and under Seal in France: That it was ſent away before him; and if not already come, he was certain it was upon the Road, and would be here in a few Days. This was privately communicated to the Jacobites, in order to cut off King William before he went to Holland; but Providence convey'd his Majeſty ſafe thither and Home again.

At his Majeſty's Return, they carry'd on the double Plot of Invaſion and Aſſaſſination: Several Meetings were appointed and held by the Ringleaders of the Party; particularly in May 1695, at the Old King's-Head Tavern in Leadenhall-ſtreet, London; there met there the Earl of Ayleſbury, the Lord Montgomery, Sir John Friend, Sir William Perkins, Sir John Fenwick, Mr. Charnock, Captain Porter, Mr. Cooke, and Mr. Goodman. There they conſulted on the beſt way to reſtore the late King; and all agreed, that the moſt proper Method was, To ſend a Special Meſſenger to his Majeſty, and deſire him to procure of the French King Ten Thouſand Men. Mr. Charnock was the Perſon they pitch'd upon to manage this Affair; who ſaid, He would not go on a fooliſh Errand; and therefore would know what the Company would do, if Foreign Forces could be procured? Whereupon they all unanimouſly promis'd, That if King James would come over with ſuch a Number of Men as was deſir'd, they would meet him at the Head of Two Thouſand Horſe, whereever he would appoint them. At the latter end of June they had another Meeting; where, after many Diſcourſes upon that Subject, Mr. Charnock received a further Confirmation of their Reſolutions, and thereupon took his Journey into France.

The Invaſion being thus promoted, that the Aſſaſſination might keep pace with it, ſome of the Conſpirators calling to mind, that nothing of that kind could be attempted, without a Commiſſion from King James to do it, (which Croſby ſaid was coming;) Captain Porter and Mr. Goodman communicated this Scruple to Sir George Barclay, who was then in England, and upon his Departure for France; telling him what Difficulties they labour'd under for want of a Commiſſion; and that a longer Delay of ſending it over, would certainly put a Stop to the Affair: Sir George not only approves, but commends the Deſign; and that ſuch a hopeful Project might not miſcarry, promiſes to uſe all his Intereſt at St. Germains, that the Commiſſion might no longer be wanting. The Beginning of Auguſt 1695 brings Mr. Charnock again to London, with the unwelcome News, That the King of France was not in a Condition to ſpare King James ſo many Men; which being communicated to the Party, the Deſign was laid aſide till Winter.

But notwithſtanding this poſitive Anſwer, the French (at the ſame Time) were taking ſuch Meaſures as might ſuit with the Jacobites Requeſt, tho' they durſt not truſt them with the Secret: Nay, not King James himſelf; till a Squadron of Men of War, and near Four Hundred Tranſport-Ships were fitted out, and the French Army (conſiſting of Thirty Battalions) were ready to embark, and Money and Directions ſent his Majeſty to go on Board, and take Poſſeſſion of England.

In December, 1695, Sir George Barclay, who had formerly been a General Officer, and was then (in France) an Officer in King James's Guards, came over into England, and brought with him a Commiſſion from the late King, To attack and ſeize the Prince of Orange in his Winter-Quarters; or, as others report, To levy War upon the Prince of Orange, and all his Adherents. Before him, with him, or after him, Two and twenty of King James's Guards and Officers, who had all Inſtructions to obey the Orders of Sir George, came alſo into England.

Sir George Barclay and his Men being arriv'd at London, they endeavour'd to ſtrengthen their Party by the Addition of Major Lowick, Mr. Knightley, Mr. Bertram, Mr. Rookwood, Mr. La Rue, Mr. Goodman, Captain Porter, Chambers, Durant, Cranburn, Kendrick, Grimes, and Waugh; ſome of which were engaged in the Aſſaſſination the Year before. Thoſe that came from France knew not the Particulars of what they were ſent about, being kept in a blind Obedience to Barclay's Orders; but ſome in England were privy to the whole Deſign: And tho' ſome of them ſtartled at its firſt being propos'd to them, yet the Authority of King James's Commiſſion, and their imaginary Proſpects of large Rewards at his Return, made them conſent to hazard their Lives in it. Several Conſultations were held, and ſeveral Ways propos'd to effect what they aim'd at: Some were for Seizing his Majeſty, and carrying him alive into France; and to that purpoſe, a Feint was made, That a Caſtle on the Sea-ſide was ſecur'd, to detain the King, till a Ship was ready to tranſport him over: But the more wicked among them, that underſtood what was meant by Seizing the Prince of Orange's Perſon, laughed at this as a mere Chimera. Others propos'd to kill his Majeſty at Kenſington, by attacking his Guards, and forcing his Palace in the Dead of Night: But this, upon weighing the Difficulties, was found wholly impracticable. Others, again, were for murdering the King as he came on Sunday to St. James's Chapel: For which purpoſe, Forty Men (well arm'd) were to attack his Majeſty's Guards, (which before the Diſcovery of the Plot did not exceed Twenty five) whilſt Six Men on Foot ſhould ſhut Hide-Park Gate, and the reſt aſſaſſinate his Majeſty. It was propoſed alſo to kill the Coach-Horſes, as they were entring into the Park; that the Paſſage being ſtopt, the Guards might not be able to come up, till the Aſſaſſins had done their Work. Another Propoſal was, to murder the King as he return'd from Hunting, in a narrow Lane by a Wood Several Projects of Villany.

1695. 7 W. 3.

ſide near Richmond, leading to the Thames, on the other ſide the Water, about a Hundred and fifty Paces long; in which there is a Gate, that (when ſhut) hinders Coaches and Horſes from coming that way. One of the Conſpirators was ſent to view this Ground, and another to ſurvey the Lane above-mention'd; but Sir George Barclay, the chief Director of this wicked Enterprize, did not approve that Place, and ſo that Project was alſo laid aſide. At laſt they all fix'd upon a Place between Turnham Green and Brentford, in a Mooriſh Bottom, where there is a Bridge, and divers Roads that croſs one another. On the North-ſide, there is a Road which goes round Brentford; and on the South, a Lane that leads to the River; ſo that Paſſengers may come thither ſeveral Ways. After you have paſs'd the Bridge, the Road grows narrow; having on one ſide a Foot-Path, and on the other a high thick Hedge: Here the barbarous Parricide was to be committed. And indeed, all Circumſtances conſider'd, a fitter Place could hardly have been found; for his Majeſty often return'd late from Hunting, and uſually paſs'd thro' this Lane after his Landing at Queens-Ferry, with no greater Attendance than Five or Six of his Guards. It was alſo his Majeſty's Cuſtom to enter the Ferry-Boat in his Coach, and as ſoon as he landed on this ſide the Water, the Coach drove on without expecting the reſt of his Guards; who could not croſs the Thames, till the Boat return'd to Surrey ſide, to bring them over; and ſo the reſt of his Guards could not have come to his Aſſiſtance. For this purpoſe, the Conſpirators were divided into Three Parties, and were to make their Approaches Three ſeveral ways; One of which was to attack the Guards in the Front, the other in the Rear, whilſt Ten or Twelve of the bloodieſt amongſt them were to aſſaſſinate his Majeſty in his Coach.

The Day appointed for Aſſaſſination of the King.

The 15th of February was the Day appointed to act this barbarous Tragedy; and the Conſpirators having long kept Two Men at Kenſington, to watch the King's going to hunt, which was commonly every Saturday; one of theſe Orderly Men (for ſo they call'd them) brought them word, that the King did not go abroad that Day. This Diſappointment was ſome Alarm to their Fears of a Diſcovery; and thereupon Ploudon, Kendrick and Sherburn, began to be timorous, declin'd the Action, and withdrew themſelves. But the boldeſt of the Plotters, Sir George Barclay, Sir William Perkins, Captain Porter, and Mr. Goodman, had another Meeting, and there reſolv'd to execute their bloody Project on Saturday, February the 21ſt. That Morning was ſpent in an eager Expectation of the News that the King was gone abroad; but inſtead of that Account, Keys, one of their Orderly Men at Kenſington, brought Advice, That the Guards were all come back in a Foam; and that there was a Muttering among the People, That a damnable Plot was diſcover'd. This aſtoniſhing News alarm'd and diſpers'd all the Conſpirators, and drove them to ſhift for themſelves by a ſpeedy Flight.

The Plot diſcover'd;

Nor were Keys's Report and their Apprehenſions groundleſs, for the Plot, and every Step of it from Time to Time, had been diſcover'd by Richard Fiſher, and ſomething of it by Mr. Grimes, to the Earl of Portland. Fiſher had his Knowledge of it from Harriſon the Prieſt, who took him to be one of their Party; and Grimes had ſome dark Hints from another; But both refuſing to give his Lordſhip the Names of the Conſpirators, little Credit was given to their Informations, till they were confirm'd by other Teſtimonies.

Chiefly by Mr. Pendergraſs.

Mr. Pendergraſs, who was wholly ignorant of the Deſign till he was ſent for to London, being ſtruck with Horror at the firſt Propoſal of it, even then took up a Reſolution to ſave his Majeſty's Life; tho' the better to manage his intended Diſcovery, he ſeem'd willing to engage in the helliſh Enterprize. This Gentleman, on the 14th of February at Night, went to the Earl of Portland, and being admitted to Privacy with his Lordſhip, (tho' wholly a Stranger) without further Addreſs, accoſted his Lordſhip with this ſurprizing Requeſt: Pray, my Lord, perſuade the King to ſtay at Home To-morrow; for if he goes abroad to hunt, he will be murder'd. The ſame Night, tho' late, he was introduc'd to his Majeſty, and diſcover'd the whole Plot: And his whole Deportment ſhewing him to be a Man of Honour, a great Streſs was laid upon his Information.

Mr. De La Rue.

The next Day after, Mr. De La Rue made the ſame Diſcovery; which he would have done before, but that his Friend, Brigadier Lewſon, who deſign'd to introduce him to the King, was gone out of Town. Upon his Return to London, Brigadier Lewſon acquainted the King, That Mr. De La Rue had inform'd him of a Deſign carrying on to aſſaſſinate his Majeſty; and propos'd a way, if the King thought fit, how all the Conſpirators might be taken in Arms. Tho' Pendergraſs and De La Rue acted upon a ſeparate Bottom, yet they punctually agreed in all the Circumſtances of the Conſpiracy; which render'd their Diſcovery unqueſtionable: But yet both peremptorily refus'd to name the Conſpirators; which might have been of fatal Conſequence, if the Earl of Portland had not found the happy Expedient to prevent it, by perſuading his Majeſty to give himſelf the Trouble of examining them ſeparately in his Cloſet. The King having accordingly, on February the 21ſt, examin'd Mr. Pendergraſs before the Earl of Portland and the Lord Cutts, and Mr. De La Rue, before the ſame Earl and Brigadier Lewſon; his Majeſty ſhew'd himſelf extremely well ſatisfied in the Truth of their Diſcoveries; and in a very obliging manner expreſs'd his Reſentment for their Generoſity, in the great Care and Zeal they ſhew'd for the Preſervation of his Life, and the Safety of the Kingdom; and at laſt gave them ſuch unanſwerable Reaſons, why, as Men of Honour, and Lovers of their Country, they ſhould compleat their Duty and Affection, by naming the Conſpirators, as quite overcame their former Unwillingneſs, and prevail'd with them to tell the Names of the Aſſaſſins, under the Promiſe of not being made uſe of as Evidences. But not many Days after, Mr. Pendergraſs hearing that Mr. Porter (who engaged him in the Plot) had, by an allowable Stratagem, been frighted into a Diſcovery, and accuſed him; he thought himſelf diſcharg'd from any Obligation of Honour in concealing it; and therefore afterwards came in as an Evidence at Charnock's Tryal.

Murder of the King to have been ſeconded by an Invaſion.

This Execrable Murder of the King was to have been ſeconded by a dreadful Invaſion of the Kingdom: New Levies had been made in France this Winter; and a great Number of Forces were drawn toward Dunkirk and Calais, which gave no ſmall Umbrage to the Confederates, and eſpecially to the Dutch, who feared thoſe Troops were to inſult their Coaſts with the Shipping prepar'd for them. But the Deſign was quickly unravell'd: For towards the Beginning of February, it was a publick Diſcourſe in France, That his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty was now fully reſolved to re-eſtabliſh King James; and had concerted Meaſures ſo well, that nothing remain'd but a fair Wind, and a few Days to compleat the Glorious Work. And indeed, the Poſture of Affairs in England ſeem'd favourable enough for ſuch a daring Enterprize: For at this Time a very inconſiderable Number of Troops were left in England; the great Ships, that were ſome Months before return'd from the Mediterranean with Admiral Ruſſel, were laid up; and ſuch as were fitted out, had Orders to ſail (with a great Fleet of Merchant-Men) to the Streights, in order to enable Sir George Rooke to defend that Paſſage againſt the Thoulon Fleet.

On

1695. 7 W. 3.

K. James at Calais in Expectation of Succeſs.

On February the 18th, King James came in a Poſt-Calaſh to Calais; and immediately upon his Arrival, the Troops, Artillery and Stores were order'd to be put on Board with the utmoſt Diligence; whilſt the Signal was impatiently expected from the Jacobites in England, to ſet Sail. And ſo confidently ſure they were in France of a ſucceſsful Expedition, that the Duke of Orleans urg'd it as an Argument to the Duke of Savoy, to make his ſeparate Peace before the total Overthrow of the Confederates, which of Neceſſity muſt attend the Reſtoration of King James. Upon the firſt News of King James's coming to Calais, the Duke of Wirtembergh diſpatch'd one of his Aids de Camp to King William, to give his Majeſty Notice of it; and to acquaint him, That the Duke had ſtopp'd all the Ships in the Harbour and Canal of Oſtend, as well as of Bruges, in order to tranſport the Forces under his Command for his Majeſty's Service: And that in caſe he did not quickly hear from his Majeſty, he would run the Hazard of bringing them over; which he accordingly did, with great Affection and Honour. This Meſſenger narrowly eſcaping the French at Sea, got to the Engliſh Court on Feb. 22. And immediately after, the King received other Expreſſes from the Duke of Bavaria and the Prince of Vaudemont, who were then at Bruſſels.

Proclamation againſt the Traytors.

King William now having a perfect Knowledge of the Double Blow from Abroad and at Home, on Feb. 23. publiſh'd his Proclamation, To diſcover, take, and apprehend James Duke of Berwick, Sir George Barclay, Major Lowick, George Porter, Captain Stow, Captain Walbank, Captain James Courtney, Lieutenant Sherburn, Brice Blair, ------ Dinant, ------ Chambers, ------ Boiſe, George Higgens, and his Two Brothers, Sons to Sir Thomas Higgens, ------ Davis, Cardell Goodman, ------ Crambourne, ------ Keys, ------ Pendergraſs, ------ Bryerly, ------ Trevour, Sir George Maxwell, ------ Durance, a Flemming, Chriſtopher Knightley, Lieutenant King, ------ Holmes, Sir William Perkins, and ------ Rookewood, as wicked and traiterous Perſons, who had entred into a horrid and deteſtable Conſpiracy, to aſſaſſinate and murder his Majeſty's Sacred Perſon, &c. With a Promiſe of One thouſand Pounds Reward for every Offender that ſhould be taken and brought to Juſtice. The Forces in England were ordered to be in a Readineſs to march; a Train of Artillery was prepar'd to attend them. Admiral Ruſſel repair'd immediately to Deal, to take upon him the Command of the Fleet; which, by a particular Providence, had been detain'd many Weeks in the Downs, by contrary Winds, and which was ſoon reinforc'd by other Men of War from the River, and Twelve Dutch Ships from Spithead. So that in Five or Six Days time, this induſtrious Admiral had near Sixty Men of War; with which he ſtood over directly for the Coaſts of Calais and Dunkirk, and ſtruck Terror and Amazement on the Enemy, who could now truſt to nothing but their Harbours.

Immediately after the Royal Proclamation was out, Mr. George Hains, one of the Perſons that was ſent out of France, to obey the Orders of Sir George Barclay, and was actually engag'd in the Aſſaſſination-Plot, reſign'd himſelf to Sir William Trumbal; and confeſs'd the double Deſigns, tho' he was not able to tell the particular Circumſtances that were to attend them. So that every Day producing freſh Evidences of the Jacobite Conſpiracy, the King thought it Time to communicate the Diſcovery of it to the Two Houſes. Hence, on Monday, February 24. the King, with uſual Solemnity, came to the Houſe of Peers; and ſending for the Commons, gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for Taking, Examining, and Stating the Publick Accounts. 2. An Act for Repairing the High-Ways, between the City of London and Town of Harwich, in the County of Eſſex. 3. An Act for Naturalizing of Henry de Naſſau, and other Children of Henry de Naſſau, Seignior de Overquerque. 4. An Act to enable John Fowne, Eſq; to Sell certain Lands in the County of Devon, which were ſettled on his Marriage; and to Settle other Lands of an equal Value to the ſame Uſes. And afterwards his Majeſty was pleaſed to make this Speech to both Houſes.

The King communicates his Deliverance to the Two Houſes.

Acts paſſed.

1695. 7 W. 3.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Am come hither this Day upon an extraordinary Occaſion, which might have proved fatal, if it had not been diſappointed by the ſingular Mercy and Goodneſs of God; and may now, by the Continuance of the ſame Providence, and our own prudent Endeavours, be ſo improv'd, as to become a ſufficient Warning to us, to provide for our Security againſt the pernicious Practices and Attempts of our Enemies.

"I have received ſeveral concurring Informations of a Deſign to aſſaſſinate me, and that our Enemies at the ſame time are very forward in their Preparations for a ſudden Invaſion of this Kingdom; and have therefore thought it neceſſary to loſe no Time in acquainting my Parliament with thoſe Things, in which the Safety of the Kingdom, and the Publick Welfare, are ſo nearly concern'd, that I aſſure my ſelf, nothing will be omitted on your Part, which may be thought proper for our preſent, or future Security.

"I have not been wanting to give the neceſſary Orders for the Fleet; and I hope we have ſuch a Strength of Ships, and in ſuch a Readineſs, as will be ſufficient to diſappoint the Intentions of our Enemies.

"I have alſo diſpatch'd Orders for bringing home ſuch a Number of our Troops, as may ſecure us from any Attempt.

"Some of the Conſpirators againſt my Perſon are already in Cuſtody, and Care is taken to apprehend ſo many of the reſt as are diſcovered; and ſuch other Orders are given, as the preſent Exigency of Affairs does abſolutely require at this Time for the Publick Safety.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"Having now acquainted you with the Danger which hath threatned Us, I cannot doubt of your Readineſs and Zeal to do every thing which you ſhall judge proper for our Common Safety: And I perſuade my ſelf, we muſt be all ſenſible how neceſſary it is in our preſent Circumſtances, that all poſſible Diſpatch ſhould be given to the Buſineſs before you.

Upon this excellent Speech, the Two Houſes immediately agreed to wait upon the King that very Evening at Kenſington, with this Humble Addreſs.

Addreſs of both Houſes.

Die Lunæ 24 Feb. 1695.

"We your Majeſty's moſt Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, having taken into our ſerious Conſideration what your Majeſty hath been pleaſed to communicate to us this Day, think it our Duty, in the firſt place, to give your Majeſty moſt humble Thanks for having acquainted your Parliament with the great Danger your Sacred Perſon hath been ſo nearly expoſed to, and the Deſign of an Invaſion from our Enemies Abroad. We heartily congratulate your Majeſty's happy Preſervation, and thankfully acknowledge the ſignal Providence of God in it; and at the ſame time, declare our Deteſtation and Abhorrence of ſo villanous and barbarous a Deſign: And ſince the Safety and Welfare of your Majeſty's Dominions do ſo entirely depend upon your Life, we moſt humbly beſeech your Majeſty to take more than ordinary Care of your Royal Perſon. And we take this Occaſion to aſſure your Majeſty of our utmoſt Aſſiſtance to defend your Perſon, and ſupport your Government againſt the late King James,

1695. 7 W. 3.

" and all other your Enemies both at Home and " Abroad; hereby declaring to all the World, " That in caſe your Majeſty ſhall come to any violent Death, (which God forbid) we will revenge " the ſame upon all your Enemies, and their Adherents: And as an Inſtance of our Zeal for your " Majeſty's Service, we will give all poſſible Diſpatch to the Publick Buſineſs. And we make it " our Deſire to your Majeſty, to ſeize and ſecure all " Perſons, Horſes and Arms, that your Majeſty " may think fit to apprehend upon this Occaſion.

His Majeſty gave the Two Houſes this agreeable Anſwer.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

I thank you heartily for this kind Addreſs. On my Part, you may be aſſured, that I will do all that is within my Power, for the Conſervation of this Kingdom, to which I have ſo many Obligations. I will readily adventure my Life for the Preſervation of it, and recommend my ſelf to the Continuance of your Loyalty and Good Affections.

This Plot had a good Effect on the Two Houſes.

The Houſe of Commons dropt the Senſe of all former Animoſities, and generouſly fell into the immediate Meaſures of Reſpect and Loyalty to the King; giving a new Proof of this Obſervation, That Plots, when diſcover'd, ſtrengthen the Government they were deſign'd to ruin. On the ſame Day with the Speech and Addreſs, they order'd, " That Leave " be given to bring in a Bill to empower his Majeſty " to ſecure and detain ſuch Perſons as his Majeſty " ſhall ſuſpect are conſpiring againſt his Perſon or " Government." They gave ſeveral Inſtructions for the more effectual raiſing the Militia. They reſolv'd, " That Leave be given to bring in a Bill, " That whenever it ſhall pleaſe God to afflict theſe " Realms by the Death of his preſent Majeſty, the " Parliament then in being ſhall not be diſſolved " thereby, but ſhall continue until the next Heir to " the Crown in Succeſſion, according to the late Act " of Settlement, ſhall diſſolve the ſame. And that " an humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, " that he will pleaſe to iſſue his Royal Proclamation " to baniſh all Papiſts from the Cities of London " and Weſtminſter, and Ten Miles from the ſame: " And give Inſtructions to the Judges going the Circuits, to put the Laws in Execution againſt Papiſts and Non-Jurors." And as the greateſt Teſt of Loyalty, they drew up this Form of Aſſociation, to be ſubſcribed by all the Members.

Form of Aſſociation.

" Whereas there has been a horrid and deteſtable Conſpiracy formed and carried on by Papiſts, " and other wicked and traiterous Perſons, for aſſaſſinating his Majeſty's Royal Perſon, in order to " encourage an Invaſion from France, to ſubvert our " Religion, Laws and Liberty; we whoſe Names " are hereunto ſubſcribed, do heartily, ſincerely and " ſolemnly profeſs, teſtify and declare, That his " preſent Majeſty King William is Rightful and " Lawful King of theſe Realms. And we do mutually promiſe and engage to ſtand by and aſſiſt " each other to the utmoſt of our Power, in the " Support and Defence of his Majeſty's moſt ſacred " Perſon and Government, againſt the late King " James, and all his Adherents. And in caſe his " Majeſty come to any violent or untimely Death, " (which God forbid) we do hereby further freely " and unanimouſly oblige our ſelves to unite, aſſociate, and ſtand by each other, in revenging the " ſame upon his Enemies, and their Adherents; " and in ſupporting and defending the Succeſſion " of the Crown, according to an Act made in the " Firſt Year of the Rign of King William and Queen " Mary, Entitled, An Act declaring the Rights and " Liberties of the Subject, and ſettling the Succeſſion " of the Crown.

1695. 7 W. 3.

To be ſubſcrib'd by all Members.

This Aſſociation was on the Three following Days ſign'd by all the Members that came to the Houſe; and becauſe ſome others had abſented themſelves upon Pretence of Health or Buſineſs, but in reality to avoid ſetting their Hands to an Acknowledgment of King William being Rightful and Lawful King: It was therefore ordered on Feb. 27. " That ſuch " Members of the Houſe who had not already " ſign'd the Aſſociation, ſhould do it by Monday " Fortnight, or declare their Refuſal, nothwith" ſtanding their Leave to be abſent." On the appointed Day, March 16. the Names of ſuch Members were called over as were abſent upon the laſt Call of the Houſe; and ſeveral of them being ſtill abſent in the Country, or ill in Town, ſignifying their Intentions to ſign the Aſſociation, were excuſed their Attendance: And the Speaker was ordered to write to ſuch Members as are in the Country, and have not ſigned the Aſſociation, or declared their Refuſal ſo to do, to know what they will do, and to return their Anſwer by the firſt Opportunity. And at the ſame time the Clerk of the Houſe was to attend ſuch Members as were ill in Town with the ſaid Aſſociation, in order to their ſigning the ſame, or receiving their Anſwer of Refuſal. The abſent Members ſeeing themſelves ſo preſs'd, and the Nation at this Time in ſo great a Ferment againſt the Diſaffected, thought it Prudence to yield to the Times, and either to ſubſcribe the Aſſociation, or to promiſe to do it upon their firſt coming up to Town, tho' it was againſt the Inclination of ſome; and, perhaps, againſt the Principles of others.

Honours and Preferments.

As to the Honours or Preferments diſpoſed ſince the King's Return. On Octob. 14, when the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Lieutenancy of London, came to congratulate his Majeſty's ſafe and happy Return, and the glorious Succeſs of his Arms, with hearty Wiſhes for his long and proſperous Reign, his Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Edward Wills and Owen Buckingham, the preſent Sheriffs. On Octob. 29. his Majeſty was pleaſed, upon the Death of Sir Giles Eyres, one of the Juſtices of the Court of King's-Bench, to appoint Sir Tho. Rokeby, one of the Juſtices of the Common-Pleas, to ſucceed him; and Sir John Powell, one of the Barons of the Exchequer, was made one of the Juſtices of the Common-Pleas; and Sir Littleton Powys, Serjeant at Law, and one of the Juſtices of Cheſter, came into his Place in the Exchequer. Some few Days before, the King, at Althrop, conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon John Combs, Eſq; Chief Juſtice of Cheſter; and on Nov. 8. his Majeſty was pleaſed to grant to Sir Salathiel Lovell, Serjeant at Law, Recorder of London, the Office of Second Juſtice of the Counties of Cheſter, Flint, Denbigh, and Montgomery, in the room of Sir Littleton Powys. At Kenſington, Jan. 6. his Highneſs the Duke of Glouceſter, to whom the King paid a particular Affection and Reſpect, was elected into the moſt Noble Society of the Garter, and Knighted and Inveſted with the Enſigns of that Order. On Jan. 10. his Majeſty was pleaſed to create the Lord George Hamilton, Earl of Orkney, in the Kingdom of Scotland, in conſideration of his

The King, to encourage the Fidelity of his Seamen, and to provide for the better Reception and Maintenance of ſuch as ſhould be maimed and diſabled in his Service, granted a Commiſſion to ſeveral Perſons for building and governing the Royal Hoſpital at Greenwich. Dated Weſtminſter, March 12. In the Seventh Year of our Reign. Printed by Charles Bill, Fol. I have ſeen a good Learned Letter from the Reverend Mr. Flamſteede, to the excellent Judge of Marine Affairs, Mr. Pepys, dated from his Royal Obſervatory at Greenwich, April 19. 1697. recounting the many Advantages that may be propos'd from Seminaries of well educated Seamen; and repreſenting the Condition of Navigation, as well before the Invention of the Compaſs, as betwixt that Invention and the Diſcoveries of the Indies, and the great Improvements made in later Times.

Services

1695. 7 W. 3. Services in Ireland and Flanders, upon many Occaſions during this War. On Jan. 13. his Majeſty was pleaſed to declare John Lord Murray, eldeſt Son to the Marquis of Athol, one of the Principal Secretaries of State for the Kingdom of Scotland, in the Place of the Lord Stairs. On Feb. 6. the King conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Col. Willoughby Chamberlain of Barbadoes, for his good and faithful Services in that Iſland. On March 22. his Majeſty beſtow'd the like Honour of Knighthood upon Charles Turner, Eſq; one of the Members of Parliament for the Corporation of Lynn Regis.

The laſt thing done in the Parliament this Year, was his Majeſty's coming to the Houſe of Peers on Saturday, March 7. and giving the Royal Aſſent to theſe ſeveral Publick and Private Bills.

Acts paſſed. 1. An Act for continuing ſeveral Duties granted by former Acts upon Wine and Vinegar, and upon Tobacco and Eaſt-India Goods, and other Merchandizes imported, for carrying on the War againſt France. 2. An Act for empowering his Majeſty to apprehend and detain ſuch Perſons as he ſhall find Cauſe to ſuſpect are conſpiring againſt his Royal Perſon and Government. 3. An Act for taking off the Obligation and Encouragement for coining Guineas for a certain Time therein mention'd. 4. An Act for Relief of Poor Priſoners for Debt or Damages. 5. An Act for making Navigable the Rivers of Wye and Lugg, in the County of Hereford. 6. An Act to enable Truſtees to exchange Lands of Sir James Chamberlain, Baronet, an Infant, lying in the Common Hill or Fields of Selford, in the County of Oxford, for like Quantities of Lands there, in order to the making an Incloſure. 7. An Act for Naturalizing James Stanhope, Eſq; and others. 8. An Act to enable the Pariſh of St. James's within the Liberties of the City of Weſtminſter, to raiſe upon themſelves ſo much Money as will diſcharge their Debt for building their Pariſh-Church, Rector's Houſe, Veſtry, and other Publick Works there. 9. An Act to Aſcertain and Settle the Payment of the Impropriate Tithes of St. Lawrence Old Jewry, in London, to the Maſter and Scholars of Baliol College in Oxford, and for confirming an Award made concerning the ſame. 10. An Act to enable Truſtees to make and fill up Leaſes of the reſpective Eſtates of Bluett Wallop, Eſq; and John Wallop, Gent. during their Minorities, and to purchaſe other Lands by the Fines thereby to be received, to the ſame Uſes as the Eſtates ſo to be leaſed are already ſettled. 11. An Act for Naturalizing Solomon Eyme, and others. 12. An Act for enabling Truſtees to ſell the Manor of Peſpoole, in the County of Durham, part of the Eſtate of William Midford, an Infant, for Payment of Debts and Incumbrances charged thereon; and for preſerving the reſt of the ſaid Infant's Eſtate. 13. An Act to confirm and eſtabliſh an Exchange made between Thomas Ryder, Eſq; 1695. 7 W. 3. and Chriſtopher Clithero, Eſq; of certain Meſſuages in London, for the Manors of Bilſington, and other Lands in Kent of the like Value.

In the State of Religion, the peſtilent Sect of the State of Religion. Socinians, by the Countenance of the Act of Toleration, and the looſe Sentiments of ſome of our own Divines, had gotten conſiderable Ground in England ſince the Revolution; and being favour'd by the Licentiouſneſs of the Preſs, they publiſh'd many of their The Socinians very diligent. Pamphlets, enough to provoke any Chriſtian Government. To check their Inſolence, Dr. Sherlock, Dean of St. Paul's, undertook the Vindication of the Orthodox Doctrine concerning the Trinity; but becauſe Myſteries of Faith, being above Reaſon, are not to be explain'd by Reaſon, elſe they would ceaſe to be Myſteries, it far'd with the Doctor, that whilſt he en- Unhappy Diſpute between Dr. Sherlock and Dr. South. deavour'd to prove Three Diſtinct Perſons, he was charg'd with proving Three Diſtinct Gods; having aſſerted, That there were in the Godhead, Three Minds, Three Beings, and Three Intelligences. This new Explication giving the Unitarians occaſion to triumph, Dr. South, one of the Prebends of Weſtminſter, and a Divine of great Parts, undertook to confute Dr. Sherlock's new way of vindicating the Trinity. His Antagoniſt was not ſilent, but by way of Recrimination, attempted to prove that Dr. South's Doctrine ſavour'd of Sabellianiſm. The Quarrel grew hot, the Two Doctors were learned and witty in their ſeveral Anſwers and Replies, and ſome of their Seconds began to come in to each ſide. On the Feaſt of St. Simon and Jude, this Year, at Oxford, a Fellow of Univerſity College, in a Publick Sermon before the Univerſity, fell in with the Notions of Dr. Sherlock, and aſſerted, Preacher in Oxford Cenſur'd. (a) That there were Three infinite Diſtinct Minds and Subſtances in the Trinity; and alſo, That the Three Perſons in the Trinity, are Three Diſtinct Minds or Spirits, and Three Individual Subſtances. The Friends of Dr. South made a Complaint of theſe Words, and procured them to be cenſur'd by a ſolemn Decree in Convocation, Nov. 25. wherein they Judge, Declare, and Determine the aforeſaid Words lately deliver'd in the ſaid Sermon, to be Falſe, Impious, and Heretical, diſagreeing and contrary to the Doctrine of the Catholick Church, and eſpecially to the Doctrine of the Church of England, publickly received. This Solemn Decree was ſo far from compoſing the Differences, that it ſerv'd rather to irritate the Parties, and to let the Socinians make their Advantage of it. It was now The King's Injunctions for Unity in the Church. therefore high time for the King to interpoſe his Royal Authority, by giving theſe excellent Directions to the Archbiſhops and Biſhops, for the preſerving Unity in the Church, and the Purity of the Chriſtian Faith concerning the Holy Trinity.

(a) Decretum Domini Vice-Cancellarii & Præfectorum Collegiorum & Aularum Univerſitatis Oxon. in Conventu eorundem habito 25. Novemb. 1695. ex quo judicant declarant & decernunt hæc verba in Concione nuper prolata eſſe falſa impia & hæretica, There are Three infinite Diſtinct Minds and Subſtances in the Trinity. Item, The Three Perſons in the Trinity, are Three diſtinct Minds or Spirits, and Three Individual Subſtances. Impreſs. Oxon.

See, 1. An Account of the Decree of the Univerſity of Oxford againſt ſome Heretical Tenets. 2. A modeſt Examination of the Oxford Decree, by William Sherlock, D. D. Dean of St. Pauls. 3. Remarks upon Dr. Sherlock's Examination of the Oxford Decree. 4. What Dr. South has ſaid upon this Occaſion in his Preface to the Tranſlation of the Hiſtory of Valentinus Gentilis. Dr. South therein complain'd of his Brother, Dr. Payne, Preb. of Weſtminſter, Rector of Whitechapel. " Says he, " The Doctrine of Three Eternal Spirits in the Bleſſed Trinity, " which was Tritheiſm, as firſt vented and aſſerted by Dr. Sherlock, and ſince that by one J. B. Miniſter of Folkſtone in " Kent, and Preach'd up before the Univerſity of Oxford, by a " Fellow of Univerſity College, has been lately maintained, " and with great and even foaming Vehemence preached up " in one of the moſt eminent Cathedrals in England, by one " of the Prebendaries of the ſame: Firſt, on the 30th of " November, 1695, and ſince that, on the 12th of Jan. 169⅚. " whoſe Name, together with the Heterodoxies then and there " deliver'd by him, are ready to be produc'd, as there ſhall " be Occaſion.

Sir Thomas Cooke of Bentley, in the County of Worceſter, Baronet, who had founded and endowed a School at Broomſgrove, in the ſaid County, in 1693. did ſince that Time, eſtabliſh a like School at Feckenham; and by Deed, dated about 24. March, 1695. ſettled on Truſtees Fifty Pounds per Ann. for a Schoolmaſter and Twelve poor Boys, with the ſame Allowance and Rules as at Broomſgrove, aforeſaid. Sermon of Dr. Jepthcott in 1697.

The Biſhop of London being ſenſible of the ſad Spiritual Eſtate of the poor Priſoners in Newgate, had enjoin'd the Clergy of the City to enter into a Combination of viſiting by Turns the Dying Criminals; as thus remembred by Mr. Crook, in the Dedication of his Two Sermons preached before the Condemned Criminals at Newgate, 1795. to the Biſhop of London. " My " Lord, Theſe Diſcourſes are the immediate Effect of your " Lordſhip's tender Regard for the miſerable Objects they " were directed to. The ſad and difficult Buſineſs of Newgate " is a Task above the Labour of any one Perſon; and there- " fore your Lordſhip's charitable Appointment of ſome of " our Clergy carefully to aſſiſt the Ordinary every Seſſions, " is an Act of the greateſt Compaſſion, and will, without " doubt, be readily obey'd. Neither was the Piety of the " Civil Magiſtrate wanting in ſo good a Deſign; for, God be " thanked, there was a direct Invitation, and the higheſt En- " couragement from the late Lord Mayor, Sir Thomas Lane, to " the Performance of it.

1695. William R.
7 W. 3. "MOST Reverend, and Right Reverend Fathers in God, we Greet you well. Whereas we are given to underſtand, that there have of "late been ſome Differences among the Clergy of "this our Realm, about their Ways of expreſſing "themſelves in their Sermons and Writings, concerning the Doctrine of the Bleſſed Trinity, which "may be of dangerous Conſequence, if not timely "prevented: We therefore, out of our Princely Care, "and Zeal for the Preſervation of the Peace and "Unity of the Church, together with the Purity of "the Chriſtian Faith, have thought fit to ſend you "theſe following Directions, which we ſtraitly "Charge and Command you to Publiſh, and to "ſee that they be obſerved within your ſeveral "Dioceſes.

"I. That no Preacher whatſoever, in his Sermon "or Lecture, do preſume to deliver any other Doctrine concerning the Bleſſed Trinity, than what "is contain'd in the Holy Scriptures, and is agreeable to the Three Creeds, and the Thirty-Nine "Articles of Religion.

"II. That in the Explication of this Doctrine "they carefully avoid all new Terms, and confine "themſelves to ſuch Ways of Explication, as have "been commonly uſed in the Church.

"III. That Care be taken in this Matter, eſpecially to obſerve the Fifty-Third Canon of this "Church, which forbids publick Oppoſition between Preachers; and that above all Things they "abſtain from bitter Invectives, and ſcurrilous Language againſt all Perſons whatſoever.

"IV. That the foregoing Directions be alſo obſerved by thoſe who Write any thing concerning "the ſaid Doctrine.

"And whereas we alſo underſtand, that divers "Perſons who are not of the Clergy, have of late "preſumed, not only to Talk and Diſpute againſt "the Chriſtian Faith, concerning the Doctrine of "the Bleſſed Trinity, but alſo to Write and Publiſh Books and Pamphlets againſt the ſame, and "induſtriouſly ſpread them through the Kingdom, "contrary to our known Laws Eſtabliſhed in this "Realm: We do therefore ſtrictly Charge and "Command you, together with all other Means "ſuitable to your Holy Profeſſion, to make uſe of "your Authority according to Law, for the Repreſſing and Reſtraining of all ſuch Exorbitant Practices. And for your Aſſiſtance we will give Charge "to our Judges, and all other our Civil Officers, to "do their Duty herein, in Executing the Laws "againſt all ſuch Perſons as ſhall by theſe Means "give Occaſion of Scandal, Diſcord, and Diſturbance in our Church and Kingdom.

Given at our Court at Kenſington the Third Day of February, 1695. In the Seventh Year of our Reign: By his Majeſty's Command.

SHREWSBURY.

Archbiſhop Teniſon, who in all his private Stations had been an Eminent Example of doing Good, was now careful to ſerve the Church in a more publick Manner; and therefore he had not only prevail'd with the King to ſend out thoſe Injunctions, that Reinforced the wholeſome Diſcipline of the Church and Clergy, and likewiſe to give thoſe Directions, for the preſerving Unity and Purity of Faith; but his Grace ſent abroad his own Circular Letter to all the Suffragan Biſhops of his Province, Dated July 16, 1695. to recommend ſuch Rules and Orders, as (if well obſerved) would mightily tend to the Peace and Honour of the Eſtabliſhed Church. The Letter runs thus: — The Archbiſhop's Letter.

My very good Lord,

"Having well conſider'd the following Particulars, together with ſuch of our Brethren, as were "in or near London, and believing them to be "Means very proper for the promoting the Glory "of God, and the Edification of his Church; I "do hereby recommend them to you, as I have "alſo done to the reſt of the Biſhops of this Province, deſiring you and them, to ſee them carefully obſerv'd in your reſpective Dioceſes.

"In the firſt place, It is the King's Pleaſure, "That you take eſpecial Care concerning the late "Act againſt Prophane Curſing and Swearing; "not only, that it be publickly Read as the Law "has in that Caſe provided, but that the Clergy "be directed both in their Catechizing and Sermons, to inſiſt often upon thoſe Points, to the "end, that by God's Bleſſing upon their Faithful "Endeavours, a Stop may be put to thoſe Execrable Wickedneſſes, which, if they be ſuffer'd to "continue, will bring down God's heavy Judgments upon this Church and Nation.

"Secondly, There are alſo other Acts to be Read "publickly in Churches, which yet are not Read "(as I underſtand) in many Places. I deſire you "to remedy that Neglect. — 3. Jac. 1. c. 1. &c. See the King's Letter. An. 1689. Sect. 7.

"Thirdly, It ſeems very fit, that you require "your Clergy in their Prayer before Sermon, to "keep to the Effect of the 55th Canon: It being "commonly reported, that it is the manner of "ſome in every Dioceſe, either to uſe only the "Lord's Prayer (which the Canon preſcribes as "the Concluſion of the Prayer, and not the whole "Prayer) or at leaſt to leave out the King's Titles, "and to forbear to Pray for the Biſhops as ſuch. — Canon 55. An. 1603.

"Fourthly, I commend to your Care the Preaching of your Clergy in the Afternoons, upon Catechetical Heads, both that the People may be the "better rooted and grounded in the Faith, and alſo kept from other Aſſemblies.

"A Fifth Particular recommended to you, is, "That you be very careful in the giving of Inſtitutions; and particularly, That you uſe good and "diligent Examination and Care to foreſee and prevent all Simoniacal Pacts or Covenants with the "Patrons, or the Preſenters, for the Spoil of their "Glebe, Tythes, or Manſion-Houſes; and in eſpecial manner, thoſe Artificial Bargains, which are "made by Bonds of Reſignation. — Art. An. 1564. for certifying Orders in Eccleſiaſtical Polity.

"A Sixth is, The cauſing of Stipends of Curates to be proportioned to the Value of the Benefice, and the Greatneſs of the Duty required "of them; eſpecially where the Incumbent is a "Pluraliſt, and cannot conſtantly reſide in Perſon. "That the Service of God may not ſuffer by the "Employing of ſuch Ignorant and Scandalous Men "as theſe Incumbents generally procure, who "chuſe to have ſuch for their Curates, as will ſerve "for the meaneſt Salaries.

"A Seventh is, The preventing of Dilapidations, "eſpecially where Pluraliſts do not keep conſtant "Reſidence: Towards which, frequent Views of "Chancels, and Parſonage and Vicaridge-Houſes, by "your Arch-Deacon or Arch-Deacons, or other "Officers, and Reports made to you upon thoſe "Views, will much conduce. And as for ſuch, "who upon any Pretences whatſoever, deſire a "Diſpenſation of Non-Reſidence, I intreat you not "to grant it to any of them, without their giving "ſufficient Security to keep their Chancels, and "Parſonage or Vicaridge-Houſes in good Repair, if they be ſo already; or if not, to put "them in good Repair with all convenient Speed, "and to keep them ſo for the future.

"The Eighth is, Your cauſing the Clergy to "purſue very carefully the End of the Eighty-Seventh Canon, relating to Terriers of Glebe-Lands, and other Poſſeſſions belonging to Churches; "for want of which, great Controverſies daily "ariſe, and the Rights of the Church are often loſt.

"The Ninth is, your hindring (as much as in "you lies) all ſuch from being Surrogates, who "are not qualified by the Canon; and to ſee that "none be inſtrumental in diſpatching Licenſes of "Marriage, and Solemnization of Matrimony Illegally, — Can. 128. An. 1603.

1695. 7 W. 3.

Vid. Art. pro Clero. Sect. 3, 4. & Can. An. 1571. Sect. Forma Sent. excommun.

" gally, or in pronouncing the Sentences of Ex-" communication and Abſolution, without ſuch So-" lemnity as that great and weighty Affair requires.

" Tenthly, When any Miniſter removes out of " your Dioceſe into another, to any Cure of Souls, " I deſire you in a Letter to the Biſhop, into whoſe " Dioceſe he is going, to give a juſt Character of " him. Alſo when any ſuch Miniſter comes into " your Dioceſe, not to admit him, but with the " like Letter from his former Dioceſan; or in a " Vacancy, from the Guardian of the Spiritualties.

" Eleventhly, I beſeech you to think of, and to " uſe all proper Methods for the time to come, for " the preventing of ſuch from being admitted into " Holy Orders, who are not likely to purſue the " Sacred Ends of them. Some ſuch Methods I " here lay before you, deſiring you to take them " into your Conſideration.

" 1ſt, That you take all poſſible care, that there " be good School-Maſters in the ſeveral Publick " Schools within your Dioceſe, not Licenſing any " but ſuch as upon Examination ſhall be found of " ſufficient Ability, and do exhibit very ſatisfactory " Teſtimonials of their Temper and good Life; " that ſo in the Education of Youth, eſpecially " ſuch as are deſign'd for Holy Orders, there may " not be an ill Foundation laid.

Can. 34. An. 1603.

" 2dly, That you Ordain no Man Deacon or " Prieſt, who hath not taken ſome Degree in School " in one of the Univerſities of this Realm, unleſs " in ſome Extraordinary Caſe.

" 3dly, That you accept of no Letters Teſtimo-" nial brought by Perſons to be Ordained, unleſs " there be a Clauſe inſerted in them by the Teſti-" fiers to this Effect, That they believe them to be " Qualified for that Order, into which they deſire " to be admitted.

Vid. Art. An. 1564. for certifying Orders in Ecclesiastical Polity.

" 4thly, That as ſoon as any apply to you " for Holy Orders, you give timely Notice of this " at the Place where the Perſon reſides, or lately re-" ſided, that ſo the Exceptions againſt him, (if any ſuch there be) may come timely to your know-" ledge.

" 5thly, That when any Perſon comes to you to " be Ordained, you lay it upon his Conſcience, to " obſerve ſuch Faſting as is preſcribed upon Ember-" Days, and to give himſelf in moſt ſerious man-" ner to Meditation and Prayer. After ſome com-" petent time after every Ordination, whether intra " or extra Tempora, at leaſt between Michaelmas " or Chriſtmas, I deſire you to ſend a Return under " your Hand, atteſted by the Arch-Deacon, and " ſuch other Clergymen as aſſiſted at the Ordina-" tion, containing the Names and Sir-Names of " all the Perſons then Ordained; the Place of their " Birth, their Age, and College where they were " Educated, with the Degree they have taken in " the Univerſity, the Title upon which they were " Ordained, and upon whoſe Letters Demiſſory, if " they came out of another Dioceſe; and to ſub-" join a particular Account of all ſuch as then of-" fer'd themſelves to Ordination, and were refuſed; " as alſo of the Reaſons for which they were re-" fuſed. All which I undertake and promiſe, to " cauſe to be Enter'd into a Leidger Book for that " Purpoſe. By this means counterfeit Orders may " be detected; Men who come up for Preferment " may be the better underſtood and diſtinguiſh'd; " and ſuch who have had the Misfortune either to " loſe their Orders or to want them here, upon " any emergent Occaſion may be in ſome Meaſure " helped.

" And that the King may be the better enabled " to give you his further Aſſiſtance, in theſe and " other Affairs of the Church, you are deſired and " required to comply with his Majeſty's Command " to me ſignified, in giving me an Account of " what has been done in your Dioceſe, in purſuance " of his Injunctions, when you come next to Par-" liament; as alſo of the preſent State of it, in as " particular Manner as you well can; that ſuch " Accounts may be laid before him, in order to the " Supplying of what is Wanting, and Rectifying " of what is Amiſs. Not doubting of your Lord-" ſhip's Care and Zeal in theſe weighty Matters, " I recommend you, and all your Affairs to the " Bleſſing of God Almighty, and Remain

Your very Loving Friend and Brother,
Tho. Cantuar.

1695. 7 W. 3.

1696. Parliament Sitting.

We left the Parliament ſitting, and the Commons taking the needful Aſſociation, the Form whereof with their Subſcriptions to it they preſented to his Majeſty in a Body, on Friday April 3. and at the ſame time requeſted his Majeſty, that he would be pleaſed to Order, " That the ſaid Aſſo-" ciation, and all other Aſſociations by the Com-" mons of England, might be lodg'd among the " Records of the Tower. Upon which Occaſion his Majeſty was pleaſed to ſay,

Gentlemen,

King's Speech on the Aſſociation.

" I take this as a moſt Convincing and moſt Ac-" ceptable Evidence of your Affection: And as " you have freely Aſſociated your ſelves for our " Common Safety, I do heartily enter into the " ſame Aſſociation, and will be always ready with " You and the reſt of my good Subjects, to ven-" ture my Life againſt all who ſhall endeavour to " ſubvert the Religion, Laws, and Liberties of En-" gland. And I will take care, that this and all " other Aſſociations preſented to Me be lodged " among the Records in the Tower.

Upon Report of this gracious Acceptance, the next Day the Houſe Reſolved, " That whoever " ſhall by Word or Writing affirm, That the Aſ-" ſociation enter'd into by any Member of this " Houſe, or any other Perſon is Illegal, ſuch Per-" ſon ſhall be deem'd a Promoter of the Deſigns " of the late King James, and an Enemy to the " Laws and Liberties of this Kingdom." Soon after, the Houſe of Lords agreed in the ſame Aſſociation, and preſented it to the King; and the Example of both Houſes of Parliament was followed by all the Corporations of the three Kingdoms.

A Bill for Security of his Majeſty's Perſon, &c.

On April 2. Upon a Report of the Examination and Confeſſion of Sir William Perkins and Sir John Friend, it was Reſolved, That a Bill be brought in for the better Security of his Majeſty's Perſon and Government; and that the Heads of the Bill ſhould be, 1. That ſuch as ſhall refuſe to take the Oaths to his Majeſty, ſhall be ſubject to the Forfeitures and Penalties of Popiſh Recuſants Convict. 2. To inflict a Penalty on ſuch as ſhall by Writing, or otherwiſe, Declare, That King William is not Lawful and Rightful King of theſe Realms; or that the late King James, or the pretended Prince of Wales, or any other Perſon, than according to the Act of Settlement of the Crown, hath any Right to the Crown of theſe Realms. 3. To Ratify and Confirm the Aſſociation enter'd into by all his Majeſty's good Subjects, for the Preſervation of his Majeſty's Perſon and Government. 4. That no Perſon ſhall be capable of any Office of Profit or Truſt, Civil or Military, that ſhall not ſign the ſaid Aſſociation. 5. That the ſame Penalties be inflicted on ſuch as come out of France, as upon thoſe that go thither.

(a) See the Declaration and Profeſſion of the Reverend Mr. John Kettlewell, (who departed this Life, Apr. 12. 1695.) made by him at the Receiving of the Holy Sacrament of the Lord's-Supper, March 23, 1694-5, from the Hands of the Right Reverend Father in God, William Lord Biſhop of Norwich, Deprived. Printed at the end of the Second Edition of Mr. Kettlewell's Practical Believer.

The

1696.
8 W. 3.

Civil Liſt and the diſtreſſed French Proteſtants.

The Commons had conſidered that part of his Majeſty's Speech at the opening of this Parliament, wherein he recommended to them the Civil Liſt, and the (a) Diſtreſſed French Proteſtants. And the Committee of the whole Houſe having ſat ſeveral times on that Affair; it was at laſt Reſolved on March the 17th, that the Sum of Five Hundred Thouſand Pounds be granted for defraying the Expences of the Firſt, and Fifteen Thouſand Pounds for the Relief of the Latter; which Sums on March the 28th they reſolved to raiſe by a Duty upon all Low-Wines, and Spirits of the Firſt Extraction, and alſo upon all mixt Liquors, commonly called Sweets, for the ſpace of Five Years, from the 25th of March, 1696. And the Committee who were to prepare this Bill were inſtructed to receive a Clauſe for preſerving the Revenue to her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Anne of Denmark.

Bill for a Land-Bank.

The Bill for continuing ſeveral Duties upon Salt, for taking off thoſe of Tonnage upon Ships, and upon Coals, and for Eſtabliſhing a National Land-Bank, having been read a Second Time, the Committee of the whole Houſe (to whom it was committed) were inſtructed, on March the 18th, to reſtrain the Bank not to lend Money but upon Land-Security, or to the Government into the Exchequer; and to receive a Clauſe, That if the Money did not come in by a certain Time, his Majeſty might be enabled to borrow the ſame. The next Day, the Bank of England preſented a Petition againſt this Bill, and were afterwards (by Order of the Houſe) heard by their Council, but without Succeſs; ſo that the Houſe went on with the Bill, and reſolved on April the 9th, "Firſt, That towards the Supply to be "granted to his Majeſty, for making up the Fund "of Intereſt of Seven per Cent. for Two Millions "Five Hundred Sixty Four Thouſand Pounds, (the "Capital Stock of the intended National Land-"Bank) certain Duties upon Glaſs-Wares, Stone and "Earthen Bottles, granted before to the King for "a Term of Years, be granted to his Majeſty, his "Heirs and Succeſſors. Secondly, That a Duty be "laid upon Tobacco-Pipes: And Thirdly, That a "further Duty be laid upon all Stone and Earthen "Ware." Which Reſolutions were order'd to be inſerted in the Bill for Settling the National Land-Bank.

Acts paſſed.

On Friday, April the 10th, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to theſe ſeveral Bills. 1. An Act for granting to his Majeſty ſeveral Rates or Duties upon Houſes, for making good the Deficiency of the Clipp'd Money. 2. An Act for granting to his Majeſty an Additional Duty upon all French Goods and Merchandizes. 3. An Act for the Continuing, Meeting, and Sitting of a Parliament, in caſe of the Death or Demiſe of his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors. 4. An Act for Continuing Four former Acts, for preventing Theft and Rapine upon the Northern Borders of England. 5. An Act for Raiſing the Militia for the Year One Thouſand Six Hundred Ninety Six, altho' the Month's Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 6. An Act for further Regulating Elections of Members to ſerve in Parliament, and for the preventing irregular Proceedings of Sheriffs, and other Officers, in the Electing and Returning ſuch Members. 7. An Act for Continuing ſeveral former Acts, for Puniſhing Officers and Soldiers, who ſhall mutiny, or deſert his Majeſty's Service; and for Puniſhing falſe Muſters; and for Payment of Quarters for One Year longer. 8. An Act for the Increaſe and Encouragement of Seamen. 9. An Act for Preventing Frauds, and Regulating Abuſes in the Plantation Trade. 10. An Act to encourage the bringing Plate into the Mint to be Coined, and for the further remedying the ill State of the Coin of this Kingdom. 11. An Act requiring the Practiſers of the Law to take the Oaths, and ſubſcribe the Declaration therein mention'd. 12. An Act for the Repair of the Highways between Wymondham and Attleborough in the County of Norfolk. 13. An Act for Empowering the moſt Noble Anne Dutcheſs of Buccleugh, and the Right Honourable James Earl of Dalkeith, her Son, of the Kingdom of Scotland, to grant Leaſes for Improving a Piece of Ground in the Pariſh of St. Martin's in the Fields, in the County of Middleſex. 14. An Act to enable Truſtees to raiſe Money for the making a Wet Dock, and Improving the Eſtate of the Marquis and Marchioneſs of Taviſtock, at Rotherhith in the County of Surrey. 15. An Act to Naturalize William, commonly called Viſcount Tunbridge, and other Children of the Earl of Rochfort. 16. An Act for the better Improvement of a Houſe and Ground in Great Queenſtreet. 17. An Act to enable Truſtees to ſell a Meſſuage, Garden and Out-Houſes in Lincolns-Inn-Fields, late of Sir Robert Sawyer, Knight, deceaſed; and for Purchaſing other Lands and Tenements, to be ſettled to the ſame Uſes. 18. An Act for Settling divers Lands and Rent-Charges on the Rector of the Church of Maidwell, in the County of Northampton, and his Succeſſors; and in Lieu thereof, for Settling other Lands, and diſcharging Tithes belonging to the ſaid Church, according to ſeveral Agreements between the Patron and the ſaid Rector, made upon the Encloſing of Lands in Maidwell, and afterwards (with the Conſent of the Ordinary) confirm'd by ſeveral Decrees in the Court of Chancery. 19. An Act for Settling the Perſonal Eſtates of Richard Jones, Eſq; and Mary Gifford, Spinſter, Minors, in Truſtees, for the Purpoſes therein mentioned. 20. An Act for the better Supplying the City of Briſtol with Freſh Water. 21. An Act for Erecting of Hoſpitals and Work-Houſes within the City of Briſtol, for the better Employing and Maintaining the Poor thereof. 22. An Act for making good the laſt Will of Sir William Barkham, Baronet, deceaſed, and Veſting of Lands in Truſtees, to be ſold for Payment of his Debts, and making Proviſion for his Children. 23. An Act to enable Sir Charles Heron, Baronet, to ſell Lands for Payment of a Portion and Debts. 24. An Act to enable Sir Thomas Wagſtaff, Knight, to raiſe and ſecure a Portion for Frances, his only Daughter and Heir apparent. 25. An Act for Veſting a Moiety of the Manor of Shipton Mallet, in the County of Somerſet, and a divided Moiety of the Manor of Wells, in the ſaid County, in Truſtees, to be ſold, for Payment of a Mortgage charged thereon; and for making a Proviſion for the Maintenance of Mary, the Wife of William Sands, Eſq; and her Children. 26. An Act for making the Towns of Stretton and Princethorp, a ſeparate Pariſh from Woolſton in the County of Warwick. 27. An Act for Veſting Part of the Eſtate of Joſeph Dawſon, Eſq; in Truſtees, for Payment of Debts, and for a Proviſion for the Maintenance and Marriage of his Daughters. 28. An Act for the Sale of the Lands in Horſington, in the County of Somerſet, Part of the Eſtate of William Ridout, an Infant, for Payment of Incumbrances charged thereon, and for Preſerving the Reſidue of the ſaid Eſtate for the Infant. 29. An Act for Veſting certain Lands of Thomas Bigg and his Wife, in Chiſlett, in the County of Kent, in Truſtees, for Payment of Debts, and making Proviſion for their Children.

(a) The Diſtribution of the King's Charity to the French Refugees, rais'd a Complaint among thoſe who had not been conſider'd in it. There was a Memorial deliver'd unto the King's Majeſty, this preſent January, 1695. containing thoſe Reaſons which were offer'd by the poor Exil'd Miniſters of the Goſpel of the French Nation, and now living in England, why thoſe French Gentlemen who have hitherto diſtributed the King's Charity to them, ſhould not be any longer employ'd in that pious Office. With a Catalogue of thoſe poor Miniſters of the Goſpel of the French Nation, who are refugee'd here in England, groaning under ſore Wants, Oppreſſions, and deplorable Neceſſities.

1696. 8 W. 3.

There was another Bill that had paſs'd both Houſes, for the Regulating Elections of Members to ſerve in Parliament; to which his Majeſty did not give his Royal Aſſent. This Omiſſion was ill reſented by ſome of the Commons, who valued themſelves on the projecting of it; and they hop'd, on this Occaſion, to make an open Rupture, which muſt have been fatal at this Juncture: Therefore, on Tueſday, April the 24th, a Motion was made, and the Queſtion was put, "That whoſoever adviſed his Majeſty not to give the Royal Aſſent to the Bill for further Regulating Elections of Members to ſerve in Parliament, (which paſſed both Houſes) is an Enemy to the King and Kingdom." But the Majority were ſo wiſe as to decline the Occaſion of any Difference; and therefore for the Affirmative of the Queſtion, there were but Seventy Voices; while for the Negative, there was no leſs than Two Hundred and Nineteen. And it was order'd, "That the Speaker do (with the Votes) print this Queſtion, together with the Numbers of the Affirmative and Negative.

Bill for regulating Elections not paſſed.

Other Acts paſſed.

On Monday, April the 27th, the King came to the Houſe of Lords, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for laying ſeveral Duties upon Low Wines, or Spirits of the firſt Extraction; and for preventing the Frauds and Abuſes of Brewers, Diſtillers, and other Perſons chargeable with the Duties of Exciſe. 2. An Act for Continuing to his Majeſty certain Duties upon Salt, Glaſs-Wares, Stone and Earthen Bottles; and for granting ſeveral Duties upon Tobacco-Pipes, and other Earthen Wares; for carrying on the War againſt France, and for Eſtabliſhing a National Land-Bank, and for taking off the Duties upon Tonnage of Ships, and upon Coals. 3. An Act for the Enforcing the Laws which reſtrain Marriages, either without Licenſe, or Banns; and for the better Regiſtring Marriages, Births and Burials. 4. An Act for the better Security of his Majeſty's Perſon and Government. 5. An Act for the more effectual Preventing the Exportation of Wooll, and for Encouraging the Importation thereof from Ireland. 6. An Act for Encouraging the Linnen Manufacture of Ireland, and Bringing Flax and Hemp into, and Making of Sail-Cloth in this Kingdom. 7. An Act for Continuing ſeveral Acts of Parliament therein mentioned. 8. An Act for taking away the Cuſtom of Wales, which hinders Perſons from Diſpoſing their Perſonal Eſtates by their Wills. 9. An Act for the Eaſe of Jurors, and better Regulating of Juries. 10. An Act for the better Repairing and Amending the Highways, and Explanation of the Laws relating thereunto. 11. An Act for Encouragement of Charitable Gifts and Diſpoſitions. 12. An Act for the better Encouragement of the Green-Land Trade. 13. An Act that the Solemn Affirmation and Declaration of the People call'd Quakers, ſhall be accepted inſtead of an Oath, in the uſual Form. And Laſtly, An Act for Re-veſting in his Majeſty the Honour of Tutbury, Foreſt of Needwood, ſeveral Manors, Parks, Lanes, and Offices, and other Profits thereunto belonging; and for Vacating certain Letters Patents therein mentioned. Then his Majeſty made this Speech to both Houſes.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"YOU have ſhewn ſo great Concern for my Perſon, and Zeal for my Government; and have done ſo much for the Preſervation of the one, and for the Strengthening of the other, by the Good Laws which have been made, and by the Supplies you have provided for the ſeveral Occaſions of this Year; that the late Deſigns of our Enemies are, by the Bleſſing of God, like to have no other Effect, than to let them ſee how firmly we are united, and to give me this Occaſion to acknowledge your Kindneſs, and to aſſure you of all the Returns which a Prince can make to his People.

1696. 8 W. 3.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"The Neceſſity of Affairs requiring my Abſence out of the Kingdom for ſome Time, I do earneſtly recommend to you, That in your ſeveral Stations, you will be aſſiſting to thoſe whom I ſhall leave to adminiſter the Government; and that you will be careful in preſerving the publick Peace of the Kingdom.

Then the Lord Keeper, by his Majeſty's Command, prorogued the Parliament till Tueſday the 16th Day of June next.

Other Bills dropp'd and loſt.

Beſides the Bills that were paſs'd this Seſſion, ſeveral others were begun, and loſt upon various Accounts: Such as, A Bill for Regulating Printing and Printing-Preſſes. Secondly, A Bill for Reverſing a Judgment given againſt Sir William Williams, in 2 Jac. II. for what he did as Speaker of the Houſe of Commons; and for Aſcertaining the Rights and Freedoms of Parliaments. Thirdly, A Bill for Settling and Regulating the Eaſt India Trade. Fourthly, Another to Regulate the Trade of Africa. Fifthly, A Bill to confirm the Earl of Torrington's Grant. Sixthly, Two Bills to Veſt in the Crown all forfeited Eſtates in England and Ireland, and to Vacate all Grants made thereof. Seventhly, A Bill to prevent Stock-Jobbing: And Eighthly, A Bill for preventing Papiſts from diſinheriting their Proteſtant Heirs.

Execution of Conſpirators.

We have already given an Account of the Diſcovery of the horrid Conſpiracy againſt the King's Life, and for invading the Kingdom; we muſt now give an Account of the Apprehenſion and Execution of the Chief Conſpirators. Great Diligence was us'd by the Government to apprehend the Conſpirators: In this Service, none ſhew'd more Zeal and Activity than the Lord Cutts, Colonel of his Majeſty's Foot-Guards; and the powerful Allurement of a Thouſand Pounds Reward inciting others to imitate his Lordſhip's Example, moſt of the Plotters (who had not committed their Safety to a ſpeedy Flight beyond Sea) were in a few Days ſecur'd. Porter, Harris, Bertram, Boys, Goodman, Pendergraſs, and De la Rue, came in voluntarily. The firſt of the Priſoners that were try'd, was Mr. Robert Charnock, a late Popiſh Fellow of Magdalen College, a Man of Parts and Bigotry, and one who (next to Sir George Barclay) was the chief Manager and Promoter of the intended Aſſaſſination. He did, with a good Preſence of Mind, and competent Knowledge of the Laws, and a Readineſs of Speech, make a long, but a frivolous Defence.

Charnock, King and Keys.

With Charnock were try'd Lieutenant King, and Thomas Keys, formerly a Trumpeter, and lately Captain Porter's Servant; who had little to ſay for themſelves: So that upon a full Hearing of the Evidence, they were all Three found guilty of High Treaſon, and executed at Tyburn upon the 18th of March. Before the Executioner did his Office, the Malefactors deliver'd each a Paper to the Sheriffs, wherein they confeſs'd the Crime they were accuſed of, but which they endeavour'd to palliate, and at the ſame Time to juſtify both King James, the Jacobites, and Roman-Catholicks. Mr. Charnock particularly own'd, That to facilitate King James's Invaſion upon England, himſelf and ſome others did agree to attack the Prince of Orange and his Guards: That as for any Order or Commiſſion of K. James's for aſſaſſinating the Prince of Orange, he neither ſaw nor heard of any; but had had frequent Aſſurances of his Majeſty's having rejected ſuch Propoſals, when they had been offer'd. That he did hear that there was a Commiſſion arriv'd for Levying of War; which was natural to believe, if the King was in ſuch Readineſs to come over as was reported; but that he never ſaw it. And as to what regarded the Body of the Roman-Catholicks, he muſt do them the Juſtice, That they had no manner of 1696. 8. W. 3.

Knowledge of this Deſign; nor did he believe it was communicated to any other Party of ſuch as were reputed the King's Friends, but carried on merely by a ſmall Number, without the Advice, Conſent or Privity of any Parties whatſoever.

Tryal of Sir John Friend and Sir William Perkins.

Sir John Friend and Sir William Perkins were brought to their Tryal at the Old Baily, on March the 23d and 24th, and were both brought in guilty of High Treaſon, and received Judgment. While they lay under Condemnation, a Committee was appointed by the Houſe of Commons to examine them: And on April the 2d, the Lord Marquis of Wincheſter reported to the Houſe, "That the Committee had gone yeſterday to Newgate; and had ſent for Sir William Perkins and Sir John Friend ſeverally, and acquainted them with the Order of the Houſe, and according thereunto did examine them: And that Sir William Perkins own'd his being privy to the intended Aſſaſſination, and of being in Company when it was diſcourſed of at Two or Three Meetings; and thinks it was a Fault that he did approve of it. That he had received Hints ſeveral times of King James's Deſign of coming over, and particularly now; and was reſolved to ſerve him whenever he came, with himſelf and Friends, thinking that he had Wrong done him; and that it was his Duty to help him whenever he could. That he conſulted not with any, but thoſe that he could engage, and he had an Influence upon. That he gueſſed he could have been able to have brought in to the Number of a Troop, but that he would never redeem his own Blood at the Expence of theirs that he had drawn in. That ſince Chriſtmaſs, he did ſee a Commiſſion, which he underſtood to be King James's, directed to his Loving Subjects, to levy War againſt the Prince of Orange, and all his Adherents. He believes it was ſigned by King James. That it had a Seal to it, and that he ſaw it in the Hands of a Friend, which he deſired not to name, but he believes he is not in England.

"And that Sir John Friend, on his Examination, diſowned knowing any thing of the intended Aſſaſſination, but expreſſed his Abhorrence of it. He confeſſed he was at the Two Meetings mention'd at his Trial, and that the Perſons named to be preſent, were there likewiſe; and that Charnock was ſent to France from one of thoſe Meetings, to acquaint King James, that if he would come over with Eight Thouſand Foot, and Two Thouſand Horſe, that Three or Four Thouſand Horſe would be ready to join him here; of which he did engage to furniſh about Two Hundred.

Their Execution.

On April 3. (a) Sir William Perkins and Sir John Friend were drawn on a Hurdle to Tyburn, and executed, according to the Sentence pronounced againſt them. Sir John Friend, tho' he had ſufficiently own'd his Guilt, yet he now endeavour'd to juſtify the Merit of his Cauſe, by ſaying, "That the Cauſe he ſuffer'd for, he did firmly believe to be the Cauſe of God and True Religion, and agreeable to the Laws of the Land, which he had ever heard to require a firm Duty and Allegiance. That as no Foreign, ſo neither any Domeſtick Power can alienate our Allegiance; for it was altogether new and unintelligible to him, That the King's Subjects can depoſe and dethrone him on any Account, or conſtitute any that have not an immediate Right to his Place: And that as they ought not to do this, ſo when it was done, to aſſiſt him in the Recovery of his Right, was juſtifiable, and their Duty. He profeſs'd himſelf a Member of the Church of England, which he heartily beſought God Almighty to bleſs and preſerve; to deliver this ſinful Nation from the Guilt of Rebellion, Blood and Perjury; to comfort the diſtreſſed King, reſtore him to his Right, and his miſled Subjects to their Allegiance; and to bleſs his Royal Conſort, and his Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales, That he might grow in Stature, and in Favour with God and Man." As for Sir William Perkins, he confeſs'd, "That he was privy to a Deſign upon the Prince of Orange, but was not to act in it; and he was fully ſatiſfy'd, that very few or none knew of it, but thoſe who undertook to do it. That he had ſeen the Commiſſion from K. James, to levy War againſt the Prince of Orange; but as for any Commiſſion particularly levell'd againſt his Perſon, he neither ſaw nor heard of any ſuch. That he thought it for his Honour, to ſay, That he was entirely in the Intereſt of King James, being always firmly perſuaded of the Juſtice of his Cauſe; and look'd upon it as his Duty, both as a Subject and an Engliſhman, to aſſiſt him in the Recovery of his Throne; which he believed his Majeſty to be deprived of, contrary to all Right and Juſtice; in which Opinion he took the Laws and Conſtitution of his Country for his Guide. And laſtly, That he died in the Communion of the Church of England, in which he was educated." It's remarkable, That Mr. Jeremy Collier, a Nonjuring Divine, who aſſiſted Sir William Perkins at the Place of Execution, pronounced both to him and to Sir John Friend, the Abſolution of the Church, as it ſtands in the Viſitation of the Sick, and accompanied this Ceremony with a ſolemn Impoſition of Hands. The Court, and indeed the Body of the Nation, were very much offended at this formal Act of Abſolution, which at firſt Bluſh ſeem'd to juſtify the Conſpiracy, and to recommend the Traytors: A Practice more becoming the Church of Rome, where many ſuch Criminals have been reputed Saints.

Abſolved at the Gallows.

Declaration of the Archbiſhops and Biſhops againſt this inſolent Act of Abſolution.

And therefore Fourteen of the Archbiſhops and Biſhops (who were all of that Order that were then in Town) publiſh'd a (b) Declaration; wherein they "Cenſured the Performance of this Office of the Church, without a previous Confeſſion made, and Abhorrence expreſs'd by the Priſoners, of the heinous Crime for which they died; as extreamly inſolent, and without Precedent in the Manner, and altogether irregular in the Thing it ſelf: It being a manifeſt Tranſgreſſion of the Church's Order, and prophane Abuſe of the Authority of Chriſt; ſince Mr. Collier, Mr. Snatt, and Mr. Cook, (the Three Nonjurors who attended the dying Malefactors) muſt look on the Perſons abſolv'd as Impenitents, or as Martyrs." An Account whereof was publiſh'd in Quarto, printed for John Everingham, and entitled, A Declaration of the Senſe of the Archbiſhops and Biſhops, now in and about London, upon the Occaſion of their Attendance in Parliament; concerning the irregular and ſcandalous

(a) See 1. A true Relation of the horrid Conſpiracy againſt the Life of the King; with an exact Liſt of the Priſoners committed to the Tower, Newgate, Gatehouſe, and the Fleet, upon the Account of the Plot. In a Letter to a Friend, 1696, 4to. 2. The Hiſtory of the late Conſpiracy againſt the King and the Nation; with a particular Account of the Lancaſhire Plot, and all other Attempts and Machinations of the diſaffected Party. 1696, 8vo. 3. An Account of the Execution of Brigadier Rookwood and Mr. Cranburn, at Tyburn, April the 29th, 1696. with their Confeſſion that they did know of the intended Aſſaſſination of the Prince of Orange.

See "A Form of Prayer and Thankſgiving to Almighty God, to be uſed on Thurſday the 16th of April, 1696. for diſcovering and diſappointing a horrid and barbarous Conſpiracy of Papiſts, and other Traiterous Perſons, to aſſaſſinate and murder his moſt Sacred Majeſty's Royal Perſon, and for delivering this Kingdom from an Invaſion intended by the French. By his Majeſty's Special Command." 4to.

(b) The Declaration was ſubſcribed; Tho. Cantuar. Jo. Ebor. H. London. N. Dureſme. P. Wincheſter. W. Cov. Litchf. Tho. Roffen. Sy. Elien. Gil. Hereford. Jo. Norwich. Ric. Peterburg. Ed. Glouceſter. Rob. Chicheſter. E. Aſaph.

I Proceed-

1696. 8 W. 3.

Proceedings of certain Clergymen, at the Execution of Sir John Friend and Sir William Perkins. On April the 7th, the Lord Chief-Juſtice of the King's-Bench did likewiſe repreſent to the Grand Jury the ſhameful and pernicious Practices of thoſe Three Abſolving Prieſts. Whereupon the Jury made a Preſentment to the Court; "That Collier, Cook and "Snatt, Clerks, did take upon them to pronounce "and give Abſolution to Sir William Perkins and "Sir John Friend, at the Time of their Execution "at Tyburn; immediately before they had ſeverally deliver'd a Paper to the Sheriff of Middleſex, "wherein they had ſeverally endeavour'd to juſtify "the Treaſons for which they were juſtly condemn'd and executed: And that they the ſaid "Collier, Cook and Snatt, had thereby countenanced "the ſame Treaſons, to the great Encouragement of "other Perſons to commit the like Treaſons, and "to the Scandal of the Church of England Eſtabliſhed by Law, and to the Diſturbance of the "Peace of the Kingdom." Upon which, the Court order'd an Indictment to be preferr'd againſt them; and on April the 8th, (a) Mr. Cook and Mr. Snatt were committed to Newgate, for Suſpicion of High Treaſon and Treaſonable Practices: But ſuch was the Lenity of the Government, that no manner of Puniſhment was inflicted on 'em; and Mr. Collier, with great Aſſurance, publiſh'd ſeveral Papers, to juſtify his Practice.

The Non-juring Abſolvers preſented.

And indicted.

Trial of other Traitors.

On Tueſday, April the 21ſt, Brigadier Rookwood, Major Lowick, and Mr. Crambourn, Three other Conſpirators, were brought to their Tryal, and were the firſt that had the Benefit of the Statute made this very Seſſion, to regulate Tryals in Caſes of High-Treaſon: But neither the Copy of the Indictment, which was deliver'd to them, nor the Advantage of being defended by Sir Bartholomew Shower, and Two other Eminent Lawyers, did avail them much; the Evidence againſt them being ſo plain and poſitive, that they were all Three found guilty, and received Sentence accordingly. Great Interceſſion was made by ſome Noblemen for the Life of Lowick; and Cramburn petition'd to be tranſported; but both to no purpoſe. Cramburn died on April the 29th, a Proteſtant; read a Paper, and ſpoke much to the Spectators; and ſaid, He ſuffer'd for his Loyalty; pretending what he would have done, was his Duty. Rookwood and Lowick died on the ſame Day, Roman-Catholicks; and deliver'd each a Paper to the Sheriffs, wherein they partly own'd their Crime, but juſtified King James as to the pretended Commiſſion for Murdering the Prince of Orange. Mr. Cooke and Mr. Knightley were the Two laſt that were try'd this Year: But tho' they received Sentence of Death, (the firſt upon his being convicted, and the other upon his freely confeſſing the Fact) yet upon his Majeſty's unparallel'd Clemency, Mr. Cooke was only baniſh'd England, and Mr. Knightley was graciouſly pardon'd.

1696. 8 W. 3.

Cooke and Knightley pardon'd.

As ſoon as the News came into Flanders, that the Conſpiracy was happily diſcover'd, the King ſafe, and England freed from the Apprehenſions of an Invaſion; the Prince of Vaudemont, and other Generals, bethought themſelves of making an extraordinary Bonfire for Joy, at the Expence of the French. In order to which, having drawn together a Body of Troops from ſeveral Gariſons, the Earl of Athlone and Lieutenant-General Cohorn marched from Namur on the 13th of March, (N. S.) with Forty Squadrons, Thirty Battalions, Fifteen Pieces of Cannon, and Six Mortars. While the Earl with the greateſt Part of theſe Forces inveſted Dinant, and kept in that Gariſon, the Engineer advanc'd with the reſt of the Troops (and all the Artillery) to Givet, where the Enemy had laid up a vaſt Magazine; and having got his Batteries in Readineſs, by the 16th in the Morning, he began to fire into the Town with Bombs and red-hot Bullets, which ſet both the Forage and Houſes on fire. At the ſame Time, a Detachment of Soldiers were commanded to enter the Town with large Flambeaux in their Hands; which they performed with great Bravery, firing the Cazerns and Granaries where the Oats and other Proviſions lay, ſo that the whole Town and Magazine were utterly conſumed; and all this executed with the inconſiderable Loſs of Nine or Ten Men. Not long after, Sir Cloudeſly Shovel ſail'd out of the Downs with ſeveral Men of War and Bomb-Veſſels; and being come to Calais, Captain Bembow, notwithſtanding the vigorous Oppoſition from the Enemies Boats and Half-Gallies, threw between Three and Four Hundred Bombs; moſt of which fell in the Town, and among the Embarkations, and ſet fire in Three or Four Places, and in ſome of the Veſſels in the Port. Tho' the Succeſs of this Bombardment did not anſwer either

Joy in Flanders for the King's Safety.

(a) The deprived Biſhops were not unreaſonably ſuſpected of being privy to theſe deſperate Deſigns againſt the Government; and the rather, becauſe they had unhappily recommended a Collection for their Friends in Diſtreſs, which might have ſome Appearance of raiſing a Fund for the Cauſe. Their Brief run thus: "To all Chriſtian People, to whom this Charitable Recommendation ſhall be preſented; Grace be to you, and Peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. "Whereas we the preſent depriv'd Biſhops of this Church "have certain Information, that many of our deprived Brethren of the Clergy, with their Wives, Children and Families, are reduced to extreme Want:—— Now we, in "Compliance with their Intreaty, and with all due Regard "to their ſuffering Circumſtances, have thought it our Duty "(as far as in Law we may) heartily to recommend their neceſſitous Condition to all pious and good People; hoping "and praying that they will take their Caſe into their ſerious "Conſideration, and putting on the Bowels of Charity, extend their Alms to them and their needy Families: And we "will not ceaſe to pray for a Bleſſing upon ſuch their Benefactors, and remain in all Chriſtian Offices,

Yours,

William, Biſhop of Norwich.
Robert, Biſhop of Gloceſter.
Thomas, Biſhop of Bath and Wells.
Thomas, Biſhop of Peterborough.

(Now depriv'd.)

See An Account of the Examination of Dr. Thomas Ken, deprived Biſhop of Bath and Wells, before the Privy Council; upon a Printed Paper ſubſcribed by him, and other deprived Biſhops, to beg the Alms of Charitable People; April 28. 1696. Biſhop Ken ſaid, "My Lords, I will ſincerely give your Lordſhips an Account "of the Part I had in it. The firſt Perſon who propos'd it "unto me, was Mr. Kettlewell, that Holy Man who is now with "God; and after ſome Time it was brought to this Form, "and I ſubſcrib'd it, and then went into the Country to my "Retirement, &c.

To prepare the Minds of the People for the Change now projected, the Party for King James had again been very loud for their Doctrines of Paſſive Obedience, and Submiſſion to the Divine Right of Princes by Inheritance, &c. and renew'd the Story of the Thebean Legion, to influence (if poſſible) the Military Power of the Government to ſtand ſtill at leaſt, and not oppoſe Him they were to call their Old Maſter. And indeed, moſt People were apt to take that Glory of the Thebean Legion for true Fact, if not for ſtrict Example. It was the greater Service to Truth and Liberty, to publiſh the following Treatiſe. An Hiſtorical Diſſertation upon the Thebean Legion; plainly proving it to be Fabulous. By John Dubourdieu, M. A. Chaplain to his Grace the Duke of Schombergh and Lemſter, and one of the Miniſters of the French Church in the Savoy. London, for R. Bentley, 1696. 8vo. In an Epiſt. Ded. to the Lord Mounthermer, he gives his Lordſhip the Hiſtorical Occaſion of it. "The Duke of Schombergh, whom I had the Honour to "ſerve as Chaplain, arriv'd at Turin the 18th of July, 1691. "——Upon the firſt Advantage againſt the French, a Holiday "was kept in Honour of the Thebean Soldiers, Solutor, Adventor, and Octavius, &c.

See Remarks on the Papers deliver'd by Sir William Perkins, and Sir John Friend, Knights, at their Execution. Printed by Edw. Jones, 1696. 4to. concluding——"Theſe Poor Gentlemen have carried their Burden along with them into another World, where I am afraid their Abſolution will ſerve "them in no ſtead. But I am ſure the Circumſtances of this "Execution let us all ſee in what Danger we are, when we "have among us ſuch a deſperate Crew, who have acted "ſuch a Part as theſe Abſolvers have done in ſo impudent "manner.

1696. 8 W. 3. the Expence or Expectation of the Engliſh, yet the Damage was not ſo inconſiderable as the French gave it out; it being certain that ſeveral Houſes were burnt and ſpoiled, beſides the Church and Convent, and ſome Part of the Cazerns: And 'tis remarkable, that the French have raiſed a Croſs and Oratory near a Shell, which to this Day ſticks in the Market-Place at Calais, where they often pray againſt the Fury of Engliſh Bombs; and which is no leſs a Monument of their Deliverance, than of their Fears.

Honours and Preferments. Before his Majeſty left England, he beſtowed Marks of his Royal Favour on ſeveral Perſons. On March the 31, he conferr'd the Honour and Dignity of a Baronet upon Mr. Richard Blackham, an eminent Turkey-Merchant, in conſideration of his Loyalty and Services. And upon the Occaſion of preſenting the Aſſociations, his Majeſty beſtow'd the Honour of Knighthood upon the Preſenters of them; as on Alexander Rigby, Eſq; who preſented the Aſſociation of Wigan in Lancaſhire: On William Milard, Eſq; High Sheriff of the County of Bedford: On Charles Morley, Eſq; one of the Repreſentatives in Parliament of the Borough of Hindon, in the County of Wilts: On George Hanger, Eſq; High-Sheriff of the County of Glouceſter; on John Elwill, Eſq; one of the Repreſentatives of Beeralſton; on John Robinſon, Eſq; one of the Burgeſſes for Sudbury; and the Dignity of a Baronet upon Thomas Wheat of Glympton, in the County of Oxford, Eſq;. On May 1. his Majeſty was pleaſed to declare in Council, that he had appointed the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Lord-Keeper, the Lord Pembroke, the Duke of Devonſhire, the Duke of Shrewsbury, the Earl of Dorſet, the Lord Godolphin, to be Lords Juſtices of England, for the Adminiſtration of the Government during his Majeſty's Abſence. At the ſame time, his Majeſty created Sir John Lowther of Lowther, Baronet, Baron Lowther of Lowther, and Viſcount Lonſdale in the County of Weſtmoreland. His Majeſty was alſo pleaſed to create Sir John Thompſon, Baronet, a Baron of this Kingdom, by the Stile and Title of Baron Haverſham of Haverſham, in the County of Bucks; and to conſtitute Sir Thomas Littleton, Baronet, one of the Lords Commiſſioners of the Treaſury; and to give to Chriſtopher Muſgrave, Eſq; the Office of Clerk of the Ordnance; and to James Lowther, Eſq; that of Clerk of the Delivery of the Ordnance. The ſame Day his Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Theodore Janſen, Eſq; for his good Services, and the Zeal he had on all Occaſions expreſs'd for his Majeſty's Government. And the ſame Evening, when the Venetian Ambaſſadors took their Leave of the King at Kenſington, his Majeſty Knighted Signior Soranzo, the Eldeſt of the Ambaſſadors, (as had been practiſed by his Royal Predeceſſors) and made him a Preſent of his Sword. Not long after, his Majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute and appoint the Lord-Keeper, the Preſident of the Council, the Lord Privy-Seal, the Firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, the Firſt Commiſſioner of the Admiralty, the two principal Secretaries of State, and the Chancellor of the Exchequer for the time being; and the Earls of Bridgwater and Tankerville, Sir Philip Meadhouſe, William Blathwaite, John Pollexfen, John Lock, Abraham Hill, and John Methuen, Eſquires, to be Commiſſioners for Encouraging, Improving, and Protecting the Trade of this Kingdom, and the Plantations, Manufactures, and Fiſhery of the ſame.

Lords Juſtices.

On Saturday, May 2. The King went from Kenſington, and Lay at the Houſe of Capt. Ball near Margate. The next Day about 2 in the Afternoon, his Majeſty went on Board his Yacht, the Wind being then at S. S. E. but it veering in the Evening to the Eaſtward, and there being an appearance of foul Weather, his Majeſty came on ſhoar (a) again. Two Days after, the Wind being more favourable, and the Weather very fair, he went on Board the Elizabeth, Commanded by Vice Admiral Aylmer, and on May 7. Landed ſafely at Oranie Polder, and about Midnight arrived at the Hague; and with all poſſible Expedition put himſelf at the Head of the Confederate Forces in Flanders. Tho' the French took the Field before the Allies, to whom they were at firſt ſuperior in Number, yet the latter being ſoon reinforced by the coming up of the Germans, and both Armies ſuffering equally for want of Pay; the French by reaſon of the general Poverty of their Kingdom, and the Engliſh on Account of the calling in the Money to be Recoined: The Generals on both ſides ſpent the whole Campaign in obſerving one another, and endeavouring to poſſeſs themſelves of the moſt convenient Camps, for the Subſiſtance of their indigent Troops. The Straits to which the Armies were reduc'd, ſeem'd to favour Monſieur Calliere's Negotiation; who before the King arriv'd at the Hague, was come thither from France, with Propoſals towards concluding a General Peace, by ſettling ſuch Preliminaries as might be a ſufficient Baſis to ground a Treaty upon. 'Tis generally believed, that hitherto there was little Diſpoſition in the French Court to a General Peace, wherein they foreſaw they muſt Sacrifice the Intereſt of King James, on whoſe Account chiefly the War was undertaken and carried on: But the Loſs of Namur, Cazal, and other Diſadvantages, without all doubt prevail'd on his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty to make theſe Advances; and nothing could have delay'd them ſo long, but the plauſible Hopes of Succeſs in the intended Invaſion of England, and that in ſuch a favourable Conjuncture as the Badneſs of our Coin rendred it. Now the former failing, and England having a fair Proſpect of overcoming all Difficulties in relation to the Money, there was no room for a longer delay. The King of France addreſs'd himſelf to the Dutch, becauſe he ſuppos'd that they could not but be weary of a tedious War, that had almoſt ruin'd their Trade, the only Spring of their Riches and Subſiſtance; and would therefore ſooner hearken to Peace, than either the Emperor or the King of England, whoſe Power and Authority daily increaſed, at leaſt among their reſpective Subjects, by the continuance of the War. It's true, the Hollanders had an abſolute Dependance upon his Britannick Majeſty, not only becauſe he was their Stadtholder, but alſo becauſe ſince their firſt Settlement they always found it, and eſteem'd it their Intereſt to keep cloſely united to England, in order to maintain a Balance between the Houſes of Bourbon and Auſtria, and preſerve themſelves from being cruſh'd by either: Yet, as the French King was at laſt reſolv'd to acknowledge King William's Title to the Crown of England, ſo he believ'd that what Ties ſoever there might be between his Britannick Majeſty and the Dutch, the latter would never coldly entertain the Propoſals which he deſign'd to make them; ſince by removing this great Obſtacle, the Way ſeem'd to lie fair and open to a General Peace.

1696. 8 W. 3. The King goes for Holland. And puts himſelf at the Head of the Army. Inclinations toward a General Peace.

The States of Holland finding by the French King's Propoſals, and his Offers to deliver up ſo many Places, that there was room for an honourable

(a) See "A Form of Prayer to be uſed next after the "Prayer in the Time of War and Tumults, in all Churches "and Chapels, at Morning and Evening Prayer, as often as "there is Divine Service, during the Time of his Majeſty's "Abſence. By his Majeſty's Special Command.

"A Form of Prayer to be uſed throughout the whole Realm, "on Wedneſday the 19th of June, being the Faſt-Day ap-"pointed by Proclamation, for a Bleſſing in the Preſervation "of his Majeſty's Sacred Perſon. and the Proſperity of His "Arms, both at Sea and Land. By Order of the Lords "Juſtices.

and

1696. 8 W. 3.

and laſting Peace, made Monſieur Cailliere a favourable Reception; but yet refuſed either to grant him a Paſſport, but by the concurring Allowance of King William; or to Treat with him without the Conſent of his Britannick Majeſty, and their other Allies. This was no more but what Monſieur Cailliere expected; for tho' at the Treaty of Nimeguen, the French Plenipotentiaries found a way to draw the Dutch to a ſeparate Peace, by making them Jealous of the then Prince of Orange; yet he was perſuaded that the Hollanders were by this time too ſenſible of their former Miſtake, to ſuffer the French to play the ſame Game over again. However, Monſieur Cailliere having poſitive Orders from his Maſter not to acknowledge King William till he had good Aſſurances of the Peace, he found out an Expedient, which was, That the States and he ſhould come to a final Concluſion; but if they found reaſon to diſagree upon any Point, that the ſame ſhould not be communicated to their Allies. To this Medium the Dutch readily conſented; and amongſt other Particulars, demanded as Preliminaries of this Treaty, the Reſtitution of Lorrain, and of the Towns of Straſburgh and Luxemburgh. Monſieur Cailliere granted both, in his Maſter's Name; but upon Condition, that Lorrain ſhould be reſtored to the Duke of that Name, on ſuch Terms only as had been agreed to at Nimeguen. This was oppoſed by the Preſident Canon, who took care of the Duke of Lorrain's Intereſt in Holland, under pretence that when his Maſter enter'd into the Grand Alliance, the Confederates engag'd never to conclude a Peace, till he had full Satisfaction done him; urging, that if the Duke's Dominions were not reſtor'd to him but upon the Terms of the Peace of Nimeguen, he ſhould rather be a Loſer than a Gainer by the Confederacy, ſince he could have made a better Bargain with the French King before he enter'd into the War. But as in moſt Alliances great Potentates ſeldom regard the Concerns of thoſe Petty Princes they have engag'd in their Quarrel, when they have no need of them; ſo the Allies after having ſpoke once or twice in the Duke of Lorrain's Behalf, thought it not worth their while to inſiſt any longer upon that Affair; tho' Preſident Canon gave in ſeveral Memorials, which were ſome time back'd by the Imperial Miniſters, whoſe Maſter was deſirous to prolong the Concluſion of the Treaty, which would leſſen the Dependance of the German Princes upon him. Things being thus far advanced on the Part of the Dutch, and the Engliſh being rather inclin'd than averſe to a Peace, by reaſon of their great Loſſes at Sea, their heavy Taxes at Home, and the diſheartning Proſpect of getting nothing by the War, it was agreed on all Hands, thro' the Mediation of the King of Sweden, and the wiſe Management of the Baron de Lilienroot, his Ambaſſador in Holland, That Plenipotentiaries ſhould be nam'd to bring that to Perfection, which as yet was only begun.

To make the Spaniards the more willing to put an End to the War, the Duke de Vendoſme, who this Year commanded the French Forces in Catalonia, reſolv'd to make them feel the Power of his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's Arms, by attacking them in their Camp near Oſtalrick. In order to that he paſs'd the River Ter; and underſtanding that the Spaniſh Cavalry, commanded by the Prince of Heſſe Darmſtadt, had advanced out of the Lines to obſerve him, he fell upon them firſt with great Vigor. The Spaniards ſeeing none but Horſe appear againſt them in the beginning, reſolutely ſtood their Ground, and forc'd ſome of the French Squadrons to recoil; but when they ſaw the Number of the Enemy increaſe, and a ſtrong Body of Infantry come up to ſupport them, they retreated in very good Order, under the Cannon planted on their Lines, where the French, greedy of Purſuit, met with ſuch a warm Entertainment as quickly oblig'd them to retire in their Turn. In this Fight, which was the only Action worth remark, that happen'd this Year on this ſide, the Spaniards by their own Confeſſion loſt near 300 Men, and the French about 200.

1696. 8 W. 3.

The Campaign on the Rhine was ſtill more inconſiderable. Indeed the French in the beginning of the Spring boaſted their paſſing that River, and forc'd Prince Lewis of Baden to intrench himſelf to avoid an Engagement: But now towards the end of the Year, the Prince in his Turn croſſes the Rhine near Mentz; and being join'd by the Heſſian Troops advances to Newſtadt, where the French were ſo ſtrongly intrench'd, that all he could do was to Cannonade them for ſeveral Days. It was at the ſame time ſo contriv'd, that General Thungen ſhould have paſs'd the Rhine, not far from Philipsburg, in order to have attack'd the French in the Rear; but they having notice of that Deſign, detach'd the Marquiſs d Uxelles to diſappoint it; ſo that the Germans, after they had got ſome Booty, and divers Hoſtages for Contribution, repaſs'd the Rhine towards the beginning of October, and then march'd into Winter-Quarters.

The main Buſineſs of this Year, in relation to the Grand Confederacy, was manag'd on the ſide of Italy. During the Winter, the Court of France renew'd their Intrigues with the Duke of Savoy, to engage him to a ſeparate Peace: The Pope's Nuncio, and the Venetian Envoy, ſeconded the Deſigns of that Crown; and in his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's Name, made ſuch large and advantageous Offers to his Royal Highneſs, that he at laſt reſolv'd to accept them. 'Tis true, he was tyed by his Word and Honour to the Confederates, but now-a-days the ſignification of theſe Terms among Princes ſeems to be reſtrain'd to Policy and Intereſt; and, not to mention the Example of his Predeceſſors, his Royal Highneſs had often ſeen this Maxim confirm'd by the Practice of ſome of his Neighbours. But beſides, he wanted not plauſible Reaſons to juſtify his Conduct; for tho' England and Holland had ever punctually paid in the Subſidies they had promis'd him, and even ſomething more, yet the Emperor and King of Spain were much behind-hand in their Contributions and Supplies. Indeed the Allies did not fail to aſſure his Royal Highneſs that they would procure him Conditions at the general Treaty, as much, if not more advantageous than thoſe France offer'd him at preſent: But thoſe were looſe and diſtant Promiſes, and thoſe of France certain and at Hand; and ſupported beſides by Threats from that Crown to invade the reſt of the Duke's Country next Summer with a formidable Army. However, tho' his Royal Highneſs urg'd the Probability of the Effects of this Meaſure to juſtify his Conduct to the Allies; yet 'tis certain, a ſtronger Motive inclin'd him to a ſeparate Peace, and that was the Matching his Eldeſt Daughter to the Dauphin's Eldeſt Son. It was not ſafe to conclude this Treaty at Turin where the Duke was narrowly obſerv'd by the Vigilant Lord Galloway; and therefore his Royal Highneſs, to avoid the prying Sagacity of that Miniſter, went towards the Cloſe of the Winter with a ſmall Retinue of his own naming, to our Lady of Loretto, concealing a Political Journey, under the pretence of a Religious Vow. This gave no ſmall Umbrage to the Lord Galloway, who knowing the Prince to be more a Stateſman than a Bigot, and being refus'd to accompany him, ſent Spies after his Royal Highneſs: But notwithſtanding all their Watching, they could never get the leaſt notice of the Treaty of Peace, which the Duke Sign'd at Lorettò by the Mediation of the Agents of Rome and Venice, and a private Meſſenger from the Mareſchal de Catinat. By this Treaty the French reſtor'd to his Royal Highneſs all the new Conqueſts they had made; as alſo Pignerol demoliſh'd, gave him Four Millions of Livres, towards the Reparation of the Damages he had

Duke of Savoy makes a ſeparate Peace.

ſuſtain'd

1696. 8 W. 3. ſuſtain'd during the War; engaged to aſſiſt him with 8000 Foot and 4000 Horſe to be maintain'd at the Charge of the King of France; and that a Marriage between the Duke of Burgundy, and the Princeſs, his Royal Highneſs's Daughter, ſhould forthwith be treated on, to be conſummated as ſoon as they ſhould be of Age. As for the Princeſs's Portion, it was agreed that the Duke ſhould give her Two hundred thouſand Crowns of Gold; toward the Payment of which, his Royal Highneſs was to give a Diſcharge for 100000 Crowns of Gold which remain'd due by France to the Houſe of Savoy, as part of the Dutcheſs Royal's Portion: And the Remainder the King of France promis'd to remit, in conſideration of this preſent Treaty, of which the Pope and Venetians were Guarantees, and which was ſoon after ratified in France.

Match of the Duke of Burgundy with a Daughter of the D. of Savoy.

Nor were our Affairs at Sea much more ſucceſsful than at Land. All Things betray'd on all Sides a Weakneſs and Wearineſs of War. At the firſt breaking out of the Plot, Sir George Rook commanding the Fleet at Cadiz, had Orders ſent him to return home; and he ſafely came upon our Coaſts towards the latter end of April. This diſſipated the Fears of England, leſt the French Fleet from Thoulon ſhould overtake and ruin our inferior Number of Ships. And indeed the French were not far behind; for before Sir George could purſue the Orders of joining with ſome Men of War that lay in the Downs, and then bearing for the Coaſt of Breſt to intercept and fight them, they were got ſafe into that and other neighbouring Ports of France. Hereupon Sir George Rook left the French Coaſt, and went into Torbay, May 23. from whence he ſet out for London, to aſſiſt at the Admiralty Board, having reſign'd the Command of the Fleet to the Lord Berkley, who about June 24. ſail'd out of Torbay, ſteering his Courſe toward Uſhant, in order to inſult the Coaſt of France. On July the 3d. his Lordſhip commanded the Burford and the Newcaſtle Men of War, with a Fireſhip, to land on the Iſland of Groy, and at the ſame Time ſome ſmall Veſſels were ſent along the Shore. The next Day the Fleet came to an Anchor about two Leagues off Belle-Iſle, and the Barges and Pinnaces were immediately Mann'd, and order'd to land upon Horeal, one of the Iſlands call'd the Cardinals; which they did without any Oppoſition either from the Inhabitants, or the Gariſon of the adjacent Fort; made themſelves Maſters of the whole Iſland, and burnt the Town of Horeal: They afterwards did the like upon the Iſland of Hodicke. On the 5th, Three more Engliſh, and Two Dutch Men of War, with the Long Boats of divers other Ships, and Seven hundred Soldiers and Mariners, were ſent to join the Burford and Newcaſtle at Groy, who finiſh'd what Captain Fitzpatrick had begun; having deſtroy'd there about Twenty Villages, kill'd and carried away 1300 Head of Black Cattle and Horſes, and taken Twenty Boats and ſmall Veſſels. While this was doing near Belle-Iſle, Sir Martin Beckman, with the Bomb-Veſſels and a Squadron of Ten Men of War under the Command of Captain Mees, arrived on July 5. before St. Martin's, a Trading and Wealthy Town in the Iſle of Rhee, going in with French Colours, which they took down when they Anchor'd. In the Evening, Sir Martin Beckman began the Bombardment, and that Night and the next Day fired about Two thouſand Bombs and Carcaſſes with ſuch Succeſs, that the greateſt and richeſt part of the Town was burnt down, or miſerably ſhatter'd. The French at laſt recover'd their Surprize, and brought down Canon and Mortars to the Front of the Town towards the Sea, and began to fire upon the Engliſh, who contenting themſelves with the Damage already done to St. Martins, bore away towards Clonne, where they had but little Succeſs, thro' a Miſtake of the Situation of the Place. The French thought the Miſchief done upon their Coaſts to be in ſome manner reveng'd by the Bold and Famous Du Bart, who on June 8. with Eight Men of War and Four Privateers fell in with a great Fleet of Dutch Merchant-Ships, bound home from the Sound, under Convoy of Six or Seven Frigats, about Six Leagues off the Ulie; and having taken the ſaid Frigats and burnt Four of them, he deſtroyed about Thirty of the Merchant-Ships, and took ſeveral of the reſt.

Our Inſulting the French Coaſts.

1696. 8 W. 3.

In the next Seſſion of Parliament, the Commons, in conſidering the State of the Nation, took Notice of the late Miſcarriages of the Fleet; and on Nov. 4. order'd Sir George Rook to attend the Houſe, to give an Account, Why the French Thoulon Squadron was not intercepted in going into Breſt? That Admiral attended accordingly, and produced Copies of his Journal, and of the Orders he had received from the Admiralty; which being examin'd, Sir Cloudeſly Shovel was likewiſe order'd to lay before the Houſe the Copies of all ſuch Inſtructions as he had receiv'd from the Admiralty, in order to the joining Sir George Rook. Soon after Sir Robert Rich, from the Commiſſioners of the Admiralty, preſented to the Houſe of Commons Copies of all Orders ſent both to Sir George and Sir Cloudeſly, in relation to the Fleet in General, between January the 1ſt, 1696. and the Time the French got into Breſt; as alſo an Account of what Intelligences they received of the Thoulon Squadron's fitting out, and their Motion towards Breſt. When nothing of Diſcovery was made by the Commons, the Lords appointed a Committee to make an Enquiry concerning the Thoulon Squadron's getting into Breſt, without any Oppoſition? But neither could their Lordſhips tell where to lay the Blame.

State of Scotland.

The Parliament of Scotland met at Edinburgh on September 8. and the Lord Murray, lately created Earl of Tullibardine, his Majeſty's High Commiſſioner, made a Speech to them on occaſion of their Meeting; as did likewiſe the Lord Polwarth, Lord High Chancellor of Scotland. Two Days after, the King's Letter to the Parliament was read; after which, Committees were appointed, as uſual, for the Security of the Kingdom, for Trade and Controverted Elections. Then all the Members ſign'd an Aſſociation, being the ſame in Subſtance with that which the Parliament of England had ſubſcribed. They ſoon reſolved to give his Majeſty a Supply of 1440000 Pound Scots, to be raiſed by a Land-Ceſs; and an additional Exciſe, for maintaining the Standing Forces both by Sea and Land. They order'd an Act to be brought in for ſecuring their Religion, Lives and Properties, in caſe his Majeſty ſhould come to an untimely Death; and another for obliging all in Publick Truſt to ſign the Aſſociation. On the 20th of September, the Parliament read and approved the latter of the ſaid Acts; as alſo their Anſwer to the King's Letter; and on the 25th the Lord Commiſſioner gave the Royal Aſſent to the Act for the Supply, and to ſome others. On October the 9th his Grace return'd to the Parliament, and touch'd with the Sceptre, An Act for the Security of the Kingdom. An Act in favour of Preachers at Vacant Churches. An Act in favour of the Univerſities, Schools and Hoſpitals. An Act for the Levy of 1000 Men. An Act againſt Proteſtant Servants in Popiſh Families. An Act for better providing of the Poor. An Act againſt Prophaneneſs; and ſeveral other Acts. And on the 12th of October, the Parliament was adjourned to the 8th of December following.

In Ireland, the Lord Capel, Lord Deputy, after a long Sickneſs, died on May the 30th, whereupon the Council in purſuance of an Act made 33 Henry VIII. elected the Lord Chancellor Porter to be Lord Juſtice and Chief Governor of that Kingdom, till his Majeſty's Pleaſure was known. On June the 27th, the Iriſh Parliament met at Dublin. In the Lords Houſe the King's Commiſſion was read, appointing the Lord Chief Juſtice Hely to be their Speaker; who being ſworn, a Motion was made, and unanimouſly agreed to, that the whole Houſe with their Speaker, ſhould wait on the Lord Juſtice Porter, to congratulate his being placed in the Govern-

State of Ireland.

ment

1696. ment of that Kingdom; the Commons at the ſame Time, having firſt expell'd Mr. Sanderſon, the only Member of their Houſe, who refus'd to Sign the Aſſociation, made the ſame Unanimous Vote; and in the Afternoon both Houſes attended the Lord Juſtice, and then adjourned to the 4th of Auguſt; upon which Day Sir Charles Porter, Lord Chancellor, and the Earls of Montrath and Drogheda, lately appointed Lords Juſtices, and General Governors of Ireland, ſignified His Majeſty's Pleaſure to the Parliament, That they ſhould further adjourn themſelves. On Dec. 8. in the Evening Sir Charles Porter was ſeized with an Apoplectick Fit, and died immediately; and the 10th at Night his Corps was privately Interr'd at Chriſt-Church.

Proceedings of the Lords Juſtices in England.

The Lords Juſtices of England, during His Majeſty's Abſence, did all that was poſſible to preſerve the Peace, and to improve the Honour of the Nation. By Proclamation dated the 18th of May, they Prorogued the Parliament from June 16 to July 28, and ſo on by ſhort Intervals till His Majeſty's Return. By another Proclamation dated May 23. they appointed a General Faſt to be obſerved on Friday, June 26. for a Special Bleſſing on His Majeſty's Righteous Undertakings, and that God would conſummate the Deliverance of theſe Nations, by ſettling the ſame in a firm and laſting State of Peace, Security and Proſperity. On May 30. They gave an Order in Council, That Mr. Attorney General ſhould Proſecute all ſuch Perſons who had enter'd into Unlawful Confederacies and Agreements, whereby they had engag'd and obliged each other under Penalties, not to employ any Perſons in making the Woollen and other Manufactures of this Kingdom. On July 2. They made another Order in Council, That the Juſtices of Peace ſhould frequently meet in their Diviſions, and conſult how they may relieve the Labourers and poorer ſort of People, who ſuffer Hardſhip by the great Difficulty in the Exchange of Money. On July 17. they iſſued a Proclamation for apprehending the Famous Pyrate Henry Every and his Crew, who had committed ſeveral Depredations in the Eaſt Indies, to the great prejudice of the Engliſh Company and Trade. On Auguſt 31. they publiſhed a Proclamation for apprehending William Brickenhead, who being committed to Newgate for High-Treaſon, had made his Eſcape out of the ſaid Priſon. On Sept. 10. another Proclamation for apprehending Captain William Wintour of Dymock, in the County of Glouceſter, and ſeveral other Clippers and Coiners. On Sept. 24. they made an Order in Council for encouraging the Coining of New Money in Gold and Silver.

The King leaves the Army.

King William being weary of a Campaign that afforded him no Opportunity for Action, left the Army towards the latter end of Auguſt, under the Command of the Elector of Bavaria, and went to His uſual Diverſion of Stag-hunting, about His Royal Palaces of Dieren and Loo. On the 14th of September His Majeſty ſet out from this Place, accompanied by the Duke of Zell (a Prince whom he ever reſpected as a Father, and lov'd as a Boſom Friend) and the next Day went to Cleves, where he was magnificently entertain'd by the Court of Brandenburgh, who were come thither on purpoſe to receive His Viſit. Having ſpent two Days at this Agreeable Place, His Majeſty and His Dear Companion, the Duke of Zell, went back to Loo, where three Days after he was followed by the Electoral Prince of Brandenburgh, in return of His Majeſty's Viſit at that Court. Having ſtaid three Weeks longer at this Place, His Majeſty went to the Hague, and on the 14th of October, (N. S.) embarked on board the William and Mary Yatch, attended by ſeveral other Yatches, and a Squadron of Men of War, under the Command of Vice-Admiral Aylmer. Two Days after, His Majeſty landed at Margate, and arrived the ſame Evening at Kenſington, where on the 8th of the ſame Month (O. S.) the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen of London attended His Majeſty, and Mr. Recorder, in the Name of the City, "Did Congratulate His Majeſty's "Safe Return, and gave Him their Hearty "Thanks for His Princely Care, and Indefatigable Pains for the Safety of His Own Kingdoms, "and the Security of Chriſtendom; with the "Humble Aſſurance of the City's Sincere Affection, and conſtant Loyalty, which they would "upon all Occaſions effectually demonſtrate to "the utmoſt of their Power." His Majeſty received their Compliment very graciouſly, and on that Occaſion conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon John Johnſon, Eſq; one of the Aldermen, and upon John Wolfe, and Samuel Blewett, Eſquires, the Preſent Sheriffs. No other Honour had been conferr'd during the King's Abſence, ſave only that the Duke of Glouceſter on his Birth-day, July 24, being now ſeven Years of Age compleat, was Inſtall'd Knight of the Garter, in the Chapel of St. George at Windſor, with great Order and Magnificence. And all the Companions and other Nobility there preſent, were ſplendidly entertain'd by her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Anne of Denmark; the Evening concluded with a Ball at Court, and an Excellent New Ode and Muſick in Honour of his Highneſs's Birth-day, and with Ringing of Bells, Bonfires and Illuminations. On Sep. 18. Mr. Serjeant Blencowe was appointed by the King to be one of the Barons of the Exchequer, in the room of Mr. Juſtice Turton, who was removed to the Court of King's Bench, upon the Death of Mr. Juſtice Gregory. (a)

The King returns to England.

Duke of Glouceſter Knight of the Garter.

Parliament meets.

On Tueſday, Octob. 20, the Parliament met at Weſtminſter, and the King being ſeated on the Throne, with the uſual Solemnity, made this Speech to both Houſes.

(a) As to the Court at St. Germains, King James reſolv'd to prevent the coming of any Proteſtant Divines thither, and therefore ſent Major Scot and Mr. Macquean to England, to let his Friends know he deſir'd no ſuch Company, and order'd them to make uſe of other Meſſengers. The Affairs of State were manag'd by a Cabinet-Council, conſiſting of Mr. Brown, Father Innes, Sir Richard Neagle. Mr. Caryl, and Mr. Stafford, all Papiſts; when the Church of England-Men ſaw they could not carry the Point of the Chapel, they made a ſecond Effort to procure, that at leaſt one of the Five might be of their own Religion; they inſiſted on the Advantages which might thence redound to his Majeſty's Affairs. The Reaſons they gave for it were ſo ſtrong, that to prevent their Succeeding, the Comptroller Skelton, and Sir William Sharp, accus'd Sir Edward of ſaying, King James's violent Temper would Ruin himſelf, and all that follow'd him; which Words, Sir Edward Herbert frankly confeſs'd, but made ſo ingenuous an Explanation of his Meaning, in relation to the Act of Settlement in Ireland, that King James was ſatisfy'd. However, this enrag'd the Iriſh Party in the Court ſtill more, and they contriv'd another Plot againſt him, charging him with Correſpondence with the Engliſh, and miſrepreſenting the Actions of that Court; upon which he and an Engliſh Lady were confin'd, and Bromfield a Quaker Refugee at St. Germains, ſent to the Baſtile.

To which may be added, That Sir Edward Herbert's Correſpondence with England was only with his Brother the Earl of Torrington; and the Subject of his Letters was only complaining of his Wants, and begging Relief. The Earl his Brother did ſend him over ſeveral Sums; and when his Lordſhip was no longer willing to Anſwer his Demands, he dyed of Poverty and broken Spirit.

1696.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" I Have called you together as ſoon as was poſſible; and I think it a great Happineſs that this Year has paſs'd without any Diſadvantage Abroad, or Diſorder at Home, conſidering Our great Diſappointment in the Funds given at your laſt Meeting, and the Difficulties which have ariſen upon the Re-coining of the Money.

" This is ſo Convincing a Proof of the good Diſpoſition of My Army, and of the Steady Affections of My People, that I cannot but take notice of it with great Satiſfaction.

" Our Enemies have not been without hopes, That ſuch a Conjuncture might have prov'd fatal to us: But as they have failed in thoſe Expectations, ſo I am fully perſuaded that your Unanimous Proceedings in this Seſſion will make them for ever Deſpair of an Advantage from any Diſagreement among Our Selves.

" It muſt be confeſſed, that the Buſineſs which you have before you will be very great, becauſe of the neceſſity of ſupplying former Deficiencies, as well as making Proviſions for the next Year's Service.

" And upon this Occaſion it is fit for Me to acquaint you, that ſome Overtures have been made in order to the entring upon a Negotiation for a General Peace: But I am ſure We ſhall agree in Opinion, That the only way of treating with France, is with Our Swords in Our Hands; and that We can have no reaſon to expect a Safe and Honourable Peace, but by ſhewing Ourſelves prepar'd to make a Vigorous and Effectual War: In order to which, I do very earneſtly recommend to you, Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons, That you would conſider of raiſing the Neceſſary Supplies, as well for maintaining the Honour of Parliaments in making good the Funds already granted, as for carrying on the War the next Year; which I think ought not to be leſs than what was intended to be raiſed for that purpoſe the laſt Seſſion.

" I muſt alſo put you in mind of the Civil-Liſt, which cannot be ſupported without your Help; and the Miſerable Condition of the French Proteſtants does oblige Me to mention them to you again.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" It may deſerve your Conſideration, whether there do not ſtill remain ſome Inconveniencies relating to the Coin, which ought to be remedied: And I hope you'll find out the beſt Expedients for the recovery of Credit, which is abſolutely neceſſary, not only with reſpect to the War, but for carrying on of Trade.

" I am of Opinion, that there is not one good Engliſhman, who is not entirely convinc'd how much does depend upon this Seſſion, and therefore I cannot but hope for your Unanimity and Diſpatch in your Reſolutions, which at this Time are more neceſſary than ever for the Safety and Honour of England.

1696.

Proceedings of the Commons.

The Commons having appointed their Grand Committees, for Religion, for Grievances, for Trade, for Courts of Juſtice, and for Privileges and Elections, reſolved Nemine contradicente, " That they would ſupport His Majeſty and His Government againſt all His Enemies both at Home and Abroad, and that they would effectually aſſiſt Him in the Proſecution and carrying on the preſent War againſt France: And that an Humble Addreſs ſhould be preſented to His Majeſty purſuant to the ſaid Reſolution." Which Addreſs was drawn up by Mr. Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and preſented to His Majeſty on October 23. by the whole Houſe in theſe Words:

May it pleaſe Your Moſt Excellent Majeſty.

Addreſs to the King.

" This is the Eighth Year in which your Majeſty's Moſt Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Aſſembled, have aſſiſted Your Majeſty with large Supplies for carrying on a Juſt and Neceſſary War, in Defence of our Religion, Preſervation of our Laws, and Vindication of the Rights and Liberties of the People of England; which we have hitherto preſerved; and, by the Bleſſing of God, upon Your Majeſty's Conduct and Good Government, will ſtedfaſtly maintain and entail on our Poſterity.

" This has coſt the Nation much Blood and Treaſure, but the Hopes of accompliſhing ſo Great and Glorious a Work, have made Your Subjects cheerfully ſupport the Charge. And to ſhow to Your Majeſty, and all Chriſtendom, that the Commons of England will not be amuſed or diverted from their Firm Reſolutions of obtaining by War a Safe and Honourable Peace, we do, in the Name of all thoſe we repreſent, renew our Aſſurances to Your Majeſty, That this Houſe will ſupport Your Majeſty and Your Government againſt all Your Enemies both at Home and Abroad; and that they will effectually aſſiſt You in the Proſecution and Carrying on the Preſent War againſt France.

His Majeſty in Anſwer was pleaſed to expreſs Himſelf thus kindly.

Gentlemen,

The continuance of Your Zeal and Affection is the Thing of the World I value moſt, and I will anſwer it by all the Ways I can think of; and will make your Good, and the Safety of the Nation, the Principal Care of my Life.

The Commons proceed to Buſineſs.

Theſe Aſſurances of Affection on the one ſide, of Loyalty on the other, and of Mutual Confidence on Both, being happily given, the Commons enter'd with great Alacrity upon the Three Great Affairs that had been recommended to 'em from the Throne: To wit, The further remedying the Ill State of the Coin: The providing a Supply for the next Year's Service: And the reſtoring of Publick Credit. All which had a near dependance one upon the other, and made the Difficulties more intricate and hard to compoſe.

(a) It ſeem'd to be very ill taken from ſome of the Clergy, that they were not enough hearty and zealous in Defence of the Government, as Settled on the Happy Revolution; but were rather Paving the Way for the Return of Popery and Tyranny, by keeping up the Diſtinction of a King de Jure and de Facto, and ſo ſubmitting for Conveniency, not for Conſcience ſake; and by hating the Diſſenters for gaining a Legal Indulgence, and attempting to recover a Power of Perſecution. The Author of The Account of the Growth of Deiſm in England, in a Letter to a Friend, 1696. 4to. ſaid to be a Reverend Divine, wrote thus, —" And though at preſent there be a Toleration by Law granted, yet 'tis ſtill oppos'd by the Spirit of the Church, as appears by Sermons Preach'd at Viſitations, and the conſtant ordinary Diſcourſes of the Clergy, in which the Church of England is always repreſented as at this Time, in greater Danger than ever it was. When the King had better Titles to his Crown, as the Conſent of the People in Parliament, and his Matrimonial Title with the Queen; yet he muſt be made to Pay the greateſt Price for the weakeſt and worſt of all Titles, and give Dr. Sh——ck Sixteen Hundred Pounds a Year for a de Facto-ſhip only.

In

1696.

State of the Coin.

In order to remove the Firſt and the Laſt, the Commons reſolved on their very firſt Day of meeting, That They would not alter the Standard of the Gold or Silver in Fineneſs, Weight or Denomination; and that they will make good all Parliamentary Funds ſince His Majeſty's Acceſſion to the Crown, that have been made Credits for Loan from the Subject. And becauſe the Circulation of Guineas was obſtructed by reaſon of the want of other Coin, and by reaſon of the Act made the laſt Seſſion, to take off the Obligation of Coining Gold, a Bill was Order'd to be brought in Oct. 22. For the giving leave to import Guineas, and to Coin Gold at the Mint: And that they might proceed in their Debates with the leſs Reflection from Abroad, they cenſur'd a Printed Pamphlet, Entitled, An Account of the Proceedings in the Houſe of Commons, in relation to the Recoining the Clipt Money, and Falling the Price of Guineas; as Falſe, Scandalous and Seditious, and Deſtructive of the Freedom and Liberties of Parliament: and order'd the ſaid Pamphlet to be burnt by the Common Hangman, and addreſs'd His Majeſty to iſſue His Proclamation, promiſing a Reward of 500*l.* for the Diſcovery of the Author of that Libel. And two Days after the Houſe being inform'd of a Printed Paper, Entitled, A Summary Account of the Proceedings upon the Happy Diſcovery of the Jacobite Conſpiracy, They reſolv'd, "That the Printing the Names of the Members "of their Houſe, and reflecting on them for their "Proceedings in Parliament, was a Breach of the "Privileges of that Houſe, and deſtructive of the "Freedom and Liberties of Parliament." On Octob. 28. two other Bills were likewiſe order'd to be drawn up; One, For the further Remedying the Ill State of the Coin; and the other, For encouraging the bringing in Plate into the Mint to be Coin'd: Which at laſt with great Application were put into one Bill; and on Dec. 3. the King came into the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for Importing and Coining Guineas and Half-Guineas. 2. An Act to Explain that Part of the Act paſſed the laſt Seſſion of Parliament, for laying ſeveral Duties on Low Wines, and Spirits of the firſt Extraction; and for preventing the Frauds and Abuſes of Brewers, Diſtillers and other Perſons chargeable with the Duties of Exciſe, which relates to the Payment of Tallies, and the Intereſt thereof. 3. An Act for the further Remedying the Ill State of the Coin of the Kingdom.

Acts paſſed.

Supply.

As for the Supply, the Commons having conſider'd the State of the War for the Year 1697, both in relation to the Navy and Land Forces, which at their Deſire, His Majeſty order'd to be laid before them, they granted the Sum of Two Millions Three Hundred Seventy Two Thouſand One Hundred Ninety Seven Pounds, for the Maintenance of Forty Thouſand Seamen, and of the Two Marine Regiments; and for the Ordinary of the Navy, and the Charge of the Regiſtry of Seamen; And the Sum of Two Millions Five Hundred Seven Thouſand Eight Hundred and Eighty Two Pounds, both for the Maintaining Eighty Seven Thouſand Four Hundred and Forty Men, which according to the Liſt of the Land-Forces delivered into the Houſe, they Voted neceſſary to be employ'd in England, and beyond the Seas; and for the Extraordinary Service of the Office of Ordnance, the Pay of the General Officers, and the Charge of the Tranſports, Hoſpitals, and other Contingencies of the War. Beſides which, they afterwards, on December 23. Voted a ſupply of One Hundred Twenty Five Thouſand Pounds, for making good the Deficiency in Recoining Hammer'd Money, and the Recompence to be given for bringing Plate into the Mints to be Coined.

1696.

Ways and Means.

The Ways and Means of raiſing this Supply, were, Firſt, A General Capitation or Poll-Tax: Secondly, A Tax of Three Shillings in the Pound upon Land: And Thirdly, A Duty upon all Paper, Paſtboard, Velum and Parchment, Imported or made in this Kingdom.

Loſs of Credit to be Retriev'd.

But ſtill the greateſt Difficulty of all, was the Loſs of Publick Credit: For the Tallies ſtruck, or Funds ſettled by Parliament, eſpecially ſuch as were remote, were exchanged for ready Money, at a mighty Loſs: And the Government was oblig'd to make exceſſive Diſcounts and Allowances to bring Treaſure into the Exchequer. This great Loſs of Credit, which was like to prove fatal to our Affairs abroad the laſt Summer, aroſe chiefly from two Springs: Firſt, the Deficiencies of Parliamentary Funds, particularly the unhappy Project of the Land Bank, which proved wholly Abortive, and did not produce one Penny of above Two Millions and a half with which it was charged: Secondly, The Recoining of our Silver. The firſt created Truſt, and the latter deſtroy'd it, by making Money to be very ſcarce. 'Tis eaſie to imagine what periſhing Circumſtances the Nation was in, when the Notes of the Bank of England, which had been a mighty help to the Publick, were diſcounted at Twenty, and Tallies at Forty, Fifty, or Sixty per Cent. The Government had Contracted a great Debt; ſome Funds were wholly taken away, and the reſt proved Deficient; great Numbers of Tallies were on Funds very remote, and many had no Funds at all. Hereby the Truſt and good Opinion of the People were ſo far loſt, that thoſe few who had any Money to lend, ſhew'd the greateſt backwardneſs imaginable to bring it into the Exchequer, when they could Stock-job it to ſo great Advantage upon the Royal-Exchange; and therefore all Loans to the Government were procured on Exorbitant Præmiums.

Great Difficulty.

All Men were amaz'd and confounded at this Obſtruction to Trade and Credit, and hardly believ'd that the Wit of Man was able to find out any Expedient, that could be effectual to retrieve ſo great a Miſchief. The Nation is the more oblig'd to the Wiſdom, Sagacity, and Eloquence of Mr. Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who Animated the whole Deſign, and Projected the moſt happy Methods to bring it to a happy Effect. On November 25. the Commons Reſolved, That a ſupply be Granted to His Majeſty to make good the Deficiencies of Parliamentary Funds; and afterwards order'd an Eſtimate to be laid before them, of what Sums were, or would be wanting to ſatisfie and diſcharge all Principal and Intereſt due, or to become due on the ſeveral Aids, Duties, or Funds, over and above all Arrears, ſtanding out upon them which were determin'd; and beſides all Moneys to be rais'd by ſuch as were then unexpired. And the Computation of all the particular Sums that were wanting to make good all the Deficient Funds, being made, the whole amounted to Five Millions, One Hundred and Sixty Thouſand, Four Hundred Pounds. Having now got to the bottom of the Diſeaſe, they Reſolved on a thorough Cure. For being ſenſible, that had ſome Deficiencies been taken care of, and others neglected, Publick Credit muſt have continued Lame, and the Government have Halted, if it had not fallen to the Ground, they judg'd it of abſolute neceſſity to make Proviſion for the whole; that ſo there ſhould remain no Tally without a Fund, nor any Tally on a Deficient Fund, but what in its courſe of Payment ſhould be ſatiſfied and diſcharged. In order to

To make good the Deficiencies.

1696. this, they continued divers Duties ariſing not only by the Cuſtoms, but by continued and additional Impoſitions; Paper and Parchment, Births, Marriages, and Burials, Windows, the Subſidy of Tonnage and Poundage, after the Day on which they would otherwiſe have expir'd, to the 1ſt. Day of Auguſt, 1706. and appointed all the Moneys which ſhould ariſe, and be brought into His Majeſty's Exchequer from any of theſe Taxes or Duties, from the Day on which they were otherwiſe to Expire, to the ſaid Firſt Day of Auguſt, 1706. to be the General Fund for making good all the Deficient ones, by the Satisfaction and Payment of the Principal and Intereſt due, or become due thereupon. And that all occaſion of Complaint might be remov'd, and equal Proviſion made for all, the Parliament directed that all Moneys ariſing from the Duties, ſo as before continued and appropriated for the General Fund, ſhould be diſtributed and applied to pay Principal and Intereſt upon every one of the Deficient Funds, in proportion to the Sum of which they were deficient; and that all the Money which ſhould be in ſuch a due Proportion diſtributed or placed to the Account of each deficient Tax or Fund, for the diſcharge of Principal and Intereſt, ſhould be paid out to all who were intitled to receive the ſame, in ſuch Courſe and Order, as if the ſame were Moneys really ariſing by the reſpective deficient Funds, and that without being Diverted, Miſapplied, or Poſtpon'd; and made the Officers of His Majeſty's Treaſury liable to great Penalties, in caſe this Method were not obſerved. Moreover, to remove all Doubts about the Security intended to be given, in caſe on the 1ſt. of Auguſt, 1706. or within Three Months, then next enſuing, the whole Produce of the ſeveral Funds and Revenues appropriated for a General Fund, together with other Grants then in being, ſhould not be ſufficient to diſcharge the Sum of Five Millions, One Hundred and Sixty Thouſand Four Hundred Pounds, intended to be diſcharged, that then what was deficient, ſhould be made good out of ſuch Aids or Revenues as ſhould be granted in the next Seſſions of Parliament. Thus the Commons, by an admirable Stroke of Wiſdom, as well as a noble Act of publick Juſtice, provided a ſufficient Security for this great Debt that lay heavy on the Nation; which was all that could be demanded or expected, at a Time when Money was not in being, and therefore not to be had. And becauſe all the Branches of Publick Credit did plainly depend on, and mutually ſupport one another, the Parliament took into Conſideration, by what means they might Buoy up the Credit of the Bank of England, which was then ready to ſink.

Great Honour and Juſtice.

Ways and Means. In order to this, the Parliament on February 3. Agreed to augment the common Capital Stock of the Bank of England, by admitting new Subſcriptions; which new Subſcriptions ſhould be made good in Tallies and Bank-Notes. The Proportion was Four Fifths of the Firſt, and one Fifth of the Laſt, and an Intereſt of Eight per Cent. was allowed, as well for ſuch Tallies that ſhould be brought in to enlarge their Stock by new Subſcription, as for thoſe Tallies which the Company was then poſſeſſed of; provided they did not exceed the Value of thoſe Bank-Notes which ſhould be paid in upon this Engraftment on their Stock; and for ſecuring the Payment of this Intereſt of Eight per Cent. the Additional Duty on Salt was afterwards granted and appropriated. The Time of the continuance of the Bank of England, they thought fit to extend to the Year 1710. and Reſolv'd likewiſe, "That before the Day were fix'd for the beginning New Subſcriptions, the old Stock be made One Hundred per Cent. and that what ſhould exceed that Value, ſhould be divided among the old Members. That all the Intereſt due on thoſe Tallies which ſhould be ſubſcribed into the Bank-Stock, at the time appointed for Subſcriptions, (to the end of the laſt preceding Quarter, on each Tally) be allowed as Principal. That Liberty be given by Parliament to enlarge the Number of Bank-Bills, to the Value of the Sum which ſhould be ſo ſubſcribed, over and above the 1200000 l. provided they be obliged to anſwer ſuch Bills at Demand; and in Default thereof, to be anſwer'd by the Exchequer out of the firſt Money due to them. That no other Bank be erected, Permitted, or Allowed by Act of Parliament within this Kingdom, during the Continuance of the Bank of England. That on ſuch new Settlement, the Bank of England be exempted from all manner of Parliamentary Taxes. That no Act of the Corporation ſhould forfeit the particular Intereſt of any Perſon concern'd therein. That Proviſion be made for the effectual preventing the Officers of the Exchequer, and all other Officers and Receivers of the Revenue, from diverting, delaying or obſtructing the Courſe of Payments to the Bank. That Care be taken to prevent the Abetting, Counterfeting, or Forging any Bank-Bills or Notes; as likewiſe againſt the Defacing, Raſing, or Altering any Indorſement upon any ſuch Bill or Note. That the Eſtate and Intereſt of each Member in the Stock of the Corporation, be made a Perſonal Eſtate. And Laſtly, That no Contract or Agreement made for any Bank-Stock to be Bought or Sold, be Valid in Law or Equity, unleſs the ſaid Contract be actually Regiſtred in the Books of the Bank within Seven Days, and actually transferr'd within Fourteen Days next after the making ſuch Contract." Upon which Encouragements, a Million was Subſcribed and paid in Tallies and Banks-Notes, as the Parliament had directed. This Expedient was the Reſult of Mr. Charles Mountague's Skill and Prudence; and tho' many Perſons who were Intereſted in it, could not preſently Apprehend the Reaſonableneſs of it, yet the Advantages they afterwards receiv'd, did fully convince them, that no other way could have been found to call back their ſinking Credit: For the Value of Two Hundred Thouſand Pounds in Bank-Notes being ſunk by the New Subſcription, the reſt, as it was reaſonable to believe they would, began preſently to riſe in worth; and ſo likewiſe did the Tallies, after ſo many as amounted to Eight Hundred Thouſand Pounds were paid in to enlarge the Bank. Upon this the Credit of the Bank recover'd a-pace; till in a ſhort time their Notes, which bore no Intereſt, were equal with Money; and their Bills that bore Intereſt better than Money: And by this means the Face of Affairs was quickly much changed for the better; Credit began to revive, and Money to circulate on Moderate Terms; Foreign Exchange was leſs to our Diſadvantage, and ſoon after came to an Equality: And whatever Hardſhips the People had undergone by reaſon of a long and expenſive War, and the Recoining the Silver Money, which could not but occaſion many Complaints, yet the greateſt part attributed this to the Neceſſity of Affairs, and began to hope, both from the Proſpect of a Peace, and the Wiſdom of thoſe at the Helm, that they ſhould enjoy more favourable Times.

Another Evil of no leſs Difficulty or Importance than the loſs of Credit, (and which, as was hinted before, was one of the Springs of the latter)

Want of Money in Specie.

1696. latter) remain'd ſtill to be remov'd; and that was the great Scarcity of Money. The Parliament to prevent Diſappointments, by ſettling Funds which might be Deficient, came to a Reſolution on November 20. That the Supplies for the Service of the Year 1697 ſhould be raiſed within the Year. But how could above Five Millions be raiſed within the Year while the Silver Money was called in, and Recoining, and there was not Current Coin enough in the Nation, to anſwer the Occaſions of Trade, and ſcarcely the Conveniencies and Neceſſities of Life? This Vote of Parliament ſeem'd impracticable; the Enemies of the Goverment made themſelves Merry with it; and inſtead of raiſing their Spleen, 'twas the Entertainment of their pleaſant Humour: And many, even of the beſt Friends of the Government, imagin'd that the Parliament by this, rather expreſs'd their Zeal and Willingneſs, than their Ability to ſupport the State, and maintain the preſent Settlement. But this Parliament, for whoſe Wiſdom it was reſerv'd to ſurmount Difficulties that were look'd on as Invincible, made Money without Bullion, and Diſtributed great quantity of Coin without the help of the Mint. This they did by Authorizing the Lords of the Treaſury, to Iſſue out Bills from the Exchequer, to the Value, firſt and laſt, of above Two Millions; which Bills were firſt appointed to be brought in and ſunk upon the Capitation Tax. But before the Seſſion ended, the Parliament being convinc'd by the firſt Collection of that Duty, that it would prove very deficient; they appointed the Exchequer Bills to be brought in, on any other of the King's Duties or Revenues excepting the Land-Tax; and allowed an Intereſt of Seven Pounds Twelve Shillings per Annum, upon the ſecond Iſſuing the ſaid Bills out of the Exchequer, whereas at firſt they bore no Intereſt. By this the Parliament laid a good Foundation for Paper Money to ſupply the Place of our Silver Coin; for ſo many Payments were at this time to be made into the Exchequer that when the People had aſſurance given them, that the Exchequer Notes ſhould be received back again in Payment of the King's Taxes, they were very well ſatisfied to take them, at firſt indeed at ſmall Diſcount, but not long after at an Equality. A great number of theſe Notes were only for Five or Ten Pounds, which anſwer'd the neceſſity of Commerce among the meaner People, for the Common Conveniences of Life. And that thoſe who had advanced Money on Loans on any part of the King's Revenues, might not be obliged to receive it back in Notes that were under the Value of Money, to ſtrengthen the Reputation of theſe Bills, the Parliament authorized the Lords of the Treaſury to contract with any Corporation, or Numbers of Private Men, and to allow them a competent Premium, provided they oblig'd themſelves to exchange thoſe Notes for Ready Money, when tender'd to them for that purpoſe; which the Lords of the Treaſury did accordingly. The Credit of the Exchequer Notes being thus ſecur'd, they daily aroſe nearer to Par, till at laſt they exceeded the Value of Money; And whereas the Truſtees, with whom the Government had contracted to exchange them, were at firſt allow'd Ten per Cent, as a Premium, they were ſince contented to do it for Four. Theſe Bills paſs'd as ſo many Counters, which the People were ſatisfied to receive, becauſe they knew the Exchequer would receive them again as ſo much ready Money: And theſe State-Counters ſo well ſupply'd the want of Money, till New Coin was iſſued from the Mint, that Trade and Commerce were maintain'd, and Mutual Payments well enough made, to anſwer the Neceſſities of the Government and the People. This Project (which proved an Effectual, though a Paper Prop to ſupport the State, when its Silver Pillars, if I may ſo ſpeak, were for a time remov'd) was likewiſe owing to the Prudence and Induſtry of Mr. Charles Mountague, as well as that of recoining the Money; which thoſe very Men, who envied moſt his Succeſs in the Houſe of Commons, and Growing Power at Court, were afterwards contented to call a Fortunate Temerity. 1696.

Supplied by Exchequer Bills.

The greateſt Interruption to the more Publick Affairs, was the Caſe of Sir John Fenwick, a Perſon concern'd in the late Conſpiracy, who endeavouring to fly over into France, under the Name of Thomas Ward, was ſeized at New-Romney in Kent, and from thence brought up to London, and on June the 11*th*. committed Priſoner to the Tower, and afterwards to Newgate. As ſoon as he was Apprehended, he Wrote a Letter with a Black-Lead Pencil to his Lady, in theſe words.

Caſe of Sir John Fenwick.

"What I Fear'd is at laſt happen'd; had I gone alone, I had done it; but the other was Betray'd from London. It is God's Will, ſo we muſt ſubmit; I know nothing can ſave my Life, but my Lord Carliſle's going over to * Him, back'd by the reſt of the Family of the Howards to Beg it; and offering that I will be abroad all His Time, where I cannot Hurt Him, and that I will never Draw Sword againſt him. I muſt leave it to you what elſe to ſay. All Friends muſt be made. My Lord Devonſhire may perhaps by my Lady; my Lord Godolphin and my Lord Pembroke by my Lady Montgomery. Mr. Nelſon by the Biſhop of Canterbury. My Lord Arran might engage his Brother Selkirk to uſe his Intereſt with Keppel. I believe if my Lord Carliſle would go, it were beſt before my Tryal, or elſe they will cut me ſhort for want of Time; if he can prevail with Him for a Pardon, He will procure it as well before my Tryal, as after; at leaſt He may prevail for a Reprieve, 'till ſome can come over to Him. My Lord alſo will have an opportunity to engage † Benting, and get my Lord of Eſſex to join with him. I cannot think what elſe to ſay, but the great Care muſt be the Jury; if Two or Three could be got that would Starve the reſt; That or nothing can Save me. Money I know would do it; but alas! that is not to be had, nor ſhall I get enough for Council. I beg of you not to think of being ſhut up with me; I know it will Kill you, and beſides I have no ſuch Friend as you to take care of my Buſineſs: Though it would be the Comfort of my Life, the little Time it laſts, to have you with me: and I have this only Comfort now left, that my Death will make you eaſy. My Deareſt Life, grieve not for me, but Reſign me to God's Will. You will hear as ſoon as they bring me to Town, where they put me, and then I would have a Servant or Some-body with me. I am Interrupted, ſo can ſay no more now. Engage Sir John Lowther, the new Lord, who has more Intereſt than any Body. Let my Lord Scarſdale engage Jermaine, to engage Overkirk for me. Speak to my Lady Arlington. If my Tryal could be put off till the King comes back, there would be more Opportunity to Sollicite him.

His Letter to his Lady.

* Meaning King William.

† The Earl of Portland.

This Letter being delivered to Mr. Webber, the Companion of Sir John Fenwick's Flight, was Intercepted by the Mayor of Romney, and brought to the Lords Juſtices. Sir John, who was Ignorant of the Miſcarriage, at his Firſt Examination before their Excellencies denyed 1696. every thing he was Charged with. Whereupon the Lords Juſtices producing the Letter, told him, he was not of the ſame Mind when he Wrote that Paper; To which Sir John made no Reply; but laying it down, was confounded into Shame and Silence.

Sir John Fenwick makes a Sham-Plot.

There was another Expedient of double-Dealing, ſuggeſted to Sir John Fenwick, by a Perſon, who though he had been a great Inſtrument in the late Revolution, yet to gratifie a private Reſentment, adviſed Sir John to ſet up a Counter-Plot, by Impeaching ſeveral of the King's Beſt and Heartieſt Friends, as Guilty of Conſpiring againſt His Majeſty. Accordingly Sir John deliver'd a Paper to the Government, wherein he ſaid in general, there were in England a ſettled number of Perſons to manage the Affairs of King James. And being afterwards put upon to name thoſe Perſons, and to deſcend to Particulars, he gave in another Writing, wherein among other Things he pretended, that the Duke of Shrewsbury came again into the Office of Secretary of State by the Operation and Conſent of King James; and that his Grace was in Treaty with that Monarch, before he laid down the Seals. That the Lord Marlborough had promiſed King James ſome Service, which had inclined His Majeſty to promiſe him his Pardon. That the Earl of Bath was to Betray Plymouth into the Hands of the French King. That Admiral Ruſſel, and the Lord Godolphin, were likewiſe in King James's Intereſt: And that Commiſſary Crawford had ſent over to France a Liſt of the Forces in England. Theſe Informations at firſt ſtartled not only the Court, but the King Himſelf, and gained Sir John Fenwick ſome Time: But being ſenſible that this Sham muſt at laſt be diſcover'd, he at the ſame Time endeavour'd to get off, at leaſt, one of the Two Evidences who ſwore the Treaſons againſt him at the Seſſions; well knowing, that according to the late Act, One was not ſufficient in a Capital Accuſation.

This Succeſs was fully accompliſh'd in the Perſon of Cardell Goodman; who, for a large Sum of Money given him, withdrew himſelf into France: And tho' by that means there ſeem'd to be no more Danger of Sir John's Life; yet both he and his Friends could have wiſh'd that Captain Porter, the other Witneſs, had likewiſe been ſpirited away; and to that end they made large Offers to him by an Iriſh Peruke-Maker, call'd Clancey. The Captain, who had a good Penſion from the King, and was loth to truſt a Party he had lately betray'd, diſcover'd the whole Intrigue to the Government: Who finding themſelves abus'd by theſe Clandeſtine Practices of the Jacobites, and having no room left to bring the Criminal to Puniſhment by the ordinary Courſe of Law; the King gave Admiral Ruſſel leave to acquaint the Houſe of Commons with theſe Proceedings, and lay before them the ſeveral Papers which were given in by Sir John Fenwick, in the Nature of Information againſt himſelf, and ſeveral other Perſons of Quality, This the Admiral on November the 6*th* did accordingly, and deſir'd that the ſaid Papers might be read, that ſo he might have the Opportunity to juſtify himſelf; or, if he did not, to fall under the Cenſure of the Houſe.

Sir John brought to the Bar of the Commons.

Thoſe Papers being delivered by Mr. Secretary Trumbal, were read in the Houſe; and Sir John Fenwick was brought to the Bar, and acquainted, That the Houſe underſtood he had ſhew'd ſome Inclinations to make a Diſcovery of the Practices and Deſigns of the Enemies of the Government, and that now he had an Opportunity for the ſame; and they did require him to make a full and ingenuous Diſcovery to them. But Sir John returned ſuch Anſwers, as the Houſe conceived to be only Excuſes. And being called in again, and required peremptorily to make ſuch Diſcovery; he refus'd to do it. Upon which the Houſe Reſolved, That the Papers read as Sir John Fenwick's Information, reflecting on the Fidelity of ſeveral Noble Peers, divers Members of this Houſe, and Others, only by Hear-ſay, are falſe and ſcandalous, and a Contrivance to undermine the Government, and to create Jealouſies between the King and his Subjects, in order to ſtifle the real Conſpiracy. And therefore Reſolved, That a Bill be brought in, to Attaint Sir John Fenwick of High Treaſon. 1696.

A Bill of Attainder againſt him.

This Bill was to be read the Second time on Friday November the 13*th* when Sir John Fenwick and his Council were called to the Bar; where they inſiſted, That no Evidence ſhould be produced againſt Sir John, but what related to the Proof of the Allegations in the Bill: And that Sir John Fenwick might be allow'd further Time to produce Witneſſes in his Defence. To both which Motions the Houſe complied to ſhew a tender Regard to the Priſoner. But when Sir John and his Council were again at the Bar, on Monday November the 16*th*. and were demanded, Whether they had any Witneſſes to produce; The Council declared, That they had no Witneſſes, but only in relation to a Record. The next day, Sir John Fenwick being brought in without Council, " Mr. Speaker, by Direction of the Houſe, " required him to give an Account of what " he knew, in relation to the Perſons of Qua- " lity that have been in this Goverment; " againſt whom he had given Information. Whereunto Sir John replied, That he was under a double Proſecution for his Life, and did not know, but what he might ſay might be to his own prejudice: And ſince the Houſe had done him the favour to hear him by his Council, he hoped they would pleaſe to conſider of what they had ſaid. And being preſſed again by Mr. Speaker, to give the Houſe ſatisfaction in what they required; He inſiſted on what he had ſaid before; and that he did not do it out of any Obſtinacy, but for his own Preſervation. After which, the Bill was read a Second time, and Committed by 182 Votes, againſt 123.

Speeches for and againſt the Bill.

On Wedneſday November the 25*th*. the Bill was read the Third time, and the Debates upon it ran very high. The Arguments for it and againſt it, were beſt ſumm'd up in thoſe Two Speeches, of Mr. Methwen, and Sir Godfrey Copley.

Mr. Methwen. " Mr. Speaker, I have not " troubled you in any of thoſe long Debates you " have had upon this Occaſion, and do it unwil- " lingly now; but I do think it every Man's " Duty, in a Caſe of this great Importance, " freely to own his Opinion, and give his Rea- " ſons for it.

" The greateſt Part of the Debate hath run " upon Two Things: On the one ſide, the In- " conveniency of Bills of Attainder, or at " leaſt the having them too frequent; On the " other ſide, That it is neceſſary to have them " ſometimes, that no Perſons might think they " were out of Reach, if they could evade the " Laws that were made to Puniſh Ordinary Of- " fenders.

" I think both theſe Points too general, and " that this Bill (as every other) ought to have " its Fate upon the particular Circumſtances of " the Caſe before you; and whoever gives his " Affirmative to this Bill, ought to be convinced " that Sir John Fenwick is guilty of High Trea- " ſon; and alſo, that there are extraordinary " Reaſons why the Nation does proſecute him " in ſo extraordinary a Manner: And I do think " neither of theſe is ſufficient alone.

" If

1696. "If between the Indictment and Arraigment or Tryal, Goodman ſhould have dyed, and there had been no other Reaſon for Attainting Sir John Fenwick, but only the want of his Evidence; I ſhould not have thought it a ſufficient Reaſon, though we ſhould have an Opportunity of being inform'd of his particular Evidence, and believed him guilty: And if Sir John Fenwick does not appear guilty, I do not think any Reaſon of State can juſtify this Bill, though he hath prevaricated and behaved himſelf to the diſſatisfaction of every body; therefore, I think, there muſt be both theſe.

"You have heard the Evidence; I ſhall not repeat it, but rather come to thoſe Things that diſtinguiſh Sir John Fenwick's Caſe; only thus, you have received the Evidence againſt Sir John Fenwick, and given him liberty to make his Defence, and have fully heard him, which, I think, hath alter'd the Reaſon of a great many Precedents, cited from my Lord Coke, and other Authors.

"That which diſtinguiſhes this Caſe, is, the great Danger the Nation was in from this Conſpiracy, and the Senſe the Nation hath had of it; and I find, by the general Opinion of all Perſons, this Danger is not thought yet at an end.

"There ſeems likewiſe to be an Opinion as general, That Sir John Fenwick could have contributed to your Safety by a Diſcovery.

"The next Circumſtance is, That Sir John Fenwick knowing this, and the Expectation the Nation had from him, that he could have contributed to your Safety, hath made uſe of that to put off his Trial; and at laſt, has made ſuch a Paper, as does ſhew an Inclination to do you all the Prejudice he can; pretended to the Creating of New Dangers; and by this means Sir John Fenwick, againſt whom there was Two Witneſſes when he was indicted, hath delayed his Tryal, ſo that now there is but One; and there is a violent Preſumption that this Perſon is withdrawn by the Practice of Sir John Fenwick's Friends.

"There remains yet with me as great a Conſideration as any of theſe, The Publick Reſentment of the Nation for ſuch his Behaviour, is the only means his Practice has left you to prevent the Danger that yet remains; and it ſeems neceſſary for your Safety, to come the next beſt way to what he could have done for you by his Diſcovery. Againſt the Evidence that hath been given, there have been great Doubts raiſed, not ſo much whether it be ſuch Evidence as ought to incline us to believe him guilty: But whether it be ſuch, as you ſhould hear in the Capacity you are in: and whether after it is found ſuch as it is, that is to ſay, not ſuch as would convict him upon another Tryal, Whether you ought to Credit it, and that it ſhould influence you to give your Vote for this Bill of Attainder? This is a Doubt that I find weighs generally with them that Differ from me in Opinion about this Bill; and therefore I deſire leave to ſpeak to that Particular.

"'Tis ſaid, That you are trying of Sir John Fenwick, that you are Judges, and that you are both Judges and Jury, and that you are obliged to proceed according to the ſame Rules, though not the Methods of Weſtminſter-Hall Secundum allegata & probata.

"But the State of the Matter, as it appears to me, is, That you are here in your Legiſlative Power, making a New Law for the attainting of Sir John Fenwick, and for exempting his particular Caſe from being tryed in thoſe Courts of Judicature, and by thoſe Rules which you have appointed for the Tryal of other Cauſes, and trying of it your ſelves (if you will uſe that Word, though improperly) in which Caſe the Methods differ from what the Laws made by your ſelves require in other Caſes; for this is never to be a Law for any other. 1696.

"Methinks this being the State of the Caſe, it quite puts us out of the Methods of Tryals, and all the Laws that are for limiting Rules for Evidence at Tryals in Weſtminſter Hall, and other Judicatures: For it muſt be agreed, the ſame Rules of Evidence muſt be obſerved in another Place, as well as Weſtminſter Hall, I mean in Impeachments, and it has always been ſo taken.

"The Notion of two Witneſſes being neceſſary, has ſo much gained upon ſome Gentlemen, that we have had it ſaid, That this is required by the Law of Nature, the Univerſal Law of Nations; nay, by the Eternal Law of God. And I think, if it was ſo, there would be no doubt but it would oblige us.

"And therefore to go to the bottom of the Matter: That any Man deſerves to be puniſhed is becauſe he is Criminal: That this or that Man deſerves it, is becauſe he is guilty of a Crime, let his Crime be made evident any way whatſoever: For whatſoever makes the Truth evident, is, and is accounted in all Laws to be evident.

"Now the Rules for examining whether any Perſon is guilty, or not, and the Evidence that is allowed as ſufficient, is different in all Nations: No two Nations agree in the ſame Evidence for the Tryal of Criminals, nor in the manner of giving the Evidence againſt them.

"Your Tryals differ from all other Nations, not only that you are tried by a Jury, which is particular to you, but that the Witneſſes are to be produc'd Face to Face before the Offender; and you have made Laws, that there ſhall be two Witneſſes in Caſes of High-Treaſon; and herein you are the Envy of all other Nations.

"Sir, The Evidence that is to be given againſt Criminals differs in the ſame Nation, when the Offence differs; there is a difference between the Evidence that will convict a Man of Felony, and the Evidence that is to convict a Man of Treaſon; and the Evidence to Convict a Man for the ſame Crime, hath been different in the ſame Nation at different times. No doubt, by the Canon Law of England, that Evidence was ſufficient to convict a Man of any Crime which was ſufficient to make the Jury believe the Perſon guilty. Thus before the Statute of Edw. VI. a Man might be convicted of Treaſon by one Witneſs; though that Statute was made upon great Reaſon, and appears to be for the Publick Good, by the General Approbation it hath received; but I don't think in your Proceedings here you are bound by it.

"But, Sir, it is ſaid, ſhall we that are the Supreme Authority, (as we are Part of it) go upon leſs Evidence to ſatisfie our ſelves of Sir John Fenwick's Guilt than other Courts? And ſhall we reſort to this Extraordinary Way in this Caſe?

"Truly, if it did ſhake the Manner of Trials below I ſhould be very unwilling to do it; but I do take it clearly, that it cannot make the leaſt Alteration in the Proceedings of any Court; but on the contrary, I think there is no ſtronger Arguments for your reſorting to this Extraordinary Way, than that of the Care and 1696. " Caution with which your Law hath provided " for Defence of the Innocent. For if we conſider all thoſe Laws that have been made for " that purpoſe, 'tis plain it muſt have been in the " view of our Anceſtors, that many Criminals " might by this means eſcape. Your Laws are " made for your Ordinary Trials, and for thoſe " things that happen uſually; and there is no Government we know in the World, where there " is not Reſort to Extraordinary Power, in Caſes " that require it. Your Government indeed hath " this Advantage, That you can keep to Rules " which others cannot: For in a very Wiſe Government (as was obſerved by a Perſon that " was in this Houſe the laſt time this was debated) " all the ways of puniſhing Crimes of this nature, " are Extraordinary, Perſons are condemned " there, not only unheard, but they are condemned before they are accuſed, and that is " thought neceſſary there, which will not be endured here: And yet that Government hath " continued ſo many Hundred Years, and no Endeavours have been to alter it, though ſo many Noble Families have ſuffered by it, becauſe " they are convinced, as to their Conſtitution, 'tis " neceſſary.

"Caution

" The next Argument is from the Precedent " you are about to make; and you have been " told, Whatever the other Precedents have been, " what you do now will be a Precedent for you " and your Poſterity: And whilſt that Argument " is uſed only to make you cautious, and to make " you conſider well, whether it is according to " the Duty to your Country, to paſs this Bill " (which no doubt is the only Queſtion before " you) 'tis a good Argument.

" Sir, If this Precedent ſhall appear to Poſterity to be a Predecent of an Innocent Man, or a " Perſon whoſe Guilt was doubted of, or one " whoſe Guilt did plainly not appear, and this " Bill ſhould be carried by a Prevailing Party, I " do agree it was a very Ill Precedent: But if the " Caſe be, that this Precedent will appear to Poſterity upon the Truth of the Thing to be a " Precedent made of a Man notoriouſly guilty, " of a Man that had deſerved this Extraordinary " Way of Proceeding, and this general Reſentment of the Nation, and that nothing could " have hinder'd this Man from the Common Juſtice of the Nation but his having endeavour'd " to elude it in this Matter; and if it appears that " you would not be put off ſo, but that your Indignation made an Example of this Man, I " ſhall not be ſorry it ſhould appear to Poſterity; " but I believe Poſterity will (as I think they " ought) thank you for it.

" Sir, I do ſay for my own Particular, while I " am innocent, I ſhould not think my Life in danger to be judged by 400 Engliſh Gentlemen, and " the Peerage of England, with the Royal Aſſent: " And when I reflect, I can't be of Opinion, That " the Government could have procured a Parliament to have paſſed a Bill of Attainder againſt " my Lord Ruſſel, or Mr. Corniſh, or Mr. Colledge: " I don't think all the Power of the Government " could have prevailed to have done that, altho' " they could prevail to have them condemned " by the Forms of Law. And here I ſee that a " great many Gentlemen have oppoſed every " ſtep of this Bill, for fear of making an ill Precedent: Yet theſe Gentlemen do believe in " their own private Conſciences that he is guilty: " And I can't think that any Innocent Perſon " can be in danger by ſuch a Bill, when Gentlemen oppoſe this Bill only upon the Prudential " Part, though they ſtill confeſs him to be guilty.

" The Concluſion I make for my ſelf is, That 1696. " I am convinced in my Conſcience (which I " think is ſufficient, when I act in the Capacity " I now do) that Sir John Fenwick is guilty of " High-Treaſon, and that there are Reaſons ſo " Extraordinary to ſupport this Bill of Attainder, " that I do not ſee how any Perſon that is ſo convinced, can refuſe to give his Affirmative to " this Bill.

Sir Godfrey Copley's Speech againſt the Bill.

Sir Godfrey Copley " Sir, I am very ſenſible " a great deal hath been ſaid upon this Subject, " but I think there is ſomething in Duty incumbent upon every Man, eſpecially upon me, " who can't concur with the general Senſe of the " Houſe, to give my Reaſons for my Diſagreement; and I will make uſe of no Arguments, " but ſuch as I can't anſwer my ſelf. A great " deal hath been ſaid upon this Debate by Gentlemen learned in the Law; and many of theſe, " though they have ſaid they would not ſpeak " againſt the Power of Parliaments, yet the greateſt part of their Arguments have touched upon " your Method of Proceedings; and to ſhew you " how they interfere with the Rules of Weſtminſter-Hall: So great is the Force of Cuſtom and " Education; but I acknowledge ſome have " brought us Arguments quite of another " Strain.

" I take the Puniſhment of Offenders to be one " of the Neceſſary Supports of all Governments; " and all Societies of Men have laid down to " themſelves ſome Rules, by which they judge " whether Perſons accuſed are innocent or guilty: Therefore in a Matter of this Extraordinary Importance, it is proper to conſider what " Rules we have to go by.

" It is the Cuſtom and Law of our Nation to " require two poſitive Witneſſes to prove Treaſon; and though I think without the utmoſt " neceſſity it is not prudent to deviate from that " Rule, yet I will not argue from thence that we are " tied up to it: No, it is moſt certian on the other " hand, that the Legiſlative Authority which " hath Power, if they think good, to abrogate all " Laws now in being, cannot be tied up to any " Rules of Human Preſcription. But Sir, theſe " are the Eternal Rules of Equity, and Juſtice, " and Right Reaſon, and Conſcience; and theſe " I think are unalterable, and never to be ſwerved from: And therefore I ſhall take the liberty to ſee how far agreeable our Proceedings " are to theſe Rules.

" Sir, I look upon it as a Fundamental Breach " of theſe Rules, for an Accuſation to be given " in againſt any Man behind his Back, by he " knows not whom, or by any with whom " he is not confronted, and brought Face to " Face.

" I am one of thoſe that look upon Sir John " Fenwick to be guilty, and there is a Proof of " it by one Witneſs; and to this you have added " an Indictment that is proved. Now I muſt " needs own, that I think that to be ſo far from " giving any Credit or Strength to the Evidence, " that in my Opinion the Injuſtice which attends it, makes the Scales lighter than they were " before. For if any Bill or Writing ſworn behind a Man's Back, may be uſed as part of Evidence, I do by parallel Reaſon argue, that " the like may make up the whole at one time or " other; and then the Information of any Two " Profligate Knaves before a Secretary of State, " or a Juſtice of Peace, ſhall be ſufficient, without any Living Teſtimony, to make a Man run " the Hazard of his Life.

" Then, Sir, I am not at all convinced of the " Neceſſity of this Proceeding: I muſt confeſs, 1696.

" that

"that thoſe that brought this Matter before us "are much wiſer than I, and therefore I will "not examine what Reaſon they had to do it; "but it is ſo little agreeable to me, I wiſh it had "not come here. But is it to be ſuppoſed that "your Government is in hazard by any Man "that is faſt in Newgate? Can any Man think "that Sir John Fenwick can do any thing in his "Condition to hazard it? Can you expect that "a Man that hath been Six Months in Priſon, "and no body came at him, that he may make "ſuch a Diſcovery as may be worth your while? "But ſuppoſe you had a Man of Invention and "Practice, what a Spur do you put to it? May "not a Man of Parts, when he hath no other "Way to ſave himſelf, may not he form ſuch a "Plot, as (ſhould it gain Belief) might make "the beſt Subjects in England tremble?

"'Tis not Sir John Fenwick's Life which I ar- "gue for; I do not think it of ſo great Value to "deſerve ſo long and Solemn a Debate in this "Houſe, nor the Conſideration of ſo great an "Aſſembly after this Manner. But I do ſay, If "this Method of Proceeding be warranted by an "Engliſh Parliament, there is an end to the De- "fence of any Man living, be he never ſo inno- "cent.

"Sir, I remember I heard it mention'd on the "other ſide of the Way, by an Honourable Per- "ſon, who never lets any Argument want its "weight, That King James Attainted a great "Number of Perſons in a Catalogue, in a Lump. "Sir, I am not afraid of what Arbitrary Princes "do, nor an Iriſh Parliament; but I am afraid "of what ſhall be done here: I am concerned "for the Honour of your Proceedings, that it "may be a Precedent to a future Parliament in "an Ill Reign, to do that which I am ſatisfied "you would not do. I had ſome other Thoughts, "which I cannot recollect, though theſe Rea- "ſons are ſufficient to convince me.

Members for and againſt the Bill.

The other Members who ſpake for the Bill, were Mr. Mountague, my Lord Cutts, Sir William Strickland, Sir Herbert Crofts, Mr. Vernon, Mr. Smith Mr. Boſcawen, Mr. Cowper, Mr. Sloane, Col. Wharton: Thoſe who ſpoke againſt the Bill, were Sir Charles Carteret, Mr. Manley, Mr. Dolben, Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Robert Cotton, Lord Norreys, Mr. Hammond, Mr. Bromley, Mr. Harcourt, Sir Richard Temple, Mr. Paget, Mr. Jefferies, Mr. Edward Harley. After the Arguments had been offered on both ſides, the Queſtion was put for paſſing the Bill; whereupon the Houſe divided, and it was carried in the Affirmative by 189 Voices againſt 156, and ſent up to the Lords by Mr. Norris.

The Lords divided on the ſame Bill.

This Bill found the Lords divided in their Opinions. All who were diſaffected to the Government, fell in to the Negative; and even ſome of the beſt Friends to the Revolution and Eſtabliſhment, were very averſe to any extraordinary way of Proceeding: Yet the Bill was at laſt carried by a Majority of Seven Voices only, there being 68 for it, and 61 againſt it. Thoſe Lords who were for the Negative, entred their Proteſtation in the Journal of the Houſe; which they grounded on theſe Reaſons. "1. becauſe "Bills of Attainder againſt Perſons in Priſon, "and who are therefore liable to be tryed by "Common-Law, are of dangerous Conſequence "to the Lives of the Subjects, and may tend to "the Subverſion of the Laws of the Kingdom. "2. Becauſe the Evidence of Grand Jury-Men, "of what was Sworn before them againſt Sir "John Fenwick, as alſo the Evidence of the Pet- "ty-Jury-Men was admitted here; both which "are againſt the Rules of Law, beſides that they "diſagreed in their Teſtimony. 3. Becauſe the "Information of Goodman in Writing was re- "ciev'd, which by Law was not admitted; and "the Priſoner, for want of his appearing Face to "Face, (as is by Law requir'd) could not have "the Advantage of Croſs-Examining him: And "it did not appear by Evidence, that Sir John "Fenwick, or any other Perſon employ'd by "him, had any way perſuaded Goodman to with- "draw himſelf: And it would be of very dan- "gerous Conſequence, That any Perſon ſo Ac- "cus'd, ſhould be condemn'd; for by this means "a Witneſs who ſhould be found inſufficient to "Convict a Man, ſhould have more Power to hurt "a Man by his Abſence, than if he he were pro- "duced Viva Voce againſt him. 4. Becauſe if "Goodman had appeared againſt him, he was In- "famous in the whole Courſe of his Life; and "could not be a good Witneſs, eſpecially in Ca- "ſes of Blood. 5. Becauſe in this Caſe there "was but one Evidence, viz. Porter, and he a "very doubtful one. 6. Laſtly, Becauſe Sir John "Fenwick was ſo inconſiderable a Man as not to en- "danger the Peace of the Government, that there "was no Neceſſity of proceeding againſt him in "ſo extraordinary a Manner.

Reaſons of Proteſting againſt it.

On Monday, January 11*th*. His Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act to Attaint Sir John Fenwick, Baronet, of High Treaſon. 2. An Act to Attaint ſuch of the Perſons concerned in the late Horrid Conſpiracy to Aſſaſſinate His Majeſty's Royal Perſon, who are fled from Juſtice, unleſs they render themſelves to Juſtice; and for continuing ſeveral other of the ſaid Conſpirators in Cuſtody. 3. An Act for Naturalizing Frederick Chriſtiaen de Rhede, commonly called Lord Aghram, and others. 4. An Act for the Settlement of the Mannor of Tregagoe in the County of Hereford, and other Lands, late of Crompton Mynors, Eſq; Deceaſed; and for Raiſing and Increaſing of the Portion of Theodoſia Mynors, the Daughter of the ſaid Crompton, ſhe being an Infant of the Age of Seventeen Years.

Acts paſſed.

On Thurſday, January 28. Sir John Fenwick was brought by the Sheriffs of London and Middleſex, under a Guard from Newgate to Tower-Hill, where he Sir John Fenwick Executed.

(a) In truth, the greateſt Enemies to the true Intereſt of the Government, were the capricious and diſoblig'd Friends of it; they had not found their Accounts agreeable to their Hopes; they had not obtain'd the laſt Favour they ask'd of the King; or they had not found their Opinion and Advice anſwering always to his Judgment; or ſuch a One was a Man they could not act with; or they were denied to have their own Man; or they thought themſelves ſo neceſſary to the Government, that they might preſume to ſtand upon their own Terms; or at beſt, they were weary of Trouble and Hurry, and thought it ſome Honour to leave the Court, when it was only Indolence to enjoy themſelves: And theſe ſort of Abdicating Courtiers, did His Majeſty more diſſervice, than any who oppos'd His Title and Adminiſtration from the Beginning. It was ſo with the Clergy, they who were Originally the Divine Right Men, and the Non-Jurors were but a Sort of impotent Adverſaries: They who moſt alienated the Hearts of People from the King, and threw moſt Stones under the Wheel of the Government; were the diſcontented Divines, who had taken the Oaths, and Pray'd for His Majeſty, as bound by Law, and yet made no Conſcience of inſtilling Principles, and repreſenting Facts, the moſt injurious to the preſent Government. Of theſe Men, a Biſhop of the Church is ſpeaking, in his Reflections, &c. Publiſh'd within this Year, 1696. "If there "are any who can Swear againſt their Conſciences, and can "continue in Acts of Worſhip, Prayers and Thankſgivings, "Ordinary and Extraordinary, while their Perſuaſions are "full to the contrary; Is there any who Pray for the King, "while they Talk and Act againſt Him? theſe are the Men "who bring a Scandal on our Holy Religion; they Sell their "Conſciences, and Sacrifice that which they fancy to be Loyal- "ty, for the Conveniencies of this Life, that they may hold "their Livings and Preferments."——They are certainly the worſt Sort of Men in the Nation.

1696. he was Beheaded on a Scaffold erected for that purpoſe. Before his Execution, he deliver'd this Paper to the Sheriffs.

His Paper to the Sheriffs.

"Speaking nor Writing was never my Talent. "I ſhall therefore give a very ſhort, but faithful "Account, Firſt, of my Religion; and next, "what I ſuffer moſt Innocently for; to avoid "the Calumnies I may reaſonably expect my "Enemies will caſt upon me when Dead; ſince "they have moſt falſly and maliciouſly Aſperſed "me, whilſt under my Misfortunes.

"As for my Religion, I was brought up in the "Church of England, as it is by Law Eſtabliſh-"ed, and have ever profeſſed it; though I con-"feſs, I have been an unworthy Member of it, "in not living up to the ſtrict and excellent Rules "thereof; for which I take Shame to my ſelf, "and humbly ask Forgiveneſs of God. I come "now to Die in that Communion, truſting as "an Humble and Hearty Penitent, to be Receiv'd "by the Mercy of God, through the Merits of "Jeſus Chriſt my Saviour.

"My Religion taught me my Loyalty, which "I bleſs God is Untainted; and I have ever en-"deavour'd in the Station wherein I have been "placed, to the utmoſt of my Power, to ſup-"port the Crown of England, in the True and "Lineal Courſe of Deſcent, without Interrup-"tion.

"As for what I am now to Die, I call God to "Witneſs, I went not to that Meeting in Leaden-"Hall-Street, with any ſuch Intention as to In-"vite King James by Force to Invade this Na-"tion; nor was I my ſelf provided with either "Horſe or Arms, or engaged for any Number "of Men, or gave particular Conſent for any "ſuch Invaſion, as is moſt falſly Sworn againſt "me.

"I do alſo Declare in the Preſence of God, "That I knew nothing of King James his com-"ing to Calais, nor of any Invaſion intended "from thence, till it was publickly known: And "the only Notion I had that ſomething might "be attempted, was from the Thoulon Fleet com-"ing to Breſt.

"I alſo call God to Witneſs, That I received "the Knowledge of what is contained in thoſe "Papers that I gave to a Great Man, that came "to me in the Tower, both from Letter and "Meſſages that came from France; and he told "me when I read them to him, that the Prince "of Orange had been acquainted with moſt of "thoſe Things before.

"I might have expected Mercy from that "Prince, becauſe I was Inſtrumental in ſaving "his Life: For when about April 95. an At-"tempt formed againſt him, came to my know-"ledge, I did partly by Diſſuaſions, and partly "by Delays, Prevent that Deſign; which I ſup-"poſe was the reaſon that the laſt Villanous "Project was concealed from me.

"If there be any Perſons whom I have injur'd "in Word or Deed, I heartily pray their Par-"don; and beg of God to Pardon thoſe who "have injur'd me; particularly thoſe who with "great Zeal have ſought my Life, and brought "the Guilt of my Innocent Blood upon this "Nation, no Treaſon being proved upon "me.

"I return my moſt Hearty Thanks to thoſe "Noble and Worthy Perſons, who gave me "their Aſſiſtance by oppoſing this Bill of At-"tainder; without which it had been impoſſible "I could have fallen under the Sentence of "Death. God Bleſs them and their Poſterity; "though I am fully ſatisfied they Pleaded their "own Cauſe, while they Defended mine.

"I pray God to Bleſs my True and Lawful "Sovereigns King James and the Queen, and "Prince of Wales, and Reſtore Him and His "Poſterity to this Thone again, for the Peace "and Proſperity of this Nation, which is impoſ-"ſible to Proſper till the Government is ſettled "upon a right Foot. 1696.

"And now, O God, I do with all Humble De-"votion Commend my Soul into thy Hands, the Great "Maker and Preſerver of Men, and Lover of Souls, "beſeeching Thee, that it may be always dear and "precious in thy Sight, through the Merits of my "Saviour Jeſus Chriſt. Amen.

J. FENWICK.

Acts paſſed.

On Friday January the 29*th* His Majeſty came again to the Houſe of Peers, and Paſs'd theſe Bills. 1. An Act for Granting an Aid to His Ma-jeſty, as well by a Land Tax, as by ſeveral Subſidies and other Duties payable for one Year. 2. An Act for Veſting the Mannors of Holme, alias Eaſt-Holme and Swanage in the County of Dorſet, part of the Eſtate of Sir John Hanham Baronet, in Truſtees to be Sold for Diſcharging a Mortgage thereupon, and upon the Reſidue of the ſaid Sir John Hanham's Eſtate; and for Payment of his other Debts. 3. An Act for Enabling Oliver Neve of Great Witchin-ham in the County of Norfolk Eſquire, to Sell Two Houſes in London, and for Veſting other Lands in the ſaid County, of greater Value, to the ſame uſe.

On February the 9*th* the Commons Eſtimated and Computed the Aids Granted to His Majeſty for the Service of the Year, 1697. at Three Mil-lions, which fell ſhort of what was neceſſary to anſwer thoſe Occaſions, and to make good the Defective Funds, which for the laſt Year fell ſhort Eight Hundred and Forty Thouſand Pounds; for ſupplying whereof they laid a far-ther Duty upon Leather, of 15*l. per Cent.* for Three Years. While they were conſidering of other ways, they were put in Mind of a new Occaſion of Supply, by this Meſſage from the King in Writing, delivered by Mr. Secretary Trumbal.

William R.

King's Meſſage to the Commons.

"His Majeſty finding Himſelf under very "great Difficulties for want of Money to ſupply "the Occaſions of the Civil Liſt, has thought "it neceſſary to remind the Houſe of That "part of His Speech, which relates to that "Head; deſiring that Speedy Care may be taken "to make effectual Proviſion for it.

The Civil Liſt ſupported.

This Meſſage and that Part of His Majeſty's Speech to which it referr'd, were taken into due Conſideration, and within a few Days it was Reſolved, that a Supply of 515000 Pounds be Granted to His Majeſty, for the ſupport of the Ci-vil Liſt; and that the ſaid Sum be raiſed by laying a Duty of Six-pence per Buſhel upon Malt, for Two Years and a Quarter. And becauſe the Impoſitions before-mentioned did not fully anſ-wer the Sums already Voted, the Commons Re-ſolve on March the 3*d* That towards Raiſing the Supply Granted to His Majeſty for carrying on the War againſt France, for the Service of the Year 1697. and for the Support of the Civil Liſt, a further Duty be laid upon all Cyder and Perry, Mum, Wines and Sweets; and upon all Goods made or mix'd with Wool, Silk or Hair. And for the laſt occaſion of doing Juſtice, by making good the Deficiency of the Proviſion for the Payment of the Intereſt of the Traſ-port Debt for the Reducing of Ireland, they Reſolved to lay a Duty upon all Hawkers and Pedlars.

On

1696.

Acts P. ied.

On Monday March the 8*th.* the King came to the Houſe of Peers and gave the Royal Aſſent to theſe ſeveral Bills. 1. An Act for Granting to His Majeſty ſeveral Duties upon Paper, Vellum, and Parchment, to encourage the bringing of Plate and Hammer'd Money into the Mint to be Coin'd. 2. An Act to encourage the bringing in of Wrought Plate to be Coined. 3. An Act for continuing certain Additional Impoſitions upon ſeveral Goods and Merchandizes. 4. An Act to Enable the Returns of Juries as formerly, until the firſt Day of November, 1697. 5. An Act for the better preventing Frivolous and Vexatious Suits. 6. An Act to Reſtore the Markets at Blackwell-Hall to the Clothiers, and for Regulating the Factors there. 7. An Act for Enabling James Duke of Ormond, to raiſe Money by Sale of Woods, and making Leaſes for Lives, renewable for ever, for Payment of Debts, and for Encouraging Engliſh Plantations in Ireland; and for Charles Lord Weſton Earl of Arran, in the Kingdom of Ireland, to make Leaſes of his Eſtate in the ſaid Kingdom. 8. An Act for the Exchange of certain Advouſons, between the Biſhop of London, and the Earl of Nottingham. 9. An Act for the ſpeedy ſatisfying of the Debtors of Francis late Lord Holles Deceaſed. 10. An Act to Enable Sir Ralph Aſhton Baronet, to ſupply an Omiſſion of a Limitation, intended in his Marriage Settlement, for the Benefit of his Iſſue Male. 11. An Act for the Sale of the Eſtate late of Francis Griffith, late of London, Scrivener, Deceaſed, for Payment of his Debts. 12. An Act for the ſettling the Eſtate of Mary Savile, an Infant, upon her Marriage. 13. An Act to Enable the Sale of Lands, late of Jeffery Stockley in the County of Cheſter, Deceaſed, for Payment of his Debts, and for making Proviſion for Mary his Daughter. 14. An Act for Veſting certain Meſſuages, Lands and Tenements, late of Charles Milſon, Deceaſed, in Truſtees to Sell for Payment of Debts and Legacies, and lay out the Surplus Money in a Purchaſe of Lands for the uſe of Edward Milſon, and his Heirs, according to the Will of the ſaid Charles Milſon. 15. An Act to Enable Nicholas Goodwin the Elder, and Nicholas Goodwin the Younger, to ſell the Mannor of Winſlow, in the County of Bucks, and with the Money ariſing thereby, and other Moneys to be advanced by the ſaid Nicholas Goodwin the Elder, to Purchaſe Lands of a greater Yearly Value, to be ſettled to the ſame Uſes as the ſaid Mannor is now ſettled. 16. An Act for the Veſting of certain Lands of William Milward in the County of Hereford, Clerk, in Truſtees, for Payment of Debts. 17. An Act for Veſting the Eſtate of Edward Kerry Eſq; lying in the Bin-Weſton in the County of Salop, in Truſtees, to diſcharge Incumbrances therein, and to raiſe Portions for Younger Children, and for Confirming the Marriage Settlement of the ſaid Edward Kerry. 18. An Act for Veſting part of the Eſtate of Thomas Panton Eſq; in Truſtees, to be ſold for Payment of Debts, and ſecuring a Jointure to Mary his now Wife. 19. An Act for Naturalizing of John Keyſor, and others. 20. An Act to Enable Edward Leigh Eſq; and Jane his Wife and their Truſtees, to Sell the Mannors of Waxham and Horſey, and certain Lands and Tenements in the County of Norfolk, and to Purchaſe and ſettle other Lands to the ſame Uſes. 21. An Act for Veſting and Settling certain Eſtates of William James Gent. in and upon Truſtees, to be Sold for Payment of Debts, and making Proviſion for himſelf, his Wife and their Children.

Honours and Preferments.

As to Honours and Places beſtow'd during this Seſſion; On November the 19*th.* Sir Joſeph Williamſon was by His Majeſty's Command Sworn of the Privy Council; and with the Lord Privy Seal Earl of Pembrook, and the Lord Viſcount Villars, was on December the 12*th.* named by His Majeſty as Plenipotentiary for the Treaty of a General Peace. On February the 6*th.* His Majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute the Lord Viſcount Galway, one of the Lords Juſtices of Ireland, and John Methuen Eſq; Lord Chancellor of that Kingdom. On February the 19*th.* in a Chapter held at Kenſington, the Earl of Portland was elected a Knight of the Garter; and inveſted with the Enſigns of that Noble Order. On March the 3*d.* His Majeſty was pleaſed to make Sir Cloudſley Shovel a Colonel of the Marine Regiment, lately Commanded by the Lord Berkley, Baron of Stretham, who, after Commanding our Fleet in the Channel upon ſeveral Expeditions, died on February the 27*th.* after a few Days Sickneſs of a Fever and Pleuriſie. On March the 17*th.* the King conferr'd the Dignity of a Baronet upon Edward Manſel of Trimſaram in the County of Carmarthen Eſq; And on the next Day His Majeſty, in His Bedchamber, conferred the Honour of Knighthood upon Richard Blackmore, M. D. having before been pleaſed to order him to be Sworn one of his Phyſicians in Ordinary: He being a Perſon of great Reputation for his Practice in Phyſick, for his excellent Performance in Heroic Poems, for his univerſal Wit and Learning, and for his Affection to the King and the preſent Government: and what is moſt Laudable, for his Reforming and Sanctifying Poetry, by caſting out the Images of Heathen Theology, and writing like a Chriſtian.

The Church of England had a great Loſs in the Death of Dr. Robert Grove, Lord Biſhop of Chicheſter; who, by the Misfortune of unruly Horſes, was thrown out of his Coach, and in the Fall broke his Leg, and loſt his Life by it. To fill his Place with a worthy Succeſſor, His Majeſty immediately after His Return from Holland, was pleaſed to name Dr. John Williams, Rector of St. Mildred's Poultrey in London, to that Biſhoprick: A ſound Divine, a general Scholar, and a Man of ſingular Probity and Humility. He was Conſecrated on Sunday, Dec. 13*th.* His Prebend of Canterbury was given to the Learned Dr. William Beveridge.

State of Religion.

It was a particular Honour to the Houſe of Commons, that while they were under ſo great Difficulties in raiſing Money for the Exigence of the War, they did receive and paſs a Bill, for the Compleating, Building, and Adorning of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's, London, by a further Impoſition upon Coals. And they ſeem'd ſo well diſpoſ'd to that Work of Piety, that it encourag'd many Pariſhes to make ſolemn Petitions to them, for ſome Aſſiſtance towards Repairing or Rebuilding their decayed and ruin'd Churches. As, from the Miniſter, Church-Wardens, and Pariſhioners of St. Botolph without Alderſgate, London, on February the 5*th.* From the Vicar, Church-Warden, Juſtices of the Peace, Veſtry-Men and other Inhabitants of St. Martin in the Fields: As alſo from the Pariſhioners of St. Helen's, London; on February the 8*th.* From the Inhabitants of Kenſington, on February the 9*th.* and of Spittle-Fields, for ſome ſupply towards Building a Chappel for the ſaid Hamlet. From the Pariſh of St. George in Southwark, towards Repairing their Church, and Rebuilding their Steeple. From St. Thomas's Hoſpital in Southwark, for Rebuilding that Church; on the ſame day. From the Rector, Church-Wardens, and other Officers and Inhabitants of St. John Wapping; for Raiſing their Church, Erecting a Steeple, and compleating the Building of the Rector's Houſe, February the 16*th.* From the Rector, Church-Wardens, and Members of the Veſtry of St. Botolph Biſhopſgate, for Rebuilding of that Church; February the 19*th.* From the Rector, Church-Wardens, and principal Inhabitants of St.

Act for Rebuilding of St. Paul's Church.

Petitions for other decay'd Churches.

1696.

St. Andrew's Holborn; for Rebuilding the Steeple, and Church-yard Walls and Gates; February the 23*d*. From the Pariſh of St. Olave's in Southwark; for Rebuilding their Pariſh-Church; on March the 2*d*. Nothing ſo much obſtructed the Anſwering of thoſe Petitions, as the Multitude of them: It might have been thought partial, to oblige any One or Two Pariſhes, and it was impracticable to gratify them All. Tho' poſſibly, had they all agreed in One Joint Petition, for one common Bill of Relief; at leaſt in Reverſion, after the expiring of the Term allow'd for the ſervice of St. Paul's Church; they might have gain'd a Proviſional Act for Rebuilding or Repairing thoſe old Churches; which had been then Reaſonable, and muſt be Neceſſary ſome time or other.

Parliament intent on the publick Credit.

The long Seſſions of Parliament were owing to the Multiplicity of Publick Affairs, rather than to the dilatory Proceedings of either Houſe, or to any Obſtruction given by the King or the Court. The great Buſineſs was to retrieve and maintain the Publick Credit; and to ſupply the Want of Money by the Currency of Exchequer Bills, and to ſupport the Bank of England. The Commons were ſo intent upon theſe wiſe Ends, that when in a Paper entitled the Flying-Poſt, publiſh'd on Thurſday April the 1*ſt*. there was this Advertiſement: We hear, that when the Exchequer Notes are given out upon the Capitation Fund, whoſoever ſhall deſire Specie on them, will have it at Five Pound and half per Cent. of the Society of Gentlemen that have ſubſcribed to advance ſome Hundred Thouſands of Pounds: They Voted this Paſſage to be a Malicious Inſinuation, in order to deſtroy the Credit and Currency of the Exchequer Bills. They ordered the Printer, John Salisbury, to be ſent for in Cuſtody; and gave leave to bring in a Bill, to prevent the Writing, Printing, or Publiſhing any News without Licenſe. And yet when ſuch a Bill was preſented by Mr. Poultney, it was thrown out before a Second Reading; becauſe tho' they ſaw the Miſchiefs of the Liberty of the Preſs, they knew not where to fix the Power of Reſtraint. On the ſame day, April the 1*ſt*. His Majeſty came to the Houſe of Lords, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for making good the Deficiencies of ſeveral Funds therein-mentioned; and for Enlarging the Capital Stock of the Bank of England: and for Raiſing the Publick Credit. 2. An Act for Repealing of a Clauſe in a former Act, relating to Party-Guiles; and for the better preventing Frauds and Abuſes of Brewers, and others chargeable with the Duties of Exciſe. 3. An Act for Enlarging common High-Ways. 4. An Act for continuing ſeveral former Acts, for Puniſhing Officers and Soldiers, who ſhall Mutiny or Deſert His Majeſty's Service; and for Puniſhing falſe Muſters; and for Payment of Quarters for One Year Longer. 5. An Act for the Compleating, Building, and Adorning the Cathedral-Church of St. Paul, London; and for Repairing the Collegiate Church of St. Peter, Weſtminſter. 6. An Act for Relief of Creditors, by making Compoſitions with their Debtors, in caſe Two Thirds in Number and Value do agree. 7. An Act for Paving and Regulating the Hay-Market, in the Pariſhes of St. Martin in the Fields, and St. James within the Liberty of Weſtminſter. 8. An Act for Repairing the High-Way between Ryegate in the County of Surrey, and Crawley in the County of Suſſex. 9. An Act for Explaining a former Act of Parliament, entitled, An Act for Enabling Truſtees to Sell Part of the Eſtate of Edmund Warner, deceas'd, for Payment of his Debts, and for preſerving the reſt for the Benefit of his Heir. 10. An Act to Enable William Fallows, an Infant, to Sell an Eſtate in the County of Cheſter, to pay Debts ſecured by Mortgages. 11. An Act to Veſt certain Lands late of Samuel Trotman, Eſq; deceas'd; lying in Barking, Eaſt-Ham, Weſt-Ham, and Woolwich, in the Counties of Kent and Eſſex, in Truſtees, to be ſold; and to ſettle other Lands in lieu thereof. 12. An Act to ſupply a Defect in an Act, for Enabling Oliver Neve, Eſq; to Sell Two Houſes in London, and for ſettling Lands in the County of Norfolk, of greater Value, to the ſame Uſes. 13. An Act for Veſting Part of the Eſtate of Roger Crowle, Eſq; deceas'd, in Truſtees; for Raiſing Portions for his younger Children; in regard he being a Lunatick, could not execute a Power in his Marriage-Settlement for that Purpoſe. 14. An Act for Importing ſeveral Goods and Merchandizes, laden in Turkey, on Board the Ships call'd the Succeſs and Dragon-Galley; paying Cuſtoms, as if Imported by Engliſh Ships.

A Bill againſt News-Papers.

Grievance of Privileged Places.

There had been a Publick Grievance of long ſtanding, ſeveral Places in and about London, which in the Times of Popery were allowed as Sanctuaries to eſcaping Criminals, had ever ſince the Reformation pretended a Privilege to protect abſconding Debtors: One of theſe, call'd White-Friars, was become a Notorious Neſt of broken and deſperate Men, in the very Heart of the City, whither they reſorted in great Numbers; and to the Reproach of the Government, as well as to the Defrauding of the People, defended themſelves with Force and Violence againſt the Law and Publick Authority. This intolerable Inſult upon the Juſtice of the Nation the Parliament laboured to redreſs, in a Bill, for the more effectual Relief of Creditors in Caſes of

The Reverend Dr. Payne, as before intimated, had offended Dr. South in Two Sermons, Preach'd in his own Turn, within the Abby-Church of Weſtminſter, on 1 Tim. iii. 9. Holding the Myſtery of the Faith in a pure Conſcience. Two of his Brethren, Dr. Birch and Dr. Brevall, upon the Suggeſtions of Dr. South, Complain'd of his Falſe Doctrine to the Dean, who adviſ'd them to put the Matter in Writing; they did ſo in a Paper, of which the Original was lent to me by the Reverend Mr. Squire Payne, Son of the ſaid Doctor, and this is the Copy.

"I. That the Divinity is aſcribed only Equivocally to the Son "and Holy Ghoſt.

"II. That always when the Scriptures ſpeak of one only "God, they are to be underſtood of the Father only.

"III. That the Unity of the Three Divine Perſons, is a kind "of Specifical Numerical Unity.

Theſe are the Propoſitions which Dr. Birch and Dr. Brevall Objected againſt, and affirm'd they heard from Dr. Payne, on laſt Trinity-Sunday.

Tho. Roffen.

This Matter of Complaint was open'd in the Chapter-Houſe, and nothing made of it; upon which Dr. Payne Publiſh'd that and Two other Sermons, under this Title, The Myſtery of the Chriſtian Faith, and of the Bleſſed Trinity, Vindicated, and the Divinity of Chriſt Proved, in Three Sermons Preached in Weſtminſter-Abby, upon Trinity-Sunday, June 7. and Sept. 21 1696. by the late Reverend William Payne, D. D. in the Preſs before his Death, and by himſelf order'd to be Publiſh'd. London, 1697. 8*vo*.

The Papiſts were as buſie as ever in Superſtition and Rebellion. See 1. The Devil turn'd Caſuiſt: Or, the Cheats of Rome laid open in the Exorciſm of a deſpairing Devil, at the Houſe of Thomas Ponnington, in Orran, in the Pariſh of Wigan, and County of Lancaſter, by Zachary Taylor A. M. Chaplain to Nicholas Lord Biſhop of Cheſter, and Rector of Wigan, with an Epiſtle Dedicated to the ſaid Biſhop of Cheſter, reciting many other late Inſtances of Popiſh Impoſtures, in pretending to Cure Dæmoniacks, &c.

See the Biſhop of London's Ninth Conference with his Clergy, upon the Fifth and Tenth Injunctions, given by the King, Feb. 15. 1694-5. Held in the Years 1695, and 1696, concerning the giving Certificates to thoſe who are to be ordained, and that the Biſhops look to the Lives and Manners of the Clergy. London, by Benj. Motte, 4*to*.

See a Repreſentation of the deplorable State and Condition of the Dioceſe of St. Aſaph, humbly laid before the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, with Articles of Complaint againſt the preſent Biſhop, ſubſcribed by Thirty Eight Clergy-Men, ſome Dignitaries, and others Beneficed in the ſaid Church, July 1656.

See Three ſeveral Charges delivered by the Right Reverend the Lord Biſhop of Worceſter, to the Clergy of his Dioceſe, in his Third Triennial Viſitation, 1656.

Eſcapes;

1697. Eſcapes; and for preventing Abuſes in Priſons and pretended Privileged Places: Wherein ſuch effectual Proviſion was made to reduce thoſe Outlaws, that immediately after the Act was publiſh'd, they abandon'd their Poſts of Refuge, and left Room for better Inhabitants. There was another reigning Scandal in the New Art of Stock-Jobbing, that was grown up into ſuch a Myſtery of Deceit and Impudence, that it obſtructed all other Trade, and taught Men the Trick of living by their Wits, without any viſible Induſtry, or any known Ability. This Miſchief too was in ſome Meaſure remov'd, by a Bill to reſtrain the Number and Ill Practices of Brokers and Stock-Jobbers. There were ſome other Bills depending, to rectify many other Abuſes. As, 1. A Bill to prevent the Buying and Selling of Offices, and Places of Truſt. 2. A Bill to prevent the undue Marriage of Infants; and for better ſecuring the Guardianſhip of them. 3. A Bill for further Regulating Elections of Members to ſerve in Parliament. 4. A Bill to ſettle and regulate the Trade to Africa. 5. A Bill to encourage the Woollen-Manufacture in England; and to prevent the Exportation of it from Ireland to Foreign Parts. 6. A Bill to reſtrain the Wearing of all Wrought Silks and Bengalls, imported into this Kingdom from Perſia and Eaſt-India, and all Callicoes Printed and Stained there. To preſs on this laſt Bill, a Tumultuous Croud of Weavers came in ſo riotous a manner, to the very Lobby of the Houſe of Commons, that the Houſe were oblig'd to Defend themſelves, by ordering the Sheriffs and Juſtices of London and Middleſex, to ſuppreſs the ſaid Tumult; and by making a Vote, That the Inciting and Encouraging any Number of Perſons to come in a Riotous, Tumultuous, or Diſorderly Manner to this Houſe, in order to hinder or promote the Paſſing any Bill, being againſt the Conſtitution and Freedom of Parliament, is a High Crime and Miſdemeanor. But to make ſome Atonement, within few Days after, the Bailiffs Wardens, and Aſſiſtants of the Corporation of Weavers of the City of London, preſented an Addreſs to His Majeſty; wherein they declar'd their Deteſtation of the late Riotous and Tumultuous Behaviour of the Poorer Sort of Weavers and other Perſons; and that neither they, nor any Maſter-Weavers, were the Inviters or Encouragers thereof: And aſſur'd His Majeſty, That they would not only uſe their utmoſt Endeavours to prevent the like Diſorders for the future, but on all Occaſions would ſacrifice their Lives and all that was dear to 'em in the Defence of His Majeſty's Sacred Perſon and Government.

Grievance of Stock-Jobbing.

Tumult of Weavers.

On Friday, April 16. His Majeſty came to the Houſe of Lords, to put an end to this long continued Seſſion, He gave the Royal Aſſent to theſe ſeveral Bills. 1. An Act for laying a Duty upon Leather, for the Term of Three Years, and making other Proviſion for anſwering the Deficiencies, as well of the late Duties upon Coals and Culm, as for paying the Annuities upon the Lottery, and for Lives, charged on the Tonnage of Ships, and the Duties upon Salt. 2. An Act for granting to His Majeſty certain Duties upon Malt, Mum, Sweets, Cyder and Perry, as well towards carrying on the War againſt France, as for the Neceſſary Expence of His Majeſty's Houſhold, and other Occaſions. 3. An Act for Licenſing Hawkers and Pedlars for a farther Proviſion for Payment of the Intereſt of the Tranſport Debt for the Reducing of Ireland. 4. An Act for granting to His Majeſty a farther Subſidy of Tonnage and Poundage upon Merchandizes imported, for the Term of Two Years and Three Quarters, and an Additional Land Tax for One Year, for carrying on the War againſt France. 5. An Act for the leſſening the Duty upon Tin and Pewter exported, and granting an Equivalent for the ſame, by a Duty upon Drugs. 6. An Act to make Perpetual and more Effectual an Act Entitled, An Act to prevent Delays at the Quarter Seſſions of the Peace. 7. An Act to enforce the Act for the Increaſe and Encouragement of Seamen. 8. An Act for raiſing the Militia for the Year One Thouſand Six Hundred Ninety Seven, although the Month's Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 9 An Act for Explaining and Inforcing the Act for Paving and Cleanſing the Streets within the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and Borough of Southwark, and Weekly Bills of Mortality, and Streets adjoining thereunto; and for Widening the Street at the South End of London-Bridge. 10. An Act for the farther Encouragement of the Manufacture of Luſtrings and Alamodes within this Realm, and for the better preventing the Importation of the ſame. 11. An Act for the Repair of the Piers of Bridlington, alias, Burlington, in the Eaſt Riding of the County of York. 12. An Act for the better Obſervation of the Courſe anciently uſed in the Exchequer. 13. An Act for the eaſier obtaining Partitions of Lands in Coparcenary, Joint-Tenancy, and Tenancy in Common. 14. An Act for Supplying ſome Defects in the Laws for the Relief of the Poor of this Kingdom. 15. An Act to reſtrain the Number and Ill Practices of Brokers and Stock-Jobbers. 16. An Act for the better preventing the Counterfeiting the Current Coin of this Kingdom. 17. An Act for the more Effectual Relief of Creditors in Caſes of Eſcapes, and for preventing Abuſes in Priſons and pretended Privileged Places. 18. An Act for annulling the Marriage of Hannah Knight, an Infant, and directing the Guardianſhip of the ſaid Infant. 19. An Act for the Speedy Payment of the Debts of Sir William Thompſon, Knight, Serjeant at Law, deceas'd. 20. An Act for enabling the Sale of the Mannor of Rowling in Kent, which by Miſtake was by General Words comprized in the Marriage Settlement of the ſaid William Hammond, Gent. contrary to the Meaning of the Parties. 1697.

Acts paſſed.

After which His Majeſty made this Speech to Both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech.

"HAving given My Aſſent to the ſeveral "Bills you have preſented to Me, I am "now to return you my Hearty Thanks for what "you have done this Seſſion, which has been "carried on with great Prudence, Temper and "Affection.

"At the Opening of the Seſſion, I told you "how ſenſible I was of the Difficulties to be ſtrug-"gled with, which were of ſuch a Nature, that I "will freely own the Hopes I had of our being "able to overcome them, were founded only "upon the Wiſdom and Zeal of ſo good a Par-"liament.

"My Expectation has been fully anſwered; "you entred upon the Buſineſs with ſo much "Cheerfulneſs, proceeded ſo unanimouſly, and "have at laſt brought Things to ſuch a Conclu-"ſion, that We may hope to carry on the War "with Succeſs, in caſe Our Enemies do not think "it their Intereſt to agree to an Honourable "Peace: And ſo Effectual a Proviſion being "made for ſupplying the Deficiencies of former "Funds (which is the beſt Foundation for re-"eſtabliſhing of Credit) I doubt not but in a "ſhort time it will have a very happy Effect, to "the Univerſal Eaſe and Satisfaction of my Peo-"ple."

"The Circumſtances of Affairs making it ne-"ceſſary for Me to be out of the Kingdom for "ſome Time, I ſhall take care to leave the Admi-"niſtration of the Government during My Ab-"ſence in the Hands of ſuch Perſons as I can "depend upon.

My

1697.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" I have nothing more to aſk of you, but that " you would carry down the ſame Good Diſpo- " ſition into your ſeveral Countries, which you " have expreſs'd in all the Proceedings of this Seſ- " ſion.

And then the Parliament was, by His Maje- ſty's Command, Prorogued until the Thirteenth Day of May next.

Places and Honours.

Upon the Plenipotentiaries going to Negotiate a General Peace, the King was pleaſed to Con- ſtitute Sir Thomas Mompeſſon, Sir Charles Cottrell, Jun. and James Tyrrell, Eſq; Commiſſioners for executing the Office of Lord Privy-Seal, during the Abſence of the Earl of Pembroke, and His Ma- jeſty delivered the Seal into their Cuſtody on Apr. 11. at Kenſington. Within three Days after His Majeſty was pleaſed to appoint Charles Earl of Mancheſter to be His Ambaſſador Extraordinary to the Republick of Venice; Sir James Rushout, Bart. His Ambaſſador to the Grand Signior; and Lambert Blackwell, Eſq; His Envoy to the Great Duke of Tuſcany; upon whom He conferred the Honour of Knighthood, on Apr. 23. On Apr. 16. His Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Ho- nour of Knighthood upon Charles Iſaac, Eſq; one of the Officers of the Board of Green-Cloth, for his Faithful Services. On Apr. 19. the Earl of Dorſet having reſigned the Office of Lord Cham- berlain of His Majeſty's Houſhold, His Majeſty conferred that Place on the Earl of Sunderland, who had now great Favour and great Influence at Court; and was ſoon after ſworn of the Pri- vy-Council. On Apr. 22. His Majeſty in Coun- cil received the Seal from the Hands of Sir John Somers, Lord Keeper, and returned it to him again, with the Title of Lord Chancellor of Eng- land, who within few Days after was created a Baron of this Kingdom, by the Stile and Title of Lord Somers, Baron of Eveſham, in the County of Worceſter: His Services to the King and the Nation were truly great and good. On the ſame Evening, Apr. 22. His Majeſty declar'd in Coun- cil, that he had appointed Thomas Lord Archbi- ſhop of Canterbury, Sir John Somers, Knt. Lord Chancellor of England, Thomas Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, Lord Privy-Seal, William Duke of Devonſhire, Lord Steward of His Majeſty's Houſ- hold, Charles Duke of Shrewsbury, one of His Principal Secretaries of State, Robert Earl of Sunderland, Lord Chamberlain, Charles Earl of Dorſet, Henry Earl of Romney, and Edward Ruſſel, Eſq; to be Lords Juſtices of England, for the Ad- miniſtration of the Government during His Ma- jeſty's Abſence. At the ſame time His Majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute Goodwin Wharton, Eſq; one of the Lords Commiſſioners of the Admiral- ty, in the Place of Colonel Auſtin, deceaſed. Be- fore His Majeſty's Departure for Holland, He was pleaſed to beſtow ſeveral other Titles and Ho- nours; Edward Ruſſel, Eſq; was created Baron of Shingey, Viſcount of Barfleur, and Earl of Orford, in the County of Suffolk: The Lord Viſcount Galloway was made Earl of Galloway, and was ap- pointed to be one of the Lords Juſtices of the Kingdom of Ireland, with the Marquis of Win- cheſter, and the Lord Viſcount Villiers. The Earl of Stamford was made Chancellor of the Dutchy and County Palatine of Lancaſter. The Lord Wharton was made Chief Juſtice in Eyre on this ſide Trent, and Lord Lieutenant of the County of Oxon: And Ralph Grey, Eſq; was appointed to be Governor of the Barbadoes.

1697.

King goes for Holland.

Before the Publick declaration of theſe Ho- nours, His Majeſty had left Kenſington on Saturday Morning April the 24*th.* and lay that Night at Captain Ball's Houſe near Margate; and on Monday about Eleven in the Morning went on Board the William and Mary Yacht, and under a Convoy, Commanded by Sir Cloudſley Shovel, Landed ſafely the next day in Holland; being at firſt much Indiſpoſed, but after loſing ſome Blood, He took the Air, and went from Hague to Zuleſtein, and thence to Loo: and there waited the Opening of the Congreſs and Treaty at Reſwick. (a) Treaty of General Peace.

The firſt Difficulty that aroſe upon this Treat- ing for a General Peace, was about the Place of Meeting. The Emperor propoſed either Mentz or Frankfort; the Dutch inſiſted upon a Place in Holland; and moſt of the Allies were either for Maeſtricht, Nimeguen or Breda: but towards the middle of January, M. Callier by his Maſter's Or- der moved, that the Plenipotentiaries of the Al- lies ſhould reſide at the Hague, and thoſe of France at Delft; and that the Conferences ſhould be held at Reſwick, a Place belonging to his Britan- nick Majeſty, and equally diſtant from both thoſe Towns; which was agreed to by the Con- federates. This Point being thus ſettled, the Preliminaries after ſeveral Debates were alſo con- cluded and ſign'd on the 10*th* of February, by which the King of France agreed, " I. That the " Treaties of Weſtphalia and Nimeguen ſhould be " the Baſis of this to be negotiated at Reſwick. " II. That Strasburg ſhould be reſtored to the " Empire, in the ſame Condition as the French " took it. III. And Luxemburg to the Spaniards, " in its preſent Condition, (but here the French " offer'd the Allies an Equivalent for both thoſe " Places.) IV. That Mons and Charleroy ſhould " be Surrender'd as they were. V. That all " Places taken by the French in Catalonia, ſince " the Peace of Nimeguen, ſhould be Reſtor'd in " the ſame manner. VI. That Dinant, both " City and Caſtle, ſhould be given up to the " Biſhop of Liege, as they were when taken. " VII. That all Re-unions ſince the Treaty of " Nimeguen ſhould be made void. VIII. That " Lorrain ſhould be Reſtored according to the " Condition of that Treaty; But further agreed, " that in Caſe the Conditions made in reſpect to " that Country ſhould not pleaſe, that Article " ſhould be referr'd to the General Treaty, and " that it ſhould be the firſt Point Debated in the " Negotiation. Here it was likewiſe farther " agreed more particularly, that upon conclu- " ſion of the Peace, the King of France ſhould " acknowledge the Prince of Orange as King of " Great Britain, without any manner of Diffi- " culty, Reſtriction, Condition, or Reſerve; but " as for other Princes, whether they were in " the Confederacy or not, their Pretenſions " ſhould be reſerved to the General Negotiation, " under the Mediation of the King of Sweden. " IX. That the Dutchy of Deux-Ponts ſhould be " reſtor'd to Sweden. X. That Philipsburg ſhould " be given up to the Biſhop of Spire. XI. That " the Fort of Keel and other Fortifications made " on the Rhine, ſhould be raz'd. XII. That the " ſame ſhould be done by Fort-Louis and Hun- " ninghen. XIII. That Traerbach and Montroyal " ſhould be given up; the firſt Diſmantled, but " upon Condition never to be Fortified again. " XIV. That the Elector Palatine ſhould not only " be reſtor'd to all the Electorate, but alſo to the " Dutchies of Simmeren and Lauthern, with the " Earldom of Manheim; as alſo other Places,

At Ryſwick.

Articles of it.

(a) See A Form of Prayer, to be uſed next after the Prayer in the Time of War and Tumults throughout the Kingdom of England, at Morning and Evening Prayer, as often as there is Divine Service, during the Time of His Majeſty's Abſence. By His Majeſty's Special Command. 1697. 4to.

" whereof

1697. "whereof he had been diſpoſſeſs'd to the preſent "Time. XV. That the Dutcheſs of Orleans ſhould "not have Recourſe to open Force to maintain "her Pretenſions, but might bring her Actions "according to Law, in relation to the Elector. "XVI. That the Caſtle and County of Veldens "ſhould be reſtor'd to their Lawful Owner. "XVII. That Biſweiler ſhould be given to the "Count of Hanaw. XVIII. That the Seigniories "of March, Marmoſy, and Dagſtein, and the County of Dagsburg, ſhould be deliver'd up to the "Count of Overſtein. XIX. That the Seigniories of Salms and Valkenſtein ſhould be given "up to the Prince of Salms, or to their Proprietors, ſeeing the ſame was ſtill in Queſtion. "XX. That the Seigniories of Latzenſtein and Altheim ſhould be Surrendred to their Owners. "XXI. That Otweiler ſhould be given up to the "Houſe of Naſſau. XXII. That the City and "County of Mombelliard, Harcourt, Bainont, and "Chattelette, ſhould be put into the Poſſeſſion of "the Houſe of Wirtemberg. XXIII. That Germeſheim ſhould be given up to the Elector Palatine, notwithſtanding any former Treaties to "the contrary. And XXIV. That the Principality of Orange ſhould be given up to its Sovereign."

Some of the Miniſters of the Allies, after having conſulted their Maſters upon theſe Preliminaries, declar'd, That as to what concern'd the Firſt Article, they fully agreed to it; but as for Straſburg, they farther inſiſted it ſhould be Reſtor'd, with its Fortifications and Dependencies, and that no Equivalent ſhould be accepted. They allow'd of the Third, Fourth, and Fifth Articles; only they inſiſted, that not only the City, but the County of Luxemburgh, and that of Chinay, ſhould be given up; as they did, that the City and Caſtle of Dinant ſhould be yielded, together with the Dutchy of Bouillon, in the ſame State they were. They likewiſe own'd themſelves ſatisfy'd as to the Seventh Article concerning the Re-unions; but not ſo with the Agreement made about Lorrain, which they would have reſtor'd to the Duke its Sovereign, without any manner of Reſtriction.

Farther Demands of the Allies.

Beſides theſe Pretenſions, the Death of Charles XI. King of Sweden, by whoſe Mediation the Treaty was ſet on Foot, was like to put a ſtop to the Progreſs of it. His Swediſh Majeſty having been Ill for ſome Time, Died at Stockholm on the 5th of April, 1697. (O. S.) in the 42d Year of His Age, and 37th of His Reign, leaving His Crown to His Son Charles XII. then ſcarce Fifteen Years old; and appointing by His Will, both the Queen, and Five of the Senators, to Adminiſter the Government, during His Son's Minority, which would be till he was entring upon the 18*th* Year of his Age. However, this Accident made no manner of Alteration in the Affairs of Europe; for the Regents of Sweden, among whom the Queen had Two Voices, having full Power to make Treaties, and perform all other Acts of Sovereignty, as ſhould be agreed on by the major-part of them, ſent immediately Expreſſes to ſeveral Foreign Courts, to acquaint them with their Intentions to purſue the Mediation began by the late King, for the Tranquility of Chriſtendom; and diſpatch'd a new Commiſſion to Monſieur Lillienroot for that purpoſe. Some time before, it was agreed by the Plenipotentiaries at the Hague, that for the eaſier carrying on the Treaty, all Ceremonies ſhould be laid aſide, and the Titles any Prince took, be of no Conſequence; That the ſeveral Miniſters ſhould have free and ſecure Correſpondence with the Princes their Maſters. That in order to that, Blank Paſports ſhould be given to each Party, for the Couriers diſpatch'd by them; as alſo for the Pacquet-Boats to and from England; and that the Powers of the reſpective Plenipotentiaries ſhould be on the ſame Foot they were at Nimeguen. 1697.

In purſuance of theſe Preliminaries, Monſieur Lilienroot, the Mediator, appointed the Firſt Conference to be held at Ryſwick, on the 9th of May; and accordingly, the Allies being met together in the Apartments on one ſide of the Palace, the French in the Apartments on the other ſide, and the Mediator in the middle between Both; the Allies and the French ſhew'd him their Powers, and gave him Copies of the ſame; which he communicated to the reſpective Miniſters, and left the Copies with them. This and the ſettling Part of the Ceremonial, in order to further Proceedings, took up near Three Hours; and then the Conference was adjourn'd to Saturday the 11th of the ſame Month: When being met again in the ſame manner as they did at firſt, the Powers of the Allies were by the Mediator exchanged with the French Ambaſſadors. Moreover, they agreed to meet conſtantly on Wedneſdays in the Morning, and Saturdays in the Afternoon; and that, to prevent the Inconveniencies that might ariſe from Crowds of Attendants, each Ambaſſador ſhould go thither only with One Coach with Six Horſes, Two Pages, and Two Footmen. On the 15th and 18th the Mediator and Plenipotentiaries met again; but all they did at thoſe Two Conferences, was only to regulate ſeveral Points of Ceremony; in which, for the moſt part, they follow'd the Rules that were obſerv'd at the Treaty of Nimeguen.

Firſt Conference at Ryſwick.

On the 22d of May, the Imperial Plenipotentiaries deliver'd to the Mediator their Demands, in the Name of the Emperor and Empire; and ſome of the German Miniſters at the ſame Time, gave in the particular Pretenſions of the Princes their Maſters: After which, the Allies drew up a large Deduction, in Juſtification of their Claims; of which however, they reſolv'd to give the French Ambaſſadors no Copy, till they had the King's Orders to propoſe theirs. But the French Plenipotentiaries having declar'd, that they had nothing to aſk, or pretend to, and that they were ready to anſwer the others, the Allies chang'd their Thoughts; and the French in the mean while, had ſeveral ſeparate Conferences with the Dutch, about Commerce, and a Ceſſation of Arms. This laſt Point the French ſeem'd very eager for, and the ſame was much preſs'd by the Mediator; who, upon the Spaniſh Miniſters declaring their Grievances, declar'd, That he was of Opinion, that nothing could more contribute to the Advancement of the Peace, than the agreeing on a Truce by common Conſent; Mens Minds being ſo much the leſs compos'd and fit for a calm Negociation, by how much they were diſtracted and put out of order, elevated or caſt down, by the good or bad Succeſſes of War. Tho' this Motion ſeem'd then to be approved by Silence, yet other Things interven'd, which cauſed it to be laid aſide. About the ſame Time, the Brandenburgh Ambaſſadors did very much inſiſt, that all the Names of the Confederate Princes ſhould be Expreſs'd, and particularly Inſerted in the Treaty; and ſome of the Allies took it very ill, that the Pretenſions of the Empire were propoſed by the Emperor's Ambaſſadors, only in his Imperial Majeſty's Name. To ſilence which Complaints, it was replied, That every one of the Allies was free to propoſe ſeparate Articles concerning his own Affairs. Whereupon ſeveral Princes gave in their Grievances to their Mediator.

1697. The King of France wiſely foreſeeing that the Houſe of Auſtria would inſiſt upon the Treaty of the Pyrenees, reſolv'd to make his laſt Efforts in Flanders and Catalonia, to bring down the Spaniard to his own Terms; and to advance the Prince of Conti to the Crown of Poland: Not doubting but that Warlike Prince, who both by Inclination, and out of Gratitude, would ever promote the Intereſt of France, would ſoon make the Emperor more tractable. His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's Army was very numerous and formidable this Year in the Low-Countries; and having beſides, the Advantage of being earlier in the Field than the Confederates, both by reaſon of the remoteneſs and ſlow March of the German Troops, and of His Britannick Majeſty's Indiſpoſition, they boaſted of Attacking a no leſs conſiderable Town than Namure; but having reflected on the Difficulties of that Enterprize, they were contented to Beſiege Aeth, a Place the French had yielded to Spain by the Treaty of Nimeguen. There were no leſs than Three Marſhals of France in that Army; to wit, Villeroy, Boufflers, and Catinat; but the laſt being without Diſpute the greateſt General of the Three, 'twas to him the King of France gave the Direction of the Siege, and order'd Monſieur Vauban to aſſiſt him in it; whilſt Villeroy and Boufflers ſhould obſerve the Confederates. Upon Intelligence of the French having Inveſted Aeth, King William, who by this Time was perfectly recover'd of His late Illneſs, immediately repair'd to His Army in Brabant, and had an Interview with the Duke of Bavaria, who commanded another Army at hand, to join His Majeſty upon Occaſion. But beſides the great Superiority of the French, which would have made the Attempt very difficult, His Britannick Majeſty openly declar'd, He would not ſacrifice One Man for the Relief of a Place which the French muſt be oblig'd to give up by the Peace. 'Tis true, His Majeſty might eaſily have laid Siege to Dinant, while Marſhal de Catinat was beſieging Aeth; but then Bruſſels had been left expos'd to Villeroy and Boufflers, who had a Deſign upon that City, and which His Majeſty utterly diſappointed by His Prudence. As for Aeth, it was ſo vigorouſly preſs'd by the Beſiegers, and ſo faintly defended by the Governor, for the ſame Reaſons which induc'd King William not to attempt its Relief, that it ſurrender'd after Twelve Days of open Trenches.

King of France makes Peace with Sword in Hand.

Crown of Poland deſired by Pr. Conti.

The Succeſſes in Flanders and Greater Catalonia would in all probability have made the French ſole Maſters of the Peace, and given their Ambaſſadors a fair Occaſion to ſpeak the Language of Nimeguen; had not their Expectations from Poland been miſerably diſappointed. It was the general Opinion, that Prince James, Son to the King, was the only Competitor that could oppoſe the Prince of Conti's Advancement to the Throne; and the former being univerſally diſlik'd, upon account of his Father's Avarice; who, in order to fill his Coffers, made open Sale of his Favours, more like a penurious Trader, than a Generous Sovereign; the Abbot of Polignac, who manag'd the French King's Affairs there, did confidently aſſure his Maſter, that Prince Conti would certainly carry the Election, if he did but come in Perſon, and ſend him a ſufficient Sum of Money to Bribe ſome Palatines that oppos'd the French Intereſt. Upon this Encouragement, the Prince of Conti ſet out for Poland, and great Remittances were made to the Abbot of Polignac, which he laviſh'd away with much Oſtentation, and as little Succeſs.

Obtain'd by the Elector of Saxony.

In the mean Time the Elector of Saxony, whom No-body ſuſpected to have any Thoughts towards the Crown of Poland, being ſupported by the King of England's Powerful Recommendation to the Emperor, took a Journey in the End of the Spring to Vienna, under the pretence of Settling Matters in relation to the Campaign in Hungary, where 'twas given out he would command the Imperial Army again this Summer. But the Event ſhew'd, that his real Intention was to concert Meaſures with that Court, in order to aſcend the Throne he had in view; to which his Religion could be no Obſtacle, ſince he had already privately reconciled himſelf to the Church of Rome, or at leaſt did pretend he had done ſo afterwards. This Deſign was carried on with wonderful Secreſy and Addreſs: For all of a ſudden the Elector left Vienna; and this was attended with various Reports, induſtriouſly ſpread abroad, of ſome Miſunderſtanding between the Emperor and him; which No-body could aſſign a Cauſe for. But when People ſaw the Elector muſter up a Body of his Troops, they entertain'd ſeveral Suſpicions; and the Brandenburghers ſo far took the Alarm, as immediately to gather all the Forces they could, to oppoſe any Attempt that might be made that way. The Elector's ſudden March towards Sileſia, and the Frontiers of Poland, quickly occaſion'd other Speculations; and 'twas not long before it was publickly declar'd, that he put in for the Crown of Poland: Which he at laſt obtain'd, by outbidding the Prince of Conti's Agent, both in ready Caſh and Promiſes; and ſo he was proclaim'd King by the Biſhop of Cujavia, and all the Partizans of the Houſe of Auſtria, which made up the Majority of the Poliſh Dyet. 'Tis true, the Prince of Conti was alſo proclaim'd by the Cardinal Primate, and ſome Palatines that were in the French Intereſt; but his Competitor having an Army at hand to ſupport his Claim; and his Highneſs, who ſoon after arrived in Poland, nothing but a great deal of Perſonal Merit to maintain his Title; the latter was, at laſt, neceſſitated to return to France.

Slow Advances of the Treaty.

To quicken the ſlow Advances of the Treaty, the Miniſters of Sweden and Denmark did both declare to the French, that their Maſters would be conſtrained to join their Forces to thoſe of the Allies, to cut off by the Sword all the unneceſſary Difficulties, which France raiſed to protract the Negociation. Whereupon, the French, on July the 20th, gave in their Project of Peace, founded on the fore-mentioned Treaties of Weſtphalia and Nimeguen: The main Articles of which, as to the Empire, were; "An Offer to "make void ſeveral Reunions made on that ſide, "by the Chambers of Mentz and Beſançon, and "the Sovereign Council of Briſac, ſince the "Treaty of Nimeguen. To reſtore the City of "Straſburg, or to give as an Equivalent for it the "City and Caſtle of Friburg, and the Towns of "Briſac and Philipsburg, with the Fort of Kiel, "in the Condition they were at preſent. To "demoliſh the Fortifications of Hunninghen, on "the other ſide of the Rhine. To reſtore Lorain to the Duke of that Name, in the ſame "manner as it was offer'd at the Treaty of Nimeguen; that is, in the ſame Condition it was "poſſeſſed by Duke Charles in 1670. and the City of Nancy, upon certain Conſiderations; "with the Demoliſhing of divers Places, ſuch "as Mont Royal, Traerbach, &c. As for the Spaniards, the French offered to give them the City and Country of Luxemburgh, and the Country of Chinay; or in Lieu of them, ſome other "Places hereafter to be named; for which there "was a Blank left in the Project. That all Reunions ſince the Treaty of Nimeguen ſhould be "made void. That the City and Caſtle of Dinant ſhould be delivered to the Biſhop of Liege.

"And

1697. "And that all other Places taken on both Sides "during the War, ſhould likewiſe be reſtored." The Spaniards ſeem'd in the main to be pretty well ſatisfied with the French Conceſſions: But the Imperial Miniſters made a tedious, and as ſome thought, an unreaſonable Anſwer to the Project; which the French did not much regard, their chief Aim being to ſatisfy the reſt, upon what Terms they were willing to give them, in order to break off the Grand Confederacy, and by that Means to preſerve Part of their Acquiſitions on the Rhine, ſince there was ſo little Proſpect of having any Thing elſewhere. After the Delivery of the Project of Peace, the King of France, finding much Time ſpent to little purpoſe, by Carrying on a Treaty in Writing, order'd His Plenipotentiaries to agree to the Propoſals the Imperialiſts had made not long before, of Treating by Word of Mouth: and tho' the 10th of September was the utmoſt the French would give, to accept their Offers; yet 'tis remarkable, that ſince their Diſappointment in Poland, they began to be more tractable than before.

Upon the 17th of Auguſt an extraordinary Conference was held at Ryſwick, which laſted almoſt a whole Day, and wherein the Method agreed on of Treating by Word of Mouth was firſt put in Practice. Not many Days after came the News of taking Barcelona by the French, after one of the moſt vigorous Sieges that had been known in any Age. This made the Spaniards very uneaſy, and very preſſing to have the Peace Sign'd upon the Conditions offer'd by France; and more eſpecially ſince by the Memorial given in to the Mediator on the 1ſt of September, there had been an Offer made to reſtore this Place alſo to the Catholick King, upon a ſlight Conſideration of a few Villages belonging to the Chateleine of Aeth, to be yielded to the French, for the Conveniency of the Trade of the Inhabitants of Tournay. But by how much the more condeſcending the French ſeem'd to be with the Spaniards, the ſtiffer they became with the Empire; now poſitively inſiſting upon the keeping of Straſburg, and that the Emperor ſhould reſt ſatisfied with the Equivalent; which, they ſaid, would be more conſiderable to him, ſince he would have the entire Sovereignty of thoſe Towns that France quitted; whereas Straſburg, if reſtor'd, muſt have been ſet at its own Liberty, as a Free Imperial City. If the Imperialiſts were ſtartled at this New Project, they were not leſs ſurprized at the ſhort Time prefixed by France for their Anſwer; which was the 20th of Auguſt, and after which the moſt Chriſtian King would no longer be oblig'd to thoſe Offers. This was ſtill the more mortifying to them, ſince they began now to be ſuperior in Force to the French, and to act offenſively on the Rhine; not to mention their Jealouſies, leſt ſome of the Allies ſhould Sign a Separate Peace and leave them out; which occaſion'd ſome Heats amongſt the Confederates.

Barcelona taken by the French.

On the other hand, the French Plenipotentiaries were amaz'd at the profound Silence of the Miniſters of the Allies, concerning their laſt Memorial: But it ſeems the Concluſion of the Peace was to be owing to the ſame Genius, who had been the Soul of the War; I mean, King William. His Majeſty wiſely conſidering, that the uſual Forms and incident Chicaneries of a ſolemn Negotiation, were no ſmall Hindrance to the Progreſs of the Treaty; thought fit to commit his Perſonal Intereſts and thoſe of his Dominions, to the Arbitration of Two Men of the Sword; to wit, the Earl of Portland on His Britannick, and the Mareſchal de Boufflers on His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's Part. Accordingly, the Royal Confederate Army being encamp'd at Cockleberg, near Bruſſels; and the French, under Villeroy, Catinat, and Boufflers, not far from thence, at Iſcringue Vive St. Eloi, and Pepinge; the Earl of Portland, as from himſelf, demanded a private Interview with Monſieur de Boufflers: Which being readily granted, the Two Generals, on June the 10th N. S. met at an equal Diſtance from their reſpective Camps, attended by the ſame Number of Guards, and accompanied by ſeveral Officers of Note. This Preliminary Conference was ſoon followed by Three others; at the laſt of which, on July the 26th, the Two Negotiators, after they had been ſome Time in the open Field, retir'd into a Houſe in the Suburb of Hall; where they had Pen, Ink, and Paper, and in an Hour adjuſted ſeveral Points, that the Plenipotentiaries at Ryſwick would not have agreed upon in a Year. On the 2d of Auguſt, Portland and Boufflers Sign'd the Paper they had drawn up ſome Days before. Whereupon His Majeſty, on Auguſt the 3d, left the Army, and went to Dieren: From whence He diſpatch'd that Earl to the Hague, to acquaint the Congreſs, That as for what concern'd His Majeſty and His Kingdoms, all Matters were ſo adjuſted with France, that this would occaſion no Delay in the General Peace; and therefore He earneſtly preſs'd the other Allies, and particularly the Emperor, to contribute all that in them lay towards the concluding ſo great a Work.

The Peace owing to King William.

Conferences between the E. of Portland and Mareſch. Boufflers.

The frequent Interviews between King William's Favourite and Mareſchal de Boufflers, occaſion'd divers Speculations. On the one hand, the Jacobites, who, againſt all Reaſon, flatter'd themſelves, that tho' a Treaty of Peace was carry'd on at His Majeſty's own Palace, yet He ſhould be left out of it; ſaw by theſe Conferences their Hopes entirely baffled: And on the other hand, a great many People, and even ſome of His Majeſty's beſt Friends, began to ſuſpect that His Majeſty had entred into a private Agreement with the King of France, in favour either of King James, or His Iſſue; upon account of His Britannick Majeſty's having the peaceful Enjoyment of His Dominions during Life, and being acknowledg'd as King of Great Britain by His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty: Which ill-grounded Suſpicion was Three Years after fully remov'd by King William's effectual promoting the Settlement in the Proteſtant Line. Others gave out, that my Lord Portland and Monſieur Boufflers had only agreed, that King James's Queen ſhould have Her Dowry paid Her by England, in ſuch a manner, as if Her Husband was really dead; but that afterwards She refus'd to accept it. And others again have ſince imagin'd, not without ſome Probability, that in theſe Interviews was laid the firſt Foundation of the Famous Treaty of Partition, which was afterwards concluded between King William, and the King of France. But theſe are meer Conjectures, and will remain ſuch, till the Earl of Portland, or the Mareſchal de Boufflers, are pleas'd to reveal what paſs'd betwixt them; which has been hitherto kept ſecret.

The Critical Day appointed by France being come, when either a Happy Peace, or a long and Bloody War, was to determine the Fate of Chriſtendom; the Engliſh, Spaniſh, and Dutch Plenipotentiaries, after a long Conference with thoſe of France, having adjuſted all Matters remaining in difference between any of them, did reſpectively Sign the Treaty a little after Midnight, and then Compliemented each other, upon the Finiſhing that Important Negotiation. The Imperial and Electoral Plenipotentiaries, who moſt of them were all the while preſent in the Hall, were ſo far from conſenting to what was done,

The Treaty Signed.

1697. done, that, on the contrary, they required the Mediator to enter a Proteſtation, "That this "was a Second Time that a ſeparate Peace had "been concluded with France, (meaning that of "Nimeguen for one) wherein the Emperor and "Empire had been excluded: And that the States "of the Empire, who had been impos'd upon thro' "their own over-credulity, would not for the future "be ſo eaſily perſuaded to enter into Confedera-"cies." The Spaniſh Plenipotentiaries, and particularly Don Bernardo de Quiros, by way of Excuſe, replied, That he had a long time been made acquainted with His Catholick Majeſty's Pleaſure, not to delay the Signing of the Treaty, which had been agreed on before; And if he had obey'd thoſe Orders, the French would not have taken Barcelona: But that having deferr'd the Concluſion of that Treaty, at the Perſuaſion of the Imperial Miniſters, he had given the French time to make themſelves Maſters of that important Place; which Succeſs embolden'd their Plenipotentiaries to change their Language, and thereby he had himſelf run the hazard of incurring his Maſter's Diſpleaſure.

The Truth is, the Spaniards could not but perceive, that the Engliſh and Dutch could have ſav'd Barcelona this Year, if they had pleas'd; but that they rather declin'd it, with an Intention to bring the Spaniards the more readily to accept the Offers of the French. And indeed thoſe Two Powers having in a manner borne the whole Burden of the War, both by Sea and Land, whereby their reſpective Subjects were reduc'd to great Streights, eſpecially as to their Trade; it could not ſeem ſtrange that they were forward to Sign a Glorious and Advantageous Peace.

Condition of King James. All this while the Abdicated King of England made but an indifferent Figure in his Melancholy Retirement at St. Germains: The French King's Promiſe to that Unfortunate Prince, and open Declaration to all Europe, that He would never lay down Arms till he had reſtor'd Him to His Throne, had rais'd His late Britannick Majeſty's Hopes to a a great height. But He found by ſad Experience how little the Promiſes of Sovereigns are to be rely'd on, when their own Intereſt comes in Competition. After a tedious War, dubiouſly maintain'd, the King of France being exhauſted both of Men and Money, thought it Prudence to clap up a Peace, and reſtore to His Neighbours all the Conqueſts He had made upon them ſince the Treaty of Nimeguen; which He was the more inclin'd to do, in hopes, that having diſarm'd and broke the Confederacy, He might get all again at the Death of the King of Spain, who for many Years had been in a pining, lingring State of Health; and who at the Concluſion of the Peace of Ryſwick, was in ſo deſperate a Condition, that the French Court thought He could not live a Month longer. On the other hand, His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty being ſenſible that a Treaty could not be ſet on Foot, not only without owning King William, but alſo (as a Conſequence of that Acknowledgment) without Abandoning King James; He neither 1697. did inſiſt that a Miniſter from that Unfortunate Monarch ſhould be admitted to the Conferences at Ryſwick; which Propoſal was unanimouſly rejected by the Allies, nor would the French Plenipotentiaries meddle with that Prince's Manifeſto. King James's Expectation of the French King's Protection being thus diſappointed, and His Majeſty finding that His Pardons, as well as His Threats, had no effect upon His Subjects, He was perſwaded to draw up a Manifeſto or Memorial, containing both a Summary Account of the Reaſons that ſhould engage the Confederate Catholick Princes to promote His Reſtoration; an Expoſtulation of the Injuſtice done him; and a Proteſtation againſt what was done at Ryſwick, as Null, in reſpect to the Violation of His Rights. There were Two of theſe Memorials offer'd by order of King James; the One to all the Plenipotentiaries of Popiſh Princes, and the Other to thoſe from Proteſtants. In Both He aſſerted His own Right, and claimed the Obſervance of all the Treaties which any of them had made with himſelf, and mixed it with a ſevere Invective againſt King William. Upon which, it was thought neceſſary to prepare a Memorial in Anſwer to theſe, which was intended to be given in the Name of King William to all the Miniſters. Accordingly ſuch a Memorial was drawn up by King William's own Direction: He explaining Himſelf upon every Particular, examining the Draught, and ſending it to ſome of His wiſeſt Miniſters, by whom it was carefully Reviſed and Corrected. But when it was Reſolv'd to Tranſlate it into Latin and French, in order to the Communicating it, the King had Advice from the Hague, that thoſe Memorials were ſo little conſider'd there, that the offering an Anſwer to them would give them ſome Credit, and that without that, they had none at all. So the Draught was order'd to be Writ over again in another Stile, not in King William's Name, but as the Anſwer of a Private Hand to the Memorials of King James, and ſo to be Printed: Yet before this could be done, another Advice came to let the Matter quite alone, and to leave the Memorials of King James to ſleep in that Neglect under which they were fallen. And ſo the Anſwer of King William reſted in the Dark, till it was Publiſh'd by the Lord Biſhop of Sarum at London, 1705, 4to. under this Title; A Memorial drawn by King William's Special Direction, intended to be given in at the Treaty of Ryſwick, juſtifying the Revolution and the Courſe of His Government: In Anſwer to Two Memorials that were offer'd there in King James's Name.

As to the late King's Friends in England, they were ſo enrag'd to ſee Him forſaken by the King of France, that they could not forbear venting their bitter Invectives againſt His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty; for which ſome of them were committed to Priſon, and Fined; the ſame being a Violation of the late Treaty between the Crowns of England and France. (a)

The

(a) Many of the Engliſh Jacobites in France, were ſo offended with the Deſertion from King Lewis, and the cold Reception they had met with from King James and his Queen, that they began to turn their Faces toward their own Country, and to make their Peace likewiſe with King William. A late Writer, well inform'd, has told us, "The Earl of Lauder-"dale, a Papiſt, his Lady being of the Reform'd Religion, was "himſelf an Enemy in the Court of Verſailles, to the King's "violent Meaſures. For this Reaſon he never was truſted "with any Poſt. As much a Catholick as he was, he heartily "adviſ'd King James to let the Proteſtants have the Admini-"ſtration of his ſmall Government, recommending the Earl "of C——n, and the Non-Juring Biſhops, as the fitteſt to "ſerve him in England, and the Lord Hume, Southesk, and "Sinclair, in Scotland: But his Advice was ſo ill taken, that "he was enjoin'd to ſend his Lady to England, to return thence "no more; was himſelf forbid the Court, and reduc'd to "a Penſion of One Hundred Piſtoles a Year. Not long after "he dy'd of Grief at Paris, ſeeing no probability of his "Maſter's changing his Meaſures.

"His Brother Mr. Alexander Maitland, had on ſeveral Oc-"caſions behav'd himſelf very bravely in that Prince's Ser-"vice; he had alſo deſerted King William, under whom he had "a Command once in the Scots Guards; but coming to St. "Germains, and being ſuffer'd to Starve, he choſe rather to "make his Peace with an offended Government, than live in "the Contempt of an ungrateful one.

Of

1697. The Proteſtant French Refugees in England, Germany, and Scotland, were at this time no leſs diſappointed than the Royal Exile in France. King William having on all Occaſions declar'd himſelf their Protector, they reaſonably expected that he would alſo prove their Deliverer; and never conclude a Peace with France, without obliging their Natural Sovereign to reſtore them both to their Eſtates, and the free Exerciſe of their Religion, in their own Country. Upon this Preſumption, ſeveral Conſultations were held in London by the French Miniſters, and the moſt conſiderable Perſons among the Refugees there; wherein it was debated, in what Method they ſhould make their Applications to the Plenipotentiaries at Ryſwick; and upon what Terms they ſhould agree to their Reſtoration, which ſome amongſt them look'd upon as Infallible. The Reſult of theſe Aſſemblies being tranſmitted to Monſieur Jurieu, the Head of all the French Refugees in Holland, he, with his uſual Zeal for the Proteſtant Cauſe, addreſs'd himſelf to King William, who directed the Dutch Plenipotentiaries to open that Matter at a Diſtance to the French Ambaſſadors. The Dutch Miniſters follow'd his Majeſty's Orders; but the King of France, to whom this Overture was communicated, expreſſing an inſuperable Averſeneſs to it, and urging, that as he did not pretend to preſcribe K. William any Rules about his Subjects, ſo he expected the ſame Liberty as to his own, which he look'd upon as the great Prerogative of a Sovereign; his Britannick Majeſty inſiſted no farther upon it.

To make an end of this Memorable Negotiation, the Conferences continu'd at Ryſwick between the Imperial and French Plenipotentiaries, till the 30th of October, when all Things were agreed on, and the Treaty ſign'd, two Days before the Time limited by France was expir'd. And though this Peace with the Empire was not ſo advantageous to it, nor the Reſtitution of Lorrain, in ſo ample a manner as was expected, yet it muſt be own'd, that the Power of France was now extremely reduc'd, if it be conſider'd, That She gave up many Conſiderable Towns in Germany, which She had been long poſſeſs'd of, particularly the Important Place of Briſac: That by the taking of Cazal, and the Peace of Savoy, ſhe had entirely loſt her Footing in Italy: That the ſame Barrier was left in Catalonia as before; and that there was a ſtronger Frontier in the Low-Countries, by her Reſtitution of all ſhe took ſince the beginning of the War, with the Addition of Luxemburg and Dinant. The French themſelves, who did not enter into the Views of their Monarch, were ſo ſenſible of this, and ſo little pleas'd with the Treaty of Ryſwick, that they made very ſevere Reflections on Meſſieurs Harlay, Crecy, and Cailliere, their Plenipotentiaries, whom they traduc'd in their Lampoons, which were publickly ſung in Paris, and over all the Kingdom of France; whilſt the Courage, Reſolution, and Wiſdom of King William, to which this great Work was principally owing, were celebrated and admir'd throughout all the World.

Treaty ſign'd between France and the Empire.

'Twas the Admiration of thoſe Eminent Virtues, that drew the Czar of Muſcovy, the moſt Potent Prince of the North, out of his own Dominions, and made Him traverſe vaſt Tracts of Land to receive His Majeſty's Inſtructions; wherein He prudently imitated the Queen of Sheba, who, many Ages before, had done the ſame, to hear the Wiſdom of Solomon: And becauſe He could not appear in other States with that Majeſty and Splendor which he had in His Own Empire, He condeſcended to go incognito, among the Ambaſſadors, whom, to cover His Journey, He ſent to Holland and England. After theſe Ambaſſadors had had their Audience of the States General at the Hague, they were admitted to that of His Britannick Majeſty at Utrecht; which being over, His Majeſty and the Czar met in a ſmall Gallery, into which they entered, both at a time, out of the adjoining Rooms, and hearty Embraces and Compliments being paſs'd on both ſides, they had a long Conference together about the Poſture of Affairs; wherein the Czar highly applauded His Majeſty's Indefatigable Endeavours, and conſtant Aim to reduce France within its Ancient Limits. The Ruſſian Emperor's Eſteem for King William being highly encreas'd by this Interview, and confirm'd by ſeveral other Conferences He had with His Majeſty, He reſolv'd to viſit that Happy and Powerful Nation who had ſo great a Prince to their Sovereign. Accordingly the Czar followed King William into England, where He was magnificently entertain'd, with all His numerous Retinue, at His Majeſty's own Charge, and had Private Conferences not only with His Majeſty, but with the Princeſs and Prince of Denmark, who contributed not a little to His Diverſion, and at the ſame time rais'd His Surprize by a Splendid Ball, at which were preſent the Brighteſt Beauties in England. During His Stay in London, His Czariſh Majeſty endeavour'd to inſtruct Himſelf in the Knowledge of ſeveral Uſeful Arts, unknown to His Barbarous Subjects, and more particularly, in that of Navigation; with deſign to build a Fleet both on the Baltick, to advance the Trade of His Empire, and Czar of Muſcovy comes to England.

“ Of this Kind was the Treatment Sir Andrew Forreſter met
“ with: That Gentleman was always zealouſly attach'd to
“ the Duke of York's Intereſt, when a Subject; and when a “ King, he was the devoted Creature of his pleaſure; he “ was impriſoned in the Tower for the Plot that was carrying “ on to favour his Invaſion, 1692. Yet notwithſtanding this,
“ and the great Experience he had in Scotiſh Affairs, he could “ never obtain any ſhare in that Prince's Confidence. Upon “ his Arrival at St. Germain's, he found that all his Merits
“ and Sufferings were not a counter-ballance to the Objection
“ of his being a Proteſtant. He was not intruſted; and after “ a vain Attendance on that Court for ſome trifling Employ“ ment, the beſt Reward he could get, was, a Paſs to return to “ England, they having no occaſion for him there.
“ Sir Theophilus Oglethorp, who had been very ſerviceable to
“ the Duke of York, before his Acceſſion to the Throne; who,
“ by means of his Wife, a Servant to one of King Charles's “ Popiſh Miſtreſſes, had the Honour of being made one of the “ Tools to advance Arbitrary Power in that King's Time;
“ who had ſhewn himſelf ſo zealous for the Father, that he “ forgot good Manners, and affronted the Daughter, by Cock-“ ing as ſhe came by, when Queen, in the Mall: who had “ been in every Plot, ſince his old Maſter went to France, to fa“ cilitate his Return; yet his Uſage was ſo little anſwerable to his “ Deſert and Expectation, that he was glad to get home to “ Old England, and ſubmit to that Government whoſe Lenity
“ to ſuch Offenders increaſed their Number.
“ Mr. Fergus Grahme, Brother to Col. Grahme as well as to “ the Lord Preſton, for no other reaſon but his being a Church“ man, was diſmiſs'd the Court of St. Germains.
“ Sir William Sharp, though he pretended to leave that Court
“ to ſave his Eſtate, purſuant to an Act of Parliament in “ Scotland, yet, in Truth, it was their Ingratitude to him,
“ which occaſioned it; for falling under Diſtruſt with Melford
“ and Innes, he grew into Contempt: His Penſion allow'd “ him, while the Scots Rebellion laſted, was taken from him;
“ and becauſe he would not quit his Religion, he was forc'd
“ to quit France, and throw himſelf on the Mercy of his “ Lawful Sovereign. View of the Court of St. Germains. 4to. 1696.
After the Inſtances of Dr. Cockburn and Mrs. Ashton, he proceeds to ſay, “ What need of any more Inſtances to prove “ King James's incurable Averſion to our Church and all “ Church-Men; elſe I might name the Lord Henmore, Mr. Louthian, Capt. Murray, Capt. Dalgel, Capt. Maygil, Capt. Maclean, Capt. Fielding, Mr. Rinnaird, and ſeveral Hundreds “ more, who left the Court of St. Germains, becauſe they could “ not have Bread, unleſs they would change their Religion;
“ and rather choſe to run the hazard of Impriſonment in England, than ſtay and Starve in France.

1697. on the Black-Sea to annoy the Turks: Which Project, however, has not been yet put in execution. There were not wanting thoſe who cenſur'd that Prince for leaving His Dominions after this manner: I will not altogether excuſe Him, but content my ſelf to ſay, That his Example is never to be followed, till there ariſe again ſo Great a Man as King William, whoſe Merit may in ſome meaſure juſtifie the Curioſity of ſeeing Him.

Honours and Preferments. During His Majeſty's Abſence, there had little happen'd that deſerves our Notice. At the beginning of the Campaign, the King was pleas'd to make the Earl of Rivers Lieutenant General, and Brigadier Lumley Major General of the Engliſh Forces. On July 19, His Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom upon William Lowther of Mask in Yorkſhire, Eſq; Toward the end of the Campaign, upon Colonel Coy's quitting his Regiment of Horſe, His Majeſty was pleaſed to give it to the Earl of Arran; and his Lordſhip's Regiment in England to Colonel Daniel Harvey. On July 27, John Povey, Eſq; was ſworn Clerk of the Privy-Council in Ordinary, in the Place of Richard Cooling, Eſq, deceas'd: And at the ſame time James Vernon, Jun. Eſq; was ſworn Clerk of the Council in Extraordinary. In the beginning of October, Edward Lord Viſcount Villiers, one of His Majeſty's Ambaſſadors Extraordinary, and Plenipotentiaries for the Treaty of Peace, was created Earl of Jerſey, and ſoon after received the Character of His Majeſty's Ambaſſador to the States General; and on Nov. 25. was ſworn of His Majeſty's Privy-Council. When the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen attended his Majeſty to congratulate His Safe Return, and Happy Concluſion of the Peace, His Majeſty conferred the Honour of Knighthood upon the two Sheriffs, Bartholomew Gracedieu, and James Collet, Eſquires, and upon Robert Beddingfield, Eſq; Alderman, and Thomas Cudden, Eſq; Chamberlain of London.

Parliament meets. On Friday, Dec. 3. the Parliament met at Weſtminſter, and the King in His Robes made this Speech to the Two Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech. "THE War which I enter'd into by the "Advice of My People, is by the Bleſſing "of God, and their Zealous and Affectionate "Aſſiſtance, brought to the End We all propos'd, "an Honourable Peace; which I was willing to "conclude not ſo much to eaſe My Self from "the Trouble or Hazard, as to free the Kingdom "from the Continuing Burthen of an Expenſive "War.

"I am heartily ſorry My Subjects will not at "firſt find all that Relief from the Peace which "I could wiſh, and they may expect; but the "Funds intended for the laſt Year's Service, have "fallen ſhort of anſwering the Sums for which "they were given; ſo that there remain "Conſiderable Deficiencies to be provided for.

"There's a Debt upon the Account of the "Fleet and the Army. The Revenues of the "Crown have been Anticipated by My Conſent "for Publick Uſes; ſo that I am wholly deſtitute "of Means to Support the Civil Liſt; and I can "never diſtruſt you'll ſuffer this to turn to My "Diſadvantage, but will Provide for Me, during "My Life, in ſuch a manner as may be for My "Honour, and for the Honour of the Government.

"Our Naval Force being increaſed to near double what is was at my Acceſſion to the Crown, "the Charge of Maintaining it will be proportionably augmented; and it is certainly neceſſary "for the Intereſt and Reputation of England, to "have always a great Strength at Sea. 1697.

"The Circumſtances of Affairs Abroad are "ſuch, that I think my ſelf oblig'd to tell you "My Opinion, That for the preſent, England "cannot be Safe without a Land Force; and I "hope We ſhall not give thoſe who mean Us Ill, "the opportunity of Effecting that, under the "Notion of a Peace, which they could not bring "to paſs by a War.

"I doubt not but you Gentlemen of the Houſe "of Commons, will take theſe Particulars into "your Conſiderations, in ſuch a manner as to provide the neceſſary Supplies, which I do very "earneſtly Recommend to you.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"That which I moſt delight to think of, and "am beſt pleaſed to own, is, That I have all "the Proofs of My People's Affection, that a "Prince can deſire; and I take this Occaſion to "give them the moſt ſolemn Aſſurance, That as "I never had, ſo I never will, nor can, have any "Intereſt ſeparate from theirs.

"I eſteem it one of the greateſt Advantages "of the Peace, that I ſhall now have Leiſure to "rectify ſuch Corruptions or Abuſes as may have "crept into any part of the Adminiſtration during the War; and effectually to diſcourage "Prophaneſs and Immorality! And I ſhall employ My Thoughts in promoting Trade, and advancing the Happineſs and Flouriſhing Eſtate of "the Kingdom.

"I ſhall conclude with telling You, That as "I have, with the Hazard of every Thing, Reſcued your Religion, Laws and Liberties, when "they were in the Extremeſt Danger; ſo I "ſhall place the Glory of My Reign in Preſerving them Entire, and leaving them ſo to Poſterity.

This Speech ſeem'd to be moſt acceptable to the Lords, who made an Addreſs to His Majeſty, Lords Addreſs. "Congratulating His Happy Return, accompanied with the Bleſſings of a Safe and Honourable Peace; which next under God they were "ſenſible was owing to His Courage and Conduct: "That after the Hazards and Labours He had ſo "long ſuſtained for the good of Europe, there "wanted nothing but this to compleat the Glory "of His Reign. They ſhould never be wanting "in their Endeavours to aſſiſt His Majeſty in "Maintaining that Quiet which He had ſo glorioully reſtored to theſe Kindoms, and in contributing all they could to the Safety of His Perſon, and the ſecuring the Peace and Proſperity "of His Government." His Majeſty in Return aſſured their Lordſhips of His Kindneſs; and told them, He hoped this Peace would be ſo Bleſt, that they might long enjoy it.

His Majeſty's Speech did more variouſly affect the Commons: Some thought ſome Expreſſions in it too Magiſterial; Others ſeem'd to be offended at his Majeſty's putting them in mind of what He had done for the Nation; Others again diſtruſted the great Promiſes of what He would do for them; and moſt began to be Jealous of the Expreſſion, That England could not be ſafe without a Land Force. By which they underſtood that odious thing, a Standing Army. However, on Dec. 9th, the Commons preſented this humble Addreſs to the King.

"We your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal Commons Addreſs. "Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Aſſembled, who have ſo frequently waited on Your Majeſty with the tender of our Aſſiſtance for carrying on the War, come now to Congratulate "Your Majeſty upon the happy Concluſion of "it, in a Peace ſo Honourable and Advantageous

1697.

" ous to the Nation, as ſufficiently juſtifies the Wiſdom of the Commons in Adviſing, and Your Majeſty's Conduct in the Proſecution of it.

" The Proſpect of the Benefits Your People will receive from this Peace, is very pleaſing. The Honour Your Majeſty has reſtor'd to England, of holding the Balance of Europe, gives Your Subjects great Content. But what Your Commons are moſt Affected and Delighted with, is, That Your Majeſty's Sacred Perſon will now be Secure from thoſe many and great Dangers, to which you have ſo often Expos'd it for our Sakes. Nothing being ſo Evident, as that Your Majeſty's Return in Safety, was a Bleſſing more welcome to Your People than Peace, and received with greater Demonſtrations of Joy.

" We therefore with Hearts full of Affection, Duty, and Gratitude, do aſſure Your Majeſty in the Name of all the Commons of England, That this Houſe will be ever ready to Aſſiſt and Support Your Majeſty, who by putting a Period to the War, has confirm'd us in the quiet Poſſeſſion of our Rights and Liberties, and ſo fully compleated the Glorious Work of our Deliverance.

King's Anſwer.

The King Anſwer'd thus: Gentlemen, nothing that relates to the Peace pleaſes Me ſo much, as the Satisfaction you have in it: And as you have aſſiſted Me in the War beyond all expreſſion, I do not doubt, but you will be as Zealous in maintaining the Peace.

The Grievance of Standing Forces.

Standing Forces, however eſtabliſhed and regulated by Law, or however neceſſary to Maintain the Peace, were thought Intolerable; and therefore upon entring into a Conſideration of His Majeſty's Speech, the firſt Reſolution of the Commons, Was on Dec. 11. That all the Land Forces of this Kingdom that have been raiſed ſince the 29th of September 1680, ſhall be Paid and Diſbanded. The Friends of the King and His Government had well argued, that the Nation was ſtill Unſettled, and not quite delivered from the Fear of King James; that the Adherents to that Abdicated Prince were as Bold and Numerous as ever; and he himſelf ſtill Protected by the French King, who having as yet diſmiſt none of his Troops, was ſtill as formidable as before. That if our Army was entirely Disbanded, the Peace which was obtained at the expence of ſo much Blood and Treaſure, would be altogether precarious: And not only England but all Europe lie once more at the Mercy of that Ambitious Monarch, an Inveterate Enemy to King William, the Proteſtant Religion, and the Liberties of Chriſtendom. On the other hand, the Country-Party, who valued themſelves upon oppoſing any Motions of the Court; the Diſaffected Party who never heartily approved the Revolution; the Commonwealth-Party, who were ſecretly driving at a Change of Government into their own Scheme and Intereſt; and even many worthy Patriots, who had no worſe View than the Rights and Liberties of their Country: All upon different thoughts agreed in the ſame Averſion to a Standing Army; and labour'd to repreſent it as abſolutely deſtructive to the Conſtitution of the Engliſh Government. And it was no wonder that their Objections prevail'd, when they were more Popular, and had this Weight in them, That Standing Forces would want a continual Tax; and Disbanding would relieve the People from the Burden of the War, which they would never be willing to bear in a Time of Peace. The King hoped that he had prevented the Warmth of theſe Debates at his laſt coming over, when he had cauſed ſeveral Regiments of Horſe, Dragoons, and Foot, to be Disbanded; and even others to be reduced, and ſent away (moſt of them) either to Scotland or Ireland. And therefore he reſented it as the greater Hardſhip upon him, that he muſt have no Troops remaining, but be left ſo naked and expoſed, as if the Peace were only to encourage his Enemies to ſurprize him with another War.

The Commons however perſiſted in their Reſolutions of Disbanding; but to make it the more plauſible, they paſs'd a Vote, December the 13th, That it be an Inſtruction to the Committee who were to conſider of the Supply, that they ſhould likewiſe conſider of a Gratuity to be given to ſuch Officers and Soldiers of the Engliſh Army, who were or ſhould be Disbanded: And at the ſame time, ordered Mr. Hammond and Mr. Moyle, to bring in a Bill, To enable Soldiers who ſhould be Disbanded, to exerciſe their Trades in any Town or Corporation throughout this Kingdom. And, to ſeem to provide for the Security of the Kingdom, when the Army ſhould be Disbanded, on December the 17th, they appointed ſeveral Members to prepare and bring in a Bill, To regulate the Militia, and make them the more uſeful. And on December the 18th, they reſolved, That Ten Thouſand Men are neceſſary for a Summer and Winter-Guard at Sea, for the Year One Thouſand Six Hundred Ninety Eight. Commons for Disbanding the Army.

On December the 20th the Commons took the Supply into Conſideration, and reſolved, " That in a juſt Senſe and Acknowledgment of what great Things his Majeſty has done for theſe Kingdoms, a Sum not exceeding Seven Hundred Thouſand Pounds be granted to his Majeſty during his Life, for the Support of the Civil Liſt. On Friday, January the 14th, to encourage the Diſpatch of Buſineſs, his Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and ſending for the Commons, gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act to prevent the further Currency of any Hammer'd Silver Coin of this Kingdom; and for Recoining ſuch as is now in being; and for the making out New Exchequer-Bills, where the former Bills are, or ſhall be, filled up by Indorſements. 2. An Act againſt Correſponding with the late King James, and his Adherents. 3. An Act for continuing the Impriſonment of —— Counter, and others, for the late horrid Conſpiracy to Aſſaſſinate the Perſon of His Sacred Majeſty. 4. An Act to give farther Time for the adminiſtring of Oaths relating to Tallies and Orders; and for the eaſier Diſpatch of Publick Buſineſs, in the Exchequer, and in the Bank of England. 5. An Act for Veſting in Sydenham Barker, Gent. an abſolute Eſtate of Inheritance in Fee-Simple, in a certain Rent, Meſſuages, Lands and Hereditaments in the County of Devon; and ſecuring to John Baker, Gent. and Henry Baker, an Infant, his Son, Moneys in Lieu of their Claims thereunto. The ſame Day, the Houſe of Commons agreed to the Reſolutions which had been taken in a Grand Committee about the Supply: Firſt, That a Sum not exceeding Three Hundred Fifty Thouſand Pounds, be granted to his Majeſty, for maintaining Guards and Garriſons for the Year 1698. Secondly, That a Supply be granted to his Majeſty, which, together with the Funds already ſettled for that purpoſe, ſhould be ſufficient to Anſwer and Cancel all Exchequer-Bills, iſſued, or to be iſſued, not exceeding Two Millions Seven Hundred Thouſand Pounds. Thirdly, That a Supply be granted to his Majeſty, for the ſpeedy Paying and Disbanding the Army. And then they Ordered, That a Bill be brought in for reducing the Diſcount upon Exchequer-Bills, and giving them a better Currency. On January the 18th, they came to other ſoftning Reſolutions. Firſt, That upon Disbanding the Army, over and above

Supply.

Acts paſſed.

Uſes of Supply.

1697. above what is due to them, there be allow'd, by way of Bounty, Fourteen Days Subſiſtence to each Foot-Soldier and Non-Commiſſion Officer, and to each Foot-Soldier Three Shillings more, in Lieu of his Sword, which he is to deliver up. Secondly, That upon Disbanding the Army, over and above what is due to them, there be allow'd by way of Bounty, Six Days full Pay to each private Trooper and Non-Commiſſion Officer of the Horſe and Dragoons. Thirdly, That of the Supply to be granted to his Majeſty, the Sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Thouſand Pound be allow'd upon Account, towards defraying the Charge of Disbanding the private Troopers, and Centinels, and Non-Commiſſion Officers, of the Horſe, Dragoons, and Foot. Fourthly, That Proviſion be made for giving Half-Pay to the Commiſſion-Officers, (his Majeſty's Natural-born Subjects of England) till the ſaid Officers ſhall be fully paid off and cleared, and be otherwiſe provided for.

For making good Deficiencies.

To proceed in the ſofter ways, the Commons reſolved to make good the Deficiencies of former Funds; and therefore on January the 22d, they Voted the Sum of Four Hundred and Seven Thouſand Pounds, for making good the Deficiency of the Aid of Three Shillings in the Pound, granted to his Majeſty the laſt Seſſion of Parliament: And Nine Hundred and Forty Thouſand Pounds, for making good the Deficiency of the Subſidies, and other Duties granted at the ſame time. And One Hundred Twenty Nine Thouſand Pound, for making good the Deficiency of the Aid of One Shilling in the Pound. And they ordered a Committee to conſider of Ways and Means for making good the ſaid Deficiencies. On February the 1ſt, having taken the Arrears of the Army into Conſideration, They reſolved, that the Sum of 1254000 l. was neceſſary to clear the Arrears of Pay, due to the Land-Forces, according to the Eſtabliſhment from the 1ſt of April 1692, to the laſt Day of September 1697. beſides 940815 l. for Subſiſtence; 28295 l. for Contingencies, 5000 l. for the General Officers, and 75000 l. for the Guards and Garriſons; in all 2348102 l. And that there was but 855502 l. remaining in the Hands of the Pay-Maſter of the Army, the firſt Day of January, 169⅞.

To raiſe the Sums which the Parliament had Voted neceſſary for Disbanding the Army, paying off of Quarters, and paying of Seamen, and towards making good of Loans, and the Deficiencies of former Funds; they reſolved on February 9. to lay an Aid of Three Shillings in the Pound upon Land, by way of Aſſeſſment upon every County, in proportion to the Rates of the firſt Four Shillings Aid granted in 1691, by which means they prevented any future Deficiency of this Fund. The next Day they conſider'd the Account of what was due to ſome of his Majeſty's Allies, both for Arrears of Subſidies, and for Payment of Auxiliaries; and reſolv'd, That 180000 Rix-Dollars were due to the Elector of Brandenburgh; 250000 Rix-Dollars to the Landgrave of Heſſe Caſſel; 121223 Rix-Dollars to the Duke of Wolfenbuttle; 149997 Rix-Dollars to the Biſhop of Munſter; 50000 Rix-Dollars to the Dukes of Hannover and Zell; 25000 Rix-Dollars to the Duke of Holſtein, and 200000 Rix-Dollars to the King of Denmark, both upon the forementioned Account, and in conſideration of an entire Prohibition of Commerce between that Crown and France. They alſo reſolv'd, That there was due the Sum of 177000 Pounds to the Contractors for Bread and Forage. Four Days after, they further examin'd into the Debt of the Nation, and reſolv'd, that the Sum of 1392742 l. was due upon the ſeveral Heads of the Eſtimate of the General Debt of the Navy; 204157 l. to the Office of Ordnance; 340708 l. for Tranſports for reducing of Ireland; 125785 l. for other Tranſport-Service, and 49929 l. for Quartering and Cloathing the Army raiſ'd by Act of Parliament in 1677, and Disbanded by another Act in 1679. 1697.

For paying all Arrears of Debt.

It being impoſſible for the Nation to acquit this vaſt Debt at once, the Commons reſolv'd to do it by Degrees; and therefore Voted, Firſt, That the Debt due for clearing the Army, from the 1ſt of April 1692, to the laſt Day of September 1697, amounting to 1254000 l. the Sum of 139066 l. be raiſed in the Year 1698, which would clear the Army to the 1ſt Day of April, 1693. Secondly, That the Sum of 203450 l. be raiſed for the clearing the Arrears of Subſiſtance to the Troops in England, between the 1ſt Day of January 1696, and the 1ſt Day of Auguſt 1697. Thirdly, That 450816 l. be raiſed for clearing the Arrears of Subſiſtence to the Troops in Flanders, to the 4th Day of October 1697. Fourthly, That the Sum of 50000 l. be raiſed for the General Officers. Fifthly, That 137990 l. be raiſed for clearing the Arrears of Subſiſtence due to the Troops in Flanders, from the 4th of October 1697, to the laſt Day of December. Sixthly, That the Sum of 1100117 l. be raiſed for the Navy; to wit, 100000 l. for Wear and Tear; 600000 l. for Seamens Wages, in part of 1862849 l. due on that Score; 16389 l. due to the Regiſtred Seamen; 24000 l. for the Salaries of the Commiſſioners of the Admiralty, and other Officers, and for Contingencies; 28663 l. for the Half-pay Sea-Officers; 90073 l. for Penſions to Superannuated Sea-Officers and Widows; 15927 l. for the Charge of the Yards; 848 l. for the Muſter-Maſters of the Out-Ports; 43399 l. for Wages to Ships and Veſſels in Ordinary; 19608 l. for Victuals of the Ships in Ordinary; 32558 l. for Harbour-Moorings; 35848 l. for Ordinary Repairs of the Navy; 55520 l. for the Two Marine Regiments; and 37286 l. for the Charge of the Office for Regiſtring Seamen. Seventhly, That the Sum of 60000 l. be allowed for the Ordnance: And Eighthly, That Proviſion be made towards Payment of the Principal and Intereſt of the Tranſport-Debt. All which Sums they reſolv'd to raiſe in the Year 1698.

Exchequer-Bills.

The falſe Endorſement of Exchequer-Bills was ſuch a ſcandalous Practice, that it took up much of the Commons time to enquire into it, and reform it. Theſe Exchequer-Bills were of mighty uſe in the Nation, by ſupplying the Scarcity of Money during the Recoining of the Silver Species. Now becauſe there was an Intereſt of Seven Pounds Twelve Shillings per Annum allowed upon the Second Iſſuing the ſaid Bills out of the Exchequer, after they had been paid in, on any of the King's Taxes; whereas at their firſt iſſuing out of the Exchequer, they bore no Intereſt; this encourag'd ſeveral of the King's Officers, both in the Exchequer, the Cuſtoms, and the Exciſe, to contrive together to get great Sums of Money by falſe Endorſements on theſe Exchequer-Bills, before they had circulated about, and been brought into any Branch of his Majeſty's Revenue. The moſt conſiderable Perſons that had carried on this unwarrantable Practice, were Mr. Charles Duncomb, Receiver General of the Exciſe; Mr. John Knight, Treaſurer of the Cuſtoms; Mr. Bartholomew Burton, who had a Place in the Exciſe-Office; and Mr. Reginald Marriot, one of the Deputy-Tellers of the Exchequer; which laſt, to get his Pardon, compounded to accuſe the reſt. Upon a full Proof of the Matter, Duncomb and Knight, who were Members of the Houſe of Commons, were firſt Expell'd the Houſe, 1697. Houſe, and Committed Priſoners to the Tower; Burton ſent to Newgate, and Bills order'd to be brought in to puniſh them. The Bill againſt Mr. Duncomb, whereby a Fine of near half his Eſtate, (which at that Time was judg'd to be worth 400000 l.) was ſet upon him, did quickly paſs the Houſe of Commons, notwithſtanding the Oppoſition that was made to it, particularly by the Attorney-General: But being ſent up to the Houſe of Lords, and their Lordſhips being equally divided, the Duke of Leeds gave his Caſting Vote for the Rejecting of the Bill. It was then the Common Report, That Mr. Duncomb diſpell'd the impending Storm by a Golden Sacrifice; which however Hiſtory cannot relate as a Truth, becauſe it never came to Publick Notice: But we muſt not paſs over in Silence, that Mr. Duncomb being ſet at Liberty by the Order of the Houſe of Lords, without the Conſent of the Commons, the latter reſented it to that degree, that they caus'd him to be remanded to the Tower of London, where he continu'd to the end of the Seſſion. The Bills againſt Knight and Burton had the ſame Fate; and ſo all thoſe threatning Clouds that ſeem'd ready to cruſh the falſe Indorſers, ſpent themſelves in Vapour and Noiſe.

The Commons did this Year deſign to apply Part of all the Forfeited Eſtates to the Uſe of the Publick; in order to which, they enquir'd into the Grants made by King Charles IId. and King James IId. and order'd a Bill to be brought in to make them Void. Afterwards they examin'd the Grants made by His preſent Majeſty in Ireland; and becauſe a Grant was found made to Mr. Roylton, which Mr. Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, own'd to be for his Benefit, a warm Debate aroſe thereupon; and the Enemies of the latter, who were not few, (for the Reaſons I hinted before) mov'd, That he ſhould withdraw; which paſſing in the Negative, it was Reſolv'd by a great Majority, That it was the Opinion of this Houſe, That the Honourable Charles Mountague, Eſq; Chancellor of the Exchequer, for his good Services to this Government, did deſerve his Majeſty's Favour. A Vote that will render his Name famous to all ſucceeding Ages.

Earl of Macclesfield's Bill of Divorce.

The Earl of Macclesfield, to Vindicate the Honour of his Family, was forc'd to publiſh the Shame of his Marriage-Bed, and to prefer a Bill in the Houſe of Lords, to be Divorc'd from his Wife. It ſeems his Lady, about Ten Years before, being weary of living with the Earl's Father, under whoſe Care her Husband left her, during his Abſence beyond Sea, did retire to her Mother the Lady Maſon's Houſe: The Earl being return'd Home, and reſenting this Step of his Lady, which ſhe had made without his Privity, inſtead of recalling her, ſuffer'd her to live in a State of Separation; during which, it is no Wonder, ſhe was tempted to break her Matrimonial Vows, ſince her Husband did not perform his; and ſince we daily ſee both Sexes prove unfaithful to one another, without any Juſt Provocation. However, we ought to account the Lady Macclesfield Virtuous, till the Fruits of her Amours prov'd her otherwiſe; which was towards the latter end of the Year 1696, when ſhe was deliver'd of a Daughter. The Death of this Child, before the Earl had heard any Thing of the Matter, with the Belief that this might be a ſufficient Warning againſt Liberties that carried ſuch Viſible Effects with them, with-held him from attempting publick Satisfaction; and moreover, at the Solicitation of his Wife's Relations, who undertook for her Conduct, for the future, his Lordſhip conſented to allow her 500 l. Yearly, for a Separate Maintenance. This Treaty was hardly concluded, when the Earl being inform'd of his Lady's being delivered of another Child, he commenced his Suit in the Spiritual-Court, for ſuch a Divorce as might be given by that Law: But, being diſappointed in his Proſecution, through the Dilatorineſs of Eccleſiaſtical Proceedings, his Lordſhip apply'd himſelf to his Peers for a Remedy, which nothing but a Parliament could give: All the Relief which he could expect from a Sentence in Doctors-Commons, being little more than that State of Separation, in which he and his Lady had long-liv'd. He alledg'd, That it is evident, that the Divine Law admits of Second Marriages in ſuch Caſes, and there had been Acts of Parliament for them, as well as for Baſtardizing Spurious Iſſue: That thoſe Canons which have Prohibited Second Marriages in like Caſes, were ſo manifeſtly an Effect of the Popiſh Doctrine of Marriage being a Sacrament, and of the Avarice of the Court of Rome to get Money for diſpenſing with them, that in the Reformation of Eccleſiaſtical Laws, prepar'd and intended in the Time of Edward VI. in purſuance of an Act of Parliament of Hen. VIII. there was expreſs Liberty given by thoſe Canons, to marry again; which by virtue of that Act of Parliament, would have become a General Law, or at leaſt, have occaſion'd one: That whatever Objection might be againſt a General Law, from the Temptation it might give Ill People to ſeek groundleſs Diſſolutions of Marriages, yet upon Extraordinary Caſes, ſuch as this was, ſuch Relief had been granted; and where it had been denied, either the Fault was not fully prov'd, or the Parties had cohabited; or, after the Grounds of Diſſatisfaction, had been reconciled: That if in ſuch a Concurrence of Circumſtances as were in his Caſe, he muſt ſtill be thought to have a Wife, and the Children ſhe had had, muſt be look'd upon as his, from the Common Preſumption, till Contrary Proof, in that they were born while he was within the Four Seas; beſides, that it could not but be too great an Encouragement to Women, to make an ill Uſe of a Separate Maintenance, which is provided for in moſt Marriage-Settlements, it would be a moſt unreaſonable Hardſhip upon him, that the Standing Law, which is deſign'd to do every Man Right, ſhould by the Rigour of the Letter, be to him the cauſe of the greateſt Wrong; and that for his Wife's Fault, he ſhould be deprived of the Common Privileges of every Freeman in the World, to have an Heir of his own Body, to inherit what he poſſeſs'd either of Honour or Eſtate: Or that his own Brother ſhou'd loſe his Claim to both, and have his Birth-right ſacrific'd to the Lady Macclesfield's Irregular Life.

While this Affair was depending in the Spiritual-Court, the Lady Macclesfield inſiſted upon her Innocence, and her Agents induſtriouſly ſpread a Report, That the Earl her Husband had been ſurpriz'd into a Private Meeting with her, (by a Woman of Intrigue) at which Time he got her with Child: But this Story being confuted by the Earl's Poſitive Evidence to the contrary, her Ladyſhip gave up that Point now, and only endeavoured to make her Husband the Author of her Miſcarriages. She alledg'd, That the late Earl of Macclesfield had turn'd her out of Doors: That the preſent Earl, notwithſtanding the Obligation ſhe had laid upon him, by Petitioning King James for his Life, had maliciouſly ſecluded her from Bed and Board: And therefore if the Lords thought fit to paſs this Bill of Divorce, ſhe demanded her Fortune to be refunded; both becauſe a Divorce diſſolves the whole Frame of the Marriage Contract; and becauſe it were the higheſt pitch of Injuſtice, that a Man who was guilty of making his Wife commit Adultery, ſhould be rewarded 1697. rewarded out of the ſame Wife's Fortune. This Affair occaſion'd great Debates in the Upper Houſe; ſome Peers repreſenting the Danger of granting Divorces; and others, amongſt whom Dr. Burnet, Biſhop of Saliſbury, ſpoke the longeſt, ſhewing the Neceſſity and Lawfulneſs of ſuch Extraordinary Proceedings in ſome particular Caſes. Upon the whole Matter, the Lords paſs'd a Bill for Diſſolving the Marriage between Charles Earl of Macclesfield, and Anne his Wife, and to Illegitimate her Children; but with a Proviſo, that the Earl ſhould refund her Fortune. This Bill being ſent down to the Commons, the Parties concern'd were both heard by their Council, but notwithſtanding the Lady Macclefield's Oppoſition, the Bill was read the Third Time, and paſs'd without any Amendment.

On Monday, March 7. the King came to the Houſe of Peers, and paſs'd theſe Publick and Private Bills:

Acts paſſed. 1. An Act for Explaining an Act made the laſt Seſſion of Parliament, for granting to His Majeſty certain Duties upon Malt, Mum, Sweets, Cyder, and Perry. 2. An Act for Satisfying and Diſcharging the Arrears of ſeveral Annuities which incurred between the Seventeenth Day of May, One thouſand ſix hundred and ninety ſix, and the Seventeenth Day of May, One thouſand ſix hundred and ninety ſeven. 3. An Act, That all Retailers of Salt ſhall Sell by Weight. 4. An Act for rendring the Laws more effectual, for preventing the Importation of Foreign Bone-Lace, Loom-Lace, Needle Work, Point and Cut-Work. 5. An Act to prevent the Throwing and Firing of Squibs, Serpents and other Fire-Works. 6. An Act for Enabling Simon Lord Biſhop of Ely, and his Succeſſors, to Leaſe the Manor-houſe, and Demeſne-Lands of Downham in the Iſle of Ely, and for confirming a Leaſe lately thereof made by the ſaid Biſhop, and for clearing the ſaid Biſhop and others from Dilapidations there. 7. An Act to enable Sir Francis Guybon, and Dame Iſabella his Wife, and their Truſtees, to ſell the Manor of Avenals, and other Lands, in or near Gunthorp, in the County of Norfolk, and for ſettling other Lands in lieu thereof. 8. An Act for the Naturalization of Gerrard Maeſacker, and others. 9. An Act to enble Rebecka Laſſels, Widow, to ſell Copyhold-Lands and Houſes in Ealing, in the County of Middleſex. 10. An Act for Veſting in Truſtees certain Lands of George Farrington, Eſq; lying in the Counties of Middleſex and Surry, (ſettled upon the Marriage of William Farington his Nephew) and with the Money ariſing thereby, for Purchaſing of other Lands in Lancaſhire, where the Ancient Eſtate of the Family lies, to be ſettled to the ſame Uſes. 11. An Act to enable the Truſtees of William Knott, Gent. and his Wife, to ſell a Leaſe of Houſes in Breadſtreet, London, for Payment of Debts, and to ſettle another Eſtate of better Value in lieu thereof. 12. An Act to enable Thomas Kynnerſley, Eſq; an Infant, to make a Jointure and Settlement of his Eſtate. 13. An Act for Naturalizing Dudley Veſey, an Infant. 14. An Act to enable John Lewin to ſell certain Meſſuages in Southwark, for Payment of Debts.

Honours and Preferments. Since the beginning of this Seſſion, theſe Places and Honours were well beſtowed by the Favour of His Majeſty. On Dec. 5. upon the reſignation of Mr. Secretary Trumbull, the King made choice of James Vernon, Eſq; to ſucceed him in the Office of Principal Secretary of State, and that Evening he took the uſual Oaths of Secretary and Privy-Counſellor. On Dec. 12. His Majeſty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon John Blencow, one of the Juſtices of the Common Pleas; Henry Hatſel, Eſq; one of the Barons of the Exchequer; Joſeph Jekel, Eſq; Chief-Juſtice of Cheſter; and William Sympſon, Eſq; Curſitor Baron of the Court of Exchequer. In the Chriſtmas Holy-days, the Earl of Sunderland reſigned his Office of Lord Chamberlain, in a Prudent Fear that the Commons would Addreſs the King for the removal of him. About the end of December, the Duke of St. Albans was ſent into France, to Compliment the King and the Dauphine, upon the Marriage of the Duke of Burgundy: And ſoon after the Earl of Portland went over Ambaſſador Extraordinary to that Court; And Mr. Prior was Secretary of that Embaſſy. On Feb. 16. His Majeſty conferr'd the Dignity of a Baronet upon Thomas Tipping of Wheatfield, in the County of Oxon, Eſq; in Conſideration of his conſtant Loyalty and good Services. The Count de Tallard came Ambaſſador from His Moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, landing at Greenwich on March 18. 1697.

It was a great Honour to the Houſe of Commons, that on Feb. 9. a Committee was appointed to draw up an Humble Addreſs to His Majeſty, upon the Debate of the Houſe, to ſuppreſs Prophaneneſs and Immorality, and all Books which endeavour to undermine the Fundamentals of the Chriſtian Religion, and to puniſh the Authors. So that on Feb. 17. this Addreſs was preſented to the King by the whole Houſe. State of Religion.

May it Pleaſe Your Majeſty,

Addreſs of the Commons againſt Prophaneſs and Immorality. "We Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal "Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Aſſembled, do with great Joy and Comfort remember the many Teſtimonies which Your Majeſty has given us of Your Sincerity and Zeal for the True Reformed Religion, as eſtabliſh'd in this Kingdom: And in particular, we beg Leave to preſent to Your Majeſty our moſt Humble and Thankful Acknowledgments for the late Gracious Declaration Your Majeſty has made to us from the Throne, That You would effectually diſcourage Prophaneneſs and Immorality, which chiefly by the Neglect and Ill Example of too many Magiſtrates, are, like a General Contagion, diffuſed and ſpread throughout the Kingdom, to the great Scandal and Reproach of our Religion, and to the Diſhonour and Prejudice of Your Majeſty's Government.

"Therefore in Concurrence with Your Majeſty's Pious Intentions, we do moſt humbly deſire, That Your Majeſty would iſſue out Your Royal Proclamation, commanding all Your Majeſty's Judges, Juſtices of the Peace, and other Magiſtrates, to put in ſpeedy Execution thoſe good Laws that are now in force againſt Prophaneneſs and Immorality, giving due Encouragement to all ſuch as do their Duty therein: And that Your Majeſty would be pleaſed to require from Your Judges and Juſtices of Aſſize, from Time to Time, an Account of ſuch their Proceedings.

"And ſince the Examples of Men in High and Publick Stations have a Powerful Influence upon the Lives of others, we do moſt humbly beſeech Your Majeſty, that all Vice, Prophaneneſs and Irreligion may in a particular manner be diſcouraged in all thoſe who have the Honour to be employ'd near Your Royal Perſon; and in all others who are in Your Majeſty's Service, by Sea and Land; appointing Strict

The Non-Jurors and Jacobite Proteſtants, had not yet wholly withdrawn themſelves from Praying and Communicating with the Legal Clergy and Common People. A late Writer ſaith truly, "Even ſo late as the Year 1697. one of "Dr. Hicke's Conſecrators, &c.

"Orders

1697.

" Orders to be given to all Your Commanders, " that they not only ſhew a good Example them- " ſelves, but alſo inſpect the Manners of thoſe " under them; and that Your Majeſty would up- " on all Occaſions diſtinguiſh Men of Piety " and Vertue, by Marks of Your Royal Fa- " vour.

" We do further, in all Humility beſeech Your " Majeſty, that Your Majeſty would give ſuch " effectual Orders, as to Your Royal Wiſdom " ſhall ſeem fit, for the ſuppreſſing all Pernicious " Books and Pamphlets, which contain in them " Impious Doctrines againſt the Holy Trinity, " and other Fundamental Articles of our Faith, " tending to the Subverſion of the Chriſtian Re- " ligion, and that the Authors and Publiſh- " ers thereof may be diſcountenanc'd and pu- " niſh'd.

" And we do alſo moſt humbly beſeech Your " Majeſty, that Your ſaid Proclamation may be " Ordered to be Read at leaſt Four Times in the " Year, in all Churches and Chapels, immediate- " ly after Divine Service; and at the Aſſizes and " Quarter-Seſſions of the Peace, juſt before the " Charge is given.

" We preſent to Your Majeſty this our moſt " Humble Addreſs, proceeding from our Duty " and Zeal for the Glory of God, and to the end " that all our Counſels may be bleſſed by his Di- " vine Aſſiſtance, and may produce Honour, Safe- " ty and Happineſs, with all the Bleſſings of a " Laſting Peace to Your Majeſty and Your Peo- " ple.

His Majeſty receiv'd this Addreſs with a Singu- lar Satisfaction, and gave this Agreeable An- ſwer.

Gentlemen,

'I cannot but be very well pleaſed with an Addreſs of this Nature; and I will give immediate Directions in the ſeveral Particulars you deſire: But I could wiſh ſome more Effectual Proviſion were made for the Suppreſſing thoſe Pernicious Books and Pamphlets which your Addreſs takes notice of.

Upon this Seaſonable Intimation of His Maje- ſty, Leave was given Feb. 26. to bring in a Bill or Bills, for the more Effectual ſuppreſſing Prophane- neſs, Immorality and Debauchery; and Sir John Philips, and Mr. Edward Harley were order'd to prepare and bring in the ſaid Bill or Bills. In the mean Time an Ingroſs'd Bill from the Lords came down to the Commons, Entituled, An Act for the more Effectual Suppreſſing of Atheiſm, Blaſphemy and Prophaneneſs: which being committed at ſe- cond Reading to a Committee of the whole Houſe, was, after ſome Amendments and Confe- rences, happily agreed to. And in the mean Time His Majeſty with immediate Compliance to the Requeſt of the Commons, publiſh'd this Pro- clamation for Preventing and Puniſhing Immorality and Prophaneneſs.

Act for ſuppreſſing Atheiſm, &c.

1697.

William R.

Proclamation againſt Immorality and Prophaneneſs.

" Whereas we cannot but be deeply ſenſible of " the great Goodneſs and Mercy of Almighty God, " in putting an end to a Long, Bloody and Ex- " penſive War, by the Concluſion of an Honour- " able Peace, ſo we are not leſs touch'd with a " Reſentment, that notwithſtanding this and ma- " ny other great Bleſſings and Deliverances, Im- " piety, Prophaneneſs and Immorality do ſtill " abound in this our Kingdom: And whereas " nothing can prove a greater Diſhonour to a " well-ordered Government, where the Chriſti- " an Faith is profeſſed, nor is likelier to provoke " God to withdraw his Mercy and Bleſſings from " us, and inſtead thereof to inflict heavy and ſe- " vere Judgments upon this Kingdom, than the " Open and Avowed Practice of Vice, Immora- " lity and Prophaneneſs, which amongſt many " Men has too much prevail'd in this Our King- " dom of late Years, to the high Diſpleaſure of " Almighty God, the great Scandal of Chriſtiani- " ty, and the Ill and Fatal Example of the reſt " of our Loving Subjects, who have been ſoberly " educated, and whoſe Inclinations would lead " them to the Exerciſe of Piety and Vertue, did " they not daily find ſuch frequent and repeated " Inſtances of Diſſolute Living, Prophaneneſs and " Impiety; which has in a great meaſure been " occaſion'd by the Neglect of the Magiſtrates " not putting in execution thoſe good Laws " which have been made for ſuppreſſing and pu- " niſhing thereof, and by the Ill example of ma- " ny in Authority, to the great Diſhonour of " God, and Reproach of Our Religion: Where- " fore, and for that we cannot expect Increaſe " or Continuance of the Bleſſings We and Our " Subjects enjoy, without providing Remedies to " prevent the like Evils for the future, We think " Our ſelves bound by the Duty We owe to God, " and the Care We have of the People commit- " ted to our Charge, to proceed in taking effectu- " al Courſe, that Religion, Piety and Good Man- " ners may, according to Our hearty Deſire, flou- " riſh and increaſe under Our Adminiſtration " and Government. And being thereunto moved " by the Pious Addreſs of the Commons in Parlia- " ment Aſſembled, We have thought fit, by the " Advice of our Privy Council, to iſſue this Our " Royal Proclamation, and to declare Our Roy- " al Purpoſe and Reſolution to diſcountenance " and puniſh all manner of Vice, Immorality and " Prophaneneſs in all Perſons from the higheſt to " the loweſt Degree, within this Our Realm; and " particularly in ſuch who are employ'd near Our " Royal Perſon; and that for the greater Encou- " ragement of Religion and Morality, We will, " upon all Occaſions, diſtinguiſh Men of Piety " and Vertue by Marks of Our Royal Favour. " And we do expect that all Perſons of Honour, " or in Place of Authority, will to their utmoſt " contribute to the diſcountenancing Men of " Diſſolute and Debauched Lives, that they being " reduced to Shame and Contempt, may be en-

The Form of Retraction and Submiſſion, made before Henry Lord Biſhop of London, by a Peſtilent Writer, on the 21ſt of December, 1697.

" Whereas I Zachary Houſell, have lately ſet forth a Book, " Intituled, Aſſertions by Holy Scriptures, in a Form of a Trial; " whereby I have given Offence and Scandal to the Church, " and Diſturb'd its Quiet and Peace; I do hereby Acknowledge " myſelf to be heartily Sorry for the ſame; and do Promiſe to " cauſe the ſame Book to be called in, and that I will for the " future abſtain from Printing or Publiſhing any Thing of the " like Nature, that may give Offence to the Doctrine and Diſ- " cipline of the Church. Zachary Houſell.

See An Order by the Earl of Sunderland, Lord Chamberlain of His Majeſty's Houſhold, to prevent the Prophaneneſs and Immorality of the Stage, 4 June 1697.

See A Sermon Preach'd at St. Mary le Bow, to the Societies for Reformation of Manners, on the 28th of June, 169[illegible], by John Ruſſel. 8vo.

See An Account of the Publick Penance performed by ſome notorious Offenders, in the Pariſh of Old Swinford, in the Dioceſe and County of Worceſter, with Two Sermons Preach'd on that Occaſion, by the Reverend Dr. Ford, Rector of that Church; and an Excellent Preface, Written by the Biſhop himſelf, re- commending the Uſage of ſuch Proceedings againſt notorious Offenders, as what would bring more Honour to our Church, and the Religion Eſtabliſhed amongſt us, than the warmeſt Diſputes for our Conſtitution, without regard to the Practice of it. Life of Biſhop Stillingfleet. 8vo. p. 104.

1697. " forced the ſooner to reform their Ill Habits and " Practices, that the Diſpleaſure of Good Men towards them, may ſupply what the Laws (it may " be) cannot wholly prevent. And for the more " effectual reforming theſe Men, who are a Diſcredit to Our Kingdom, Our further Pleaſure " is, and We do hereby ſtrictly charge and command all Our Judges, Mayors, Sheriffs, Juſtices of the Peace, and all other Our Officers " and Miniſters, both Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, " and other Our Subjects whom it may concern, " to be very vigilant and ſtrict in the Diſcovery, " and the effectual proſecution and puniſhment " of all Perſons who ſhall be guilty of Exceſſive " Drinking, Blaſphemy, Prophane Swearing " and Curſing, Lewdneſs, Prophanation of the " Lord's Day, or other Diſſolute, Immoral or " Diſorderly Practices; as they will anſwer it to " Almighty God, and upon pain of Our higheſt " Diſpleaſure. And for the more effectual Proceeding herein, We do hereby direct and command Our Judges of Aſſizes, and Juſtices of " Peace, to give ſtrict Charges at the reſpective " Aſſizes and Seſſions, for the due Proſecution and " Puniſhment of all Perſons that ſhall preſume to " offend in any kinds aforeſaid; and alſo of all " Perſons, that contrary to their Duty, ſhall be " remiſs or negligent in putting the ſaid Laws in " execution; and that they do at their reſpective " Aſſizes and Quarter-Seſſions of the Peace, cauſe " this Our Proclamation to be publickly read in " Open Court, immediately before the Charge " is given. And We do hereby further charge " and command every Miniſter in his reſpective " Pariſh or Chapel, to read or cauſe to be read " this Our Proclamation, at leaſt Four Times in " every Year, immediately after Divine Service, " and to incite and ſtir up their reſpective Auditories to the Practice of Piety and Vertue, and " the avoiding of all Immorality and Prophaneneſs. And to the end that all Vice and Debauchery may be prevented, and Religion and " Vertue practiſed by all Officers, private Soldiers, " Mariners or others, who are employed in Our " Service, either by Sea or Land, We do hereby " ſtrictly charge and command all Our Commanders and Officers whatſoever, That they do " take care to avoid all Prophaneneſs, Debauchery and other Immoralties, and that by the Piety and Vertue of their own Lives and Converſations, they do ſet good Examples to all ſuch " as are under their Authority; and likewiſe to " take care and inſpect the Behaviour and Manners " of all ſuch as are under them, and to puniſh all " thoſe who ſhall be guilty of any the Offences " aforeſaid. And whereas ſeveral Wicked and " Prophane Perſons have preſumed to Print and " Publiſh ſeveral pernicious Books and Pamphlets, " which contain in them Impious Doctrines againſt " the Holy Trinity, and other Fundamental Articles of Our Faith, tending to the Subverſion of " the Chriſtian Religion; therefore for the puniſhing the Authors and Publiſhers thereof, and " for the preventing ſuch Impious Books and " Pamphlets being Publiſh'd or Printed for the " future, We do hereby ſtrictly charge and prohibit all Perſons, that they do not preſume to " Write, Print or Publiſh any ſuch pernicious " Books or Pamphlets, under the Pain of incurring Our High Diſpleaſure, and of being puniſh'd according to the utmoſt Severity of the " Law. And we do hereby ſtrictly charge and " require all Our Loving Subjects to diſcover and " apprehend ſuch Perſon and Perſons whom they " ſhall know to be the Authors or Publiſhers of " any ſuch Books and Pamphlets, and to bring " them before ſome Juſtice of the Peace, or Chief " Magiſtrate, in order that they may be proceeded againſt according to Law. 1697.

Given at our Court at Kenſington the Four and Twentieth Day of February, 1697, in the Tenth Year of Our Reign.

Societies for Reformation of Manners.

This Good Example of the King and Parliament gave a new Zeal to the Worthy Perſons who had engag'd themſelves in Voluntary Societies for the Reformation of Manners, who had ſoon after their Publick Sermons and Aſſemblies at Bow-Church, to animate the good Work: And to make the World the more ſenſible of their Intentions, Methods and Progreſs, they publiſh'd a Diſcourſe Intituled, An Account of the Societies for Reformaon of Manners, in London and Weſtminſter, and other Parts of the Kingdom; with a Perſuaſive to Perſons of all Ranks to be zealous and diligent in promoting the Execution of the Laws againſt Prophaneneſs and Debauchery, for the effecting a National Reformation. To which Book was prefix'd this Laudable Teſtimony of many of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal.

To the Author.

" S I R, We have peruſed the Book you ſent " us, Intituled, An Account of the Societies for " Reformation of Manners; the Deſign of which " is ſo truly Great and Noble, ſo much for the " Honour of God, the Advancement of Piety " and Virtue, and the publick Good both of " Church and State, that it cannot fail of being " approved by all good Men. The Method " likewiſe propoſed, in order to the promoting " and accompliſhing the ſaid Deſign, is, We " conceive moſt proper, and (by the Bleſſing " of God attending it) moſt likely to prove effectual. And that pious Men of all Ranks and " Qualities may be excited by this good Book, " to contribute in their reſpective Places and Stations, their beſt Endeavours towards a National Reformation of Manners, is the moſt humble " and hearty Prayer of, Sir, your very Loving " Friends,

Pembroke. P.	Kent.
Lanſdale.	Bridgwater.
Leeds.	Thanet.
Bedford.	Radnor.
Lindſey.	Abingdon.

For Works of Beneficence and Charity. See 1. A Sermon of Good Works, Preached at Feckenham, in the County of Worceſter, on Thurſday in Whitſun-Week, May 17. 1697. at the Yearly Meeting of the Feoffees, appointed by Sir Thomas Cocke, Bart. to Manage the Charity given by him, &c. by John Jephcott, D. D. Prebendary of Worceſter, and Rector of All-Saints in the Borough of Eveſham: London, 1698, 4to. 2. A Sermon Preach'd at the Firſt Meeting of the Clergy of the Archdeaconry of Cheſter, at Warrington, June 2. 1697. for the Relief of Poor Clergy-men, their Widows and Children, within the Archdeaconry of Cheſter, By Edmund Entwiſtle, D. D. Archdeacon and Prebendary of Cheſter. London, for H. Mortlock, 4to. III. An Account of the School Founded at Appleby, in Leiceſterſhire, by Sir John Moore, within the Year 1697. for One Hundred Scholars to be taught Engliſh and Latin, with an Endowment of Sixty Pounds per Ann. to the Head Maſter; Forty Pounds to the Uſher, and Twenty Pounds to the Writing Maſter, with convenient Dwellings aſſigned for them, within a Noble Structure. 4. A true Accompt of the Sums of Money diſtributed by the Governors of the Charity for the Relief of poor Widows, and Children of Clergy-men for Fourteen Years laſt paſt; at the End of Dr. Stanhope's Sermon to the Sons of the Clergy, dated November 11. 1697. V. A ſhort and impartial Account of that Eminent and Publick Spirited Citizen Mr. Thomas Firmin, who Departed this Life, on Monday December 20. 1697. with his Epitaph, &c. and a Sermon on occaſion of his Death. London, 1698. 8vo.

Portland.

1697.

Portland.	T. Carliol.
Falconberg.	H. Bangor.
Warington.	N. Ceſtrienſ.
Rochford.	E. Glouceſter.
Say and Seal.	S. Elienſ.
Longvile.	J. Briſtol.
Bergavenny.	R. Bath & Wells.
Eures.	J. Ciceſtrienſ.
Willoughby of Parham.	J. Oxon.
Brook.
Maynard.	Judges.
Berkley of Stretton.	Ed. Ward.
Dartmouth.	Ed. Nevill.
Guilford.	Ri. Lechmere.
Haverſham.	Tho. Rokeby.
Barnard.	John Turton.
Digby.	John Blencowe.
Allington.	Hen. Hatſell.
Cutts.

Society for propagating the Goſpel in Foreign Parts.

There was about the ſame Time another excellent Deſign laid, and chiefly manag'd by one active Divine, Dr. Thomas Bray, for propagating the Goſpel in Foreign Parts, by ſending over Miſſionaries, Catechiſms, Liturgies, and other uſeful Books for the Inſtruction of the People, too Ignorant and Prophane in our Weſt-India Colonies and Plantations. The worthy Doctor had taken incredible Pains to promote this Evangelical Undertaking, and had procured the Contributions of many excellent Perſons to enable him to proceed in the Burden and growing Expences of it. And to take all Opportunities of eſtabliſhing a Fund for ſo glorious a Project, on March 3. upon the Second reading of a Bill in the Houſe of Commons, For the better Diſcovery of Eſtates given to Superſtitious Uſes, the ſaid Doctor preſented a Petition to the Houſe, Praying that ſome part of the ſaid Eſtates may be ſet apart for thoſe Pious Uſes, in order to the Propagation of the Reformed Religion in Maryland, Virginia, and the Leeward Iſlands; or elſe that ſome other Proviſion may be made for that purpoſe.

1698.

Proceedings of the Commons.

The Parliament continued Sitting; and the Commons having addreſs'd to His Majeſty, that he would pleaſe to cauſe to be Printed a Liſt of the Perſons Names to whom Licenſe have been granted, purſuant to the Act lately paſſed; Entituled, An Act againſt Correſponding with the late King James and his Adherents: His Majeſty was pleaſed to ſay, That he would cauſe a Liſt to be made, and to be ſent to the Houſe.

Acts paſſed.

On Saturday, April 2. the King coming to the Houſe of Peers, and commanding the Commons to Attend him, gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for granting to His Majeſty the Sum of One million four hundred eighty four thouſand and fifteen Pounds one Shilling and Eleven pence three farthings, for diſbanding Forces, paying Seamen, and other the Uſes therein-mentioned. 2. An Act for explaining an Act made the laſt Seſſions of Parliament; Entituled, An Act for ſupplying ſome defects in the Laws, for the Relief of the Poor of this Kingdom. 3. An Act for the Enlarging, Repairing, and Preſerving the Bridge and Key of the Borough of Bridgwater in the County of Somerſet. 4. An Act for diſſolving the Marriage between Charles Earl of Macclesfield, and Anne his Wife; and to Illegitimate the Children of the ſaid Anne. 5. An Act to Enable John Lord Biſhop of Chicheſter to make Leaſes of certain Houſes and Grounds belonging to the Biſhoprick of Chicheſter, ſituate in Chancery-Lane, for a competent number of Years. 6. An Act for Confirming and Eſtabliſhing the Adminiſtration of the Goods and Chattels of Sir William Godolphin, Knight, deceaſed. 7. An Act to Naturalize Charles May, Eſq; 8. An Act to rectify a miſtake in the Marriage Settlement of William Gardiner, Eſq; 9. An Act to enable certain Truſtees therein-named to make, renew, and fill up Leaſes of the Eſtate of Sir Coppleſton Warwick Bamfield, during the Minority of him and his Brother. 10. An Act for ſettling the Eſtate of John Hall, a Lunatick, ſubject to a Debt charged thereon. 11. An Act for erecting Hoſpitals and Workhouſes in the Town and Pariſh of Tiverton, in the County of Devon, for the better Employing and Maintaining the Poor there. 12. An Act for the Naturalization of John Fauquier, Joſeph Ducaſſe, and others. 13. An Act for the better enabling Sir Ralph Hare to make a Jointure, and ſettle his Eſtate, and raiſe Portions and Maintenances for his younger Children. 14. An Act for veſting in Truſtees to be ſold certain Lands of George Hewett, Eſq; lying in the County of Middleſex, ſettled upon his Marriage, and with the Money ariſing thereby, for purchaſing other Lands in Leiceſterſhire, where his Eſtate and Seat lies, to be ſettled to the ſame Uſes.

1698.

Ways and Means.

The Commons proceeded to other Ways and Means of raiſing the Supply. On April 7. they reſolved, That over and above the Duties already payable, a further Duty be laid upon all Coal and Culm. On April 9. they laid an Impoſition upon all Forfeited Eſtates, which have been reſtored by the Crown, in England or in Ireland, by reverſal of Outlawry, or otherwiſe; and upon all Beneficial Grants from the Crown ſince May 29, 1660. that the Fourth part of them be applied to the Uſe of the Publick. On April 14. They continued the Poll or Capitation Tax for one Year longer. On April 16, they laid a Duty upon all Coals imported from Scotland, or other Parts beyond Sea. On April 28. they doubled the Duties upon Stampt Vellum, Parchment and Paper, until the 1ſt Day of Auguſt, 1706. They continued the Duties upon Coffee, Tea, and Chocolate and Spices: As alſo the Duty payable by Hawkers and Pedlars, for the Term of Three Years, to commence from the Expiration of the preſent Duties upon them. On May 7, they laid a further Duty upon Salt, one Shilling and eight Pence per Buſhel. On May 14. they doubled the Duties upon all Luſtrings and Alamodes imported: And enlarged the Time for purchaſing Annuities upon the ſeveral Acts of Parliament for Granting the ſame. On May 20, the laid a further Duty upon Sugar. And on May 21, towards raiſing a Fund for Two Millions, they made the Duties upon Salt and Stampt Paper to continue to his Majeſty, his Heirs and Succeſſors, redeemable by Parliament.

(a) The Diſcipline of the Church was kept up, by the Biſhops refuſing to Ordain unworthy Perſons.

There was a Letter from John Lord Biſhop of Oxford, Preſident of Magdalen College, to William Biſhop of Coventry and Lichfield, who had refuſed to admit a young Man, Fellow of that Houſe, into the Order of Prieſt, becauſe of his Ignorance and Rude Behaviour; Dated Magd. Coll. Oxon. June 26, 1697.

My Lord,

" I receive your Lordſhip's Condeſcenſion to Mr. Sacheverel, as a particular Inſtance of your Favour to me. For I " am very ſenſible he has not deſerv'd it; and truly had I " but ſeen that Account which he himſelf gives of his Behavi- " our to your Lordſhip, before I wrote, as I have ſince, I " ſhould ſcarce have been induced to trouble your Lordſhip " about him: He is really Proud, and thinks too well of " himſelf; which I have often told him in plain Terms, and " with as much Severity as I could, tho' to little purpoſe. " I am ſorry to ſee the Follies of the Boy grow up with the " Man. I cannot think he will now preſume to offer himſelf " to me, or any other Biſhop than your Lordſhip, for Prieſt's " Orders; but if he do, I am ſure I will not lay my Hands " upon him, &c.

 By

1698.

Eaſt India Companies.

By this time the Commons were entred on the Buſineſs of the Eaſt-India Trade, which had been depending many Years, and was look'd on as ſo nice and difficult, that it had been referr'd to the King and his Council, and back again by Them to the Parliament. The Old Company having offer'd to advance 700000 l. at Four per Cent. for the Service of the Government, in caſe the Trade to India might be ſettled on them, excluſive of all others, the Houſe ſeem'd inclin'd to embrace their Propoſal; when another Number of Merchants, of whom one Shepherd was the Chief, and who were protected by Mr. Mountague, Chancellor of the Exchequer, propos'd to the Houſe to raiſe Two Millions at 8 per Cent. on condition the Trade to India might be ſettled on the Subſcribers, excluſive of all others: They alſo propos'd that theſe Subſcribers ſhould not be obliged to Trade in a Joint-ſtock; but if any Members of them ſhould afterwards deſire to be Incorporated, a Charter ſhould be Granted to them for that Purpoſe. The Houſe judg'd this new Overture not only to be more Advantagious to the Government, but likewiſe very likely to ſettle this controverted Trade on a better Foundation than it was on before. A Bill was therefore, on May 26, order'd to be brought into the Houſe for ſettling the Trade to the Eaſt-Indies on thoſe who ſhould ſubſcribe the Two Millions, according to the Limitations before-mentioned, and the following Reſolutions: Firſt, "That every Subſcriber might have the Liberty of Trading Yearly, to the Account of his reſpective Subſcription; or might aſſign over ſuch his Liberty of Trading to any other Perſon. Secondly, That his Majeſty be empowered to Incorporate ſuch of the ſaid Subſcribers, as ſhould deſire the ſame. Thirdly, That the Powers and Privileges for carrying on the Eaſt-India Trade, ſhould be ſettled by Parliament. Fourthly, That the ſaid Subſcribers ſhould enjoy the ſaid Eight Pounds per Cent, and Liberty of Trading to the Eaſt-Indies, excluſive of all others, for the Terms of Ten Years, and until the ſame ſhould be redeem'd by Parliament. Fifthly, That every Perſon ſubſcribing Five Hundred Pounds, have a Vote; and no Perſon to have more Votes than one. Sixthly, That all Ships laden in the Eaſt-Indies, ſhould be oblig'd to deliver in England. Seventhly, That no Perſon that ſhould be a Member of any Corporation Trading to the Eaſt Indies, ſhould Trade otherwiſe than in the Joint-Stock of ſuch Corporation of which he was a Member. Eighthly, That Five Pounds per Cent. ad Valorem, upon all Returns from the Eaſt-Indies, be paid by the Importer; to be placed to the Account of the Subſcribers, towards the Charge of ſending Ambaſſadors, and other extraordinary Expences. And Ninthly, That over and above the Duties now payable, a further Duty of One Shilling and Ten Pence per Pound-weight, be laid upon all Wrought Silks imported from India and Perſia; to be paid by the Importer." This Bill being accordingly brought into the Houſe, the Old Eaſt-India Company preſented a Petition againſt it: To which the Commons had ſo much regard, as to offer them to ſettle this Trade upon them, if they would accept it on the ſame Terms and Limitations, on which the others were contented to take it; and which the Parliament judged moſt Advantagious for the Kingdom. But the Members of the Old Company having rejected this Propoſal, the Commons, on June the 25th, paſs'd the Bill in favour of the New Adventurers.

The Old Eaſt-India Company follow'd the Bill to the Upper Houſe; where they were heard by their Council, Sir Thomas Powis, and Sir Bartholomew Shower; who repreſented, "That this Bill invaded their Property, and ruin'd many Families, That in the Charters granted them by Queen Elizabeth, King James I. King Charles II. and King James II. it was ſuggeſted, That their Corporation was for the Honour of England, for the Increaſe of Navigation, and the Advance of Trade. That the ſaid Charters contain'd a Grant of the Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, to the Company, excluſive of all others. That by ſome of them they were conſtituted the Lords Proprietors of Bombay, and of the Iſland of St. Helena, That by theſe Grants, they were induced to think they had a Right in Law to the Trade; at leaſt, that they ſhould have an uncontroverted Title to the Lands: And that on this Preſumption, and relying on the Publick Faith and Credit of the Great Seal of England, they had expended above a Million in Fortifications, and acquir'd Revenues of 44000 l. per Annum, and many Settlements and Privileges. That in the Year 1691, the Houſe of Commons had made a Reſolution, That the Eaſt-India Trade ſhould be carried on in a Joint-Stock, excluſive to all others. That their Company was confirm'd and ſettled by Three Charters, granted by his preſent Majeſty, on the 7th of October, and 17th of November, 1693. and 28th of September, 1694. That upon the Security of theſe Charters, the Company conſented to a New Subſcription: That there was a-new ſubſcrib'd 744000 l. and the Money brought in during the Sitting of the Parliament; and that nothing was done, ſaid, or offer'd againſt his Majeſty's Charter of Regulations: So that upon the Publick Faith, (at leaſt tacitly given) 781 New Adventurers, of which many were Widows and Orphans, did ſubſcribe a large Part of their Subſtance to ſupport this Trade, during a hazardous War, for the Profit and Honour of England: And that the New Adventurers thought they might, without any hazard, ſubſcribe on the Security of a Charter, which was ſo plainly deſign'd by his Majeſty to preſerve the Eaſt-India Traffick, then in danger of being loſt. That on the 10th of June, after the Bill now depending before their Lordſhips was brought in, the Company did agree to ſubmit their preſent Stock to a Valuation of 50 l. per Cent. viz. 20 l. per Cent. for their Dead Stock, and 30 l. per Cent. for their Quick Stock, which they were contented to warrant at the ſaid Sums: And upon theſe Terms they offer'd to open their Books for New Subſcriptions, in order to raiſe the Two Millions. That afterwards, to aſcertain the Payments of the ſaid Two Millions, they had a General Court on the 20th of June; in which they agreed to an immediate Subſcription by private Adventurers of 200000 l. to be paid at the firſt Payment, ſubject to make good the ſubſequent Payments: Which Subſcription was accordingly made. That it has been the conſtant Practice, in Farms, Bargains, and Offers of the like nature, not to cloſe with a new Propoſal, till the firſt Bidder be ask'd, Whether he is able to Advance further? And that notwithſtanding their Charters, and the Right they had to the Trade, they were early told, Their Propoſal ſhould be oppoſed, tho' they offer'd the Two Millions in Queſtion. And laſtly, That the Bill allow'd Foreigners as well as the King's Subjects to ſubſcribe to the Two Millions; whereby they would be let into the 1698. "Secrets and Myſteries of this Trade, which "might produce Effects very pernicious to the "General Intereſt of the Nation.

"Secrets

To this the Council for the New Subſcribers replied, "That in the Recital of their Charters, "the Old Company had omitted to give an Account of the Proviſo's inſerted therein; viz. "That the reſpective Kings that granted them, reſerved a Power to make them void upon Three Years Warning. That the King by his Charter "could not grant the Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, excluſive of all others; and that ſeveral Recoveries had been made againſt them at Law, for "proſecuting ſuch pretended Right. That as the "Crown has not a Power to grant ſuch a Right, "ſo his preſent Majeſty had not in Fact granted "any ſuch Right excluſive. That when they mention'd the Reſolution of the Commons in 1691, "they omitted their other Reſolution, That it was lawful for all Perſons to Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, "unleſs reſtrained by Act of Parliament. Neither "did they take notice of the Two Addreſſes made "by the Houſe of Commons to the King in 1691, "and 1692. to diſſolve the Company. That on "the 14th of November, 1692. Sir Edward Seymour "declar'd to the Commons a Meſſage from his "Majeſty, importing, That his Majeſty had required the Eaſt-India Company to anſwer directly, Whether they would ſubmit to ſuch Regulations as his Majeſty ſhould judge proper "and moſt likely to advance the Trade? And "the Company having fully agreed to it, and "declar'd their Reſolution in writing, his Majeſty had commanded a Committee of his Privy "Council to prepare Regulations; which they did, "and offer'd them to the Company; but that notwithſtanding their Declaration of Submiſſion, "they rejected almoſt all the material Particulars. "So that his Majeſty finding that what poſſibly "the Houſe of Commons might have expected, "and indeed was neceſſary to preſerve this Trade, "could not be perfected by his own Authority "alone; and that the Company could not be induced to conſent to any ſuch Regulations as "might have anſwer'd the Intentions of the "Houſe of Commons, and that the Concurrence of the Parliament was requiſite to make "a compleat and uſeful Settlement of this Trade, "he had directed all the Proceedings in this "Matter to be laid before them; and recommended to them the preparing ſuch a Bill, in "order to paſs into an Act of Parliament, as "might eſtabliſh this Trade on ſuch Foundations "as were moſt likely to Preſerve and Advance it." 'Twas alſo urg'd againſt the Old Company, that their Charter being become void by their Non-payment of the Tax impos'd upon them by Parliament, they obtain'd a New Charter the 7th of October, 1693. by indirect Means, having that Year paid Eighty odd Thouſand Pounds out of the Company's Stock, for ſpecial Service. That this Charter was conteſted before the Queen and Council, by thoſe they called Interlopers; upon the hearing whereof it was unanſwerably proved, That the King had not by Law a Power to grant the Trade to ſome Perſons, excluſive of others; and that the Company's Affairs were then in ſuch a Condition, that it would be a plain Cheat to others, that ſhould come in upon their Stock. They however, Law and Reaſon failing, had recourſe to other Methods, and great Sums of Money were diſtributed, (as it was acknowledg'd before a Committee of Both Houſes of Parliament) to get another Charter; but that thoſe who were concern'd to Adviſe his Majeſty in Point of Law, were ſo juſt to their Truſt, as to take care that no Right of Trade, excluſive of others, was granted: And alſo that the Company ſhould ſubmit to ſuch Alterations, Reſtrictions, and Qualifications, as the King ſhould make on the 29th of September, 1693. following. And ſo on the 17th of Nov. 1693. a new Charter of Regulations was made, and another the 28th of September, 1694. wherein, amongſt other things, was this Proviſo; That if it ſhould appear to the King, his Heirs, and Succeſſors, that the ſaid Two Charters, or any other Charters heretofore granted, ſhould not be profitable to the King, his Heirs, and Succeſſors, or to this Realm; that then and from thenceforth, upon and after Three Years warning to be given to the ſaid Company by the King, &c. the ſame ſhould ceaſe, be void, and determin'd. That it appear'd by the Proceedings of the Houſe of Commons in 1694. how this Charter was obtain'd, which had more in it of private Promiſes than publick Faith: That it was not to be wonder'd, that the Parliament took no notice of the matter, whilſt the new Subſcribers paid in their Money, when it was conſidered, that, according to Sir Baſil Firebraſs's Depoſitions, there were ſeveral Contracts, ſome to the value of 60000 l. on Account of procuring a new Charter; and others to the value of 40000 l. on Account of procuring an Act of Parliament. That by ſuch Means the Matter might be overlook'd for a while, but it was not long before the Parliament took publick Notice of it; and if the greater Affairs of the Nation had not been ſo urgent, and the Seſſion been ſo near an end, perhaps the Company might have had Juſtice done them then, and had been paſt complaining of any imaginary Injuſtice done them now. That therefore it was plain, that it was not for the Profit and Honour of the Nation, and to ſupport the Trade, that the New Subſcribers came in, but that they were deluded into it by a Charter obtain'd by indirect ways, and by the Hopes of an Act of Parliament to confirm it, to be obtain'd in the ſame manner. That the Trade would have been much better preſerv'd, and more to the Honour of the Nation, if no ſuch underhand Practices had been carried on. That if ſome Perſons thinking themſelves to have a greater Reach than others, or being deceived by the Old Company's making His Majeſty believe their Stock to be worth 750000 l. and by afterwards ſharing 325000 l. of the New Subſcribers Money among themſelves, or by the Perſons failing them who had promiſed to get an Act of Parliament, or by Loſſes at Sea, or by what other Means ſoever it were, happen'd to fail in their Expectation, no Body was anſwerable for it but themſelves; eſpecially ſince they had warning enough by the Tranſactions before the Council. 'Twas alledg'd further, That in Edward III. and Queen Elizabeth's Reign, upon Complaint in Parliament of Patents granted for Monopolies, moſt of them were immediately revoked, and the reſt left to the Law. That in King James the Iſt's Time an Act of Parliament paſt, to make void a Charter for the ſole Trade to Spain, and another againſt all Monopolies. That though the Patents for ſome Trades with Joint-Stocks (whilſt the Trades for which they were granted were in their Infancy) had been permitted for the ſettling of a Trade, and till the firſt Adventurers have reap'd ſome reaſonable Compenſation for their firſt Undertakings and Adventures; yet afterwards, when thoſe Trades have increaſed and become Great, the Wiſdom of the Nation has always thought fit to open a way for the Kingdom to receive a general Benefit thereby. That it never was eſteemed a Breach of the publick Faith, or a Derogation either from the Credit of the Great Seal, or from the Honour of our Kings, to have their Patents annulled by Parliament, when the Grants were thought by that Grand Council of the Nation, not 1698. not to be profitable, or to be againſt the Common Right of the Subject; and that no King or Queen thought themſelves bound in Honour or Conſcience not to paſs an Act of Parliament to make void ſuch Patent. That the King being buſied in the many arduous Affairs of the Kingdom, cannot be ſuppoſed to know always what he might legally grant, and is oftentimes deceived in his Grants, and for that reaſon they are often annulled by the ordinary Courſe of Law; and ſo might this Company's Patent have been: For all Perſons having a Right by Law to Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, unleſs excluded by Parliament, the King by His Charter could not grant to the Company any new Right to the Trade, beſides the Privileges of an Incorporated Body; but that the Commons juſtly bearing a high Veneration to His preſent Majeſty, who had run ſo great Hazards, and perform'd ſo glorious Atchievements for the Honour and Good of the Nation, had notwithſtanding taken Care in this Bill, that nothing ſhould interfere with His Majeſty's Patent. That by this Patent the Old Company had indeed Power to Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, and other Privileges, but without any expreſs Clauſe to exclude others, or any Covenant, (as was in the former Charters from the Crown) that His Majeſty would not grant likewiſe to others, to Trade thither during the continuance of the ſaid Charters: So that even according to the Charters themſelves, all other Subjects of England had a Right to Trade to the Eaſt-Indies, and many actually Traded thither without any hindrance. That tho' the Old Company talk'd ſo much of their Dependance on the Security of their Charters, yet they themſelves were convinc'd, that their Right was not well founded, ſince they had formerly laid out ſo much Money to get an Act of Parliament to Confirm their Charters, and had lately offer'd to Lend 700000 l. to the Government, to have the Trade to themſelves, excluſive of all others. As to their offering afterwards to raiſe Two Millions, it was anſwer'd, That they made no ſuch Offer with an Intention that it ſhould take Effect, but only as an Amuſement to gain Time, and ſo to baffle the Bill; for when they agreed to ſubmit their Stock to a Valuation of 50 l. per Cent. they knew very well that others did not value it at any thing near ſo much: And as to their Subſcribing 200000 l. ſubject to make good the ſubſequent Payments of the Two Millions, that it was only to obtain what they had been ſo long aiming at, viz. An Act of Parliament excluſive for the Sum of 200000*l.* whereby the King would be defeated of a much more conſiderable Loan; others delivering us Subſcriptions for about 1200000 l. And finally, that the Old Company heretofore thought it an Advantage to admit Foreigners into their Trade, and that many were actually now in the preſent Company, tho' they were pleas'd to argue againſt it. The Lords weighed the Reaſons on both ſides, and chiefly conſider'd that the Old Company's Propoſal to Lend the Two Millions, was like to prove ineffectual, by reaſon that ſome of their Principal Members were known to have no great Affection to the preſent Government; ſo that upon mature Deliberation, their Lordſhips gave their Concurrence to the Bill, which on July 5. receiv'd the Royal Aſſent.

The Bill being paſs'd, the Commiſſioners Appointed by His Majeſty for taking Subſcriptions toward the raiſing of Two Millions, and for ſettling a New Eaſt-India Company, laid open their Books at Mercers-Hall, on Thurſday the 14th of July, 1698. And ſuch was the Zeal which People of all Ranks, and even Foreigners, ſhew'd on this Occaſion to aſſiſt the Government, 1698. and promote the Trade of the Nation, that on the Saturday following the whole Sum, and ſomething above it was ſubſcrib'd: Nay, it's very probable that Two Millions more had been ſubſcrib'd, had not the Books been ſhut up before the diſtant Corporations, private Men in remote Countries, and Merchants beyond Sea, could remit their Commiſſions for the great Sums they intended to ſubſcribe. The diſpatch of ſo great a Work in leſs than three Days time, after the Nation had borne ſo chargeable a War for ſo many Years, ſurpriz'd and amaz'd all the World: And as it greatly mortified all thoſe who were joyfully aſſur'd that His Majeſty would be diſappointed of this Supply, ſo it gave our Neighbouring Nations an aſtoniſhing Image, both of the Opulence of England, and the Strength of the Government. This Tranſaction viewed in all its Circumſtances, is indeed ſo very ſtrange and wonderful, that the like is not to be found in Story, and 'twill be a hard Matter for Poſterity to believe it. This was owing to the Wiſdom of this Parliament, who had ſo much Skill in touching the Springs of the People's Affections, that notwithſtanding all the Loſſes they had ſuſtain'd, and all the Expence they had been at, they were prevail'd with to advance this great Supply with ſuch incredible Expedition. And by this means, the Parliament only by Doubling the Duty on Paper and Parchment uſed in Proceedings at Law, and that on Salt, raiſed a Supply of Two Millions; which to have done by any other ways, was at that time a Matter of the higheſt Difficulty. Now for the making up of the King's Revenue, the Commons Reſolv'd, on May 28. That of the Hereditary and Temporary Exciſe, Poſt-Office, ſmall Branches of the new Subſidies of Tunnage and Poundage, continued to the Firſt Day of February, 1699. Seven Hundred Thouſand Pounds be granted to His Majeſty during his Life; and that whatſoever the ſaid Revenues ſhould exceed Seven Hundred Thouſand Pound yearly, ſhould be appropriated to ſuch Uſes as ſhould be directed by Parliament. And becauſe the Glaſs-Makers and Tobacco-Pipe-Makers did juſtly complain of the grievous Taxes that had been laid on their Manufactures, the Commons Reſolv'd, on January 25. to take off half the Duties now upon Glaſs-Wares, and the whole Duties upon Stone and Earthen-Wares, and Tobacco-Pipes; and to Grant to His Majeſty an Equivalent, by laying a further Duty upon Whalebone and Scotch Linnen imported. As for the Act for applying the Fourth Part of the Forfeited Eſtates to the uſe of the Publick, ſo many People Petition'd againſt it, that no Progreſs was made in it.

On Monday, May 16. The King was pleaſed to give the Royal Aſſent to theſe Publick and Private Bills. 1. An Act for Granting to His Majeſty ſeveral Duties upon Coals and Culm. 2. An Act for Continuing the Duties upon Coffee, Tea, Chocolate and Spices, towards Satisfaction of the Debt due for Tranſport-Service, for the Reduction of Ireland. 3. An Act for the better Preventing the Counterfeiting, Clipping, and other Diminiſhing the Coin of this Kingdom. 4. An Act to Execute Judgments and Decrees, ſaved in a Clauſe in an Act of Parliament the Firſt Year of the Reign of King William and Queen Mary, entituled, An Act for taking away the Courts holden before the Preſident and Council of the Marches of Wales. 5. An Act for Determining Differences by Arbitration. 6. An Act for the better Payment of Inland Bills of Exchange. 7. An Act to Naturalize the Children of ſuch Officers and Soldiers, and others the Natural-Born Subjects of this Realm, who have been Born Abroad during the War, the Parents of ſuch Children having been in the Service

1698. Service of this Government. 8. An Act to Repeal an Act made in the Nine, and Thirtieth Year of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, Entituled, An Act to Reſtrain the Exceſſive Making of Malt, and to Diſcharge and Vacate Orders made by Juſtices of Peace by Virtue thereof, for Reſtraining Malſters from making of Malt. 9. An Act for Cleaning and making Navigable the Channel from the Hithe at Colcheſter to Wivenhoo. 10. An Act for Repairing the High-Ways, from the Town of Bridlipp and the Top of Crickley-Hill, in the County of Glouceſter, to the City of Glouceſter. 11. An Act for Veſting Land in Truſtees, to be Sold for Payment of the Debts of Wriotheſly Baptiſt, late Earl of Gainsborough, Deceaſed. 12. An Act to annex the Rectory of Whitborne in Herefordſhire, to the Biſhoprick of Hereford. 13. An Act for the better Settling the ſeveral Eſtates of the Honourable John Lord Viſcount Liſburn, in the Kingdom of Ireland, and the Lady Viſcounteſs Lisburn, his Wife. 14. An Act for Supplying a Defect in a Conveyance lately made by Sir Edward Turner, and Charles Turner, Eſq; his Son, for the more Effectual Securing the Sum of Twelve Thouſand Pounds, and Intereſt, upon their Eſtate. 15. An Act for Veſting ſeveral Lands late belonging to Robert Smith, Eſq; Deceaſed, in Truſtees, to be Sold for Payment of his Debts. 16. An Act for Veſting the Manor of Baſtwick and Laviles, in the County of Norfolk, Part of the Eſtate of John Houghton, Eſq; in Truſtees, to be Sold for Diſcharging of Debts charged thereon, and for ſettling another Eſtate in lieu thereof. 17. An Act to enable Streynſham Maſter, Eſq; to ſell Lands in Kent, which were agreed to be ſettled by his Marriage Articles, and to convey Lands in Derbyſhire, of a greater Value, to the ſame Uſes. 18. An Act to enable Paris Slaughter, William Dince, Merchant, and Dame Elizabeth Chapman, to import ſeveral Bales of Fine Italian Thrown Silk into this Kingdom. 19. An Act for ſettling certain Lands in Eſſex on Thomas Burgh, Eſq; and his Heirs, in lieu of other Lands of greater Value, conveyed by him according to a Decree, and the Will of Sir Samuel Jones, deceaſed. 20. An Act for veſting certain cuſtomary Meſſuages and Lands within the Manor of Gillingham, in the County of Dorſet, (late the Eſtate of Thomas Davis, Gent. deceaſed) in Truſtees to be ſold for payment of Debts. 21. An An for Erecting Hoſpitals and Work Houſes within the City and County of the City of Exon, for the better employing and maintaining the Poor there. 22. An Act for Erecting Hoſpitals and Work-Houſes within the City of Hereford, for the better employing and maintaining the Poor there. 23. An Act to rectifie ſome Miſtakes in an Act, Entituled, An Act to enable John Lewin to ſell certain Meſſuages in Southwark, for payment of Debts. 24. An Act for veſting a Moiety of certain Meſſuages and Lands in Hackney, in the County of Middleſex, in Truſt, for the Benefit of Suſannah Cary, Widow and Relict of Nicholas Cary, Eſq; deceaſed, and others. 25. An Act for Erecting Hoſpitals and Work-Houſes within the Town of Colcheſter, in the County of Eſſex, for the better employing and maintaining the Poor thereof. 26. An Act to Naturalize William Lloyd, Eſq; and others. 27. An Act to confirm the Sale of part of the Eſtate of Sir John Churchill, Knt. deceaſed, for payment of his Debts, purſuant to his laſt Will, and two Decrees in Chancery for performance thereof. 28. An Act for veſting the Manor of Alveſton, and other Lands therein mentioned, in the County of Glouceſter, in Truſtees, to be ſold for Payment of Debts, and for other Purpoſes therein mentioned.

On May 21. a Complaint was made to the Commons of a Printed Book, Entituled, The Caſe of Ireland's being bound by Acts of Parliament in England, (written by William Molyneux of Dublin, Eſq;) which denied the Dependance of Ireland, upon the Authority of the Parliament of England. 1698.

The Commons offended with a Book of the Caſe of Ireland.

A Committee was thereupon appointed, to examine further into the ſaid Pamphlet, to enquire into the Author of it; and alſo to ſearch what Proceedings had been in Ireland, that might occaſion the ſaid Book; and an Addreſs to the King Voted, That His Majeſty would give Directions for the Diſcovery and Puniſhment of the Author. A Month after, upon the Report of the Committee, it was unanimouſly reſolv'd, “That the ſaid Book was of Dangerous Conſequence to the Crown and People of England, by denying the Authority of the King and Parliament of England, to bind the Kingdom and People of Ireland, and the Subordination and Dependance that Ireland has, and ought to have upon England, as being united and annexed to the Imperial Crown of this Realm; and that a Bill, Entituled, An Act for the better Security of His Majeſty's Perſon and Government, tranſmitted under the Great Seal of Ireland; whereby an Act of Parliament made in England, was pretended to be re-enacted, Alterations therein made, and divers Things enacted alſo, pretending to oblige the Courts of Juſtice, and the Great Seal of England, by the Authority of an Iriſh Parliament; had given Occaſion and Encouragement to the forming and publiſhing the Dangerous Poſitions contained in the ſaid Book. Four Days after, the Commons in a Body preſented an Addreſs to the King: Wherein they laid before His Majeſty the Dangerous Attempts that had been of late made by ſome of His Subjects of Ireland, to ſhake off their Subjection to, and Dependance on this Kingdom; which had manifeſtly appear'd to the Commons, not only by the Bold and Pernicious Aſſertions in a Book publiſh'd and dedicated to His Majeſty, Entituled, The Caſe of Ireland being bound by Acts of Parliament in England, Stated: But more fully and authentically by the Votes and Proceeding of the Houſe of Commons in Ireland, in their late Seſſions; and whereby the fore-mentioned Bill ſent hither under the Great Seal of Ireland, whereby they would have an Act paſſed in the Parliament of England, expreſly binding Ireland, to be re-enacted there, and Alterations therein made; ſome of which amounted to a Repeal of what is required by the ſaid Act made in England; and in other of the ſaid Alterations, pretending to give Authority to, and oblige the Courts of Juſtice and Great Seal here in England. That this they could not but look on as an Occaſion and Encouragement in the forming and publiſhing the dangerous Poſitions contain'd in the ſaid Book. That the Conſequence of ſuch Poſitions and Procedings would be ſo fatal to this Kingdom, and even to Ireland itſelf, that they needed not to be enlarged on, or aggravated. Therefore they reſted ſatisfied that His Majeſty, by His Royal Prudence, would prevent their being drawn into Example: So they aſſur'd His Majeſty of their ready Concurrence and Aſſiſtance, in a Parliamentary way, to preſerve and maintain the Dependance and Subordination of Ireland to the Imperial Crown of this Realm. And they humbly beſought His Majeſty, That He would give effectual Orders to prevent any Thing of the like nature for the future, and the Pernicious Conſequences of what was paſs'd, by puniſhing and diſcountenancing thoſe that had been guilty thereof: That He would take all neceſſary Care, that the Laws which direct and reſtrain the Parliament of Ireland in their Actings be not Evaded, but ſtrictly Obſerv'd; and that He would diſcourage all Things which might in any degree leſſen the Dependance of 1698. " Ireland upon England." To this His Majeſty's Anſwer, was, That He would take Care that what was Complain'd of, might be prevented and redreſſed, as the Commons deſir'd. 1698.

Ireland

On Tueſday 5th July, the King came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for raiſing a Sum not exceeding Two Millions, upon a Fund for Payment of Annuities, after the rate of Eight Pound per Cent. per Annum, and for ſettling the Trade to the Eaſt-Indies. 2. An Act for paying to His Majeſty, His Heirs, and Succeſſors, further Duties upon Stampt Vellum, Parchment, and Paper, 3. An Act for Granting to His Majeſty an Aid by a Quarterly Poll, for One Year. 4. An Act for Granting to His Majeſty a further Subſidy upon Tonnage and Poundage, towards raiſing the Yearly Sum of Seven hundred thouſand Pounds, for the Service of His Majeſty's Houſhold, and other Uſes therein-mentioned. 5. An Act for Increaſing His Majeſty's Duties upon Luſtrings and Alamodes. 6. An Act for ſupplying to the Uſe of His Majeſty's Navy and Ordnance, the Overplus of the Money and Stores, which were provided for the Building Seven and Twenty Ships of War. 7. An Act for enlarging the Time for Purchaſing certain Eſtates or Intereſt in ſeveral Annuities therein mentioned. 8. An Act for the better and more orderly Payment of the Lottery Tickets, now payable out of certain Additional Duties of Exciſe, and of other Annuities lately payable out of the Tonnage Duties. 9. An Act for Licenſing Hawkers and Pedlars, for a further Proviſion of Intereſt for the Tranſport Debt for the reducing of Ireland. 10. An Act for taking away half the Duties lately impoſed on Glaſs Wares, and the whole Duties lately laid on Stone and Earthen Wares, and Tobacco-Pipes; and for Granting (in lieu thereof) new Duties upon Whale Finns, and Scotch Linnen. 11. An Act for preventing Frauds and Abuſes in the Charging, Collecting, and Paying the Duties upon Marriages, Births, Burials, Batchelors and Widowers. 12. An Act for the better preventing the Embezlement of His Majeſty's Stores of War; and preventing Cheats, Frauds, and Abuſes, in Paying Seamens Wages. 13. An Act for the more effectual ſuppreſſing Blaſphemy and Prophaneneſs. 14. An Act to ſettle the Trade to Africa. 15. An Act for the better encouragement of the Royal Luſtring Company, and the more effectual preventing the Fraudulent Importation of Luſtrings and Alamodes. 16. An Act for the Increaſe and Preſervation of Timber, in the New Foreſt, in the County of Southampton. 17. An Act to ſtop the Coining of Half-pence and Farthings for One Year. 18. An Act for the Exporting Watches, and Sword Hilts, and other Manufactures of Silver. 19. An Act for ſettling and adjuſting the Proportions of Fine Silver and Silk, for the better making of Silver and Gold Thread, and to prevent the Abuſes of the Wyer-drawers. 20. An Act for raiſing the Militia for the Year One thouſand ſix hundred and ninety eight, although the Months Pay formerly advanced be not Repaid. 21. An Act for enlarging the Time for Regiſtring Ships, purſuant to the Act for preventing Frauds, and Regulating Abuſes in the Plantation Trade. 22. An Act for the Explanation and better Execution of former Acts, made againſt Tranſportation of Wooll, Fullers Earth and Scowring Clay. 23. An Act to Repeal the Act made the laſt Seſſion of Parliament, Entituled, An Act for Relief of Creditors, by making Compoſition with their Debtors, in caſe Two Thirds in Number and Value do agree. 24. An Act to confirm a Leaſe, Granted by the Lord Biſhop of Wincheſter, of a parcel of waſte Ground in Alverſtock, in the County of Southampton, for the erecting of a Water-work there, and for Improving the ſame. 25. An Act to enable Truſtees to make Leaſes and grant Copies, and receive the Rents and Profits of the Eſtates, late of Sir Edward Wyndham, Baronet, deceas'd, and Hopton Wyndham, Eſq; deceas'd; during the Minority of Sir William Wyndham, Baronet; for the Intent and Purpoſes therein mentioned. 26. An Act for ſecuring the Portions intended by Sir William Walter, Baronet, deceas'd, for his Children by the Lady Mary Walter, his Second Wife; and for preventing all Doubts which might ariſe upon the Conſtruction of the Articles and Will therein-mentioned. 27. An Act to enable John Hawkes, Gent. to ſell Lands in the County of Salop, for Payment of his Debts. 28. An Act for the better Supplying the Town of Newcaſtle upon Tyne with Freſh Water. 29. An Act for Veſting in Thomas Rogers, Gent. an abſolute Eſtate of Inheritance in Fee-Simple, in the Mannor of Weſt-Court Manſion-Houſe, Meſſuages, Lands and Hereditaments, in the County of Kent; and ſecuring to John Higgons, Gent. and Alice his Wife, and for Portions for Irene, Margaret, Mary, and Alice Cæſar, Monies in Lieu of their Claims thereunto. 30. An Act for Erecting Work Houſes, and Houſes of Correction, in the Town Kingſton upon Hull, for the Employment and Maintenance of the Poor there. 31. An Act for Sale of Three Houſes in Swan-Alley in Colemanſtreet, London, late of Joſeph Smith deceas'd, for Payment of his Debts, with which the ſaid Houſes are chargeable. 32. An Act for Relief of the Creditors of Edward Blackwell, Eſq; deceas'd. 33. An Act for Erecting Work-Houſes, and Houſes of Correction, in the Town of Shaftsbury; and for the better Employment and Maintenance of the Poor there. 34. An Act to enable John Jenkyn, Merchant, to ſell Part of his Eſtate for the Payment of his Debts. 35. An Act for Naturalizing Henry Reneu, and others. 36. An Act for giving leave to the Ship Maryland-Merchant of Briſtol, to Arrive and Import her Lading into this Kingdom. 37. An Act to enable Humphry Walrond, Gent. to Sell Part of his Eſtate, for the making Proviſion for his Eldeſt Son, and Elizabeth his Daughter, (who are Lunaticks); and Payment of his Debts, and Raiſing Portions for his other Children. 38. An Act for Veſting a Copperas-Work, late Part of the Eſtate of Robert Maſcal, Eſq; deceas'd, in Truſtees, to be ſold for Payment of Debts, and other Charges thereon. 39. An Act to confirm a Conveyance made by George Pitt, Eſq; and others, of the Mannor of Tarant, Preſton, and other Lands in the County of Dorſet, to John Pitt, Gent. and the Heirs Male of his Body. 40. An Act, that the Ships Panther, Glouceſter-Frigat, Scarborough and Antilope, (formerly taken as Prizes, and condemn'd) may have freedom of Trading as Engliſh-built Ships. 41. An Act for enabling Humphry Trafford, Eſq; to raiſe Four Thouſand Pounds upon his Eſtate, for Payment of Debts.

Among other Private Acts paſſed by the King, were, 1. An Act for enabling Symon Lord Biſhop of Ely, to Leaſe the Manor Houſe and Demeſne Lands of Downham, in the Iſle of Ely, and for Confirming a Leaſe lately made thereof. 2. An Act to Enable John Lord Biſhop of Chicheſter, to make Leaſes of certain Houſes and Grounds belonging to the Biſhoprick of Chicheſter, ſituate in Chancery-Lane, for a competent Number of Years. 3. An Act to annex the Rectory of Whitborne, in the County of Hereford, to the Biſhoprick of Hereford, for ever.

In the Appeals brought to the Houſe of Peers, See 1. The Caſe of the Dean and Chapter of Durham, and their Leſſee Appellants, againſt the Mayor and Burgeſſes of Newcaſtle; to be Heard at the Houſe of Lords, 7 May 1698. The Lords Confirm'd the Decree in Favour of the Town of Newcaſtle. 2. The Caſe of the London Society, for their Plantation in Ireland, againſt William Lord Biſhop of Derry; to be Heard in the Houſe of Lords, — May 1698. 3. To the Members of Both Houſes, The Humble Repreſentation of the Clergy, Petitioners for the Bill, for preventing of Vexatious Suits, and for Settling and Aſcertaining a certain ancient and accuſtomary Tythe in the County of Derby, of Lead Oar, in the Mines within that County.

42. An

1698. 42. An Act, that the Ships call'd the Ruby-Prize and Plimouth may have freedom of Trading as Engliſh-built Ships. 43. An Act to give leave to the Ship Sally-Roſe, (formerly taken as Prize) to arrive and import her Lading, and to Trade as an Engliſh-built Ship.

And afterwards His Majeſty made this Speech to Both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech. "I Cannot take leave of ſo good a Parliament, "without publickly acknowledging the Senſe "I have of the Great Things you have done for "My Safety and Honour, and for the Support "and Welfare of My People.

"Every one of your Seſſions hath made good "this Character. The Happy Uniting of Us in "an Aſſociation for our mutual Defence; The "Remedying the Corruption of the Coin, which "had been ſo long growing upon the Nati"on; The Reſtoring of Credit; The Giving "Supplies in ſuch a manner for carrying on the "War, as did by God's Bleſſing produce an Ho"nourable Peace; And after that, the making "ſuch Proviſions for Our Common Security, and "towards Satisfying the Debts Contracted in ſo "long a War, with as little Burden to the Kingdom "as is poſſible, are ſuch Things as will give a "laſting Reputation to this Parliament, and will "be a ſubject of Emulation to thoſe which ſhall "come after.

"Beſides all this, I think My Self Perſonally "oblig'd to return My Thanks to you, Gentle"men of the Houſe of Commons, for the Regard "you have had to My Honour, by the Eſtabliſhing "of My Revenue.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"There is nothing I value ſo much as the E"ſteem and Love of My People; And as for their "Sakes I avoided no Hazards during the War; ſo "My whole Study and Care ſhall be to Improve "and Continue to them the Advantages and Bleſ"ſings of Peace.

"And I earneſtly deſire you all, in your ſeve"ral Stations, to be Vigilant in preſerving Peace "and good Order, and in a due and regular Exe"cution of the Laws, eſpecially thoſe againſt "Prophaneneſs and Irreligion.

And then the Lord Chancellor, by His Majeſty's Command, Prorogued the Parliament until Tueſday the Second Day of Auguſt next.

Earl of Portland Ambaſſador to France. The Earl of Portland had made his Publick Entry into Paris, on Feb. 27. with ſuch extraordinary Splendour, as had never been ſeen at the Court of France, ſince the Duke of Buckingham's Embaſſy, when he came to demand in Marriage for King Charles the firſt, Mary Henrietta of France. His Excellency (I mean the Earl of Portland) accompanied by the Lords Cavendiſh, Haſtings, Paſton, Raby, and Woodſtock his Excellency's Son, Mr. Fielding, Col. Stanhope, Mr. Charles Boyle, Mr. Prior, Secretary to the Embaſſy, and ſeveral other Engliſh Gentlemen; and attended by a Gentleman of the Horſe, Twelve Pages, Fifty Six Footmen, Twelve Led Horſes, Four Coaches with Eight Horſes, and Two Chariots with Six, was received by the Duke of Boufflers, and conducted to the Hotel, reſerv'd in Paris, for the Entertainment of Foreign Ambaſſadors, through Multitudes of Spectators, who were aſtoniſhed at the Grandeur and Opulence of the Engliſh Nation. Two Days after, he was admitted to his firſt Publick Audience, which for a diſtinguiſhing Mark of Honour, he had in His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's Bed-Chamber, and even within the Rails round the Bed, where the King ſtood, with the Three young Princes his Grandſons, and the Count de Thoulouſe, the Duke d'Aumont, and the Mareſchal de Noailles. His Excellency having made his Speech in French, and deliver'd his Credentials, the King Anſwer'd him in very obliging Terms, both in Relation to His Maſter, and Himſelf; and then his Excellency preſented to the King the Engliſh Noblemen and Gentlemen of his Retinue; which being over, he had Audience of the Dauphin, and the reſt of the Royal Family.

Not only in imitation, but by expreſs Directions of the King of France, all that Court ſhew'd the Engliſh Ambaſſador moſt ſingular Marks of Honour and Reſpect. On the 3d of March (O. S.) he receiv'd a Viſit from the Prince of Conti; and the ſame Day paid one himſelf to the Duke of Maine, and the Count of Thoulouſe, who return'd it not many Days after. 'Tis obſervable, that in all the Viſits his Excellency made, he was attended by the ſame ſplendid and numerous Equipage which he had at his Publick Entry. And as the Magnificence of his Table was anſwerable to the Grandeur of his Attendance, his Excellency entertain'd daily at Dinner ſome Perſon or other of the firſt Rank.

On the 12th. of April (O. S.) his Excellency and ſeveral of the Noble Perſons who always accompanied him, were entertain'd at Dinner by the Duke of Orleans, at his Houſe at St. Cloud, and in the Afternoon, his Royal Highneſs carried them in his own Coaches to ſee the Gardens. A Week after he went to Verſailles, and ſtaid there Four Days, being lodg'd at the Hoſtel de Bouillon; The firſt Day he was Treated by the Mareſchal de Boufflers, who in the Afternoon went with his Excellency into the Gardens, and ſhew'd him the Water-works; The next Day he was invited to Dine with Monſieur de Livry, Maſter of the King's Houſhold, and after Dinner had a long Converſation with the King in the Gardens; the Fountains playing all that while. On the 21ſt of April he was entertained by the Duke de Beauvilliers, and in the Afternoon view'd the Houſe of Trianon, and the Park; and on the 22d return'd to Paris. During his Excellency's ſtay at Verſailles, there happen'd a Paſſage between Mr. Prior, the Secretary of the Embaſſy, and one of the French King's Officers, that deſerves to be related: As the latter with abundance of Civility, was leading Mr. Prior about the Apartments, among other Curioſities, he ſhew'd him thoſe fine Peices of Le Brun, which repreſent the King of France's Victories; and ask'd him, Whether King William's Actions were alſo to be ſeen in his Palace? No, Sir, replied Mr. Prior, The Monuments of my Maſter's Actions are to be ſeen every where, but in His own Houſe.

King James paſt His Time very indifferently all the while; for beſides the Honours which were done to the Ambaſſador of the Prince, who poſſeſſed his Abdicated Throne, and which could not but be a ſenſible Mortification to that unfortunate Monarch, he was inform'd that his Excellence inſiſted upon the Removing of him at a farther diſtance from the King of France's Preſence, promiſing in his Maſter's Name to give him and the Queen an Honourable Penſion, which would eaſe His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty from the great Charge He was at in Maintaining him and his Family, ever ſince They had taken Sanctuary in His Dominions. After the Concluſion of the late Treaty of Peace, where his Concerns were wholly overlook'd, King James ſeem'd to be abſolutely abandoned to the ſiniſter Influence of his Stars; and therefore concluding that Portland's Demand would be comply'd with, His Majeſty Retirement of K. James.

1698. jeſty was reſolv'd to retire to Avignon, and began already to inform Himſelf, if He could Live conveniently there. But he was agreeably ſurpriz'd, when He heard that the King of France would never give Ear to the Engliſh Ambaſſador's Propoſal. However, to ſhew in what entire Confidence and Amity He deſigned to Live with King William, His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty open'd to the Earl of Portland the ſubtle Project of the Diviſion of the Spaniſh Monarchy; which to make His Britannick Majeſty go into, without ſuſpecting any latent Subterfuge, the King of France, like a good Politician, endeavour'd to dazzle His Eyes by the extraordinary Reception He made to His Ambaſſador; and by the Marks of His Eſteem and Affection, which He gave Him by ſeveral Letters; which Count de Tallard confirm'd by Word of Mouth.

Earl of Mancheſter returns from his Embaſſy to Venice.

In this Interval, the Earl of Mancheſter being arrived at Paris, in his Return to England from his Embaſſy to Venice, he and the Earl of Portland went to St. Cloud on the 5th of May, to viſit the Duke of Orleans, and in the Evening to Verſailles, to wait on the Moſt Chriſtian King, and were received at both Places with great Civility and Reſpect. Four Days after, both their Excellencies had the Honour to Dine with the Dauphin at Meudon, and the next Day the Earl of Portland had his Publick Audience of Leave of the Royal Family; King William having nam'd the Earl of Jerſey to ſucced him, in the Quality of Ambaſſador Extraordinary to France. On the 15th of May his Excellency dined at Verſailles with the Mareſchal de Villeroy, who in the Afternoon conducted him to Marli, to ſee the Gardens and Water-Works: The next Day he went to Meudon, where he hunted and ſupp'd with the Dauphin, and on the 17th returned to Verſailles, where he had a Private Audience of the King. The following Days he continued to take his Leave of the Court, and on the 27th there being a Review of the Troops of the Houſhold in the Plain of Archers, where the King and the Dauphin, the Young Princes of France, and divers Perſons of Quality were preſent; his Excellency went thither alſo, but would perhaps have forborn coming, if he had known that King James and the Titular Prince of Wales had likewiſe been there. The Prince of Wales, by his Father's Directions, endeavoured to join Converſation with the Lord Woodſtock; but the Lord Portland, his Father, knowing the Young Prince's Deſign, order'd his Son to avoid him; as he did himſelf all thoſe that belong'd to the Court of St. Germains; though it was reported King James had cauſed it it to be inſinuated to his Excellency, that he never pretended to make his Lordſhip anſwerable for the Ill Uſage he receiv'd from Him he repreſented. At this Review King James himſelf did all he could to engage the Lord Cavendiſh, and the other Engliſh Noblemen to accoſt him, but all imitated the Earl of Portland, who a Week after went to Verſailles, and had a Private Audience of the King in His Cloſet, where his Excellency took his laſt Leave; as he did afterwards of the Dauphin, and of the Duke and Dutcheſs of Orleans at St. Cloud. The King ſent the Earl the uſual Preſent of His Picture ſet with Diamonds, but with this Difference, that the Stones were worth three Times as much as thoſe of other like-Gifts. Beſides this, His Moſt Chriſtian Majeſty preſented him with all the Stamps and Prints engraved at the Louvre, conſiſting in Twelve Large Folio's; in return of which the Ambaſſador made the King a Preſent of Nine very fine Engliſh Horſes. On the 8th of June his Excellency left Paris, and went to Chantilli, a Houſe belonging to the Prince of Conde, where he was entertain'd in a ſplendid manner till the 11th, when he took leave of his Highneſs, and proceeding on his Journey, in his Return to England, arrived at Kenſington on the 19th. Thus ended this Famous Embaſſy, which coſt King William Fourſcore Thouſand Pounds to little purpoſe: It having been wiſely obſerv'd, That no Ambaſſador was ever more honour'd, or leſs ſucceſsful, than the Earl of Portland; who could obtain nothing, either as to the Removal of King James, or in Favour of the Proteſtants of France, againſt whom the Perſecution, which in many Places had been interrupted during the War, began now to rage afreſh with redoubled Violence. As for the Earl himſelf, he was ſo far from getting any Thing by his Embaſſy, that on the contrary he found at his Return, that Mr. Keppel, who ſome Time before was created Earl of Albermarle, had ſo advantageouſly improved his Abſence, as to become entire Maſter of His Majeſty's Confidence. This New Earl, at the King's firſt coming over, was but Page to His Majeſty, till by his Artful Inſinuations, he was made Maſter of the Robes, in which Place he grew ſo far into His Majeſty's Favour, that the Earl of Portland did every Day loſe Ground in it. This Change did at firſt pleaſe the Engliſh and Dutch, the Earl of Albermarle having cunningly made ſeveral Powerful Friends in both Nations, who out of Envy to my Lord Portland, were glad to ſee another in his Place: However, though the firſt became now the Reigning Favourite, yet the latter did ever preſerve the Eſteem and Affection of King William, who ſtill employ'd him in the management of moſt Foreign Affairs, and in what related to Scotland. 1698.

Earl of Albemarle the New Favourite.

Count Tallard Embaſſador from France.

On the 19th of March, Count Tallard, the French Ambaſſador arriv'd in London, and on the 28th had a Private Audience of the King at Kenſington. The next Day the Baron of Simeoni, Captain of the Guards of his Electoral Highneſs of Bavaria, had his firſt Publick Audience; and the Count de Platten, Chamberlain to his Electoral Highneſs of Brunſwick, had the ſame Day his Audience of Leave of His Majeſty. On the 4th of April the King went to Newmarket, to take the Diverſions of Hunting and Horſe-racing; and the next Day the Univerſity of Cambridge paid their Duty to His Majeſty, upon Occaſion of His Arrival in their Neighbourhood; being introduc'd by the Duke of Somerſet, their Chancellor. The French Ambaſſador follow'd His Majeſty to this Place, and was not a little ſurprized to ſee the vaſt Concourſe of Nobility and Gentry, and the great Sums of Money that were either won or loſt there. On the 16th His Majeſty returned to Kenſington, and ten Days after, the Count de Bonde, Ambaſſador Extraordinary from Sweden, made his Publick Entry in Mourning, on the Occaſion of the Death of the late King of Sweden, and on the 29th had his firſt Publick Audience of the King at Windſor.

On the 16th of May the French Ambaſſador made his Publick Entry, with a fine, but ſmall Retinue, like one who came rather for Buſineſs than for Shew; and on the 19th he had his Publick Audience of His Majeſty at Windſor, where he was ſplendidly entertain'd at Dinner. Two Days after, the Earl of Mancheſter being returned from his Embaſſy at Venice, waited on His Majeſty at Kenſington, and was received with great Marks of Favour and Eſteem; and not long after admitted into His Majeſty's Privy-Council. On the 30th of May the Swediſh Ambaſſador return'd to the Sovereign the Garter and George of His Majeſty Charles XI. the King of Sweden, with the whole Habit, and other Enſigns of the Order, (wherewith he had been inveſted in 1669,) which was done in great Ceremony at Kenſington.

France

1698. France reap'd but ſmall Benefit from the Peace, as to her Commerce, which continued almoſt as dead as in time of War. 'Tis true, ſome Engliſh and Dutch came to Bourdeaux and Rouen, in order to take in Wine and Paper, and brought other Commodities to be ſold there, but the Tariff not being regulated between all the Parties, and the Treaty of Ryſwick mentioning only, That in relation to Holland it ſhould be put upon the ſame Foot, as it was agreed in 1664, which was not yet done; and in reſpect to England, that Commiſſioners appointed by both Kings ſhould meet in London, three Months after the Ratification, to determine all Differences, This, together with the Loſs of at leaſt 20 per Cent. by the Money, which the King of France to ſupply preſent Neceſſities, had raiſed to an extravagant Rate, oblig'd moſt of thoſe Ships to return home without ſelling or buying any thing. Thereupon the States-General ſent Deputies to the King of France, to demand the Regulation of the Tariff, purſuant to the late Treaty: But the Trade of Holland being far leſs advantageous to France than that of England, by reaſon the Dutch uſe to import more of their own Commodities into that Kingdom, than they export of the Growth of it from thence; and that, on the contrary, the Engliſh were us'd, before the War, to ſend vaſt Sums of Money yearly into France, not only for Wines, Paper, Stuffs, Linnen, Hats, and Silks, but alſo for abundance of unprofitable Bawbles, the Purchaſe of which could not be made with what they imported thither of the Growth and Manufacture of England: So the Court of France did at firſt reſolve to keep up the Tariff as high as poſſible with the Hollanders, while they deſign'd to lower it with the Engliſh. But Monſieur Philippeaux d'Herbeaut being ſent over hither as Commiſſary General from the moſt Chriſtian King, for regulating the Commerce between the Two Nations, he found inſuperable Difficulties in his Commiſſion, not only becauſe of the high Duties laid by the Parliament on all French Goods, and which were already appropriated to ſeveral uſes, but alſo becauſe the Engliſh had, by this time, learnt to make ſhift without the Commodities of the Product of France, ſupplying themſelves, for the moſt part, with Wine from Italy, Spain and Portugal; with Linnen from Holland and Sileſia; and with Paper, Stuffs, Hats and Silks, by the Manufactures of thoſe Goods ſet up in England by the Proteſtant French Refugees there.

Trade of France.

Honours and Preferments.

On May 4. His Majeſty had appointed the Earl of Jerſey to go as His Ambaſſador Extraordinary to the Court of France.

On May 7. His Majeſty, as a Mark of His Royal Favour, was pleaſed to confer upon John Rogers, Sen. of Wiſdom, in the County of Devon, Eſq; the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom.

The King fond of the Duke of Glouceſter.

Ever ſince the Death of the Queen, His Majeſty was more particularly fond of the Duke of Glouceſter, who was now entring on the Tenth Year of His Age, and had given ſuch Proofs of a forward Genius, that it was high time to take him out of the Hands of the Women; the King therefore apply'd himſelf to the forming of a Family and a Court for this Hopeful Young Prince; and to oblige his Affectionate Mother the Princeſs, was pleas'd on June 19, to appoint the Right Honourable John Earl of Marlborough to be Governour to his Highneſs, as a Mark of the good Opinion His Majeſty had for his Lordſhip's Zeal for his Service, and his Qualifications for an Employment of ſo great a Truſt; and the ſame Evening his Lordſhip was ſworn of the Privy-Council: The Biſhop of Saliſbury was appointed to be Preceptor to his Highneſs, having under him Mr. Willis, Chaplain to the King, and Mr. Prat, Chaplain to the Princeſs; which latter had taught him the firſt Rudiments of Learning, with Right Application, and great Succeſs. June 22. His Majeſty appointed Charles Lord Cornwallis to be Lord-Lieutenant and Cuſtos Rotulorum of the County of Suffolk. On July 7. the Inſtallation of the Duke of Newcaſtle Knight of the Garter, was performed at Windſor with great Solemnity: And on the 16th, His Majeſty declar'd in Council, That intending to go over to Holland for a ſhort time, he had appointed Thomas Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, John Lord Somers, Baron of Eveſham, Lord Chancellor of England; Thomas Earl of Pembroke, Lord Privy Seal; William Duke of Devonſhire, Lord Steward of His Majeſty's Houſhold; Charles Earl of Dorſet and Middleſex, John Earl of Marlborough, Governour to his Highneſs the Duke of Glouceſter; Henry Earl of Romney, Lord Warden of the Cinque-Ports; Edward Earl of Orford, firſt Commiſſioner of the Admiralty; and Charles Mountague, Eſq; firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, to be Lords Juſtices of England, for the Adminiſtration of the Government during His Majeſty's Abſence. About the ſame time His Majeſty granted the Honour and Dignity of a Baron of this Kingdom to Chriſtopher Vane of Rabie Caſtle, Eſq; by the Title of Lord Barnard, of Barnard Caſtle, in the County Palatine of Durham; and the Dignity of a Baronet upon Thomas Powell of Broadway, in the County of Carmarthen, Eſq; and upon Samuel Clark of Snailwell, in the County of Cambridge, Eſq; 1698.

Lords Juſtices.

The King goes to Holland.

On July 19. the King dined at Sittingborn, and lay that Night at Captain Ball's, near Margate, and the next Morning embark'd in the William and Mary Yatcht, under a Convoy commanded by Sir Cloudſly Shovel, and next Day late in the Evening landed at Orange Polder, lay that Night at Hounſlaer-dike, and went next Day to the Hague, where He aſſiſted at the Aſſembly of the States of Holland, and that of the States General, and gave Audience to ſeveral Publick Miniſters, particularly to the Envoy of Lorrain, who notified to His Majeſty the Marriage of the Duke his Maſter with Madamoiſelle, Daughter to the Duke of Orleans.

On Aug. 6. N. S. the King went to Loo, attended by the Earls of Eſſex, Portland and Selkirk, and ſeveral other Perſons of Quality; He had not been long there, before He was waited upon by the Count de Tallard, a cunning and vigilant Miniſter, who had Orders to ſolicite His Majeſty upon the Propoſal made by the King of France to the Earl of Portland, of coming to an Agreement with His Britannick Majeſty, concerning the Succeſſion of the Crown of Spain; which Overture King William had communicated to His Chancellor before He left England. The French Ambaſſador having preſs'd His Majeſty for an Anſwer, the Earl of Portland by His Majeſty's Order writ a Letter to Mr. Secretary Vernon, wherein it was mentioned, That Count Tallard having declar'd an Accommodation might be found out in relation to the Spaniſh Succeſſion, His Majeſty had ſounded France upon the Conditions; which were in ſubſtance, That the Electoral Prince of Bavaria ſhould have the Kingdom of Spain, the Indies, and the Low-Countries, and all that depended upon the Spaniſh Dominions, except Naples and Sicily, Sardinia, the Province of Guipuſcoa on this ſide of the Pyrenees, Fontarabia, and St. Sebaſtian, Final, and the Places in Tuſcany, of which Spain ſtood poſſeſſed; in conſideration of which, France was abſolutely to renounce the Right it pretended to the Succeſſion of Spain; and as for Milan, it Treaty of Partition.

1698.

it was to be given to the Arch-Duke Charles, the Emperor's Second Son.

King's Letter to the Lord Chancellor.

At the ſame time the King did Himſelf acquaint my Lord Somers, by Letter, That He had order'd Vernon not to communicate the Propoſitions made by Count Tallard, to any other beſides his Lordſhip, and to leave to his Lordſhip's Judgment to whom elſe he would think proper to impart them; to the end that His Majeſty might know his Lordſhip's Opinion upon ſo Important Affair, which required the greateſt Secrecy, and wherein no time was to be loſt, if it was fit this Negotiation ſhould be carried on. For that purpoſe, His Majeſty commanded my Lord Somers to ſend Him the full Powers under the Great Seal, with the Names in Blank to treat with Count Tallard; which His Majeſty believed might be done ſecretly, that none but his Lordſhip and Vernon, and thoſe to whom his Lordſhip ſhould have communicated it, might have knowledge of it; and ſo that the Clerks themſelves, who were to write the Warrant, and the Full Powers, might not know what it was. And moreover, to preſs the Neceſſity of this Treaty, His Majeſty acquainted His Chancellor, That, according to all Intelligence, the King of Spain could not outlive the Month of October, and that the leaſt Accident might carry him off before that time.

Mr. Vernon having ſent the Earl of Portland's Letter to my Lord Somers, who was then at Tunbridge, for the benefit of the Medicinal Waters of that Place, his Lordſhip immediately return'd the ſame Letter to Mr. Vernon, and deſir'd him to communicate the Contents of it to my Lord Orford, Mr. (Charles) Mountague, and the Duke of Shrewsbury, which his Lordſhip thought the beſt way of executing the King's Commands. At the ſame time letting them know, how ſtrictly His Majeſty required, that it ſhould remain an abſolute Secret. Which Caution made Mr. Vernon impart it to the Duke of Shrewsbury only, as he afterwards acquainted my Lord Somers.

Some time after, Mr. Mountague, and Mr. Secretary Vernon going down to Tunbridge, they and my Lord Somers debated this important Affair; and thereupon his Lordſhip writ a Letter to His Majeſty. However, the Negotiation was eagerly carried on, inſomuch that on the 29th of Auguſt (N. S.) ſeveral Days before His Majeſty had received the Lord Somers's Anſwer, a Treaty was concluded; whereby it was Agreed, "I.

Articles of the Treaty of Partition.

"That the Peace of Ryſwick ſhould be Confirm'd. " II. That in conſideration of the ill State of the " King of Spain's Health, and for preſerving the " Publick Peace, in caſe the ſaid Prince ſhould " die without Iſſue, the Kingdoms of Naples and " Sicily, with the Places then depending upon " the Spaniſh Monarchy, ſituated on the Coaſts " of Tuſcany, or the adjacent Iſlands, compre- " hended under the name of Santo Stephano, Por- " to Hercole, Orbitello, Telamore, Portolongo, Piom- " bino, the Marquiſate of Final, the Province of " Guipuſcoa, particularly the Towns of Fontara- " bia, and St. Sebaſtian, and eſpecially the Port " Paſſage, and likewiſe all Places on the French " ſide of the Pyrenees, or the other Mountains of " Navarra, Alava, or Biſcay, on the ſide of the " Province of Guipuſcoa, with all the Ships and " Gallies, and other Appurtenances belonging to " the ſaid Gallies, ſhould be given to the Dau- " phin in conſideration of his Right. III. That " the Crown of Spain, and the other Kingdoms " and Places both within and without Europe, " ſhould deſcend to the Electoral Prince of Ba- " varia, of whom his Father, the Elector, was " to be a Guardian and Adminiſtrator till he came " of Age. And IV. That the Dutchy of Milan " ſhould be reſerved and allotted to Arch-Duke " Charles, the Emperor's Second Son." This Treaty was to be communicated to the Emperor and the Elector of Bavaria, by the King of Great Britain, and the States General; and if they did not agree to it, then the proportion of the Party not agreeing, ſhould remain in Sequeſtration till things could be brought to an Accommodation: And in caſe the Electoral Prince of Bavaria ſhould come to inherit his Share, and yet die before his Father without Iſſue, the Elector was to ſucceed him in thoſe Dominions, and his Heir after him. Likewiſe the Dutchy of Milan, upon the Arch-Duke's Refuſal to accept it, was to be Sequeſtred to, and govern'd by the Prince of Vaudemont; and after him by his Son, Prince Charles of Vaudemont. Soon after the Concluſion of this Treaty, King William took a Review of the Dutch Troops near Arnheim, and then on Sept. 20. went to Zell, to give a Viſit to the Duke of that Name. Here His Majeſty was received with extraordinary Reſpects (as he had been at all the Places through which He paſt in His way thither) and waited upon by ſeveral Neighbouring Princes and Princeſſes, particularly the Electoreſs of Hanover, with the Electoral Prince, and the Princeſs his Siſter. Mr. Stepney, His Majeſty's Envoy Extraordinary to the Elector of Brandenburgh, did likewiſe attend the King with Letters from that Prince; and at his return to Loo, the Duke of Bavaria came to pay his Acknowledgments to His Majeſty, for the Care He had taken of his Electoral Highneſs's Intereſt in the late Treaty of Partition. 1698.

Intrigues of France in the Court of Spain.

Whilſt the King of France was Courting King William into the Treaty of Partition; the Marquis de Harcourt, the French Ambaſſador in Spain, was playing another Game at Madrid. The Queen of Spain, who was nearly related to the King of the Romans, and conſequently entirely in the Intereſt of the Houſe of Auſtria, foreſeeing the Deſigns of the King of France, had early concerted Meaſures with Count de Harrach, the Imperial Miniſter, to diſapoint them. She had not only got Her Creatures into his Catholick Majeſty's Council, but likewiſe procured the Vice-Royalty of Catalonia to be beſtow'd on the Prince of Heſſe d' Armſtadt, and the Government of Milan on Prince Vaudemont; both which Princes had upon many Occaſions ſignaliz'd their Affection and Zeal for the German Intereſt. Some ſay His Majeſty deſign'd to have made Prince Eugene Vice-Roy of Navarre, but was oppos'd in it: And that as to the Duke of Medina Celi, Vice-Roy of Naples, it was thought adviſable to continue him there, by Reaſon of his being one of the moſt conſiderable Grandees of Spain, and moſt belov'd of the People; and who conſequently might obſtruct the Deſigns of the German Party, if he came home diſguſted. This was the Poſture of the Spaniſh Affairs when the French Ambaſſador arriv'd at Madrid. His Inſtructions were, that if he ſaw no poſſibility, as in effect there ſeem'd at firſt to be none, to derive the Succeſſion of that Kingdom upon one of the Dauphin's Sons, he ſhould endeavour at leaſt, to hinder it from devolving on any of the Emperor's Children, on whom it was ſettled by the Will and Teſtament of Philip the IV. the preſent King of Spain's Father: And to add a powerful weight to the Ambaſſador's Inſtances, and at the ſame time, to awaken the Ambition of ſome Grandees, and fright the reſt into Compliance, his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty caus'd Sixty thouſand of his beſt Men to file off towards the Frontiers of Catalonia and Navarre; and ſent a conſiderable Number of His Ships of War and Gallies into ſeveral Ports of Spain. The Marquis followed His Inſtructions with great Addreſs and Application. He told thoſe whom he found inclined to act in concert with him in ſo Important an Affair, That Philip IV. had exerted 1698. erted His Power too far, in diſpoſing of His Crown againſt the Laws of Nature, and the Conſtitution of the Realm; That the Succeſſion did lawfully belong to his Daughter's Children, and not to his Relations Four Degrees remov'd: That the Dauphin, Son to Maria Thereſa, the preſent King of Spain's Siſter, had Three Sons; And if the Spaniards would fix their Eyes upon the Second of them, the Duke of Anjou, to be their King, he being ſtill as pliable as Wax, they might eaſily mould him to the Cuſtoms and Manners of their Country: That if they were averſe to this Overture, the Electoral Prince of Bavaria, being Grandſon to a Daughter of Spain, the King of France would rather approve of him to Succeed in the Spaniſh Monarchy, than any of the Emperor's Children; unleſs as the Poles had often done, to cut off the Pretenſions of Foreign Princes, they would chuſe a Sovereign among themſelves, in which the King of France would protect them; ſince He never intended to unite Spain to His own Kingdom, but only to keep it from falling into the hands of the Houſe of Auſtria, who was already grown too Powerful by her late Conqueſts in Hungary. The Queen of Spain having a watchful Eye upon the French Ambaſſador, who made it his Buſineſs to thwart Her Deſigns in favour of the Emperor, did ſoon diſcover his Practices. And therefore under pretence that the Air of Madrid was prejudicial to Her Husband's Health, She carried Him to Toledo, without allowing any Foreign Ambaſſador to follow Him thither. The Marquis d' Harcourt did quickly penetrate into the Deſign of the Queen's Journey, and judg'd very rightly, that being ſole Miſtreſs of the King, She might eaſily prevail with Him to Ratify King Philip IV's Will. He was confirm'd in this Apprehenſion by Count d' Harrach's being no more to be ſeen at Madrid; and ſuppoſing he was gone to Toledo, he went immediately thither himſelf, under pretence of a feign'd Memorial, which, he gave out, he had receiv'd from his Maſter, with poſitive Orders not to communicate it to any beſides His Catholick Majeſty. The Queen was extreamly ſurpriz'd at the unexpected Arrival of the French Ambaſſador; and caus'd Her Husband to acquaint him, That he had left the Cardinal of Corduba (he was one of the Queen's Creatures) at Madrid, to take Care of Foreign Affairs during His Abſence, to whom he might have communicated his Memorial; and that He only came there to recover His Health, and not to trouble himſelf with Buſineſs. This pretended Memorial was, it ſeems, to offer to the King of Spain his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's Aſſiſtance to raiſe the Siege of Ceuta, which the Queen was too wiſe to let Her Husband Accept; ſince by that means the French would have got what ſhe was endeavouring to prevent; I mean, a Footing and Intereſt in Spain. The Marquis d' Harcourt, after this unſucceſsful Journey, bethought himſelf of another Stratagem, and being return'd to Madrid, did ſo powerfully work on the Ambition of Cardinal Portocarero, that he engag'd him in the Intereſt of France.

While theſe Things paſt in the South Parts of Europe, the French were not leſs buſy to ſtrengthen themſelves towards the North, by an Alliance with the Crown of Sweden, which at length was concluded at Stockholm, on the 9th of July; the main Articles of which were, Treaty between France and Sweden. I. That the ancient Alliance was renew'd between the Kings of France and Sweden; their Heirs and Succeſſors.

II. That the Aim and Intention of this Treaty, was to preſerve and ſecure the common Peace, by ſuch means as ſhould be judg'd moſt proper and convenient. 1698.

III. That if it ſhould be diſturb'd by any Breach and Hoſtilities, the Two Kings would make it Their Buſineſs to Repair the Wrongs in an Amicable way.

IV. That if Their Endeavours prov'd Ineffectual, They would jointly conſider of ways to defend the Rights of the Country injur'd.

V. That in caſe any Prince or State would enter into this Treaty within a Year, They ſhould be admitted by the Conſent of Both Kings.

VI. That neither the One nor the Other, ſhould make Peace or Truce without comprehending the Other therein.

VII. That the Articles of the Treaties formerly concluded by either of the Two, with other Kings, Princes, or States, ſhould remain in full Force and Vigor, ſo far as they ſhould not be contrary to this.

VIII. That the Freedom of Commerce between the Subjects of the Two Kings, ſhould be preſerved as formerly.

IX. In purſuance of which, all Ports, Cities, and Provinces, ſhould be open to the Subjects of both Crowns, according as the Laws and Cuſtoms ſhould permit, both to Sell their Commodities in theſe Places, and Buy others.

X. And that this particular Treaty ſhould continue Ten Years, with liberty to prolong this Term, if it were judg'd convenient by the Two Kings; who by Conſent ſhould have a watchful Eye upon the Means to preſerve the Peace againſt the Danger that threaten'd it.

It was Comical to hear the French Miniſters in Foreign Courts talk of their Maſter's Endeavours to preſerve the Tranquility of Europe, when he ſeem'd the moſt forward to diſturb it, upon the firſt News of the King of Spain's Death, which was hourly expected at the Court of France. For to ſay nothing of the Motions of his Land and Naval Forces, which I have already hinted, His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty caus'd a great Camp to be made at Compeigne, the pretence of which, was to inſtruct the Duke of Burgundy in the Art of War; but which gave no ſmall Umbrage to the Neighbouring Princes and States, who look'd upon it as deſigned to make a ſudden Irruption into the Spaniſh Netherlands. However, the unexpected Recovery of the King of Spain's Health, as it diſappointed the Hopes of the one, ſo it diſpell'd the Fears of the reſt, at leaſt for this Year.

King William's Journey to Zell, gave the Court of France as much Uneaſineſs, as France gave the Allies, by the Camp at Compeigne; tho' 'tis moſt certain that his Britannick Majeſty had nothing in View, but to cement the Union of the Princes of Germany, by a Match between the King of the Romans, and the Princeſs of Hannover, which was now agreed on, and ſoon after Compleated; and by removing the Apprehenſions ſome Members of the Empire were under, of the growing Power of the Emperor; which His Britannick Majeſty did effectually in concert with the States, by putting a ſtop to the Hungarian War, which had continu'd for above Fifteen Years. The Armies on both ſides were indeed conſiderable in Number and Strength this Summer; but yet there ſeem'd no great Diſpoſition in either for Action, but rather an Inclination in the contending Parties, to ſet up a Treaty under the Mediation of the Lord Paget the Engliſh, and Mr. Collier's the Dutch Ambaſſador, who towards the middle of Auguſt arriv'd in the Turkiſh Camp near Belgrade; and by their good Offices got the Place to hold the Conferences to be between Peter Waradin and Salankemen; the Emperor's and Confederate Miniſters being to reſide at Carlowitz; Treaty between the Ottoman Port and the Empire.

the

1698. the Sultan's at Salankemen; and the Mediators between the two Places. It was the 7th of November when the latter delivered to the Turkiſh Plenipotentiaries the Preliminary Articles, which were in ſubſtance, That each Party reſpectively ſhould reſtore what he poſſeſs'd: And the Five following Days were ſpent in preparing Matter upon which they were to enter in Conference. On the 13th, the Imperial and Turkiſh Plenipotentiaries cauſ'd ſeveral fair Tents to be ſet up on the ſides of the Houſe appointed for the Conferences. And by Nine in the Morning, the firſt arriv'd at the Mediator's Lodgings, whither the Turkiſh alſo repair'd about the ſame time; and from thence went together to the Houſe of the Conference. Here after mutual Civilities, they took their Places in the midſt of the Tent, which had Four Doors, Two whereof being oppoſite, to one another, ſerv'd for the Entrance of the Mediators; and the other Two for the Imperial and Turkiſh Plenipotentiaries. The Count of Ottinghen, one of the Emperor's Ambaſſadors, had the Right of the former, and the Effendi, or Chancellor of the Ottoman Port, of the latter; the Mediators Secretaries, and thoſe of the Imperial Embaſſy, were placed behind; and the Turkiſh Secretary ſat down before upon the Floor. The Conference was open'd with the Pronunciation of theſe Words, God Grant an Happy Peace: And laſted from half an Hour after Ten, till Three in the Afternoon, when the Mediators and Plenipotentiaries went out in the ſame Order as they Enter'd. The Conferences were renew'd in the ſame manner the three ſucceeding Days, with good ſucceſs; but ſome Debates ariſing about the giving up of Teckly, and the Holy Sepulchre, the diſmantling of Caminiec, and the ſurrendring of another Place upon the Black-Sea; beſides the quitting of Azoph to the Muſcovites; and chiefly about the regulation of Limits between the two Empires, and the Venetian and Turkiſh Territories; the Plenipotentiaries ſent Expreſſes to their reſpective Maſters, which waſted a great deal of time: However, at length the Imperialiſts and Poles concluded their Part of the Treaty on the 26th of January, 1699. and perhaps would have done it ſooner, but in a ſort of Compliance to the Venetians, who did not ſign theirs till the middle of the next Month. As for the Articles between the Czar of Muſcovy and the Sultan, they contained only a Truce for two Years, and ſo were ſoon agreed upon and ſign'd on the 25th of December, 1698. By this Peace the Emperor preſerv'd his late Acquiſitions, and vaſtly enlarg'd his Territories; the Poles had the Important Place of Caminieck reſtored to them, in its preſent State, with other Advantages: The Muſcovites were Gainers by the keeping of Azoph; and though the Venetians ſeem'd to have far'd hardeſt in this Negotiation, as is uſual with thoſe who make their Terms laſt, yet they had all the Morea, and ſeveral Fortreſſes in Dalmatia yielded up to them: So that upon a right Computation it will appear, that the Turks loſt the beſt half of their Dominions in Europe. By this time the New King of Poland having brought the Cardinal Primate, who had all along ſtickled for the Prince of Conti, to acknowledge His Majeſty's Title, and compos'd the Troubles of Lithuania, an Univerſal Peace ſeem'd now to be ſettled throughout Chriſtendom.

King returns from Holland. On Thurſday, Dec. 1. the King ſet ſail from the Coaſt of Holland, in the William and Mary Yatcht, under a Convoy commanded by Sir Cloudſly Shovel, and landed at Margate, Dec. 3. He lay that Night at Canterbury, and came the next Evening to Kenſington. After ſeveral ſhort Prorogations to wait His Majeſty's Return, the Parliament met at Weſtminſter on Tueſday, Dec. 6. and His Majeſty coming to the Houſe of Peers with uſual Solemnity, ſent for the Commons, to whom the Lord Chancellor ſignified His Majeſty's Pleaſure, that they ſhould proceed to the Choice of a Speaker, and preſent him on Friday next; the Commons made choice of a very Worthy Perſon, Sir Thomas Littleton, Bart. who being preſented on Dec. 9. was graciouſly approv'd by His Majeſty, who then made this Speech to Both Houſes. 1698. New Parliament meets.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Have no doubt but you are met together with Hearts fully diſpoſed to do what is neceſſary for the Safety, Honour and Happineſs of the Kingdom; and that is all I have to ask of you. King's Speech.

"In order to this, two Things ſeem principally to require your Conſideration.

"The One is, What Strength ought to be maintained at Sea, and what Force kept up at Land for this Year. All I ſhall obſerve to you upon this Head is, That the Flouriſhing of Trade, the Supporting of Credit, and the Quiet of Peoples Minds at home, will depend upon the Opinion they have of their Security; and to preſerve to England the Weight and Influence it has at preſent on the Councils and Affairs abroad, it will be requiſite Europe ſhould ſee you will not be wanting to your ſelves.

"The Second Thing I ſhall mention to you, as of great Conſequence, is the making ſome further Progreſs towards diſcharging the Debts which the Nation has contracted by reaſon of the long and expenſive War. In this the Publick Intereſt as well as Juſtice is concerned: And I think an Engliſh Parliament can never make ſuch a Miſtake, as not to hold ſacred all Parliamentary Engagements.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

"I do earneſtly recommend theſe Things to you, that you may provide ſuch Supplies as you ſhall judge neceſſary for theſe ſeveral Occaſions.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I think it would be happy if ſome effectual Expedient could be found for employing the Poor, which might tend to the great Increaſe of our Manufactures, as well as remove a Heavy Burthen from the People. I hope alſo you will employ your Thoughts about ſome good Bills for the Advancement of Trade, and for the further diſcouraging of Vice and Prophaneneſs. The Things I have mentioned to you being of Common Concern.

It appear'd by this Speech, that His Majeſty was very deſirous to have a good Body of Land-Forces kept on foot, as well as a good Navy maintain'd at Sea; being apprehenſive that if England was entirely diſarmed, it would be too great a Temptation to the Ambition of France, to break through all Treaties and Engagements, in order to invade the Monarchy of Spain. Had the late Partition Treaty been communicated to the Commons, they would perhaps at that time have approv'd of it, or at leaſt have been ſo far under the ſame Apprehenſions with His Majeſty, as to ſee the neceſſity of keeping and awing France within the Bounds ſet Her by the Peace of Ryſwick. But the French King having now evacuated moſt of the Towns He was to ſurrender, the Accounts from Madrid giving great Hopes of the King of Spain's Recovery, and all Things having a Fair Aſpect Abroad, the Commons fell in with the Popular Notion, That a Standing Army in Time of Peace was uſeleſs and burthenſome, would The King deſirous of Forces by Land and Sea.

1698. would be an Ill Example to Poſterity, and might encourage a bad Prince to encroach upon the Liberties of the Subject. This Cry was artfully improved by thoſe Members who were diſaffected to King William, and was carried on by ſome of the greateſt Inſtruments of the Revolution, who having, contrary to their Expectations, got nothing from the Court, were now in Anger to turn againſt it; that they might hereafter be bought off, when they could not be before rewarded. Under this Diſpoſition of the Houſe of Commons when they came to a Conſideration of His Majeſty's Speech, they Re- The Commons for Disbanding. ſolved, That all the Land Forces of England, in Engliſh Pay, exceeding Seven Thouſand Men (and thoſe conſiſting of His Majeſty's Natural Born Subjects) be forthwith Paid and Diſbanded. And that all the Forces in Ireland, exceeding Twelve Thouſand Men (and thoſe His Majeſty's Natural Born Subjects, to be kept and maintain'd by the Kingdom of Ireland) be likewiſe forthwith diſbanded. And they ordered a Bill to be brought in upon the ſaid Reſolutions, which was eagerly puſh'd on, and ſoon brought to perfection, becauſe the Good and the Ill Deſigns concentred in it.

Theſe Proceedings made the King very uneaſy; and the more ſo, becauſe His Dutch Regiment of Guards, who had ſo long ſerv'd Him, was by this Bill to be torn away from Him, and to be ſent out of the Kingdom. However, His Majeſty like a Wiſe and Good Prince, never oppoſing His own Will to what ſeem'd to be the Voice and Judgment of His People, choſe rather to compliment the Commons, than to contend with them. So on Wedneſday, Feb. 1. the King came to the Parliament, and gave the Royal Aſſent to the ſeveral Bills ready for Him.

Bills paſſed. 1. An Act for granting an Aid to His Majeſty for Diſbanding the Army, and other Neceſſary Occaſions. 2. An Act to prevent the Making or Selling of Buttons made of Cloth, Serge, Drugget, or other Stuff. 3. An Act to prohibit the Exportation of any Corn, Malt, Meal, Flower, Bread, Biſcuit, or Starch, for one Year, from the 10th of February, 1698. 4. An Act for the more eaſy and certain Payment of the Debts of Edward Earl of Darentwater, by Sale of Woods and Timber, and for enabling him to raiſe Money for Diſcharge of Incumbrances upon Part of his Eſtate. And three other Private Acts for Naturalizing Elizabeth Farewell, Nicholas Lepall, and Bartholomew Ogilvy.

After which His Majeſty made a Kind and Wiſe Speech, to ſhew His Reaſons to paſs the Diſbanding Bill, and yet to expoſtulate a little upon the Hardſhip of it.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech. "I Came to Paſs the Bill for Diſbanding the "Army, as ſoon as I underſtood it was ready for Me: Though in Our preſent Circumſtances there appears great hazard in breaking "ſuch a Number of the Troops: And though "I might think Myſelf unkindly uſed, that thoſe "Guards who came over with Me to your Aſſiſtance, and have conſtantly attended Me in all "the Actions wherein I have been engaged, "ſhould be removed from Me; yet it is My fixt "Opinion, That nothing can be ſo fatal to Us, "as that any Diſtruſt or Jealouſie ſhould ariſe between Me and My People, which I muſt own "would have been very unexpected, after what "I have Undertaken, Ventured, and Acted for "the Reſtoring and Securing of their Liberties.

"I have thus plainly told you the only Reaſon 1698. "which has induced Me to Paſs this Bill: And "now I think My ſelf oblig'd, in diſcharge of the "Truſt repoſed in Me, and for My Own Juſtification, that no Ill Conſequences may lye at "My Door, to tell you as plainly My Judgment, that the Nation is left too much expoſed.

"It is therefore incumbent on you to take this "Matter into your ſerious Conſideration, and "effectually to provide ſuch a Strength as is neceſſary for the Safety of the Kingdom, and "the Preſervation of the Peace which God hath "given Us.

The Commons were ſo well pleas'd with this Gracious Complaiſance of the King, that they immediately reſolved, That an Humble Addreſs be preſented to the King, to give His Majeſty Thanks for His Moſt Gracious Speech to Both Houſes of Parliament; with the Aſſurances of this Houſe, That they will ſtand by, and aſſiſt His Majeſty in the Support of Him and His Government, againſt all Enemies whatſoever. And they accordingly put their Reſolution into this Form of Addreſs.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

"We Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal Commons Addreſs of Thanks. "Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Aſſembled, being highly ſenſible of the Difficulties "Your Majeſty has undertaken, the Labours "You have ſuſtained, and the Hazards You have "run, in Reſcuing us from Popery and Arbitrary Power, Reſtoring our Liberties, and Giving "Peace and Quiet to all Chriſtendom; beg "leave to return our moſt hearty Thanks for "Your moſt Gracious Speech: In which You "expreſs ſo great a Regard for the Good Will "and Affections of Your People, and have given "ſo undeniable a Proof of Your Readineſs to "Comply with the Deſires of Your Parliament: And as Your Majeſty has ſhewn a "moſt Tender and Fatherly Concern for the "Security and Safety of Your People; ſo "give us leave to aſſure Your Majeſty, That "You ſhall never have Reaſon to think the "Commons are Undutiful or Unkind to Your "Majeſty; but that We will upon all Occaſions "Stand by, and Aſſiſt Your Majeſty in the Preſervation of Your Sacred Perſon, and Support "of Your Government againſt all Your Enemies "whatſoever.

This Addreſs being Preſented by the whole Houſe, had the Honour to be thus Anſwered by the King.

Gentlemen,

I take this Addreſs very kindly: I am fully Satisfied of your Duty and Affection to Me, and have no doubt but you will always Act in the manner you have expreſs'd on this Occaſion.

The Lords had made an Addreſs on Jan. 3. Lords Addreſs. wherein they repreſent their being highly ſenſible of His Majeſty's great Care and Goodneſs towards His People, expreſs'd upon ſo many Occaſions, and particularly in His Speech to Both Houſes, at the opening of this Parliament; begg'd leave, by way of Addreſs, humbly to aſſure his Majeſty, that as they ſhould always retain a lively Impreſſion of thoſe great and continued Obligations, which His Majeſty had laid upon this Nation to all Poſterity; ſo it ſhould be, upon every Occaſion, the perpetual Care and Study of that Houſe, with the moſt Zealous Duty, and the moſt Grateful Affections imaginable, to make His Majeſty all ſuitable Returns within their Power. And at this Time 1698. Time particularly, they further aſſur'd His Majeſty, That they ſhould not fail to uſe their moſt diligent Endeavours, for the attaining of thoſe great and good Ends which His Majeſty had been pleaſed to recommend to His Parliament. The King told the Lords, " That He took their Addreſs very kindly, and " gave them His hearty Thanks; and that they " might always depend upon His Kindneſs, as " He did on this Aſſurance of theirs to Him, and " their Zeal for the Publick Good. And now " upon His Majeſty's Signing the Act for the " Disbanding the Army, the Lords preſented " their moſt hearty Thanks to His Majeſty for it, " and for the Gracious Expreſſions in His Speech; " That it was His Majeſty's fix'd Opinion, that nothing could be ſo fatal to them, as that any Diſtruſt or Jealouſie ſhould ariſe between His Majeſty and His People. As likewiſe for His great Care and " Concern for the Safety of the Kingdom upon " all Occaſions; aſſuring His Majeſty, that at " all Times, for the Safety of the Kingdom, and " the Preſervation of the Peace which God had " given them, they would Aſſiſt and Defend His " Majeſty againſt all His Enemies, both at Home " and Abroad.

King Diſbands the Army.

The King Thank'd the Lords for their Addreſs; and finding that Both Houſes concurr'd in the ſame Opinion, as to the Disbanding of the Army, His Majeſty gave effectual Orders for reducing it according to the late Act, to the Number of Seven Thouſand Men, to be Maintain'd in England, under the Name of Guards and Garriſons: But by reaſon that Calvary is more ſerviceble upon any ſudden Exigency, than Infantry, His Majeſty took Care to preſerve more Regiments of the firſt than of the laſt: I mean, in reſpect to the uſual Proportion which is obſerved between the Number of the Horſe and Foot of an Army.

And ſends away His Dutch Guards.

This great Reform coſt the King many a heavy and melancholy Thought: But what touch'd His Majeſty to the very Quick, was the Neceſſity He was under, of ſending away His Dutch Guards: A Regiment, who had faithfully attended His Perſon from His Cradle; follow'd His Fortune every where; and to whom, beſides innumerable other Signal Services, He ow'd His Victory at the Famous Battle of the Boyne. With theſe His Majeſty had the utmoſt, and indeed, the juſteſt Regret to part: And therefore upon the 18th of March, He ſent a Meſſage by the Lord Ranelaugh to the Commons, not only Sign'd by His Majeſty, but all of His own Hand-Writing.

William R.

But firſt Expoſtulates with the Commons.

" His Majeſty is pleaſed to let the Houſe know, " that the Neceſſary Preparations are made for " Tranſporting the Guards who came with Him " into England; and that He intends to ſend them " away immediately, unleſs out of Conſideration " to Him, the Houſe be diſpoſed to find a " way for continuing them longer in His Ser" vice, which His Majeſty would take very " kindly.

Upon Reading this Meſſage, the Queſtion was put, That a Day be appointed to conſider of His Majeſty's ſaid Meſſage. But it was carried in the Negative, and Reſolved, That a Committee be appointed to draw up an Humble Addreſs to be Preſented to His Majeſty, repreſenting the Reaſons why the Houſe cannot comply with the Purport of His Majeſty's Meſſage this Day communicated to the Houſe. And this Addreſs was accordingly prepared, and delivered on March 24.

1698. Commons Anſwer.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

" We Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal " Subjects, the Commons in this preſent Parliament " Aſſembled, do, with unfeigned Zeal to Your " Majeſty's Perſon and Government, (which God " long preſerve) moſt humbly Repreſent to Your " Majeſty,

" That the paſſing the late Act for Disbanding " the Army, gave great Satisfaction to Your Subjects; and the Readineſs Your Majeſty has expreſſed by Your Meſſage to comply with the " punctual Execution thereof, will prevent all Occaſions of Diſtruſt or Jealouſie between Your " Majeſty and Your People.

" It is, Sir, to Your Loyal Commons an unſpeakable Grief, that Your Majeſty ſhould be " adviſed to propoſe any Thing in Your Meſſage, " to which they cannot conſent, with due Regard " to that Conſtitution Your Majeſty came over to " reſtore, and have ſo often expos'd Your Royal " Perſon to preſerve, and did in Your Gracious " Declaration promiſe, that all thoſe Foreign " Forces which came over with You, ſhould be " ſent back.

" In Duty therefore to Your Majeſty, and to " diſcharge the Truſt repoſed in Us, we crave " leave to lay before You; That nothing conduceth more to the Happineſs and Welfare of this " Kingdom, than an entire Confidence between " Your Majeſty and Your People; which can no " way be ſo firmly eſtabliſhed, as by intruſting " Your Sacred Perſon with your own Subjects, who " have ſo eminently ſignalized themſelves on all " Occaſions, during the late long and expenſive " War.

The King could not be pleaſed with this Addreſs, which was a Denial of what He Himſelf, and moſt Part of the World, did believe to be a Reaſonable and Modeſt Requeſt of a King to His People. However, to diſappoint ſome Enemies, and if poſſible, to reconcile others, His Majeſty gave this Gracious Anſwer.

Gentlemen,

The King wiſely yields.

" I Came hither to reſtore the Ancient Conſtitution of this Government. I have had " all poſſible Regard to it ſince my Coming, and " I am reſolved through the Courſe of My Reign, " to endeavour to preſerve it entire in all the Parts " of it.

" I have a full Confidence in the Affections of " My People, and I am well aſſured, they have " the ſame in Me; and I will never give them " juſt Cauſe to alter this Opinion.

" As to my Subjects who ſerved during the " War, I am an Eye-witneſs of their Bravery, " and of their Zeal for My Perſon and Govern" ment; and I have not been wanting to expreſs " My Senſe of this to My Parliament, as well as " upon other Occaſions.

" I have all the Reaſon to truſt and to rely " upon them, that a Prince can have; and I am " ſatisfied, there is not one Perſon among them " capable of entertaining a Thought, that what " was propoſed in My Meſſage, proceeded from " any Diſtruſt of them.

" It ſhall be My Study to the utmoſt of My " Power, to perform the Part of a Juſt and a " Good King: And as I will ever be ſtrictly and " nicely careful of Obſerving My Promiſes to My " Subjects, ſo I will not doubt of their Tender " Regards to Me.

The People pleaſed.

This Anſwer, though it could not but pleaſe, yet it would not move the Commons from their Reſolutions; ſo that the Dutch Guards were ſoon after Shipp'd off for Holland: Which, though it ſeem'd 1698. ſeem'd to weaken His Majeſty in His Military Defence and Safety, yet it ſtrengthened His Intereſt in the Hearts of all good Subjects, who ſaw now in an extraordinary Inſtance, that the King could deny Himſelf any Thing to oblige His People. On the ſame Day, March the 24th the King came to the Houſe of Peers, and paſs'd theſe ſeveral Bills. 1. An Act to prohibit the exceſſive Diſtilling of Spirits and Low Wines from Corn; and againſt the Exporting of Beer and Ale; and to prevent Frauds in Diſtillers. 2. An Act to enlarge the Trade to Ruſſia. 3. An Act for preventing irregular Proceedings of Sheriffs and other Officers, in making the Returns of Members choſen to ſerve in Parliament. 4. An Act for the clearing, repairing, preſerving, and maintaining the Haven and Piers of Great Yarmouth in the County of Norfolk. 5. An Act for making and keeping the River Tone Navigable, from Bridgwater to Taunton, in the County of Somerſet. 6. An Act for making the Ships Margaret and Friendſhip of Briſtol, to Trade as Free Ships. 7. An Act for the Relief of the Creditors of Sir Robert Vyner, Knight and Baronet, deceas'd. 8. An Act for enabling George Penn, Eſq; to ſell Lands for the Payment of his Debts, and other Purpoſes therein-mentioned. 9. An Act for the Ship Charles, Fly-Boat of Exeter, to Trade as a Free Ship. And ſeveral other private diſtinct Acts, for the Naturalizing of James St. Pierre, John Denny, Remond Hensberg, Charles de Sibourg, Francis St. George, William Lloyd, Cornelius de Wit, Godfrey Lloyd, John Meoles, Theophilus Rabemiers, and many others.

Acts paſſed.

One of the Conſequences of Disbanding the Army, was a more viſible Concourſe of the Jacobites and Papiſts about the Town and the Court, in ſo bold and inſolent a manner, that the Commons took notice of it, and upon that Occaſion preſented this Addreſs to the King, on February the 21ſt.

Addreſs againſt Papiſts and Jacobites.

"We your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal "Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Aſſembled, having obſerv'd the great Concourſe to "this City, of Papiſts and other diſaffected Perſons, who have not own'd Your Majeſty to be "Lawful and Rightful King of theſe Realms; "and the Boldneſs they aſſume from your Majeſty's unexampled Clemency, not only to keep "Horſes and Arms contrary to Law, but alſo to "frequent all publick Places of Reſort near Your "Two Houſes of Parliament, and even to approach Your Royal Palaces, whereby they may "have Opportunities to perpetrate any Wicked "Attempt againſt Your Royal Perſon; on the "Safety and Preſervation whereof, our Religion "and Liberties, and the Peace and Welfare not "only of theſe Kingdoms, but of all Europe, do "in very great meaſure depend.

"And having alſo conſidered the many Plots "and Conſpiracies againſt Your Majeſty's Perſon and Government, but eſpecially the late "Horrid intended Aſſaſſination, contrived and "carried on not only by Papiſts, (whoſe Religion "and Intereſt might lead them to it) but even "by ſuch who at their Death (to the great Scandal of our Religion) profeſſed and owned "themſelves to be Members of the Church of "England; which chiefly, under God, owes its "Preſervation and Defence to Your Majeſty; "and whoſe Doctrines are directly oppoſite to "all ſuch Inhuman and Treaſonable Practices.

"And having alſo certain Information, That "great Numbers of Popiſh Prieſts and Jeſuits, "within this City and Parts adjacent, intrude "themſelves into the Preſence of Sick and Dying Perſons, with deſign to prevail upon them "in their Weakneſs, to be reconciled to the "Church of Rome; and daily endeavour to pervert and ſeduce from their Allegiance, Your "Majeſty's good Subjects, impoiſoning them "with their Wicked and Damnable Doctrines "and Principles: And that they have imported "great Quantities of Popiſh Books, and keep "Schools to Breed up, and Inſtruct Children in "the Romiſh Superſtition and Idolatry. 1698.

"We therefore hold our ſelves obliged, for "quieting the Minds of Your Good Subjects, "and in Duty to Your Majeſty, humbly to beſeech Your Majeſty, That You will be Graciouſly pleaſed (in order to ſuppreſs ſuch Practices of the reſtleſs and notorious Enemies of "Your Government) to iſſue out Your Royal "Proclamation, for Removing all Papiſts, and "others who diſown Your Majeſty's Government, from the City of London, and Parts adjacent, according to the Laws; and that the "Laws may be put in Execution againſt them in "ſuch manner, that their wicked Deſigns may "be effectually diſappointed.

To this Addreſs His Majeſty made Anſwer; That he would take care that the Laws ſhould be put in Execution, according to their Deſire. In order to which, His Majeſty cauſed His Royal Proclamation to be publiſhed on the 2d of March. A little before, the Old Eaſt-India Company had preſented a Petition to the Commons, praying "That their Caſe might be taken into Conſideration; and that the Houſe would make ſome "Proviſion, that their Corporation might ſubſiſt "for the Reſidue of the Term of Twenty One "Years, granted by His Majeſty's Charter: "That the Payment of the Five Pounds per Cent. "by the late Act for Settling the Trade to the "Eaſt-Indies, might be ſettled and adjuſted in "ſuch a manner, as it might not remain a Burden upon the Petitioners. And that ſuch further Conſiderations might be had for the Petitioners Relief, and for the Preſervation of the "Eaſt-India Trade to England, as ſhould be thought "meet." The Commons conſider'd of this Petition, and on February the 27th, order'd a Bill to be brought in thereupon; which Bill was rejected before it came to a Second Reading.

Eaſt-India Companies.

At the beginning of December, William Norris, Eſq, His Majeſty's Ambaſſador to the Great Mogul, had the Honour and Dignity of a Baronet conferr'd upon him. When the Court of Directors of the Engliſh Company Trading to the Eaſt-Indies attended on His Majeſty, to Congratulate His ſafe Return, and to make their humble Acknowledgments for His Royal Favours to that Company, December the 14th, the King conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Streynſham Maſters, James Bateman, and Edmund Harriſon, Eſqs; Three of the Directors. On January the 15th, the King conferr'd the ſame Honour of Knighthood upon Edward Littleton, Eſq; whom the Company had made choice of, to be their Preſident in the Bay of Bengall.

As to the Affairs of Scotland, the Parliament met at Edinburgh on July the 19th, and His Majeſty's Commiſſion conſtituting Patrick Earl of Marchmont (Lord Chancellor of that Kingdom) His Majeſty's High Commiſſioner for holding the ſame, was read; as likewiſe His Majeſty's Letter to the Lord Commiſſioner, appointing the Viſcount Seafield Principal Secretary of State, to be Preſident during this Seſſion; and the Lord Polworth, to Sit and Vote as Lord High Treaſurer: Who being both Sworn, and having Sign'd the Aſſurance and Aſſociation, took their Places in the uſual manner. This done, His Majeſty's Letter to the Parliament was read: "Wherein "His Majeſty thank'd them for the Proofs of "their Affairs of Scotland.

1698. " their Loyalty and good Affection to his Perſon " and Government, in the former Seſſions of " Parliament; and aſſur'd them, that he deſign'd " to give them ſuch Encouragement upon all Oc- " caſions, as might make them find the Advan- " tages of their Faithfulneſs and Duty to Him. " That he was ſenſible of their cheerful Aſſi- " ſtance, during the Continuance of the War; " which by the Bleſſing of God was now ended " in an honourable Peace. Moreover, His Ma- " jeſty acquainted them, That the preſent Cir- " cumſtances of Affairs hindred Him from proſe- " cuting His Deſign of holding this Seſſion in " Perſon; but that he had appointed the Earl of " Marchmont to repreſent His Royal Authority " among them; being well ſatisfied of His Abi- " lities for diſcharging this Truſt, and having " fully inſtructed him to do whatever might be " neceſſary for the Support of the Government, " and Safety of the Kingdom. That their Ene- " mies abroad, and thoſe who were diſaffected " to the Government at home, were ſtill ready " to lay hold on all Opportunities for carrying " on their bold Deſigns: And therefore His Ma- " jeſty judged it abſolutely neceſſary for their " Preſervation, that the Forces upon the preſent " Eſtabliſhment ſhould be continued; and He did " not doubt but they would provide ſuitable Sup- " plies for maintaining them. His Majeſty alſo " recommended to them the Raiſing Supplies to " make good the Deficiencies of the Funds gi- " ven in former Seſſions, for the paying the Ar- " rears that were due, and repairing the Forts " and Garriſon'd Places: The taking effectual " Methods to diſcourage Vice, Immorality, and " Irreligion; and Unanimity and Cordial Con- " currence in the Diſpatch of the Publick Af- " fairs; that it might appear to all they were not " unmindful of the happy Deliverance they had " had, from the Dangers to which their Religi- " on and Liberties were formerly expos'd: Aſ- " ſuring them, in the Concluſion, of His Care " to maintain their Religion, Laws, and Liber- " ties; and of His Royal Favour and Protecti- " on, in all their Concerns." After this, the Lord High Commiſſioner, and the Lord Preſi- dent, enlarg'd the Reaſonableneſs of His Maje- ſty's Demands, in their reſpective Speeches to the Parliament; and then Adjourn'd the ſame to the 21ſt. When the Parliament met again, and appointed Four Committees; one to conſider of the Security of the Kingdom; one for Trade, another for Elections, and a fourth for returning an Anſwer to His Majeſty's Letter. Two Days after, the firſt of theſe Committees having made their Report, it was reſolved, That the preſent ſtanding Forces of this Kingdom were neceſſary to be continued. And thereupon another Committee was Named, to find Ways and Means to raiſe the ne- ceſſary Sums for their Subſiſtence.

In the mean Time, the Scotch India-Company be- ing very uneaſie upon account of the ſtop put to their Subſcriptions by England, laid open their Grievances before the Parliament, in a Petition; wherein they Repreſented, " That whereas the " Wiſdom of the King and Parliament had thought " fit, by Two ſeveral ſolemn Acts and Letters " Patent, under the Great Seal of that Kingdom, " to eſtabliſh their Company with ſuch Power, " Priviledges, and Immunities, as were needful " to encourage any ſuch new Undertaking in " that Nation; and particularly to raiſe a Joint- " Stock in ſuch manner as they ſhould think fit; " and for that end, to enfranchiſe ſuch Foreign- " ers as would become Partners with them, and " to enter into Treaties of Commerce with any " in Amity with His Majeſty for that Effect: " That thoſe of their Number, who were then en- " truſted with the Management of that Affair, did " think it moſt natural to make the Offer of " ſharing their ſaid Privilege with their Country- " men, and other Neighbours in England, as living " under the ſame Monarchy; and that they not " only readily embraced the Offer, but in Nine " Days ſubſcrib'd 300000 l. Sterling, as the one " half of the Capital Stock then propoſed, and " actually paid in the firſt fourth Part thereof; " part in Specie, part in Bank Notes, payable " upon Demand. That Both Houſes of Parlia- " ment of England, taking Umbrage at thoſe " Proceedings, had not only jointly Addreſſed " His Majeſty, for fruſtrating the Ends of the " ſaid Acts, but the Houſe of Commons had al- " ſo appointed a Committee, to Examine what " Methods were taken for obtaining the ſaid Acts " of Parliament for Eſtabliſhing their Company; " who were the Subſcribers thereunto, and who " were the Promoters and Adviſers thereof; " with Power to ſend for Perſons, Papers, and " Records: And that purſuant thereto, the ſaid " Committee had given Orders to Summon not " only the Engliſh Subſcribers, but even ſome " Perſons reſiding then in Scotland; as by the " ſaid Addreſs, Votes of the Houſe of Commons, " and Copy of the ſaid Summons, did appear: " By all which, together with ſome other Mea- " ſures then taken, their Friends in England were, " to their great Loſs, Diſappointment, and Re- " tardment, forced to relinquiſh their Enterprize. " That, notwithſtanding that Diſcouragement, " not only moſt of the Nobility, Gentry, Mer- " chants, and the whole Body of the Royal Bur- " roughs, had upon the Inducement, and publick " Faith of the ſaid Acts of Parliament, and Let- " ters-Patent, contributed as Adventurers in rai- " ſing a far more conſiderable Joint-Stock than " any was ever before rais'd in the Kingdom for " any publick Undertaking or Project of Trade " whatſoever, which made it of ſo much the " more univerſal a Concern to the Nation, but " they had alſo all the promiſing Hopes of Fo- " reign Aid that their Hearts could wiſh, eſpe- " cially at Hamburgh, where the Merchants of " that City enter'd into Contract with their De- " puties, to join at leaſt 200000 l. Sterling with " them; till to their great Surprize and Loſs the " Engliſh Miniſters there, had, under the pre- " tence of ſpecial Warrant from His Majeſty, " put a ſtop thereto, by giving in a Memorial to " the Senate of that City, not only diſowning " the Authority of the ſaid Acts of Parliament " and Letters-Patent, but alſo threatning both " Senate and Inhabitants, with the King's utmoſt " Diſpleaſure, if they ſhou'd countenance or " join with them in any Treaty of Trade or " Commerce; as by the annexed Copies thereof " might appear: Which Memorial they pray'd " might, for the better Information of his Grace " and the Eſtates, be read in Parliament. That " after the ſaid Memorial was by the Senate tranſ- " mitted to the Commercii, or Body of Merchants of " that City, they to aſſert their own Freedom, " had adviſed and prevailed upon their (the Scots) " Deputies and Agents, who were there for the " Time, to open Books in the ſaid Merchants " Hall, where for ſome Days they Sign'd conſide- " rable Sums purſuant to their ſaid Contract, tho' " under Condition to be void, if they ſhould not " procure ſome Declaration from the King that " might render them ſecure from the Threatnings " and other Inſinuations contain'd in the ſaid Me- " morial. That as the reaſonable (nay, and unque- " ſtionable) Proſpects which they had of a power- " ful Aſſiſtance from Hamburgh, and ſeveral other " Places (if not obſtructed as aforeſaid) had " induced them to prepare a far greater Equipage at firſt, than otherwiſe they would have done; ſo the rendring theſe Meaſures abortive, had not only weaken'd their Stock, leſſen'd their Credit, retarded their firſt Expedition, and diſheartned many of their Partners at home, but even ſlacken'd their Reſolution and Power from Proſecuting at that time, ſeveral other Branches of Foreign and Domeſtick Trades and Improvements, which they had in view, if they had not met with ſuch Obſtructions and Diſcouragements from time to time. That though their Company was more immediately and ſenſibly touch'd in many reſpects by ſuch Proceedings than any other, yet they humbly conceived alſo, that the Honour and Independency of the Nation, as well as the Credit and Authority of the Parliament, was ſtruck at through their Sides. That they could not as Country-men, and in Duty to that Collective Power which gave their Company firſt a Being, but inform his Grace his Majeſty's High Commiſſioner, and the Right Honourable the Eſtates of Parliament, of the Premiſes, to the end that the Great Council of the Nation (then Aſſembled) might do therein, as they in their profound Wiſdom and Diſcretion ſhould think fit. That as to what concerned their Company in particular, they ſhould humbly crave leave to ſuggeſt farther, That the Ships being then at Sea, on their intended Voyage, the former Treatment which their Company met with in England, and elſewhere, might give them juſt Grounds to ſuſpect, that if either through multiplicity of publick Affairs, or otherwiſe howſoever, his Grace, and the Right Honourable the Eſtates of Parliament, ſhould neglect the taking preſent Notice of ſuch Umbrage, the Enemies of their Company would be thereby encourag'd either directly or indirectly to purſue their former Deſigns of ruining (if poſſible) all their Meaſures. Therefore they deſir'd his Grace and the Eſtates of Parliament to take the Premiſes into their ſerious Conſideration, to vindicate their Company's Reputation Abroad, by ſupporting the Credit of the Acts of Parliament, and Letters-Patent, by which the ſame was Eſtabliſh'd, and wherein the Honour of the Nation was ſo much concern'd; to take effectual Meaſures for repairing the great Loſs and Damages which they had already ſuſtain'd through the unwarrantable Treatment above-mentioned, as well as for preventing the like for the time to come; And withal to continue to them the Privileges and Exemptions mentioned in the ſaid Acts of Parliament, and Letters-Patent for ſome longer Time, in conſideration of the Time already elapſed without Execution, and their Stock lying dead without Improvement, by reaſon of the aforeſaid Obſtructions.

" page

1698.

The Parliament having maturely weighed this Petition, thought fit, by way of Addreſs, humbly to repreſent to his Majeſty, "That having conſider'd a Repreſentation made to them by the Council General of the Company trading to Africa and the Indies, which mentioned ſeveral Obſtructions that they met with in the proſecution of their Trade; particularly by a Memorial preſented to the Senate of Hamburgh, by his Majeſty's Reſident in that City, tending to leſſen the Credit of the Rights and Privileges granted to the ſaid Company, by an Act of the then preſent Parliament: They therefore in an humbly Duty laid before his Majeſty the whole Nation's Concern in that Matter, and they did moſt earneſtly intreat, and moſt aſſuredly expect, that his Majeſty in his Royal Wiſdom would take ſuch Meaſures as might effectually vindicate the Undoubted Rights and Privileges of the ſaid Company, and ſupport the Credit and Intereſt thereof. And as they were in Duty bound to return his Majeſty moſt hearty Thanks for the Gracious Aſſurance his Majeſty had been pleaſed to give them of all due Encouragement, for promoting the Trade of that Kingdom; that ſo they were thereby encouraged humbly to recommend to the more eſpecial Marks of his Royal Favour, the concern of the ſaid Company, as that Branch of their Trade, in which they and the Nation which they repreſented, had a more peculiar Intereſt.

The Company having thus engaged the Parliament to eſpouſe their Intereſt, they ſeconded their Addreſs by a Petition to the King, importing, "That whereas the Parliament had by their Addreſs been pleaſed to recommend the Concerns of the Company to his Majeſty, for ſupporting the Credit and Intereſt thereof, which had already ſuffer'd in a great meaſure, by reaſon of the ſeveral Obſtructions which they had met with in the Proſecution of their Trade; particularly by a Memorial given in to the Senate of Hamburgh, by his Majeſty's Miniſter there; Theſe encourag'd them with all Humility to lay before his Majeſty, That as the ſaid Memorial was given in to the Senate of Hamburgh in a moſt Solemn and Publick Manner, ſo they humbly conceiv'd, that the Effects thereof could not be taken away, but by ſome Intimation made to the ſaid Senate, that they might enter into Commerce with them as freely and ſecurely in all reſpects as they might have done before giving in of the ſaid Memorial. That in conſideration of the Damages ſuſtain'd by the Company, his Majeſty would be pleas'd for their Encouragement, as a Gracious Mark of his Royal Favour, to beſtow upon them the two ſmalleſt of the Frigats then lying uſeleſs in Bruntiſland Harbour: And that in regard of the Time loſt by reaſon of the ſaid Obſtructions, his Majeſty would be graciouſly pleas'd to continue the Privileges granted by Act of Parliament to the ſaid Company, of being Cuſtom-free for ſuch longer Time as his Majeſty ſhould think fit.

This Affair occaſioning great Heats and Diſcontents in the Parliament, the Lord High Commiſſioner put a ſtop to their Proceedings towards the beginning of September, and adjourn'd them to the 25th of November.

During this Interval, there being a Letter ſent from Mr. Stevenſon, the Company's Agent at Hamburgh, to the Court of Directors of the Company, on the 4th of November, concerning the Hamburgh Memorial, and another of the 18th of the ſame Month; this occaſion'd another Letter from the Directors of the Company to the Lord Seafield, Secretary of State, wherein they declar'd, "That they had by Order of the Council-General of their Company, tranſmitted the Copies of Two Letters receiv'd from their Company's Agent at Hamburgh to his Lordſhip; upon the reading whereof the Day before, at a Meeting of the ſaid Council-General, they were not a little ſurpriz'd at the Contents, conſidering the many repeated Aſſurances they had formerly by Letters and Word of Mouth, and even in Parliament, That the King had given Orders to his Miniſter at Hamburgh, with Relation to the Memorial given in to the Senate of that City againſt their Company; but after ſome Reaſoning thereupon, and conſidering how far his Lordſhip's frank Undertaking, when in Scotland, as well as the Station he was in, did engage his beſt Endeavours to procure the 1698. "Company Juſtice, and vindicate the Company's Rights in that Matter, they had order'd "them, (the Court of Directors) to tranſmit the "ſaid Copies to his Lordſhip, and expected his "Lordſhip's Anſwer to that and their late Petition to his Majeſty, before they remonſtrated "any further with relation thereunto." Hereupon the Secretary, on December 13. enſuing, acquainted the ſaid Court of Directors, by a Letter ſent to Sir John Sabaw, Preſident to the ſaid Court, That he would take the firſt convenient Opportunity he could have to repreſent the Matter to the King, but cou'd not yet expect to have it, His Majeſty being very much employ'd in the Affairs of the Engliſh Parliament.

To look over into Ireland, the Parliament met at Dublin on Septemb. 27. and the Lords Juſtices Addreſs'd themſelves to Both Houſes in this manner.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

Affairs of Ireland. "We have called you together by His Majeſty's Command, as ſoon as the Seaſon of the "Year would permit us to do it with your Conveniencies, being very deſirous to ſend you "thoſe Bills which we tranſmitted the laſt Year: "and which are ſo great Proofs of the Continuance of His Majeſty's Affection to you, that "whoſoever conſiders them, and thoſe Acts already paſſed this Parliament, will be convinc'd, "that as you owe to His Majeſty your Deliverance and preſent Safety, ſo He deſigns you ſhall "likewiſe owe to Him your firm Eſtabliſhment "and future Proſperity.

"Amongſt thoſe Bills there is one for the Encouragement of Linnen and Hempen Manufactures. At our firſt meeting we recommended to you that Matter, and we have now endeavour'd to render this Bill practicable and "uſeful for that Effect, and as ſuch we recommend it to you. The Settlement of this Manufacture will contribute much to People in "the Country, and will be found much more "advantageous to this Kingdom than the Woollen Manufacture; which being the ſettled Staple "Trade of England, from whence all Foreign "Markets are ſupplied, can never be encouraged here for that purpoſe; whereas the Linnen "and Hempen Manufactures will not only be "encouraged, as conſiſtent with the Trade of "England, but will render the Trade of this "Kingdom both uſeful and neceſſary to England.

"We hope the great Debt due at Midſummer, "1697. will be paid by what you have formerly "given and deſign'd for that purpoſe. The King "has ſince the Peace thought fit to ſend hither "a part of thoſe Forces who ſerved abroad during all the War, having disbanded the greateſt "part of thoſe who ſerved here, with a Reſolution notwithſtanding to continue the Subſiſtence "to the Officers, until they can be otherwiſe provided for. His Majeſty expects that you will "enable Him to ſupport the Charge of the preſent "Eſtabliſhment, which ſhall be laid before you, "Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons, with an Account of what the Revenue produced for One "Year from the ſaid Midſummer, 1697.

"We muſt inform you, that there hath been "ſo great Remiſneſs in the Management of the "preſent Poll, that very little of that Money is "yet receiv'd. We are ſo ſenſible of the neceſſity and uſefulneſs of the Barraques, that we "have advanc'd the Money neceſſary to go on "with them, ſo faſt as it could be employ'd, and "hope you will enable us to finiſh all thoſe you "ſhall think neceſſary for eaſing the Country in "Quarters. My Lords and Gentlemen, We have "taken all Occaſions to aſſure His Majeſty of "your Loyalty and Zeal for His Service: You "will judge beſt of the Effects of thoſe Aſſurances, when you conſider His Majeſty's whole "Conduct in every thing which concerns you. "We can never doubt of ſuitable Returns on "your Part, but join with you in hearty Acknowledgments of the Bleſſings we enjoy under "ſo Great and Juſt a Prince; and in earneſt "Prayers to God for the long continuance of "ſo Glorious a Reign, ſo neceſſary for the Eſtabliſhment of the Church, and for a laſting "Settlement of your Happineſs and Proſperity.

Both Houſes Voted Thanks to their Excellencies for the Speech; and the Commons expreſs'd theirs in the following Addreſs. "We "the Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes, in Parliament Aſſembled, being the Repreſentatives of "a People reſtor'd to the free Exerciſe of their "Religion, and free Enjoyment of their Civil "Rights, Liberties and Properties, by His Majeſty's Courage and Conduct, are deſirous to "lay hold of every Opportunity to expreſs the "Senſe and Gratitude of our Hearts for thoſe ineſtimable Benefits. And it is a great Addition "to our Happineſs, to be aſſur'd by your Excellencies, that as His Majeſty has been pleaſed "already to paſs ſeveral Excellent Acts in this "Parliament, ſo there will Bills be laid before "us this Seſſion, which may ſecure us a firm Eſtabliſhment and Proſperity for the future: "Such Laws we have long wanted and wiſh'd for; "but it is reſerv'd to His Majeſty's Goodneſs alone, "to be the Author of them to us.

"We pray leave to aſſure your Excellencies, "That we ſhall heartily endeavour to Eſtabliſh "the Linnen Manufacture, and to render the "ſame uſeful to England, as well as advantageous "to this Kingdom; and that we hope to find "ſuch a Temperament in reſpect to the Woollen "Trade here, that the ſame may not be injurious to England. And as we have to our utmoſt "Abilities, granted Supplies, which have hitherto with Honour ſupported and defrayed the "Expences of the Eſtabliſhment, we ſhall again "take the ſame into our Conſideration, when "laid before us; and come to ſuch Reſolutions "thereon, as become Dutiful and Loyal Subjects.

"We are ſenſible how neceſſary the Erecting "Barraques is, for eaſing the Country of Quarters, and pray your Excellencies the ſame may "be proceeded on.

"And that His Majeſty may effectually receive thoſe Aids already granted Him by this "Parliament, we ſhall take into our Enquiry, through whoſe Defaults or Remiſneſs "the preſent Poll, hath been ſo ſlowly paid, "and anſwer'd into the Treaſury: And by all "Dutiful Deportment, will continue to deſerve "the Character your Excellencies have, with "great Truth, repreſented us under to His Majeſty, of being a People Zealous for His Majeſty's Service, and firm in our Loyalty to the "Crown of England: For which Juſtice done "us, we owe, and with all Acknowledgments, "return your Excellencies our moſt Humble and "Hearty Thanks." To this Addreſs their Excellencies made the following Anſwer. Gentlemen, There are ſo many Expreſſions of Loyalty and Zeal for His Majeſty's Service in your Addreſs, that We receive it with great Satisfaction; and are very glad, that by Repreſenting it to His Majeſty, We ſhall confirm in Him the good Opinion He hath of your Intentions for His Service, and the Proſperity of this Kingdom.

On

1698. On the 1ſt of October, the ſame Day the afore-mention'd Addreſs was preſented, the Commons read for the firſt time a Bill for Confirming the Eſtates and Poſſeſſions held and enjoy'd under the Acts of Settlement and Explanation; and order'd Heads to be brought in for a Bill for Encouraging of Plantations, and Improvements in that Kingdom. Nine Days after, the Committee appointed to take into Conſideration the Lords Juſtices Speech, reported, That it was their Opinion that a Supply be granted to His Majeſty, and that it was neceſſary that the Woollen Trade of Ireland be Regulated: To which Reſolutions the Houſe unanimouſly agreed. On the 17th of the ſame Month, a Motion was made, that an Addreſs be preſented to the Lords Juſtices of that Kingdom, to intercede with his Majeſty, that the Five Regiments of French Proteſtants, then in Ireland, ſhould be Disbanded; but the ſame paſs'd in the Negative. Five Days after, the Commons read the Bill for the better Security of His Majeſty's Perſon and Government; and took particularly into their Conſideration, that Clauſe which had been Voted out by the Majority of Ten Voices, relating to the Roman Catholicks taking the new Oaths; and after a long Debate, threw out the Bill: But at the ſame time, they appointed a Committee to bring in the Heads of a Bill to prevent the Eſtates of Proteſtants to come to Papiſts, and to encourage Perſons to turn Proteſtants. On the 14th, the Committee appointed to conſider of Ways and Means for raiſing the Supply, reported their Opinion; which was, Firſt, That an Additional Duty be impos'd on the Old and New Drapery of that Kingdom, that ſhould be exported, Freezes excepted; to which the Houſe agreed: And, Secondly, That a Tax be laid on all Beneficial Grants of Lands and Tenements, made by his Majeſty and her late Majeſty; to which the Houſe diſagreed: And inſtead of it, they afterwards on October 22. reſolv'd to lay a further Tax of 30000 l. upon Lands, over and above the 90000 l. already impoſed upon them. The Bill for Levying theſe Sums being compleated, the Lords Juſtices Adjourned the Parliament, and then took a Progreſs into the Country, in order to view the State of ſeveral Places in that Kingdom, and give ſuch Inſtructions as they thought convenient for the Security of the Government, and the Good of the Subject.

State of Religion. As to any diſtinguiſhing Matters of Religion, we ought to obſerve that of all ſorts of Diſſenters, the Quakers, who leaſt deſerved the Toleration, made the boldeſt uſe of it: They appear'd now in Parliamentary Elections, and gave their Votes without Swearing to their Freeholds; and being in their Faction united, they could bring the weight and the turn in many Elections. Boldneſs of the Quakers. Nay, and they ſeem'd to hope to be Repreſentatives as well as Electors. One of the Members, Mr. Waller, became at laſt profeſſedly their Friend and Brother: And in his Neighbourhood at Wickam another Quaker, one Archdale, was choſen a Burgeſs for this Parliament, though he was himſelf conſcious that he could not qualify himſelf to be a legal Sitting Member; and therefore at the beginning of the Seſſion, he went to the Speaker, and delivered him a Letter Sealed up, wherein he ſaid he had repreſented his Caſe to the Houſe, ſubmitting the ſame to their Pleaſure and Determination. This Letter was read Jan. 6. and the Writer, John Archdale, was called in, and Mr. Speaker, by Direction of the Houſe, asked him, Whether he had taken the Oaths, or would take the Oaths appointed to qualify himſelf to be a Member of that Houſe? To which he anſwered, That in regard to a Principle of his Religion, he had not taken the Oaths, nor could take them. Upon which, without asking what that Religion was, or why he would ſuffer himſelf to be returned, when he knew his own Incapacity; it was only ordered, That a Warrant ſhould be iſſued for a new Writ, for Electing a Burgeſs to ſerve in this preſent Parliament, for the Borough of Chipping-Wicomb, in the County of Bucks, in the room of the ſaid Mr. Archdale, who hath refuſed to qualify himſelf to be a Member of this Houſe, by taking the Oaths by Law appointed for that purpoſe. And it was indeed ſomewhat Scandalous to ſee, when any Bill or Petition was depending, wherein the Quakers had their Account or Deſign, what Crowding, what Solliciting, what Treating and Trading there was by that ſly and artificial Set of Men (a).

On Friday, December 23. leave was given to bring in a Bill or Bills for the more effectual diſcouraging and ſuppreſſing Prophaneneſs, and all manner of Vice and Immorality. And Sir John Philips, Sir Richard Cocks, Mr. Perry, and Mr. Boſcawen, were to prepare and bring in the Bill. This pious Care had been recommended by the King, in his Speech at the opening of the Seſſion; but the Omiſſion of it was left for him to Complain of in his Speech at concluding the ſame Seſſion. Indeed Immorality and Prophaneneſs could not be effectually reſtrain'd, while they were acted over with ſo much indecent Liberty upon the Stage. The ordinary Plays, inſtead of anſwering the good old Deſign of expoſing Vice and recommending the Charms of Vertue, were Liberty of the Stage very Scandalous. debauch'd with the wrong Images of things, and with a Language bordering upon Impious and Obſcene. This Licentious Vein had grown into a Faſhion under the Rejoicings of King Ch. II. and was now continued to pleaſe the vitiated Palate of the Gay and Looſe People, that frequented the Play-Houſes for want of Religion and Buſineſs. The King who rarely or never went to thoſe Places of Diverſion, was honeſtly inform'd of the Scandal given in them; and therefore to put ſome Check upon their Liberty and Lewdneſs, he commanded the following Order to be ſent to Both Play-Houſes.

His Majeſty being inform'd, that notwithſtanding an Order made the 4th of June, 1697. by the Earl of Sunderland, then Lord Chamberlain of His Majeſty's Houſhold, to prevent the Prophaneneſs and Immorality of the Stage, ſeveral Plays have lately

(a) See, 1. A Third Narrative of the Proceedings at Turners Hall the 21ſt of April, 1698. giving an exact Account of the Proofs brought by George Keith out of the Quakers printed Books: Read by George Keith out of his Manuſcript, and examined by ſome Miniſters of the Church of England. London. 1698. 4*to* 2. The Yearly Epiſtle of the Quakers met at London to their Monthly and Quarterly Meetings, to remind them of their Ancient Teſtimony againſt the payment of Tithes, and that it be faithfully maintained and kept up, and that it may not be avoided and ſhunned by any indirect Ways or Courſes with Landlords, or otherwiſe. 3. The Quakers Challenge made to the Norfolk Clergy: Or, a Reſolution of a Conference between ſome Clergymen of the Church of England and ſome Quakers, held on the 8th of December, 1698. in Weſt-Dereham Church in the County of Norfolk; together with thoſe Letters which paſſed between them in order thereunto. London. 1699. 4*to*. 4. A Letter ſent to Mr. Richard Hardcaſtle, wherein is a ſhort Review of ſome Things aſſerted by the Quakers in their Norfolk Diſputation with the Clergy, 1698, refuting the Account given by the Quakers themſelves. By Robert Prudom, formerly a Quaker. Lond. 1699. 12*mo*. 5. George Keith's Fourth Narrative of his Proceedings at Turners-Hall, detecting the Quakers groſs Errors: Faithfully taken out of their Books and read at three ſeveral Meetings on the 11th, 18th, and 23d of January, 1698-9. For Brab. Aylmer. 4*to*. 6. To the Honourable Houſe of Commons, the humble Petition of the Grand Jury and Juſtices of Peace for the County of Suffolk, on behalf of themſelves, and the Body of the ſaid County, againſt the Blaſphemous Doctrine and Seditious Principles of the People called Quakers. Printed by Francis Bugg.

been

1698.

been Acted, containing Expreſſions contrary to Religion and Good Manners. And whereas the Maſter of the Revels has repreſented, that in Contempt of the ſaid Order, the Actors do often neglect to leave out ſuch Prophane and Indecent Expreſſions, as he has thought proper to be Omitted. Theſe are therefore to ſignify His Majeſty's Pleaſure, that you do not hereafter preſume to Act any thing in any Play contrary to Religion or Good Manners; as you ſhall anſwer it at your utmoſt Peril. Given under My Hand this 13th of February, 1698. in the Eleventh Year of His Majeſty's Reign.

Pere. Bertie.

An Order was likewiſe ſent by his Majeſty's Command to the Maſter of the Revels, not to Licenſe any Plays, containing Expreſſions contrary to Religion and Good Manners; and to give Notice to the Lord Chamberlain of his Majeſty's Houſhold, or, in his Abſence, to the Vice-Chamberlain, if the Players preſume to Act any thing which he has ſtruck out.

Sufferings of the Proteſtants in France.

It muſt be confeſs'd, that the greateſt Stain to the late General Peace, was the too little Security provided for the Proteſtant Intereſt Abroad: And eſpecially in France, where the King was ſo far from being brought to any Temper and Indulgence toward his Proteſtant Subjects, that he ſeem'd rather to have the Strength and Leiſure to Perſecute them with greater Fury. This was a ſenſible Grief to King William; and the more, that he was unable to give them any Redreſs. However, to ſhew his Royal Pity and Concern, he ordered a Day of Faſt and Solemn Humiliation, for averting of thoſe Judgments which our manifold Sins and Provocations have moſt juſtly deſerved; and that God would in his Great Mercy and Goodneſs Relieve and Comfort ſuch as Suffer Abroad for the Proteſtant Religion. And beſides this publick Commiſeration of their Sufferings, the King gave Inſtructions to his Ambaſſadors in the Court of France to ſollicit the Releaſe of many Proteſtant Miniſters and People from the Slavery of the Gallies. But all the Anſwer that could be obtained from the French Miniſtry, was this, That they were their Maſter's own Subjects, and no Prince ought to interpoſe in his Majeſty's way of governing his own People. We ought to remember, that there was another good Intention in the Houſe of Commons, which came to no effect.

A good Bill dropt.

On Monday, Jan. 2. they Ordered, that Leave be given to bring in a Bill, for the Conveying of Lands, Tenements, Rents, Tithes, and Hereditaments, to any College or School, for the Education of poor Scholars, or Advancement of Learning, or Improvement of any Parſonage, or Vicaridge, or any other Charitable Uſe; and that Mr. Thirsby and Mr. Foley do prepare and bring in the Bill. This Bill was accordingly preſented to the Houſe on Saturday, 7 Jan. and Received and Read the firſt Time, and was ordered to be Read a ſecond Time; but it was unhappily dropt.

1699.

On March 27. Mr. Boyle Reported the Reſolutions of the Committee of the whole Houſe, to whom it was referred to conſider of the State of the Navy; and the Houſe agreed to the Reſolutions, and Ordered them to be laid before his Majeſty in this Humble Addreſs.

1699.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

Addreſs of the Commons.

" We your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal " Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Aſſem-
" bled, having taken into our Serious Conſidera-
" tion the State of the Navy, do moſt humbly
" Repreſent to your Majeſty,
" That the Streights Squadron not Sailing till " September laſt, was prejudicial to England, and
" a great Miſmanagement.
" That the Order made by the Commiſſioners
" of the Admiralty the 12th of September, One
" Thouſand Six Hundred Ninety Five, giving
" Henry Prieſtman, Eſq; an Allowance of Ten " Shillings per diem, from the Date of his Com-
" miſſion, as Commander in chief before Sally,
" in the Year One Thouſand Six Hundred Eighty
" Four, till the Ship Bonadventure was paid off,
" over and above his Pay as Captain of the ſaid
" Ship; was very unreaſonable, and a Miſappli-
" cation of the Publick Money.
" That the Victualling any of your Majeſty's
" Ships by others than by the Victuallers appoint-
" ed for that Service, or their Agents, is contrary " to the Courſe of the Navy, and may be of ill
" Conſequence.
" That many New and Unneceſſary Charges
" have, in an extraordinary manner, been intro" duced into the Navy, contrary to the Rules of " the Navy; which is a great Miſmanage-
" ment.
" That the Deductions of Poundage taken by " the Pay-maſters of the Navy for Slop-Cloaths,
" Dead Mens Cloaths, Tobacco, Cheſt at Chat-
" ham, Chaplain and Surgeon, is without War-
" rant, and ought to be accounted for.
" That it is inconſiſtent with the Service of the " Navy, for the ſame Perſon to be one of the " Commiſſioners for executing the Office of Lord
" High Admiral, and Treaſurer of the Navy at " the ſame time.
" And that the Paſſing any Account of Monies
" impreſſed for the contingent Uſes of the Navy,
" without regular Vouchers, or ſuch other Proof
" as the Nature of the Service will admit, either
" with or without a Sign Manual, is contrary to " the Rules and Methods of the Navy, and of dan" gerous Conſequence.
" All which we beg leave to lay before your
" Majeſty, deſiring that You will be graciouſly
" pleaſed to take effectual Care, that the Miſma-
" nagements herein complained of, may be pre" vented for the future.

This Addreſs having been preſented by the whole Houſe on Monday, April the 3d, the King gave this Gracious Anſwer.

Gentlemen,

I will conſider Your Addreſs. It is My Deſire, that all Sorts of Miſmanagements and Irregularities ſhould be prevented or redreſs'd. You may be aſſured, I will take the beſt Care I can in relation to the Navy; the right Management whereof is of ſo great Concern to this Kingdom.

Concluſion of the Seſſion.

There was nothing elſe remarkable in this Seſſion, but the Concluſion of it on Thurſday,

(a) See, 1. A Letter from James Lord Biſhop of Lincoln to the Reverend the Clergy of his Dioceſs, ſent to them with His Majeſty's Brief for the Relief of many Thouſands of diſtreſſed Proteſtants. Dat. March 14, 1698. 2. A like Letter from Simon Lord Biſhop of Ely. 3. A Letter to the ſame Purport from Peter Lord Biſhop of Wincheſter, &c. Printed for the King's Printers.

As to the active Intrigues of the Papiſts; See, 1. A Letter to an Honourable Member of Parliament, concerning the great Growth of Popery, and the treaſonable Practices of the Romiſh Biſhops and Prieſts at this Time in England. Dat. London, January 15th, 1698-9. 2. A ſecond Letter to a Member of Parliament on the Growth and Increaſe of Popery in England. Both Printed for Brab. Aylmer. Fol. [and both ſuppoſed to be Written by Edward Lord Biſhop of Glouceſter.]

May

1699. May the 4th, when His Majeſty came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to theſe many Bills 1. An Act for granting to His Majeſty the Sum of One Million Four Hundred Eighty Four Thouſand and Fifteen Pounds One Shilling Eleven Pence Three Farthings, for Diſbanding the Army, Providing for the Navy, and for other neceſſary Occaſions. 2. An Act for laying further Duties upon Sweets, and for leſſening the Duties as well upon Vinegar, as upon certain Low Wines, and Whale Fins, and the Duties upon Brandy imported; and for the more eaſy raiſing the Duties upon Leather, and for Charging Cynders; and for permitting the Importation of Pearl Aſhes; and for preventing Abuſes in the Brewing of Beer and Ale, and Frauds in the Importation of Tobacco. 3. An Act for the more full and effectual Charging the Duties upon Rock Salt. 4. An Act to Encourage the Trade to Newfoundland. 5. An Act to prevent the Exportation of Wooll out of the Kingdoms of Ireland and England into Foreign Parts; and for the Encouragement of the Woollen Manufactures of the Kingdom of England. 6. An Act for Limiting certain Times, within which Writs of Error ſhall be brought for the Reverſing Fines, Common Recoveries, and Ancient Judgment. 7. An Act for Raiſing the Militia for the Year One Thouſand Six Hundred Ninety Nine, although the Months Pay formerly advanc'd be not repaid. 8. An Act for the better Apprehending, Proſecuting, and Puniſhing of Felons that commit Burglary, Houſe-breaking, or Robbery in Shops, Ware-houſes, Coach-houſes, or Stables; or that ſteal Horſes. 9. An Act for making Billingſgate a free Market for Sale of Fiſh. 10. An Act for continuing the Act for the more eaſy Recovery of ſmall Tythes. 11. An Act for ſuppreſſing of Lotteries. 12. An Act for taking off the remaining Duties upon Glaſs Wares. 13. An Act for making and keeping Navigable the Rivers of Air and Calder, in the County of York. 14. An Act to enable Poſthumous Children to take Eſtates, as if born in their Father's Life-time. 15. An Act to enable ſuch Officers and Soldiers, as have been in His Majeſty's Service during the late War, to exerciſe Trades; and for Officers to Account with their Soldiers. 16. An Act for the continuing the Impriſonment of ——— Counter, and others, for the late horrid Conſpiracy to Aſſaſſinate the Perſon of His Sacred Majeſty. 17. An Act for making and keeping the River Trent, in the Counties of Leiceſter, Derby, and Stafford, Navigable. 18. An Act for ſettling Augmentations on certain Vicaridges for ever. 19. An Act for the confirming of a Grant and Settlement, made by William Forſter, Eſq; of divers Mannors and Lands in the County Palatine of Durham, and County of Northumberland, to Thomas Lord Fairfax, and others, upon certain Truſts therein-mentioned. 20. An Act for Sale of ſome Part of the Eſtate of Sir Thomas Darcy, deceas'd, for Payment of Debts. 21. An Act to enable Edward Price, Eſq; to transfer a Charge of One Thouſand Pounds, for the Uſe of his younger Children, from an Eſtate in the County of Montgomery, to an Eſtate in the Counties of Hereford and Radnor, of better Value. 22. An Act to enable Truſtees to Sell Part of the Eſtate of George Scott, Eſq; to pay Debts, and raiſe Portions for his Brothers and Siſter, and to Settle other Part of his Eſtate. 23. An Act for Sale of the Eſtate of Dudley Veſey, in Hintleſham in the County of Suffolk, for the Payment of his Debts. 24. An Act to enable Robert Aldworth, and his Wife, to Sell their Eſtate in or near Wantage in the County of Berks, for raiſing Three Hundred Pounds for Payment of his Debts, and for applying the Reſidue of the Money for purchaſing ſome other Eſtate, for the ſole Uſe of his Wife and Children. 25. An Act to Naturalize Scipio Guy, and others. 26. An Act for the Sale of the Mannor of Halwill and Beckett in the County of Devon, the Eſtate of John Moor, for Payment of Debts. 27. An Act for Veſting the Real Eſtate late of Thomas Laſcells, Eſq; deceas'd, in Truſtees, to be ſold, for the Payment of his Debts 28. An Act to enable John Young, Gent. to ſell Lands for Payment of Debts and Legacies. 29. An Act to enable the Town of Leverpool in the County Palatine of Lancaſter, to Build a Church, and endow the ſame; and for making the ſaid Town and Liberties thereof a Pariſh of it ſelf diſtinct from Walton. 30. An Act to enable Thomas Okeover, Gent. Son and Heir apparent of Rowland Okeover, in the County of Stafford, Eſq; together with the ſaid Rowland Okeover, to make a Jointure and Settlement upon the Marriage of the ſaid Thomas Okeover. 31. An Act to enable Katherine Leeke, an Infant under the Age of One and Twenty Years, to ſettle and diſpoſe of her Eſtate upon her Marriage. 32. An Act for Veſting certain Lands of Sir Thomas Syliard, Baronet, in the County of Kent, in Truſtees, to be ſold, for the Payment of his Siſters Portions charged thereon. 33. An Act to enable Thomas Byde, Eſq; an Infant, with the Conſent of his Guardians and next Relations) to make a Contract for the Buying his Mother's Jointure, and to ſettle a ſmall Eſtate in Great Amwell in the County of Hertford; and likewiſe for the ſecuring and raiſing Portions for Barbara Byde, Siſter to the ſaid Thomas Byde, and for other Purpoſes in the Act mentioned. 34. An Act for the Sale of the Mannor of Lordington, alias Lurtington, and Whitney, and divers other Lands in the County of Suſſex; and for laying out 5000 l. in purchaſing other Lands to be ſettled in lieu thereof. 35. An Act to enable Samuel Wake, alias Jones, Eſq; to ſell Lands to pay Debts, and to purchaſe other Lands adjoining to the formerly Parcel of his Mannor. 36. An Act for the Veſting and Settling the Eſtate of Anne Bridges, an Infant in Bermudas, alias the Summer-Iſlands in America, in and upon Truſtees, to be ſold; and laying out the Money ariſing by ſuch Sale in England, for the Uſe of the ſaid Anne Bridges. 37. An Act for the Encouragement of a New Invention by Thomas Savery, for Raiſing Water, and Occaſioning Motion to all ſorts of Mill-Work, by the impellent Force of Fire. 38. An Act for Enabling Cyriac Weſlyd, Eſq; to Sell ſome part of his Eſtate, which by Articles upon his Marriage was agreed to be ſettled upon his Wife and Children, and for ſettling of other Parts of his Eſtate of better value, to the ſame Uſes. 39. An Act for the Ships, Hawke and Rainbow, to Trade as Engliſh-built Ships. 40. An Act to Enable John Bull, an Infant, to Sell his Lands in Kent, for the Payment of his Debts, and Annuities charged thereon, and for Proviſion for Younger Children. 41. An Act for Enabling the Surviving Truſtees of Sir William Pulteny, Knight, deceaſed, to make Leaſes for the Raiſing of Monies for Payment of his Son William Pulteny's Debts, and other Purpoſes therein-mentioned. 42. An Act to Enable Popham Conway, Francis Seymour, and Charles Seymour, Eſqs; and their Iſſue Male, ſeverally and ſucceſſively to make Leaſes of their Eſtates. 43. An Act for the Sale of the Eſtate of Zenobia Hough, for the Payment of the Debts of her Husband, and other Uſes. 44. An Act to Enable the Ship Hope, (of great Length, and very ſerviceable for bringing Maſts into this Kingdom) to Trade as an Engliſh-built Ship. 45. An Act to Enable William Wrayford, Gent. and Dame Anne Rich, Widow, to make Leaſes of Houſes and Grounds in Covent-Garden, late the Eſtate of John Athey, Citizen and Haberdaſher of London. 46. An Act for Sale of the Mannor of Downham in the County of Eſſex, (the Eſtate of Sir Francis Andrews) and for Buying and Settling other Lands to the ſame Uſes. 47. An Act to Diſcharge the Ships King William, and Charles the Second, from the Penalties of the Act of Navigation. 48. An Act for Settling divers Freehold and Leaſhold Houſes, the Eſtate of Thomas Cowſlade, an Infant, and others, to Diſcharge a Mortgage,

Acts paſs'd.

1699.

1699. Mortgage, and to Purchaſe other Lands to be ſettled to the like Uſes. 49. An Act to Enable Thomas Methwold, Eſq; to Raiſe the Sum of 1200 l. upon his Eſtate, by him laid out in Improving the ſame. 50. An Act for Naturalizing Auguſtine Cloribus, and others. 51. An Act for Naturalizing Samuel Bernardeau, Peter Chantreau des Gandrees, and others, Private Gentlemen belonging to His Majeſty's Three Troops of Guards and Granadiers. 52. An Act for Opening the Ancient, and making any New Roynes and Water-Courſes in and near Sedgmore, in the County of Somerſet, for rendring the ſaid Moor more Healthful and Profitable to the Inhabitants. 53. An Act to Naturalize Richard Legg, and others. 54. An Act for Naturalizing Sir David Collier, Iſaac la Melioniere, Peter de Belcaſtel, and William Rieutort.

After the Paſſing ſuch a Multitude of Acts, the King made this Gracious Speech to both Houſes, which ſhew'd He was not fully ſatisfied in their Proceedings.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" AT the Opening this Parliament I told you " my Opinion was, That you were come " together with Hearts fully diſpoſed to do what " was Neceſſary for the Safety, Honour, and " Happineſs of the Kingdom; and having nothing " elſe to Recommend to you, I had Reaſon to hope " for Unanimity and Diſpatch.

" You have now Sat ſo many Months, that the " Seaſon of the Year, as well as your particular " Affairs, make it reaſonable you ſhould have a " Receſs: I take it for granted, you have Fi- " niſh'd all the Bills which for the preſent you " think requiſite to be Paſs'd into Laws, and I " have given my Aſſent to all you have Preſented " to Me.

" If any Thing ſhall be found wanting for Our " Safety, the Support of Publick Credit, by ma- " king good the Faith of the Kingdom, as it " ſtands Engaged by Parliamentary Securities, and " for Diſcharge of the Debts occaſioned by the " War, or towards the Advancing of Trade, the " Suppreſſing of Vice, and the Employing of " the Poor, which were all the Things I propoſed " to your Conſideration when We met firſt; I " cannot doubt but effectual Care will be taken of " them next Winter: And I wiſh no Inconvenience " may happen in the mean Time.

And then the Lord-Keeper, by His Majeſty's Command, Prorogued the Parliament until Thurſday the Firſt Day of June next.

Tryal of the Earl of Warwick, and Lord Mohun.

At the latter end of March, Edward Earl of Warwick, and Charles Lord Mohun, being ſeverally Indicted for the Murder of Richard Coot, Eſq; were Tryed by their Peers, in a Court prepared 1699. for that purpoſe in Weſtminſter-Hall. The Lord Chancellor of England being conſtituted Lord High Steward upon this Occaſion, the Court being open'd with the uſual Ceremonies, the Tryal of the Earl of Warwick came on, March 28. and laſted till late in the Evening, when the Peers adjourn'd to their own Houſe; and after ſome Debate, the Lords Temporal only return'd to the Court in Weſtminſter-Hall, where they deliver'd their Judgments ſeriatim upon their Honours, and unanimouſly acquitted the Earl of Warwick of the Murder, but found him Guilty of Manſlaughter; who craving the Benefit of his Peerage, according to the Statute in that Caſe provided, was thereupon Diſcharged. The next Day came on in like manner the Tryal of the Lord Mohun, who with great Compoſedneſs and Elocution, made his Innocency ſo well appear, that he was Acquitted by the unanimous Suffrage of the Peers, and lived to be a great Example of Sobriety and Publick Spirit. (a)

Honours and Preferments.

On April 17. the King was pleaſed to confer the Dignity of a Baronet upon John Stanley of Grange-Gormon, in the County of Dublin in Ireland; and within few Days after, the like Honour on Edmund Denton of Hilliſdon, in the County of Bucks, Eſq; On May 14. the Earl of Jerſey lately return'd from his Embaſſy at the Court of France, was Conſtituted one of His Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State, in the room of the Duke of Shrewsbury; who thought himſelf under a neceſſity of travelling abroad to reſtore his Conſtitution, impair'd in the Service of the Publick. At the ſame Time the Earl of Mancheſter was appointed to ſucceed the Lord Jerſey, in the French Court. On May the 15th, His Majeſty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on Edward Haſell of Dalemaine, in the County of Cumberland, Eſq; On May 18. the King in Council declared Thomas Earl of Pembroke, Lord Preſident of the Council; and receiving the Privy-Seal from his Lordſhip, delivered it to John Viſcount Lonſdale, who took the Oaths and Place as Keeper of the Privy-Seal. The ſame Evening, Edward Southwell, Eſq; was Sworn Clerk of the Council, in the room of William Bridgman, Eſq; Deceaſed: And Abraham Stanyon, Eſq; was Sworn Clerk of the Council in Extraordinary. On May 20. His Majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute Chriſtopher Codrington, Eſq; a Fellow of All-Souls in Oxford, Captain-General and Governor in Chief of His Majeſty's Leeward Caribbee-Iſlands in America, in the room of his Father Colonel Codrington, Deceaſed; who, during the late War, had perform'd many Signal Services to the Govern-

(a) See The Form of Prayer to be uſed in all Churches and Chapels, on Wedneſday the 5th of April, 1699. being Appointed for a Faſt to be obſerved in a moſt Solemn and Devout Manner, for imploring a Bleſſing from Almighty God upon his Majeſty and all his Dominions, and for averting thoſe Judgments, which our manifold Sins and Provocations have moſt juſtly deſerved, and that God would in his great Mercy Relieve and Comfort ſuch as ſuffer abroad for the Proteſtant Religion. London, 4to.

The latter Subject of our Prayers; the poor Proteſtants Sufferers abroad, appear'd the more deplorable by a Faithful Narrative, now Written and Intitled, An Account of the Sufferings of the French Proteſtants Slaves, on Board the French King's Gallies. By Elias Neau, one of their Fellow-Sufferers. With a Liſt of thoſe who are ſtill on Board the ſaid Gallies. London 1699. 4to.

2. A Faithful Relation of the Proceedings of the Inquiſition at Granada, the Chancery of Spain, concerning a Man called Iſaac, a Native of Mompelier, who was burnt alive in the Year 1699. for the Proteſtant Religion. By John Catell, a Fellow-Sufferer by the ſaid Inquiſition, as appears by his true Relation of it, he being now in England, 4to.

3. A Faithful Account of the Cruelties done to the Proteſtants, on Board the French King's Gallies on Account of the Reformed Religion, done out of French; with a Poſtſcript, ſignifying that this Account was lately Printed in Holland, and is Confirmed by unqueſtionable Advice ſent us in many Letters from other Parts. To which is annexed, an Exhortation to Perſeverance in the Reformed Religion, under the ſevereſt Tryals. Done out of French, and Addreſſed to all Engliſh Proteſtants. And another earneſt Addreſs to all Engliſh Proteſtants, by the Tranſlator [Dr. Joſiah Woodward, Miniſter of Poplar.] London. 1700. 8vo.

4. His Majeſty's Letters Patents, in behalf of the Poor Vandois, who being Subjects of France before the late War, have ſince the Concluſion of the Peace, through Popiſh Cruelty been excluded and baniſh'd from their Native Country, without any preſent Hope of Return, but by Renouncing their Holy Religion, which through the ſingular Goodneſs of God, both they and their Brethren the Vandois of Piedmont, have hitherto kept undefiled.

Witneſs Ourſelf at Weſtminſter, the 12*th Day of* March, in the Eleventh Year of our Reign.

ment,

1699. ment, and ruin'd ſeveral French Plantations in thoſe Parts.

On May 31. His Majeſty declared in Council, that intending to go over to Holland for a ſhort Time, He had appointed the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor Somers, the Earl of Pembroke, the Lord Lonſdale, the Duke of Devonſhire, the Earl of Bridgwater, the Earl of Marlborough, the Earl of Jerſey, and Mr. Mountague, to be Lords Juſtices of England, during His Abſence. The next Day the King went from Kenſington, between Ten and Eleven at Night, and arrived at Margate the next Day about Noon, and about Three Embark'd for Holland, and within the next Day ſafely Landed at Oranie-Poulder, from whence he went to the Hague. After He had received the Compliments of the Foreign Miniſters, and other Perſons of Quality, He aſſiſted at the Aſſembly of the States-General, and at that of the States in Holland. He then gave his Inſtructions to Mr. Hill, whom He had appointed to go His Envoy Extraordinary to Savoy, to make His Compliment of Congratulation to that Court, upon the Birth of the Prince of Piedmont, which had been Notified to His Majeſty in England, by Count de Maffey, Envoy Extraordinary from the Duke for that purpoſe. On June 22. N. S. His Majeſty left the Hague about Six in the Morning, and having Dined at Cruitzberg, paſſed in the Afternoon through the Cities of Harlem, and Amſterdam; from thence to Narden, where viewing all the Fortifications, which he found in great perfection, He lay that Night at Soertdyke, and the next Morning ſet out for Loo; at which Royal Palace, and that of Dieren, His Majeſty ſpent moſt part of the Summer, in His uſual Diverſions of Hunting and Shooting.

Lords Juſtices.

The King goes to Holland.

Towards the beginning of July, Count Tallard the French Ambaſſador, and the Baron Schultz, Envoy from the Princes of the Houſe of Lunenburgh, who were lately arriv'd at the Hague from Holland, waited upon His Majeſty at Loo, and a few Days after the Sieur Galesky, Ambaſſador from the King of Poland to the States-General, and the Count de Guiſcard, Ambaſſador from France to the Court of Sweden, paid likewiſe their Reſpects to His Majeſty.

On the 25th of Aug. the Steward of my Lord Paget, His Majeſty's Ambaſſador at the Port, brought Letters from the Grand Signior to His Majeſty, in acknowledgment of His Good Offices, in mediating the late Peace at Carlowitz; and not long after the Czar of Muſcovy ſent a Letter of Thanks to His Majeſty upon the ſame Account. About this Time the States of Holland, out of their tender Care for His Majeſty's Preſervation, put forth a Placart, requiring that all ſuch Perſons that had been declar'd Rebels in England, ſhould forthwith depart their Dominions; and on the 2d and 3d of September (N. S.) the King reviewed the Dutch Forces encamp'd near Arnheim, and then return'd to Loo, to entertain His Boſom Friend the Old Duke of Zell, who was come there to make His Majeſty a Viſit, with a Numerous and Magnificent Retinue.

But nothing deſerves more our Attention this Summer than the Conteſt between the Prince of Conti and the Dutcheſs of Nemours, about the Succeſſion of Neufchaſtel, a Proteſtant Independent City and Principality, bordering upon, and allied to the Switzers, whoſe Sovereign was the late Duke of Longueville. Now the Parliament of Paris having made a Decree in Favour of that Prince, whoſe Intereſt was ſupported by the King of France himſelf, to whom the Dutcheſs refuſ'd to refer the Deciſion of her Cauſe: His Highneſs, to maintain his Pretenſions, and to obviate the Deſigns of his Competitor, went in Perſon to Neufchaſtel, where he did all that lay in his Power by Letters, Memorials, Careſſes and large Promiſes, to draw the States of that Principality, and their Confederates the Swiſs Cantons to own him for the next and immediate Succeſſor to the Duke. Thereupon King William, who ſet up for the Univerſal Heir of the Houſe of Longueville, order'd Mr. Hervart, His Envoy in Switzerland, immediately to repair to Neufchaſtel, and to preſent the following Memorial to the Prince of Conti. 1699.

"The Orders of the King of Great Britain, my "Maſter, having brought me hither, my firſt Bu"ſineſs is to pay my Reſpects to your Highneſs, "and to aſſure you of my moſt humble Services. "You are not ignorant, I aſſure myſelf, that His "Majeſty lays Claim to the County of Neufchaſtel, and its Dependencies; His Miniſters at "the Treaty of Ryſwick having acquainted His "moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's Plenipotentiaries with "it. Nevertheleſs, His Majeſty, whoſe Pleaſure "it was, that thoſe Countries ſhould be expreſly "comprehended in the Treaty of Peace, has been "further pleas'd, for the better ſecuring the Tran"quility of that Principality, to defer the ma"king out His Right, tho' very Lawful, till the "Death of Madam the Dutcheſs of Nemours, who "has been inveſted with that Sovereignty for theſe "five Years laſt paſt.

King William's Memorial to the Prince of Conti.

"But underſtanding the preſent Movements "there, occaſion'd by your Highneſs's Pretenſions, "His Majeſty has thought it to be His Intereſt, "to declare more expreſly by His Miniſters at the "Court of France, His Right to that Sovereignty, "hoping that the moſt Chriſtian King would "obſerve an exact Impartiality in that Affair; "and that He would Leave it to the States, who "are Real Judges of it, ſo ſoon as a Convocation "ſhould be ſummon'd together, after the Death "of the Dutcheſs of Nemours: And that His Ma"jeſty thought it reaſonable that your Highneſs "ſhould then propoſe your Pretenſions as well "as the reſt of the Competitors concern'd. The "Aſſurance which His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's "Miniſters thereupon gave of His Impartiality, "are ſo poſitive, that the King my Maſter, "thought He might remain in ſilence till a more "convenient Time to ſettle the Juſtice of His "Claims.

"But the Deſign form'd by your Highneſs, pre"ſently to ſummon a Tribunal, during the Life "of Madam de Nemours, obliges me, according to "His Majeſty's Orders, to repreſent to your High"neſs, That His Majeſty cannot but look upon "ſuch a Convocation as prejudicial to His Right, "contrary to the Laws and Cuſtoms of the Coun"try, and a Means to baniſh Peace and Tranqui"lity from thence.

"I hope your Highneſs will be pleaſed ſeriouſ"ly to conſider, That I have the Honour to lay be"fore you in His Majeſty's Name, and to vouch"ſafe that I may add to what I have ſaid, the Aſ"ſurance of the high Value, and profound Reſpect "I have for your Highneſs.

Mr. Hervart did at the ſame Time preſent another Memorial to the Dutcheſs of Nemours, wherein, in his Maſter's Name, he communicated to her what he had repreſented to the Prince of Conti; aſſuring her Grace of His Majeſty's Favour and Protection. The Dutcheſs and the States of Neufchaſtel, expreſs'd great Acknowledgments of His Majeſty's interpoſing in this Affair: And as for the Prince, he made a very reſpectful Anſwer to the forementioned Memorial, and by Direction from the French Court, immediately return'd to Paris. His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, like a Subtile Politician, not thinking it proper to enter into any Diſpute with the King of England, but ra-1699. ther to ſhew Him all manner of Deference, the better to engage Him in a New Treaty of Partition, which was become neceſſary ſince the Death of the Electoral Prince of Bavaria, which happen'd in this Year, on the 6th of February, N. S.

The Duke of Zell having ſtaid about a Month with King William, went from Loo on the 3d of October, (N. S.) on his Return home; and a few Days after, His Majeſty came to the Hague, where He aſſiſted at the Aſſembly of the States General, when the State of the Forces for the enſuing Year was preſented to them, and order'd to be ſent to the ſeveral Provinces.

The King returns to England.

On the 26th of the ſame Month His Majeſty embark'd in the Maeſe on board the William and Mary Yatcht, and the next Day landed at Margate, lay that Night at Canterbury, and on the 18th (O. S.) arriv'd at Kenſington.

On May 20. the Lord Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen and Citizens of London went to Kenſington, to Congratulate His Majeſty's Safe Return. His Majeſty expreſs'd His Favourable Acceptance of their Affections, and did earneſtly recommend to them the Careful and Vigorous Execution of the Laws againſt all Prophaneneſs, Debauchery and Ill Livers: And alſo, that effectual Care be taken to provide for the Poor, ſo that they may not be neceſſitated to wander about the Streets for Relief. And then His Majeſty was pleas'd to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon Charles Duncomb and Jeffry Jeffreys, Eſquires, the preſent Sheriffs, and William Withers, Eſq; Alderman. On the ſame Day Don Lewis d'Achuna, Envoy Extraordinary from the King of Portugal, had Audience of His Majeſty to notifie the Death of the Queen of Portugal.

Joy and Congratulation.

On the 24th the Parliament met at Weſtminſter, and was further Prorogued to the 16th of November, on which Day the Members of Both Houſes were required by His Majeſty's Proclamation to give their Attendance.

On October 25. the King conferred the Office of Lord Chamberlain of His Houſhold (which had been ſome Time vacant) upon Charles Duke of Shrewsbury, to whom His Majeſty delivered the Key and White-Staff. The 4th of November being His Majeſty's Birth-Day, was obſerved with great Solemnity; His Highneſs the Duke of Glouceſter went in the Morning to Kenſington, to make his Compliment to His Majeſty on this Occaſion. Their Royal Highneſſes the Princeſs and Prince of Denmark dined with His Majeſty at Kenſington, and in the Evening the King and the whole Court came to St. James's, and were entertain'd with a Ball by the Princeſs; the Cities of London and Weſtminſter ſhewing their Univerſal Joy with Fire-Works, Illuminations, and Ringing of Bells.

Parliament meet.

On Thurſday, 16 November, the Parliament met at Weſtminſter, and His Majeſty with uſual Solemnity made this Speech to Both Houſes.

King's Speech.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I Hope you will not think I have called you "out of your Countries too ſoon, if you conſider, that Our Common Security requires a "farther Proviſion ſhould be made for the Safety "of the Kingdom by Sea and Land, before We "are at the end of what was granted for that "purpoſe the laſt Seſſion. And when you enter "upon this Buſineſs, I believe you will think it "neceſſary to take care of the Repairs of the "Ships, and of the Fortifications; without which "Our Fleet cannot be ſafe when it is in Harbour.

"I cannot omit to put you in mind of another "Matter, in which ſo great a number of my Subjects is concern'd, and wherein the Honour of "the Kingdom, and the Faith of Parliaments is "ſo far engag'd, that Our future Security ſeems "to depend upon it; I mean, the making good "the Deficiencies of the Funds, and the diſcharging the Debts contracted by reaſon of the "War. 1699.

"And till we may be ſo happy to ſee the Publick Debts paid, I ſhall hope that no Seſſion "will end, without ſomething done towards leſſening them. While I am ſpeaking to you on "this Head, I think Myſelf obliged to mention, "with a very particular Concern, a Debt which "is owing to the Prince of Denmark, the State "whereof I have order'd to be laid before "you.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

"Theſe Things are of ſuch importance, that I "muſt earneſtly recommend them to your Conſideration, and deſire you to provide the Neceſſary Supplies.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"There is nothing I could more rejoice in, "than that I were not under the Neceſſity of ſo "often asking Aids of My People; but as the "Reaſon of it is evident, becauſe the Funds formerly apply'd to defray the Publick Expence, "are now anticipated for Payment of the Debts "of the Kingdom; ſo it is My Satisfaction, that "you all ſee that nothing of what is demanded, "is for any Perſonal Uſe of Mine: And I do faithfully aſſure You, That no Part of what is given "ſhall be diverted from any Purpoſe for which it "is deſigned.

"I believe the Nation is already ſenſible of the "Good Effects of Peace, by the manifeſt Increaſe "of Trade, which I ſhall make it My Buſineſs to "encourage by all Means in My Power. Probably it might receive an Advantage, if ſome "Good Bill were prepared for the more effectual preventing and puniſhing Unlawful and Clandeſtine Trading, which does not only tend to "Defraud the Publick, but prejudice the Fair "Merchant, and diſcourage Our Own Manufactures.

"The Increaſe of the Poor is become a Burthen to the Kingdom, and their Looſe and Idle "Life does in ſome meaſure contribute to that "Depravation of Manners which is complain'd "of. (I fear with too much Reaſon.) Whether "the Ground of this evil be from Defects in the "Laws already made, or in the Execution of "them, deſerves your Conſideration. As it is "an Indiſpenſible Duty, that the Poor, who are "not able to help themſelves, ſhould be maintain'd, ſo I cannot but think it extremely deſirable, that ſuch as are able and willing, ſhould "not want Employment; and ſuch as are obſtinate and unwilling, ſhould be compell'd to Labour.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I have a full Aſſurance of the Good Affections of my People, which I ſhall endeavour "to preſerve by a conſtant Care of their Juſt "Rights and Liberties; by Maintaining the Eſtabliſhed Religion, by ſeeing the Courſe of "Juſtice kept Steady and Equal, by Countenancing Vertue, and Diſcouraging Vice, and by "declining no Difficulties or Dangers where "their Welfare and Proſperity may be concerned. Theſe are my Reſolutions; and I am "perſuaded that you are come together with "Purpoſes on your Part ſuitable to thoſe on Mine.

1699. "Mine. Since then Our Aims are only for the "General Good, let Us act with Confidence in "One Another; which will not fail, by God's "Bleſſing, to make Me a Happy King, and you a "Great and Flouriſhing People.

This Excellent Speech ſeem'd to reliſh of the Diſſatisfaction which the King had expreſs'd upon the Proceedings of the Commons, when He laſt parted with them. But theſe gentle Intimations of Diſpleaſure ſerv'd to irritate, rather than to mitigate a great Number of Perſons, who did not love to ſeem to be Accus'd, nor ſo much as Suſpected, whatever Occaſions might be given for it: And therefore the Commons, upon a Conſideration of His Majeſty's Speech, agreed to offer this Humble Addreſs to the King.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

Addreſs of the Commons.

"We Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal "Subjects, the Commons in Parliament Aſſembled, being highly ſenſible, that nothing is more "Neceſſary for the Peace and Welfare of this "Kingdom, the Quieting the Minds of Your "People, and Diſappointing the Deſigns of Your "Enemies, than a mutual and entire Confidence "between Your Majeſty and Your Parliament, "do eſteem it our greateſt Misfortune, that after having ſo amply provided for the Security "of Your Majeſty and Your Government, both "by Sea and Land, any Jealouſie or Diſtruſt "hath been raiſed of our Duty and Affections "to Your Sacred Majeſty and Your People; "and beg Leave humbly to Repreſent to Your "Majeſty, That it will greatly conduce to the "Continuing and Eſtabliſhing an Entire Confidence between Your Majeſty and Your Parliament, that You would be pleaſed to ſhew "Marks of Your high Diſpleaſure towards all "ſuch Perſons who have, or ſhall preſume to "Miſrepreſent their Proceedings to Your Majeſty.

"And Your Commons (having likewiſe a due "ſenſe of the great Care and Concern Your "Majeſty has always expreſs'd for Preſerving "and Maintaining the Religion, Rights, and "Liberties of Your People, in Defence of which "Your Majeſty hath ſo often expoſed Your "Royal Perſon) will uſe their utmoſt Care and "Endeavours to Prevent and Diſcourage all Falſe "Rumours and Reports reflecting upon Your "Majeſty and Your Government, whereby to "create any Miſunderſtandings between You and "Your Subjects.

The King was ſo far from Expoſtulating upon the Senſe of this Addreſs, that He wiſely ſeem'd to take it on the ſofter Side, and expreſs'd His Thanks for it in a ſingular Air of Lenity and Good Nature.

Gentlemen,

King's wiſe Anſwer.

"My Parliaments have done ſo great Things "for Me, and I have upon all proper Occaſions "expreſs'd ſo great a Senſe of their Kindneſs, "and my Opinion has been ſo often declar'd, "that the Happineſs of an Engliſh King depends "upon an entire good Correſpondence between "Him and His Parliament, that it can't ſeem "ſtrange for Me to aſſure you, that no Perſons "have ever yet dared to go about to Miſrepreſent to Me the Proceedings of either Houſe. "Had I found any ſuch, they would have immediately felt the higheſt Marks of my Diſpleaſure. It is a Juſtice I owe not only to "my Parliaments, but to every one of My Subjects, to judge of them by their Actions: And "this Rule I will ſteadily purſue. If any ſhall "hereafter attempt to put Me on other Methods, "by Calumnies or Miſrepreſentations, they will "not only fail of Succeſs, but ſhall be looked "upon, and treated by Me as My worſt Enemies.

Gentlemen,

"I am pleaſed to ſee by your Addreſs, that "you have the ſame Thoughts of the great Advantages which will enſue to the Kingdom "from our mutual Confidence, as I expreſſed to "Both Houſes at the Opening of the Seſſion. "I take very kindly the Aſſurance you give Me, "of uſing your utmoſt Care and Endeavour to "prevent and diſcourage all falſe Rumours and "Reports reflecting upon Me and My Government: And I faithfully Promiſe you, that no "Actions of Mine ſhall give a juſt Ground for "any Miſunderſtanding between Me and My "People.

Commiſſioners for Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland.

The Commons in the laſt Seſſion of Parliament, had appointed Seven Commiſſioners for taking an Account of the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland; the Earl of Drogheda, Francis Anneſley, Eſq; John Trenchard, Eſq; James Hamilton, Eſq; Henry Langford, Eſq; Sir Richard Leving, and Sir Francis Brewſter: Who having Executed their Commiſſion with great Application and Fidelity, they fram'd a Report which was Preſented to the Commons by Mr. Anneſley, and wherein they ſet forth:

"That they met with great Difficulties in "their Enquiry, which were occaſioned chiefly "by the backwardneſs of the People of Ireland "to give any Information, out of fear of the "Grantees, whoſe Diſpleaſure in that Kingdom "was not eaſily borne; and by Reports induſtriouſly ſpread and believ'd, that their Enquiry "would come to nothing. Neverthelesſ, it appear'd to them, that the Perſons Outlaw'd in "England, ſince the 13th of February, 1688. on "account of the late Rebellion there, amounted "in Number to Fifty Seven, and in Ireland to "Three Thouſand Nine Hundred Twenty one. "That all the Lands in the ſeveral Counties in "Ireland belonging to the forfeiting Perſons, as "far as they could reckon, made 1060792 Acres, "worth per Annum 211623 l. which by Computation of Six Years Purchaſe for a Life, and "Thirteen Years for the Inheritance, came to "the full Value of 2685130 l. That ſome of "thoſe Lands had been Reſtor'd to the old Proprietors, by Virtue of the Articles of Limerick and Galloway, and by His Majeſty's Favour, and by Reverſal of Outlawries, and Royal Pardons, obtain'd chiefly by Gratifications to "ſuch Perſons as had abus'd His Majeſty's Royal Bounty and Compaſſion." Beſide theſe Reſtitutions, which they thought to be corruptly procur'd, they gave an Account of Seventy Six Grants and Cuſtodiams, under the Great Seal of Ireland, as to the Lord Romney, three Grants now in Being, containing 49517 Acres; to the Earl of Albemarle in two Grants, 108633 Acres, in Poſſeſſion and Reverſion; to William Bentinck, Eſq; Lord Woodſtock, 135820 Acres of Land; to the Earl of Athlone Two Grants containing 26480 Acres; to the Earl of Galloway, One Grant of 36148 Acres, &c. wherein they obſerved, that the Eſtates ſo mention'd did not yield ſo much to the Grantees as they were here valued at; becauſe as moſt of them had abuſed His Majeſty in the real Value of their Eſtates, ſo their Agents had Impoſed on them, and had either Sold or Let the greateſt part of thoſe Lands at an under-Value. But after all Deductions and Allowances there yet remain'd 1699343 l. 14 s.

1699. 14 s. which they lay before the Commons as the groſs Value of the Eſtates ſince the 13th day of February and not Reſtored. Beſides a Grant under the Great Seal of Ireland, Dated Thirtieth Day of May, 1695. paſſed to Mrs. Elizabeth Villiers, now Counteſs of Orkney, of all the private Eſtates of the late King James, (except ſome ſmall Part in Grant to the Lord Athlone) containing 95649 Acres, worth per Annum 25995 l. 18 s. value, Total 331943 l. 9 s. Concluding, that there was payable out of this Eſtate, Two Thouſand Pounds per Annum to the Lady Suſanna Bellaſis, and alſo One Thouſand Pounds per Annum to Mrs. Godfrey, for their Lives; and that almoſt all the Old Leaſes determin'd in May, 1701. and then this Eſtate would anſwer the Value abovemention'd, —— Sign'd Francis Anneſly, John Trenchard, James Hamilton, and Henry Langford.

Bill for Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland. The Commons having preſented and examined this Report, came to an unanimous Reſolution, 15th of December, That a Bill be brought in to apply all the Forfeited Eſtates and Intereſts in Ireland, and all Grants thereof, and of the Rents and Revenues belonging to the Crown within that Kingdom, ſince the 13th. of February 1688. to the Uſe of the Publick; and order'd a Clauſe to be inſerted in that Bill, for erecting a Judicature for determining Claims touching the ſaid Forfeited Eſtates. They likewiſe reſolved, That they would not receive any Petition from any Perſon whatſoever, touching the ſaid Grants or Forfeited Eſtates; and that they would take into Conſideration the great Services performed by the Commiſſioners appointed to enquire into the forfeited Eſtates of Ireland.

Uneaſie to the King. 'Tis eaſy to imagine how ill theſe Proceedings were reliſhed at Court; but 'tis hardly to be conceived, how uneaſie the King was about the following Paſſage: While the Commiſſioners appointed by Parliament, were diſcharging their Truſt in Ireland, Mr. M---- a Member of the Houſe of Commons, ſent them a Letter (of his own private Motion) wherein he directed them, to make a ſeparate Article of the Lady Orkney's Grants, becauſe that might reflect upon Somebody: Meaning the King. Another Member having learned the Contents of that Letter from Mr. M---- and being zealous to vindicate His Majeſty's Honour, which he thought was ſtruck at in that Letter, Complain'd of it to the Houſe. Being preſs'd to tell his Author, he at firſt excuſed himſelf, alledging he was under an Obligation, not to reveal what had paſt in a Private Converſation; But the Houſe threatning to ſend him to the Tower, he named the Perſon from whom he had this Report; which Perſon, who was alſo a Member of the Houſe, deny'd flatly, that he had ever mention'd any ſuch thing. Thus the affectionate Stickler for His Majeſty being left in the Lurch, the Houſe on January the 15th, Reſolved, That the ſaid Report was Falſe and Scandalous: And a Motion being made, That the Four Commiſſioners for Iriſh Forfeitures, who ſign'd the Report preſented to the Houſe, had acquitted themſelves in the Execution of that Commiſſion with Underſtanding and Integrity; a warm Debate aroſe thereupon, which was adjourn'd to the next Day, when the Commons Reſolved, That the ſaid Commiſſioners had acquitted themſelves in the Execution of their Commiſſion, with Underſtanding, Courage and Integrity; That Sir Richard Leving, one other of the Commiſſioners, had been the Author of the groundleſs and Scandalous Aſperſion caſt upon the Four Commiſſioners before-mentioned; and that the ſaid Sir Richard Leving be committed Priſoner to the Tower of London for the ſaid Offence. Two Days after, the Bill for Applying the Iriſh Forfeitures to the Uſe of the Publick was Read a Second Time, and committed to a Committee of the whole Houſe: Upon this Occaſion, the Courtiers made a Motion, and cauſ'd the Queſtion to be put, That the ſaid Committee be impower'd to receive a Clauſe for Reſerving a Proportion of the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland, to the Diſpoſal of His Majeſty; which paſſing in the Negative, it was Reſolved on January the 18th, That the Adviſing, Procuring and Paſſing the ſaid Grants of the Forfeited and other Eſtates in Ireland, had been the occaſion of Contracting great Debts upon the Nation, and levying heavy Taxes on the People; That the adviſing and paſſing the ſaid Grants, was highly reflecting on the King's Honour; And that the Officers and Inſtruments concern'd in the Procuring and Paſſing theſe Grants, had highly fail'd in the Performance of their Truſt and Duty.

By this Time, the Commons were enter'd upon the Buſineſs of the Supply, and had at ſeveral Times made the following Reſolutions: That the Sum of 76382 l. now remaining in the Exchequer, upon the Account of the Subſidy of Tonnage and Poundage, with what ſhould ariſe from the ſame Fund, to the 25th of December, ſhould be applied towards the Payment of Seamen's Wages; that whoſoever ſhall advance or lend a Sum, not exceeding 220000 l. for the further Paying of Seamen's Wages ſhould be repaid the ſame, with Intereſt, at Five Pound per Cent. per Annum out of the Firſt Aid to be granted this Seſſion. That Seven Thouſand Men be a Complement for the Sea Service for the Year 1700. for Thirteen Months; And that the uſual Pay of Four Pounds per Month, be allowed for maintaining the ſaid Seven Thouſand Men, including the Ordnance for Sea Service. That 18000 l. be allow'd for Bounty Money to the Officers of the Fleet: And 90000 l. for the Extraordinary of the Navy: That 300000 l. be granted to His Majeſty for Maintaining Guards and Garriſons, and 25000 l. for the Office of Ordnance, for the Year 1700. and that Half-Pay be allow'd to the Disbanded Officers, not otherwiſe provided for: which laſt Vote was principally owing to Mr. How.

In order to raiſe the Supply already granted, the Commons reſolved, to lay a Tax of Two Shillings in the Pound for One Year, upon all Lands, Penſions, Offices, and Perſonal Eſtates; and at the ſame Time, January 26. they appointed a Day to conſider of the Grants made ſince the ſettling the Civil Liſt upon His Majeſty. Ways and Means. Upon the 1ſt of February, the Bill for Levying the Two Shillings Aid was Read a Second Time, and committed to a Committee of the whole Houſe, to whom the Bill for reſuming the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland was alſo committed; and who were order'd to join both the ſaid Bills together, and to receive a Clauſe of Credit, and another of Appropriation. Not many Days after, the Houſe being inform'd that ſeveral Grantees of Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland, were felling Timber, and committing other Waſtes, they reſolved, that ſuch Perſons ſhould be anſwerable for the ſame, and directed the Committee of the whole Houſe to inſert a Clauſe in the foremention'd Bill of Reſumption for that purpoſe. On February the 6th, the Commons reſolved to grant a Supply to His Majeſty for the diſcharging the Debt due to the Army.

Towards the middle of February, the Commons in a Grand Committee conſider'd the State of the Nation, and a Motion being made, and the Queſtion put, That the Procuring or Obtaining of Grants of Eſtates belonging to the Crown, by any publick Miniſter concern'd in the Directing or Paſſing ſuch Grants, to or for their own Uſe or Benefit, whilſt the Nation lay under the heavy Taxes of the late

1699. late War, was highly injurious to His Majeſty, and prejudicial to the State, and a Violation of the Truſt repoſed in them; the Court Party carried it in the Negative; but at the ſame Time, they gave their Conſent to an Order for bringing in a Bill, To Reſume the Grants of all Lands and Revenues of the Crown, and all Penſions granted by the Crown ſince the 6th of February, 1684. and for applying the ſame to the uſe of the Publick: Which Order was however of no Effect, by Reaſon it touch'd many of King James's Friends. On February the 15th the Commons proceeded to conſider further of the State of the Nation; and upon a very hot and long Debate, it was reſolved, That an Addreſs be preſented to His Majeſty, repreſenting to Him the Reſolutions of this Houſe of the 18th of January laſt, relating to Grants of the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland. The ſame Day the Commons reſolv'd "That a Supply be granted to His Majeſty, towards the Payment of his Proportion of the Debt owing to the Prince of Denmark, and the Monies to be raiſed, to be laid out in this Kingdom, and ſettled upon the Prince and Princeſs, and their Iſſue, according to their Marriage-Agreement; That an Addreſs be preſented to His Majeſty, That He would pleaſe to uſe His Endeavours to procure other Princes and States to pay their Proportions of the Debt due to his Royal Highneſs. And that a Supply be alſo granted to His Majeſty, for the carrying on the Coinage of the Gold and Silver of this Kingdom; for continuing the Contracts and Circulating Exchequer Bills for One Year longer; for making good both the Deficiences of the Aid of Three Shillings in the Pound, granted in the Eighth Year of His Majeſty's Reign; of the Duty on Paper and Parchment, granted the ſame Seſſion of Parliament; of Malt Tickets, and of the Quarterly Poll granted in the Ninth Year of His Majeſty's Reign; for paying off the Debt due for Tranſport Service; and laſtly, for the Payment of the Debt due to the Navy, and the Sick and Wounded Seamen." Towards raiſing of which Supplies, the Commons reſolv'd on February 17. That only one Moiety of the ſeveral Duties paid upon the Importation of Tallow-Candles from Ireland, be drawn back upon the Exportation thereof. That the Forfeited Eſtates and other Intereſts in Ireland, to be veſted in Truſtees, for the benefit of the Publick, be applied towards Satisfaction of the ſaid Debt to the Army, the Tranſport Debts, and Tallies or Tickets upon Deficient Funds: And that a farther Duty be laid upon Wrought Silks, Bengals, and Stuffs mix'd with Silks, or Herba, of the Manufacture of Perſia, China, or Eaſt-India; and all Callicoes Painted, Died, Printed, or Stain'd there, until the 30th of September, 1701.

On the 21ſt of February the Commons in a Body having waited upon the King, with their Addreſs of the 15th of that Month, in relation to the Iriſh Forfeitures, His Majeſty told them;

King's Anſwer to the Commons.

Gentlemen,

"I was not only led by Inclination, but thought my Self obliged in Juſtice, to Reward thoſe who had ſerv'd well, and particularly in the Reduction of Ireland, out of the Eſtates Forfeited to me, by the Rebellion there. —— The long War in which we were engag'd, did occaſion great Taxes, and has left the Nation much in Debt; and the taking juſt and effectual Ways for leſſening that Debt, and ſupporting publick Credit, is what, in my Opinion, will beſt contribute to the Honour, Intereſt, and Safety of the Kingdom."

1700. The Speaker having Five Days after reported this Anſwer, the Commons were ſo provok'd by it, that they Reſolved, That whoſoever Adviſ'd it, had uſed his utmoſt Endeavour to create a Miſunderſtanding and Jealouſy between the King and His People. The ſame Day the Commons Reſolv'd, That towards raiſing the Supply, a Duty be laid upon all Hops imported into Ireland, except ſuch as are of the growth of this Kingdom. And on the Firſt of March, Colonel Glanville reported from the Committe of the whole Houſe, who had conſider'd the State of His Majeſty's Revenue, That it was their Opinion, That there had been a great Loſs in His Majeſty's Revenue of Exciſe, to the prejudice of the Publick. To which Reſolution the Houſe Agreed; and moreover Reſolv'd, That it be an Inſtruction to the Committee of the whole Houſe, to whom the Land Tax and Iriſh Forfeiture Bills were committed, that they receive a Clauſe to enable His Majeſty, for the Improvement of the Revenue, to let to Farm the Duties of Exciſe, if He thought fit. And that it be an Inſtruction alſo, that no Member of this Houſe be concern'd in the Farming or Managing the Revenue of Exciſe.

On the 7th. of March, the Commons having taken into Conſideration the Services perform'd by the Commiſſioners appointed to enquire into the Iriſh Forfeitures, Reſolv'd, That the Sum of One Thouſand Pounds be paid to the Earl of Drogheda, Francis Anneſley, John Trenchard, James Hamilton, Henry Langford, Eſq; and to James Hooper, Eſq; Secretary to the Commiſſioners; and the Sum of 500 l. only to Sir Richard Leving, and Sir Francis Brewſter, Two of the ſaid Commiſſioners, in Conſideration of their Expences; which Sums were order'd to be paid out of the Iriſh Forfeitures. On March 12. The Commons made an end of the buſineſs of the Supply; having agreed to theſe Reſolutions. That the Surpluſage over and above 700000 l. of this Year's produce of the Subſidies, Duties, and ſmall Branches of the Revenue, appropriated to the Service of His Majeſty's Houſhold, be applied for the Service of the Year 1700. That towards the further raiſing the Supply already granted, the Sum of 60000 Pounds be raiſed, by enlarging the Time to purchaſe Annuities; That the Additional Duties of 25 l. per Cent. on all French Goods, and 25 l. per Cent. on all French Wines and Brandies, the Duty of Five Shillings per Tun upon all French Shipping, the Plantation Duties, and Duty of one Shilling and Ten-pence per pound weight upon all wrought Silks, be applied for the Service of this preſent Year; That a further Duty to be laid upon all Wrought Silks, Bengalls, and Stuffs mix'd with Silk or Herba, of the Manufacture of Perſia, China, or Eaſt-India, and all Callicoes painted or ſtained there, imported before 30th of September, 1701. be 15 l. per Cent. upon the groſs Sales at the Candle, over and above the Duties now payable for the ſame. And that a further Duty of 15 l. per Cent. be laid upon all Muſlins imported. Which they order'd to be form'd into a Bill, directing the Committee appointed for that purpoſe, to bring Two Clauſes into the Bill; one for a Draw-back of the Duties upon Eaſt-India Goods, upon the Exportation thereof; And another for the Importing Cuſtom-free a certain quantity of Paper for the Printing Dr. Allix's Eccleſiaſtical Hiſtory; which was to conſiſt of ſeveral Volumes in Folio.

On February 9th the King came to the Houſe of Peers, and ſending for the Commons, He gave the Royal Aſſent to a Bill, Entituled, An Act for taking away the Bounty Money for exporting Corn from the Ninth Day of February, One thouſand ſix hundred ninety-nine, to the Twenty-ninth Acts paſſed.

Day

1699. Day of September, One thouſand ſeven hundred. And to a private Act, for enabling Thomas Noble, Gentleman, to Sell the undivided Third Part of the Mannor of Foxton, in the County of Leiceſter, when he ſhall have ſettled other Lands (an entire Eſtate) of a greater Value to the ſame Uſes.

The Grand Committee for Trade, upon the Repreſentations made by the Merchants, of ſeveral Piracies committed in the Eaſt-Indies, by Captain Kidd and his Crew, examin'd the Copies of ſeveral Commiſſions given to the ſaid Kidd; of His Majeſty's Warrant for a Grant of Pyrates Goods to the Earl of Bellamont and others; of an Indenture between His Majeſty and the ſaid Earl; of a Letter from the Lords of the Treaſury to that Earl, about ſending over the Treaſure ſeiz'd in Kidd's Ship; of another Letter to the ſaid Earl, about ſeizing of Kidd; of ſeveral Papers receiv'd from the Earl of Bellamont; and of a Petition of the Old Eaſt India Company, preſented to the King on the 21ſt of September, 1699. And then they brought in a Bill for the more effectual Suppreſſion of Piracy. And on March 16th, upon Information that Captain Kidd was ſent for home, from the Weſt-Indies, the Commons Addreſs'd the King, That the ſaid Captain Kidd might not be Tryed, Diſcharg'd, or Pardon'd until the next Seſſion of Parliament. And that the Earl of Bellamont, Governour of New-England, might tranſmit over all Inſtructions and Papers taken with or relating to the ſaid Kidd. With which His Majeſty complied.

Other Proceedings in Parliament not grateful to the King. Some other Things were done in this Seſſion that could not be grateful to the Court. A Bill was ſet on foot in the Houſe of Commons for qualifying Juſtices of the Peace; and a Committee appointed to inſpect the Commiſſions of the Peace, and Commiſſions for Deputy-Lieutenants as they now ſtood, and as they were for ſeven Years laſt paſt. This Committee having made Report to the Houſe, that not only many Perſons diſſenting from the Church of England, but Men of Small Fortunes, and who conſequently had an entire Dependence on the Court, were put into thoſe Places; the Commons Reſolv'd, That an Addreſs be made to His Majeſty, that it would much conduce to the Service of His Majeſty, and the Good of this Kingdom, that Gentlemen of Quality and good Eſtates be reſtor'd and put into the Commiſſions of the Peace and Lieutenancy; and that Men of Small Eſtates be neither continued, nor put in the ſaid Commiſſions. When this Addreſs was preſented by the whole Houſe, the King gave this Favourable Anſwer.

Addreſs of the Commons about Juſtices of Peace.

Gentlemen,

King's Anſwer. I am of the Opinion, That Men of the beſt Quality and Eſtates are moſt proper to be intruſted in the Commiſſions of the Peace and Lieutenancy, and Directions ſhall be given accordingly.

With which Anſwer the Commons were ſo well pleaſed, that they preſented their Humble Thanks in a Body to His Majeſty; who thereupon took occaſion to ſay farther:

Gentlemen,

I ſhall always endeavour to do what is for the Good of the Publick.

Addreſs about the Allies. Another Umbrage of Diſcontent was taken at the Allies not bearing a Proportion to England in ſome of the Common Burthens and Engagements. They preſented an Addreſs to His Majeſty about the beginning of March, That His Majeſty would uſe His Endeavours to procure other Princes and States to pay the Proportions of the Debt due to the Prince of Denmark. To which the King anſwer'd in an obliging manner; That He would uſe His utmoſt Endeavours for it.

1699.

Growth of Popery. The moſt reaſonable of all Jealouſies and Fears, was the Growth of Popery. On Feb. 21. the Clergy of the County Palatine of Lancaſter had preſented a Petition to the Commons of England, Praying, "That ſuch Effectual Methods as ſhould "be thought fit, might be uſed to ſtop the Growth "of Popery, and prevent the miſchievous Effects "that were otherwiſe likely to be produced by "the Inſolent Behaviour and Attempts of Popiſh "Prieſts." Whereupon Mr. How reported from the Committee appointed to enquire how far the Laws againſt Popiſh Recuſants had been put in execution, and to propoſe what further Remedies were neceſſary to ſuppreſs the Growth of Popery in theſe Kingdoms, and to ſtrengthen the Proteſtant Religion; "That it did not appear to them "that the Laws againſt Popiſh Recuſants had generally been put in execution: That it was "their Opinion, That a further Reward be given to ſuch Perſons as ſhould Diſcover and "Convict Popiſh Prieſts or Jeſuits: That it would "be a further Remedy againſt the Growth of Popery, that perpetual Impriſonment be inflicted "upon Popiſh Prieſts, and Popiſh School-Maſters, "convict upon the Oath of one or more Witneſſes: That no Perſon born after the 25th Day "of March, 1700, being a Papiſt, be capable of "inheriting any Title of Honour or Eſtate within the Kingdom of England, Dominion of Wales, "or Town of Berwick upon Tweed: And that no "Papiſt be capable of purchaſing any Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments in the ſaid Kingdom, either in his own Name, or in the Name "of any Perſon in Truſt for him." The Commons having agreed to theſe Reſolutions, order'd a Bill to be brought in thereupon; which Bill ſoon after received the Royal Aſſent.

Scotch Eaſt-India Company. Beſides the Affairs of England, the Remonſtrances of the Scotch Eaſt-India Company did much perplex His Majeſty's Thoughts. On Dec. 4. 1699, the Council General of that Company writ a Letter to the Scotch Secretary of State in England, acquainting his Lordſhip, "That they had prevail'd upon the Lord Baſil Hamilton to go up "with an Addreſs to His Majeſty, in behalf of "Captain Robert Pinkarton, and thirty more, who "were wrongfully detain'd Priſoners at Carthagena ſince the beginning of February (then) laſt "paſt; and, as they were inform'd, moſt inhumanly treated. That they were daily importuned by their Relations (who were very conſiderable) for their Relief; and it was of great "Concern to the Company, that ſomething material ſhould be done ſpeedily therein, not only "for the ſake of the ſaid Priſoners, but that "others might thereby ſee they did not abandon "the Intereſt of ſuch as engag'd themſelves in "their Company's Service. Wherefore they intreated his Lordſhip, That he would be pleaſed "to introduce the Lord Baſil Hamilton to the "King, in preſenting the ſaid Addreſs, and to "aſſiſt him in procuring a gracious Return from "His Majeſty." Thereupon the Lord Chancellor writ a Letter to the Scotch Directors, importing, That His Majeſty's Secretaries of State acquainted Him, That the King would not allow Lord Baſil Hamilton Acceſs to Him, becauſe he did not wait upon His Majeſty when he was formerly in London; and that he had never ſince given any Publick Evidence of his Loyalty, nor had 1699. hitherto own'd His Majeſty's Government. But that His Majeſty would not refuſe to hear what my Lord Baſil's Inſtructions were, being willing to be informed of what the Company deſir'd: And that if the Lord Baſil would give in Writing to His Majeſty's Secretaries what he had to preſent, His Majeſty would receive Information from their Hands of what was demanded, and would give his Anſwer to the Company. In ſhort, That His Majeſty did not refuſe the Petition, but would not allow my Lord Baſil to be the Preſenter of it. At the ſame Time His Majeſty, to give the Company all the preſent Satiſfaction he could, Wrote to his Council of Scotland; " That whereas the Council General of the African Company of that Nation, had by their Letter to the Secretaries of State, deſired that they might give their Concurrence to procure a gracious Return to their Petition, which they had ſent with Lord Baſil Hamilton, and which together with his Inſtructions, he had communicated to the Secretaries of State; and that they had repreſented to him what was deſired in behalf of the ſaid Company; and that he having refuſed the ſaid Lord Baſil Hamilton Acceſs, for the Reaſons communicated to the Lord Chancellor by the Secretaries of State; yet being willing to give an Anſwer to what the Company deſired, his Majeſty was reſolved in the Terms of Treaties, to demand from the King of Spain, that Captain Pinkarton and thoſe of his Crew, who were detained Priſoners at Carthagena, ſhould be ſet at Liberty; That it was His Majeſty's Intention to advance the Trade of Scotland; and that the Subjects of that Kingdom ſhould be allowed the ſame Liberty of Commerce that others enjoy'd with Engliſh Plantations; but that the Three Frigats they demanded, having been given by Parliament for Guarding the Coaſts, he was reſolved not to diſpoſe of them, till He had the Advice of his Parliament.

In anſwer to the ſaid Chancellor's Letter, the Directors ſent another to the Secretaries of State for Scotland, containing in Subſtance, " That the Council General of their Company having thought fit to ſend up one of their Number with an Addreſs to His Majeſty, and with Inſtructions concerning the Contents of their Company's former Petitions, they thought that none could be more capable to diſcharge that Truſt than the Lord Baſil Hamilton, as being throughly vers'd in the Courſe of the Company's Affairs; Nor more acceptable to His Majeſty, as having no Objections made againſt him when he was appointed, ſeveral Lords of His Majeſty's Privy Council, being then preſent. That they were ſurpriz'd to find by a Letter from the Lord Chancellor, that the King would not allow the Lord Baſil Acceſs, becauſe he had not waited on His Majeſty when laſt in London; but his Lordſhip being ſent by, and having Inſtructions from the Council General, they could ſay nothing to it, other than intreat their Lordſhips, That they would uſe their Intereſts with His Majeſty to allow the Lord Baſil to have Acceſs to His Royal Perſon, leſt the Refuſal of it might not be only a Diſcouragement to the Company, and all its Well-wiſhers, but give ground to the World to believe, That his not being allow'd Acceſs to His Majeſty, was upon Account of carrying an Addreſs from the Company, which every Body knew ſtood in need of, and had a juſt Right to His Majeſty's Royal Favour and Protection. They alſo Writ to the Lord Baſil Hamilton, That as they were ſenſible of his generous Condeſcenſion to their Requeſt, in undertaking ſo troubleſome a Journey to London at that Time of the Year, purely to ſerve the Intereſt of his Country; ſo they could not but heartily Regret, That the carrying the Company's Commiſſion, ſhould be the occaſion of puting a diſtinguiſhing Mark upon a Perſon of his Lordſhip's Quality and Merit, as to be denied Acceſs to His Majeſty's Perſon, becauſe he had not Waited on His Majeſty when laſt in London. That No-body was ſo Blind but might ſee through that. And that whereas they never heard that his Lordſhip had ever done any Thing unworthy of his Quality, or inconſiſtent with the Duty of a Loyal and Peaceable Subject; ſo they ſtill hop'd that by his Prudent Management His Majeſty might be undeceived of any Miſrepreſentation he might have of him, and that he would yet condeſcend to grant his Lordſhip Acceſs to His Royal Perſon, with their Addreſs, and give a Gracious Anſwer to the Contents of it, and the other Particulars mentioned in his Inſtructions. 1699.

On the other Hand, the Houſe of Lords in England repreſented in an Addreſs to His Majeſty; " That according to their Duty, being ſollicitous for the Preſervation and Increaſe of the Trade of the Kingdom, on which the ſupport of His Majeſty's Greatneſs and Honour ſo much depended, as well as the Security and Defence of his People, had been very apprehenſive, that the Step made towards the Settlement of the Scots at Darien might tend to the great Prejudice of England, and poſſibly to the Diſturbance of that Peace and good Correſpondence with the Crown of Spain, which they conceived to be very advantageous. That therefore they had taken the ſame into ſerious Conſideration, and thought it proper to be laid before His Majeſty as the common Father of both Countries. And that as they were truly ſenſible of the great Loſſes their Neighbour Kingdoms had ſuſtain'd, both by Men and Treaſure, in their Expeditions to that Place, which they very heartily lamented; ſo they ſhould not endeavour by any Interpoſition of theirs, to defeat the Hopes the Scots might ſtill entertain of the Recovering theſe Loſſes by their further engaging in that Deſign, but that they judged ſuch a Proſecution on their Parts, muſt tend not only in far greater Diſappointments to themſelves, but at the ſame Time, prove inconvenient to the Trade and Quiet of the Kingdom of England. That they preſumed to put His Majeſty in mind of the Addreſs of both Houſes of Parliament, preſented to His Majeſty on the 17th of December, 1695. in the cloſe of which Addreſs His Majeſty would ſee the unanimous Senſe of the Kingdom, in relation to any Settlement the Scots might make in the Weſt-Indies, by virtue of an Act of Parliament paſt about that Time in the Kingdom of Scotland, which was the occaſion of the Addreſs. That they alſo humbly repreſented to His Majeſty, That having received Information of ſome Orders His Majeſty had ſent to the Governors of the Plantations, on that Subject, and the Houſe had on Jan. 18. then laſt paſt, come to this Reſolution, that His Majeſty's Pleaſure ſignified to the Governors of the Plantations, in Relation to the Scots Settlement at Darien, was agreeable to the forementíon'd Addreſs of both Houſes of Parliament; and that " on Addreſs of the Lords againſt the Scots Settlement at Darien.

1699. " on the 8th of that Inſtant February, that Houſe " came to a farther Reſolution, That the Settle- " ment of the Scots Colony at Darien, was in- " conſiſtent with the Good of the Plantation " Trade of the Kingdom. All which they hop'd " His Majeſty would take into His Royal Con- " ſideration.

This Addreſs was carried only by Four or Five Votes, and about Sixteen Peers enter'd their Proteſts againſt it. As for the Commons, they abſolutely refus'd to concur with it; but however, His Majeſty made Anſwer; That having receiv'd a very Dutiful Addreſs from the Houſe of Peers, He was pleas'd to let them know, That He would always have a very great regard to their Opinion, and that He aſſur'd them, that He would never be wanting by all Means, to promote the Advantage and Good of the Trade of England. At the ſame Time His Majeſty was pleaſed to declare, That He could not but have a great Concern and Tenderneſs for His Kingdom of Scotland, and a deſire to Advance their Welfare and Proſperity; and was very ſenſibly touch'd with the Loſs His Subjects of that Kingdom had ſuſtain'd by their unhappy Expedition, in order to a Settlement at Darien: That His Majeſty did apprehend, that Difficulties might too often ariſe, with reſpect to the different Intereſt of Trade between His Two Kingdoms, unleſs ſome Means were found out to unite them more nearly and compleatly; wherefore He took this Opportunity of putting the Houſe of Peers in mind of what He recommended to His Parliament ſoon after His Acceſſion to the Throne, That they would conſider of an Union between the Two Kingdoms. That His Majeſty was of Opinion, That nothing would contribute more to the Security and Happineſs of both Kingdoms; and was inclin'd to hope, that after they had liv'd near a hundred Years under the ſame Head, ſome happy Expedient might be found for making them one People, in caſe a Treaty were ſet on foot for that purpoſe: And therefore He very earneſtly recommended that Matter to the Conſideration of the Houſe. Hereupon the Lords fram'd and paſs'd an Act for Authorizing certain Commiſſioners of the Realm of England, to Treat with Commiſſioners of Scotland, for the Weal of both Kingdoms: To which the Commons refus'd to give their Concurrence. About two Months before, a Complaint was made to the Houſe of Commons of a Printed Book, Entituled, An Enquiry into the Cauſes of the Miſcarriages of the Scots Colony at Darien; and the Houſe having examined the ſaid Book, reſolv'd, That it highly reflecting on the Honour of His Majeſty, and both Houſes of Parliament, and tending to create Jealouſies and Animoſities between the two Kingdoms of England and Scotland, was a Falſe, Scandalous, and Traiterous Libel: Order'd it to be Burnt by the Hands of the Common Hangman, and Addreſs'd His Majeſty to iſſue out His Royal Proclamation for the Diſcovering and Apprehending the Author, Printer, and Publiſher of the ſaid Libel; which Proclamation was publiſh'd accordingly.

King for an Union of Scotland to England.

In the mean Time, notwithſtanding His Majeſty's Proclamation iſſued out in Scotland on the 18th of December laſt, againſt Diſorderly Petitioning, the Scotch went on with a National Addreſs to His Majeſty, which was Preſented by the Marquiſs of Tweedale on the 25th of March; and imported, " That they being deeply affected " with the hard Circumſtances of the Indian and " African Company of His Majeſty's Kingdom " of Scotland, both Abroad and at Home, as be- " ing of Univerſal Concern to the whole Na- " tion: And that His Majeſty having been " pleas'd by His Royal Anſwer to the Council " General of the ſaid Company's Petition, to " ſignifie, That He very much regretted the Loſs " which that Kingdom and the Company had " then lately ſuſtain'd: That upon all Occaſions " His Majeſty would Protect and Encourage the " Trade of the Nation, and that He would or- " der the Parliament to meet when He judg'd " the Good of the Nation requir'd it: That they " were thereby encourag'd in moſt dutiful and " humble Manner, to repreſent to His Ma- " jeſty, That as the Eſtates of Parliament, and " that Nation which they repreſented, had a " peculiar Intereſt in the Concerns of the ſaid " Company, as was particularly manifeſted in " their Unanimous Addreſs to His Majeſty, " Auguſt 5. 1698. ſo they humbly conceiv'd no- " thing could be ſo conducible to ſupport the " Credit and Intereſt of the ſaid Company, un- " der its preſent Misfortunes, as a Meeting of " the ſaid Eſtates in Parliament; and that the " Good of the Nation could at no Time require " their Meeting, more than at preſent. That " they doubted not but that under the Influences " of His Majeſty's Favour and Protection, toge- " ther with the Aſſiſtance which might be rea- " ſonably expected from His ſaid Parliament, " the ſaid Company might be enabled to pro- " ſecute their Undertaking with greater Aſſu- " rance, and better Succeſs than hitherto they " could have done, under the many Stops and " Difficulties which they met with from Time to " Time. Wherefore they in all humble Duty, " moſt earneſtly intreated, and moſt aſſuredly " expected, That His Majeſty would Order His " ſaid Parliament to meet as ſoon as poſſible; " which they doubted not, would tend to the " Honour of His Majeſty, and the general Good " and Satisfaction of the Nation. 1699.

Upon the Preſenting of this Addreſs, one of the Commiſſioners ſignified to the King, That it was hop'd His Majeſty would be pleas'd to look upon it, not only as a Petition for Allowing the Parliament to Sit, but likewiſe as a Teſtimony of the Nation's Concern for the Intereſt of the Indian and African Company. To which His Majeſty was pleas'd to Anſwer, That that would be beſt known in Parliament, and that the Parliament could not Sit before the 14th of May then next enſuing, but that it would Sit then.

On December 14. His Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom, on William Brown of London, Eſq; and on Richard Allen of Summerly, in the County of Suffolk, Eſq; On December 17. His Majeſty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Charles Eyre, Eſq, who was Elected by the Eaſt-India Company to be Governor of Fort-William, and Preſident for the Management of all their Affairs in the Kingdoms of Bengall and Bahar in the Eaſt-Indies. On December 19. His Majeſty granted the Dignity of a Baronet to Richard Newman of Fiſehead Magdalene, in the County of Dorſet, Eſq; On December 30. He conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Andrew Fountain, Junior, of Narford, in Norfolk, Eſq; a Gentleman of great Parts and Learning. On January 9. the ſame Honour was done to Roger Jenyns of Ely, in the County of Cambridge, Eſq; On March 23. His Majeſty conferr'd the Dignity of a Baronet upon Martin Weſtcomb, Eſq; His Majeſty's Conſul at Cadiz.

Honours and Preferments.

As to the State of Religion, the King in His Speech at the opening of the Seſſion, November

State of Religion.

1699. ber 16. had juſtly imputed the growing Burden of the Poor to the Depravation of Manners, occaſion'd by their Looſe and Idle Life; and had deſir'd them to conſider, whether the Ground of this Evil was from Defects in the Laws already made, or in the Execution of them: Promiſing Himſelf to Countenance Vertue, and Diſcourage Vice. Upon which, the Commons Reſolved on November 28. that an Humble Addreſs be made to His Majeſty, That He will be pleaſed to Iſſue His Royal Proclamation, for the Suppreſſing of all Vice and Immorality, and for putting the Laws in Execution relating thereunto. And they Ordered a Committee to be appointed to prepare Heads for a Bill againſt Gaming and Duelling. When the Addreſs was Preſented by thoſe Members who were of the Privy Council, His Majeſty was pleaſed to ſay, That He would ſpeedily comply with the Deſires of the Houſe therein. And accordingly on December 9th. was Publiſhed His Majeſty's Proclamation for preventing and puniſhing Immorality and Prophaneneſs.

Suppreſſing Vice and Immorality.

Archbiſhop of Canterbury's Circular Letter.

The Archbiſhop of Canterbury was a ſteady Promoter of Peace and Piety: And to that excellent Purpoſe, his Grace ſent out this Circular Letter to the Right Reverend the Lords Biſhops of his Province. Dated April 4. 1699.

Reverend Brother,

" My Writing to you and the reſt of our Brethren at this Time, is occaſioned by a ſenſible growth of Vice and Prophaneneſs in the Nation; which, to the great Affliction of all good Men, appears not only in the corrupt Practices of particular Perſons, but alſo in the endeavours that are uſed to ſubvert the general Principles of our holy Religion. And this with a boldneſs and openneſs, far beyond the Examples of paſt Times. So that if a ſpeedy ſtop be not put to ſuch National Provocations, we have juſt cauſe to fear they may bring down the heavieſt Judgments of God upon us. The preventing whereof belongs more immediately to us, who are the Miniſters of Chriſt; and as ſuch, are obliged to the utmoſt care and watchfulneſs in oppoſing theſe Inſtruments of Satan.

" I doubt not but many of the Parochial Clergy are ſufficiently ſenſible, both of their own Duty and the Danger we are in. In the Cities of London and Weſtminſter, and other places, I am ſure the good Effects of their Diligence have been very evident of late Years; but in ſome Parts that are more remote, all of them may not ſo well underſtand either the Arts or the Induſtry of theſe Enemies of Religion. And therefore I thought it a Duty incumbent on the Station wherein Providence has placed me, to deſire of you and the reſt of our Brethren, to warn the Clergy under your Care, of theſe Attempts againſt Religion and Vertue; and to excite them to a Diligence proportionable to the Danger; and to ſuggeſt to them ſuch " Methods as are moſt likely to work a General Reformation. 1699.

" With this Requeſt, I ſend you ſuch Particulars, as, in my Opinion, are very neceſſary to be preſſ'd upon your Clergy, for the attaining ſo deſirable an End. As,

" I. That in their own Lives, and the Government of their own Families, they would make themſelves Examples of a ſober and regular Converſation. It is the Apoſtle's Reaſoning; If a Man know not how to rule his own Houſe (and much more his own Life and Actions) how ſhall he take care of the Church of God? The true Method of working a Reformation Abroad, is to lay the Foundation at Home; which alone can give our Reproofs a juſt Weight and Authority: But till that is done, no Exhortations, whether in publick or private, can either be offer'd with Decency, or receiv'd with Reverence.

" II. To Piety they ſhould add Prudence in all their Actions and Behaviour; which even in Private Chriſtians is a great Ornament to Religion; but in Publick Teachers, is a moſt neceſſary Qualification for the due Diſcharge of their Miniſtry. A Mildneſs of Temper, with a Gravity and Calmneſs in their Converſation, will not fail to gain them a general Love and Eſteem among their Neighbours: And a diſcreet Caution in their Words and Actions, will preſerve them from thoſe little Imprudencies that are ſometimes ſo ſenſible an Obſtruction to the good Endeavours of well-meaning Men. Perſons in Holy Orders are not only bound, in the Conduct of their Lives, to conſider what is Lawful or Unlawful in itſelf, but alſo what is Decent or Indecent in Them, with reſpect to their Character and Function: Abſtaining from all appearance of evil; and giving no Offence in any thing, that the Miniſtry be not blamed.

" III. While our Enemies are ſo very Induſtrious in ſeeking out Objections againſt the Chriſtian Religion, it becomes the Clergy (who are ſet a-part for the Vindication of it) to be no leſs Diligent in their Preparations for its Defence: By acquainting themſelves thoroughly with the rational grounds of Chriſtianity, and the true State of ſuch Points as are the Subjects of our preſent Controverſies; together with the Objections which are uſually made by our Adverſaries of all ſorts, and the effectual Anſwers that have been returned to them by ſo many Eminent Writers of our own Church. That ſo they may be ready on all Occaſions, to do Juſtice and Honour to our Religion; and be able to expoſe the Folly and Ignorance of theſe Gainſaying Men. The Cauſe which God has put into our hands, is undoubtedly good; but the beſt Cauſe may ſuffer by the weakneſs of its Advocate: And when this happens in the matter of Religion, it gives the

• That Eminent and Learned Prelate Dr. Edward Stillingfleet, Biſhop of Worceſter, died at his Houſe in Park-Street, Weſtminſter, the 27th Day of March, 1699. and from thence his Corps was carried to Worceſter, and decently Interr'd among his Predeceſſors, behind the Choir in that Cathedral, in the ſame Grave where his late dear Conſort was laid about Two Years before; near which his Son the Reverend Mr. Stillingfleet, Canon of that Church, and Executor of his Laſt Will, has Erected an elegant Monument, with an Inſcription Written by the Learned Dr. Bentley, his former Chaplain. See the Life and Character of that Eminent and Learned Prelate the late Dr. Edward Stillingfleet; Lord Biſhop of Worceſter, with Account of his Works, Folio and Octavo.

∴ The worthy Dr. William Lloyd, Biſhop of Coventry and Litchfield, was Tranſlated to the See of Worceſter; the very deſerving Dr. John Hough, Biſhop of Oxford, was Tranſlated to Coventry and Litchfield; and the truly Loyal Dr. William Talbot, Dean of Worceſter, was Conſecrated Biſhop of Oxford; at Lambeth, on Sunday the 24th of Septem. 1699. by the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, aſſiſted by the Biſhops of London, Rocheſter and Norwich.

See A Sermon Preach'd at the Church of St. Mary le Bow, to the Societies for Reformation of Manners, 26 June, 1699. by Edward Lord Biſhop of Glouceſter, London, 1699. 8*vo.*

See A Letter from a Miniſter in the Country, to a Miniſter in London, giving an Account of the Original, Nature, and Deſign of the Societies of the Clergy in Bedford and Buckingham Shires. Dat. Sept. 8. 1699. 4*to.*

1699. "Adverſary an occaſion of Triumph, and is apt to ſtagger the Faith even of ſincere and unprejudic'd Chriſtians.

"IV. It were to be wiſh'd, that the Clergy of every Neighbourhood would agree upon frequent Meetings, to conſult for the good of Religion in general; and to adviſe with one another about any Difficulties that may happen in their particular Cures. By what Methods any evil Cuſtom may moſt eaſily be broken; how a Sinner may be moſt effectually Reclaim'd; and (in general) how each of them in their ſeveral Circumſtances may contribute moſt to the advancement of Religion. Such Conſultations as theſe, beſides the mutual Benefit of Advice and Inſtruction, will be a natural means to excite the Zeal of ſome, to reduce the over-eagerneſs of others to a due Temper, and to provoke all to a Religious Emulation in the Improvement of Piety and Order within their reſpective Pariſhes. And theſe Meetings might ſtill be made a greater Advantage to the Clergy, in carrying on the Reformation of Mens Lives and Manners, by inviting the Church-Wardens of their ſeveral Pariſhes and other Pious Perſons among the Laity, to join with them in the Execution of the moſt probable Methods that can be ſuggeſted for thoſe good Ends. And we may very reaſonably expect the happy Effects of ſuch a Concurrence, from the viſible Succeſs of that Noble Zeal wherewith ſo many about the great Cities in my Neighbourhood, do promote true Piety, and a Reformation of Manners. And therefore I deſire you, that you will particularly excite your Clergy to the procuring ſuch Aſſiſtances as theſe, for the more effectual diſcharge of their own Duty.

"V. It would very much further and facilitate all their Endeavours of this kind, to gain over the Perſons who have the greateſt Eſteem and Authority in their Pariſhes, to a hearty Concern for the Honour of God and Religion: Frequently ſuggeſting to them the Obligation that God has laid upon them to be Examples to others; and the great good that it is in their Power to do, by ſetting a Pattern of regular Living, and the unſpeakable Miſchief of their irregular Behaviour. For if once the better ſort can be brought to ſuch a Seriouſneſs and Sobriety, the reſt will more eaſily follow: Example being the moſt powerful Inſtruction; and Experience teaching us that Shame and Fear, which ariſe from the Authority of ſuch good Patterns, are commonly the moſt effectual Reſtraints upon the meaner ſort.

"VI. When any Perſon is Obſtinate in his Vices, and not to be Reclaimed either by Teaching or Example, by Exhortation or Reproof; the Ordinary ought to be informed of it, that he may proceed to Reclaim ſuch by Eccleſiaſtical Cenſures; and where thoſe are like to prove ineffectual, the Civil Magiſtrate muſt be applied to, and deſired to proceed againſt them according to the Laws in thoſe Caſes provided. Which Information and Requeſt, eſpecially in the Caſe of ſuch incorrigible Offenders, can be made by none ſo properly as by the Clergy; who may beſt be ſuppoſed to underſtand the neceſſity there is of having recourſe to the Civil Magiſtrate. And ſince our Law-givers have Enacted theſe Temporal Puniſhments, on purpoſe to aſſiſt us in the diſcharge of our Miniſtry; it would be a great failing in us, not to make uſe of them, when all other Methods have been tried to little or no Effect. 1699.

"VII. Every Pious Perſon of the Laity, ſhould, if need be, be put in mind by the Clergy, that he ought to think himſelf oblig'd to uſe his beſt Endeavours to have ſuch Offenders puniſhed by the Civil Magiſtrate, as can no otherwiſe be amended. And that when he hears his Neighbour Swear or Blaſpheme the Name of God, or ſees him offend in Drunkenneſs or Prophanation of the Lord's Day, he ought not to neglect to give the Magiſtrate notice of it. In ſuch a Caſe to be called an Informer, will be ſo far from making any Man Odious in the judgment of Sober Perſons, that it will tend to his Honour, when he makes it appear by his unblameable Behaviour, and the Care he takes of Himſelf and his own Family, that he doth it purely for the Glory of God, and the good of his Brethren. Such well-diſpoſed Perſons as are reſolved upon this, ſhould be encouraged to meet as oft as they can, and to conſult how they may moſt diſcreetly and effectually manage it in the Places where they live.

"VIII. As in reforming the Laity, they ought to uſe the Aſſiſtance of the Civil Magiſtrate; ſo if any of their own Brethren be an irregular Liver, and cannot be reclaim'd by Brotherly Admonition, the Neighbouring Clergy ſhould be ſtrictly enjoined to make it known to their Dioceſan, either by themſelves or the Archdeacon, or by ſome other convenient way. That ſo the Offender may be Admoniſh'd to live ſuitable to his Character; and if a bare Admonition will not do, he may be proceeded againſt by Eccleſiaſtical Cenſures; for the preventing ſuch Scandals and Miſchiefs as will always accompany the irregular Life of a Miniſter of the Goſpel.

"IX. And whereas the Foundations of Piety and Morality are beſt laid at the beginning, in the Religious Education of Children; I cannot but wiſh that every one of the Parochial Clergy would be very diligent in Catechiſing the Children under their Care; and not only ſo, but in calling upon them afterwards as they grow up, to give ſuch further Account of their Religion, as may be expected from a riper Age. That being thus carefully inſtructed in the Faith and Duty of a Chriſtian, they alſo may teach their Children the ſame; and ſo Piety, Vertue and Goodneſs, may for ever Flouriſh in our Church and Nation.

"Theſe Directions, with ſuch others of the ſame nature as will occur to you, I deſire may be Tranſmitted by you to the Clergy of your Dioceſe; for the Religious Government of themſelves, and their People, in theſe dangerous Times. So recommending You and Them to the Bleſſing of God, I reſt

Your Affectionate Brother,

Tho. Cantuar.

See, A Letter of John Lord Biſhop of Oxon, to the Clergy of his Dioceſe, ſending his Grace's Letter, and heartily recommending a due Obſervance of it. Dated April 6. 1699. 4to.

The

1699.

The Majority of the Commons were well affected to the Church of England, and ſeem'd to " ſuſpect that the Court had ſhewn too much Fa" vour to the Diſſenters: It was upon this Jealouſie, that a Committee complain'd, that Many Perſons diſſenting from the Church of England, were made Juſtices of Peace: tho' upon Enquiry it did not appear that any two Men were Commiſſioned in the Peace, or Lieutenancy, who deſerved the Name of Diſſenters; though ſome of them indeed were but Occaſional Conformiſts; which, if it proceeded from the Intention of getting or keeping Places, was a Shameful Practice. And the Indignation which many ſincere Chriſtians had on this account, gave the better colour to ſome People, for appearing with extraordinary warmth againſt Diſſenters; and to love to be diſtinguiſh'd by the Name of High Church Men; and to treat all Perſons of Charity and Moderation with the Character of Low Church, and Whigs, and even Fanaticks; though Men of the greateſt Affection to the Church, and of the ſtricteſt Conformity to the eſtabliſh'd Rules of it. Under this new Spirit of Diviſion, the very Prelates of the Church were to fall into Suſpicion and Reproach: Hence on December the 13th, a Motion was made in the Houſe of Commons, and the Queſtion was put, That an Humble Addreſs be made to His Majeſty, for Removing Gilbert Lord Biſhop of Sarum, from being Preceptor to his Highneſs the Duke of Glouceſter. But the Majority of that Honourable Body were ſenſible of the unreaſonable Prejudice, and ſo it Paſſed in the Negative. However, there was a Jealouſie fomented, of the Church being betrayed by Moderate Men, and it was unhappily increaſed by a Paſſage that made a great deal of Noiſe. Mr. William Stephens, B. D. Rector of Sutton in Surry, a Man of looſe Principles, and of no ſtrict Converſation, was appointed to Preach before the Houſe of Commons, on January the 30th. He had been always a Bold Talker for Rights and Liberties, and therefore he choſe the ſame Subject on this Day, and ſeem'd to aſſert the Original Power of the People in ſuch a manner, as look'd towards excuſing the Murder of King Charles I. and directly ſuggeſted, that after an Act of Oblivion and length of Time, the Obſervation of the Anniverſary Faſt need not to be longer continued; but rather for Charity and Peace to be now utterly Aboliſh'd. This Doctrine was ſo diſreliſh'd, and the Man ſo unacceptable; that when a Motion was the next day made, and the Queſtion put, That the Thanks of this Houſe be given to Mr. Stephens for the Sermon Preached by him Yeſterday at St. Margaret's Weſtminſter: It paſſed in the Negative. And it was Reſolved, That for the future, no Perſon be Recommended to Preach before this Houſe, who is under the Dignity of a Dean in the Church, or hath not taken his Degree of Doctor in Divinity.

Unhappy diſtinction of High Church and Low Church.

Offence given by Mr. William Stephens.

Bill for the Duke of Norfolk's Divorce.

In this Seſſion, the Duke of Norfolk, upon the Precedent made the laſt Year in the Caſe of the Earl of Macclesfield, lodg'd a Bill in the Houſe of Peers, to Diſſolve his Marriage with the Lady Mary Mordant, and to Enable him to Marry again; which in few Days Paſſed Both Houſes, notwithſtanding the Oppoſition of the Dutcheſs. The Duke did not Marry again, and after his Death, the Dutcheſs took Sir. John Germain to be her Lawful Husband. The Duke's Caſe was thus deliver'd, with Reaſons for Paſſing the Bill.

1700.

The Duke's Arguments for it.

If want either of Precedent or Parliamentary Divorce, before going through the tedious and ineffectual Methods of Doctors Commons, or of Demonſtration of Fact, have hitherto deprived the Duke of Norfolk of that Relief againſt his Wife's Adultery, which the Divine Law allows; The late Statute made in the like Caſe, and the coming in of Two Witneſſes, who while the Duke's former Bill was depending, had been ſent away to prevent that Diſcovery which they now make, cannot but be thought to remove all Objections againſt an Act of Parliament, not only for the Benefit of the Duke, but of the Publick; as a means to preſerve the Inheritance of ſo great an Office and Honours, to Perſons of the True Religion.

And ſince Biſhop Cozens his Argument in the Lord Roſs's Caſe has made it Evident, that thoſe Canons which govern the Spiritual Court in this Matter, are but the Remains of Popery; Nothing can be now requiſite to ſatisfie the moſt Scrupulous of the Reformed Religion, but to ſet the Duke's Proofs of his Lady's Adultery in a true Light.

The Reputation which the Dutcheſs had maintain'd of Wit and Diſcretion, made it difficult for many to believe that ſhe could be ſurpriz'd in the very Act of Adultery, as had been formerly prov'd. And though then it appear'd that one Henry Keemer liv'd with the Dutcheſs, while ſhe went by a Feigned Name, at a Houſe hired for her at Fox-hall, by Sir John Jermain's Brother; and that Nicola, who then liv'd with Sir John, uſed to receive Wood ſent from the Dutcheſs to Sir John's Houſe by the Cock-Pit; the withdrawing of Nicola, and carrying with him the Dutch Maid, equally intruſted with the Secret on Sir John's ſide, left no Evidence of their conſtant Converſation, but Keemer ſince dead, and Suſannah Barrington, who had the like Truſt from the Dutcheſs.

Keemer, though very unwillingly, ſome Years ſince confeſſed his living with the Dutcheſs at Fox-Hall, where ſhe pretended ſhe was obliged to conceal herſelf for Debt; and what Share Suſannah had kept ſecret, was unknown, till Nicola appear'd: Nicola coming into England, and being deſtitute of a Service, expreſs'd his readineſs to diſcover what he knew, and to bring with him the Dutch Maid.

She proves, That for Two Months, the firſt Summer after the King came for England, Sir John Jermain and the Dutcheſs liv'd together as Man and Wife, and were ſeen in Bed by her, Mr.

• The Lord Arch-biſhop of Canterbury, conſidering the Difficulties put upon the Country Clergy, by want of an eaſy Recourſe to the Articles, Canons, and Statutes; by which they were to Regulate their Offices, and Lives, did with ſome Pains and Expence, provide for that Defect, by cauſing to be Publiſh'd a Manual, Intitled, A Collection of Articles, Canons, Injunctions, &c. Together with ſeveral Acts of Parliament concerning Eccleſiaſtical Matters; ſome whereof are to be Read in Churches. London, for the King's Printers. 1699. 8*vo.* With a ſhort Preface ſhewing the conſiderable uſe of it; eſpecially to thoſe who are in Holy Orders.

By the Advice and Influence of his Grace the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, there was laid this Year, the Foundation of the Society for Propagating the Goſpel in our Engliſh Plantations, and other Parts in America, by Propoſals for the Encouragement and Promoting of Religion and Learning in the Foreign Plantations, and to induce ſuch of the Clergy of this Kingdom, as are Perſons of Sobriety and Abilities to accept of a Miſſion into thoſe Parts; with Means of obtaining Parochial Libraries, and an Approbation of the Deſign, Subſcribed by the Lords the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Archbiſhop of York, Biſhops of London, Coventry and Litchfield, Worceſter, Ely and Norwich. Apoſtolical Charity, 4*to*. 1699.

(a) See, The Proceedings upon the Bill of Divorce, between his Grace the Duke of Norfolk, and the Lady Mary Mordant. Appointed to be Printed, 29 March 1700. Folio.

1700. Bryan and his Wife, Sir John's Siſter: And that Nicholas Hanſeur, Sir John's Valet de Chambre, uſed to be aſſiſting to him, as the Dutcheſs's Woman, Suſannah Barrington, was to her at going to Bed and riſing.

She proves the like Converſation at Fox-hall, and the Dutcheſs's Houſe at the Mill-Bank, till the Duke's firſt Bill of Divorce was depending; within which Time Nicholas Hanſeur, by Sir John's Order, carried her away, and Suſannah Barrington, with intention of going for Holland, to prevent their being examined to what they knew; but the Wind proving contrary, they could not go till the Bill was rejected; and then Sir John fetch'd back Suſannah, who was moſt uſeful to the Dutcheſs; but Hanſeur went for Holland with Ellen.

He confirms Ellen's Evidence in every Particular; and beſides the Perſons mention'd by Ellen, as privy to Sir John's Intriegue, names Sir John's Brother Daniel. Nicholas having been found very truſty, his Maſter ſent for him to return to his Service, and gave him the Opportunity of proving the Continuance of the ſame Converſation at ſeveral Times and Places, from the Summer 1692, to the 26th of April 1696. He ſwears he had after his Return to Sir John's Service, ſeen them in Bed together in Sir John's Houſe at the Cock-Pit, and at the Dutcheſs's Houſe at Mill-Bank, where ſhe now lives; and uſed to be let into the Dutcheſs's Apartment by Suſannah Barrington, or Keemer. Nor can any Man who ſhall read the Ample Teſtimonials given Mr. Hanſeur by Sir John; by the laſt of which it appears, that he ſerv'd him faithfully as his Steward, reaſonably queſtion Hanſeur's Credit.

Another who had been advanc'd by Sir John from his Footman to Mr. Hanſeur's Place, and from thence to a good Office in the Exciſe, very unwillingly confirm'd the Teſtimony of Hanſeur, and the Dutch Maid, not only as to the time of their going from the Service of Sir John and the Dutcheſs, but (though being no Foreigner, he could not ſo eaſily be ſent away to prevent Diſcovery, and therefore was not let ſo far into the Secret as Hanſeur and the Dutch Maid;) yet he ſwears the Dutcheſs uſed to come masked to his Maſter's Houſe; that he has gone with him as far as the Horſe-Ferry, towards her Houſe at the Mill-Bank; that then his Maſter ſometimes lay out all Night, and the next Morning he has carried Linnen and Cloaths for his Maſter to Keemer's Houſe, or Keemer has fetch'd them from him: And this he proves to have been ſince the rejecting the former Bill; and about five Years ſince, when he was ſucceeded by Hanſeur, as before he had ſucceeded Hanſeur.

Two other Foreigners, La Fountaine, who had lived with Sir John, and was ſerv'd with Summons at the Dutcheſs's Houſe at Drayton; and Huganoe, who ran away from the Lord Haverſham's ſince Summons was taken out againſt him, ſeem to have had the ſame Truſt that Hanſeur had; for both declar'd, That nothing ſhould oblige them to betray their Maſter's Secrets: One ſaid, No Court could diſpenſe with his Oath of Secrecy; and both declar'd, they would immediately go beyond Sea. Summons have been taken out for Mr. Bryan and his Wife, and Sir John Jermain's Brother (who are, or lately were in Town), to confeſs or deny what Nicola and Ellen appeal to them for: And it cannot be imagin'd that Sir John ſhould chuſe the Honour of being thought to have to do with a Dutcheſs, before the clearing her and himſelf from the Imputation, by bringing his Relations to diſprove the Charge, if what is ſworn to be within their Knowledge is falſe.

And if Sir John's Vanity ſhould prevail with him, at leaſt it is to be preſum'd, that his Relations would be more juſt to him and the Lady, than to ſuffer any thing to paſs againſt them, which they could with Truth and Juſtice prevent. 1700.

But ſince none of them appear, the World will believe their abſenting more than a Thouſand Witneſſes, in Confirmation of what Mr. Hanſeur, Ellen and Baily have ſworn. Whoſe Evidence ſtands untouch'd by any thing offer'd by the Dutcheſs's Witneſſes, but it is plainly confirm'd by them in the Principal Parts.

This being the Nature of the Proofs, 'tis obſervable.

1. There never yet was any Caſe of this kind, where the Evidence was not liable to greater Objections than can be made to this.

Though in the lateſt Caſe of that kind, there was full Conviction of the Lady's having Children while ſhe liv'd ſeparate from her Husband; and the Preſumption was very violent, whoſe the Children were; yet this was but Preſumption, and that was weaken'd by the Preſumption in Law, that they were the Husband's; eſpecially, ſince there was no direct Proof of the Lover's ever lying with her.

2. Though in that Caſe, by reaſon of the Interval of Parliament, and fear of the Deaths of Witneſſes, a Suit was begun in Doctors-Commons, 'twas taken from thence while the Suit was depending; therefore that was rather an Objection againſt proceeding in Parliament, than an Argument for it.

3. In that Caſe ſeveral Witneſſes were examined at the Bars of both Houſes, who had not been examined at Doctors-Commons, nor any notice given of their Names before their Examination.

4. It appears by that Caſe, and the preſent, that the Examinations in Parliament are more ſolemn and certain than thoſe of the Spiritual Court; which depend too much upon the Honeſty of the Regiſter, or his Deputy.

5. Before that Caſe, Parliaments have either 1 Eliz. n.
broken through the Rules which bind the Spiritual Court, as in the Caſe of the Duke of Norfolk, 1 Eliz. where the Parliament ratified a Marriage, as Lawful according to God's Law, though protracted and letted, by reaſon of certain Decrees and Canons of the Pope's Law; or elſe have diſſolved a Marriage where there had been no Application to Doctors-Commons; as in the Caſe of Mrs. Wharton, who had been Married to Mr. Cambel; and yet there had been no Examination of Witneſſes, but what had been before the Two Houſes. 31. 2 and 3 W. and M.

So long before, in the Caſe of Sir Ralph Sadler, upon Proof before the Two Houſes, that the Lady Sadler's former Husband had deſerted her, and diſappeared for Four Years before ſhe Married Sir Ralph, the Parliament legitimated her Children by Sir Ralph. 37 H.VIII.

Whereas ſome object againſt the paſſing the Bill, as if it would countenance a Juriſdiction in the Houſe of Lords to examine ſuch Matters in the firſt Inſtance, or originally; the Objection would be ſame, if it had begun, as it might, in the Houſe of Commons, but in truth would be of equal

1700.

equal force againſt moſt Private, and ſeveral Publick Acts, occaſioned by the Examination of Witneſſes, or notoriety of Fact.

Since therefore the Duke has ſo long, and ſo often in vain endeavoured to be freed from a Lady, publickly fam'd and prov'd to have liv'd with Sir John Jermain, as his Wife, the Duke's former Diſappointments cannot but be powerful Arguments for his ſpeedy obtaining that Juſtice which the Spiritual Court cannot give him, their Power reaching no farther than to that Liberty of living as ſhe liſt; ſome Years ſince ſettled by Articles: but as none of leſs Art and Oratory than her Council, could have turn'd this into Licenſe to commit Adultery, if ſhe liſt, or a Pardon afterwads, had not there been Evidence of her Acting according to ſuch Conſtruction, the Duke would have hoped ſhe had repented of the former Injuries he had received from her; but now hopes ſhe ſhall not longer continue to bear the Name of his Wife, and put him in Danger of being ſucceeded by Sir John Jermain's Iſſue; or deprive him of the Expectation of leaving his Honours, Offices and Eſtate to a Proteſtant Heir.

Reſumption of Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland.

The Reſumption of the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland, was an Affair of great Perplexity to the Commons, and of greater Uneaſineſs to the King and His Miniſters. And though there was ſome juſt Occaſion given for it, by the Promiſes of the King, and the Expectance of the Nation tending that way; and the profuſe diſpoſal of them to Perſons not ſo well deſerving; and the great want of Money to diſcharge the Publick Debts; and the King's declining to accept of ſome Terms of Accommodation that were ſaid to be offered: Yet after all the Arguments for doing of it, the Thing when done would appear to be ſome Indignity put upon the King and His Councils; and a very great Hardſhip upon the Grantees, and the Purchaſers and Tenants under them; and indeed a Confuſion and Diſtraction to the whole Government in Ireland. However, the Commons proceeded in this Matter, and having Conſidered of the Number, Qualifications, and Manner of chuſing the Truſtees for the Bill of Iriſh Forfeitures, they reſolved on March 26, That the Number of the ſaid Truſtees be Thirteen: That no Perſon be a Truſtee, who had any Office or Profit; or was accountable to His Majeſty; or was a Member of this Houſe. And that the ſaid Truſtees be choſen by ballotting. Two Days after, the ſeveral Members of the Houſe having given in Liſts of Thirteen Perſons Names, which were put into Glaſſes, the Majority fell upon Francis Anneſley, James Hamilton, John Biggs, John Trenchard, James Iſham, Henry Langford, James Hooper, Eſquires, Sir Cyril Wyche, John Cary, Gentleman, Sir Henry Sheeres, Thomas Harriſon, Eſquire, Sir John Worden, William Fellows, and Thomas Rawlins, Eſquires. The Two laſt Perſons having equal Voices, either of them muſt have been left out; but the Houſe being informed, that Sir John Worden was a Baron of the Exchequer, in the County Palatine of Cheſter, during his Life, at a Yearly Salary from the Crown, it was reſolved, That the ſaid Sir John Worden was not capable of being a Truſtee in the ſaid Bill; and ſo the other Two ſtood.

On the 2d of April, the Commons paſs'd the Bill, for granting an Aid to His Majeſty, by Sale of the Forfeited and other Eſtates and Intereſts in Ireland; and by a Land-Tax in England, for the ſeveral Purpoſes therein mentioned; and ſent it to the Lords for their Concurrence.

To juſtifie their Proceedings, if not to expoſe the Conduct of the Court, the Commons on April 8. ordered the Report of the Commiſſioners for Iriſh Forfeitures to be publiſhed; "And that the Reſolutions of the 18th of January laſt, the Reſolution of the 4th of April, 1690, relating to the Forfeited Eſtates; His Majeſty's Speech to Both Houſes, the 5th of January, 169⅞. the Addreſs of the Houſe to the King the 5th of February laſt; His Majeſty's Anſwer thereunto the 26th of the ſame February, and the Reſolution of the Houſe thereupon: And laſtly, the Addreſs of the Houſe of Commons, of the 4th of March, 169⅞, and His Majeſty's Anſwer thereunto, be alſo Reprinted with the ſaid Report. And Reſolved, That the procuring or paſſing Exorbitant Grants by any Member now of the Privy-Council, or by any other that had been a Privy-Counſellor in this or any former Reign, to his Uſe or Benefit, was a high Crime and Miſdemeanour."

On the other hand, the Court finding their Party extreamly weak in the Houſe of Commons, endeavour'd to oppoſe the paſſing of the complicated Bill in the Houſe of Lords; to which the Majority of that Illuſtrious Aſſembly were inclin'd; ſome out of Complaiſance to the King, and moſt of them becauſe they looked upon the Tacking of one Bill to another, as an Innovation in Parliamentary Proceedings, and ſuch as evidently tended to retrench, if not wholly to take away the ſhare the Peers of England ought to have in the Legiſlative Authority. But becauſe they could not reject the Bill, without leaving the urgent Neceſſities of the State unprovided, their Lordſhips contented themſelves to make great Amendments to that part of it that related to Forfeitures. The Commons having conſidered and unanimouſly diſapproved the ſaid Amendments, ſent to deſire a Conference with the Lords thereupon; Appointed a Committee to draw up Reaſons to be offered to their Lordſhips; Reſolved, That Two Days after they would proceed in the further Conſideration of the Report given in by the Commiſſioners for Iriſh Forfeitures; and ordered a Liſt of His Majeſty's Privy-Council to be laid before the Houſe.

On the 9th of April a Conference was manag'd between both Houſes, in which the Lords did warmly inſiſt on their Amendments; and the Commons as vehemently maintain their Diſagreement with their Lordſhips. The next Day Two Conferences were had on the ſame Subject, and with as little Succeſs; at which the Commons were ſo exaſperated, that they ordered the Lobby of their Houſe to be cleared of all Strangers; the Back-doors of the Speaker's Chamber to be lock'd up; and that the Serjeant ſhould ſtand at the Door of the Houſe, and ſuffer no Members to go forth, and then proceeded to take into Conſideration the Report of the Iriſh Forfeitures; and the Liſt of the Lords of the Privy-Council. The King being inform'd of the high Ferment the Commons were in, and apprehending the Conſequences, ſent a Private Meſſage (by the Earl of Albemarle) to the Lords, to paſs the Bill without any Amendments; which their Lordſhips did accordingly, and acquainted the Commons with it. This Condeſcenſion did not wholly appeaſe the Commons, who purſuing their Reſentment againſt the preſent Miniſtry, put the Queſtion, That an Addreſs be made to His Majeſty,

The King deſires the Lords to comply with the Commons.

Though againſt his own Judgment and Intereſt.

to

1700. to remove John Lord Somers, Lord Chancellor of England, from his Preſence and Councils for ever. Which though it was carried in the Negative, by reaſon of the acknowledg'd Merit, and great Services of that Peer, yet it was Reſolv'd, That an Addreſs be made to His Majeſty, That no Perſon who was not a Native of his Dominions, except his Royal Highneſs Prince George of Denmark, be admitted to His Majeſty's Councils in England or Ireland.

Parliament Prorogued. The King did not think it proper to receive any ſuch Addreſs, and therefore to prevent the Offer of it, His Majeſty came the Day following, viz. Thurſday, April 11. to the Houſe of Peers, and commanded the Earl of Bridgwater to Prorogue the Parliament to the 23d of May, after His Majeſty had given the Royal Aſſent to theſe many Bills.

Bills paſſed. 1. An Act for granting an Aid to His Majeſty by Sale of the Forfeited and other Eſtates and Intereſts in Ireland; and by a Land-Tax in England, for the ſeveral Purpoſes therein-mentioned. 2. An Act for laying further Duties upon Wrought Silks, Muſlins, and ſome other Commodities of the Eaſt-Indies, and for enlarging the Time for purchaſing certain Reverſionary Annuities therein-mentioned. 3. An Act for the more effectual employing the Poor, by encouraging the Manufactures of this Kingdom. 4. An Act for Aſcertaining the Meaſures for retailing Ale and Beer. 5. An Act to Enable His Majeſty's Natural Born Subjects to inherit the Eſtate of their Anceſtors, either Lineal or Collateral, notwithſtanding their Father or Mother were Aliens. 6. An Act for preventing of Frivolous and Vexatious Suits in the Principality of Wales, and the Counties Palatine. 7. An Act for the better preſerving the Navigation of the Rivers Avon and Froom, and for Cleanſing, Paving and Enlightning the Streets of the City of Briſtol. 8. An Act to enable the Mayor and Citizens of the City of Cheſter, to Recover and Preſerve the Navigation upon the River Dee. 9. An Act for the further preventing the Growth of Popery. 10. An Act for making the River Lork, alias, Burne, Navigable. 11. An Act for the more effectual Puniſhment of Vagrants, and ſending them whither by Law they ought to be ſent. 12. An Act to prevent Diſputes that may ariſe by Officers and Members of Corporations having neglected to ſign the Aſſociation, and taking the Oaths in due Time. 13. An Act for the Repair of Dover Harbour. 14. An Act to Puniſh Governours of Plantations in this Kingdom, for Crimes committed by them in the Plantations. 15. An Act for the more Effectual Suppreſſion of Piracy. 16. An Act to repeal an Act made in the Ninth Year of His Majeſty's Reign, Entituled, An Act for rendring the Laws more effectual for the preventing the Importation of Foreign Bone-Lace, Loom-Lace, Needle-Work, Point and Cut-Work, Three Months after the Prohibition of the Woollen-Manufacture in Flanders ſhall be taken off. 17. An Act for the better aſcertaining the Tythes of Hemp and Flax. 18. An Act to Enable Juſtices of the Peace to Build and Repair Goals in their reſpective Counties. 19. An Act for continuing ſeveral Laws therein-mentioned, and for Explaining the Act, Entituled, An Act to prevent the Exportation of Wool out of the Kingdoms of Ireland and England into Foreign Parts, and for the Encouragement of the Woollen-Manufactures of the Kingdom of England. 20. An Act for the better Explanation, and better Execution of Former Acts made touching Water-men and Wherry-men Rowing on the River of Thames, and for the better Ordering and Governing the ſaid Water-men, Wherry-men and Lighter-men upon the ſaid River, between Graveſend and Windſor. 21. An Act for taking away the Duties upon the Woollen-Manufactures, Corn, Grain, Bread, Biskets and Meal Exported. 22. An Act for raiſing the Militia for the Year 1700, although the Months Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 23. An Act for the appointing Commiſſioners to Take, Examine and Determine the Debts due to the Army, Navy, and for Tranſport Service; and alſo an Account of the Prizes taken during the late War. 24. An Act to Diſſolve the Duke of Norfolk's Marriage with the Lady Mary Mordant, and to enable him to Marry again. 25. An Act for the better Enabling Anne Baldwin, Widow, to Sell a Capital Meſſuage and Lands called Wilton's, and other Lands in the County of Bucks, deviſed by her Husband's Will. 26. An Act for continuing the Governor and Company of Merchants Trading to the Eaſt-Indies a Corporation. 27. An Act for Naturalizing Francis Vandertide, and Agneta Vandermerſh, Henry Lowman, and James Gabriel le Treſor. 28. An Act for the Ship Martha of Margam to Trade as a Free Ship. 29. An Act for rectifying a Miſtake in the Marriage Settlement of Thomas Hopwood, Gentleman, on Elizabeth his Wife, in order to raiſe Portions for Younger Children, and to pay Debts. 30. An Act for the more ſpeedy Payment of the Debts of John Globery, Eſquire, Deceas'd, and for the raiſing Portions and Maintenance for his Children. 31. An Act to enable Thomas May, Gentleman, to Sell Lands in the County of Suffolk, which were ſettled upon his Marriage, and to Convey other Lands in the ſame County, of a greater Value to the ſame Uſes. 32. An Act for Veſting the Real Eſtate of Joſeph Gardner, and Sarah his Wife, late the Eſtate of William Bridges, Eſquire, Deceas'd, in Truſtees to be Sold for Payment of his Debts and Legacies therein-mentioned, and for applying the reſidue of the Money upon the Truſt therein ſpecified. 33. An Act for Sale of ſeveral Weſtern Mannors and Lands, the Eſtate of Arthur Lacey, Eſquire, for Diſcharging a Mortgage thereupon, and for laying out the ſurplus Money in the Purchaſe of Demeſn Lands, to be ſettled to the ſame Uſes. 34. An Act for Naturalizing Theodore Jacobſon and others. 35. An Act for Veſting the Mannor of Exton, and other Lands in the County of Somerſet, late the Eſtate of Thomas Siderfin, Eſquire, Deceaſed, in Truſtees, to be Sold for Payment of Debts. 36. An Act for the ſpeedy and effectual making a Convenient way out of Chancery-Lane into Lincolns-Inn-Fields and Places adjacent. 37. An Act for the Naturalizing of Oliver d' Harcourt and others. 38. An Act for ſettling of the Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, late of Robert Merefield and John Merefield, Eſquire, Deceaſed, and for Aſcertaining the Proportions between the Widow of the ſaid Robert and his Surviving Children. 39. An Act for the ſettling all Differences concerning Dame Mary Bond's Will, and for performing the ſame. 40. An Act for charging the Eſtate of Sir Thomas Robinſon, Baronet, with Seven Thouſand Pounds for the Portion of Anne his Siſter, and for ſettling her Eſtate upon the ſaid Sir Thomas Robinſon in lieu thereof. 41. An Act for confirming a Leaſe and certain Indentures between the City of Norwich and Richard Barry, Eſquire, George Sorocold, Gentleman, and Richard Soame, Merchant, and for Enlightning the Streets of the ſaid City. 42. An Act for ſettling the Eſtate of Katherine Fitzgerald Villars, and raiſing of Money for Payment of Debts, and better ſecuring the Portions of her Five Younger Children by Edward Fitzgerald Villars, Eſquire, her late Husband. 43. An Act to enable Edward Manſel, Eſquire, to Mortgage

1700. or Sell the Impropriate Rectories of Llanridian and Penrice, for Payment of Debts, and raiſing Portions for Younger Children, and for ſettling the Mannor of Hanlyes and other Lands of more Value. 44. An Act for the ſettling the Reverſion and Inheritance of the Farm of Nethercott in the County of Oxon, for Payment of the Debts and Legacies of George Harriſon, Eſquire, Deceaſed. 45. An Act for Veſting certain Lands and Tenements of Sir Joſiah Child, Baronet, Deceaſed, in Truſtees for the better Performance of certain Covenants entred into by the ſaid Sir Joſiah Child, upon the Marriage of his Eldeſt Son with the Daughter of Sir Thomas Cook, Knight. 46. An Act to ſupply the Loſs of certain Indentures of Leaſes and Releaſes heretofore made by Philip Holman, Eſquire, Deceaſed, to George Holman his Son, now alſo Deceaſed. 47. An Act to Enable Henry Butler, Eſquire, to make Leaſes of Part of his Eſtate in Lancaſhire, for Diſcharge of Incumbrances thereupon. 48. An Act for Veſting Part of the Eſtate of Thomas Cooper, of the City of Cheſter, Eſquire, in Truſtees for Payment of Debts. 49. An Act for Confirming the Sale of the Mannor of Slanſal, and certain Tenements in the County of York, made by Thomas Barlow, Gentleman, and for ſettling other Lands of greater Value to the ſame Uſes, and for Veſting other Lands and Hereditaments in Truſtees, to be Sold for Purchaſing other Lands to be ſettled to the ſame Uſes. 50. An Act for the ſettling the Mannor of Fenham in the County of Northumberland, for Payment of the Debts of Thomas Riddell, Eſquire, and Edward Riddell his Son, and raiſing Portions for the Daughters of the ſaid Thomas Riddell. 51. An Act for Sale of Part of the Eſtate of Charles Hore, Eſquire, for Payment of his Debts, and for ſettling other Part in Truſt, for raiſing a Portion and Maintenance for Elizabeth his only Daughter by his former Wife, and for making a Jointure for Mary his now Wife, and for a Proviſion for the Children by the ſaid Mary. 52. An Act to Enable Dalby Thomas, Eſquire, to Sell Lands in Iſlington in Middleſex, ſettled on his Marriage with Dorothy his Wife, as Part of her Jointure, he ſettling another Eſtate of equal or greater Value in lieu thereof. 53. An Act to Enable Truſtees to make Sale of the Inheritance of the Twelfth Part of ſeveral Mannors, Lands and Tenements of Bluet Wallop, Eſquire, during his Minority; and to purchaſe other Lands with the Money, to be raiſed by ſuch Sale, to be ſettled to the ſame Uſes, as the ſaid Twelfth Part was ſo ſettled. 54. An Act to Enable Leonard Weſſel, Eſquire, to Sell the Mannor of Acres-Fleet in the County of Eſſex, ſettled on his Marriage with Sarah his now Wife, as Part of her Jointure, laying out the Money ariſing by ſuch Sale in Purchaſe of other Lands. 55. An Act for taking the Eſtate in Law of ſeveral Meſſuages and Lands, Mortgaged to Jeffery and Samuel Howland and their Heirs, out of Wriotheſley Ruſſel* (commonly called, Lord Marquiſs of Taviſtock) and his Lady. 56. An Act for Naturalizing John Bourges and others. 57. An Act for Naturalizing John Richard Jacob Dabbadie and others. 58. An Act for confirming a Leaſe of a Piece of Ground from the Rector and Church-Wardens of the Pariſh of St. Martins Orgers, London, for liberty to Build a Church thereon, for the Worſhip and Service of God in the French Tongue, according to the Uſage of the Church of England. 59. An Act for the Sale of the Eſtate of Bryan Janſon, Eſquire, Deceaſed, for Payment of Debts, and Proviſion for his Wife and Children. 60. An Act for Naturalizing Iſaac de Lagarde, John Battro and others. 1700.

While the Parliament was ſitting, there was a Second Treaty of Partition concluded March 15, N. S. between England, France, and Holland; whereby inſtead of the Electoral Prince of Bavaria, (who died on the 6th of Feb. 1699. N. S.) the Arch-Duke Charles of Auſtria was to have all the Spaniſh Dominions both within and without Europe; except what by the former Treaty had been aſſign'd to the Dauphin and France: And that the Duke of Lorrain, inſtead of his own Country, which was alſo to be given to France, ſhould have the Dutchy of Milan; and the Prince of Vaudemont the County of Bilche conferred upon him. His Majeſty's Plenipotentiaries for making this Treaty, were the Earls of Portland and Jerſey. But this Treaty of Partition, like the former, was but a preſent Amuſement, and ſerved only for an Occaſion of the more violent Breach of Faith in the French King; and for a Pretence of caſting more Odium upon King William and His Miniſtry.

Immediately after the Parliament was Prorogued (ſays a late Writer) "the King ſent the Earl of Portland to the Lord Chancellor Somers, "to demand the Great Seal of him: Whether "His Majeſty made this Step by His own Determination, or by the Impulſe of His new Favourite, who headed a growing Party, Hiſtory cannot affirm; but 'tis moſt certain, that "thereby His Majeſty loſt abundance of True "Friends, without gaining any Real ones: For "though the Lord Somers had been attacked by "the Commons, yet the Majority of that Houſe "had warmly ſtood up in his Defence. And as "the abandoning ſo Faithful a Miniſter could "not but diſcourage others from embracing "heartily His Majeſty's Service, ſo His Majeſty's yielding ſo tamely (if I may be allowed "the Expreſſion in ſpeaking, of a Prince who "was a Hero in the Field) to the Faint and "Negative Reſolves of the Houſe of Commons, "could not but lay him open to more vigorous "Attacks. Not long after, the Great Seal "was committed to the Cuſtody of Sir Nathan Wright, one of His Majeſty's Serjeants at "Law, with the Title of Lord Keeper, who by "virtue of his Office, took his Place in the Privy "Council. Seals taken from the Lord Somers.

The Removing of the Lord Somers from his high Station, though it diſpleas'd many People, yet it ſeem'd not to affect his Lordſhip, who retir'd with Content and Temper, and upon all Occaſions in Parliament ſerved the King and the Intereſts of the Publick, with the ſame Zeal as if he had not loſt a Place. The admitting the Earl of Albemarle into the moſt Noble Order of the Garter, which the King did on May 14. was generally diſliked; though to make it go down the better, His Majeſty did at the ſame Time beſtow that diſtinguiſhing Mark of Honour on the Earl of Pembroke, Preſident of the Council; who highly deſerved it, not only by his Eminent Services to the Government, but by his Illuſtrious

* See, A true Copy of a Paper delivered by Robert Young, alias, &c. formerly Accuſer of the Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter, &c. delivered to the Reverend Mr. Allen, Ordinary of Newgate, at Tyburn, on the 19th of April, 1700. wherein he thinks himſelf eſpecially obliged to diſcover to the Publick, how far he was concerned in that pretended Plot, ſuppoſed to be carried on by the Earls of Marlborough and Saliſbury, the Lord Biſhop of Rocheſter, and ſome others.

Birth.

1700. Birth. About three Weeks after, the two Knights Elect were inſtalled at Windſor with the uſual Formalities; but it was obſerved, that though the Concourſe of People was extraordinary, great, and the Entertainment very ſplendid, yet few of the Nobility grac'd the Ceremony by their Preſence; and that many Severe Reflections were then made on His Majeſty, for laviſhing away a Garter on His Favourite.

Honours and Preferments. On April 11. His Majeſty conferred the Dignity of a Baronet upon John Chetwode of Oakeley, in the County of Stafford, Eſq; On June 24. the King was pleaſed to confer the Office of Lord Chamberlain (which had been ſometime Vacant) upon Edward Earl of Jerſey; and to make the Earl of Romney Groom of the Stole to His Majeſty; and the Earl of Carliſle one of the Gentlemen of His Bed-Chamber. On June 27. the King, in Council at Hampton-Court, was pleaſed to Declare, That the Publick Affairs requiring His going over to Holland for a ſhort time, He had appointed Thomas Lord Arch-biſhop of Canterbury; Sir Nathan Wright, Lord Keeper; Thomas Earl of Pembroke, Lord Preſident of the Council; John Viſcount Lonſdale, Lord Privy Seal; William Duke of Devonſhire, Lord Steward of His Majeſty's Houſhold; John Earl of Bridgwater, firſt Commiſſioner of the Admiralty; John Earl of Marlborough, Governour to his Highneſs the Duke of Glouceſter; and Ford Earl of Tankerville, Firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, to be Lords Juſtices of England, for the Adminiſtration of the Government during His Abſence. So on July 4. His Majeſty went in the Morning from Hampton-Court, and lay that Night at Canterbury; next Day he came to Margate, and went on Board His Yatcht; and toward Evening ſail'd with a fair Wind for Holland, under a Convoy Commanded by Sir Cloudeſly Shovel; and Arriving next Day in the Maeſe, He Landed at the Orange-Polder; and went directly to the Hague.

Parliament of Scotland. Before His Majeſty left England, He thought it neceſſary to Aſſemble the Parliament of Scotland; and for that purpoſe appointed the Duke of Queensbury to be His High Commiſſioner. On the 21ſt of May, the Parliament of that Kingdom being met at Edinburgh, His Majeſty's Letter to them was firſt Read; which was to this Effect:

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"The great Deſire We have to promote and " advance the Intereſt of that Our Ancient King- " dom, did make Us intend to have held this " Seſſions of Parliament in Perſon, that We " might more clearly have diſcern'd what is yet " Needful to be done, for the full Eſtabliſhment " of your Religion, Laws, and Liberties. And " as Our Deſign in coming to Britain, was the " Relief and Happineſs of the Three Kingdoms, " ſo We are firmly reſolv'd to make it the chief " Deſign of Our Reign, to do every Thing that " may tend to the Advantage and Good of Our " Subjects.

"The preſent Circumſtances of Affairs A- " broad, not allowing of Our being with you at " preſent; We have appointed Our Right Tru- " ſty and Right entirely belov'd Couſin and " Counſellor, James Duke of Queensbury, to re- " preſent Our Royal Perſon, and to be Our Com- " miſſioner in this Seſſion. We are fully ſatisfied " with his Fitneſs and Ability for diſcharging this " Truſt: And we doubt not but his conſtant Loy- " alty to Us, ſince Our Acceſſion to the Crown, " and his Zeal and Fidelity for Our Service, and " the Proſperity and Good of the Kingdom, " which has appear'd on all Occaſions, and in all " the Truſts wherein he has been Imploy'd, will " render him Acceptable to you.

"We have fully inſtructed him in all Things " that We think may fall under your Conſidera- " tion, and ſeem to be Neceſſary at preſent. " Therefore We deſire that you may give him " entire Truſt and Credit. The breaking out of " the War in ſome Places of Europe, the great Arm- " ing by Sea and Land, the uncertain State of the " Publick Peace, and the continued Deſigns of Our " Enemies, both at Home and Abroad, cannot but " convince you that it is neceſſary for your Safe- " ty, That the Forces be Maintained; and We " expect that you will certainly Supply us with " ſufficient Funds for that end.

"We are heartily ſorry for the Misfortunes " and Loſſes that the Nation has ſuſtained in their " Trade; and We will effectually Concur in any " thing that may contribute for Promoting and " Encouraging Trade, That being ſo indiſpen- " ſibly needful for the Welfare of the Nation. " And we do particularly recommend to you the " encouraging Manufactures, and the improve- " ment of the Native Product of the Kingdom, " which is not only the ſureſt Foundation of Fo- " reign Trade, but will be an effectual way for " providing and employing the Poor, whoſe " Circumſtances require your Conſideration and " Aſſiſtance.

"We give you full Aſſurance, that We will " Maintain your Religion, Laws and Liberties, " and Presbyterian Government, as it is Eſta- " bliſh'd. And it will be moſt acceptable to Us, " that you fall upon effectual Methods for prevent- " ing the Growth of Popery, and diſcouraging " Vice and Immorality.

"We have had very many Eminent Proofs of " your Loyalty and good Affection to us, parti- " cularly in all your Proceedings in the laſt Seſ- " ſion, for which We return you Our hearty " Thanks. And ſeeing We have demanded " nothing of you upon this Occaſion, but what " is both neceſſary for your Preſervation againſt " the Deſigns or Attempts of your Enemies, and " for promoting the Welfare and Advantage of " the Nation; Therefore We doubt not but you " will act with Unanimity and Diſpatch, ſo as " all that comes before you may be concluded to " the mutual Satisfaction of Us and Our People. " And aſſuring you of Our Royal Favour " and Protection, We bid you heartily Fare- " well.

After the Reading of this Letter, the Lord High Commiſſioner made a Speech, as did likewiſe the Lord Marchmont, Lord High Chancellor; which done, the Houſe adjourned to the 24th.

The Parliament was but juſt met again, when there came a ſharp Repreſentation to them from the Council General of the African and Indian Company, containing a tedious Rehearſal of their Loſſes, Diſappointments and Grievances: Which Repreſentation was back'd by an Adreſs from the Shire of Haddington: Importing, "That " after a long and expenſive War, they expected " to have enjoy'd the Bleſſing of a happily con- " cluded Peace, by the Re-eſtabliſhment of their " Foreign Trade, Encouragement of Home Ma-1700. " Manufactures, Employing the Poor, in Improvement of their Native Product, and the leſſening of their publick Burdens; but that inſtead thereof, to their unſpeakable Loſs, and almoſt Ruin of the Nation, they found their Trade Abroad ſenſibly decay'd, and their Coin carried out, by the Importation of Commodities from Places where theirs were prohibited; That their Woollen, and other Manufactures at Home, received not that Encouragement which the Good of the Country required; And more eſpecially, That their Company trading to Africa and the Indies, met with ſo much Oppoſition from Abroad, and got ſo little Support at Home, that after ſo great a Loſs of Men, and Expence of Treaſure, it was too probable, that their Settlement in Caledonia would fall a Second time, under the ſame unlucky Circumſtances as at Firſt, if not prevented. That yet, after all thoſe Hardſhips the Nation groan'd under, numerous Forces were kept on Foot, which occaſion'd them, in Times of Peace, heavy and unneceſſary Taxes, while their much wealthier Neighbours were diſbanding their Troops. All which Calamities they could not but look upon as the Effect of the Diſpleaſure of Almighty God, for the Immoralities that every where abounded amongſt all Ranks and Degrees of Men, to the Diſhonour of God, and their Holy Religion, the Debauching the Spirits, and Corrupting the Manners of the People.

There were likewiſe at the ſame Time, ſeveral other Addreſſes and Petitions preſented to the Parliament, complaining of many general and particular Grievances, and praying for Redreſs thereof: After Reading of all which, a Motion being made and preſt, That the Parliament ſhould Reſolve, That the Colony of Caledonia in Darien, was a Legal and Rightful Settlement, in the Terms of the Act of Parliament, 1695. And that the Parliament would maintain and ſupport the ſame; His Majeſty's High Commiſſioner, fearing the Conſequences of this Vote, which was likely to be carried in the Affirmative, did immediately Adjourn the Parliament for Three Days; and at their next Meeting, Adjourned it further for Twenty Days. Whereupon the Plurality of the Members met that very Evening, and ſign'd an Addreſs to His Majeſty, wherein they complain'd, Of their having been interrupted by a ſudden Adjournment, while they were debating a Motion concerning their Colony at Darien, which they conceiv'd was not agreeable to the 40th Act of the 11th Parliament of King James VI. wherein it is enacted, That nothing ſhould be done or commanded, which might directly or indirectly prejudice the Liberty of Free Voting, and Reaſoning of the Eſtates of Parliament. That by a ſubſequent Adjournment of Twenty Days, the Parliament was not permitted to come to any Reſolution in the preſſing Concerns of the Nation, which they could not think conſiſtent with that Article of their Claim of Right, whereby it was declared, That for the Redreſs of all Grievances, of ſtrengthning and preſerving the Laws, Parliaments ought to be frequently Call'd, and allow'd to Sit, and the Freedom of Speech and Debate ſecur'd to the Members. Wherefore they earneſtly intreated His Majeſty, That he would be pleaſed to allow his Parliament to meet on the Day to which it was then Adjourn'd; and to ſit as long as might be neceſſary for Redreſſing the Grievances of the Nation.

This Addreſs being Preſented and Read to the King, His Majeſty ſaid, He would conſider of it. 1700. And at a Second Audience, the Lord Roſs, one of the Commiſſioners, in the Name of the reſt, addreſſing himſelf to the King to this purpoſe: " That they were come by His Appointment to receive His Anſwer to the Addreſs, which they preſented from the Loyal Members of His Parliament of Scotland;" His Majeſty told them, " That he could give no Anſwer at that Time to their Petition; but they ſhould know his Intentions in Scotland.

The Addreſſers finding that the Parliament was further Adjourn'd by Proclamation, and not knowing how ſoon it might be allow'd to ſit, fram'd the Draught of a Second National Addreſs, to be ſign'd by the ſeveral Shires and Boroughs throughout the Kingdom: But while the ſame was carried on, His Majeſty writ a Letter directed to the Duke of Queensbury, and the Privy-Council, which Letter was publiſh'd in the manner of a Proclamation, and wherein the King declar'd, " That if it had been poſſible for Him to have agreed to the Reſolve offer'd to aſſert the Right of the African Company's Colony in America, though that Method ſeemed to Him unneceſſary, yet His Majeſty had from the beginning readily done it, at the earneſt Deſires of His Miniſters, and for His Peoples Satisfaction, all other Conſiderations ſet apart; but ſince that Things were much chang'd, His Majeſty being truly ſorry for the Nation's Loſs, and moſt willing to grant what might be needful for the Relief and Eaſe of the Kingdom; He aſſur'd them, that He would be ſo ready to concur with His Parliament in every thing that could be reaſonably expected of Him, for aiding and ſupporting their Intereſts, and repairing their Loſſes, that His good Subjects ſhould have juſt Grounds to be ſenſible of His hearty Inclinations to advance the Wealth and Proſperity of that His Majeſty's Ancient Kingdom. That His Majeſty was confident, That that Declaration would be ſatisfying to all good Men, who would certainly be careful both of their own Preſervation, and of the Honour and Intereſt of the Government, and not ſuffer themſelves to be miſ-led, nor give any Advantage to Enemies and ill-deſigning Perſons, ready to catch hold of any Opportunity, as their Practices did too manifeſtly witneſs. Concluding, That His Majeſty's neceſſary Abſence had occaſioned the late Adjournment; but as ſoon as God ſhould bring Him back, He was fully reſolv'd His Parliament ſhould meet.

The King had not been many Weeks in Holland, when he received the melancholy and ſurprizing News of the Death of the Duke of Glouceſter, which was in great meaſure occaſion'd by the over-heating of himſelf in the ſolemn Obſervance of his Birth-day, Wedneſday, July the 24th (a). After the Ceremony was over, his Highneſs found himſelf fatigu'd and indiſpoſed; the next Day he complain'd of his Throat, and of a Sickneſs in his Stomach. All Friday he was Hot and Feveriſh. On Saturday Morning, after taking away a little Blood, he thought himſelf better; but in the Evening, his Fever appearing more violent, a Bliſter was apply'd to him, and other proper Remedies adminiſtred. The ſame Day a Raſh appear'd on his Skin, which increaſing on Sunday, more Bliſters were laid on. In the Afternoon, the Fever growing ſtronger, his Death of the Duke of Glouceſter.

(a) See " A Panegyrical Eſſay preſented with all the Humble Duty to the Memory of his Highneſs the Duke of Glouceſter; deſcribing, 1. The great Honour we ſhould pay to his Memory. 2. The high Senſe we ſhould have of his Vertues. And, 3. The higheſt Grief which we owe to his Death. London. By D. Brown, 1701. 8°.

1700. Highneſs went into a Delirium, which laſted with his Life. He paſſed the Night as he did the preceding, in ſhort broken Sleeps, and incoherent Talk. On Monday the Bliſters having taken Effect, and the Pulſe mending, the Phyſicians that attended him, thought it probable his Highneſs might recover; but about Eleven at Night, his Highneſs was on the ſudden ſeiz'd with a difficult Breathing, and could ſwallow nothing down, inſomuch that he expir'd before Midnight, being Ten Years and Five Days Old.

Never was ſo great a Loſs ſo little lamented: which may be aſcribed to the different Parties that divided England; two of which, I mean the Jacobites and Republicans, look'd upon that hopeful young Prince as a future Obſtacle to their reſpective Deſigns. Grief, upon this ſad Occaſion, ſeem'd to be confin'd within the Palace of St. James's, and to center, in a more ſenſible manner, in the Royal Breaſts of the Princeſs and Prince of Denmark, who mourn'd not only for themſelves, but for the whole Nation. The Duke of Glouceſter was a Prince, whoſe tender Conſtitution bended under the Weight of his manly Soul; and was too much harraſs'd by the Vivacity of his Genius, to be of long Duration. He was ſcarce Seven Years old, when he underſtood the Terms of Fortification and Navigation, knew all the different Parts of a ſtrong Place, and a Ship of War, and could marſhal a Company of Boys, who had voluntarily liſted themſelves to attend him. He had early ſuck'd in his Mother's Piety, and was always attentive to Prayers; but he had a particular Averſeneſs to Dancing, and all Womaniſh Exerciſes; his only Delights being in martial Sports and Hunting: In a Word, he was too forward to arrive at Maturity (a).

The King had ever expreſs'd a great Love for the Duke of Glouceſter, and was certainly very much affected by his untimely Death. But not to dwell any longer upon this afflicting Subject, His Majeſty was about this Time waited on at Loo, by the Biſhop of Oſnabrug, Brother to the Duke of Lorrain; and gave Audience to the Preſident de la Tour, Envoy Extraordinary from the Duke of Savoy; and the Earl of Jerſey's going over to attend his Majeſty, occaſion'd various Speculations. In September his Majeſty was waited upon at Breda by the Duke of Bavaria; at the Grave by the Electoral Prince of Brandenburgh; and the Electoreſs Dowager of Hanover; who alſo accompanied his Majeſty to the Hague; where we may reaſonably ſuppoſe, conſidering the State of the Royal Family of England at that Juncture, by the Death of the Duke of Glouceſter, the Buſineſs of the Succeſſion in the Proteſtant Line, was ſo far concerted, as to have it laid before the Parliament at their next Seſſions. 1700.

Wars in the North.

A League had been made between the Kings of Denmark and Poland, with the Czar of Muſcovy, to cruſh the young King of Sweden with their united Force, and kindle a violent War in the North. Whilſt the Poles ſate down before Riga in Livonia, the King of Denmark attack'd the Duke of Holſtein, the Brother-in-Law and Confederate of the King of Sweden; and under Pretence of having ſome Forts demoliſhed, proceeded to ſubdue his whole Country, and laid Siege to Tonningen; though both without Succeſs. Several Princes and States concern'd themſelves in making up this Breach, but none ſo particularly as England and Holland; who finding an amicable Mediation would not do, His Majeſty thought fit to ſend a Squadron of Thirty Engliſh and Dutch Men of War into the Sound, beſides Fire-Ships and Bomb-Veſſels. This Squadron arriv'd at the Mouth of the Sound on the 20th of July; and about the ſame time the Fleet of Sweden put to Sea; whereupon the Daniſh Fleet quitted the Sound; and preſently after the Conjunction of the Swedes with the Confederates, near Landſcroon, beyond the Iſle of Vere, they retir'd in ſome Confuſion, for fear of being attack'd under the Caſtle of Copenhagen.

The Confederates made a ſhew of bombing that City, not with deſign to do it any Damage, tho' they might have laid it in Aſhes, but only to incline the King of Denmark to a Peace, which was much haſtened by the Deſcent of the Swediſh Troops headed by their King, in the Iſle of Zeeland. For his Daniſh Majeſty being coop'd up in Holſtein, by ſome Swediſh Frigats cruiſing on that Coaſt, and therefore unable to ſave his Capital City otherwiſe than by a Treaty; the Negotiations were reaſſum'd, and effectually carry'd on at Travendal, within a Mile of Segeburg, in Holſtein, where both the Daniſh and Confederate Armies lay; ſo that after a Debate of Six Days, the Peace was at length ſign'd on the 18th of Auguſt, between Denmark, Sweden, and the Duke of Holſtein, with the Excluſion of Muſcovy and Poland.

Some Days before, Lieutenant-General Bannier, who commanded in the Town of Tonningen, when it was lately beſieged by the Danes, waited upon his Majeſty at Loo, being ſent by the Duke of Holſtein, in Acknowledgment of His Majeſty's Protection; and about Six Weeks after, the King of Poland's Reſident at the Hague preſented a Memorial to the States-General, full of Aſſuran-

(a) See A Sermon on the Death of the moſt hopeful Prince William Duke of Glouceſter, by Dr. William Fleetwood, which he reprinted when he was Lord Biſhop of St. Aſaph, in 1712, 8°. and in the Preface ſpeaks thus of it: "The "Sermon that was preach'd upon the Duke of Glouceſter's "Death, was printed quickly after, and is now, becauſe "the Subject was ſo ſuitable, joyn'd to the others. The "Loſs of that moſt promiſing and hopeful Prince, was at "that Time, I ſaw, unſpeakably Great; and many Accidents ſince, have convinced us, that it could not have "been over-valued. That precious Life, had it pleaſed "God to have prolonged it to the uſual Space, had ſaved "us many Fears and Jealouſies, and dark Diſtruſts, and pre"vented many Alarms, that have long kept us, and will "keep us ſtill, waking and uneaſy. Nothing remained to "comfort and ſupport us, under this heavy Stroke, but the "Neceſſity it brought the King and Nation under of ſettling "the Succeſſion in the Houſe of Hanover, and giving it "an Hereditary Right by Act of Parliament, as long as it "continues Proteſtant. So much Good did God in his mer"ciful Providence produce from a Misfortune, which we "could never otherwiſe have ſufficiently deplor'd.

It is certain, had the Duke of Glouceſter liv'd, there had been no part to be acted in crying up Hereditary Right excluſive of the Parliamentary Settlement of the Crown; nor would the Revolution had ſuch falſe and odious Colours caſt upon it, when a young Prince was to reign upon that Title. Much leſs could any evil Counſellors have ever ſuggeſted one Thought to the late Queen in favour of a pretended Brother, when the undoubed Son had been ſo much nearer to Her. But ſtill Providence knows what is beſt for us. There might have been a Party in the Name of a Church, who, if they could have got the Heir under their Dominion, might have done at leaſt what they pleas'd. And ſuch an Heir, ſupported by ſuch a Strength, might have put us in mind of an Obſervation made by the aboveſaid excellent Preacher, in his Preface to the Four Sermons: "From the Obſervations I "have been able to make for theſe many Years laſt paſt upon "our publick Affairs; and from the natural Tendency of "ſeveral Principles and Practices, that have of late been "ſtudiouſly reviv'd, and from what has follow'd thereupon; I could not help both fearing and preſaging, That "theſe Nations would ſome time or other, if ever we ſhould "have an enterprizing Prince upon the Throne, of more "Ambition than Virtue, Juſtice, and true Honour, fall "into the way of all other Nations, and loſe their Li"berty.

1700. ces of Friendſhip from the King his Maſter, and acquainting them, That what induc'd Him to put off the bombarding of Riga, when every thing was in readineſs for executing that Deſign, was chiefly the Conſideration of the Loſs which divers Merchants, Subjects of the King of England, and the States-General, would have ſuffer'd thereby. His Majeſty having writ to the Czar of Muſcovy, upon the Occaſion of the Differences between Him and the Crown of Sweden, to preſs him to an Accommodation, and offer his Mediation: And having likewiſe diſpatched ſeveral important Affairs at the Hague, His Majeſty embark'd for England on the 17*th* of October (O. S.) ſafely landed at Harwich the next Day, din'd at Sir Iſaac Rebow's at Colcheſter on the 19*th*. lay at Chelmsford that Night, and on the 20*th*. came to Hampton-Court. Four Days after, the Parliament of England was further prorogued to the 21*ſt* of September following.

Parliament in Scotland. In the Interim, to conclude the Affairs of Scotland, to prepare for the meeting of that Parliament, on October 28. His Majeſty ſent this Letter to them from Loo.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" The State of Our Affairs abroad requiring " Our going beyond Sea, was the Cauſe of Our " adjourning your Meeting till this time. When " We ordered the laſt Adjournment by our Letter " then publiſhed, We fully expreſs'd Our " good Intentions towards that Our Antient Kingdom, " which we are now ready to make good " to this Seſſion of Parliament.

" We have conſidered the Addreſs you made " to us in the Seſſion of Parliament 1698, in " behalf of the African Company, repreſenting " the ſame as a National Concern; and do aſſure " you, That we are very willing to aſſent to what " ſhall be reaſonably propoſed for repairing the " Loſſes, and ſupporting and promoting the Intereſt " of that Company: And having ever " reckoned the Eaſe and Proſperity of Our Good " Subjects Our greateſt Honour and Happineſs, " We are likewiſe moſt willing to agree to all " that can be demanded for maintaining and " advancing the Peace and Welfare of the Kingdom.

" And that you, and all Our Good Subjects may " have full and ſatisfying Aſſurance of this Our " good Mind, We again declare, That We are " reſolv'd to give Our Royal Aſſent to all Acts " that ſhall be offered for the better eſtabliſhing " the True Proteſtant Religion, and the Presbyterian " Government of the Church, which you " enjoy; for the more effectual preventing the " Growth of Popery, for the repreſſing of Vice and " Immorality, and the Encouragement of Piety " and Virtue; for the preſerving and ſecuring of " Perſonal Liberty; for the regulating and advancing " of Trade: And more eſpecially, for " making up the Loſſes, and promoting the Concerns " of the African and Indian Company; for " the ſetting forward and improving Manufactures: " And generally, We are ready to give " Our Aſſent to all other Laws that ſhall be " brought in for the farther clearing and ſecuring " Property and Civil Rights, ſtrengthning and " facilitating the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, reſtraining " and puniſhing of Crimes, and the preſerving " of the Peace and Quietneſs of the Kingdom; " ſo that nothing ſhall be wanting on Our " Parts, to make our People both happy and contented.

" 'Tis truly Our Regret, That We could not " agree to the aſſerting of the Right of the Company's " Colony in Darien; and you may be very " confident, if it had not been for invincible " Reaſons, the preſſing Deſires of all Our Miniſters, " with the Inclination of Our good Subjects " therein concern'd, had undoubtedly prevail'd: " But ſince we were, and are fully ſatisfied that " Our yielding in that Matter had infallibly diſturb'd " the General Peace of Chriſtendom, and " brought inevitably upon that Our Ancient Kingdom " a heavy War, wherein we could expect no " Aſſiſtance; and that now the State of that Affair " is quite alter'd, We doubt not but you will " reſt ſatisfied with theſe plain Reaſons.

" We are heartily ſorry for the Company's " Loſs, in what hath happen'd; but We being " moſt willing that the Company's Loſſes be repaired, " are ready to concur in any New Project " or Deſign that ſhall be reaſonably propoſed for " the Good and Advantage of the Kingdom: We " are moſt confident, the Wiſdom of a Parliament " will no longer ſtop upon this Obſtruction. Having " then this happy Opportunity for the promoting " of the Good and Welfare of the Kingdom, " you will certainly lay hold upon it; and ſeeing " you cannot but take notice of the Deſigns and " Practices of Perſons diſaffected both to Our Government, " and to your Peace; and how watchful " and ready Our Enemies are, as well at " Home as Abroad, and deſirous of nothing more, " than that Differences may fall in amongſt us, " We are perſuaded you will be no leſs careful to " avoid them. All that We demand, is, That " you will provide proper and competent Supplies " for ſuch Forces as ſhall be neceſſary for " the Kingdom's Security, and to maintain it in " its preſent happy Settlement.

" We have continued the Duke of Queensbury " to be our Commiſſioner, for repreſenting Us in " this Seſſion of Parliament, as a Perſon of whoſe " Ability and Fidelity We have made full Proof, " and are aſſured will be to you acceptable; and " therefore you are to give him full Credit: And " We expect that in all Things you will proceed " with that Wiſdom, Calmneſs and Unanimity, " as that this Seſſion may be concluded to Our " Mutual Satisfaction, and to the Joy of all Our " Good Subjects. And ſo we bid you heartily " farewel.

It muſt be obſerved, that during the Interval of the Two Seſſions of Parliament, came the melancholy News to Scotland, of their People's having abandoned, or rather ſurrender'd their New Settlement at Darien, which occaſion'd the Company to repreſent to the Parliament, on the firſt Day of their Seſſions, " That for want of due " Protection abroad, ſome Perſons had been encourag'd " to break in upon their Privileges even " at home." This Repreſentation was back'd by a National Addreſs, importing, " That they had " formerly petition'd His Majeſty for the Meeting " of a Parliament, to ſupport and aſſert their " Company's Trading to Africa, and the Indies; " which the ſaid Parliament declar'd, by an unanimous " Addreſs on the 5*th* of Auguſt, 1698. to " be their own and the whole Nation's Concern: " And His Majeſty having been graciouſly pleaſed " to allow the Parliament to meet again on the " 21*ſt* of May, 1700. they could not but then expreſs " their Sorrow for the unexpected Adjournment " thereof, without their being permitted " to do any Thing towards the Ends of their " Meeting.

" That they did in all humble manner concur " with the Dutiful Addreſs then lately preſented " to His Majeſty, from the Plurality of Members " of Parliament, repreſenting the Prejudices " ariſing to the preſſing Concerns of the Nation " from that Adjournment, and to the Rights and " Liberties of Parliament, from the Manner of it.

1700. "And that it was to their unexpreſſible Regret, "that His Majeſty did ſeem to be prevail'd upon "by the Miſrepreſentations of evil Counſellors, "to iſſue out Proclamations, further adjourning "the Parliament from Time to Time, whilſt not "only their ſaid Company ſtood in need of the "Countenance, Support, and Protection promis'd "to it by His Majeſty in Parliament; and more "eſpecially upon the Misfortunes that had then "lately befallen it, by the Succeſs of Enemies "againſt its Colony of Caledonia; and whilſt the "Nation it ſelf remained under the Preſſure of "ſuch Grievances, as could only be redreſſed in "Parliament.

"That to the End His Majeſty might have a "juſt View thereof, they humbly repreſented to "Him, how indiſpenſibly neceſſary it was,

"That the Proteſtant Religion be ſecur'd againſt "the Growth of Popery, Immorality, and Prophaneneſs. That Freedom and Independency "of that ancient Kingdom, and the Nation's "Right and Title to Caledonia, as holding of His "Majeſty's Crown of Scotland, be Aſſerted and "Supported. That the good Inclinations of His "Majeſty, and Succeſſors of Scotland, be preſerv'd from foreign Influence, as well as from "the Miſrepreſentations and pernicious Counſels "of unnatural Countrymen. That the Frequency and Sitting of Parliaments be ſecur'd and "aſcertain'd, purſuant to the Claim of Right. "That dangerous Influences upon the Freedom of "Parliaments, either by Gratuities, Penſions, and "Farms of any Branch of the Revenue, and the "diſpoſing of any Part of the Revenue, or annexed Property of the Crown, otherwiſe than "according to Law, for the neceſſary Support of "the Government, be preſerv'd. That the publick Credit be reſtor'd, and an Enquiry made "into the Application of the Funds, laid on, and "appointed by Parliament, for the Support of "the Government, and Payment of the Army. "That the Security of the Nation and Government be ſettled, in a duly regulated National "Force, inſtead of a Standing Army, ſo burthenſome to the Country, and dangerous to its "Liberties. That the manner of applying the "Security, which they had by the Claim of "Right, for the perſonal Freedom of the Subject "againſt long and arbitrary Impriſonment, as "well as againſt purſuits upon old and obſolete "Laws, be eſpecially declar'd. That the Trade "of the Nation be encourag'd and advanc'd, by "duly regulating its Export and Import, by diſcharging prejudicial Branches thereof, by fixing their Current Money, by encouraging Manufactures, by employing the Poor; and more "eſpecially by countenancing and aſſiſting their "ſaid Company, in the Proſecution of its lawful "Undertakings: And that all ſuch Articles of "Grievances preſented to His Majeſty by the "Eſtates of that Kingdom, in the Year 1699, "as had not been redreſſed; together with ſuch "others Grievances as the Parliament ſhould, at "the meeting thereof, find the Nation aggrieved "with, be redreſſed in Parliament.

"That His Majeſty having, by His Royal Letter, of the 29th of May, 1699, been graciouſly "pleas'd to declare, and give full Aſſurance to "their Repreſentatives, in the Meeting of the "Eſtates, which ſettled the Crown and Royal "Dignity of that Realm on His Majeſty, That "they ſhould always find His Majeſty ready to "protect them, and to aſſiſt the Eſtates in making "ſuch Laws as might ſecure their Religion, Liberties and Properties; and to prevent and redreſs whatſoever might be juſtly grievous to "them. That His Majeſty would never believe "that the true Intereſt of His People and the "Crown could be oppoſite; And that His Majeſty would always account it His greateſt Prerogative to aſſent to ſuch Laws as might promote Peace and Wealth in this Kingdom. 1700.

"They therefore reckon'd it their Duty humbly to deſire, and aſſuredly to expect, that His "Majeſty would be graciouſly pleas'd to ſatisfy "the longing Deſires, and earneſt Expectations "of His People, by allowing His Parliament to "meet as ſoon as poſſible; and when met, to ſit "till they had fully deliberated upon, and came "to ſolid Reſolutions, on the great and weighty "Concerns of the Nation; and grant ſuch Inſtructions to His Commiſſioners, as might empower him to paſs ſuch Acts, as the great Counſel of the Nation might think moſt conducive "to the true Honour of His Majeſty and Government, the Welfare of that Realm, both as to "its Religious and Civil Intereſts, and to the full "quieting of the Minds of all His Majeſty's good "People." To this Addreſs, which was preſented to the King, on the 16th of November, by the Lord Teſter, and ſome other Commiſſioners, His Majeſty made Anſwer: "That He could not "take further Notice of it, ſeeing the Parliament "was then met, and He had made then a Declaration of His Mind for the good of His People, "wherewith He hop'd all His faithful Subjects "would be ſatisfied.

Wiſer Meaſures in Scotland.

The Parliament of Scotland having ſat near Three Months, amidſt Heats and threatning Feuds, about the Miſcarriage of their Settlement at Darien: By the prudent Temper of the King, and the good Conduct of His High Commiſſioner, they came at laſt to this cool and honeſt Reſolution, 21*ſt January*; That in Conſideration of their great Deliverance by His Majeſty, and in that, next under God, their Safety and Happineſs depended wholly on the Preſervation of His Majeſty's Perſon, and the Security of His Government, they would ſtand by and ſupport both His Majeſty and His Government, to the utmoſt of their Power; and maintain ſuch Forces as ſhould be requiſite for thoſe ends. In purſuance of this good Diſpoſition, the Lord High Commiſſioner ſoon after gave the Royal Aſſent to an Act for keeping on Foot Three Thouſand Men, till the 1*ſt* of December, 1702. And to another, for a Land Tax to maintain thoſe Troops. Which done, he communicated the King's Letter; wherein it was deſired, He might have Eleven Hundred Men on his own Account, to the firſt of June following; which was readily complied with; and then they were prorogued to the 6*th* of May.

Laſt Treaty of Partition.

The laſt Treaty of Partition did ſo much concern all Europe, and made ſuch a particular Noiſe in England, that it is proper to tranſmit to Poſterity this Form of it, as concluded in March, tho' not made publick till ſome Months after.

"Be it known to All thoſe to whom theſe Preſents ſhall come, That the moſt Serene and "Thrice Potent Prince, Lewis XIV. by the Grace "of God, King of France, &c. And the moſt "Serene and Thrice Potent Prince, William III. "by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain; "and the Lords the States General of the United "Provinces, laying nothing more to Heart, than "by new Ties to ſtrengthen the good Correſpondence re-eſtabliſhed between His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, His Majeſty of Great Britain, "and the Lords the States General, by the laſt "Treaty concluded at Ryſwick; and to prevent "by Meaſures taken in time, the Accidents that "may excite a new War in Europe, have given "their full Powers for concluding a new Treaty; "His moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, to the Sieur Camille d' Antem, Count de Tallard, Lieutenant "General of the King's Arms in His Province of 1700. " the Dauphinate, Extraordinary Ambaſſador " from France in England; and to the Sieur Gabriel Count de Briord, Marquis of Senoſan, " Counſellor to the King in all his Councils, and " his Extraordinary Ambaſſador with the Lords " the States General of the United Provinces of " the Low Countries. His ſaid Britannick Majeſty " to William Earl of Portland, Viſcount Cirenceſter, Baron of Woodſtock, Knight of the Order " of the Garter, and one of his Majeſty's Privy-Council; and to Edward Earl of Jerſey, Viſcount Villars, Baron of Hoo, Knight Marſhal of " England, one of his Principal Secretaries of " State, and one of the Lords of his Privy-Council. And the Lords the States General, to " John Van Eſſen, Burgomaſter and Senator of the " City of Zutphen, Overſeer of the Univerſity " of Haerderwick; Frederick, Baron de Rede, St. Anthony, &c. of the Order of the Nobility of " Holland and Weſt-Friſe; Anthony Heinſius, " Counſellor Penſioner, Keeper of the Seal, " and Super-Intendant of the Fiefs of the ſame " Provinces; William de Naſſau, Lord of Odyke, " Cortugene, &c. and principal Nobleman repreſenting the Nobility in the States of Zealand; " Everard de Wede, Lord of Dykewelt, Rateles, &c. " Feudatory Lord of Oudwater, Rector of the " Imperial Chamber of St. Mary's at Utrecht, " Dyckgraef of the River Rhine in the Province " of Utrecht, and Preſident of the States of the " ſame Province; William Van Haren, Deputy of " the Nobility in the States of Friſe, and Rector " of the Univerſity of Franeher; Arnold Lemker, " Burgomaſter of the City of Deventer; and John Hekke, Senator of the City of Groningen; all " Deputies in the Aſſembly of the States General, " on the behalf of the States of Guelders, Holland, and Weſt-Friſe, of Zealand, Utrecht, Friſe, " Overyſſel, Groningen, and Omeland; who by Virtue of their Powers, have agreed upon the following Articles.

"the

" I. The Peace re-eſtabliſhed by the Treaty at " Ryſwick, between his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, " his Britannick Majeſty, and the Lords the States " General of the United Provinces, their Heirs " and Succeſſors, their Kingdoms, States and " Subjects, ſhall be firm and conſtant; and their " Majeſties, and the States General, ſhall reciprocally contribute to the utmoſt of their Power, to " the Advantage and Benefit of the one and the " other.

" II. In regard the principal End which his moſt " Chriſtian Majeſty, his Majeſty of Great Britain, " and the ſaid Lords the States General propoſe " to themſelves, is to maintain the general Tranquility of Europe, they cannot but be greatly " grieved to ſee, that the Condition of the King " of Spain's Health has continued for ſome time " ſo extremely languiſhing, that there is nothing " more to be fear'd than the Death of that Prince; " tho' they cannot think of that Event without " Affliction, by reaſon of the ſincere and real " Friendſhip they have for him: They have in " the mean time deem'd it ſo much the more neceſſary to foreſee, that his Catholick Majeſty " not having any Children, the Vacancy of the " Succeſſion will infallibly raiſe a new War, if the " moſt Chriſtian King makes good his Pretenſions, and the Claims of Monſeigneur the Dauphin, and his Poſterity, to the whole Succeſſion " of Spain; and that the Emperor will alſo ſupport his Pretenſions, and thoſe of the King of " the Romans, and the Arch-Duke Charles, his Second Son, or of his other Children, Males or " Females, to the ſaid Inheritance.

" III. And in regard the Two Lords the Kings, " and the Lords the States General, deſire above " all things the Preſervation of the publick Repoſe, and to avoid a new War in Europe, by an " Accommodation of ſuch Diſputes and Differences as may ariſe by reaſon of the ſaid Succeſſion, " or out of a Jealouſy of thoſe too many Dominions being united under one and the ſame " Prince, they have thought fit to take Meaſures " before-hand, requiſite to prevent the Misfortunes which the ſaid Accident of that King's " dying without Iſſue may produce. 1700.

" IV. To this purpoſe, it is accorded and agreed, " That if the ſaid Accident ſhould happen, the " moſt Chriſtian King, as well in his own Name, " as in the Name of Monſeigneur the Dauphin, " his Children, Male or Female, Heirs and Succeſſors, born, or to be born; as alſo my ſaid " Lord the Dauphin, for Himſelf, his Children, " Male or Female, Heirs or Succeſſors, born, or " to be born, ſhall hold themſelves ſatisfy'd, as " they do by theſe Preſents hold themſelves ſatisfy'd; That Monſeigneur the Dauphin ſhall have " for his Share, in full Propriety, Poſſeſſion, plenary Extinction of all his Pretenſions to the " Succeſſion of Spain, to enjoy for him, his Heirs, " Succeſſors, Deſcendants, Male or Female, " born, or to be born, to Perpetuity, without " being ever moleſted, under any pretence whatever, of Right or Pretenſion, even by Reſignation, Appeal, Revolt, or any other way " whatever, on the part of the Emperor, the " King of the Romans, the moſt Serene Arch-Duke Charles his Second Son, the Arch-Dutcheſſes, and his other Children, Male or Female, Deſcendants, Heirs and Succeſſors, born, " or to be born; the Kingdoms of Naples and " Sicily, in the ſame manner as the Spaniards poſſeſs 'em at preſent; all Places depending upon " the Monarchy of Spain, upon the Coaſt of Toſcany, and Iſlands adjacent, compriz'd under the " Names of Sancto Stephano, Porto Hercole, Orbitello, Talamone, Porto Longo, Piombino, in the " ſame manner as the Spaniards hold 'em at preſent; the City and Marquiſate of Final, in the " ſame manner as the Spaniards now enjoy 'em; " the Province of Guipuſcoa, namely, the City " of Fontarabie, and St. Sebaſtian, ſeated in the " ſaid Province, and eſpecially the Port du Paſſage, with what is comprehended therein; " with this Reſtriction only, That if there be " any Places depending upon the ſaid Province, " which are ſeated beyond the Pyreneans, and " other Mountains of Navarre, Alava, or Biſcay, " in the Province of Guipuſcoa, they ſhall remain " to France; and the Paſſages of the ſaid Mountains, and the ſaid Mountains which are between " the ſaid Provinces of Guipuſcoa, Navarre, Alava, " and Biſcay, to which they ſhall appertain, ſhall " be divided between France and Spain; ſo that " there ſhall remain as much of the ſaid Mountains and Paſſages to France on her ſide, as ſhall " remain to Spain on her ſide. The whole, with " the Fortifications, Ammunition, and Proviſion, " Powder, Bullets, Cannon, Gallies and Chiorms, " which ſhall belong to the King of Spain at the " Time of his Deceaſe without Iſſue, to be annexed to the Kingdoms, Places, Iſles, and Provinces, which are to compoſe Monſeigneur the " Dauphin's Share. Nevertheleſs, be it underſtood, That the Gallies, Chiorms, and other " Effects belonging to the King of Spain, throughout the Kingdom of Spain, and other Dominions, " which fall to the moſt Serene Arch-Duke's " Share, ſhall remain to him; thoſe that belong to " the Kingdoms of Naples and Sicily, before they " deſcend to Monſeigneur the Dauphin, as already " has been agreed. Moreover, the Territories " of Monſeigneur the Duke of Lorrain; that is " to ſay, the Dutchies of Lorrain and Barr, as " Duke Charles IV. of that Name poſſeſs'd 'em, and ſuch 1700. “ ſuch as were reſtor'd by the Treaty of Ryſwick, ſhall be relinquiſh'd and ſet over to Monſeigneur the Dauphin, his Children, and Heirs and Succeſſors Males, born, or to be born, in full Propriety and plenary Poſſeſſion, inſtead of the Dutchy of Milan, which ſhall be relinquiſh'd and ſet over in Exchange to the ſaid Duke of Lorrain, his Children Male and Female, Heirs, Deſcendants, Succeſſors, born, or to be born, in full Propriety and plenary Poſſeſſion, who will not refuſe ſo advantageous a Share; underſtanding withal, That the County of Bitche ſhall belong to the Prince of Vaudemont, who ſhall re-enter into the Lands which he formerly enjoy'd, which have, or ought to be ſurrender'd to him by virtue of the Treaty of Ryſwyck. In conſideration of which Kingdoms, Iſlands, Provinces and Places, the ſaid moſt Chriſtian King, as well in his own Name, as in the Name of Monſeigneur the Dauphin, his Children, Male or Female, Heirs or Succeſſors, born or to be born; who has alſo given for that Effect his full Power to the Sieur Count de Tallard, and the Sieur Count de Briord, promiſe and engage to renounce upon the Vacancy of the ſaid Spaniſh Succeſſion, as in that caſe they now renounce by theſe Preſents, all Rights and Pretenſions to the ſaid Crown of Spain, and all other Kingdoms, Iſlands, Dominions and Places, which at this preſent depend upon it, excepting what is declared above to be their Share. And of all this, they ſhall cauſe to be drawn up ſolemn Acts, in the ſtrongeſt and moſt authentick Form that may be; which ſhall be deliver'd at the Time of the Exchange of the Ratifications of this preſent Treaty, to the King of Great Britain, and the Lords the States General.

“ V. All the Cities, Places, and Ports, ſituated in the Kingdoms and Provinces which are to compoſe the Share of the ſaid Monſeigneur the Dauphin, ſhall be preſerv'd, without being demoliſh'd.

“ VI. The ſaid Crown of Spain, and the other Kingdoms, Iſlands, Dominions, Countries, and Places, which the Catholick King poſſeſſes at preſent, as well within as without Europe, ſhall be given and relinquiſh'd to the moſt Serene Arch-Duke Charles, the Emperor's ſecond Son, except what was declar'd in the Fourth Article, which compoſes Monſeigneur the Dauphin's Share, and the Dutchy of Milan, in purſuance of the ſaid Fourth Article, in full Propriety and plenary Poſſeſſion, as his Share; and in Extinction of all his Pretenſions to the ſaid Succeſſion of Spain; to be enjoy'd by him, and his Heirs and Succeſſors, born, or to be born, to perpetuity, never to be moleſted, upon any pretence whatever of Rights and Pretenſions, directly and indirectly, whether by Ceſſion, Appeal, Revolt, or any other way, on the part of the moſt Chriſtian King, my ſaid Lord the Dauphin, or his Children, Male or Female, his Heirs and Succeſſors, born, or to be born. In the lieu of which Crown of Spain, and other Kingdoms and Dominions, Countries and Places which depend upon it, the Emperor, as well in his own Name, as in the Names of the King of the Romans, the moſt Serene Arch-Duke Charles his ſecond Son, the Arch-Dutcheſſes his Daughters, his Children, their Children, Male or Female, their Heirs, Deſcendants or Succeſſors, born, or to be born, ſhall hold themſelves ſatisfied, That the moſt Serene Arch-Duke Charles ſhall have in Extinction of all other their Pretenſions to the Succeſſion of Spain, the Reſignation made as above. The ſaid Emperor, as well in his own Name, as in the Names of the King of the Romans, and the moſt Serene Arch-Duke Charles his ſecond Son, the Arch-Dutcheſſes his Daughters, their Children, Male and Female, their Heirs and Succeſſors; as alſo the King of the Romans in his own Name, ſhall at the time when they ſhall enter into the preſent Treaty, and ratifie it, and the ſaid Arch-Duke Charles when he comes of Age, renounce all other Rights and Pretenſions to the Kingdoms, Iſlands, Dominions, Countries and Places, which compoſe the Share and Portions aſſigned, as above, to Monſeigneur the Dauphin, and to him who ſhall have the Dutchy of Milan in Exchange for what ſhall be given to Monſeigneur the Dauphin: And that of all theſe things there ſhall ſpeedily be drawn up ſolemn Acts in the beſt and moſt authentick Form that may be; that is to ſay, the Emperor and the King of the Romans at the Time when they ſhall ratify the preſent Treaty, and the Arch-Duke when he ſhall be of Age, which ſhall be deliver'd to his Britannick Majeſty, and the Lords the States General. 1700.

“ VII. Immediately after the Exchange of the Ratifications of the preſent Treaty, it ſhall be imparted to the Emperor, who ſhall be invited to enter into it: But if within Three Months after, to reckon from the Day of the ſaid Communication and Invitation; or from the Day that the ſaid Catholick King ſhall happen to die; if it ſhould ſo fall out, within the Term of Three Months; his Imperial Majeſty, or the King of the Romans, ſhall refuſe to enter into it, and to agree to the Share aſſign'd the Arch-Duke; the Two Lords the Kings, and the Lords the States General, ſhall agree upon a Prince to whom the Share ſhall be given. And in caſe that notwithſtanding the preſent Agreement, the ſaid moſt Serene Duke will take Poſſeſſion of the Portion that ſhall fall to him, before he had accepted the preſent Treaty, or the Portion aſſigned to Monſeigneur the Dauphin, or to him who ſhall have the Dutchy of Milan in Exchange, as is above-mentioned; the ſaid Lords the Kings, and the ſaid Lords the States General, by Virtue of this Convention, ſhall hinder him with all their Force.

“ VIII. The moſt Serene Arch-Duke ſhall not paſs into Spain, nor into the Dutchy of Milan, during the Life of his Catholick Majeſty, but by common Conſent, and no otherwiſe.

“ IX. If the moſt Serene Arch-Duke happens to die without Iſſue, whether before or after the Death of the Catholick King; the Share which is above aſſign'd him by the Sixth Article of this Treaty, ſhall paſs to ſuch Child of the Emperor, Male or Female (except the King of the Romans) to whom his Imperial Majeſty ſhall think fit to aſſign it. And in caſe his Imperial Majeſty happens to die before ſuch Aſſignation, it may be made by the King of the Romans. But all this upon Condition, That the ſaid Partition ſhall never be re-united, nor belong to the Perſon of Him, who ſhall be Emperor, or King of the Romans; or who ſhall be both the one and the other, either by Succeſſion, Will, Contract of Marriage, Donation, Exchange, Ceſſion, Appeal, Revolt, or other way. And in like manner, the Share of the moſt Serene Arch-Duke ſhall never be united, nor belong to the Perſon of Him who ſhall be King of France, or Dauphin, or both together; whether by Succeſſion, Will, Contract of Marriage, Donation, Exchange, Ceſſion, Appeal, Revolt, or any other way whatever.

“ X. The King of Spain deceaſing without Iſſue, and the ſaid Accident coming to paſs, the ſaid Lords the Kings, and the States General, oblige themſelves to leave the whole Suc-

“ ceſſion

1700. "ceſſion in the ſame Condition it ſhall then be, "without Seizure of the whole, or any part, directly or indirectly: But every Prince ſhall immediately take Poſſeſſion of what is aſſign'd him "for his Share, when he ſhall, for his own part, "have given Satisfaction upon the Fourth and "Sixth Articles preceding this. And if he finds "therein any Difficulty, the Two Lords the "Kings, and the Lords the States-General, to "the end that every one may be put into his Share "according to the Agreement, and that it may "have its full Effect, engage themſelves to give "requiſite Succour and Aſſiſtance of Men and "Shipping, by Land and Sea, by Force to conſtrain thoſe that ſhall oppoſe themſelves againſt "the ſaid Agreement.

"XI. If the ſaid Lords the Kings, or the States-General, ſhall be attack'd by any one whatever, "by reaſon of this Agreement, or the Execution "of it; they ſhall mutually aſſiſt each other with "all their Forces, and ſhall make themſelves "Guarantees of the punctual Execution of the "ſaid Treaty, and the Renunciations made in "purſuance thereof.

"XII. All Kings, Princes, and States, who will "enter thereinto, ſhall be admitted by this preſent Treaty; and it ſhall be lawful for the Two "Lords the Kings, the States-General, and for "every one of them in particular, to requeſt and "invite whom they ſhall think fit into the preſent "Treaty, and likewiſe to be Guarantees of the "Execution of the ſaid Treaty and Renunciations therein contained.

"XIII. And for the greater Security of the "Repoſe of Europe, the ſaid Kings, Princes, and "States, ſhall not only be invited to be Guarantees of the ſaid Execution of this preſent Treaty, and of the Validity of the ſaid Renunciations, as above-mention'd; but if any one of "thoſe Princes, in whoſe Favour the ſaid Partitions are made, ſhall go about to trouble the "Methods ſettled by the ſaid Treaty, to attempt "new Enterprizes contrary to it, and ſo to aggrandize themſelves to the Prejudice of each "other, under any Pretence whatever; it ſhall "be deem'd to be the Duty of the ſaid Guaranty, "to extend it ſelf in that caſe; ſo that the Kings, "Princes and States, who promiſe it, ſhall be "bound to employ their Forces in Oppoſition "to the ſaid Enterprizes, and to maintain all "things in the Condition contain'd in the ſaid Articles.

"XIV. That if any Prince, whoever he be, "ſhall oppoſe taking Poſſeſſion of the Shares agreed, the ſaid Lords the Kings, and the States-General, ſhall be obliged to aſſiſt each other "againſt the ſaid Oppoſition, and to hinder it "with all their Forces. And there ſhall be an "Agreement made, preſently after the Signing "of this preſent Treaty, touching the Proportion "which every one is to contribute, as well by Sea "as Land.

"XV. The preſent Treaty, and all other Acts "done in Purſuance of it, or which may have any "reference to it; and particularly the ſolemn "Acts, which his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, and "Monſeigneur the Dauphin, are oblig'd to perform by virtue of the Fourth Article abovewritten, ſhall be regiſter'd in the Parliament "of Paris, according to their Form and Tenour, "and according to the uſual Cuſtom; to be in "force according to the Conditions therein contain'd; ſo ſoon as the Emperor ſhall be enter'd into the preſent Treaty, or at the end of "Three Months which are allow'd for that purpoſe, if he does not enter into it ſooner. And "in like manner, his Imperial Majeſty ſhall be "bound, when he ſhall enter into the preſent "Treaty, to cauſe it to be approv'd and regiſter'd "with all the ſolemn Acts which his Imperial "Majeſty, the King of the Romans, and the "moſt Serene Arch-Duke ſhall be oblig'd to "perform, by Virtue of the Sixth Article before-recited; in his Council of State, or otherwhere, "according to the moſt authentick Forms of the "Country.

"XVI. The Ratifications of the Two Lords "the Kings, and the Lords the States-General, "ſhall be all Three exchang'd at the ſame time "at London, within the Space of Three Weeks; "to reckon from the Day that the ſaid Lords the "States-General ſhall have ſign'd, and ſooner if "it may be done." Done and ſigned at London, March the 15th. N. S. 1700. by Us the Plenipotentiaries of France and England, and of the Lords the States-General: It being agreed, That the Signature of this preſent Treaty ſhall be made in ſuch manner. In Faith of which, We have ſign'd this preſent Treaty with our Hands, and ſet hereto the Seals of our Arms. 1700.

Sign'd,

Tallard, and Portland.	Joan Van Eſſen.
Briord, and Jerzey.	F. B. Van Rede.
	A. Heinſius.
	W. de Naſſau.
	Ev. de Weede.
	W. Van Haren.
	A. Lemker.
	Van Hekke.

France was the firſt Party that made this Treaty publick, being then in earneſt with it: The other contracting Powers propoſed it to ſeveral Princes and States, for their Acceptance and Guaranty. But the thing ſeem'd ſtrange, and it does not appear that any but the immediate Authors would come into it. As for the Emperor, He thought himſelf aggriev'd by it, as diſinheriting the Auſtrian Family of their Claim of Succeſſion to the Crown of Spain. The great Ends which the Engliſh and Dutch had in it, were certainly the Peace and Balance of Europe, and forming a Barrier in the Netherlands, to ſecure Holland and the Empire: There is no reaſon to queſtion the Sincerity, and in ſuch a Juncture, even the Wiſdom of King William, in this Tranſaction. But a Suſpicion lies hard upon the French King, that he meant it for an Amuſement only to the Allies, and for an Argument of drawing in the Spaniards more effectually to deſire his Grandſon for their Sole Monarch: For it is certain, that the Miniſters of France in the Court of Spain made uſe of this Partition to incenſe the Grandees againſt the Indignity of tearing their Monarchy in pieces; and made it a convincing and prevalent Argument to obtain a Will for declaring the Duke of Anjou an univerſal Heir. This memorable Will being the Management of the prime Miniſter Cardinal Portocarero, upon a Reſult of the Intriegues of the French Ambaſſador the Marquis de Harcourt, was ſign'd by the crazy and half-dead King of Spain on the Second of October, who within a Month after expired, on November the Firſt, N. S. He was born the 6th of November, 1661. and had ſucceeded his Father Philip IV. in 1666. Diſadvantages of this Treaty.

Immediately upon this Prince's Death, the Will was open'd in the Preſence of the Spaniſh Court, and a Copy of it was diſpatch'd by the appointed Regents to the King of France. The Dutch Envoy at Madrid had ſent Intelligence of this Intregue to the Lord Mancheſter, then Ambaſſador at the Court of France: Upon which his Excellency, who was ever watchful on the French Pro- King of Spain's Will.

1700. Proceedings, deſired a private Audience, wherein he preſs'd to know what his Majeſty intended to do in this Conjuncture; putting him in mind of his ſolemn Engagement to the King his Maſter. To this the French King anſwered, "That he "would not take a final Reſolution, till his Excellency had an Anſwer to his Diſpatches to "England, which he deſired he would not communicate to the Dutch Ambaſſador." However, to carry on the Diſſimulation and the Project, other Conſiderations prevail'd, and his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty ſoon after declared his Acceptance of the ſaid Will, without conſulting thoſe Allies with whom he had ſo lately concluded a Treaty of Partition. So that on November the 16th, N. S. the Duke of Anjou, in his Grandfather's Court was declared and ſaluted King of Spain: Beſides which, Two remarkable Inſtruments were drawn up, contrary to the Meaning of the Will, to preſerve his Title to the Crown of France, in caſe his Elder Brother died without inheritable Iſſue. This plainly ſhew'd, that the Houſe of Bourbon aim'd at the Union of the Two Crowns, as a greater Step to the Univerſal Monarchy.

Artifices of France. Count Briord the French Ambaſſador in Holland was labouring to put a Colour upon this coarſe Proceeding of his Maſter: He told Mr. Stanhope the Engliſh Envoy there, by way of ſounding, "That he found his Maſter had accepted the "Will; but he was inform'd the Engliſh did not "like it; and therefore he ſhould be glad to "know his Thoughts upon it." Mr. Stanhope gravely reply'd, That ſuch a Queſtion was too weighty for an extempore Anſwer: But (ſays he) I hear you have communicated it to the Penſioner Heinſius; pray, what does he think of it? The Penſioner, reply'd the French Ambaſſador, told me, he would impart it to the States. And ſo will I (ſaid Mr. Stanhope) to the King my Maſter. Not long after, Count Briord preſented a Memorial to the States, repreſenting the inſuperable Difficulties of the Partition, which if adher'd to, muſt be the Cauſe of Univerſal War; and therefore his Maſter had choſe rather to anſwer the End of that Treaty, which was to preſerve the Peace and Tranquility of Europe. Soon after this, Count Briord, at his publick Audience, after he had deliver'd his Maſter's Letter to the States, made this Harangue to them.

My Lords,

Harangue of the French Miniſter. "I Come to give your Lordſhips new Aſſurances of the King my Maſter's conſtant Amity, "and his ſincere Deſire to obſerve inviolably the "laſt Peace. All the Steps his Majeſty has trod "ſince it was concluded, may convince the whole "World, that he has no other Deſigns, than to "maintain the publick Tranquility; of which his "Majeſty thought he had given a convincing "Proof, in accepting the deceaſed King of Spain's "Will. In a Word, he confirms that Equilibrium ſo long wiſh'd for over all Europe; and "his Union with the Crown of Spain, will only "ſerve to ſettle Peace over all Chriſtendom. And "this is the only Aim which he propoſed to himſelf in renouncing ſo great Advantages to his "Crown.

"My Lords, His Majeſty hopes, That your "Lordſhips, convinc'd of this Truth, will correſpond with Sentiments ſo favourable to the publick Good, and that they will contribute to the "Preſervation of ſo great a Bleſſing as that of "Peace. No body doubts, but that it is the "Fountain of all Bleſſings; and your Republick, "of all the Potentates in Europe, has the greateſt "Reaſon to preſerve it; and it is at preſent ſo "well eſtabliſh'd, that you have now no more to "do, but to enjoy the Effects of your long Labours and infinite Expences. 'Tis by the means "of this Peace, that you will uphold this flouriſhing State, and enlarge that Trade which "you have extended to the Extremities of the "Earth. Your ſincere Union with his Majeſty, "will be the moſt ſolid Foundation of the Continuance of this Peace; and your Puiſſance is ſo "well known to all the World, that no body can "ſuſpect that any other Motives but the publick "Good, engage you to deſire Peace. 1700.

"The Situation of your Republick is ſuch, as "enables it not only to preſerve Peace at Home, "but to ſecure it to the greateſt part of the States "of Europe. That you may attain to ſo deſir'd a "Bleſſing, you have no more to do, than to baniſh all ill-grounded Suſpicions, and anticipated "Fears, and to ſtop your Ears againſt the Sollicitations of the Maligners of the King's Glory. "Recal to mind, my Lords, that happy Time, "when by your Union with France, and by a perfect Correſpondence, both Parties laboured mutually to procure to themſelves all manner of "Advantages. It lies in your Lordſhips power "to reſtore all things to the ſame Condition. By "ſuch a Conduct you will engage the King to continue that Good Will of His, which you your "ſelves acknowledged to be ſo precious in your "Eſteem. His Majeſty demands no more for the "Price of his Friendſhip, but that you will concur with him in the Maintenance of this Peace, "ſo beneficial, and ſo much deſired by all the "Provinces.

"It would be to no purpoſe, my Lords, for me "to enlarge upon the Advantages of the Peace. "This Aſſembly, which is compoſed of Perſons "ſo Wiſe, ſo Conſummate in the Management of "Affairs, and ſo Zealous for the publick Good, "has queſtionleſs no other Deſigns, nor any other "Intentions, than to promote ſo great a Bleſſing. "But a Man of my Profeſſion is not accuſtom'd "to long Speeches. I conclude then, proteſting "to your Lordſhips, That I ſhall always endeavour to prove, more by Deeds than Words, "That never any Miniſter came into theſe Provinces with better Intentions; and that I have "for this illuſtrious Aſſembly, all that Veneration which they juſtly merit; and that I ſhall "always have a perfect Honour for all the particular Members that compoſe it.

This Speech and the preceding Memorial, however ſoft and ſmooth, would have had but little Effect on their High and Mightineſſes, had not the French at the ſame time over-run the Spaniſh Netherlands, and by Stratagem ſeiz'd ſeveral ſtrong Towns, partly Gariſon'd by Dutch, whereby the States were brought under a Neceſſity of acknowledging the Duke of Anjou's Title to Spain, to get their Soldiers again, who nevertheleſs were not without Difficulty ſuffer'd to return. King William in His own Heart was incens'd at this violent Breach of the French Faith and Honour; though he muſt forbear to ſhew his Reſentment, till he ſhould be in a better Condition of demanding Satisfaction. In the mean time, when Count Tallard (after his Return from Paris, whither he went every Year from Holland, to acquaint his Maſter with the Negociations) came to wait on his Majeſty at Kenſington, the King then looking out at a Window, contented Himſelf to ſay to him, Monſieur l' Ambaſſadeur, le Tems eſt bien changé. By which Expreſſion his Majeſty meant, not only the Alteration of the Weather, but chiefly the Change of Time, and Circumſtances of Things. And the Ambaſſador ſoon perceiv'd a greater Alteration in the King's Countenance and Reception of him; and therefore on February The Force as well as Fraud of France.

1700. ary 3. he took his publick Audience of Leave of his Majeſty, and ſoon after ſet out for France, to return no more till he was brought over a Priſoner of War. In his room one Monſieur Pouſſin was appointed to ſtay, but with no better Character, than that of Secretary.

New Parliament in England. Within few Days after his Majeſty's Return from Holland, the Parliament met at Weſtminſter on October 24. and was further prorogued to the 21ſt of November following. His Majeſty had broke off with them in Silence the laſt Seſſion, and was not much inclin'd to meet them again: And therefore on November 21ſt the Parliament was further prorogued to January 15, and in the mean time was diſſolved by Proclamation, dated 19 December, and a New Parliament called to begin at Weſtminſter, February 6.

Honours and Preferments. When the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen attended his Majeſty to congratulate his Health and ſafe Return on October 24, he conferred the Honour of Knighthood upon Robert Beachcroft, Eſq; one of the Sheriffs. On November 5, his Majeſty was pleaſed in Council to deliver his Privy Seal into the Cuſtody of Ford Earl of Tankervile; and to admit Sir Charles Hedges to be one of his principal Secretaries of State, and Privy-Counſellor. The next Day the New Call of Serjeants, Sir Joſeph Jekyll of the Middle-Temple, Knight, Chief Juſtice of Cheſter; John Green of Lincolns-Inn, Eſq; Charles Whiteacre, Thomas Gibbons, Philip Neve, Nicholas Hooper, James Munday, John Prat, James Selby, Thomas Cartheu of the Inner-Temple, Eſquires; Thomas Barry, John Hook, Lawrence Agar, and John Smith, of Grays-Inn, Eſquires; John Keen, Henry Turner, of Lincolns-Inn, Eſquires; Robert Tracy and William Hall, of the Middle-Temple, Eſquires; went ſolemnly in their Coifs and Robes to Weſtminſter-Hall, and entertain'd the Judges with a ſplendid Dinner at Serjeants-Inn. Before the Meeting of a new Parliament, Charles Mountague, Eſq; having contracted ſome Envy and ſome Hatred by his prevailing Intereſt at Court, and his long Aſcendant in the Lord Halifax. Houſe of Commons, obtain'd now the Favour of removing to the Houſe of Lords, being created a Baron of England, by the Stile and Title of Baron of Halifax, in the County of York. The Reaſons of his Advancement were expreſs'd in his Patent.

Si ab antiquiſſimâ procerum familiâ ſplendorem derivare honeſtum; ſi rebus à ſe pulchre geſtis inclareſcere glorioſum cenſeatur, utroque hoc nomine ſingulari noſtræ æſtimationi ſeſe commendat prædilectus & per quam fidelis conſiliarius noſter Carolus Mountague, Armiger; illâ domo ortus quæ tres comites, & octo ſimul alterius ordinis Senatores, in Imperii noſtri decus & ſubſidium fælici ubertate ſuppeditarit; illis virtutibus ornatus, quibus nullum honoris incrementum aut bonus civis invideat, aut æquus princeps non ultro offerat. Ingenium ei ad res arduas formavit natura, excoluerunt literæ, perfecere & bene dicendi uſus, & graviter agendi exercitatio. In tractandis in ſenatu negotiis ſtrenuum & diſertum; in conſilio ſanctiori fidum & prudentem, in adminiſtrando Ærario habilem & incorruptum, in fiſci cauſis adjudicandis integrum & perſpicacem experti ſumus. Quod nobis pro Libertate & Religione, pro communi Europæ incolumitate per novennium militantibus, bello ſubſidia haud defecerint, id ſenatui omnino deberi gratè agnoſcimus; ſed nec tacenda eſt viri egregii ſolertia, quâ cautum eſt, ne in ſummâ nummorum inopiâ fides publica fœnore plus æquo debilitata conſideret. Ejuſdem quoque fœlicitati ſaltem tribuendum, quod Ærario noſtro eo tempore præfuit, quo monetam ſceleratorum fraude vitiatam & immutatam, conſilio non minus fauſto quam audaci (quod ſæculi opus videbatur) infra biennium recudi & redintegrari ad admirationem vidimus; & ingruentibus rei pecuniariæ anguſtiis, eo auctore, novam inuſitatam inivimus rationem, quâ chartæ prætium arrogando, divitias publicas ampliari curavimus. Ob hæc præſtita officia populo ſe charum præbuit; ob hæc collata in populum beneficia, noſtram facile conſequutus eſt gratiam. Quâ igitur animi propenſione frequentibus ſubditorum votis ſolemus reſpondere, ea alacritate hunc procerum numero ad ſcribi volumus quem ſenatus communi ſuffragio, Propter ſua in nos, noſtroſque merita, regio favore dignum pronunciavit. Sciatis igitur, &c. Baronem Hallifax, &c.

A new Miniſtry. To ſweeten the Humours and Meaſures of the New Parliament, the King was willing to oblige thoſe Men, who were more eminently diſtinguiſhed by the Name of the Church Party, who had thought themſelves neglected. And therefore on December 12, his Majeſty in Council was pleaſed to declare the Right Honourable Lawrence Earl of Rocheſter, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland; and Sidney Lord Godolphin, Firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, in the room of Mr. Mountague, now Lord Halifax, who was made Auditor of the Exchequer.

The Parliament, according to the Writs of Summons, met at Weſtminſter on February 6, and was prorogued to Monday, February 10, when the King came to the Houſe of Peers, and ſending for the Commons, ſignified to them by the Lord Keeper, That they ſhould forthwith proceed to the Choice of a fit Perſon to be their Speaker, and preſent him to his Majeſty. The next Day Mr. Harley Speaker. the Commons returning to their Houſe, made choice of Robert Harley, Eſq; who was the next Day preſented, and approved by the King; after which, his Majeſty made this Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech. "OUR great Misfortune in the Loſs of the "Duke of Glouceſter, hath made it abſo- "lutely Neceſſary, that there ſhould be a fur- "ther Proviſion for the Succeſſion to the Crown "in the Proteſtant Line, after Me and the Prin- "ceſs. The Happineſs of the Nation, and the "Security of our Religion, which is our chiefeſt "Concern, ſeems ſo much to depend upon this, "that I cannot doubt but it will meet with a ge- "neral Concurrence: And I earneſtly recom- "mend it to your early and effectual Conſidera- "tion.

"The Death of the late King of Spain, with "the Declaration of his Succeſſor to that Monar- "chy, has made ſo great an Alteration in the Af- "fairs Abroad, that I muſt deſire you very ma- "turely to conſider their preſent State; and I "make no doubt but your Reſolutions thereupon "will be ſuch, as ſhall be moſt conducing to the "Intereſt and Safety of England, the Preſervation "of the Proteſtant Religion in general, and the "Peace of all Europe.

"Theſe Things are of ſuch Weight, that I have "thought them moſt proper for the Conſidera- "tion of a New Parliament, to have the more "immediate Senſe of the Kingdom in ſo great a "Conjuncture.

"I muſt deſire of you, Gentlemen of the Houſe "of Commons, ſuch Supplies as you ſhall judge ne- "ceſſary for the Service of the Current Year; and "I muſt particularly put you in mind of the De- "ficiencies and publick Debts occaſioned by the "late War, that are yet unprovided for.

"I am obliged further to recommend to you, "That you would inſpect the Condition of the "Fleet, and conſider what Repairs or Augmen- "tations may be requiſite for the Navy, which "is the great Bulwork of the Engliſh Nation, and 1700. "ought in this Conjuncture moſt eſpecially, to "be put in a good Condition; and that you "would alſo conſider what is proper for the better Security of thoſe Places where the Ships are "laid up in Winter.

"The Regulation and Improvement of Our "Trade, is of ſo publick a Concern, that I hope "it will ever have your ſerious Thoughts; and "if you can find proper Means of ſetting the Poor "at Work, you will eaſe your ſelves of a very "great Burthen; and at the ſame time add ſo "many uſeful Hands to be imployed in Our Ma"nufactures, and other publick Occaſions.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I hope there will be ſuch an Agreement and "Vigor in the Reſolutions you ſhall take upon "the important Matters now before you, as may "make it appear We are firmly United among "Our ſelves; and in my Opinion nothing may "contribute more to Our Safety at Home, or to "Our being Conſiderable Abroad.

Proceedings in the Houſe of Commons. The Commons ſpent the Two ſucceeding Days in qualifying themſelves; and on the 13th began with the Buſineſs of Bribery in Elections, which was a Matter of long Debates and Cenſures. On the 14th, upon reading his Majeſty's Speech, they came to this expedient Reſolution; "That they "would ſtand by and ſupport his Majeſty and his "Government, and take ſuch effectual Meaſures, "as may beſt conduce to the Intereſt and Safety "of England, the Preſervation of the Proteſtant "Religion, and the Peace of Europe." This Reſolution was preſented to his Majeſty by the whole Houſe, on February 17, and the King gave them this Gracious Anſwer.

Commons Addreſs, and King's Anſwer.

I thank you for this Addreſs, and your ready Concurrence to thoſe great Ends therein mentioned, which I take to be extremely important to the Honour and Safety of England; and I aſſure you, I ſhall never propoſe any thing, but what is for our common Advantage and Security. Having this Occaſion, I think it proper to acquaint you, That Yeſterday I received a Memorial from the Envoy Extraordinary of the States General; a Tranſlation whereof I leave with you: As to the firſt Part of it, I think it neceſſary to ask your Advice; and as to the latter Part, I deſire your Aſſiſtance.

Opening of a War with France. Upon a Report of this Anſwer, the Commons immediately Reſolv'd, "That an Humble Ad"dreſs be made to his Majeſty, by ſuch Mem"bers as are of the Privy Council, That he will "pleaſe to cauſe the Treaty between England "and the States General of the Third of March, "1677, and all the Renewals thereof ſince that "Time, to be laid before the Houſe." Which his Majeſty commanded to be done by Mr. Secretary Hedges. And the Houſe was ſo well ſatisfied, that on February 20, they Reſolved, "That "an Humble Addreſs be made to his Majeſty, "that he will pleaſe to enter into ſuch Negocia"tions, in concert with the States General of "the United Provinces, and other Potentates, "as may moſt effectually conduce to the mutual "Safety of theſe Kingdoms, and the States Ge"neral, and the Preſervation of the Peace of "Europe: And giving him Aſſurances of Support "and Aſſiſtance, in Performance of the Treaty "made with the States General the Third of "March, 1677." This Addreſs was preſented by the whole Houſe on Friday 21 February. And his Majeſty gave this acceptable Anſwer.

Second Addreſs and Anſwer.

Gentlemen, I thank you heartily for the Advice you have given me, and your Unanimous Reſolution to ſupport and aſſiſt me in making good the Treaty mentioned in your Addreſs; and I will immediately order my Miniſters Abroad to enter into Negociations in concert with the States General and other Potentates, for the Attaining of thoſe Great Ends which you deſire. Nothing can more effectually conduce to our Security, than the Unanimity and Vigor you have ſhew'd on this Occaſion: And I ſhall always endeavour on my Part, to preſerve and increaſe this mutual Truſt and Confidence between us. 1700.

On the 17th of February, Mr. Secretary Vernon had acquainted the Houſe of Commons, That he was commanded by his Majeſty to communicate to them a Letter, which came very providentially to his Hands out of France: Being a Letter from the Earl of Melfort to his Brother the Earl of Perth. And he deliver'd a Copy in at the Table, and the Original to Mr. Speaker: The Copy was read, and ran thus.

Letter of the E. of Melfort.

My deareſt Brother,

"Since I promiſed to put in Writing what we "had not Time to talk fully of, I am ſet down to "it in the Morning, that my Letter may be rea"dy for the Meſſenger, if any call. I told all "that I had heard at Verſailles, and the favoura"ble Audience I had of Madam Maintenon; for "which, I beg it of you to return my moſt hum"ble Thanks to the Queen, and beg her to be "ſo good, as to thank Madam Maintenon, and "know of her what can be done in that Mat"ter: It will be a great Charity in the Queen. "I told you, among other things, the great Fleet "the King intends to put out this Summer; the "Order being given, and the Money ready, the "Stores full, and every one concern'd active in "their Stations. There is no doubt but this Fleet "will be Maſter of the Sea for ſome Time, if "not for all the Summer; becauſe the Dutch dare "not ſtir till the Engliſh be ready; and they have "long Debates yet, before they can be in a Con"dition to act, if they have the Will; and 'tis a "Queſtion if they will have it at all. The King "never had ſo favourable a Conjuncture, if he "can perſuade this King that his Affairs are real"ly in the Circumſtances they are in; but there "is the Difficulty. The King and Queen have "more Authority with the King and with Ma"dam de Maintenon, than any other in the World "can have; but that is not all; there ſhould be "ſome one acceptable to the Miniſters, who "ſhould lay before them thoſe Proofs their Ma"jeſties cannot enter into the Detail of; and ex"plain the Reaſons, make Plans and Memoirs by "their Majeſties Approbation, to convince them "of the Neceſſity, and ſhew the Eaſineſs of Re"ſtoring the King, the Glory it brings their "Kingdom, and the Advantage to Religion: "How this will be done, their Majeſties are wiſe "enough to conſider, and I think it is not a Sub"ject fit for me to enter upon; but their Friends "in general, who know not the half of what I "know in this Matter, think, that it will not be "well done by a Proteſtant Miniſter, lazy in his "Temper, an Enemy to France by his Inclina"tion, tainted with Commonwealth Principles, "and againſt the King's returning by any other "Power, than that of the People of England, and "upon Capitulation and Terms, which is ſuſ"pected of giving Aid to the Compounders, if "not worſe.

"That Mr. Carrill is qualified, no body doubts, "but in Society with the other; theſe who muſt "be inſtrumental, will not truſt him as they "ought; ſo that ſo long as the other is within "diſtance of penetrating the Affairs, they will "never be ſecure: And yet the King has no ſuch "Game to play, as by theſe very Perſons, who "are 1700. “ are thus diffident; namely, the true Church of England Party, the Catholicks, and the Earl of Arran; and I ſhall ſay ſomething of every one of them.

“ The King cannot but be ſenſible, that the true Church of England Party, and their principal Head, now the Biſhop of Norwich, has been ſilent for a long time; and their Majeſties may remember, what Weight the Court of France laid upon their joyning the King (I mean the Nonſwearing Clergy) in caſe of a Landing: Therefore all Arts ſhould be uſed without delay, to get them to enter into a Correſpondence again, and every Impediment ought to be removed, I ſay, without Exception. And though ſometimes it is of hard digeſtion for Sovereigns, who ought to be obeyed without Reſerve, to yield to the Humours of Subjects, yet Prudence ſhould teach them, when they cannot, without injuring their Affairs, do what they would, do what they can; and remember the Fable of the Dog, who loſt the Subſtance by the Shadow. Aſſurances from the Non-Jurors, the ſoundeſt and moſt venerable Part of the Engliſh Church, would be of great uſe at this Time, to perſuade to undertake this great Affair; for, beſides their own Example at a Landing, and their Preaching and Writing to the People, that their Religion was in no Danger, it is moſt certain, they know better than any other can do, what the Church of England in general would do for the King's Service; and they being to run all the Hazard, would be better believed at the French Court than any other, as I found by Experience.

“ As to the Catholicks, and other Aſſociates with them, unfortunately for the King, they were thought to have too much Inclination for me, and ſo have been reckon'd as uſeleſs to the King: And I muſt beg Leave to ſay, That Undertaking was the beſt Feather in his Wing, and was moſt juſtly thought ſo by him, and the Court of France too, even to that degree, that they pretended, if this and the other Article concerning the Clergy, could be made appear, they would concur with the King to invade England: They conſiſted of ſeven Regiments of Horſe and Dragoons; their Arms, Trumpets, Kettle-Drums, Standards, &c. were all ready, and are yet in Surety; their Men were all liſted, and their Officers choſen, and they had Twenty Horſes to a Troop; which Troops lying at a diſtance, in a Horſe Country, Twenty Horſes would ſoon have mounted the reſt. Thoſe who could not divine the Greatneſs and Uſe of the Undertaking, blamed the Raſhneſs of it; and even ſome Churchmen have not been diſapproven, for endeavouring undutifully (becauſe contrary to the King's written Orders) to break the Deſign; but I deſire you now, for all this, to believe, that you have not ſuch another Argument to uſe to the Court of France as this: And if you can make it appear, as it might have been ſome Years ago, I ſhould have very good Hopes of this Summer's Work; nay, let the King have what other Hopes, even Promiſes, you pleaſe, from the Court of France, this is to be put into the Circumſtances it was in: For if there will ever be a Landing in England to purpoſe, it muſt be before they can be armed; and they cannot be armed, before the Parliament come to a Reſolution concerning the War; and, conſidering the few Troops in England, ſuppoſe theſe Men to be no better than Militia, what a Diverſion would it be? It is not neceſſary for me to ſay any more of this Article, till I know whether their Majeſties have as good an Opinion of this Undertaking as I have; if ſo, I ſhall ſhew what I think is to be done in it; if otherwiſe, I ſave the Pains. 1700. As to the Earl of Arran, it would be of great uſe to have an Underſtanding with him: He will have none where ——— can pry. His All is at ſtake, and he ought to be wary with whom he ventures to deal. I think it better for the King's Service, that the Court Party prevailed in the manner they have done in the Parliament of Scotland, than that the Country Party ſhould have got their Will: Oppoſition ſwells the Waters to a Flood; and ſo long as the Country Party is not diſcouraged, they gain more Ground in the Kingdom, than they loſe in the Government; ſo that the Diſaffection to the Government will increaſe; and one may judge of the Nation in general, which is of another Temper than this pretended Parliament, or rather Presbyterian Rabble, in repreſenting the Nation: For ſince even in it there is ſuch a Struggle againſt the Government, what would there be in a Free Parliament? Which the Prince of Orange durſt never hazard to call: The Nation then, at leaſt a great part of it, being diſaffected to this Government, it is of the laſt Conſequence, that the Earl of Arran may know what to do in caſe of an Invaſion of England, or in caſe he and his Friends be obliged, for Self-preſervation, to riſe in their own Defence. The Army, who are and ever were well-affected, are to be gained by Money; and a little goes a great way with them: The disbanded Troops would be engaged, and the Officers are well inclin'd: The Places of Strength would be ſecured, and ſuch as can be put in defence (without Expences) fortified: To do all this, at leaſt ſuch a part of them as can be begun with, a ſmall Sum will ſerve; and he ought to have Hopes of it, and of the Command.

“ Theſe being only Heads to be diſcourſed of, and much to be ſaid of every part, it is not to be thought, that this Letter can carry a final Concluſion; for it may be, upon Diſcourſe, I might change my Mind, or be more confirmed in it, and ſee farther. This makes me inſiſt again to you upon Two Things, as appearing to me abſolutely neceſſary to put Things upon a right Foot: The firſt is, The removing of all Impediments out of the way, and ſending all ſuſpected Perſons to Champaign or Burgundy, according to their Guilt. And the ſecond is of the laſt Uſe both to their Majeſties and the Prince; which is, The Eſtabliſhing of ſuch a Number, under no Qualification, to talk of their Affairs in their Majeſties Preſence; with whom we can freely converſe, and propoſe what may be for their Majeſties Service.

“ As for the firſt, it will be for the King's Reputation, both at the Courts of Rome, France, and with all his true Friends in England, for many Reaſons——As for the ſecond, it is according to Scripture; In the Multitude of Counſellors there is Safety. Nothing is ſo dangerous, as to determine what one will do, and then hear Reaſons againſt it, and imitate the deaf Adder, who hearkens not to the Voice of the Charmer, let him charm never ſo ſweetly. Reaſons againſt a Reſolution taken, offend; and the more Force they have, they offend the more; whilſt before the Reſolution be taken, Reaſon has its Effect, and the Determinations are not the Effect of Humour and Faction, but of Prudence and Juſtice. If in any thing I fail, I'll ſwear it is want of Underſtanding, and not of Will: And I beg, That their Majeſties may be perſuaded, that it is no Humour nor Va-

1700. " nity, but their Service I have in my View, " Who am,

My deareſt Brother,

Moſt Humbly Yours.

The Letter wiſely deſpiſed in both Houſes.

This Letter was alſo communicated by his Majeſty's Order to the Houſe of Lords; but neither they nor the Commons, would do it the Honour to take any particular Notice of it. Only it ſerved for the juſter Alarm, to ſecure the Government againſt the reſtleſs Endeavours of the Papiſts and Jacobites; and it brought in a ſeaſonable (a) Information, That there were great Quantities of Arms and other warlike Proviſions, made and kept concealed by Papiſts, and other diſaffected Perſons reſorting and meeting together in and about London and Weſtminſter. Upon which, his Majeſty iſſued out his Proclamation on February the 26th, " For all ſuch ſuſpected Perſons to repair to their reſpective Places of Abode; and for putting the Laws in Execution " againſt all Papiſts and reputed Papiſts, and all " other Offenders; who, by reaſon of their " Converſation, Diſcourſe, or other Demeanor, " ſhall be ſuſpected not to be well-affected to the " Government.

Addreſs of the Lords.

To excite a greater Caution againſt the common Enemy, the Houſe of Lords made a dutiful Addreſs to his Majeſty, wherein they declar'd, " their thankful Acknowledgments to him for " the Concern he had expreſs'd in his Speech, " for the Proteſtant Religion; and his Care for " its future Preſervation, by recommending to " their Conſideration a further Proviſion for the " Succeſſion to the Crown in the Proteſtant Line. " That they were highly ſenſible of the Weight " of thoſe Things, which his Majeſty was pleaſed " further to recommend to them; and therefore " they humbly deſired, He would be pleaſed to " order all the Treaties he had made ſince the " late War, to be laid before them, that they " might be enabled to give their mutual Advice, when they ſhould be informed of all " thoſe Matters, neceſſary to direct their Judgments. Then they humbly deſired him to " enter into Alliances with all thoſe Princes and " States, who were willing to unite for the " Preſervation of the Balance of Europe; and " aſſured his Majeſty, That they ſhould readily " concur in ſuch Methods, as might effectually " conduce to the Honour and Safety of England, " the Preſervation of the Proteſtant Religion, " and the Peace of Europe. Then they humbly " return'd their further Thanks to his Majeſty " for communicating the Letter of the Lord " Melfort, and deſired him to ſearch and ſeize " all ſuch Perſons as were thought to be in a " Readineſs to diſturb the Government. In the " mean time, they humbly deſire, That his Majeſty would give ſuch Order for the ſpeedy " fitting out of the Fleet, as he in his great " Wiſdom ſhould think neceſſary in this Conjuncture, for the Defence of his Majeſty and " the Kingdom." His Majeſty thanked the Lords for their Addreſs, and for the Concern they expreſs'd in relation to the common Security both at Home and Abroad; and told them, He would give the neceſſary Orders for thoſe Things they deſired of him, and take care for fitting out ſuch Ships as in that Conjuncture ſhould be neceſſary for their Common Safety. 1700.

Proceedings of the Commons.

The Commons took pains in examining the publick Accounts, and enquiring into thoſe of the Commiſſioners of Prizes. They Reſolved on the 28th of February, That John Parkhurſt, Eſq; and John Paſchal, Eſq; Two of thoſe Commiſſioners, had been guilty of a Neglect of their Duty in the ſaid Office, and of a Contempt of the Act of Parliament made for the Execution of it. And therefore Ordered, That they ſhould be both committed Priſoners to the Tower of London.

Care of the Proteſtant Succeſſion.

On Conſideration of that part of his Majeſty's Speech, which related to the Succeſſion, the Commons Reſolved (3 March) That for the Preſerving the Peace and Happineſs of this Kingdom, and the Security of the Proteſtant Religion by Law Eſtabliſhed, it is abſolutely neceſſary, a further Declaration be made of the Limitation and Succeſſion of the Crown, in the Proteſtant Line, after his Majeſty, and the Princeſs, and the Heirs of their Bodies reſpectively. And, that farther Proviſion be firſt made for Security of the Rights and Liberties of the People. On March the 12th, Mr. Conyers Reported the further Reſolutions of the Committee appointed for that purpoſe; and the Houſe did then Agree and Reſolve, 1. That all Things relating to the well governing of this Kingdom, which are properly cognizable in the Privy Council, ſhall be tranſacted there, and all Reſolutions taken thereupon ſhall be ſigned by the Privy Council. 2. That no Perſon whatſoever, that is not a Native of England, Scotland, or Ireland, or the Dominions thereunto belonging; or who is not born of Engliſh Parents beyond the Seas (although ſuch Perſon be Naturalized or made Denizon) ſhall be capable of any Grant of Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments from the Crown, to himſelf, or any other in Truſt for him. 3. That upon the further Limitation of the Crown, in caſe the ſame ſhall

And of Rights & Liberties.

(a) See, 1. " By the King a Proclamation for putting in " due Execution and Publiſhing the Act made and herein " recited for the further preventing the Growth of Popery; " whereby the Sum of One hundred Pounds is order'd to be " paid by the Sheriffs of the County unto any Perſon, who " ſhall apprehend and take any Popiſh Biſhop, Prieſt, or " Jeſuite." Given at Hampton-Court, 22 April, 1700. Reg. 12.

2. " His Grace the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury's Letter to the Reverend the Lords Biſhops of his Province, " concerning the late Act againſt Popery." Dated at Lambeth, May 9, 1700. London, 1700. 4°.

3. " A Letter from the Lord Biſhop of London, dated " 11th of May, 1700. communicating to the Biſhops of the " Province of Canterbury a Letter from his Grace the Lord " Archbiſhop, on Occaſion of the late Act for the further " preventing the Growth of Popery.

4. " Further Advice to the Clergy of the Dioceſs of Lincoln, by James Lord Biſhop of Lincoln, occaſioned by a " Circular Letter of his Grace the Lord Archbiſhop of " Canterbury, to the Biſhops of his Province, concerning " the late Act againſt Popery." Dated at Buckden, May 25, 1700. Lond. 4°.

5. " An Addreſs to thoſe of the Roman Communion, occaſioned by the late Act of Parliament, for the further " preventing the Growth of Popery." Publiſh'd June 20, 1700. 8°. For M. Wotton. [Suppos'd to be written by Dr. Richard Willis, now Lord Biſhop of Glouceſter.]

6. " An Account of the Seducing of Anne the Daughter " of Edward Kettilby of Ludlow, Gent. to the Popiſh " Religion. With ſome very extraordinary Paſſages relating thereto; particularly, of the groſs Prevarications and " inſolent Boldneſs of the Two Popiſh Biſhops Leyborn " and Giffard, in the Management of it. Humbly preſented to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons. London, 1700. Folio.

7. " A Letter of John Lord Biſhop of Norwich to his " Clergy, upon his communicating to them a Letter of the " Archbiſhop of Canterbury, on Occaſion of the late Act " againſt Popery." Dated Auguſt 1, 1700. Lond. 4°.

8. " A Letter from the Lords Commiſſioners of Trade and " Plantations to the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, ſignifying the great Want of ſome Miniſters of the Church of " England, to inſtruct the Five Nations of Indians on the " Frontiers of New-York; and to prevent their being " practis'd upon by the French Prieſts and Jeſuits, as of " late more-eſpecially attempted." Dated October 25. 1700.

here-

1700. hereafter come to any Perſon not being a Native of this Kingdom of England, this Nation be not obliged to engage in any War for the Defence of any Dominion or Territories not belonging to the Crown of England, without the Conſent of Parliament. 4. That whoſoever ſhall hereafter come to the Poſſeſſion of this Crown, ſhall join in Communion with the Church of England, as by Law Eſtabliſhed. 5. That no Pardon be pleadable to any Impeachment in Parliament. 6. That no Perſon who ſhall hereafter come to the Poſſeſſion of this Crown, ſhall go out of the Dominions of England, Scotland, or Ireland, without Conſent of Parliament. 7. That no Perſon who has any Office under the King, or receives a Penſion from the Crown, ſhall be capable of ſerving as a Member of the Houſe of Commons. 8. That further Proviſion be made for the confirming of all Laws and Statutes for the ſecuring our Religion, and the Rights and Liberties of the People. 9. That Judges Commiſſions be made Quam diu ſe bene geſſerint, and their Salaries aſcertained and eſtabliſhed; but upon the Addreſs of either Houſe of Parliament, it may be lawful to remove them. 10. That the Princeſs Sophia, Dutcheſs Dowager of Hanover, be declared the next in Succeſſion to the Crown of England in the Proteſtant Line, after his Majeſty and the Princeſs, and the Heirs of their Bodies reſpectively; and that the further Limitation of the Crown be to the ſaid Princeſs Sophia, and the Heirs of her Body, being Proteſtants. 11. That a Bill be brought in upon the ſaid Reſolutions. In this Caſe, it was obvious to obſerve, That People may come into the ſame Meaſures upon a very different View. Some, no doubt, might fall into ſuch Limitations upon a true Regard to the Security of the Church, and the Liberties of Poſterity. Others might come in with a Meaning to condemn the preſent Adminiſtration; and to provide for ſuch future Conveniencies as they ſeemed now to want. Some might think it a Step toward coming nearer to a beloved Commonwealth: And even others might imagine, that ſo to clog and embaraſs the Succeſſion, might indirectly prevent the Settlement of it.

Foreign Princes offended. This Affair was a great Subject of Diſcourſe and Alarm Abroad; thoſe Popiſh Princes, who were deſcended from the Blood-Royal of England, and were more nearly related to the Crown, than the Princeſs Sophia, were offended, at being ſtruck off from their remote Hopes and preſumptive Right. But the Perſon more immediately concern'd, as being nigheſt in Blood after the King and the Princeſs Anne, was the Dutcheſs of Savoy, Daughter to the late Dutcheſs of Orleance, and thereby Grand-Daughter to King Charles I. who therefore ordered the Savoy Ambaſſador, Count Maſſey, to make a Proteſtation of her Right, to this Effect.

Proteſtation of the Dutcheſs of Savoy. "That Anne of Orleance, Dutcheſs of Savoy, &c. "Princeſs of the Blood-Royal of England, by the "Royal Princeſs of Great Britain, Henrietta her "Mother, put ſo high a Value upon that Prerogative, that ſhe gladly made uſe of the Opportunity that then offered, to ſet it forth before "the Eyes of the whole Engliſh Nation, as an "Evidence ſhe drew from thence, of having a "Right to that Auguſt Throne. That therefore "being informed, that it had been reſolved in "that Parliament, that being the only Daughter "of the late Princeſs Royal, Henrietta her Mother, ſhe was the next in Succeſſion after his "Majeſty William III. and the Princeſs Anne of "Denmark, according to the Laws and Cuſtoms "of England, who always preferred the neareſt to "the remoteſt Line. That her Title being thus "notoriouſly known and indiſputable, ſtood in "need of no farther Proof. However, that ſhe "thought fit to proteſt againſt all Reſolutions and "Deciſions contrary thereunto, in the beſt and "moſt effectual manner, that might be practiſed "in ſuch a Caſe; wherein ſhe complied rather "with Cuſtom, than Neceſſity; becauſe ſhe had "ſo great an Idea of the Wiſdom and Juſtice of "the King and Parliament, that ſhe had no Cauſe "to fear they would do any thing prejudicial to "her and her Children." But without taking notice of this Proteſtation, the Commons went on with the Bill of Succeſſion, and the King and his Miniſters were ſenſible of the Neceſſity of it.

The Circulation of Exchequer-Bills, to ſupply the Want of Specie Money, was very expedient at this Juncture; and therefore on Thurſday the 13th of March, his Majeſty came for this only purpoſe to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to An Act for Renewing the Bills of Credit, commonly called Exchequer Bills.

His Majeſty being very ſolicitous to defend the States of Holland from the Inſults and Approaches that were made upon them by the French in Flanders; and, if poſſible, to reſtore and preſerve a better Balance of Europe, was carrying on a firm Alliance Abroad againſt the Common Enemy; and therefore ſent this Meſſage, ſign'd by himſelf, deliver'd to the Houſe of Commons by Mr. Secretary Hedges, and read by the Speaker, March 18.

William R.

King's Meſſage to the Commons. HIS Majeſty having directed Mr. Stanhope, his Envoy Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary at the Hague, to enter into Negociations in Concert with the States General of the United Provinces, and other Potentates, for the mutual Security of England and Holland, and the Preſervation of the Peace of Europe, according to an Addreſs of this Houſe to that Effect: And the ſaid Mr. Stanhope having tranſmitted to his Majeſty Copies of the Demands made by Himſelf and the Deputies of the States upon that Subject, to the French Ambaſſador there, his Majeſty has thought fit to communicate the ſame to you. It being his Majeſty's Gracious Intention, to acquaint you from Time to Time with the State and Progreſs of thoſe Negociations, into which he has entred purſuant to your Addreſs above-mentioned. Kenſington the 17*th of* March, 1700.

Treaty of Partition. When this Meſſage was taken into Conſideration of the Commons on the 21ſt of March, they began with the great Obſtruction to it, the Treaty of Partition: And after reading the ſaid Meſſage, the Propoſals made to the French Ambaſſador by Mr. Stanhope, and the Reſolutions of the States General for treating with Monſieur D'Avaux, they Reſolved, That the Treaty of Partition be read; and after reading of it, they proceeded to this Reſolution, That an Humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, to return the Thanks of this Houſe for his Gracious Meſſage, wherein he is pleaſed to communicate his Royal Intentions to acquaint this Houſe from Time to Time with the State and Progreſs of thoſe Negociations into which his Majeſty has entred purſuant to the Addreſs of this Houſe. And alſo to lay before his Majeſty the ill Conſequences of the Treaty of Partition (paſſed under the Great Seal of England, during the Sitting of Parliament, and without the Advice of the ſame) to this Kingdom and the Peace of Europe, whereby ſuch large Territories of the King of Spain's Dominions were to be delivered up to the French King. When this Addreſs was preſented to the King, He did ſomewhat reſent the Unkindneſs of it; and thought there was much more 1700. more Reaſon to complain of the perfidious Breach of the Treaty, than of the Making of it. However, to decline the entring into any Defence of it, he gave this prudent Anſwer:

Gentlemen,

Addreſs and King's Anſwer. I Am glad you are pleaſed with my communicating to you the State of the Negociations I have entred into, purſuant to your Addreſs: I ſhall continue to inform you of the Progreſs that ſhall be made in them, and be always willing to receive your Advice thereupon; being fully perſuaded, that nothing can contribute more effectually to the Happineſs of this Kingdom, and the Peace of Europe, than the Concurrence of the Parliament in all my Negociations, and a good Underſtanding between me and my People.

Lords Addreſs againſt the Partition. The Houſe of Lords had before fell on this unhappy Subject of the Partition-Treaty, and repreſented their Diſlike of it to his Majeſty, in an Addreſs on March the 20th, to this Effect, "That they having read and conſidered the "Treaty of the 21ſt of February, or the 3d of "March, 1700. made with the French King, to"gether with the Separate and Secret Articles "which he had been pleaſed to communicate "to them, did moſt humbly repreſent to Him, "That to their great Sorrow, they found the "Matters thereof to have been of very ill Con"ſequence to the Peace and Safety of Europe; "for that, beſides the Occaſion it might have "given the late King of Spain to have made "his Will in favour of the Duke of Anjou, if "that Treaty had Effect; the Prejudice to his "Majeſty and his Subjects, and indeed to all "Europe, by the Addition of Sicily, Naples, ſe"veral Ports of the Mediterranean, the Province "of Guipuſcoa and the Dutchy of Lorrain, had "been not only very great, but contrary to the "Pretence of the Treaty it ſelf, which was to "prevent any Umbrage that might have been "taken by uniting ſo many States and Domi"nions under one Head. That by all the Infor"mations they had had of that fatal Treaty, "they could not find, that the verbal Orders "and Inſtructions (if any were given to his "Majeſty's Plenipotentiaries) were ever con"ſidered in any of his Majeſty's Councils; or "that the Draught of that Treaty had ever "been laid before his Majeſty at any Meeting "of his Council, much leſs that it was adviſed "or approved of by any Council, or Commit"tee of Council: Wherefore they thought "themſelves bound in Duty to his Majeſty, and "Juſtice to their Country, moſt humbly to be"ſeech Him, that for the future he would be "pleaſed to require and admit, in all Matters "of Importance, the Advice of his Natural"born Subjects, whoſe known Probity and For"tunes might make him and his People a juſt "Aſſurance of their Fidelity to his Service; "and that in order thereunto, he would be plea"ſed to conſtitute a Council of ſuch Perſons "to whom his Majeſty might be pleaſed to im"part all Affairs, both at Home and Abroad, "which might any way concern Him and his "Dominions. For as Intereſt and Natural Af"fection to their Country, would incline them "to wiſh the Welfare and Proſperity of it much "more than others, who had no ſuch Ties upon "them; and as their Experience and Know"ledge of their Country, would alſo render "them more capable than Strangers, of advi"ſing his Majeſty in the true Intereſts of it; "ſo they were confident, that after ſuch large "and repeated Demonſtrations of his Subjects "Duty and Affection, his Majeſty could not "doubt of their Zeal in his Service, nor want 1700. "the Knowledge of Perſons fit to be employed "in all his moſt Secret and Arduous Affairs. "And that ſince it appeared the French King's "accepting of the King of Spain's Will, was a "manifeſt Violation of that Treaty, they hum"bly adviſed his Majeſty in future Treaties with "that Prince, to proceed with ſuch Caution, as "might carry a real Security."

His Majeſty having received the Lords Addreſs, anſwered, It contain'd Matters of very great Moment; and that he would always take care, that all Treaties he made, ſhould be for the Honour and Safety of England.

Before this Addreſs was actually preſented, a Debate for Concurrence of the Commons Motion was made to ſend to the Commons for their Concurrence; and theſe Reaſons were urg'd for it by ſome of the Lords, "That the laſt "Clauſe in the Addreſs did neceſſarily imply a "War, and that a very long one, by Reaſon of "the Extent (unintelligible at leaſt to them) "of a real Security, and the great Improbability "of obtaining any Terms of that kind; and "ſince that neceſſarily implied great Supplies, "which could not be granted without the Com"mons, they look'd upon their Concurrence in "the Addreſs to be abſolutely neceſſary; and "that it was improper for them to deſire that of "the King, which, for want of ſuch Concur"rence of the Commons, they conceived, his "Majeſty would not think fit or prudent for him "to grant them. That they were of Opinion, "all the other parts of the Addreſs, were very fit "to be communicated to the Commons; for up"on the Succeſs of it depended the future Hap"pineſs of the Nation: And as they could not "doubt of the Commons Readineſs to join in any "proper Meaſures towards it, ſo they thought "their Concurrence therein would highly con"tribute towards the obtaining of a Gracious An"ſwer from his Majeſty; and they could not "but think it reaſonable, that the Advice of the "whole Nation aſſembled in Parliament ſhould "be made known to the King upon ſuch an Oc"caſion.

"It was urged farther, That their Lordſhips "having deſired the Commons to permit Mr. Se"cretary Vernon, a Member of their Houſe, to "come to a Committee of Lords, in order to "be informed by him of ſome Matters relating "to the Treaty of Partition, they apprehended "that the Commons might think it extraordi"nary, and not ſuitable to the good Correſpon"dence which was highly neceſſary between the "Two Houſes, not to acquaint them with the "Things which had come to their Knowledge, "partly by the Information of their own Mem"bers: And that having been otherwiſe infor"med of ſome Tranſactions relating to that "Treaty, between the Earl of Portland, and "Mr. Secretary Vernon, by Letters, of which "they had not received a full Account, they "thought it might be very uſeful to the Publick, "to communicate that Addreſs to the Commons, "who had a better Opportunity than their "Lordſhips, of enquiring into that Matter, "which ſeem'd to be yet in the Dark, and which "their own Members might help to explain to "them.

But the major part of the Lords were againſt the communicating of this Addreſs to the Commons, and left them to make a like ſeparate Addreſs, for a double Regret to his Majeſty.

Honours. The King had been pleaſed on December the 30th to confer the Honour of Knighthood upon John Meres, Eſq; eldeſt Son of Sir Thomas Meres; and 1700. and on February the 2d, to confer the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom upon Nicholas Vanacker of London, Eſq; and before the ſitting of the Parliament, His Majeſty had writ this Letter of Congratulation to the Elector of Brandenburgh, upon his taking the Title and Prerogatives of King of Pruſſia.

Letter to the King of Pruſſia. "William the Third, by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain, France and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. to the moſt Illuſtrious, and moſt Potent Lord, the Lord Frederick, by the like Grace of God, King of Pruſſia, Margrave of Brandenburgh, Arch-Chamberlain of the Holy Empire, and Elector of Magdenburgh, &c. our loving Brother, Kinſman, and faithful Ally and Friend, all Health and Happineſs.

"So ſoon as we underſtood by your Majeſty's Letter of the 18th Inſtant, dated at Coningſburgh, that you had taken to your ſelf the Royal Name, Title and Dignity, which your Predeceſſors have enjoy'd in the Dutchy of Pruſſia for an incredible many Years, and which we have thought you worthy to bear long ago; becauſe you are fully endowed with extraordinary Royal Virtues and Magnificence: Therefore the Notification thereof has been the more joyful and acceptable to us, as well for all theſe Reaſons, as becauſe of the nearneſs of Blood; and the inward Affection which we have, both to your Majeſty's High Perſon, and to your whole Illuſtrious Family, can work nothing elſe in us, than that whatever Succeſſes and Pleaſures your Majeſty may meet with, ſhall likewiſe cauſe great Joy to us. This our Joy is the greater, becauſe your Majeſty has been pleaſed to communicate this your Joy unto us, even in the very Beginning of your Royal Dignity; and as the ſame is moſt highly acceptable to us, ſo we ſhall let no Opportunity ſlip, of teſtifying by our Actions, how highly we eſteem you; and that ſo much the more, becauſe the preſent Juncture of Affairs requires a ſtrict Confidence in the Minds and Unity in Council, together with a mutual good Underſtanding. We further wiſh, that as the Almighty God hath raiſed in your Majeſty's High Perſon, a new Star in the Northern Parts of the Earth, he will alſo grace you with a new Light; and that this our Wiſh may be the more powerful in it ſelf, we recommend you ever to the Mercy of God."

Given at our Court of Kenſington, the 13th of January, O. S. in the Year 1701, and Twelfth of our Reign.

State of Religion. In the View of Religion this Year (a), we ought to condole the Unhappy Diſpute that now began, about the Form and Manner of holding a Convocation. For the occaſion of this Conteſt, we muſt go back to the latter End of the Reign of King James II. when our Biſhops and Clergy being ſadly ſenſible, that the Papiſts hop'd to compaſs their Deſigns, by dividing of Proteſtants, began to apply friendly to their Diſſenting Brethren; and to invite them with more Tenderneſs into the Boſom of the Church, they offered at ſome Healing Methods; and to teſtify their Sincerity in it, they made a Publick Declaration to that Prince, that They were willing to come to ſuch a Temper. But as that Prince, conſidering his Deſigns, had no Reaſon to deſire it; ſo His Unhappy Reign gave no Leiſure to effect it. When the Revolution had Sav'd all our Rights and Liberties, every Body then remembred how Archbiſhop Sancroft, and other Prelates, with the moſt Eminent Divines (eſpecially of London) had been engag'd in ſome amicable Deſigns, which they hoped the preſent Juncture might facilitate and bring to Perfection. To this deſirable End, Their Majeſties in the Firſt Year of Their Reign, did commiſſionate the moſt Learned of the Biſhops, and others of the Chief Clergy, to prepare for a Convocation, ſuch Improvements and Alterations in our Liturgy and Canons, as they ſhould judge Expedient for the Edification and good Government of the Church, and for reconciling the more reaſonable Diſſenters. The Commiſſioners labour'd in this excellent Work with great Judgment, Temper and Application; and had prepared ſuch a modeſt Plan of Union, as very well deſerved the Conſideration of the Prelates and Clergy Synodically Aſſembled, before whom it was to be laid, and ſubmitted to their Debates and Deciſions, to be afterward confirm'd by King and Parliament. But in the mean Time, an Opinion was induſtriouſly propagated among the Clergy, that the Deſign of Reconciling was only to overthrow the Eſtabliſh'd Church. Hence, upon the opening of that Convocation in 1689. the Majority of the Clergy were prejudic'd againſt any Accommodation to be had with the Diſſenters: and choſe a Prolocutor on purpoſe to oppoſe it; ſo as the Biſhop of London, then Preſident of the Convocation, could do nothing in that matter, but connive at their treating of him with ſome Indignity, which he did not deſerve from them.

[Right margin: 1700. — Diſputes in Convocation. — Beginning of this unhappy Controverſy.]

The Majority of the Lower Houſe having thus publickly declared their Averſion to the Scheme intended to be laid before them, without ſignifying their deſire to enter upon any other Buſineſs; and rather expreſſing their Reſolution to do nothing: His Majeſty (according to the Practice of King Charles II.) order'd this Convocation prorogu'd.

(a) For the good Deſign of promoting the Reformation of Manners, ſee, 1. "The Preſentment of the Grand Jury for the City of London, at Juſtice Hall in the Old Baily, for Carrying on the Reformation of Manners, and moving that no Play-Houſe Bills may be poſted up within the City," 16 May, 1700.

2. "Order of the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen of the City of London againſt Interludes, Stage-Plays, Comedies, Gaming Places, Lotteries, Diſorderly Muſick Meetings, &c. during the Time of Bartholomew Fair, in order to the better Suppreſſion of Prophaneneſs, Vice and Debauchery." Dated 25 June, 1700.

3. "A Short Account of the ſeveral Kinds of Societies ſet up of late Years for carrying on the Reformation of Manners, and for the Propagation of Chriſtian Knowledge." Feb. 1700.

4. "The Biſhop of London's Eleventh Conference with his Clergy, held in the Years 1699, and 1700. upon the King's Proclamation for preventing Immorality and Prophaneneſs, with Copies of, 1. The Act for the more effectual ſuppreſſing of prophane Curſing and Swearing. 2. An Act for the more effectual ſuppreſſing of Blaſphemy and Prophaneneſs. 3. The King's Proclamation for preventing and puniſhing Immorality and Prophaneneſs." London, by Ben. Motte, 4to.

5. "A Liſt of the Names of the ſeveral Clergymen who intend to ſupply the Lecture, or Courſe of Preaching at ſeveral Places within the County of Cheſter, on the 4th Tueſday of each Month, in purſuance of his Majeſty's Proclamation to ſuppreſs Prophaneneſs and Immorality." And licenſed by Nickolas Lord Biſhop of Cheſter. Printed 1700.

6. "A Sermon preached at the Church of St. Mary le Bow to the Societies for Reformation of Manners, January 1. 1700. by John Mapletoft, D. D. Miniſter of St. Lawrence Jewry in London, for B. Aylmer, 1700. 4to.

7. "An Account of the Progreſs of the Reformation of Manners in England and Ireland. In a Letter to a Friend." London, 1701. 4*to*.

8. "Order of the Juſtices at the General Seſſions for the County of Middleſex, 3 March, 1700. for making frequent Searches after all ſuch as keep diſorderly Houſes, and all prophane Swearers and Drunkards, &c. and declaring that no Conſtable ſhall be a Victualler or Ale Houſe-Keeper." Printed Sheet, 1701.

1700. Convocation to be regularly prorogued. And in every other Seſſion of Parliament, a Convocation was ſummon'd and in being with it, which for want of proper Buſineſs was continued and prorogu'd by the Preſident, and left always in a Capacity and Readineſs to come together, upon any Exigence of Church or State that required their Counſel or Aſſiſtance; though no ſuch Exigence did happen for ſeveral Years together. But what was thus deſign'd for the Eaſe of the Clergy, in not obliging them to a fruitleſs and expenſive Attendance, when there was no occaſion to juſtify their Abſence from the Duty of their Cures; did by degrees give a Handle of Complaint, as if they were debarr'd from the Rights and Liberties of meeting and acting in Convocation.

Murmurs and Diſcontents of the Clergy.

Theſe Murmurs of Reſtraint and Hardſhip were privately fomented among thoſe of the Clergy who were Non-Jurors (a); and among thoſe who complied with the Government, without ſatisfying their own Expectations in it. Theſe Diſcontents did unhappily move the Lower Clergy to raiſe new Diſputes of Privilege and Independence on the Archbiſhop and Biſhops in Convocation; and to labour to bring themſelves to be ſuch a Spiritual Houſe of Commons (b), as, if their Pretenſions could prevail, would very much endanger the Peace of Church and State. Under this diſpoſition, the Convocation of the Prelates and Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, by the Archbiſhop's Mandate in purſuance of the King's Writ, met in the Church of St. Paul, London, on Monday, February the 10*th*; where after the Litany in the Latin Tongue, and an eloquent Sermon in the ſame Language, deliver'd by Dr. Hayley Dean of Chichester, and the Hymn Sung, O pray for the Peace of Jeruſalem, &c. The Archbiſhop, followed by his Suffragans, went out of the Choir, and proceeded to the Chapter Houſe; where after reading the Royal Writ, and the Certificatory of the Biſhop of London for executing the Archiepiſcopal Mandate; his Grace in a Latin Speech admoniſhed the Lower Clergy then preſent, to retire and chuſe a Prolocutor, and preſent him on Friday the 21*ſt* Inſtant. They elected Dr. Hooper Dean of Canterbury, who on the ſaid appointed Day was preſented to the Archbiſhop and Biſhops by Dr. Jane Dean of Glouceſter, and was approved and confirmed in uſual manner. In the next Seſſion, February the 25*th*. when the Archbiſhop's Schedule of Prorogation was brought down to the Lower Houſe, which was legally to determine every Seſſion, in Contempt of it they continued ſitting, and proceeded in ſome Debates of no Moment; after which, the Prolocutor intimated an Adjournment by conſent of the Houſe to meet again in Henry VII's Chapel, inſtead of the Prorogation to meet in the Jeruſalem Chamber as by the Schedule, which expreſly included the whole Body of the Convocation, and left no pretence to ſeparate Adjournments in either Houſe. The Archbiſhop, and a far greater part of his Suffragans, look'd on this Proceeding of the Lower Houſe as a Declaration of ſetting up for a ſeparate Intereſt and Power, that would break the Union of a Provincial Synod, and prevent the good Correſpondence of both Houſes, and ſo fruſtrate the common Methods of doing any Buſineſs. Hence in the Fourth Seſſion, February the 28*th*. the Prolocutor and Clergy did not attend his Grace and their Lordſhips in the Synodical Place, the Jeruſalem-Chamber; which was interpreted to be a ſecond Contempt of the Authority of the Preſident, and the Obligation of his Inſtrument, the Schedule proroguing and continuing the whole Body of Prelates and Clergy. 1700.

Opening of the Convocation.

So the Archbiſhop ſent for the Prolocutor, and with conſent of his Brethren put theſe Two Queſtions to Him, 1. Whether the Lower Houſe of Convocation did ſit, after they were prorogued by his Grace on the 25*th Day of this Inſtant Month* February? 2. Whether they did meet this Morning, without attending in this Place, to which they were prorogued? Upon ſome Diſcourſe concerning theſe Queſtions, the Prolocutor ſaid, That the Lower Houſe was preparing ſomewhat to lay before his Grace and the Upper Houſe, concerning the Methods of Prorogation, and ſome other Things of Form. His Grace anſwer'd, That he and his Brethren were ready to receive whatſoever ſhould be offer'd by them, and would conſider of it, and do upon it what ſhould appear to them to be juſt and right: But in the mean time he and his Brethren thought fit to continue the uſual Practice.

Accordingly, that the Phraſe of proroguing in hunc locum might admit of no Diſpute, it was in the Schedule of the Day expreſly ſpecified, in hunc locum, vulgo vocat. Jeruſalem Chamber; to which the Lower Houſe ſubmitted with a Salvo Jure; and at the next Seſſion, March the 6*th*. the Prolocutor, accompanied with ſeveral Members, paid Attendance upon his Grace and their Lordſhips in Jeruſalem Chamber, according to the Form of the laſt Schedule; and being ſoon diſmiſt went to their own Houſe; from whence in a little time they carried up this Report of a Committee appointed to ſearch the Convocation-Books for Directions concerning the Prorogations of this Houſe, made on Thurſday the Sixth Day of March, 1700.

Firſt, We find that the common Uſage of this Houſe has been to continue ſitting, till the Prolocutor did prorogue or adjourn, or intimate the Adjournment or Prorogation thereof, either perſonally, or by ſome Member of this Houſe thereunto deputed by him: And in both theſe Caſes (as we conceive) with the conſent of this Houſe. And we alſo find by ſome Inſtances, that this Houſe did not always prorogue and adjourn to the ſame Day with the Upper Houſe.

Secondly, We find the like common Uſage by this Houſe to have been, that when in the Upper Houſe the Convocation was prorogued or adjourned by Adjournments by the Prolocutor perſonally.

Seſſ. 3, 4, 6, 9, 11. A.D. 1586.
Seſſ. May 8. 1640. Lower Houſe Book.
Seſſ. Nov. 28. 1640. ib.
Seſſ. March 21. 1677. and Apr. 17. 1679. ib.

By Deputy.
Seſſ. 7. Nov. 23. 1586. ib.
Seſſ. 10. ib. May 2. 1640. ib.

With Conſent of the Houſe.
Seſſ. May 2. 1640. ib. Seſſ. prox. ib.
Convocat. incept. Nov. 4. 1640. ib.

Intimations.
Convocat. 1586, 1588. paſſim.
Minute Book 1661. paſſim.

To a different Day.
Seſſ. May 5. 1640. both Books Collated. Seſſ. 12. Dec. 9. 1640. both Books Collated ut ſupra.

(a) One main Reaſon of the Diſguſt of the Clergy, not yet diſtinguiſh'd and dignified according to their Hopes, was the King's granting a Commiſſion to the Archbiſhops, and certain Biſhops, for the diſpoſing of Eccleſiaſtical Preferments in the Gift of the Crown, which His Majeſty meant for the Honour of the Church, and the ſtricter Regard to the Merit of the Perſons. But they who thought themſelves neglected, ſet up themſelves for the better Church-Men, and were the more angry with theſe that were preferr'd. The Commiſſion bearing Teſts at Weſtminſter 9th, of May, Reg. 12. Anno 1700. did nominate and appoint Thomas Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, John Lord Archbiſhop of York, Gilbert Lord Biſhop of Sarum, William Lord Biſhop of Worceſter, Simon Lord Biſhop of Ely, and John Lord Biſhop of Norwich, to be his Majeſty's Commiſſioners for diſpoſing all Eccleſiaſtical Preferments, &c.

(b) See a Paper convey'd to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury by the Hands of Mr. Tyllot, Regiſtrar, to urge the Execution of the Premunientes Writ in the Call to Convocation, dated Decemb. 4. 1700.

the 1700.

In hunc Locum.
Seſſ. 2. Upper Houſe Book Collated with Seſſ. 3. Lower Houſe Book, Apr. 17. and 23. 1640.

the Words in hunc locum, this Houſe did meet apart from the ſame, at the ſame particular Place where it ſat laſt. And when the Convocation was prorogued or adjourn'd to ſome other General Place, viz. St. Paul's and Lambeth, then alſo this Houſe did aſſemble in a ſeparate Place diſtinctly from their Lordſhips. And farther we find no footſteps of Evidence to conclude, that it was ever the Practice of this Houſe to attend their Lordſhips before this Houſe did meet and ſit purſuant to their former Adjournment. But when this Houſe hath firſt met and ſat, it hath been the conſtant Practice to attend their Lordſhips with Buſineſs of their own Motion, or when they were called up to their Lordſhips by a ſpecial Meſſenger.

St. Paul's and Lambeth.
Seſſ. 10. 1586. Seſſ. 8, 9. 1588.

Houſe went up.
Seſſ. 11. 1586. Seſſ. 4. March 4. 1586.
Seſſ. 8. 1588.

Houſe called up.
Seſſ. 1, 2, 3, 6, 9. in Feb. 1586.
Seſſ. 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 12. in 1588.
Seſſ. June 13. 1662.

The Archbiſhop and his Brethren thought it their Right to expect, and to receive a direct Anſwer, in Matters of Fact, to the Two Queſtions propoſed to the Prolocutor; and wonder'd to find no Notice taken of them. However, his Grace, with conſent of his Brethren, order'd this Paper to be read, though it was intitled, A Report of the Committee, and did not run, as it ſhould have done, in the Name of the Houſe; and then referr'd the Examination of it to a Committee of Biſhops. In the mean while, his Grace deliver'd to the Prolocutor, the Form of an Humble Addreſs to His Majeſty, and propoſed to him the Conſent of the Lower Houſe, which was given with no Amendment, only they propoſed that it might be Reformed Churches inſtead of Reformed Religion; and with the Alteration of that Word, it was preſented to His Majeſty at Kenſington on Monday March the 10*th*, by the Archbiſhop in the Name of himſelf, his Suffragans, and the reſt of the Clergy.

May it pleaſe Your Majeſty,

Addreſs of Convocation.

"WE Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and " Loyal Subjects, the Archbiſhops and " Biſhops, and the reſt of the Clergy of the " Province of Canterbury, being in Obedience " to Your Majeſty's Summons aſſembled in Con" vocation, do take this Opportunity to preſent " our humble Thanks to Your Majeſty, for the " conſtant Protection and Favour which the Church " of England, by Law Eſtabliſhed, has received " from You ever ſince Your happy Acceſſion to " the Crown.

" We do alſo thankfully Acknowledge Your " Majeſty's pious Concern for the Reformed " Churches in General; beſeeching Almighty " God, that as He hath made Your Majeſty His " chief Inſtrument in the Preſervation of them " hitherto, ſo He would ſtill bleſs Your Majeſty's " Endeavours for their farther Security againſt " the imminent Dangers wherewith they are " threatned at this Time (a).

" And we humbly crave leave to give Your " Majeſty all poſſible Aſſurance of our ſtedfaſt " Fidelity and Affection to Your Sacred Perſon " and Government, which we ſhall always teſtify, by maintaining the Supremacy " as Eſtabliſh'd by the Laws of this Realm, " and the Articles and Canons of our Church; " by promoting true Religion and Loyalty " among Your People committed to our " Charge; and by our earneſt Prayers to God " for Your Majeſty's long Life and proſperous " Reign over us.

To which His Majeſty was pleaſed to return the following moſt gracious Anſwer.

My Lords, and the reſt of the Clergy,

"I Am very well pleaſed with the Affecti" onate Senſe you expreſs of the conſtant " Protection I have ſhewn to the Church of England " as by Law Eſtabliſhed. I aſſure you I " ſhall always continue to deſerve your Thanks " in this Particular.

" Your good Will to the Reform'd Churches " Abroad, and Tenderneſs for ſuch of them " as may be in Danger, is alſo very agreeable " to me.

" I likewiſe thank you for your Promiſes of " maintaining my Supremacy according to " Law, beyond which I will never extend it. " I never doubted of the Fidelity and Loyalty " of the Church of England to me.

" I make no queſtion of your zealous Endeavours " to promote Religion, Virtue and " Piety among the People committed to your " Charge. And I ſhall be ever ready to contribute " what is proper to be done on my Part, " to make your good Intentions in that kind " more ſucceſsful, as being the great Concern " of us all.

(a) The Quakers were the Party who with moſt Reaſon were ſuſpected of having, at leaſt, ſome Leaders among them, who were to manage them in promoting the Popiſh Intereſt. See,

1. " The Quakers Prophecy of the dreadful and utter " Deſtruction of all the Miniſters of the Church of " England. Collected out of their Writings." Printed by J. Nutt, 1700.

2. " Some Reaſons why Robert Bridgman and his Wife, " and ſome others, in Huntingdonſhire, have left the Qua" kers, and have join'd in Communion with the Church " of England. With ſome Letters between George White" head, &c. 16 April, 1700." By Robert Bridgman, London, 1700. 4to.

3. " A Certificate, or Teſtimonial, given by Dr James " Gardiner, Biſhop of Lincoln, directed to the Clergy of his " Dioceſe, concerning the uſeful Writings, and great Ex" pences and Trouble of Francis Bugg, in confuting the " Errors of the Quakers. Dated May 24, 1700." Printed 1700. 4*to*.

4. " A Relation given from the Mouth of the Reverend " Mr. Battle, Sub-Dean of the Royal Chapel, on the 2d of " July, 1700. declaring that in 1677. he was at Rome, " and was there informed, and fully ſatisfy'd, that Wil" liam Penn in England, kept a Correſpondence by Let" ters with the Jeſuits at Rome, and had weekly Packets " ſent to and from him; with other Authorities, imply" ing William Penn to be a Papiſt, and probably in Or" ders from the See of Rome.". Publiſh'd by Francis Bugg, 1700.

5. " A Serious Call to the Quakers, inviting them to " return to Chriſtianity, ſetting forth their Vile and Mon" ſtrous Doctrines. Collected out of their own Books, " atteſted by Eight Miniſters of the Church of England, " viz. Dr. Iſham, Dr. Wincop, Dr. Bedford, Mr. Altham, " Mr. Bradford, Mr. Whitfield, Mr. Butler, and Mr. Adams.", Large printed Sheet, 1700.

6. " A Sermon preached at St. Olave Southwark, Sep" tember 8, 1700. By John Haſlewood, D. D. Rector " of Saint Olave's Southwark, occaſioned by the Recanta" tion of Dr. John Spire, lately a Quaker: With a Copy " of the ſaid Retractation and Confeſſion, entitled, Dr. " John Spire's Oration at the Pariſh Church of Saint " Olave Southwark, September 8. 1700." London, 1700. Quarto.

1700.

In the next Seſſion, Thurſday the 20th of March, the Prolocutor brought up this Humble Repreſentation of the Lower Houſe of Convocation to the moſt Reverend his Grace the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the Right Reverend the Biſhops his Suffragans of the Upper Houſe, praying their Lordſhips Concurrence with theſe Reſolutions hereunto annexed (which have been unanimouſly agreed to by the Lower Houſe) together with their Advice and Directions, what effectual Courſes may be taken to ſuppreſs the Book mentioned in the ſaid Reſolutions, and all other pernicious Books already written againſt the Truth of the Chriſtian Religion; and to prevent the Publication of the like for the future.

Repreſentation of the Lower Houſe.

The Report of the Committee appointed for the Examination of Books lately publiſhed againſt the Truth of the Chriſtian Religion, as to part of the Matter to them referred, made on Thurſday the 20th Day of March, in the Year of our Lord Juxta, &c. 1700, as follows, viz.

"Upon the Peruſal of the Book and Schedule "hereunto annex'd, laid before this Committee "by Mr. Vice-Chancellor of Oxford, on Tueſday "the 11th Day of this Inſtant March, this Com"mittee came to the following Reſolutions "(Nemine Contradicente) hereupon, viz.

Reſolved Firſt,

"That in the Judgment of this Committee, "the ſaid Book is a Book of pernicious Principles, "of dangerous Conſequence to the Chriſtian Re"ligion, written on a Deſign (as we conceive) "and tending to ſubvert the fundamental Articles "of Chriſtian Faith.

Reſolved Secondly,

"That in the Judgment of this Committee, "the Poſitions extracted out of the ſaid Book, "and therewith hereunto annex'd, are, together "with divers others of the like Nature therein "contained, pernicious, dangerous, and ſcanda"lous Poſitions, and deſtructive of the Chriſtian "Faith.

Reſolved Thirdly,

"That to prevent the Growth of theſe and the "like pernicious Principles, it is the Opinion of "this Committee, That ſome ſpeedy Courſe "ought to be taken for ſuppreſſing this and all "other Books of the like miſchievous Nature "and Tendency.

Reſolved Fourthly,

"That in order thereunto, it is alſo the Opi"nion of this Committee, That an Humble Re"preſentation of the Premiſes be forthwith laid "by this Houſe before the Lords the Biſhops of "the Upper Houſe, praying their Lordſhips Con"currence with theſe Reſolutions; together with "their Advice and Directions, what effectual "Courſe may be taken, to ſuppreſs theſe and all "other pernicious Books already written againſt "the Truth of the Chriſtian Religion, and to "prevent the Publication of the like for the "future.

1700.

A Schedule of Poſitions extracted out of the Book herewith annex'd, entitled, Chriſtianity not myſterious, and bearing the Name of J. Toland; Printed at London, in October, Anno Dom. 1696. In which the Author expreſly ſays as follows.

Pag. 80. Sect. 14. he ſaith;

Poſ. 1. "I conclude, That neither God himſelf, "nor any of his Attributes, are myſterious to us, "for want of adequate Idea.

Pag. 107. Sect. 34. he ſaith;

Poſ. 2. "No doubt on't, as far as any Church "allows of Myſteries, ſo far it is Anti-Chriſtian, "and may, with a great deal of Juſtice, though "little Honour, claim Kindred with the Scarlet "Whore.

Pag. 134. Sect. 60. he ſaith;

Poſ. 3. "To ſpeak freely, Contradiction and "Myſtery are but Two emphatical Ways of ſay"ing nothing.

Pag. 39. Sect. 36. he ſaith;

Poſ. 4. "It evidently follows (i. e. from his Ob"ſervations) That Faith is ſo far from being an "implicit Aſſent to any thing above Reaſon, that "this Notion contradicts the Ends of Religion, "the Nature of Man, and the Goodneſs and Wiſ"dom of God.

Pag. 162. Sect. 19.

Poſ. 5. "Having drawn a Parallel of the Ancient "Heathen, and, as he calls them, new-coin'd "Chriſtian Myſteries, he ſaith——

"I could draw out this Parallel much larger, "but here is enough to ſhew how Chriſtianity "became myſterious, and how ſo Divine an In"ſtitution did, through the Craft and Ambition "of Prieſts and Philoſophers, derogate into meer "Paganiſm.

In the following Seſſion, held Saturday, March 22. the Archbiſhop produced a certain printed Book, entitled, Eſſays upon the Balance of Power; and after the reading of a certain Paragraph in the 40th Page, the ſaid Preſident and his Suffragans agreed, that the following Paper ſhould be fix'd over ſeveral Doors in Weſtminſter-Abby.

March 22. 1700.

Whereas this Day a Book entitled, Eſſays upon I. The Balance of Power. II. The Right of making War, Peace, and Alliances. III. Univerſal Monarchy, &c. was brought into the Jeruſalem Chamber, where his Grace the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the reſt of the Suffragan Biſhops of his Province were aſſembled in Convocation: In the 40th Page of which Book are theſe Words (a); Are not a great many of us able to point out to ſeveral Perſons, whom nothing has recommended to Places of higheſt Truſt, and often to Rich BENEFICES and DIGNITIES, but the open Enmity which they have almoſt from their Cradles, profeſt to the Divinity of Chriſt:

It is deſired by the ſaid Archbiſhop and Biſhops, That the Author himſelf, whoever he be, or any one of the great many to whom he refers, would point out to the particular Perſons, whom he or they know to be liable to that Charge, that they may be proceeded againſt in a Judicial Way; which will be eſteemed a great Service to the Church: Otherwiſe, the above-mentioned Paſſage muſt be look'd upon as a PUBLICK SCANDAL.

THO. TILLOTT.

(a) This was a part of the ill-natur'd Spirit now moving on the Top of the Church, to point out the Biſhops and Divines beſt affected to the Peace of the Government in Church and State, as Socinians, or any other kind of Hereticks. But no Proof was made by Dr. Davenant, or any one who ſuggeſted this Scandal to him.

We

1701. Proceedings in Parliament,

We left the Two Houſes Debating, or rather Declaiming on the Treaty of Partition. When the Motion of it began in the Houſe of Peers, many of the Lords directly charg'd it upon the Earl of Portland. His Lordſhip excuſed himſelf, by ſaying, That the Duke of L——, the Earls of P——, J——, and M——, the Lords S——, L——, and H——, and Mr. Vernon, had their Share in that Negotiation, as well as himſelf: Whereupon the Peers whom his Lordſhip had named, did readily acknowledge, That they had indeed ſeen the rough Draught of the Treaty; but that the Earl of Portland had drawn it up himſelf in French; and as for their part, they had neither given nor refuſed their Conſent to it; becauſe the Treaty was never communicated to the Privy-Council. Upon this Occaſion, ſome Peers had ſpoke very reflectingly of the King of France; the Earl of R took them up, and ſaid, That all Men ought to ſpeak reſpectfully of Crown'd Heads; and that this Duty was more particularly incumbent on the Peers of a Kingdom, who derived all their Honour and Luſtre from the Crown. This was back'd by another Earl, who ſaid, That the King of France was not only to be Reſpected, but likewiſe to be Feared. To whom another Member of that illuſtrious Aſſembly replied, that He hoped no Man in England needed to be afraid of the French King; much leſs the Peer who ſpoke laſt, who he doubted was too much a Friend to that Monarch, to fear any thing from Him. And in the Houſe of Commons, they talked over this Matter with more extraordinary Warmth; and ſome Members gave themſelves a Looſe in reflecting upon (a) His Majeſty, beyond all the Bounds of Duty and Decency; intimating, How the Combination for dividing another Man's Kingdom, might be compared to an Action on the High-way; with ſome other Expreſſions too groſs to be related.

About the Treaty of Partition.

Memorial of Mr. Stanhope at the Hague.

In the mean time, Mr. Stanhope, his Majeſty's Envoy at the Hague, delivered in a Memorial to the French Ambaſſador the Count d' Avaux, importing, That the King his Maſter, and the States General, having on the 25th of March, 1700. concluded a Treaty of Partition with the French, to prevent a New War, which they had all the Reaſon to fear, in caſe the King of Spain died without Iſſue. And that among other things, the principal Aim of the Contractors was to preſerve Peace, and particularly in thoſe Parts: But the French King had found it convenient to accept the Will of the late King of Spain, and ſo to depart entirely from the Partition agreed upon: However, the King of England ought not to loſe the Effect of that Treaty, which was the General Peace and Tranquility, and his own particular Security; for which he muſt demand an Equivalent to Himſelf and the States, in theſe following Articles.

I. That for preſerving the Peace and General Tranquility, wherein conſiſted a great part of the particular Security of the King of Great Britain's Kingdoms; the Emperor ſhould be invited to enter into the Negotiation, and reaſonable Content and Satisfaction given him upon his Pretenſions to the Spaniſh Succeſſion, which the Partition Treaty had regulated; and that the Emperor ſhould be admitted and included in the Treaty the King of England and States ſhould make with the French King and Crown of Spain.

II. That the French King, by a ſhort and limited Time ſhould withdraw all his Troops out of the Spaniſh Netherlands, and ſend no more thither for the future; but that the ſame ſhould be Gariſon'd by the Troops of Walloons, or of the Netherlands, ſubject to Spain, except in the Places reſerved for Security; but that it ſhould be lawful for England and Holland to ſend their Forces for the Defence of the Netherlands, when lawfully requir'd. 1701.

III. That for the particular Security of England, Oſtend and Newport, with all their Forts, Fortifications, &c. ſhould be guarded only by Engliſh Troops.

IV. That the King of England might augment, leſſen, or change the ſaid Garriſons as he pleaſed, and ſend thither what Ammunition, Proviſion, Arms and Materials for Fortifications he thought fit.

V. That his Majeſty ſhould have full Power over the ſaid Places, yet without Prejudice to the Rights and Revenues of the Crown of Spain.

VI. That he ſhould be free to repair or improve the Fortifications, as he judged moſt convenient.

VII. That no Places or Provinces belonging any where to Spain, ſhould be any way alienated or given away to France, or ſubmitted to the Power of the French King.

VIII. That the King of England's Subjects ſhould have the ſame Privileges and Immunities within the Spaniſh Dominions, as well in as out of Europe, as before the King of Spain's Death, except otherwiſe agreed on by a Treaty.

IX. That all the Treaties of Peace and Trade between England and Spain, ſhould be renew'd.

X. That the Engliſh Subjects ſhould be upon the ſame Foot, in reſpect to Privilege of Trade, as the French, in any of the Spaniſh Dominions.

XI. That France and Spain ſhould ſolemnly engage to obſerve theſe Points.

XII. That the Treaty to be made upon this Occaſion, ſhould have the Guarantee of the Potentates deſired by the Contractors.

This Memorial was the ſame Day ſeconded by another from the Dutch, much in the ſame Terms; only inſtead of Newport and Oſtend, which the King of England demanded, the States required to have the Cities and Fortreſſes of Venlo, Ruremond, Stevenwaerds, Luxemburgh, Namur, Charleroy, Mons, Dendermond, Damme, and St. Denys, with all their Appurtenances. But the French Ambaſſador was inſtructed by his Maſter, and ſupported by an Army, to give no other Anſwer, but a Pretence of keeping to the Peace of Ryſwick, though the French Seizure of the Crown of Spain had perfectly vacated the Ends of that Peace. Upon this Dallying of the Count d' Avaux, King William, with ſome Indignation at it, ſent this Meſſage to the Houſe of Commons by Mr. Secretary Hedges. Memorial from the Dutch.

William R.

His Majeſty having received an Account from Mr. Stanhope, his Envoy Extraordinary at the Hague, that the French Ambaſſador there had declared to the Penſionary, That the King his Maſter had no other Anſwer to return to the Demands made by the States General of the United Provinces, than that he is ready to renew and confirm the Treaty of Ryſwick, it being all the Secu- King's Meſſage to the Commons.

(a) The rudeſt of thoſe Members in the Houſe of Commons, never after thrived in Reputation, or any thing elſe, but the growing Infirmities of Mind and Body.

1701. rity the States are to expect; and that he has no Orders to give any Anſwer to his Majeſty's ſaid Envoy; but if his Majeſty has any thing to demand, it may be done by his Ambaſſador at Paris, or to the French Miniſter at London; and that he has no Commiſſion to treat with any but the States. And his Majeſty having alſo received Two Reſolutions of the States, and a Memorial from their Envoy here, relating to the Ships they are ſending to join his Majeſty's Fleet, and the Succours they deſire may be haſten'd to them, by virtue of the Treaty made the Third of March, One Thouſand Six Hundred Seventy Seven: His Majeſty has thought fit to communicate the whole to this Houſe, that they may be particularly inform'd of the preſent State of Affairs Abroad, where the Negotiations ſeem to be at an End, by the poſitive Anſwer the French Ambaſſador has given to the States: Which his Majeſty recommends to the ſerious Conſideration of this Houſe, as a Matter of the greateſt Weight and Conſequence; and deſires, that they will give his Majeſty ſuch Advice thereupon, as may be for our own Security, and that of the States General, and the Peace of Europe. Kenſington, the Thirty Firſt Day of March, One Thouſand Seven Hundred and One.

It was a very gracious Condeſcenſion in the King thus to admit the Commons into a Share in the Rights of Peace and War: But the Supplies on which this Affair muſt depend, made it neceſſary to do more than had been generally practiſed by former Princes. When this Meſſage was taken into the Conſideration of the Houſe, they Reſolved, Nemine Contradicente, April 2. "That the Humble Advice of this Houſe be given to his Majeſty, to deſire, That his Majeſty will be pleaſed to carry on the Negotiations in concert with the States-General, and take ſuch Meaſures therein as may moſt conduce to their Security; And that his Majeſty will purſue the Treaty made with the States-General, the Third of March, 1677: And to aſſure his Majeſty, that this Houſe will effectually enable Him to ſupport the ſaid Treaty of 1677." When this Reſolution of Advice was preſented to his Majeſty, Mr. Secretary Hedges reported his Majeſty's Anſwer to this Effect: That according to the Advice of the Houſe of Commons, his Majeſty has given Order to his Envoy Extraordinary at the Hague, to carry on the Negotiations in concert with the States General, and to take ſuch Meaſures therein, as may moſt conduce to their Security. His Majeſty thanks you for the Aſſurance you have given, that this Houſe will effectually enable him to ſupport the Treaty of 1677, and will purſue the ſame as you adviſe. He does not doubt, but the Readineſs you have ſhewn upon this Occaſion, will very much contribute to the obtaining ſuch a Security as is deſired.

Reſolutions of the Commons

King William foreſaw, that France would never yield up any part of the Spaniſh Monarchy by fair means; but conſidering at the ſame time the Unwillingneſs of the Commons to enter into a new War, which manifeſtly appear'd by their Slowneſs in making effectual Proviſion for the Engliſh Auxiliaries, which, according to the Treaty of 1677. were to be ſent to Holland; his Majeſty thought it Prudence to keep the Matter in Suſpence by a faint Negotiation with the French, which both the Earl of Mancheſter at Paris, and Mr. Stanhope at the Hague managed with great Caution and Dexterity. And the better to cover the Delays of Treating, his Majeſty acknowledged the Duke of Anjou for King of Spain in this congratulatory Letter. 1701.

Moſt Serene and Potent Prince, Our Dear Brother and Ally,

"WE have received your Majeſty's Letter of the Twenty Fourth of March laſt, which has been very acceptable to us upon many Accounts: Firſt, Becauſe they brought us Notice of your ſafe Arrival into your Kingdom of Spain, and of your coming to the Poſſeſſion of it, and taking upon your ſelf the Government of the Dominions thereunto belonging; and in the Second place, becauſe they have made it plain to us, that your Majeſty hath a mind to continue and keep inviolably that moſt ancient Alliance which is between the Two Crowns: Indeed we having willingly embraced this Occaſion, both to congratulate your Majeſty's happy Exaltation to the Spaniſh Throne, and to ſhew you how much Eſteem we have for your Majeſty, and how much we deſire to make it appear to you, that our Inclination doth moſt readily prompt us to endeavour what we can, that the mutual Conjunction of Friendſhip and Alliance between us, may be confirm'd and knit faſter, and the common Good of the Two Nations may daily more and more flouriſh and be promoted; which we hope alſo will redound to the publick Benefit and Good of all Europe. What remains, is to commend and commit your Majeſty to the Care and Protection of Almighty God.

King William's Letter to the King of Spain.

Given at our Palace at Kenſington, the Seventeenth Day of April, 1701. and in the Thirteenth Year of the Reign of your Majeſty's moſt loving Brother and Ally. Sign'd, Gulielmus Rex.

Mr. Stanhope having received an Expreſs of his Majeſty's Recognition of the King of Spain, he complimented the Spaniſh Ambaſſador thereupon, while Monſieur d'Avaux the French Miniſter at the Hague, preſented an amuſing Memorial to the States; ſetting forth, "That having tranſmitted their Reſolution of the Firſt of April to his Maſter, wherein they deſired the Negotiations might be reſumed, in Conjunction with the King of England's Envoy, for maintaining the Peace of Europe, and providing for their own particular Security; and that their Lordſhips having at the ſame time declared, they wiſhed nothing ſo much, as that thoſe Negotiations might be brought to a ſpeedy and good Concluſion with his Maſter; to whom he had given an Account of the Anſwer he gave their Lordſhips concerning the (a) Admittance of the Engliſh Envoy, and he had entirely approved the ſame, and was pleaſed with the Aſſurances given by their Lordſhips, of the Deſire they had to preſerve the Peace. And as his Majeſty continued in the Reſolution of maintaining the publick Tranquility, he would conſent to every Expedient that might conduce towards ſecuring the common Good and Repoſe of Chriſtendom; and that in order thereunto, his Majeſty had no ſooner been acquainted with their Lordſhips Deſign of renewing the Conferences, but he had commanded his Ambaſſador to reſume the ſame, and continue at the Hague.

Memorial of D'Avaux at the Hague

(a) See the "Form of Prayer to be uſed in all Churches and Chapels on Friday the 4th of April, 1701; being the Faſt Day appointed by Proclamation for a Bleſſing upon the Conſultations of this preſent Parliament, and for the Preſervation of the Proteſtant Religion and the publick Peace. Quarto, 1701.

1701. Intrigues of the French.

Notwithſtanding this ſpecious Declaration, the Deſign of the French Politicks was ſtill to keep out the Engliſh Envoy, and to engage the States to Treat ſeparately. The Dutch Deputies preſently apprehended their Meaning by the Ambiguity of the Memorial, and therefore preſt Count D'Avaux to explain himſelf; letting him know at the ſame Time, that the States would not enter into any Negotiation with France, but in Conjunction with England, their Intereſts in this Caſe being inſeparable: And they muſt inſiſt upon a poſitive Anſwer to that Point; eſpecially now that His Britannick Majeſty's owning the King of Spain, had removed the principal Objection that was before inſiſted on, againſt Treating with the Miniſters of England. The French Ambaſſador, to procraſtinate his Anſwer, deſired Time to ſend for new Inſtructions to Court, which they appeared no way forward to ſend him; their Deſign being to draw the Buſineſs into a negative Delay; which gave them Opportunity to ſtrengthen themſelves daily on the Frontiers of Holland, and to ſecure the Milaneze againſt the Efforts of a Veteran Imperial Army, headed by Prince Eugene of Savoy, a brave and experienc'd General, who was ſurmounting incredible Difficulties to penetrate into Italy.

The Commons of England not content with their Addreſs to the King againſt the Treaty of Partition, proceeded to ſhew their Abhorrence of it, in a manner that ſeemed to affect our Peace at home, more than to prepare for a War abroad. For on April the 1*ſt* they reſolved, That William Earl of Portland, by Negotiating and Concluding the Treaty of Partition (which was deſtructive to the Trade of this Kingdom, and dangerous to the Peace of Europe) is Guilty, and ſhall be impeached, of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors. And they ordered Sir John Leveſon Gower to go up to the Lords, and at their Bar to impeach the ſaid Earl, and to acquaint their Lordſhips, that they will in due Time exhibit particular Articles againſt him. And then deſired a Conference with the Lords upon Matters relating to the Treaty of Partition; at which Conference the Commons delivered this Paper to the Lords.

Impeaching of the Earl of Portland

" It appearing by your Lordſhips Journal, that " your Lordſhips have received Information of " ſome Tranſactions between the Earl of Portland " and Mr. Secretary Vernon, relating to the Partition of the Spaniſh Monarchy, the Commons " having the ſaid Matter under their Conſideration, deſire your Lordſhips will be pleaſed to " communicate to the Commons what Informations your Lordſhips have had of any Tranſactions relating to any Negotiations or Treaties of " Partion of the Spaniſh Monarchy, by Letters or " otherwiſe. And the Commons are fully aſſured, " that your Lordſhips will readily concur in aſſiſting them in this Enquiry, which they conceive " abſolutely neceſſary for the Safety and Honour " of this Kingdom, and the Preſervation of the " Peace of Europe.

The Lords order'd the Two Latin Commiſſions of Powers granted to the Earls of Portland and Jerſey, for negotiating the ſaid Treaties, one dated the 1*ſt* of July, 1699. the other on the 2*d* of January, 1700. as alſo a private Paper of the Lord Portland's, running thus.

" At the beginning of the Summer of the " Year 99. when I was in Holland, at my Country-Houſe, and when the King would have " me be concerned in the Negotiation of this " Treaty with the Emperor, the French King, " and the States; being very unwilling to meddle " with Buſineſs again, from which I was retired, " before I would engage my ſelf, I adviſed with " my Friends in Holland, and writ into England " to Mr. Secretary Vernon, as my particular " Friend, Whether it was adviſable for me to engage in any Buſineſs again? To which Mr. Vernon anſwer'd in Subſtance, That this would not " engage me but for a little while: That I being " upon the Place, and generally acquainted with " the foreign Miniſters, it would be eaſier for the " King, and properer for me to be employed in " it, than any Body elſe, that muſt be otherwiſe " ſent for on purpoſe.

The next Perſon whom the Commons intended to call upon, was John Lord Somers, late Lord Chancellor of England, on whoſe Judgment and Fidelity the King had very much relied. His Lordſhip being ſenſible of the Storm that was coming on, deſired the Earl of Portland, with Leave of the Houſe, to declare, if he pleaſed, whether the Lord Somer's Name was mentioned in the Letter he received from Mr. Secretary Vernon? The Earl of Portland ſtood up and declared, " That if he had remembred any ſuch Thing in " the Letter, and had not inſerted it in the Paper " which he had delivered to the Houſe, he " ſhould have thought he had deceived the " Houſe." On April the 14*th* the Lord Somers ſent in an Information to the Houſe of Commons, that Having heard the Houſe was upon a Debate concerning him, he deſired that he might be admitted in and heard: This was granted, and a Chair was ſet by the Serjeant, a little within the Bar on the left Hand; then the Serjeant had Directions to acquaint the Lord Somers, that he might come in; and the Door being opened, his Lordſhip came in, and Mr. Speaker acquainted his Lordſhip, that he might Repoſe himſelf in the Chair provided for him; and his Lordſhip was heard what he had to offer to the Houſe, which he did with great plainneſs and preſence of Mind; but when his Lordſhip withdrew, the Houſe came to this Reſolution, That John Lord Somers, by adviſing His Majeſty in the Year 1698. to the Treaty for Partition of the Spaniſh Monarchy, whereby large Territories of the King of Spain's Dominions were to be deliver'd up to France, is Guilty of a High Crime and Miſdemeanor. And they ordered Mr. Harcourt to go up to the Lords, and at their Bar to impeach him; and to acquaint their Lordſhips, that the Houſe will in due Time exhibit particular Articles againſt him. And immediately after they reſolved, that Edward Earl of Orford, and Charles Lord Halifax, be for the ſame Reaſons impeached of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors. The Lord Somers had delivered into the Houſe of Commons a Copy of the Letter which he had ſent to His Majeſty, in anſwer to One from His Majeſty upon occaſion of that Treaty; both which are fit to be inſerted.

Impeachment of the Lord Somers.

At Loo, $\frac{15}{14}$ of Auguſt, 1698.

King William's Letter to the Lord Somers.

" I Imparted to you before I left England, that " in France there was expreſs'd to my Lord " Portland ſome Inclination to come to an Agreement with us, concerning the Succeſſion of the " King of Spain; ſince which, Count Tallard has " mention'd it to me, and has made Propoſitions, " the Particulars of which my Lord Portland will " write to Vernon, to whom I have given Orders " not to communicate them to any other beſides " your ſelf, and to leave to your Judgment to " whom elſe you would think proper to impart " them; to the end that I might know your " Opinion upon ſo important an Affair, and " which requires the greateſt Secrecy. If it be " fit this Negotiation ſhould be carried on, there 1701. "is no Time to be loſt, and you will ſend me "the full Powers under the Great Seal, with the "Names in Blank to treat with Count Tallard. "I believe, that this may be done ſecretly, that "none but you and Vernon, and thoſe to whom "you ſhall have communicated it, may have "Knowledge of it; ſo that the Clerks who are "to write the Warrant and the full Powers, "may not know what it is. According to all In-"telligence, the King of Spain cannot out-live "the Month of October, and the leaſt Accident "may carry him off every Day. I received "Yeſterday your Letter of the 9th. Since my "Lord Wharton can't at this Time leave England, "I muſt think of ſome other to ſend Ambaſſador "into Spain; if you can think of any one proper, "let me know it, and be always aſſur'd of my "Friendſhip.

William R.

The Lord Somers's Anſwer.

Tunbridge-Wells, 28 Aug. 1698. O. S.

SIR,

Lord Somers's Anſwer to the King. "HAving your Majeſty's Permiſſion to try if "the Waters would contribute to the Re-"eſtabliſhment of my Health, I was juſt got to "this Place when I had the Honour of your "Commands; I thought the beſt way of exe-"cuting them would be to communicate to my "Lord Orford, Mr. Mountague, and the Duke "of Shrewsbury (who before I left London, had "agreed upon a Meeting about that Time) the "Subject of my Lord Portland's Letter; at the "ſame time letting them know how ſtrictly your "Majeſty required, that it ſhould remain an ab-"ſolute Secret.

"Since that Time, Mr. Mountague, and Mr. "Secretary are come down hither; and upon "the whole Diſcourſe, Three Things have prin-"cipally occurred, to be humbly ſuggeſted to "your Majeſty.

"Firſt, That the entertaining a Propoſal of "this Nature, ſeems to be attended with very "many ill Conſequences, if the French did not "act a ſincere Part; but we were ſoon at Eaſe, "as to any Apprehenſion of this ſort, being "fully aſſured, your Majeſty would not act but "with the utmoſt Nicety, in an Affair wherein "the Glory and Safety of Europe were ſo highly "concerned.

"The Second Thing conſidered, was the very "ill Proſpect of what was like to happen upon "the Death of the King of Spain, in caſe nothing "was done previouſly towards the providing "againſt that Accident, which ſeem'd probably "to be very near: The King of France having ſo "great a Force in ſuch a Readineſs, that he "was in a Condition to take poſſeſſion of Spain, "before any other Prince could be able to make "a Stand. Your Majeſty is the beſt Judge, "whether this be the Caſe, who are ſo per-"fectly inform'd of the Circumſtances of Parts "Abroad.

"But ſo far as relates to England, it would be "want of Duty, not to give your Majeſty this "clear Account, That there is a Deadneſs and "want of Spirit in the Nation, univerſally ſo, "as not at all to be diſpoſed to the Thought of "entring into a new War; and that they ſeem "to be tired out with Taxes, to a Degree beyond "what was diſcerned, till it appear'd upon the "Occaſion of the late Elections. This is the "Truth of the Fact, upon which your Majeſty "will determine what Reſolutions are proper to "be taken.

"That which remain'd, was the Conſideration "what would be the Condition of Europe, if the "Propoſal took place: Of this we thought ourſelves "little capable of judging; but it ſeemed, that if "Sicily was in the French Hands, they will be en-"tirely Maſters of the Levant Trade; that if "they were poſſeſs'd of Final, and thoſe other "Sea-ports on that ſide, whereby Milan would "be entirely ſhut out from Relief by Sea, or any "other Commerce, that Dutchy would be of "little Signification in the Hands of any Prince; "and that if the King of France had poſſeſſion "of that part of Guipuſcoa, which is mention'd "in the Propoſal, beſides the Ports he would have "in the Ocean, it does ſeem he would have as "eaſie a way of invading Spain on that ſide, as he "now has on the ſide of Catalonia.

"But it is not to be hoped, that France will quit "its Pretences to ſo great a Succeſſion, without "conſiderable Advantages; and we are all aſſu-"red, your Majeſty will reduce the Terms as "low as can be done, and make them, as far as is "poſſible in the preſent Circumſtances of Things, "ſuch as may be ſome Foundation for the future "Quiet of Chriſtendom; which all your Subjects "cannot but be convinced is your true Aim. If "it could be brought to paſs, that England might "be ſome way a Gainer by this Tranſaction, "whether it was by the Elector of Bavaria (who "is the Gainer by your Majeſty's Interpoſition in "this Treaty) his coming to an Agreement to "let us into ſome Trade to the Spaniſh Plantati-"ons, or in any other manner, it would won-"derfully endear your Majeſty to your Engliſh "Subjects.

"It does not appear, in caſe this Negotiation "ſhould proceed, what is to be done on your "part, in order to make it take place: Whe-"ther any more be requir'd, than the Engliſh "and Dutch ſhould ſit ſtill, and France it ſelf to "ſee it executed. If that be ſo, what Security "ought to be expected, that if by our being Neu-"ters, the French be ſucceſsful, they will confine "themſelves to the Terms of the Treaty, and not "attempt to make further Advantages of their "Succeſs?

"I humbly beg your Majeſty's Pardon that "theſe Thoughts are ſo ill put together: Theſe "Waters are known to diſcompoſe and diſturb "the Head, ſo as almoſt totally to diſable one "from Writing: I ſhould be extremely troubled "if my Abſence from London has delayed the "Diſpatch of the Commiſſion one Day. You "will be pleaſed to obſerve, that Two Perſons "(as the Commiſſion is drawn) muſt be named "in it, but the Powers may be executed by either "of them. I ſuppoſe your Majeſty will not "think it proper to name Commiſſioners that are "not Engliſh, or naturalized, in an Affair of this "Nature.

"I pray God give your Majeſty Honour and "Succeſs in all your Undertakings. I am, with "the utmoſt Duty and Reſpect,

SIR,

Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and moſt Obedient Subject and Servant.

P. S. The Commiſſion is wrote by Mr. Secretary, and I have had it ſealed in ſuch a manner, that no Creature has the leaſt Knowledge of the Thing, beſides the Perſons nam'd.

The Commons, in purſuance of Reſolutions taken the 15th of April, did on the 23d preſent this Addreſs to the King.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

"WE Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal "Subjects, the Commons in Parliament "aſſembled, do humbly crave Leave to repreſent Addreſs of the Commons to the King.

1701. " to Your Majeſty, the great Satisfaction we have " from our late Enquiry concerning the Treaty " of Partition, made in the Year 1698. (on which " the Treaty in 1699 was founded) to ſee your " Majeſty's great Care of your People and this " Nation, in not entring into that Negotiation " without the Advice of your Engliſh Counſellors; and finding that John Lord Somers, on " whoſe Judgment your Majeſty did chiefly rely " in that ſo important Affair, did, in concert " with Edward Earl of Orford, and Charles Lord " Halifax, adviſe your Majeſty to enter into that " Treaty, of ſo dangerous Conſequence to the " Trade and Welfare of this Nation; and who, " to avoid the Cenſure which might juſtly be apprehended to fall on thoſe who adviſed the " ſame, endeavour'd to inſinuate, that your Majeſty, without the Advice of your Council, entred into that Treaty, and under your Sacred " Name, to ſeek Protection for what themſelves " had ſo adviſed: Of which Treatment of your " Majeſty, we cannot but have a juſt Reſentment: And that they may be no longer able " to deceive your Majeſty, and abuſe your People; we do humbly beſeech your Majeſty, " That you will be pleaſed to remove John Lord " Somers, Edward Earl of Orford, and Charles " Lord Halifax, from your Council and Preſence " for ever; as alſo William Earl of Portland, who " tranſacted theſe Treaties, ſo unjuſt in their " own Nature, and ſo fatal in their Conſequences to this Nation, and the Peace of Europe. And we humbly crave Leave upon " this Occaſion, to repeat our Aſſurances to your " Majeſty, That we will always ſtand by and " ſupport your Majeſty to the utmoſt of our " Power, againſt all your Enemies both at Home " and Abroad.

The King diſpleaſed yet gives a

His Majeſty could not but be very uneaſy at this ſevere dealing with his Counſels and his Miniſters; when he knew the Error, if any, was a Miſtake of Judgment only, and that rather of his own, than of any employed by him. However, he kept his Temper, and gave this Gracious Anſwer.

Gracious Anſwer

" I am willing to take all Occaſions of thanking you very heartily for the Aſſurances you " have frequently given me, and now repeat, of " ſtanding by and ſupporting me againſt all our " Enemies both at Home and Abroad; towards " which, nothing, in my Opinion, can contribute ſo much, as a good Correſpondence between me and my People. And therefore " you may depend upon it, that I will employ " none in my Service, but ſuch as ſhall be thought " moſt likely to improve that mutual Truſt and " Confidence between Us, which is ſo neceſſary " in this Conjuncture, both for our own Security, " and the Defence and the Preſervation of our " Allies.

Addreſs of the Lords againſt theſe Proceedings.

The Houſe of Lords was alarm'd at the Addreſs of the Commons, and did apprehend it to be an ill Precedent for Perſons to be cenſur'd, before they were tried. And therefore they interpos'd with this Counter-Addreſs to his Majeſty.

" WE Your Majeſty's moſt Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and " Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, beg Leave " to repreſent to Your Majeſty, That the Houſe " of Commons have ſeverally impeach'd at the " Bar of our Houſe, William Earl of Portland, " John Lord Somers, Edward Earl of Orford, and " Charles Lord Halifax, of High Crimes and " Miſdemeanors. And they having acquainted " Us, that they will in due Time exhibit particular Articles againſt the ſaid Lords, and make " good the ſame; We do moſt humbly beſeech " Your Majeſty, That Your Majeſty will be " pleaſed not to paſs any Cenſure upon them, " until they are tried upon the ſaid Impeachments, and Judgment be given according to " the Uſage of Parliament, and the Laws of the " Land.

The Dutch prepare for War.

In the mean Time, two or three fruitleſs Conferences paſſed at the Hague; wherein the French Miniſter was ſtill attempting to draw in the States to treat alone, without the Concurrence of the Engliſh; which they would by no means conſent to. His Majeſty, in mutual Kindneſs, did all that lay in his Power to aſſiſt them; for which End, he had ſent the Three Scotch Regiments retained in his own Pay in that Kingdom, over into Holland. When the States had procured all poſſible Supplies and Reinforcements by their Money and Intereſt from Princes Abroad, and had exerted their Powers to the utmoſt at Home, they wrote a Letter to his Majeſty, to inform him how Matters ſtood with them, and to deſire the Troops to be ſent over to their Aſſiſtance without delay, as ſtipulated by the Treaty of 1677. Upon which, his Majeſty on May the 8th, ſent this Meſſage to the Houſe of Commons by Mr. Secretary Hedges.

William R.

The King's Meſſage to the Commons

" HIS Majeſty having lately received an Account from Mr. Stanhope, of the preſent " Poſture of Affairs in Holland, and likewiſe a " Letter from the States-General, which is of the " greateſt Importance: And his Majeſty, who " has ſo perfect a Knowledge of their Country, " being entirely convinced of the Hardſhips of " their preſent Condition, and the great Preſſures they now lie under, which are particularly expreſſed in the above-mentioned Letter, " has thought it abſolutely neceſſary to communicate the ſame to this Houſe; that the Expectations the States have of preſent Aſſiſtance " from his Majeſty, may more fully appear: " And his Majeſty does not doubt, but this Houſe " will be ſo juſtly ſenſible of thoſe immediate " Dangers to which they ſtand expos'd, as to " take the ſame into their moſt ſerious and effectual Conſideration; it being moſt evident, " that the Safety of England, as well as the very " Being of Holland, does very much depend upon " your Reſolutions in this Matter.

Reſolution of the Commons

This Meſſage was the next Day taken into the Conſideration of the Commons; and they unanimouſly Reſolv'd, That this Houſe will effectually Aſſiſt his Majeſty to ſupport his Allies, in maintaining the Liberty of Europe; and will immediately provide Succours for the States-General, according to the Treaty of the 3d of March, 1677. This Reſolution was preſented to his Majeſty by the whole Houſe on Saturday, May the 10th, and his Majeſty expreſs'd his Satisfaction in theſe Words:

Gentlemen,

Satisfaction of the King.

" I Return you my hearty Thanks for the ready " Aſſurances you give me of providing immediate Succours for the States General, and " for the Zeal you expreſs for the Common " Cauſe: I know nothing that can be more effectual for its Support, both at Home and Abroad, " than the unanimous Concurrence which you " have ſhewed upon this Occaſion. And it will " be a particular Satisfaction to me, in my Time, " to

" to revive the Glory which the Engliſh Nation " has formerly had, of maintaining the Liberty " and Balance of Europe.

The King had likewiſe communicated the Letter from the States to the Houſe of Lords, who on that Occaſion preſented this Addreſs on May the 14th.

Addreſs of the Lords.

" WE Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal " Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, return Your " Majeſty our moſt humble Thanks, for communicating to us the Letter from the States-General to Your Majeſty. It gives us an Opportunity (with great Satisfaction) to repeat to " Your Majeſty the Aſſurances of our Duty, and " Zeal for Your Service. And we take this Occaſion further to aſſure Your Majeſty, we are " very ſenſible of the great and imminent Danger to which the States-General are at preſent " expos'd. And we do perfectly agree with " them, in believing, That their Safety and " ours are ſo inſeparably united, that whatſoever is Ruin to the one, muſt be Fatal to the " other.

" And we humbly deſire Your Majeſty will be " pleaſed, not only to make good all the Articles of any former Treaty to the States-General, but that You will enter into a ſtrict " League, Offenſive and Defenſive, with them, " for our Common Preſervation: And that You " will invite into it all Princes and States, who " are concern'd in the preſent viſible Danger, ariſing from the Union of France and " Spain.

" And we further deſire Your Majeſty, That " You will be pleaſed to enter into ſuch Alliances with the Emperor, as Your Majeſty ſhall " think fit, purſuant to the Ends of the Treaty " of 1689. Towards all which, we aſſure Your " Majeſty of our hearty and ſincere Aſſiſtance: " not doubting, but whenever Your Majeſty ſhall " be obliged to engage for the Defence of Your " Allies, and the ſecuring the Liberty and Quiet " of Europe, Almighty God will protect Your Sacred Perſon in ſo righteous a Cauſe: And that " the Unanimity, Wealth, and Courage of Your " Subjects will carry Your Majeſty with Honour " and Succeſs through all the Difficulties of a " Juſt War.

" And in the laſt Place, with great Grief, we " take Leave humbly to repreſent to Your Majeſty, That the Dangers to which Your Kingdoms and Your Allies have been expos'd, are " chiefly owing to the fatal Councils that prevented Your Majeſty's ſooner meeting Your " People in Parliament.

To which his Majeſty was pleaſed to return his Gracious Anſwer in the enſuing Terms.

The King's Anſwer.

My Lords,

I Thank you for the Expreſſions you make of your Duty, and Zeal to my Service, and the Concern you ſhew for the imminent Danger to which the States General are at preſent expoſed. I ſhall take into Conſideration your Deſires to me of entring into new Meaſures with them, and other Princes and States for our Common Preſervation: And you may be ſure, it ſhall be always my Care to make ſuch Alliances with our Neighbours, as may tend to our own, and their greater Security; which will be the moſt effectual means to raiſe the Honour of the Engliſh Nation in our Days, to the Reputation it hath maintain'd in any former Times.

The Nation by this time began to be in a high Ferment, and the People generally diſlik'd the Proceedings of the Commons. A bold Teſtimony of it was given in the County of Kent, where a Petition was drawn up in this Form.

Kentiſh Petition.

The Humble Petition of the Gentlemen, Juſtices of the Peace, Grand Jury, and other Freeholders, at the General Quarter Seſſions of the Peace, holden at Maidſtone, the 29th of April, in the Thirteenth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord William III. over England, &c.

" WE the Gentlemen, Juſtices of the Peace, " Grand Jury, and other Freeholders, at " the General Quarter Seſſions at Maidſtone in " Kent, deeply concern'd at the dangerous Eſtate " of this Kingdom, and of all Europe; and conſidering that the Fate of us and our Poſterity depends upon the Wiſdom of our Repreſentatives " in Parliament, think our ſelves bound in Duty " humbly to lay before this Honourable Houſe, " the Conſequence, in this Conjuncture, of your " ſpeedy Reſolution, and moſt ſincere Endeavour " to anſwer the great Truſt repos'd in you by your " Country.

" And in regard, that from the Experience of " all Ages, it is manifeſt, no Nation can be great " or happy without Union; we hope, that no " Pretence whatſoever ſhall be able to create a " Miſunderſtanding among our ſelves, or the leaſt " Diſtruſt of his moſt Sacred Majeſty; whoſe great " Actions for this Nation are writ in the Hearts " of his Subjects, and can never, without the " blackeſt Ingratitude, be forgot.

" We moſt humbly implore this Honourable " Houſe to have regard to the Voice of the People, " that our Religion and Safety may be effectually " provided for; that your Loyal Addreſſes may " be turned into Bills of Supply; and that his " moſt Sacred Majeſty (whoſe propitious and " unblemiſh'd Reign over us, we pray God long " to continue) may be enabled powerfully to aſſiſt his Allies, before it is too late.

Signed by the Deputy Lieutenants there preſent, above 20 Juſtices of the Peace, all the Grand Jury, and other Freeholders, then there.

And your Petitioners ſhall ever pray, &c.

The Petitioners committed.

This Petition was boldly deliver'd to the Houſe on May 8th, and Mr. William Colepeper, Mr. Thomas Colepeper, Mr. David Polehill, Mr. Juſtinian Champney, and Mr. William Hamilton, being call'd in, own'd the Petition at the Bar, and their Hands to the ſame: Then they withdrew, and the Petition being read, the Houſe Reſolved, That the ſaid Petition was Scandalous, Inſolent, and Seditious, tending to deſtroy the Conſtitution of Parliaments, and to ſubvert the Eſtabliſhed Government of theſe Realms. And then Ordered, " That all thoſe Gentlemen " ſhould be taken into Cuſtody, as guilty of promoting the ſaid Petition." And on May 14. the Houſe being informed, That Mr. Thomas Colepeper had made his Eſcape; and that the reſt of the Perſons committed, did behave themſelves diſorderly; the Serjeant was called in, who acquainted the Houſe, That the ſaid Mr. Colepeper had upon Saturday laſt made his Eſcape, and that ſome of the others had threatned, and he was apprehenſive of Force to reſcue them; and prayed the Direction of the Houſe concerning them: Whereupon the Houſe ordered them to be delivered Priſoners to the Gate-houſe; and agreed to Addreſs his Majeſty, to iſſue his Proclamation for apprehending Mr. Colepeper; and for putting out of the Commiſſions of Peace and Lieutenancy ſuch of the others as were in any of the ſaid Commiſſions. But Mr. Colepeper made a voluntary Surrender of himſelf, and was confin'd with his Neighbours.

This

1701. This Impriſonment of the Kentiſh Petitioners did but inflame thoſe People who were before warm'd againſt the Proceedings of the Commons. And it gave Occaſion to a Libel, entituled, A Memorial from the Gentlemen, Freeholders, and Inhabitants of the Counties of—— in Behalf of themſelves and many Thouſands of the good People of England. This was ſent to the Speaker in a very inſolent Letter, charging and commanding him, in the Name of Two hundred thouſand Engliſh Men, to deliver it to the Houſe of Commons. It began with a Preamble falling into this Maxim, Whatever Power is above Law, is Burdenſome and Tyrannical, and may be reduc'd by extra-judicial Methods. Then it charg'd the Houſe with illegal and unwarrantable Practices in XV Particulars; of which the Three firſt were as followeth: I. To raiſe Funds for Money, and declare by borrowing Clauſes, That whoſoever advances Money on thoſe Funds, ſhall be reimburs'd out of the next Aids, if the Funds fall ſhort; and then give ſubſequent Funds, without transferring the Deficiency of the former, is a horrible Cheat on the Subject who lent the Money, a Breach of Publick Faith, and deſtructive to the Honour and Credit of Parliaments. II. To impriſon Men who are not your own Members, by no Proceedings but a Vote of your own Houſe, and to continue them in Cuſtody ſine die, is illegal, a notorious Breach of the Liberty of the People; ſetting up a Diſpenſing Power in the Houſe of Commons, which your Fathers never pretended to; bidding Defiance to the Habeas Corpus Act, which is the Bulwark of perſonal Liberty; deſtructive of the Laws, and betraying the Truſt repoſed in you. The King being at the ſame time obliged to ask you Leave to continue in Cuſtody the horrid Aſſaſſinators of his Perſon. III. Committing to Cuſtody thoſe Gentlemen, who at the Command of the People (whoſe Servants you are) came in a peaceable way to put you in mind of your Duty, is illegal and injurious; deſtructive of the Subjects Liberty of Petitioning for Redreſs of Grievances, which has by all Parliaments before you, been acknowledged to be their undoubted Right. After the enumerating 12 other Particulars, the Memorial proceeds to a Claim of Right, under Seven Heads; of which the Three former run thus: We do hereby Claim and Declare, I. That it is the undoubted Right of the People of England, in caſe their Repreſentatives in Parliament do not proceed according to their Duty and the People's Intereſt, to inform them of their Diſlike, diſown their Actions, and to direct them to ſuch things as they think fit, either by Petition, Addreſs, Propoſal, Memorial, or any other peaceable way. II. That the Houſe of Commons ſeparately, and otherwiſe than by Bill legally paſs'd into an Act, have no legal Power to ſuſpend or diſpenſe with the Laws of the Land, any more than the King has by his Prerogative. III. That the Houſe of Commons have no legal Power to impriſon any Perſon, or commit them to Cuſtody of Serjeants, or otherwiſe (their own Members excepted) but ought to addreſs the King to cauſe any Perſon, on good Grounds, to be apprehended; which Perſon ſo apprehended, ought to have the Benefit of the Habeas Corpus Act, and be fairly brought to Trial by due courſe of Law.—— After other Claims, it concludes: Thus, Gentlemen, you have your Duty laid before you, which 'tis hop'd you will think of: But if you continue to neglect it, you may expect to be treated according to the Reſentments of an injur'd Nation; for Engliſhmen are no more to be Slaves to Parliaments, than to Kings. Our Name is Legion, and We are Many.

Libel called Legion.

A Number of prudent ſober Men, who did not approve of the wording or way of ſending this Memorial, were apt to think the Subject Matter of it for the moſt part True and Reaſonable: and the very Court of Aldermen and Common-Council of the City of London were very near to the coming in to ſome publick Declaration of the ſame Effect, tho' more modeſtly to be expreſs'd. The Commons were extremely incens'd at the Legion Paper, but would not deſcend to a particular Cenſure of it. It was thought ſufficient, that a Complaint was made to the Houſe, of Endeavours to raiſe Tumults and Seditions, in order to diſturb the Publick Affairs; and a Committee was appointed to draw up an Addreſs to be preſented to his Majeſty, humbly to lay before him the Endeavours of ſeveral ill-diſpoſed Perſons, to raiſe Tumults and Seditions in the Kingdom; and humbly to beſeech his Majeſty, that He will provide for the Publick Peace and Security. 1701.

To return to the unhappy Difference between the Two Houſes, in the Caſe of the impeach'd Lords; The Houſe of Peers ſeem'd to think, that their Members had been impeached by the Commons, without a ſerious Intention to proſecute the Charge againſt them. And therefore, on May the 5th, their Lordſhips ſent this quickning Meſſage to the Commons, by Sir Robert Legard, and Sir Richard Holford.

Difference between the Two Houſes upon the Matter of Impeachment.

Mr. Speaker,

THE Lords have commanded us to acquaint this Houſe, That they having on the Firſt Day of April laſt, ſent up to their Lordſhips an Impeachment againſt William Earl of Portland, of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors; And having alſo on the Fifteenth Day of the ſame Month ſeverally impeached John Lord Somers, Edward Earl of Orford, and Charles Lord Halifax, of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors: Their Lordſhips think themſelves obliged to put this Houſe in mind, that as yet no particular Articles have been exhibited againſt the ſaid Lords; which, after Impeachments have been ſo long depending, is due in Juſtice to the Perſons concerned, and agreeable to the Methods of Parliament in ſuch Caſes.

The Commons, aſhamed to be upbraided with Delay in a Matter wherein they had appeared ſo forward, ſent Anſwer, That the Articles againſt the Lords impeached were preparing, and in a ſhort time ſhould be ſent up to the Houſe of Lords. So on May the 9th, to begin their own way, the Commons, by Colonel Bierly, ſent up Articles againſt Edward Earl of Orford, in Maintenance of their Impeachment.

I. That in a long and expenſive War, the ſaid Earl, always preferring his private Intereſt to the Good of the Publick, in Violation of his Duty and Truſt, had procured from His Majeſty One or more Grant or Grants of ſeveral Manors, Meſſuages, &c. and alſo exorbitant Sums of Money. ——To which the Earl anſwered, That he having for ſeveral Years render'd to his Majeſty his utmoſt Service and Duty, as a good and loyal Subject, his Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed, upon ſeveral Occaſions, to take notice of the ſame; and out of his wonted Bounty and his free Will, was pleaſed to give to the ſaid Earl Two Grants, One a Reverſionary Grant for Years, of ſome Houſes; the other a Grant of the Remainder of a groſs Sum amounting to about 2000 l. a Year for Five Years.

Articles of Impeachment againſt the Earl of Orford.

II. That in Breach of the Truſt repoſed in him, whilſt he was Commander in Chief of the Navy Royal of England, in or near the Streights of Gibraltar; he did receive great Sums of the publick Money, which he converted to his own private Uſe, and unlawfully procured a Privy Seal to diſcharge him from Accounting to the Publick for the ſame. ——To which he anſwered, by denying the ſaid Facts, and ſaying, That he did make up, and upon Oath paſs his Accompts for the Monies impreſt to him, and hath his Quietus eſt in due Courſe of Law upon the ſame.

III. That

1701. III. That he did receive from the King of Spain and others, conſiderable Sums of Money, and great Quantities of Wine, Oil, and other Proviſions for the Fleet, for which he ought to have accounted, but he converted the ſame to his own Uſe: And for ſecuring himſelf from rendering any Account, he poſſeſs'd divers great Offices inconſiſtent, and deſigned as Checks one upon the other. —To which the Earl anſwer'd, That whatever he received from the King of Spain, or any others, for the Fleet, was duly delivered and diſtributed amongſt the Officers and Seamen: And he denies, that he did enjoy any Offices inconſiſtent, or which ought to be Checks one upon the other.

IV. That he hath clandeſtinely, contrary to the Law of Nations, ſold and diſpoſed of ſeveral Veſſels, taken under pretence of Prize, without Condemnation or Judicial Proceedings, and converted the Money to his own Uſe. —To which he anſwered, by denying the Fact, and ſaying, That he did from Time to Time give Orders, that the Prizes taken ſhould be carefully preſerved without Imbezzlement, and duly proceeded againſt, and the Product anſwered as the Law directs.

V. That he preſiding in the Commiſſion for executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of England, had diſcouraged and rejected the Requeſt and Propoſal of the Company trading to the Eaſt-Indies, for ſuppreſſing Piracies in the South Seas; and had procured a Commiſſion for one William Kidd, who had committed divers Piracies and Depredations on the High Seas, being thereto encouraged thro' (a) the Hopes of being protected by the high Station and Intereſt of the ſaid Earl. —To which he anſwered, That he did never diſcourage or reject the Company's Requeſt, unleſs it were by telling them, That the Admiralty by Law could not grant the ſame: And as to the Matter of Kidd, his Commiſſion was according to Law, and his Expedition intended for the Publick Good and Service; and if he have committed any Piracies, is anſwerable for the ſame, he never being ordered or encouraged by the ſaid Earl ſo to do.

VI. That while the Kingdom was under an Apprehenſion of an immediate Invaſion from France, he, preferring his Hopes of Gain to himſelf, to the Safety of the Publick, did order Captain Steward, Commander of the Ship Dutcheſs, to deliver over and put on board the ſaid Kidd a great Number of able Seamen, to the prejudice of the Publick Security, and to the endangering the ſaid Ship the Dutcheſs, if it had been attacked by the Enemy. —To which he anſwered, That the Men taken from on Board the Dutcheſs, were but ſome of the very Perſons that were juſt before taken from on board of Captain Kidd, and returned by their own Conſent again, not being above twenty in Number, and that when all Fears of an Invaſion were over and at an end.

VII. That during the War, he did by Miſrepreſentations, procure a Grant or Order for his Majeſty's Ship the Dolphin, then fitted out, mann'd and equipp'd for the Service of the Publick, to be employ'd in a private Voyage and Undertaking, for the Advantage of himſelf and others concerned with him. —To which he anſwered, That what was done therein, was done after the Peace concluded, and by his Majeſty's Command, at the Inſtance and Requeſt of other Perſons, and not of the ſaid Earl, but contrary to his Opinion.

VIII. That during the Time of his Commanding the Navy Royal, he did thro' Neglect, and in Contempt of Orders, unneceſſarily hazard and expoſe the Navy, and loſe the Opportunities of taking or deſtroying the French Ships, and ſuffer them to return ſafe into their own Harbours. —To which he anſwered, That he is not guilty of any Neglect or Omiſſion of his Duty herein, nor did expect in this Particular to be charged therewith, conſidering his faithful Services render'd againſt the French Fleet. 1701.

IX. That he did, in concert with other falſe and evil Counſellors, adviſe our Sovereign Lord the King, in the Year 1698, to enter into one Treaty for dividing the Monarchy and Dominions of Spain; in purſuance whereof, in 1699, one other Treaty was entred into to the like purpoſe. Both which Treaties were prejudicial to the Intereſt of the Proteſtant Religion, &c. —To which he anſwered, He does deny, that he did adviſe his Majeſty to enter into the Treaty of Partition; but ſo far as he was any ways acquainted therewith, he objected to, and gave his Opinion againſt the ſame.

X. That he was one of the Lords Juſtices, Firſt Commiſſioner in the Admiralty, Commander in Chief of the Navy, one of his Majeſty's Privy-Council, and Treaſurer of his Majeſty's Navy, or in ſome or one of the Stations, during the Time that all and every the Crimes before ſet forth were done and committed. —To which he anſwered, That his Majeſty was pleaſed to intruſt him in the ſeveral Offices and Stations, which he had diſcharged with Loyalty, Faithfulneſs, and Zeal to his Majeſty and his People.

On May the 19th, the Commons by Mr. Harcourt ſent up Articles of Impeachment againſt John Lord Somers.

Articles againſt the Lord Somers.

I. That well knowing the moſt apparent evil Conſequences, as well as the Injuſtice of the Partition of the Spaniſh Monarchy, he did adviſe his Majeſty to enter into a Treaty for it; and did ſo far encourage and promote the ſame, that the ſaid Treaty was concluded and ratified in 1698, under the Great Seal of England, then in Cuſtody of the ſaid Lord Somers. —To which his Lordſhip anſwered, in a full and plain Account of all the Steps of that Treaty, referring himſelf to the Letters on that Subject between his Majeſty and him (before-recited) wherein, as he conceived, he had fully and faithfully diſcharged his Truſt, and the Duty incumbent on him.

II. That for the more effectual carrying on the ſaid Treaty, Commiſſions were prepared, amended, enlarged or altered by the ſaid Lord Somers, without any lawful Warrant for his ſo doing; whereunto, without communicating the ſame to the reſt of the then Lords Juſtices of England, or adviſing with the Privy Council, he did preſume to affix the Great Seal of England, with a Blank for Commiſſioners Names, to be afterwards inſerted.

III. That having affix'd the Great Seal without lawful Warrant, in hopes of concealing that evil and moſt dangerous Practice, after he had ſettled the ſaid Commiſſions, he uſed his Endeavour to procure a Warrant to be tranſmitted to him for affixing the Great Seal, that it might not be known, but that he had it in due time. —To which Second and Third Articles, he anſwer'd, That having received his Majeſty's expreſs Com-

(a) See "The Ordinary of Newgate his Account of "the Behaviour, Confeſſions, and Dying Words of Captain William Kidd, and other Pirates, that were executed at the Execution Dock in Wapping, on Friday, "May the 23d, 1701." Sign'd, Paul Lorrain, Ordinary.

mands

1701. mands to ſend to his Majeſty full Powers under the Great Seal, for negotiating the ſaid Treaty; with Blanks for his Majeſty's Commiſſioners Names, he thought it ſufficient Warrant for him ſo to do. And that he did afterwards deſire his Majeſty, that a particular Warrant for ſigning the ſaid Commiſſion might be ſigned and returned; not that he doubted his Majeſty's ſaid Letter to be a ſufficient Warrant, but for that ſuch Warrant would be more proper to be produced if Occaſion ſhould require.

IV. That contrary to his Duty, he affixed the Great Seal of England to the Ratification of the ſaid Treaty in 1698, not having communicated the ſame to the reſt of the then Lords Juſtices, or adviſed with the Privy Council, leaving one entire Blank Sheet, and many other Blanks in the ſaid Ratification, with an intent to be afterwards filled up by other Perſons beyond the Seas. —To which he anſwer'd, That Mr. Secretary Vernon having prepared by his Majeſty's Commands the Inſtruments for Ratification, with Blanks therein, he did affix the Great Seal, which he conceives and is adviſed he might lawfully do, not communicating the ſame, becauſe he had his Majeſty's Command, that the ſaid Treaty ſhould be kept ſecret.

V. That in the Year 1699, another Treaty of Partition was concluded and ratified under the Great Seal, then in the Cuſtody of the ſaid Lord Somers, diſhonourable to his Majeſty, highly injurious to the Intereſt of the Proteſtant Religion, &c. —To which he anſwered, That a Draught of the ſaid Treaty being read over in the Preſence of divers of the Lords of the Privy Council, he the ſaid Lord Somers, as well as others then preſent, did make ſeveral Objections; but they were informed by his Majeſty's Plenipotentiaries for tranſacting this Treaty, who were alſo then preſent, that the ſaid Treaty was ſo far perfected, that nothing could be altered therein; and his Majeſty afterwards by Warrant ſo requiring, he did affix the Great Seal, being, as he conceives, obliged to do it.

VI. That whereas by the Laws and Uſages of this Realm, all Commiſſions under the Great Seal, for the making any Treaty or Alliance, ought to be inrolled and entred on Record in the Court of Chancery; he the ſaid Lord Somers, not minding the Duty of his Office, did not in any manner inroll or enter on Record any of the ſaid Commiſſions or Ratifications. —To which he anſwered, He conceives it was not incumbent upon him as Lord Chancellor, to ſee the Commiſſions or Ratifications inrolled; but the Care of inrolling the ſame, if neceſſary, doth belong to the Prothonotary of the Court of Chancery.

VII. That the ſaid Lord Somers, contrary to his Oath as Lord Chancellor of England, did paſs many great, unreaſonable and exorbitant Grants, under the Great Seal, of divers Mannors, Lordſhips, &c. belonging to the Crown of England; and did adviſe, promote, and procure divers like Grants of the late Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland, in Contempt of the Advice of the Commons of England. —To which he anſwer'd, He doth acknowledge he did paſs ſeveral Grants, &c. but the ſame were regularly paſſed through the proper Offices, and brought with ſufficient Warrants for the Great Seal; and believes, more conſiderable Grants have paſſed in the like Number of Years in moſt of his Predeceſſors Times.

VIII. That he did not only receive and enjoy the Fees, Profits and Perquiſites belonging to the Great Seal, but had received an annual Penſion from the Crown, of 4000 l. and had further begged and procured for his own Benefit many great, unreaſonable and exorbitant Grants of Revenues belonging to the Crown of England. —To which he anſwered, That the annual Penſion or Allowance of 4000 l. had been allowed to ſeveral of his Predeceſſors; but denies he did ever Beg or uſe any Means to procure any Grant whatſoever for his own Benefit; but what his Majeſty was pleaſed to give him, proceeded from his Majeſty's own Motion, and of His meer Bounty, and as his Majeſty was pleaſed to declare upon that Occaſion, as an Evidence of the gracious Acceptation of the ſaid Lord Somers's zealous Endeavours for his Service. 1701.

IX. That in order to procure a Grant of the ſaid Fee-Farm Rents, he did enter into ſeveral Treaties, and had many Communications with the Auditor of the Rates, and with the Clerk of the Truſtees for Sale of the ſaid Rents, and contracted and agreed with them, as a Reward for their Diſcovery, one full Fourth Part of all ſuch Rents ſo diſcover'd.

X. That notwithſtanding the ſaid pretended Contracts, there was not any Sum of Money really paid, but the Contracts and Payments were colourably and fraudulently contrived in Deceit of his Majeſty, and Eluſion of the Acts of Parliament. —To which Ninth and Tenth Articles he anſwered, That after his Majeſty had given Directions to the Lords of the Treaſury for granting Fee-Farm Rents to the Benefit of him and his Heirs; his Majeſty's intended Bounty would have been loſt, without Information could be gained of ſuch particular Rents: And therefore Application was made to the ſaid Auditor and Clerk, as the moſt likely to give Information therein; but they did refuſe to give any Account of ſuch Rents, unleſs they might have near a Fourth part for ſo doing; which the ſaid Lord Somers did, as he conceives he lawfully might, comply with. And there was not any Sum of Money paid, as the Conſideration of the Grants of the ſaid Rents, but the Contracts were made, and the Payment diſcharged, without any Deceit of his Majeſty, or Eluſion of the Acts of Parliament.

XI. That many Rents ſtanding in Charge for Payment of Penſions, Stipends, Salaries, Annuities, Alms and Allowances for Schools, Churches, Bridges, &c. and many Quit-Rents of Mannors united and annex'd to the Caſtle of Windſor for Support of the ſame, and Maintenance of the Officers, Servants and Attendants in the ſaid Caſtle, were conveyed by the ſaid Truſtees, through the Direction and Power of the ſaid Lord Somers, contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of the ſaid Acts of Parliament, to the great Vexation and Oppreſſion of many of his Majeſty's good Subjects, and creating many new and unreaſonable Charges on other Revenues of the Crown. —To which he anſwered, That ſome things might be inſerted by miſtaken Informations, and not out of any Deſign: He denies, that as to his Knowledge or Belief, any of the ſaid Rents were ever united or annexed to the Caſtle of Windſor, for any purpoſe whatſoever; or that any Oppreſſion or Vexation hath happened; and little or no new Charge to the Crown.

XII. That by the Direction of the ſaid Lord Somers, the Perſons in whoſe Names the Purchaſes were made, did ſurrender ſeveral of the ſaid Rents to them granted, amounting to the yearly Value of 347 l. 11 s. 5 d. on Suggeſtion of wrong Conveyance; and procured other Rents of the yearly Value of 391 l. 3 d. to be allowed by way of Reprize, as if the ſaid Rents ſo ſurrender'd, had been really and bona fide purchaſed. —To which he anſwered, That the Truſtees for Sale of the Fee-Farm Rents, by Warrant of the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, did grant divers other Rents, amounting to 391 l. in Lieu and Reprize of the 347 l. having appeared to be granted before, or not grantable by the ſaid Truſtees, or not leviable on Surrenders of ſuch Rents; which he conceives might be, and was lawfully done.

1701.

XIII. That in the Year 1695, the ſaid Lord Somers, being then Lord Keeper, procured a Commiſſion to be granted to one William Kidd, a Perſon of evil Fame and Reputation, and ſince that Time convicted of Piracy; and in a Grant from his Majeſty, of Ships, Veſſels and Goods to be taken by the ſaid William Kidd, unto Richard Earl of Bellamont, Edmund Harriſon, Merchant, Samuel Newton, Gent. and others, the Name of the ſaid Samuel Newton was uſed in Truſt, and for the only Benefit and Advantage of the ſaid Lord Somers. ——To which he anſwered, That the ſaid William Kidd had from his Majeſty a Commiſſion for preventing the Piracy of others, and to apprehend certain Pirates, and bring them to a legal Tryal; the granting of which Commiſſion was then apprehended to be neceſſary for the Preſervation of Trade and Navigation. He does admit, there was a Grant to the Earl of Bellamont, Edmund Harriſon, and Samuel Newton, who was named by and in Truſt for the ſaid Lord Somers, of Ships and Goods taken by the ſaid William Kidd, with account to be duly made to the Uſe of his Majeſty, of a clear Tenth Part, whereby the Publick might have received Benefit, had the ſaid Kidd faithfully diſcharged the Truſt, which he failing to do, the Owners of the ſaid Ship have loſt all their Expences.

XIV. That as Lord Chancellor, he had in ſeveral Cauſes depending before him, by many extraordinary Methods, and unwarrantable Practices, for ſeveral Years, delayed Proceedings in the ſaid Cauſes; and by colour of his Office, had made divers arbitrary and illegal Orders, and had of his own Authority reverſed Judgments given in the Court of Exchequer, without calling the Barons before him: And had declared and affirmed in publick Places of Judicature, That particular Subjects might have Rights and Intereſts, without any Remedy for Recovery of the ſame, unleſs by Petition to the Perſon of the King only, or to that Effect: Which Poſition was highly dangerous to the legal Conſtitution of this Kingdom, and abſolutely deſtructive to the Property of the Subject. ——— To which he anſwered, That he did not delay any Proceedings longer or otherwiſe, than as the Circumſtances and Juſtice of each Cauſe required; nor did he ever make any arbitrary or illegal Order, or ever reverſe any Judgment given in the Court of Exchequer, otherwiſe than as is warranted and allowed by the Law: Nor did ever deliver any Poſition whatſoever, dangerous to the legal Conſtitution, or deſtructive to the Property of the Subjects.

A Copy of the Lord Somers's Anſwer was with great Diſpatch delivered to the Commons on May the 24th. In the mean time, on the 21ſt, the Lords had ſent down this Meſſage.

Mr. Speaker,

THE Lords command us to acquaint this Houſe, That their Lordſhips having been deſired by the Earl of Orford, that a Day may be appointed for his ſpeedy Tryal, their Lordſhips finding no Iſſue joined by Replication of this Houſe, think fit to give Notice thereof to this Houſe.

They alſo command us to to acquaint this Houſe, That they having on the Firſt of April laſt ſent up an Impeachment to their Lordſhips againſt William Earl of Portland, for High Crimes and Miſdemeanors; and having alſo on the 15th of the ſame Month impeached Charles Lord Halifax for High Crimes and Miſdemeanors; and there being as yet no particular Articles exhibited againſt the ſaid Lords, their Lordſhips think themſelves obliged to put this Houſe in mind thereof; which, after Impeachments have ſo long depended, is a Hardſhip to the Perſons concerned, and not agreeable to the uſual Methods and Proceedings of Parliaments in ſuch Caſes.

The Commons prepared this Replication to my Lord of Orford's Anſwer. 1701.

The Commons have conſider'd the Anſwer of Edward Earl of Orford, to the Articles of Impeachment exhibited againſt him by the Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes aſſembled in Parliament, and do aver their Charge of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors againſt him to be true, and that the ſaid Earl is guilty in ſuch manner as he ſtands accuſed and impeached; and that the Commons will be ready to prove their Charge againſt him, at ſuch convenient Time as ſhall be appointed for that Purpoſe. Replication of the Commons to the Earl of Orford.

And on the Thirty firſt they ſent this Anſwer to the Lords.

In Anſwer to your Lordſhips Meſſage of the 21ſt Inſtant, the Commons have prepared a Replication to the Earl of Orford's Anſwer to the Articles of Impeachment of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors, exhibited againſt him; and at preſent defer bringing it up to your Lordſhips, becauſe in the Trial of the ſeveral Impeachments now depending, the Commons think it moſt proper, from the Nature of the Evidence that will be given at the ſaid Trials, to begin with the Trial of the Impeachment of John Lord Somers, of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors. Their Anſwer to the Lords.

And as to your Lordſhips other Meſſage, the Commons take it to be without Precedent, and Unparliamentary: They, as Proſecutors, having a Liberty to exhibit their Articles of Impeachment in due Time, of which they, who are to prepare them, are the proper Judges; and therefore, for your Lordſhips to aſſert, that having not yet exhibited particular Articles againſt William Earl of Portland, and Charles Lord Halifax, is a Hardſhip to them, and not agreeable to the uſual Methods and Proceedings in Parliament in ſuch Caſes, does, as they conceive, tend to the Breach of that good Correſpondence betwixt the Two Houſes, which ought to be mutually preſerved.

On the ſame Day, 31ſt May, Sir John Hoskyns and Sir Robert Legard brought this Meſſage to the Commons.

Mr. Speaker,

THE Lords have commanded us to acquaint this Houſe, That their Lordſhips have appointed Monday the 9th Day of June next, for the Tryal of Edward Earl of Orford, upon the Articles brought up againſt him by this Houſe, in Weſtminſter Hall, and that this Houſe may reply, if they think fit. Day appointed for Trial of the Earl of Orford.

They have alſo commanded us to acquaint this Houſe, That this Houſe having, on the Firſt Day of April laſt, ſent up to their Lordſhips an Impeachment againſt William Earl of Portland, for High Crimes and Miſdemeanors; and having alſo on the 15th Day of the ſame Month, impeached Charles Lord Halifax for High Crimes and Miſdemeanors; and there being as yet no particular Articles exhibited againſt the ſaid Lords, their Lordſhips think themſelves obliged to put this Houſe in mind thereof; which, after Impeachments have ſo long depended, is a Hardſhip to the Perſons concerned, and not agreeable to the uſual Methods of Parliament in ſuch Caſes.

The Commons on the Fifth of June, returned this Anſwer.

The Commons, on Conſideration of your Lordſhips Meſſage to them of the 31ſt of May, concerning the Earl of Orford, think it their undoubted Right, when ſeveral Perſons ſtand impeached before your Lordſhips, to bring to Trial ſuch of them in the firſt place as the Commons apprehend, from the Nature of the Evidence, ought firſt to be proceeded againſt, to the Intent all ſuch Offenders may in due time be brought to Juſtice; and that no Day ought to be appointed by your Lordſhips for the Trial of any Impeachment by the Anſwer of the Commons

Commons,

1701. Commons, without ſome previous Signification to your Lordſhips from the Commons, of their being ready to proceed thereon.

The Commons could not receive this Meſſage from your Lordſhips without the greateſt Surprize; your Lordſhips Proceedings in this Caſe, being neither warranted by Proceedings, nor (as the Commons conceive) conſiſtent with the Methods of Juſtice, or with Reaſon: Wherefore the Commons cannot agree to the Day appointed by your Lordſhips for the Tryal of the Earl of Orford.

As to your Lordſhips Meſſage at the ſame time, relating to the Earl of Portland, and Charles Lord Halifax, the Commons take the ſame to be without Precedent, and Unparliamentary; and conceive, your Lordſhips frequent Repetition thereof, in a ſhort time after the Commons had tranſmitted to your Lordſhips their Articles againſt Two of the Impeached Lords, and were daily preparing their Articles againſt the others, manifeſtly tends to the Delay of Juſtice, in obſtructing the Tryals of the Impeach'd Lords, by introducing Diſputes in Breach of that good Correſpondence between the Two Houſes, which ought inviolably to be preſerved.

In the mean time, the Lords on the Fourth, accoſted them with another Meſſage to this purpoſe.

Mr. Speaker,

Meſſage from the Lords. "The Lords do think fit, upon Occaſion of "the Meſſage from this Houſe of the 31ſt of "May, to acquaint this Houſe, That having "been deſired by the Lord Somers, that a Day "may be appointed for his ſpeedy Tryal, and "their Lordſhips finding no Iſſue joined by Re-"plication of the Houſe of Commons, judge it "proper to give them notice thereof, that the "Commons may reply, if they think fit. And "at the ſame time, their Lordſhips let the Com-"mons know, That they will proceed to the "Trial of any of the Impeached Lords, whom "the Commons ſhall be firſt ready to begin with, "ſo as there may be no Occaſion taken from "thence for any unreaſonable Delay in the Pro-"ſecution of any of them: And further to ac-"quaint them, having ſearched their own Jour-"nals, they do not find, that after a general Im-"peachment, there has ever been ſo long a De-"lay of bringing up the particular Articles of "Impeachment, Sitting the Parliament: And "therefore the Lords do think, they had Reaſon "to aſſert, that it was a Hardſhip to the Two "Lords concerned (eſpecially when their Lord-"ſhips had put the Houſe of Commons in mind "of exhibiting ſuch Articles) and not agreeable "to the uſual Proceedings in Parliament. And "as the Lords do not controvert what Right "the Commons may have, of Impeaching in "general Terms, if they pleaſe; ſo the Lords, "in whom the Judicature does entirely reſide, "think themſelves obliged to aſſert, That "the Right of limiting a convenient Time for "bringing the particular Charge before them, "for the avoiding Delay in Juſtice, is lodged in "them.

"The Lords hope, the Commons on their part "will be as careful not to do any thing that may "tend to the Interruption of the good Corre-"ſpondence between the Two Houſes, as the "Lords ſhall ever be on their part; and the beſt "way to preſerve that, is, for neither of the "Two Houſes to exceed thoſe Limits which the "Law and Cuſtom of Parliament have already "eſtabliſhed.

The Commons hereupon, June the Sixth, deſir'd a Conference with the Lords, upon the Subject Matter of the ſaid Meſſage; at which 1701. Mr. Harcourt deliver'd himſelf in this manner.

Conference. "The Commons have deſired this Conference, "upon your Lordſhips Meſſage of the Fourth of "June, in order to preſerve a good Correſpon-"dence with your Lordſhips, which will always "be the Endeavour of the Commons, and is at "this time particularly neceſſary, in order to "bring the Impeached Lords to a ſpeedy Trial. "And becauſe the Meſſages which your Lord-"ſhips have thought fit to ſend to the Commons, "and the Anſwers thereunto, ſeem not to tend "toward expediting the Trials, which the Com-"mons ſo much deſire, but may rather furniſh "Matter of Diſpute between the Two Houſes; "the Commons therefore chuſe to follow the "Methods formerly uſed with good Succeſs upon "the like Occaſion; and for the more ſpeedy "and eaſie adjuſting and preventing any Diffe-"rences which have already happened, or may "ariſe, previous to, or upon thoſe Trials, the "Commons do propoſe to your Lordſhips, "That a Committee of both Houſes be nomi-"nated, to conſider of the moſt proper Ways "and Methods of proceeding on Impeachments, "according to the Uſage of Parliaments in ſuch "Caſes.

The Conference being ended, the Lords, on the Ninth, ſent the following Meſſage to the Commons.

Meſſage from the Lords. "In Anſwer to the Meſſage of the Houſe of "Commons of the Fourth Inſtant, the Lords ſay, "by their Meſſage ſent on the Third, wherein "they declare themſelves ready to proceed to "the Trial of any of the Impeached Lords, "whom the Commons ſhall be firſt ready to be-"gin with; They have given a full Proof of their "Willingneſs to comply with the Commons in "any thing which may appear reaſonable, in "order to the ſpeedy determining of the Im-"peachments now depending; and therefore, as "the Lords conceive, the Commons had no Oc-"caſion to begin any Diſpute on that Head, ſo "their Lordſhips decline entring into a Contro-"verſie, which ſeems to them to be of no Uſe at "preſent.

"The Lords think themſelves obliged to aſſert "their undoubted Right to appoint a Day for the "Trial of any Impeachment depending before "them, if they ſee good Cauſe for it, without "any previous Signification from the Commons "of their being ready to proceed; which Right is "warranted by many Precedents, as well as con-"ſonant to Juſtice and Reaſon. And their Lord-"ſhips, according to the Example of their An-"ceſtors, will always uſe that Right, with a Re-"gard to the equal and impartial Adminiſtration "of Juſtice, and with a due Care to prevent un-"reaſonable Delays.

"This being the Caſe, the Lords cannot but "wonder, that the Commons, without any Foun-"dation for it, ſhould make uſe of Expreſſions, "which, as their Lordſhips conceive, have never "been uſed before by one Houſe of Parliament to "another, and which, if the like were returned, "muſt neceſſarily deſtroy all good Correſpon-"dence between the Two Houſes.

"The laſt part of the Commons Meſſage be-"ing in effect, a Repetition only of their former "of the 21ſt of May, to which the Lords have "already return'd a full Anſwer, their Lordſhips "think it not requiſite to ſay any more, than "that they cannot apprehend with what Colour "their calling upon the Houſe of Commons to "ſend up Articles againſt Two Lords, whom 1701. "the Commons have ſo long Impeached in General Terms, can be ſaid to tend to the Delay "of Juſtice. And therefore, as the Lords think "the Commons ought to have forborn that "Reflection, ſo their Lordſhips, in ſaying no "more upon the Occaſion of this Meſſage of the "Commons, think they have given a convincing "Proof of their Moderation, and of their ſincere "Deſire of preſerving a good Correſpondence between the Two Houſes; which is ſo neceſſary "for the publick Security, as well as doing Right "upon the Impeachments.

"the

The Commons anſwer'd them next Day to this Effect:

Anſwer of the Commons. "The Commons, in hopes of avoiding all Interruptions and Delays in proceeding againſt "the Impeach'd Lords, and the many Inconveniencies which might ariſe thereby, having "propoſed to your Lordſhips at a Conference, "That a Committee of both Houſes might be "nominated, to conſider of the moſt proper "Ways and Methods of proceeding on Impeachments; think they might juſtly have expected "your Lordſhips Compliance with their ſaid "Propoſition, inſtead of your Lordſhips Anſwer "to their Meſſage of the Fourth Inſtant, which "they Yeſterday received. In which Anſwer of "your Lordſhips, though many Matters of great "Exception are contained, a ſuitable Reply "whereunto would inevitably deſtroy all good "Correſpondence between the Two Houſes; "yet the Commons, from an earneſt Deſire to "preſerve the ſame, as well as to give the moſt "convincing Proof of their Moderation, and to "ſhew their Readineſs to bring the Impeached "Lords to ſpeedy Juſtice, at preſent inſiſt only "on their Propoſition, of both Houſes to ſettle "and adjuſt the neceſſary Preliminaries to the "Trials; particularly, Whether the Impeached "Lords ſhall appear on their Trials at your "Lordſhips Bar as Criminals? Whether, being "under Accuſations for the ſame Crimes, they "are to ſit as Judges on each others Trials for "thoſe Crimes, or can vote in their own Caſes, "as we find by your Lordſhips Journal, ſince "their being impeach'd, they have been admitted to do? Which Matters, and ſome others, "being neceſſary to be adjuſted, the Commons "cannot but inſiſt on a Committee of both Houſes, to be appointed for that purpoſe: The "departing from which, would be giving up "the Rights of the Commons of England, known "by unqueſtionable Precedents, and the Uſage "of Parliament, and making all Impeachments (the greateſt Bulwark of the Laws and "Liberties of England) impracticable for the "future.

Debate of the Lords. The Lords hereupon enter'd into a Debate, Whether they ſhould appoint a Committee, in purſuance of the Commons Deſire; and having carried it in the Negative, yet deſir'd a preſent Conference with them, which was managed by the Duke of Devonſhire, who acquainted them:

Conference with the Commons. "That the Lords have deſir'd this Conference, "upon Occaſion of the laſt Conference, in order "to preſerve a good Correſpondence with the "Houſe of Commons, which they ſhall always "endeavour.

"As to the late Meſſages between the Two "Houſes, their Lordſhips are well aſſur'd, that "on their part nothing has paſſed, but what was "agreeable to the Methods of Parliament, and "proper to preſerve that good Underſtanding "between both Houſes, which is neceſſary for the "carrying on of the Publick Buſineſs.

"As to the Propoſal of the Commons, That a 1701. "Committee of both Houſes ſhould be appointed, "to conſider of the Ways and Methods of Proceedings on Impeachments, their Lordſhips "cannot agree to it:

I. Becauſe they do not find, that ever ſuch a Reaſons for not appointing a Committee. "Committee was appointed on Occaſion of Impeachments for Miſdemeanors; and their Lordſhips think themſelves obliged to be extremely "cautious in admitting any thing new in Matters "relating to Judicature.

"II. That although a Committee of this nature was agreed to upon the Impeachments of "the Earl of Danby, and the Five Popiſh Lords, "for High Treaſon, yet it was upon Occaſion of "ſeveral conſiderable Queſtions and Difficulties "which did then ariſe. And their Lordſhips do "not find that the Succeſs in that Inſtance was "ſuch, as ſhould encourage the purſuing the "ſame Methods again, though in the like Caſe: "The Lords obſerving, that after much time "ſpent at that Committee, the Diſputes were ſo "far from being there adjuſted, that they occaſion'd an abrupt Concluſion of a Seſſion of Parliament.

"III. Their Lordſhips are of Opinion, That "the Methods of Proceedings on Impeachments "for Miſdemeanors, are ſo well ſettled by the "Uſage of Parliaments, that they do not foreſee "any Difficulties likely to happen; at leaſt, "none have been yet ſtarted to them: And all "the Preliminaries in the Caſe of Stephen Goudett, "and others (which was the laſt Inſtance of Impeachment for Miſdemeanors) were eaſily "ſettled and agreed to, without any ſuch Committee.

"IV. The Lords cannot but obſerve, That this "Propoſal of the Commons comes ſo very late, "that their Lordſhips can expect no other Fruit "of ſuch a Committee, but the preventing the "Trials during this Seſſion.

"The Lords aſſure the Commons, That in "caſe any Difficulties ſhall ariſe in the Progreſs "of theſe Trials (which their Lordſhips do not "foreſee) they will be ready to comply with the "Commons in removing them, as far as Juſtice, "and the Uſage of Parliament will admit.

The Commons on the 11th, deſired a free Conference on the Subject Matter of the laſt; and at the ſame time drew up an Anſwer to their Lordſhips other Meſſage, on Monday, about their appointing Friday the 13th for the Trial of the Lord Somers; which was to this Effect:

"The Commons, on Monday laſt (which was Free Conference. "the 9th) received a Meſſage from your Lordſhips, That your Lordſhips had appointed the "Trial of John Lord Somers upon Friday next, on "their Impeachment againſt him; in which they "obſerve, your Lordſhips have not nominated "any Place for his Trial, though your Lordſhips "thought fit to make that Matter on the laſt Impeachment for Miſdemeanor, the Subject of a "long Debate.

"And they cannot but take Notice, That your "Lordſhips have taken as long a Time to give "your Anſwer to the Commons Deſire of a Committee of both Houſes, deliver'd at a Conference on Friday laſt, as you are pleaſed to allow "the Commons to have of the Day appointed "by your Lordſhips for the ſaid Trial.

"Your Lordſhips appointing ſo ſhort a Day, "eſpecially whilſt the Propoſition made to your "Lordſhips for a Committee of both Houſes, "was undetermined, the Commons take to "be ſuch a Hardſhip to them, and ſuch an Indulgence to the Perſon accuſed, as is not "to 1701. "to be parallel'd in any Parliamentary Proceed"ing.

"The Commons muſt likewiſe acquaint "your Lordſhips, That their Experience of the "Interruption of a former Trial on an Impeach-"ment for Miſdemeanors, for want of ſet-"tling the Preliminaries between the Two "Houſes, obliged them to inſiſt on a Committee "of both Houſes, for preventing the like Inter-"ruption.

"And they conceive 'twould be very prepoſte-"rous for them to enter upon the Trial of any "of thoſe Lords, till your Lordſhips diſcover "ſome Inclination to make the Proceeding there-"upon practicable; and therefore they think "they have Reaſon to inſiſt upon another Day "to be appointed for the Trial of the Lord So-"mers. And the Commons doubt not but to "ſatisfy your Lordſhips at a free Conference, "of the Neceſſity of having a Committee of "both Houſes, before they can proceed upon "the ſaid Trial.

Acts paſſed.

On Thurſday, June 12th, his Majeſty, who would have been glad to ſilence theſe Diſputes, came to the Houſe of Peers, and gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. An Act for the further Limitation of the Crown, and better ſecuring the Rights and Liberties of the Subjects. 2. An Act for preventing the Inconveniences that may happen by Privilege of Parliament. 3. An Act for the recovering, ſecuring, and keeping in Repair the Harbour of Minehead, for the Benefit and Support of the Navigation and Trade of this Kingdom. 4. An Act for continuing the Acts therein mentioned, for preventing Theft and Rapine upon the Northern Borders of England. 5. An Act for appointing Wardens and Aſſay-Maſters, for aſſaying wrought Plate in the Cities of Exeter, York, Briſtol, Cheſter, and Norwich. 6. An Act for continuing a former Act, to prevent falſe and double Returns of Members to ſerve in Parliament. 7. An Act for raiſing the Militia for one Year, although the Month's Pay formerly advanced be not repaid. 8. An Act for the better ſettling and preſerving the Library kept in the Houſe at Weſtminſter, called Cotton-Houſe, in the Name and Family of the Cottons, for the Benefit of the Publick. 9. An Act for the more ſpeedy Payment of the Creditors of James late Duke of Ormond, and of the preſent Duke of Ormond. 10. An Act to enable Sir Robert Marſham, Knight and Baronet, to diſpoſe of Lands in Hertfordſhire; and to ſettle other Lands, of better Value, in Kent, to the ſame Uſes as the Lands in Hertfordſhire are ſettled. 11. An Act to enable Stephen Jermyn to make Proviſion for his younger Children, and for the Advancement of his eldeſt Son. 12. An Act for the more ſpeedy Payment of the Debts of Chriſtopher Killiow, Eſq; and for raiſing Portions and Maintenance for his Brothers and Siſters, in Purſuance of his Father's Will. 13. An Act for Sale of the Eſtate of William Daviſon, Eſq; deceas'd, for Payment of Debts, and raiſing his Childrens Portions charged thereupon. 14. An Act for ſeparating James Earl of Angleſey from Katherine Counteſs of Angleſey, his Wife, for the Cruelty of the ſaid Earl. 15. An Act for the veſting and ſettling ſeveral Meſſuages, Lands and Tenements, belonging to John Fawconer, Eſq; in Truſtees, to be ſold for Payment of Debts. 16. An Act to enable William Vaughan, Eſq; and Frances Vaughan, his intended Wife, (being both under the Age of One and Twenty Years) to perform Articles made for their Marriage. 17. An Act for Naturalizing Adrian Loftland, and others. 18. An Act for transferring a Truſt in Lands belonging to the City of London, unto New Truſtees. 19. An Act to diſſolve the Marriage of Ralph Box with Elizabeth Eyre, and to enable him to marry again. 20. An Act for erecting a Court of Requeſts or Conſcience in the City and County of the City of Norwich, for Recovery of ſmall Debts under Forty Shillings. 21. An Act to enable the Right Honourable Elizabeth Viſcounteſs Buckley of Laſſels, in the Kingdom of Ireland, to ſell certain Lands in the County of Devon, and City and County of the City of Exon, for the Payment of Debts. 22. An Act for the veſting and ſettling certain Mannors and Lands in South-Pickenham, and other Places in the County of Norfolk, in Truſtees, to be ſold, and for laying out the Moneys ariſing by the Sale thereof, in the Purchaſe of other Lands, to be ſettled to ſuch and the ſame Uſes as the Mannors and Lands ſo to be veſted are, and ſtand ſettled. 23. An Act for removing the County Gaol of Hertford. 24. An Act to enable Robert Lord Viſcount Kilmore, of the Kingdom of Ireland, (being an Infant) to ſettle divers Mannors, Lands, and Hereditaments in the Kingdom of England, upon a Treaty of Marriage. 25. An Act to enable Sir Charles Barrington, Baronet, to ſettle a Jointure, and make Proviſion for his younger Children. 26. An Act for furniſhing the Town of New-Deale with Freſh Water. 27. An Act for diſſolving the Marriage of Sir John Dillon with Mary Boyle, and for other Purpoſes therein mentioned. 28. An Act for veſting a Meſſuage and Lands in Stevenage, in the County of Hertford, the Eſtate of Richard Nodes, in Truſtees, to be ſold for making a Proviſion for his Wife and Children, equal to the Proviſion ſecured to them out of the ſaid Eſtate. 29. An Act for the better Performance of the laſt Will of Henry Apſley, Eſq; deceaſed. 30. An Act for Naturalizing Jane Barkſtead, Widow, and veſting ſeveral Mortgages and Securities in her, to enable her to convey or aſſign the ſame. 31. An Act for veſting the Eſtate of Humphry Hyde, Eſq; deceaſed, in Truſtees, for raiſing Portions for his younger Children. 32. An Act to change the Sirname of Ellis Mews and his Heirs, to the Sirname of Saint John. 33. An Act for Naturalizing Archibald Arthur, and enabling him to ſettle and diſpoſe of his Eſtate. 34. An Act for the erecting Hoſpitals and Work-Houſes, within the Borough of Kings-Lynn in the County of Norfolk, for the better employing and maintaining the Poor there. 35. An Act for diſcharging a Mortgage upon the Eſtate of Peter Treviſa, Eſq; deceaſed, and providing a Maintenance for his Widow and Children. 36. An Act for veſting the Eſtate of Thomas Bennet, late of Newton cum Larton in the County of Cheſter, in Truſtees, for the Uſe of the Poor of Weſt Kirby, purſuant to the Will of the ſaid Thomas Bennet. 37. An Act for making good the Deficiency of the Charges of making a Way out of Chancery-Lane into Lincolns-Inn Fields. 38. An Act for declaring the Will of Sir Joſeph Herne, Knight, deceaſed, the Twenty fifth Day of February, One thouſand Six hundred Ninety eight, to be taken and eſteemed the laſt Will of the ſaid Sir Joſeph Herne.

After which, his Majeſty made this Speech, to expedite the Diſpatch of Affairs, with as much Importunity as was decent for him to uſe.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech.

"I Return you my hearty Thanks for the Care "you have taken to eſtabliſh the Succeſſion "to the Crown in the Proteſtant Line: And I "muſt not loſe this Occaſion of acquainting you, "that I am likewiſe extremely ſenſible of your "repeated Aſſurances of ſupporting me in ſuch "Alliances as ſhall be moſt proper for the Pre-"ſervation of the Liberty of Europe, and for the "Security of England and Holland. Your ready "Compliance with my Deſires, as to the Succours "for the States General, is alſo a great Satis-"faction to me, as well as a great Advantage to "the Common Cauſe. And as I have nothing ſo "much at Heart, as the Preſervation of the Li-1701. "berty of Europe, and the Honour and Intereſt "of England, ſo I make no doubt of attaining "thoſe great Ends, by the Bleſſing of God, and "the Continuance of your chearful Concurrence.

"berty

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"The Seaſon of the Year makes it neceſſary "to have a ſpeedy Receſs; and the Poſture of "Affairs Abroad does abſolutely require my "Preſence, for the Encouragement of our Allies, and for the perfecting of ſuch Alliances "as may be moſt effectual for the common Intereſt: And therefore I muſt recommend a "Diſpatch of the Publick Buſineſs, eſpecially "of thoſe Matters which are of the greateſt Importance.

The Commons were willing to interpret this Speech, as an Approbation of their Proceedings in reſpect of their Conteſt with the Lords; and therefore agreed upon this Addreſs to his Majeſty.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign;

Addreſs of the Commons

WE Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons in Parliament aſſembled, do with all imaginable Chearfulneſs, return your Majeſty our moſt humble Thanks for your moſt Gracious Speech from the Throne, in which your Majeſty is pleaſed to expreſs your Royal Approbation of the Proceedings of your Commons. And we do further unanimouſly aſſure your Majeſty, That we will be ready on all Occaſions to aſſiſt your Majeſty in ſupporting ſuch Alliances as your Majeſty ſhall think fit to make, in Conjunction with the Emperor and the States General, for the Preſervation of the Liberties of Europe, the Proſperity and Peace of England, and for reducing the exorbitant Power of France.

When this Addreſs was preſented, on Friday, June 13th, the King gave this Anſwer, to moliſy and to oblige in the wiſeſt manner.

Gentlemen,

King's Anſwer.

I Thank you heartily for the unanimous Aſſurances you have given me of your Readineſs to aſſiſt me, in ſupporting ſuch Alliances as I ſhall make in Conjunction with the Emperor and the States General. It will be a good Encouragement to them, to find the Senſe of this Kingdom ſo fully expreſſed on this Occaſion, and will likewiſe contribute moſt effectually to the obtaining thoſe great Ends you have now mentioned, on which the Happineſs of Europe does ſo much depend.

But to return again to the Conteſts between the Two Houſes. The Lords on the ſame Day the King made this Speech, had ſent this Meſſage to the Commons by Dr. Newton and Mr. Gery.

Conteſts between the Two Houſes.

"In Anſwer to the Meſſage from the Houſe of "Commons of the Tenth Inſtant, the Lords ſay, "That altho' they take it to be Unparliamentary "in many Particulars, yet, to ſhew their real "Deſire of avoiding Diſputes, and removing all "Pretence of delaying the Trials of the impeach'd "Lords, they will only take notice of that part "of their Meſſage, wherein the Commons propoſe ſome Things as Difficulties in reſpect of "the Trials; which Matters relating wholly to "their Judicature, and to their Rights and Privileges, as Peers, they think fit to acquaint the "Commons with the following Reſolutions of "the Houſe of Lords.

I. That no Lord of Parliament, impeached for High Crimes and Miſdemeanors, and coming to his Trial, ſhall, upon his Trial, be without the Bar.

II. That no Lord of Parliament, impeached of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors, can be precluded from Voting on any Occaſion, except in his own Trial. 1701.

"Their Lordſhips further take Notice of a Miſtake in point of Fact, alledged in the Meſſage "of the Commons; it no way appearing upon "their Journals, that the Lords impeached have "voted in their own Caſe.

"The Lords being well aſſured, that all the "Steps that have been taken by them in relation "to theſe Impeachments, are warranted by the "Practice of their Anceſtors, and the Uſage of "Parliament, have Reaſon to expect the Trials "ſhall proceed without Delay.

Alſo, That they are commanded by the Lords to acquaint this Houſe, That,

"In Anſwer to the Meſſage of the Houſe of "Commons Yeſterday, the Lords ſay, That they "cannot give a greater Evidence of their ſincere "and hearty Deſires of avoiding all Differences "with the Houſe of Commons, and of proceeding "on the Trials of the Impeachments, than by "not taking Notice of the ſeveral juſt Exceptions to which that Meſſage is liable, both as to "the Matter, and the Expreſſions.

"The Lords have nothing farther from their "Thoughts, than the going about to do any thing "which might have the leaſt Appearance of Hardſhip with relation to the Commons.

"But the Anſwer of the Lord Somers to the "Articles exhibited againſt him, having been "ſent down to the Commons on the 24th of May "laſt, and they having by their Meſſage of the "21ſt of May, ſignified to their Lordſhips their "Intention of beginning with the Trial of his "Impeachment in the firſt place:

"The Lords, conſidering how far the Seſſion "is advanced, thought it reaſonable to appoint "the 13th Inſtant for the ſaid Trial, their Lordſhips finding ſeveral Precedents of appointing "Trials on Impeachments within a ſhorter "Time.

"The Lords alſo think it incumbent upon "them, to diſpatch the Trials of all the impeach'd Lords, before the Riſing of the Parliament. This is what Juſtice requires, and cannot be look'd upon as a Matter of Indulgency: "Nevertheleſs, that the Commons may ſee how "deſirous their Lordſhips are to comply with "them in any thing which may be conſiſtent "with Juſtice, they have appointed the Trial of "Impeachment againſt John Lord Somers, on "Tueſday the 17th of this Inſtant June, at Ten "of the Clock in the Forenoon, in the Houſe of "Lords, which will be then ſitting in Weſtminſter-Hall.

"That they were commanded by the Lords to "acquaint this Houſe, That the Lords do agree "to a free Conference with the Commons, as "deſired; and do appoint to Morrow at One a "Clock in the Painted Chamber.

The Commons on the 13th made theſe Anſwers to them.

"The Houſe of Commons find greater Reaſon "to inſiſt upon their Propoſal of a Committee of "both Houſes, from the Two Meſſages received "Yeſterday from your Lordſhips; for their Ambiguity and Uncertainty do ſhew the Methods "of former Parliaments to be the moſt proper "way for Diſpatch of Buſineſs. Anſwer of the Commons

"The Commons have been obliged to employ "that Time in conſidering how to anſwer your "Lordſhips Meſſages, which otherwiſe would "have been ſpent in preparing for the Lord Somers's Trial; ſo that the Delay muſt be charged where the Occaſion ariſeth. And the

"Com-

1701. "Commons having deſired a Committee of both "Houſes, to adjuſt the Preliminaries of the "Trials, cannot but think it ſtrange your Lordſhips ſhould come to Reſolutions upon Two "of thoſe Points, while the Propoſal of the "Houſe of Commons is under Debate at Conferences between the Two Houſes; the Commons having other Difficulties to propoſe, "which concern them as Proſecutors, and all future Impeachments.

"And though the Commons have the Subject "of your Lordſhips Reſolutions, with other "Things, to be debated at a Committee of both "Houſes; yet they cannot but obſerve, That "your Lordſhips ſecond Reſolution is no direct "Anſwer to the Commons Propoſal; which was, "Whether Peers, impeached of the ſame Crimes, "ſhall vote for each other upon their Trial for "the ſame Crimes. And the Commons cannot "believe, that any ſuch Rule can be laid down "in plain Words, where there is a due Regard "to Juſtice.

"And as to what your Lordſhips obſerve, that "there is a Miſtake in point of Fact alledged by "the Commons; The Houſe may take notice of "the Caution uſed by your Lordſhips in wording "that part of your Meſſage; for they know your "Lordſhips are too well acquainted with the "Truth of the Fact, to affirm, that the impeached Lords did not vote in their own Caſes; "and though the appearing, or not appearing "upon your Lordſhips Journal, does not make "it more or leſs agreeable to the Rules of Juſtice, "yet the Commons cannot but add this further "Obſervation from your Lordſhips Journal; "That the impeached Lords Preſence is not "only recorded when thoſe Votes paſſed, but "they alſo find ſome of them appointed of Committees for preparing and drawing up the Meſſages and Anſwers to the Houſe of Commons; "which they do not think has been the beſt "Expedient for preſerving a good Correſpondence between the Two Houſes, or adjuſting "what will be neceſſary upon theſe Trials: "And therefore the Commons cannot think it "agreeable to the Rules of Parliament, for "them to appear at the Trial, till all neceſſary "Preliminaries are firſt ſettled with your Lordſhips.

Report of the Conference. Then the Commons went to the Conference with the Lords, and Mr. Harcourt reported the Matter thereof, and the Words which the Lord Haverſham had ſpoke thereat; which he read in his Place, and afterwards deliver'd in at the Clerk's Table, where the ſame was read, and is as followeth; viz.

"That the Managers appointed by this Houſe "met the Lords at the Free Conference, the Subject Matter whereof was opened by Mr. Harcourt, and immediately afterwards further argued by Sir Bartholomew Shower.

"It was inſiſted on by each of them, That the "Reaſons offered by their Lordſhips at the laſt "Conference, were not ſufficient for their Lordſhips diſagreeing to a Committee of both Houſes, deſired by the Commons at the firſt Conference.

"That notwithſtanding thoſe Reaſons, the "Commons ſtill thought a Committee of both "Houſes abſolutely neceſſary for adjuſting and "preventing ſuch Differences as had happen'd, "or might ariſe previous to, or upon the Trials; "and therefore inſiſted, that ſuch a Committee "ſhould be appointed before the Commons could "proceed on any Trial.

"'Twas urged as one Reaſon for ſuch a Committee, That many Difficulties might happen, "whereby the Trials might be obſtructed, if the "Preliminaries ſhould not be firſt adjuſted: As "one Inſtance, That Point of ſeveral Lords being under Impeachments of the ſame Crimes, "voting on each others Trials, was mentioned.

"The Lord Steward firſt replied, and nothing "was offer'd by his Grace, but what was material and pertinent to the Matter in Queſtion, "and agreeable to the Method of Parliament in "free Conferences.

"That John Lord Haverſham ſpoke immediately after; and in his Lordſhip's Diſcourſe, "uſed theſe or the like Expreſſions.

Speech of the Lord Haverſham. One Thing there is, tho' I cannot ſpeak it, becauſe I am bound up by the Orders of the Houſe: Yet I muſt have ſome Anſwer; This is as to the Lords voting in their own Caſe; it requires an Anſwer, tho' I cannot go into the Debate of it. The Commons themſelves have made this Precedent; for in theſe Impeachments they have allowed Men guilty of the ſame Crimes, to vote in their own Houſe; and therefore we have not made any Diſtinction in our Houſe, that ſome ſhould vote, and ſome not. The Lords have ſo high an Opinion of the Juſtice of the Houſe of Commons, that they hope Juſtice ſhall never be made uſe of as a Mask for any Deſign. And therefore give me Leave to ſay (tho' I am not to argue it) 'tis a plain Demonſtration, that the Commons think theſe Lords innocent; and I think the Propoſition is undeniable; for there are ſeveral Lords in the ſame Crimes, in the ſame Facts, there is no Diſtinction. And the Commons leave ſome of theſe Men at the Head of Affairs near the King's Perſon, to do any Miſchief, if their Perſons were inclined to it; and impeach others, when they are both alike guilty, and concern'd in the ſame Facts. This is a Thing I was in hopes I ſhould never have heard aſſerted, when the Beginning of it was from the Houſe of Commons.

"Theſe Expreſſions were inſtantly objected to "by Sir Chriſtopher Muſgrave; and the Managers "took them to be ſo great an Aſperſion on the "Honour of this Houſe, that they thought themſelves obliged in Duty immediately to withdraw from the free Conference.

"As the Managers were withdrawing, his "Grace my Lord Steward ſpoke to the Effect "following; That he hoped they would not think "that that Lord had any Authority from the Houſe "of Lords, to uſe any ſuch Expreſſions towards the "Commons.

Reſolved, That John Lord Haverſham hath at the free Conference this Day uttered moſt ſcandalous Reproaches and falſe Expreſſions, highly reflecting upon the Honour and Juſtice of the Houſe of Commons, and tending to the making a Breach in the good Correſpondence between the Lords and Commons; and to the interrupting the publick Juſtice of the Nation, by delaying the Proceedings on Impeachments.

Reſolved, That John Lord Haverſham be charged before the Lords, for the Words ſpoken by the ſaid Lord this Day at the Free Conference: And that the Lords be deſired to proceed in Juſtice againſt the ſaid Lord Haverſham, and to inflict ſuch Puniſhment upon the ſaid Lord as ſo high an Offence againſt the Houſe of Commons does deſerve.

Ordered, That Sir Chriſtopher Muſgrave do carry the ſaid Charge and Reſolution to the Lords.

A Meſſage from the Lords by Doctor Newton and Mr. Gery.

1701. Mr. Speaker,

THE Lords having been informed by their Managers, that ſome Interruption happened at the Free Conference, which their Lordſhips are concerned at; becauſe they wiſh that nothing ſhould interrupt the Publick Buſineſs, do deſire the Commons would come again preſently to the ſaid Free Conference; which they do not doubt, will prove the beſt Expedient to prevent the Inconvenience of a Miſunderſtanding upon what has paſt.

Next Day, which was Saturday the 14th, came another Meſſage from the Lords, importing:

That upon Occaſion of their laſt Meſſage Yeſterday, in order to continue a good Correſpondence between the Two Houſes, their Lordſhips did immediately appoint a Committee to ſtate the Matter of the Free Conference, and alſo to inſpect Precedents of what has happened of the like Nature; and that the publick Buſineſs may receive no Interruption, the Time deſired by their Lordſhips for renewing the Free Conference, being elapſed, their Lordſhips deſire a preſent Free Conference in the Painted Chamber upon the Subject Matter of the laſt Free Conference.

Upon which the Commons came to the following Reſolutions.

That an Anſwer be returned to the Lords, That the Commons are extremely deſirous to preſerve a good Correſpondence between the Two Houſes, and to expedite the Trials of the impeached Lords; but do conceive, 'tis not conſiſtent with the Honour of the Commons to renew the Free Conference, until they have received Reparation, by their Lordſhips doing Juſtice upon John Lord Haverſham, for the Indignity he Yeſterday offered to the Houſe of Commons.

Articles againſt the Lord Halifax. On the ſame Day, Saturday, 14 June, Mr. Bruges reported, that he had carried the Articles of Impeachment againſt Charles Lord Halifax to the Lords, which were,

I. That whereas it was the continued Senſe of the Commons of England, that it was highly reaſonable, that the Forfeited Eſtates of Rebels and Traitors in Ireland ſhould be applied in Eaſe of his Majeſty's Faithful Subjects of the Kingdom of England, the ſaid Lord Halifax preſumed to adviſe, paſs, or direct the paſſing a Grant to Thomas Railton, Eſq; in Truſt for himſelf, of ſeveral Debts, Intereſts, &c. amounting to 13000 l. or thereabouts, accruing to his Majeſty from Attainders, Outlawries, or other Forfeitures in Ireland. ——To which he anſwered, That he did accept the ſaid Grant, as it was lawful for him to do, without Breach of his Duty, and the Truſt repoſed in him; which Grant hath ſince been taken away by Act of Parliament, and he hath not made clear thereof, as yet, above 400 l.

II. That he has not repaid into the Receipt of his Majeſty's Exchequer in Ireland the Sum of 1000 l. which he had actually received to his own Uſe, out of the Profits of the fore-mentioned Grant, which he ought to have ſo repaid, by virtue of the Act for granting an Aid to his Majeſty, by Sale of the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland. —— To which he anſwered, That he gave Direction, after the ſaid Act paſſed, to his Agents in Ireland, to do, in relation to the Money received, as ſhould be adviſed by Council there; by whom his Agents were adviſed, that the ſaid Monies being received out of the mean Profits, which were remitted by that Act, were not within the firſt-mentioned Clauſe in the ſaid Act.

III. That in the Time of a tedious and expenſive War, he did adviſe, procure, and aſſent, not only to the paſſing of divers Grants to others, but did obtain and accept of ſeveral beneficial ones for himſelf; which Practices were a moſt notorious Abuſe of his Majeſty's Goodneſs, &c. 1701. ——To which he anſwered, That he ſerved his Majeſty faithfully in his Stations, and his Majeſty graciouſly accepted of his Service; and as a Mark of his Royal Favour, did make for his Benefit, ſuch Grants as are mentioned in the precedent and ſubſequent Articles, and none other. And as to other Perſons, he only, in conjunction with the other Commiſſioners, did ſign ſeveral Warrants and Dockets for ſuch Grants, as his Majeſty was pleaſed to direct.

IV. Whereas by Common Law, and other Statutes, the King's Foreſts ſhould be preſerved, the ſaid Lord Halifax, not regarding the Laws and Ordinances of this Realm, nor his Duty to his Majeſty and the Publick, had procured a Grant to Henry Segar, Gent. in Truſt for himſelf, of the Sum of 14000 l. of ſcrubbed Beech, Birch, Holly, &c. under colour whereof, Sapling Oaks, and many Tuns of well grown Timber had been cut and fallen, and ſold and diſpoſed for his Benefit. —— To which he anſwered, That his Majeſty out of his Grace and Favour, did grant in Truſt for him the Sum of 2000 l. per Ann. to be raiſed by the Fall of Scrub-Beech, Birch, &c. for the Space of Seven Years, which Grant was not prejudicial to any Timber growing in the ſaid Foreſt. And if any Abuſe were in cutting the Wood, he conceives he is not anſwerable for the ſame, it being done by the Direction of his Majeſty's Surveyor General, and other his Majeſty's Officers.

V. That he the ſaid Lord Halifax did grant, or procure to be granted, to his Brother Chriſtopher Mountague, Eſq; the Place and Office of Auditor of the Receipts, and Writer of the Tallies, in Truſt for himſelf; ſo that he the ſaid Lord was, in effect, at the ſame time, one of the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Auditor of the Receipts, and Writer of the Tallies, and enjoyed the Profits of the ſaid ſeveral Offices, which were manifeſtly inconſiſtent, and ought to have been a Check to each other. —— To which he anſwered, That the Grant of the ſaid Office was done at his Deſire and Requeſt, becauſe he intended in a ſhort time after, to leave his own Employment and Places in the Treaſury, and to obtain a Surrender from his ſaid Brother of the ſaid Office, and procure a Grant thereof to himſelf, which has been ſince done, and he conceives was lawful for him to do.

VI. That the ſaid Lord Halifax, well knowing the moſt apparent evil Conſequences, as well as the Injuſtice of the Partition of the Spaniſh Monarchy, did yet adviſe his Majeſty to enter into a Treaty for it, and did encourage and promote the ſame. ——To which he anſwered, That he never did adviſe his Majeſty to enter into or make the ſaid Treaty, or was ever conſulted upon any Clauſe or Article thereof: But when the ſaid Matter was diſcourſed at Tunbridge-Wells, he made ſeveral Objections to the ſame.

On Monday, June the 16th. The Lords ſent a Meſſage to acquaint the Houſe of Commons, That the Lords taking into their Care the Ordering of the Trial of John Lord Somers, on Tueſday the 17th of June Inſtant, at Ten of the Clock in Weſtminſter-Hall, have prepared ſome Notes and Rules to be obſerved at the ſaid Trial, which the Lords have thought fit to communicate to this Houſe, viz. Rules for the Trial of the Impeached Lords.

"That the whole Impeachment is to be read, "and then the Anſwer; which being done, the "Lord Keeper is to tell the Commons, that now "they may go on with their Evidence.

"Then

1701. " Then the Lord Keeper is to declare, That " now the Court is proceeding to hear the " Evidence, and deſire the Peers to give Atten- " tion.

" If any of the Peers, or the Members of the " Houſe of Commons, that manage the Evidence, " or the Lord impeached, do deſire to have any " Queſtion asked, they muſt deſire the Lord " Keeper to ask the ſame.

" If any Doubt doth ariſe at the Trial, no De- " bate is to be in the Court, but the Queſtion ſuſ- " pended to be debated in this Houſe.

" The Members of the Houſe of Commons to " be there before the Peers come.

" None to be covered at the Trial but the " Peers.

" That ſuch Peers at the Trial of the im- " peached Lord, who at the Inſtance of the ſaid " Lord, or of the Commons, ſhall be admitted " Witneſſes, are to be ſworn at the Clerk's Ta- " ble, and the Lord Keeper to adminiſter the " Oath, and to deliver their Evidence in their " own Places.

" Thoſe Witneſſes that are Commoners, are to " be ſworn at the Bar by the Clerk, and are to " deliver their Evidence there.

" The impeached Lords may croſs examine " Witneſſes, viva voce.

Reaſons of the Commons againſt proceeding to the Trial of the Lord Somers.

But the Commons appointed a Committee to conſider of the Reaſons why they cannot proceed to the Trial of the Lord Somers. Which Reaſons were the next Day reported by Mr. Harcourt, and were as follow:

" The Commons in this whole Proceeding " againſt the impeached Lords, have acted with " all imaginable Zeal to bring them to a ſpeedy " Trial; and they doubt not but it will appear, " by comparing their Proceedings with all others " upon the like Occaſion, That the Houſe of " Commons have nothing to blame themſelves " for, but that they have not expreſſed the Re- " ſentment their Anceſtors have juſtly ſhewed " upon much leſs Attempts which have been made " upon their Power of Impeachments.

" The Commons, on the 31ſt of May, ac- " quainted your Lordſhips, that they thought it " proper from the Nature of the Evidence, to " proceed in the firſt place upon the Trial of " the Lord Somers. Upon the firſt Intimation " from your Lordſhips, ſome Days afterwards, " That you would proceed to the Trial of the " impeached Lords, whom the Commons ſhould " be firſt ready to begin with, notwithſtanding " your Lordſhips had before thought fit to ap- " point which Impeachment ſhould be firſt tried, " and affix a Day for ſuch Trial, without " conſulting the Commons, who are the Proſe- " cutors:

" The Commons determine to expedite the " Trials to the utmoſt of their Power, in hopes " of attaining that end: And for the more ſpee- " dy and eaſie adjuſting and preventing any Diffe- " rences, which had happened, or might ariſe " previous to or upon theſe Trials, propoſed to " your Lordſhips at a Conference, the moſt Par- " liamentary and Effectual Method for that pur- " poſe, and that which in no manner intrenched " upon your Lordſhips Judicature, That a Com- " mittee of both Houſes ſhould be nominated, to " conſider of the moſt proper Ways and Methods " of proceeding upon Impeachments according to " the Uſage of Parliament.

" In the next Meſſage to the Commons, upon " Monday the 9th of June, your Lordſhips " thought fit, without taking the leaſt Notice of " this Propoſition, to appoint the Friday then " following for the Trial of the ſaid Lord Somers; 1701. " whereunto, as well as to many other Meſſages " and Proceedings of your Lordſhips upon this " Occaſion, the Houſe of Commons might have " juſtly taken very great Exceptions; yet, as an " Evidence of their Moderation, and to ſhew " their Readineſs to bring the impeached Lords " to ſpeedy Juſtice, the Commons inſiſted only " on their Propoſition for a Committee of both " Houſes, to ſettle and adjuſt the neceſſary Pre- " liminaries to the Trial; particularly, Whe- " ther the impeached Lords ſhould appear on " their Trial at your Lordſhips Bar as Criminals? " Whether, being under Accuſations of the ſame " Crimes, they ſhould ſit as Judges on each " other's Trial for thoſe Crimes, or ſhould vote " in their own Caſes, as 'tis notorious they have " been permitted by your Lordſhips to do, in ma- " ny Inſtances which might be given; to which " Particulars, your Lordſhips have not yet given " a direct Anſwer; tho' put in mind thereof by " the Commons.

" Your Lordſhips at a Conference, having " offered ſome Reaſons why you could not agree " to a Committee of both Houſes to adjuſt the " neceſſary Preliminaries, the Commons there- " upon deſired a Free Conference, and your " Lordſhips agreed thereunto; at which, 'tis well " known to many of your Lordſhips, who were " then preſent, what moſt ſcandalous Reproaches " and falſe Expreſſions, highly reflecting upon " the Honour and Juſtice of the Houſe of Com- " mons, were uttered by John Lord Haverſham, " whereby the Commons were under a Neceſſity " of withdrawing from the ſaid Free Conference; " for which Offence, the Commons have, with " all due Regard to your Lordſhips, prayed your " Lordſhips Juſtice againſt the Lord Haverſham; " but have as yet received no manner of Satiſ- " faction.

" The Commons reſtrain themſelves from " enumerating your Lordſhips very many Irregu- " lar and Unparliamentary Proceedings upon this " Occaſion; but think it is what they owe to " publick Juſtice, and all the Commons of Eng- " land whom they repreſent, to declare ſome few " of thoſe Reaſons, why they peremptorily re- " fuſe to proceed to the Trial of the Lord Somers " on the Seventeenth of June.

" Firſt, Becauſe your Lordſhips have not yet " agreed, That a Committee of both Houſes " ſhould be appointed, for ſettling the neceſſary " Preliminaries; a Method never until this time " denied by the Houſe of Lords, whenſoever the " Commons have thought it neceſſary to deſire " the ſame.

" Secondly, Should the Commons (which they " never will do) be contented to give up thoſe " Rights which have been tranſmitted to them " from their Anceſtors, and are of abſolute Ne- " ceſſity to their Proceedings on Impeachments; " yet, whilſt they have any Regard to publick " Juſtice, they never can appear as Proſecu- " tors before your Lordſhips, till your Lord- " ſhips have firſt given them Satisfaction, that " Lords impeached of the ſame Crimes, ſhall not " ſit as Judges on each other's Trials for thoſe " Crimes.

" Thirdly, Becauſe the Commons have as yet " received no Reparation for the great Indignity " offered to them at the Free Conference by the " Lord Haverſham. The Commons are far from " any Inclination, and cannot be ſuppoſed to be " under any Neceſſity of delaying the Trial of " the Lord Somers: There is not any Article " exhibited by them in Maintenance of their " Impeachment againſt the Lord Somers, for " the Proof whereof they have not full and un-

1701. "deniable Evidence; which they will be ready "to produce, as ſoon as your Lordſhips ſhall have "done Juſtice upon the Lord Haverſham; and "the neceſſary Preliminaries in order to the ſaid "Tryal, ſhall be ſettled by a Committee of both "Houſes.

"The Commons think it unneceſſary to ob-"ſerve to your Lordſhips, that moſt of the Ar-"ticles whereof the Lord Somers ſtands impeach-"ed, will appear to your Lordſhips to be un-"doubtedly true, from Matters of Record, as "well as by the Confeſſion of the ſaid Lord So-"mers, in his Anſwer to the ſaid Articles; to "which the Commons doubt not but your Lord-"ſhips will have a due Regard, when his Trial "ſhall regularly proceed.

The Lords ſent their Anſwer to this Meſſage, on Friday, June the 20th, in theſe Words.

Anſwer of the Lords. "The Lords, in Anſwer to the Meſſage of the "Commons of the 17th Inſtant, ſay, The only "true way of determining which of the Two "Houſes has acted with the greateſt Sincerity, in "order to bring the impeached Lords to their "Trials, is to look back upon the reſpective Pro-"ceedings.

"The Lords do not well underſtand what the "Commons mean by that Reſentment which they "ſpeak of in their Meſſage: Their Lordſhips "own, the Houſe of Commons have a Right of "Impeaching: And the Lords have undoubted "Power of doing Juſtice upon thoſe Impeach-"ments, by bringing them to Trial, and Con-"demning or Acquitting the Parties in a reaſona-"ble Time. This Power is derived to them from "their Anceſtors, which they will not ſuffer to "be wreſted from them by any Pretences what-"ſoever.

"Their Lordſhips cannot but wonder, that "the Commons ſhould not have propoſed a Com-"mittee of both Houſes much ſooner, if they "thought it ſo neceſſary for the bringing on the "Trials; no mention being of ſuch a Committee "from the Firſt of April to the Sixth of June, "although during that Interval, their Delays "were frequently complained of by the Houſe "of Lords.

"The Manner in which the Commons demand "this Committee, the Lords look upon as a di-"rect Invading of their Judicature; and there-"fore, as there never was a Committee of both "Houſes yielded to by the Lords in Caſe of any "Impeachment for High Crimes and Miſde-"meanors; ſo their Lordſhips do inſiſt, That "they will make no new Precedent upon this Oc-"caſion. Many Impeachments for Miſdemeanors "have in all Times been determined without "ſuch a Committee: And if now the Commons "think fit, by any unprecedented Demand, to "form an Excuſe for not proſecuting their Im-"peachments, it is demonſtrable where the Ob-"ſtruction lies.

"As to the Preliminaries which the Commons "mention in particular, as proper to be ſet-"tled at ſuch a Committee, they have received "the Reſolutions of the Houſe of Lords there-"in, by their Meſſage of the Twelfth Inſtant; "from which (being Matters entirely relating "to their Judicature) their Lordſhips cannot de-"part.

"As to the laſt Pretence the Commons would "make to ſhelter the delaying the Trials, from "ſome Expreſſions which fell from the Lord "Haverſham at the Free Conference, at which "Offence was taken, their Lordſhips will only "obſerve, Firſt, That they have omitted nothing which "might give the Commons all reaſonable Satis-"faction of their purpoſe to do them Juſtice in "that Matter, ſo far as is conſiſtent with doing "Juſtice to that Lord; and alſo to preſerve all "good Correſpondence with them; as appears by "the ſeveral Steps they have taken.

"Secondly, That this Buſineſs has no Relation "to the Trial of the impeached Lords, and there-"fore their Lordſhips cannot imagine why the "Commons ſhould make Satisfaction and Repa-"ration againſt the Lord Haverſham a neceſſary "Condition for the going on with the Trials, and "at the ſame time find no Difficulties in proceed-"ing on other Buſineſs.

In the mean time, on Tueſday, June the 17th, the Lords proceeded to the Trial of John Lord Somers in Weſtminſter-Hall, where this Proclamation firſt was made: Whereas a Charge of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors has been exhibited by the Houſe of Commons, in the Name of themſelves, and all the Commons of England, againſt John Lord Somers; All Perſons concerned are to take Notice, that he now ſtands upon his Trial, and they may now come forth, in order to make good the ſaid Charge. Then the Houſe adjourned to the ſaid Hall; and being ſeated, after Proclamation for Silence, the Articles againſt John Lord Somers were read, and alſo his Lordſhip's Anſwer to them. Then the Lord Keeper declared the Houſe was ready to hear the Evidence againſt him. The Lord Somers moved to have his Council heard. After long Debate, and hearing the Judges to ſeveral Queſtions asked them by the Lords, this Queſtion was propoſed, That John Lord Somers be acquitted of the Articles of Impeachment againſt him, exhibited by the Houſe of Commons, and all things therein contained, and that the ſaid Impeachment be diſmiſſed. When the Lord Keeper had asked every Lord, Whether Content or not? He declared the Majority was for Acquitting. Then the Lords adjourned to the Houſe above, and made the following Order: It was Conſidered, Ordered, and Adjudged by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, That John Lord Somers ſhall be, and is hereby Acquitted of the Articles of Impeachment againſt him, exhibited by the Houſe of Commons, and all things therein contained, and that the ſaid Impeachment ſhall be, and is hereby diſmiſſed.

Trial of John Lord Somers. Honourably Acquitted.

Remonſtrance of the Commons. The Commons, to juſtify their Refuſal of appearing at the ſaid Trial, did Reſolve, on June the 20th, "That the Lords have refuſed Juſtice "to the Commons upon the Impeachment againſt "the Lord Somers, by denying them a Com-"mittee of both Houſes, which was deſired by "the Commons as the proper and only Method "of ſettling the neceſſary Preliminaries, in order "to the proceeding to the Trial of the ſaid Lord "Somers with effect; and afterwards by proceed-"ing to a pretended Trial of the ſaid Lord, which "could tend only to protect him from Juſtice by "colour of an illegal Acquittal. Againſt which "Proceedings of the Lords, the Commons do "ſolemnly proteſt, as being repugnant to the "Rules of Juſtice, and therefore null and void. "That the Houſe of Lords, by the pretended "Trial of John Lord Somers, have endeavour'd "to overturn the Right of Impeachments lodged "in the Houſe of Commons by the ancient Con-"ſtitution of this Kingdom, for the Safety and "Protection of the Commons againſt the Power "of Great Men; and have made an Invaſion up-"on the Liberties of the Subject, by laying a "Foundation of Impunity for the greateſt Offen-"ders. That all the ill Conſequences which may "at this Time attend the Delay of the Supplies "given by the Commons for the preſerving the "pub-

1701. "publick Peace, and maintaining the Balance of "Europe, by ſupporting our Allies againſt the "Power of France, are to be imputed to thoſe, "who, to procure an Indemnity for their own "enormous Crimes, have uſed their utmoſt En-"deavours to make a Breach between the Two "Houſes.

The Lords the ſame Day ſent this Anſwer to that Meſſage.

Anſwer of the Lords.

The Lords do acquaint the Commons, That they might have known by the Records of the Houſe of Lords, that the Lords had proceeded to the Trial of the Lord Somers on Tueſday laſt, being the Day appointed; and the Commons not appearing to maintain their Articles againſt the ſaid Lord, the Lords had by Judgment of their Houſe, acquitted him of the Articles of Impeachment againſt him exhibited by the Houſe of Commons, and all things therein contained, and had diſmiſſed the ſaid Impeachment.

And the Lords had appointed Monday next for the Trial of the Earl of Orford, on which Day they would proceed on the ſaid Trial.

The Commons ſtill preſſing for a Committee of both Houſes, which their Lordſhips could never conſent to for the Reaſons already given, their Lordſhips could infer nothing from their perſiſting in this Demand, than that they never deſigned to bring any of their Impeachments to a Trial.

As to the Lord Haverſham, his Anſwer was now before the Houſe of Commons, and the Lords reſolved to do Juſtice in that Matter.

The ſame Day the Commons had a Copy given them of the Lord Haverſham's Anſwer to the Charge againſt him; which being extraordinary, deſerves to be inſerted in this place.

Anſwer of the Lord Haverſham to a Complaint of the Commons.

"The ſaid Lord Haverſham, ſaving to himſelf "all Advantages of Exception to the ſaid Charge, "and of not being prejudiced by any want of "Form in this Anſwer; and alſo ſaving to him-"ſelf all Rights and Privileges belonging to him as "one of the Peers of this Realm; for Anſwer to "the ſaid Charge, ſaith, That on the Sixth Day "of June, 1701, the Commons, by a Meſſage "ſent to the Lords, deſired a Conference upon "their Meſſage to the Commons of the Fourth of "June: In which Conference, they propoſed to "the Lords, That a Committee of both Houſes "might be nominated, to conſider of the moſt "proper Ways and Methods of Proceeding in "the Impeachments of the Lords, according to "the Uſage of Parliaments. That on the 10th "of June, the Lords deſired another Conference "with the Commons, in which they delivered "them their Reaſons why they could not agree "to the appointing of ſuch a Committee; viz. "Firſt, That they could not find that ever ſuch "a Committee was appointed on Occaſion of "Impeachments for Miſdemeanors, and their "Obligation to be curious in admitting any thing "new relating to Judicature. Secondly, That al-"though a Committee of this Nature was agreed "to, upon the Impeachments of the Earl of "Danby, and the Five Popiſh Lords for High-"Treaſon; yet the Succeſs in that Inſtance was "not ſuch as ſhould encourage the purſuing of "the ſame Method, though in the like Caſe; "and that, after ſo much Time ſpent in the "Committee, the Diſputes were ſo far from being "there adjuſted, that they occaſion'd the abrupt "Concluſion of a Seſſion of Parliament. Thirdly, "That the Methods of Proceedings for Miſde-"meanors are ſo well ſettled by the Uſage of "Parliament, that no Difficulties were likely to "happen, nor none had been ſtated to them; "and that all the Preliminaries in the Caſe of 1701. "Stephen Goudett, and others (which was the "laſt Inſtance of Impeachments for Miſdemea-"nors) were eaſily ſettled and agreed to, with-"out any ſuch Committee. Fourthly, That the "Propoſal of the Commons came ſo very late, "that no other Fruit could be expected of ſuch "a Committee, but the preventing of the Tri-"als during this Seſſion. Whereupon the Com-"mons on the 12th of June, deſired of the Lords "a Free Conference, on the Subject Matter of "the laſt Conference. That the Lords, on the "12th of June came to Two Reſolutions in rela-"tion to the Lords impeached. Firſt, That no "Lord of Parliament, impeached of High Crimes "and Miſdemeanors, and coming to his Trial, ſhall, "upon his Trial, be without the Bar. Secondly, "That no Lord of Parliament, impeached for High "Crimes and Miſdemeanors, can be precluded from "voting on any Occaſion, except in his own Trial. "And by Meſſengers of their own, the Lords "acquainted the Commons with the ſaid two "Reſolutions; and alſo, that they agreed to a "Free Conference with the Commons, and ap-"pointed the next Day. That upon the 30th of "June Mr. Harcourt, one of the Managers, be-"gan the Free Conference on the part of the "Commons, and argued upon the Four Rea-"ſons given by the Lords, why they could not "agree to the appointing a Committee of both "Houſes; and principally relied upon the In-"ſtance in the Caſe of the Popiſh Lords, and "inſiſted upon the Delay that the not agreeing "to the Nomination of ſuch a Committee would "neceſſarily occaſion, whereby the Lords Trials, "and the Juſtice due to the Nation, would be "retarded. And departing from the Subject "Matter of the ſaid Conference (which was, "Whether it were requiſite to appoint, or not "appoint ſuch a Committee) the ſaid Manager "diſcourſed upon the latter of the Reſolutions "of the Lords, communicated to the Commons, "and ſaid, That he wiſhed the Lords had ſent down "their Reaſons, as well as their Reſolutions; "which Words ſeemed to the ſaid Lord Haver-"ſham, to carry therein an Implication, as if the "ſaid Reſolution could have no Reaſon to juſtify "it. That Sir Bartholomew Shower, another Ma-"nager for the Commons, obſerved the ſame "Method of Diſcourſe; and having argued on "the Lords Reaſons, departed from the Subject "Matter of the Free Conference, and inveighing "againſt the Manner of the Lords Judicature, "aſſerted by their Reſolutions, ſaid, That it was "abhorrent to Juſtice. Which Expreſſions being "foreign (as the ſaid Lord Haverſham apprehen-"ded) to the Subject Matter of the ſaid Free "Conference, which was, Whether ſuch Com-"mittee of both Houſes ſhould be appointed or "not; the ſaid Lord being appointed by the "Lords for one of the Managers of the ſaid Free "Conference on their Behalf, in Vindication of "the Honour and Juſtice of the Houſe of Peers, "and of their Judicature and Reſolutions, in "Anſwer to what had been ſaid by the Managers "for the Commons, he ſpoke to the Effect fol-"lowing:

Gentlemen, I ſhall begin what I have to ſay, as that worthy Member who opened this Conference, That there is nothing the Lords more deſire, than to keep a good Correſpondence, which is ſo neceſſary to the Safety of the Nation, and the Diſpatch of publick Buſineſs; and nothing they have more carefully avoided, than what might create a Miſunderſtanding between the Two Houſes: A greater Inſtance of which could not be given, than the Meſſages my Lords return'd to ſome the Commons had ſent them up; in which they took care to expreſs themſelves ſo cautiouſly, that no

Heat

1701. Heat might ariſe from any Expreſſions of theirs. And as to what the worthy Members mentioned, in relation to delay, the repeated Remembrances ſent the Commons, with relation to the ſending up the Articles againſt the impeached Lords, are a ſufficient Inſtance how deſirous they are that theſe Matters ſhould proceed. And the Lords have this Satisfaction, that it is not on their part that the Trials are not in a greater Forwardneſs; they cannot but look upon it as a great Hardſhip, that they ſhould lie under long Delays on Impeachments. Perſons may be incapable; Facts may be forgotten; Evidences may be laid out of the Way; Witneſſes may die, and many other like Accidents may happen. The Inſtance the worthy Members give of the Popiſh Lords, as it is a Crime of another Nature, and not fully to the Point, ſo it ſeems to make againſt what it was brought for. For the worthy Members ſay, there was but One of the Lords brought to Juſtice, though Four more (as I take it) were accuſed. And can any Man believe, that the Commons have a mind to bring only One of theſe Lords to Trial? It is inconſiſtent with the Opinion that every Body muſt have of their Juſtice. And as to the Point of Judicature, it were very hard upon the Lords, that no Perſon ſhould be brought to Trial, till the Judicature of the Houſe be ſo firſt. The Judicature of the Lords is their Peculiar, and hath in former Ages been ſacred with the Commons themſelves. And this Houſe, perhaps, hath as much Reaſon to be jealous and careful of it, as any other Houſe ever had; eſpecially when one ſingle Precedent is ſo urged and inſiſted upon. One Thing there is which a worthy Member mentioned, though I cannot ſpeak to it at large, becauſe I think my ſelf bound up by the Reſolutions of the Houſe; yet it muſt have ſome Anſwer; That is, as to the Lords voting in their own Caſe; it requires an Anſwer, though I cannot enter into the Debate of it. The Commons themſelves have made this Precedent; for in theſe Impeachments they have allowed Men, equally concerned in the ſame Facts, to vote in their own Houſe; and we have not made the Diſtinction in ours, that ſome ſhould vote, and ſome not. The Lords have ſo high an Opinion of the Houſe of Commons, that they believe Juſtice ſhall never be made uſe of as a Mask for any Deſign. And therefore give me Leave to ſay, though I am not to argue it, 'tis to me a plain Demonſtration, that the Commons think thoſe Lords innocent; and I think the Propoſition is undeniable, for when there are ſeveral Lords in the ſame Circumſtances, in the ſame Facts; there is no Diſtinction; and the Commons leave ſome of theſe Men at the Head of Affairs, near the King's Perſon, to do any Miſchief, if they were inclined to it; it looks as if they thought them all innocent. This was a Thing I was in Hopes I ſhould never have heard aſſerted, when the Beginning of it was from the Houſe of Commons.

"The ſaid Lord being here interrupted, he "deſired to be heard out, and that his Words "might be taken down in Writing. But the "Managers for the Commons broke up, and de"parted, refuſing to hear any Explanation. Now "the ſaid Lord, as to any implicit Charge of a "Deſign to reflect on, or diſhonour the Houſe "of Commons, denies any ſuch Deſign or In"tention; having, for many Years, had the Ho"nour to ſit in the Houſe of Commons, and "having ever had an honourable and reſpectful "Senſe thereof: But the ſaid Lord was led to "expreſs himſelf in the manner aforeſaid, for "the Reaſons aforeſaid, and takes himſelf to be "juſtified therein, by the Facts and Reaſons fol"lowing.

"That the Nature of that Conference was, "That it ſhould be Free; the Occaſion of it, "Becauſe either Houſe apprehended the other "to be in an Error; and the End of it, That "each ſide might urge ſuch Facts as are true, "and ſuch Reaſons as are forcible to convince. 1701. "That one Article of the Impeachment againſt "John Lord Somers, was, That the Treaty of "Partition of 1699. was ratified under the "Great Seal, which then was in the Cuſtody "of the ſame Lord, then Lord Chancellor of "England; That the Commons on the Firſt of "April, 1701. Reſolved, That the Earl of "Portland by negotiating and concluding the "Treaty of Partition, was guilty of a High "Crime and Miſdemeanor; and purſuant there"to, lodged an Impeachment againſt him "in the Houſe of Peers; which Vote and Im"peachment could not have reference to any "Treaty, other than the Treaty of Partition "of 1699. the Treaty of 1698. not being be"fore the Houſe of Commons, till after the "Time of that Vote and Impeachment; and "yet the Earl of Jerſey, who then was Secre"tary of State, and a Privy Counſellor, and "actually ſign'd the ſaid Treaty of 1699. as a "Plenipotentiary with the Lord Portland, ſtands "unimpeached, and continues at the Head of "Affairs, being Lord Chamberlain, near his "Majeſty's Perſon, and in his Preſence and "Councils (without Complaint): That the "Earl of Orford, and the Lords Somers and Ha"lifax, are ſeverally impeached for adviſing "the Treaty of Partition of 1698; and yet "Mr. Secretary Vernon, who then was Secretary "of State, and a Privy Counſellor, and acted "in the promoting of the Treaty of Partition "of 1698. ſtands unimpeached, and ſtill conti"nues one of the Principal Secretaries of State; "and Sir Joſeph Williamſon, who then was a "Privy Counſellor, and tranſacted and ſign'd "the Treaty of Partition of 1698. as a Pleni"potentiary, ſtands unimpeached. That the "Lord Halifax is impeached, for that he being "a Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, aſſented to "the paſſing of divers Grants from the Crown "to ſeveral Perſons, of Lands in Ireland; and "yet Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Stephen Fox, and "Mr. Pelham, who being ſeverally Lords Com"miſſioners of the Treaſury, did ſeverally aſ"ſent to the paſſing of divers like Grants from "his Majeſty, of Lands in Ireland, ſtand unim"peached. That in the Impeachments againſt "the Earl of Orford and Lord Somers, one of "the Articles againſt them, is, For procuring a "Commiſſion to Captain William Kidd, and "likewiſe a Grant under the Great Seal, of the "Ships and Goods of certain Perſons therein "named, to certain Perſons in Truſt for them; "and yet other Lords equally concerned in pro"curing the ſaid Commiſſion and Grant, ſtand "unimpeached. That the ſaid Mr. Secretary "Vernon, Sir Edward Seymour, Sir Stephen Fox, "and Mr. Pelham, notwithſtanding their being "Parties in the ſame Facts, charged in the ſaid "reſpective Impeachments, have been permit"ted to ſit and vote in the Houſe of Com"mons, touching the Impeachments and the "Matters thereof. That theſe Facts being true "and publickly known, the Conſequences re"ſulting therefrom (as the ſaid Lord Haverſham "apprehended) are undeniable, viz. That the "doing of the ſame thing, by Two Perſons in "equal Circumſtances, cannot be a Crime in "one, and not in another. That the Commons "had no Reaſon to inſiſt, That the Lords "ſhould not permit that in their Members, "which the Commons had firſt permitted, and "continued to permit, and ſo begun the firſt "Precedent in their own Members. That it "muſt be thought, that the impeached Lords "(notwithſtanding the Facts alledged in the 1701. " Impeachment) are innocent of Danger to the " King, when the Lord Jerſey and Mr. Secretary Vernon, who were reſpectively concerned in the Partition Treaties, are permitted, without Complaint, to be at the Head of " Affairs, and in the King's Preſence, and of " his Council, as not dangerous; That the " Word Innocent, uſed in the Words ſpoken by " the ſaid Lord Haverſham, can extend no farther " than to ſuch Matters as were done by the impeached Lords, of the ſame Nature with what " was done by thoſe unimpeached. All which " Facts being true, and the Conſequences obvious, the ſaid Lord being ready to prove the " ſame; he inſiſts, that the Words ſpoken by " him at the ſaid Free Conference, were not " ſcandalous or reproachful, nor falſe, or reflecting on the Honour or Juſtice of the Houſe " of Commons; but were ſpoken upon a juſt " Occaſion, given in Anſwer to ſeveral Expreſſions that fell from the Managers for the Commons, remote, as he conceives, from the Matter in Queſtion, and reflecting on the Honour " and Juſtice of the Houſe of Peers; and in " Maintenance and Defence of the Lords Reſolution and Judicature, and conformable to the " Duty he owes to the ſaid Houſe. And the " ſaid Lord humbly demands the Judgment of " this Honourable Houſe therein. And the ſaid " Lord Haverſham denies, that he ſpoke the " Words ſpecified in the ſaid Charge, in ſuch " Manner and Form, as the ſame are therein ſet " down. And having thus given a true Account " of this Matter, and it being true and indiſputable, that ſome Lords in this Houſe, equally " concerned in Facts, for which other Lords are " impeached by the Houſe of Commons, are ſtill " near the King's Perſon, in the greateſt Places " of Truſt and Honour, and unimpeached; and " alſo, That ſeveral Members of the Houſe of " Commons, equally concerned in the ſame " Facts, for which ſome of the Lords are impeached, do however remain unimpeached; " The ſaid Lord thinks, ſuch a Truth could never have been more properly ſpoken, in the " Maintenance and Defence of your Lordſhips " Judicature and Reſolutions; and inſiſteth, That " what he ſaid at the Free Conference, was not " any ſcandalous Reproach, or falſe Expreſſion, " or any ways tending to make a Breach in the " good Correſpondence between the Lords and " Commons, or to the Interrupting the publick " Juſtice of the Nation, by delaying the Proceedings on the Impeachments, as in the ſaid " Charge alledged; but agreeable to Truth, in " Diſcharge of his Duty, and in the Defence of " the undoubted Right and Judicature of this " Houſe.

"Impeach-

Haverſham.

Conteſt betwixt the Two Houſes.

The Commons on Friday 20, after the ſending and receiving the forement,'d Meſſages, Ordered, That no Member ſhould preſume to appear on Monday next at the pretended Trial of the Earl of Orford, upon pain of incurring the utmoſt Diſpleaſure of the Houſe; and then adjourn'd to Tueſday Morning. But the Lords continued ſitting, and on the 21ſt Reſolved, That unleſs the Commons Charge againſt the Lord Haverſham, were preſented by them with effect before the End of that Seſſion, the Lords would declare and adjudge him wholly innocent of the Charge.

On Monday, June 23, It was Reſolved by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, That the Reſolutions of the Houſe of Commons, in their Votes of the 20th Inſtant, contained moſt unjuſt Reflections on the Honour and Juſtice of the Houſe of Peers, and were contrived to cover their affected and unreaſonable Delays in proſecuting the impeached Lords: 1701. And did manifeſtly tend to the Deſtruction of the Judicature of the Lords; to the rendering Trials and Impeachments impracticable for the future, and to the ſubverting the Conſtitution of the Engliſh Government; and therefore, whatever ill Conſequences might ariſe from the ſo long deferring the Supplies of this Year's Service, were to be attributed to the fatal Counſel of the putting off the Meeting of a Parliament ſo long, and to the unneceſſary Delays of the Houſe of Commons.

Trial of the Earl of Orford.

Then the Lords adjourn'd to Weſtminſter-Hall, and after two Proclamations made for Silence and Proſecution, the Articles of Impeachment againſt Edward Earl of Orford, were read, and alſo his Lordſhip's Anſwer to the ſaid Articles; and after taking the ſame Methods as in the Trial of the Lord Somers, his Lordſhip, by unanimous Votes, was acquitted of the Articles, and the Impeachment was diſmiſſed.

His Lordſhip honourably acquitted.

On Tueſday, June 24, being the laſt Day of the Seſſion of this Parliament, this Order was made by the Lords.

Order of the Lords.

" The Houſe of Commons not having preſented " their Charge which they brought up againſt " John Lord Haverſham, for Words ſpoken by " him at a free Conference the 13th Inſtant, the " ſaid Charge is hereby diſmiſſed. The Earl of " Portland being impeached by the Houſe of " Commons of High Crimes and Miſdemeanors, " the 1ſt Day of April laſt, the Impeachment is " hereby diſmiſſed, there being no Articles exhibited againſt him. The Houſe of Commons " having impeached Charles Lord Halifax of High " Crimes and Miſdemeanors on the 15th Day of " April laſt, and on the 14th Day of this Inſtant " June exhibited Articles againſt him, to which " he having anſwered, and no further Proſecution " thereupon, the ſaid Impeachment and Articles " are hereby diſmiſſed. At the ſame Time their " Lordſhips diſmiſſed an old Impeachment againſt " the Duke of Leeds.

The Affair of the impeached Lords had ſo much divided both Houſes, that the Correſpondence was almoſt broken off or interrupted with continual Diſagreements. Hence the Commons having paſs'd a Bill for appointing Commiſſioners to Take, State, and Examine the Publick Accounts, the Lords made ſome Amendments to it, which the Commons would by no means allow; and drew up theſe Reaſons for their Diſagreement, to be offered to the Lords at a Conference.

Bill for ſtating the Publick Accounts.

" The Commons do diſagree to the firſt Amendment made by the Lords, becauſe it is " notorious, That many Millions of Money have " been given to his Majeſty by the Commons, " for the Service of the Publick, which remain " yet unaccounted for, to the great Diſſatisfaction " of the good People of England, who cheerfully " contributed to thoſe Supplies. And their Lordſhips firſt Amendment prevents any Account " being taken of thoſe Monies by the Commiſſioners appointed by the Commons for that purpoſe.

Reaſons of the Commons

" The Commons do diſagree to the ſecond Amendment made by the Lords, becauſe John " Parkhurſt and John Paſcall, Eſquires, have for " ſeveral Years been Commiſſioners of the Prizes " taken during the late War, and are accountable for great Sums of Money ariſing thereby, " which ought to be applied to the Uſe of the " Publick. That the ſaid John Parkhurſt and " John Paſcall were frequently preſſed to Account for the ſame by the late Commiſſioners " appointed by Act of Parliament; but by many

" Arti-

1701. "Artifices and Evaſions delayed and avoided "giving any ſuch Account as was required by the "ſaid Commiſſioners. That the Clauſe to which "their Lordſhips have diſagreed by their ſecond "Amendment, requires them to account before "the 1ſt of September next, but by their Lordſhips "Amendment they are exempted from giving any ſuch Account, which is highly unreaſonable.

"The Commons do diſagree to the Third Amendment, becauſe their Lordſhips have in a "Clauſe directed the Commons to allow and certify a pretended Debt to Colonel Baldwin Layton; "whereas the Diſpoſition as well as Granting of "Money by Act of Parliament, hath ever been in "the Houſe of Commons; and this Amendment "relating to the Diſpoſal of Money, does intrench "upon that Right.

"The Commons do diſagree to the Fourth "Amendment; becauſe it is notorious, That "Edward Whitaker, mentioned in the Rider left "out by their Lordſhips, hath by Colour of his "Impeachment, as Solicitor to the Admiralty, received the Sum of Five and twenty "thouſand Pounds and upwards of Publick Monies, without producing any juſt or reaſonable Vouchers for the Expence thereof; and "therefore ought to be accountable for the "ſame.

"And that by reaſon of their Lordſhips diſagreeing to the ſeveral Parts of this Bill, the "Supplies provided by the Commons for paying "the Arrears of the Army, muſt of neceſſity be "ineffectual till another Seſſion of Parliament.

To interrupt theſe fatal Diſputes between the Two Houſes, it was the greateſt Wiſdom of his Majeſty firſt to take no notice of them, and then to put a more ſpeedy End to this Seſſion; and therefore on the ſaid Tueſday, June 24. the King came to the Houſe of Peers, and ſent for the Commons to attend him; when Mr. Speaker upon preſenting the Money-Bills, deliver'd himſelf to his Majeſty in this Speech.

SIR,

Speaker's Speech to the King. 'TIS with great Joy and Satisfaction that I attend Your Majeſty at this Time, ſince Your Commons have comply'd with all Your Majeſty was pleaſed to deſire at their Meeting. They have paſſed the Bill of Succeſſion, which has ſettled the Crown in a Proteſtant Line, and continued the Liberty of England, which Your Majeſty hath reſtored and preſerved. They have paſſed a Bill for taking away thoſe Privileges which might have proved burthenſome and oppreſſive to Your Subjects. They have given Your Majeſty thoſe Supplies which are more than ever were given in a Time of Peace, to enable Your Majeſty, when You are Abroad, to ſupport Your Allies, procure either a laſting Peace, or to preſerve the Liberties of Europe by a neceſſary War.

Then his Majeſty gave the Royal Aſſent to, 1. Acts paſſed. An Act for granting to his Majeſty an Aid for defraying the Expence of his Navy, Guards, and Garriſons for One Year, and for other neceſſary Occaſions. 2. An Act for granting to his Majeſty ſeveral Duties upon Low-Wines, or Spirits of the firſt Extraction; and continuing ſeveral Additional Duties upon Coffee, Tea, Chocolate, Spices and Pictures; and certain Impoſitions upon Hawkers, Pedlars and Petty-Chapmen; and the Duty of Fifteen Pounds per Cent. upon Muſlins; and for improving the Duties upon Japanned and Lacquered Goods, and for continuing the Coinage Duty for the ſeveral Terms and Purpoſes therein mentioned. 3. An Act for appropriating Three thouſand ſeven hundred Pounds Weekly, out of certain Branches of Exciſe, for publick Uſes, and for making a Proviſion for the Service of his Majeſty's Houſhold and Family, and other his neceſſary Occaſions. 4. An Act to enable his Majeſty to make Leaſes and Copies of Offices, Lands and Hereditaments, parcel of his Dutchy of Cornwall, or annexed to the ſame, and for Confirmation of Leaſes already made. 5. An Act to enable Sir Thomas Stanley, Baronet, to charge certain Mannors and Lands in the County of Lancaſter, with Three thouſand Pounds, for Payment of his Siſters Portions, and his Debts. 6. An Act for Sale of the Eſtate of James Deane, and for ſecuring the Monies raiſed thereby for the Benefit of himſelf and Family, according to the Settlement thereof. 7. An Act for Naturalizing Peter Bagwel, Daniel Senault, and others. 8. An Act for Naturalizing Gaſper Gordoſo, Harman Van't Weede, and others. 9. An Act to enable Richard Bigg to charge part of his Eſtate in the Counties of Hertford and Bedford, with the Payment of his Debts. And afterwards made this Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech. "THE Seſſion being now come to a Concluſion, I muſt return you my hearty Thanks "for the great Zeal you have expreſſed for the "publick Service, and your ready Compliance "with thoſe Things which I recommended to "you at the Opening of this Parliament. And "I muſt thank you, Gentlemen of the Houſe of "Commons in particular, both for your Diſpatch "of thoſe neceſſary Supplies which you "have granted for the publick Occaſions, and "for the Encouragements you have given me to "enter into Alliances for the Preſervation of the "Liberty of Europe, and the Support of the Confederacy; "in which, as it ſhall be my Care, "not to put the Nation to any unneceſſary Expence, "ſo I make no doubt, that whatſoever "ſhall be done during your Receſs, for the Advantage "of the Common Cauſe in this Matter, "will have your Approbation at our Meeting "again in the Winter.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I ſhall conclude with recommending to you "all, the Diſcharge of your Duties in your reſpective "Counties; that the Peace of the Kingdom "may be ſecured by your Vigilance and "Care in your ſeveral Stations.

Then the Lord Keeper (by his Majeſty's Command) prorogued the Parliament until Thurſday the Seventh Day of Auguſt next.

Thus ended this memorable Seſſion (a).

On March 27. His Majeſty had appointed Honours and Preferments. Thomas Earl of Pembroke, Lord Preſident of the Council, to be Firſt Lord Commiſſioner of the (a) A late Writer gives his Opinion thus: "A Party diſaffected to the King, did all that was poſſible to prevent "a War, and by uſing the Church's Name, thruſt themſelves "into the Miniſtry. So far did theſe ill Inſtruments go, "that when the Elector of Bavaria, on the King of Spain's "Death, ſent over an Envoy to King William, on purpoſe "to promiſe, he would keep Flanders till the War was declar'd, "if the Court of England could then get the Parliament "to declare it; that they fell upon thoſe who were "of that Opinion, and by their Piques and Squabbles hinder'd "the King's taking quick and vigorous Meaſures; "forcing him upon a Neceſſity to diſſolve the Parliament, "that was then ſitting; and before another could meet, "Flanders and Italy were loſt, and the War they would "have prevented, made abſolutely neceſſary.

"By the King A Proclamation, for diſſolving this preſent "Parliament, ſtanding prorogued to Thurſday 13th of November; "and for the calling a New Parliament, to meet on "Tueſday the 30th of December next." Given at Hampton-Court the 11th of November, 1701.

Admiralty,

1701. Admiralty in the Room of John Earl of Bridgwater, who died on March 19. much lamented for a juſt and good Man, a Faithful Friend, and a Wiſe Counſellor. On the ſame Day Henry Boyle, Eſq; Chancellor and Under-Treaſurer of his Majeſty's Exchequer, was ſworn of the Privy Council; and Thomas Pelham, Eſq; was made one of the Lords Commiſſioners of the Treaſury. On April 2. Henry Howard Duke of Norfolk died a ſudden Death: He had been bred a Roman Catholick, but leaving the Church of Rome about the Time of the Popiſh Plot, he ever ſince continued ſtedfaſt to the Church of England, and was a zealous Promoter of the Revolution. His Place of Earl-Marſhal was conferr'd upon the Earl of Carliſle, during the Minority of his Nephew my Lord Thomas Howard's Eldeſt Son, who ſucceeded him in his Honour and in his Eſtate, if at the Age of Eighteen he ſhould conform to the Rites of the Church of England. Within the ſame Month died Francis Lord Carrington, Robert Earl of Lindſey, and Theophilus Earl of Huntingdon; the latter a great Enemy to the Government, and for that Reaſon to his own Son. On April 3. His Majeſty conferred the Dignity of a Baronet of this Kingdom upon Samuel Moyer of Pitſey-Hall, in the County of Eſſex, Eſq; On April 26. the King appointed Sir George Rook to be Admiral and Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Fleet this Summer, which lay at Spithead; and on May 3. was joined by Admiral Allemond and Admiral Callemburg, with 5 Dutch Men of War. On May 23. Captain William Kidd, and three other Pirates lately condemned at the Admiralty-Seſſions at the Old-Baily, were executed at Execution-Dock. At the beginning of this Year, the Count de Wratiſlaw came Envoy Extraordinary from the Emperor, and the Baron de Spanheim Envoy Extraordinary from the King of Pruſſia; and Hadgi Muſtapha Aga Envoy from the Baſhaw and Government of Tripoli. On June 1. His Majeſty, upon a Senſe of his own declining Health, was pleaſed to declare John Earl of Marlborough to be General of the Foot, and Commander in Chief of his Majeſty's Forces in Holland. On June 18. His Electoral Highneſs of Hanover, and the Duke of Queensbury, were elected Knights of the Garter, in a Chapter held at Kenſington. On June 19. Robert Earl of Lindſey Lord Great Chamberlain of England, and Charles Earl of Carliſle Earl-Marſhal of England during the Minority of the Duke of Norfolk, were ſworn of the Privy Council.

Other Honours and great Offices. Within Four Days after the Parliament roſe, the King declared in Council, That the Publick Affairs requiring his going over into Holland for a ſhort Time, he had appointed the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, the Lord Keeper, the Earl of Pembroke, the Duke of Devonſhire, the Duke of Somerſet, the Earl of Jerſey, and the Lord Godolphin, to be Lords Juſtices of England, for the Adminiſtration of the Government during his Majeſty's Abſence. At the ſame Time the Duke of Somerſet was ſworn of the Privy Council. At the ſame Time his Majeſty was pleaſed to appoint the Earl of Marlborough to be his Ambaſſador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary for the Negotiations at the Hague; and to conſtitute Edward Southwell, Chriſtopher Muſgrave, and James Vernon, Jun. Eſq; Commiſſioners for executing the Office of Keeper of his Majeſty's Privy Seal, vacant by the Death of the Right Honourable Ford late Earl of Tankervile, who died on June 25. being ſucceeded in the Barony Werke by his Brother the Honourable Ralph Gray, Governor of Barbadoes. In the ſame Evening his Majeſty appointed Sir Thomas Trevor, Kt. his Attorney General, to be Lord Chief Juſtice of the Common Pleas, in the Place of Sir George Treby, deceas'd; and Edward Northey of the Middle-Temple, Eſq; to be Attorney General. And when on the ſame Day the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen had waited on his Majeſty to take Leave of Him, his Majeſty was graciouſly pleaſed to accept that Demonſtration of their Loyalty and Affection, and conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood upon Peter Floyer, Eſq; Alderman, and one of the Sheriffs elect for the Year enſuing. On June the 28th. His Majeſty conferr'd the like Honour of Knighthood upon the Sieur Benjamin Pontle of Amſterdam, in Conſideration of his good Services.

1701. The King goes to Holland. On Monday Morning, June 30. the King went from Hampton Court, and lay that Night at Canterbury, and the next Day about Noon embark'd at Margate in a Yatcht, with a Convoy under Command of Rear-Admiral Munden, on whom his Majeſty conferr'd the Honour of Knighthood on Board the Yatcht in Margate Road. He arriv'd in the Maeſe on Thurſday Morning, and went that Night to the Hague. The next Day he receiv'd the Compliments of the Ambaſſadors, and other Foreign Miniſters; as alſo of the Courts of Juſtice, and of the Council of Brabant; and in the Afternoon he went to the Aſſembly of the States General, to whom he addreſs'd himſelf in this Manner.

His Speech to the States General.

High and Mighty Lords,

"I Always come into this Country with Joy, "but more eſpecially in this dangerous Con-"juncture of Affairs, becauſe I foreſee my Pre-"ſence will be neceſſary for the Service of the "State. I was in hopes, and deſir'd to have "paſs'd the reſt of my Days in Repoſe and "Peace; and after the End of my Days, to have "left this State in a quiet and flouriſhing Con-"dition. To which End I have always labour'd, "particularly after the Concluſion of the laſt "Peace: But ſince there have happen'd ſuch "great Alterations in the Affairs of Europe, that "we know not what will be the Diſpoſal of Di-"vine Providence concerning them: Neverthe-"leſs, I can ſincerely aſſure your High Puiſſances, "that whether Affairs may be accommodated "without coming to further Embroilments, or "whether we muſt be obliged to take Arms "again, I perſiſt in the ſame Affection, and the "ſame Zeal which I ever had for the Service and "Proſperity of theſe Provinces; and will contri-"bute as far as lies in my Power, whatever may "tend to advance the Welfare of this State, the "Maintenance of their Liberties and Religion, "and their particular Security, as well as that "of Europe. I am overjoyed to find all things "ſtill in a quiet Condition; which, next to the "Bleſſing of the Almighty, muſt be aſcribed to "the ſpeedy and unanimous Reſolution of your "High Puiſſances, to put your ſelves in a Poſture "of Defence. I am perſwaded, that the reſpe-"ctive Confederates will contribute ſtrenuouſly "towards it; which I look upon as the only "Means to prevent a War; or, in Caſe of a "Rupture, to defend the State from the Danger "that threatens it. 'Tis a great Satisfaction to "me, that I can aſſure your High Puiſſances, "not only of my Affection, but of the whole "Engliſh Nation; and that they are ready to "aſſiſt this State, and ſtrongly to contribute to-"wards their Defence, and to whatever may "tend to the common Security. And this is "what your High Puiſſances may be fully con-"vinced of. I hope the Great God will bleſs "the Means which you have made uſe of, either "by way of Negotiation, or by Force of Arms, "in caſe of a Rupture, to attain the End pro-

 poſed;

1701.

“poſed; that is to ſay, reaſonable Security for the Common Cauſe, and particularly the Preſervation of this State in their Liberties and Religion. There is nothing which I wiſh with more Fervency; and I will contribute towards it whatever lies in my Power. This is what I thought neceſſary to ſay at preſent; only that I deſire the Continuance of your High Puiſſances Affection and Amity.

To this their High and Mightineſſes return'd an Anſwer to this Effect.

Anſwer of the States.

“That they thank'd his Majeſty with all their Hearts, for the Honour he had done them to come again into their Aſſembly; and at the ſame time teſtified their unexpreſſible Joy to ſee his happy Arrival. That they were ſenſible how much his Majeſty's Preſence was neceſſary among them in ſuch a Thorny Conjuncture, to ſettle Affairs in a good Condition, and ſo to preſerve them, with the Aſſiſtance of God, out of the great Confidence which they all had, from the Higheſt to the Loweſt, in his Majeſty's Prudence and ſurpaſſing Abilities. That they were extremely obliged to his Majeſty, and moſt heartily thanked him for his perſevering in his kind Inclinations for their Repoſe and Tranquility. That they were fully convinced, that ſince the laſt Treaty of Peace, his Majeſty's Care and Application had tended to the Preſervation of the ſaid Peace, and the publick Tranquility. That they were overjoyed that their Conduct, ſince the ſtrange Mutations in General Affairs, had met with his Majeſty's Approbation. And in regard the State was in ſo much Danger, that their Religion and Liberties lay at ſtake, they are reſolved to uſe all poſſible Means for the Preſervation of thoſe ineſtimable Pledges. That they could not omit to thank his Majeſty for his Aſſurances, not only in his own, but in the Name of the Engliſh Nation, in Favour of themſelves and the Common Cauſe; well knowing, how much they might rely upon a People, whoſe Courage and Valour had gained ſo much Reputation in the World. That they were always of Opinion, that their Intereſts were inſeparable from thoſe of England. In the mean time, they moſt ardently beſought the Almighty to bleſs his Majeſty and his Councils, and to grant him long Life, Health and Strength, that he might be able to continue his Cares for the Publick Good, and the Welfare of his own Kingdoms and their State: Aſſuring him of their Perſeverance in that Amity and high Eſteem which they have always had, and ever ſhall be bound to have of his Majeſty ſo long as their State endures.

After this, his Majeſty went to view the Frontier Garriſons; and returning to the Hague, he found that on the 26th Inſtant Monſieur D'Avaux had deliver'd a Letter from the King of France, accompanied with a Memorial of his own, to notify the Recalling of the Ambaſſador. The Letter was this.

To our moſt Dear Great Friends and Allies.

Moſt Dear Great Friends, Allies and Confederates,

Letter of the French King to the States.

WE have thought fit to recall the Count D'Avaux, our Ambaſſador Extraordinary to you, ſeeing the little Fruit thoſe Conferences have produced which you have deſired of us, and which you have ſince often interrupted. We are not the leſs inclined to the eſtabliſhing of the Peace; as he will further declare his Intentions to you before his Departure. Nothing remains for us, but to aſſure you, That it ſtill depends on you to receive Marks of our ancient Friendſhip for your Republick, and of our Deſire to give you Proofs thereof upon all Occaſions: So we pray God, that he may have you, Moſt Dear Great Friends, Allies and Confederates, in his Holy Keeping.

Given at Verſailles the 18th of July, 1701.

Your Good Friend, Ally and Confederate,

LEWIS.

Colbert.

The Memorial which accompanied this Letter, contained in Subſtance:

Memorial of the Count D'Avaux.

“That his Excellency was in hopes, that their Lordſhips would have had that Confidence in his Maſter's Affection, and his Deſires of Peace, that would have diſſipated thoſe vain Fears, which the Advancement of his Grandſon to the Throne of Spain had infuſed into them, and that he ſhould have returned to the King his Maſter, with the Satisfaction of having been employ'd in preventing the new Troubles that threatned Europe. Which Hope was confirm'd, when, by their acknowledging the lawful Rights of the King of Spain, they wrote to congratulate him, and ſeem'd thereby to diſown the Injuſtice of Foreign Pretenſions, whatever they might perſiſt in demanding for themſelves. So that all things ſeemed to be in a fair way towards the ſettling of Peace, when the Propoſals made by your High Puiſſances and the King of England's Envoy, gave Occaſion to judge, that War rather than Peace, would be the Fruit of that ſtrict Union, which the Conformity of Propoſals denoted between that Prince and your High Puiſſances. They proteſted, That their exceſſive Demands were the Effect of a juſt Fear, grounded on the King's Power. But if that Fear, ſo lively expreſs'd in their Letter to the King of Great Britain, during the Sitting of the Parliament, were real, and that they had no other End in repreſenting them, than to prevent them; the means of doing it were in their own Hands: there was no need of making all thoſe Preparations for the greateſt War. That their Lordſhips had deſired the Conferences, and it depended upon them to render them uſeful. But their Lordſhips had again delayed the Concluſion of them, by demanding the Admiſſion of the King of England's Envoy into the Conferences. Which if he oppoſed for ſome time, 'twas out of his ſincere Deſire to remove all Obſtacles, which the Enemies to Peace are continually laying in the way. Nor did his Majeſty believe their Lordſhips would ſo eaſily have inſiſted upon the pretended Satisfaction to be given to the Emperor, confounding the Intereſts of other Princes with their own, and ſet themſelves up for Arbitrators between the Houſes of France and Auſtria; that ſo wiſe a Republick ſhould, in Favour of the Houſe of Auſtria againſt France, reſolve to break theſe Treaties, which they had look'd upon as the Confirmation and Seal of their Sovereignty; that they ſhould engage themſelves, at the Expence of their Provinces, their Countries, and their Wealth, to ſupport Foreign Intereſts, when a little before they had acted quite the contrary, by acknowledging the King of Spain.

“That his Excellency ſhould abuſe his Maſter, ſhould he write to him, that any Succeſs was to be expected from the Conferences. That his Maſter had too diſcerning a Judgment, after the King of Great Britain's Envoy had declared; That his Maſter would never depart from the Intereſt of the Emperor; that he would 1701.

“not

“not enter into any Propoſals of Accommodation, unleſs Satisfaction were given to that Prince: That the Ties between their Lordſhips and the King of England were too ſtrict, and had too well made known their blind Submiſſion to the Sentiments of that Monarch, and no doubt that they had already taken a Reſolution to make the ſame Declaration to the moſt Chriſtian King's Ambaſſador. Indeed, they had done it already before-hand, by declaring, That their Commiſſioners ſhould not continue the Conference, without the Intervention of the Engliſh Envoy: So that if he exclude himſelf, the Conferences were ſuſpended; and therefore it would be to no purpoſe for the moſt Chriſtian King's Ambaſſador, ſent only for the ſake of thoſe Conferences, to continue any longer at the Hague. Where, if he has not the Satisfaction to fulfil his Majeſty's Intentions in eſtabliſhing a durable Peace between him and the United Provinces, yet it will be ſome Conſolation to him, that he had made known his Majeſty's Deſire to contribute whatever depends on him, to prevent a Rupture of the publick Peace. That he has taken Arms in the Defence of his Grandſon only; and that if it had been his Deſign to make new Conqueſts, he might have done it when his Forces, upon the Frontiers of their Republick, afforded him the Means to have made his Advantage of their Weakneſs. At length his Excellency wiſhes, That their Lordſhips, convinced by his Majeſty's Conduct of the Sincerity of his Intentions, would, while it was yet time, take ſuch Reſolutions as might be conformable to their true Intereſts.

To which the States General return'd an Anſwer, which was on the 1ſt of Auguſt, N. S. deliver'd to the Ambaſſador, to this Effect.

Anſwer of the States.

“That they were obliged to the moſt Chriſtian King, for ſending hither the Count D' Avaux as his Ambaſſador Extraordinary: They wiſh'd ſufficient Means might have been found in the Conference to have obtain'd a General Peace, and Reaſonable Security for themſelves, and that he had tarried till that had been done. They were troubled he ſhould be recall'd before thoſe Things were effected; and ſo much the more, that the Cauſe of it ſhould be imputed to their Conduct. That upon his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's ſignifying to them, that he accepted the Will of the late King of Spain inſtead of the Treaty of Partition, they gave him their Reaſons why they could not come to a ſpeedier Reſolution in that Affair: And, as ſoon as their Conſtitution would allow it, they offered to enter into a Conference with any that his Majeſty ſhould think fit to appoint. That they appointed Deputies accordingly to treat with the Count D' Avaux; and in Compliance with his Majeſty, own'd the new King of Spain, that they might remove all Occaſions of Delays, and give a convincing Proof of their Deſire to preſerve the Grand Peace. They cannot apprehend, how they ſhould obſtruct the ſame by the Intervention of the King of Great Britain, who was one of thoſe concerned in the Treaty of Partition; or by the Intervention of any other Potentate, that has an Intereſt in preſerving the General Peace. That they had not thereby owned the Juſtice or Injuſtice of the Pretenſions of a Third Party, nor ſeparated their Intereſts from any who are concerned in the General Peace. That ſince his Majeſty's Miniſters had repreſented to them, that the End of the Treaty of Partition might be as well obtain'd by the Acceptation of the Will, they deſir'd the Count D' Avaux might make Propoſals for the General Peace, and their Particular Security; and he excuſing himſelf, and deſiring Propoſals from them, they had, in Concert with his Majeſty of Great Britain, deliver'd him Propoſals. They cannot comprehend, why the Effect of that Union betwixt them and the ſaid King, ſhould be rather War than Peace, ſince his Majeſty of Great Britain has on all Occaſions given ſufficient Proofs of his Inclinations to Peace. That they were ſtrictly united with him by Alliances many Years ago, for their mutual Security: That he was one of the chiefeſt Parties in the Treaty of Partition; and that they declared before their Propoſals were communicated, they thought his Conſent neceſſary, as well for theſe Reaſons, as for his private Relation to their Republick; and no Objection was then raiſed againſt it. They were ſorry the King of France had returned no Anſwer to their Propoſals; which tho' they had heard to be called Exceſſive, no body had undertaken to prove them ſuch. That the General Peace could not be preſerved, without Satisfaction to the Emperor, whoſe Pretenſions were ſo far own'd by the King of France himſelf in the Treaty of Partition, that it was agreed how the ſame ſhould be ſatisfied: That therefore there was nothing in this Article of their Propoſal that could be called Exceſſive; and what they had demanded for their own Security, was not equal to what they had before the Death of the late King of Spain, or to what they had acquired by the Treaty of Partition. That their Forces were not grounded alone on their own private Sentiments, but on the Opinion of their Allies, who had not ſcrupled to ſend them the Aſſiſtance they were obliged to by their Alliances. That had it been in their Power to rid themſelves out of their Difficulties, without arming, ſeeking new Alliances, and drowning their Country, they would certainly have done it. That the Difficulties raiſed about admitting the Engliſh Envoy, was not from them, but from the Count D' Avaux, and not chargeable upon them, for the Reaſons before-mentioned. That the King of France had Reaſon to think they would inſiſt on Satisfaction to the Emperor, ſeeing that was the firſt of their Propoſals, which the King of France himſelf thought juſt and neceſſary. That they had given no Cauſe to think that they preſumed to ſet up as Umpires betwixt France and Auſtria, or to determine which of the Two laſt Kings of Spain had a Right to alter the Laws of the Succeſſion to that Crown; but deſired his Majeſty to remember, That he himſelf, as well as the King of Great Britain and the States, thought a War would be unavoidable, if upon the Death of the late King of Spain, either he or the Emperor ſhould inſiſt upon the Pretenſions of their Families to the Succeſſion; and therefore they enter'd into the Treaty of Partition. That their Owning the King of Spain could not be judged to be a Step contrary to this, ſince it did not hinder giving reaſonable Satisfaction to the Emperor. And the King of France ought to be convinc'd, that they would do nothing to the Detriment of their Provinces, Commerce or Riches, but what was abſolutely neceſſary to their Preſervation. They had done nothing that could be conſtrued a Breach of the Treaties which confirm'd and ſeal'd their Sovereignty, and did not well apprehend the Meaning of that Aſſertion: Their Provinces were always Free and Sovereign: Their Anceſtors

1701. " ſpent their Lives and Fortunes to aſſert their " Freedom, and they reſolv'd to do the like. " They were ſorry to hear that the Count D'Avaux expected no Succeſs from the Conferences, becauſe of the Engliſh Envoy's declaring " that Satisfaction muſt be given to the Emperor. " They own'd, That the King of Great Britain " and they thought it reaſonable to treat of Satisfaction to that Prince; and that the Emperor " ſhould, in order thereunto, be invited into the " Negotiation. The States did not blindly follow the King of Great Britain's Sentiments, " but had a great Deference for his Advice, becauſe they were perſuaded, He is wholly inclined " to preſerve the Peace, and convinc'd he ſeeks " nothing but the Welfare of their Republick. " That if the Conferences were ſuſpended upon " that Account, they ſhould look upon it as a " great Misfortune: But if the King of France " had thought fit to let them continue, and to " allow Satisfaction to the Emperor, they had " Hopes of a good Concluſion. They had been " obliged, indeed, to arm, but did not begin to " do it, till they ſaw their Barriers in the Spaniſh " Netherlands, that coſt them ſo much Blood and " Treaſure, poſſeſs'd by French Troops, their " own Forces detained, and great Preparations of " War made there. Their Jealouſy was beſides " conſiderably increaſed by the ſtrict Union that " appeared every Day between France and Spain; " though the Treaty of Partition was made for " this, among other Reaſons, to prevent Jealouſies from the Union of too many States. That " they had endeavour'd, by all poſſible Means, " to preſerve Friendſhip, but if they muſt, contrary to their own Inclination, enter into a " War, they have no Cauſe to blame themſelves " for it, and therefore hop'd that God would " protect them.

Return of the Count D'Avaux. Thus all the Pretenſions of the French to give the States a reaſonable Security, went off with the Count D' Avaux; who yet was willing to retire without any open Breach, and therefore took his Leave of the States in very obliging Terms, accepted from them the Preſent of a Gold Chain and Medal, and left his Secretary behind, under a Shew of renewing the Negotiations, when he had made a Report of them to his Maſter. But the States underſtood the artful Receſs of the Ambaſſador; and therefore daily augmented their Army with the Troops arrived from Ireland, and with other Auxiliary Forces, and were indefatigably at work on the Fortifications of their Frontiers; ſo as the People ſeem'd now no more to fear than to love the French. To ſtrengthen the Alliances, his Majeſty ſent the Earl of Galloway to treat with the Elector Palatine, and the Elector of Cologn; the Earl of Macclesfield to the Courts of Hanover and the Duke of Cell; Sir Robert Sutton to Venice, &c.

Inclinations of the People for a new Parliament. In England the People were in an uneaſy Suſpence between Peace and War; and as much between the Continuance of the preſent Parliament, and the Expectance of a new one. Some Addreſſes did inſinuate the Deſire of a Diſſolution: One from the County of York concluded thus; And we humbly beg leave further to aſſure Your Majeſty, That whenever the Diſſolution of this preſent or any other Parliament ſhall happen, either by virtue of the Triennial Bill, or Prerogative Royal, we will from time to time make it our conſtant Endeavour to elect ſuch Perſons as ſhall be in the true Intereſt of Your Majeſty and theſe Kingdoms. One from the High Sheriff, Gentlemen of the Grand Jury, and Juſtices of the Peace for the County of Cumberland, ended to the ſame Effect; We humbly beg leave further to aſſure your Majeſty, That upon all Occaſions of Elections, we will conſtantly endeavour to chuſe ſuch Repreſentatives, as ſhall manifeſt their Affections to Your Perſon, and their Zeal to the Church and State, as by Law eſtabliſhed. And yet another Addreſs from another Set of Men in the very ſame County of Cumberland, was made to run in a direct Oppoſition: while " they crave Leave to " give his Majeſty the Aſſurance of their unanimous and hearty Concurrence with their Repreſentatives in Parliament; who, they do not " doubt, will give his Majeſty ſuch freſh Teſtimonies of their firm Loyalty at the next Attendance on his Majeſty in the approaching Winter, as becomes the Repreſentatives of a moſt " obedient and dutiful People." And indeed ſome Perſons did imagine, that the very Members did inſtruct the People to addreſs for the Continuance of their Power in Parliament: For an Addreſs from Exeter, ſaid to be ſigned at the Aſſizes there by all the Grand Jury, and by their Foreman Sir John Pole, delivered in open Court to Mr. Juſtice Blencoe, concluded thus; We have not Confidence to think we can direct his Majeſty, or his Great Council the Parliament: We acquieſce in every thing they have done, and ſhould be extremely concerned, that any Device ſhould be ſet on foot to divide this Nation in the Reign of the Beſt of Kings, and when we have the Beſt Houſe of Commons, except that which brought his Majeſty to the Throne.

The Truth is, theſe popular Addreſſes for or againſt the Continuance of a Parliament, were a very ill Precedent, and therefore not countenanc'd by the King; who yet was always diſpoſed to take his general Meaſures from the prevailing Inclinations of the People. But to ſolve this Difficulty, another unforeſeen Accident now happen'd, which gave Things quite another Turn, and produced Addreſſes from all Parts, of the moſt unanimous Adherence to his Majeſty, and of an Abhorrence to the laſt Degree of the French King: We mean, the Death of the late King James; who after above Twelve Years Second Exile, and ſeveral unſucceſsful Attempts of Reſtoration, and even many Contempts and Neglects of the French King, was ſo broken with Reſentments and Sorrows, that on Sept. 4. O. S. he fell into a Lethargy at St. Germain's, and was thought to be immediately dead; but he recovered ſome part of his Senſes, and lay in Maze and Confuſion till Saturday, Sept. 6. when he expir'd between Three and Four that Afternoon (a). Upon his Deceaſe, the French King preſently declared the young pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, Scotland, and Ireland. It was ſuppoſed this Matter was concerted between the French King and King James, upon the laſt Indiſpoſition of King William; that in Caſe he died, the other's abſolute Title ſhould be ſet up again, either in his own Perſon, or in his ſurviving Heir. Death of K. James. The French K. declares for the pretended Prince of Wales.

(a) In a late Collection, intitled, Memorials on both Sides, 1711. 8°. is publiſh'd, The Manner of his Sickneſs and Death; his Dying Speech; his Advice to his Son, found among his Papers in his Cabinet after his Death; and the French King's Declaration of eſpouſing the Cauſe and Title of his pretended Son, &c. Said to be taken out of a Circular Letter concerning King James's Death. Printed at Paris, by Order of the Chancellor.

Dipping into Lilly's Collection of Prophecies, &c. publiſh'd 1645. 4°. I could not but obſerve, That the famous Iriſh Prophecy found at the Newry in Ireland, and brought into England by Dean Jones, call'd by the Iriſh, The Baby Prophecy, ended thus: Fugit Talpa, moritur in via, & ſemen Regis erit mendicum in terra aliena in æternum.

Others

1701.

Others believ'd it a Dying Requeſt of the unfortunate King James, which the French Monarch, in his laſt Viſit to him, thought it Humanity to grant. Though many Perſons did infer, That it was no Point of Honour in the French King, but Self-Intereſt and Revenge, to affront King William, and to keep up a Jacobite Party in England, where Diviſions muſt be his only Hopes. Some of the wiſeſt Men look'd upon this Action as a Rant, and a prodigal ſort of Madneſs, rather than the Effect of mature and ſedate Counſels: And therefore it was oppoſed by a Majority of that very Junto whom the King pretended to adviſe with on this Occaſion; and among others, they ſay, by the very Dauphin himſelf; becauſe they ſaw the Neceſſity of a War depending on it, which had not otherwiſe come to any ſpeedy Criſis. King William was a Prince of too much Spirit, to digeſt ſuch an Indignity; and the People of England had ſuch an univerſal Belief of the Spurioufneſs of the Prince of Wales, and ſuch a Deteſtation to have a King impoſed by Lewis the Great, eſpecially at a Time when the Succeſſion was juſt ſettled in a Proteſtant Line, that it ſerv'd only to animate an effectual War againſt France.

King William reſents this Indignity.

The King recalls his Ambaſſador from France.

Accordingly, His Majeſty was no ſooner inform'd of this inſolent Step taken by the Court of France, but he forthwith diſpatch'd a Courier to the King of Sweden (as Guarantee of the Treaty of Ryſwick) to give him an Account of the manifeſt Violation of it. On the ſame Day his Majeſty ſent an Expreſs to my Lord Mancheſter, his Ambaſſador in France, to come directly away, without taking Leave. My Lord having receiv'd his Orders, ſent the following Letter to M. de Torcy, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

Lord Mancheſter's Letter.

My Lord,

THE King my Maſter being informed, That his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty has acknowledged another King of Great Britain, thinks that his Glory and Honour permits him no more to have an Ambaſſador near the King your Maſter; and has ſent me Orders to depart immediately; whereof I do my ſelf the Honour to acquaint you by this Letter; and withal, to aſſure you, That I am, &c.

Hereupon the French King, who was then at Fontainbleau, aſſembled his Council; and after two or three Days this Anſwer was returned.

M. de Torcy's Anſwer.

My Lord,

I Have nothing more to add to what I had the Honour to tell you Eight Days ago of the ſincere Deſire the King has always had, to preſerve with the King your Maſter the Peace confirm'd by the Treaty of Reſwick. I pray you only, as to me in particular, to be perſuaded, That in what Place ſoever you be, you will have none that ſhall be with more Sincerity than I ſhall be all my Life-time,

Your, &c.

My Lord hereupon having obtained his Paſſports, made haſte to leave that intriguing Court:

M. Pouſſin commanded to leave England.

And before 23 Sept. Notice was given by his Majeſty's Command, to Monſieur Pouſſin the French Secretary here, That he ſhould forthwith depart out of England. Before his Departure, one thing happen'd that made a Noiſe of Jealouſies and Fears. Three Gentlemen, Members of the Houſe of Commons, Mr. Anthony Hammond, Mr. John Tredenham, and Dr. Charles Davenant, were found at Supper with him at the Blue Poſts a Night or two before he went off: This gave an Alarm of Secret Correſpondence; and though they excuſed themſelves upon Accident and common Civility, yet the World open'd their Mouths againſt them, and left them the Name of Pouſſineers, as a Blot and Reproach that was not eaſily wiped off.

In the mean Time, the Nation, as well as his Majeſty, began to reſent this Indignity offer'd by the French King: The City of London ſet the good Example in this Addreſs preſented to the Lords Juſtices, containing their Declaration of Abhorrence, in theſe Words:

Addreſs of the City of London.

Great Sir,

"WE are deeply ſenſible how much we are in Duty bound highly to reſent that great Indignity and Affront offered to Your moſt Sacred Majeſty by the French King, in giving the Title of King of England, Scotland, and Ireland, to the pretended Prince of Wales, contrary to Your Majeſty's moſt Juſt and Lawful Title, and to the ſeveral Acts of Parliament for ſetling the Succeſſion to the Crown in the Proteſtant Line.

"By this it is apparent, he deſigns, as much as in him lies, to dethrone Your Majeſty, to extirpate the Proteſtant Religion out of theſe Your Majeſty's Kingdoms, and to invade our Liberties and Properties; for the maintaining whereof, Your Majeſty hath ſignaliz'd Your Zeal, by the often hazarding Your precious Life.

We therefore, Your Majeſty's moſt Loyal Subjects, do ſincerely, unanimouſly, and chearfully, aſſure Your Majeſty, That we will at all Times, and upon all Occaſions, exert the utmoſt of our Abilities, and contribute whatever lies in our Power, for the Preſervation of Your Perſon (whom God long preſerve) and the Defence of Your Juſt Rights, in Oppoſition to all Invaders of Your Crown and Dignity.

The King much pleas'd with this Addreſs.

This Addreſs being tranſmitted to the King in Holland, his Majeſty was very well pleaſed with this Expreſſion of the Loyalty and Affection of the City; and order'd their Excellencies the Lords Juſtices, as by his ſpecial Direction, to acquaint the Lord Mayor and Aldermen with the great Satisfaction he received in it: Which their Excellencies ſignify'd to the Aldermen on October 14. And next Day the Lord Mayor ſummon'd the Common-Council to meet, to communicate to them his Majeſty's moſt Gracious Acceptance of their Addreſs. According to this Precedent, numerous Addreſſes came from all Parts of the Kingdom, with like Expreſſions of Deteſtation of the Perfidiouſneſs of the French King, and Aſſurances of aſſerting and defending his Majeſty's undoubted Right and Title to the Imperial Crown of theſe Kingdoms, againſt the pretended Prince of Wales, and all his Adherents: And ſeveral Corporations expreſs'd themſelves to this Effect: That if Occaſion ſhould require, they would make Choice of ſuch Perſons to repreſent them in Parliament, as they had good Reaſon to believe, would readily go into all ſuch Meaſures as might effectually conduce to the Ends of ſupporting and defending his Majeſty's Perſon and Government, and the Succeſſion in the Proteſtant Line.

General Alliance made by the King.

His Majeſty, when he had perfected the Alliances he was making Abroad, and eſpecially that between England, Holland, and the Empire, which was concluded about the middle of September, began to prepare for his Return; but under that Intention, he was detain'd at the Hague above a Month, very much indiſpoſed, though it was kept very private: For the very News of his Sickneſs would have been a dreadful Obſtruction to the Interests of Europe; and if his Death had happen'd at that Time, it muſt have occaſion'd in England

His Majeſty detain'd by Sickneſs.

and

1701. and other Parts, unſpeakable Confuſion. His Majeſty, however, began to make his Illneſs a Preſage of his not having long to live: And therefore, upon a Diſcourſe concerning the Succeſs and brave Actions of the King of Sweden, in the North, againſt the Poles and Saxons; and of Prince Eugene, in Italy, againſt the French; He fetch'd a ſort of languiſhing Sigh, and ſaid, It was a fine thing to be a young Man. It is moſt certain, his Majeſty from this Time was very ſenſible of his declining State; and he was pleaſed to tell my Lord Portland this Winter in his Garden at Hampton-Court, That He found himſelf ſo weak, that he could not expect to live another Summer: But charged him at the ſame time, to ſay nothing of it till he was dead.

Parliament diſſolv'd.

Soon after his Majeſty's Arrival, the Parliament was prorogued till the 13th of November, and ſoon after diſſolv'd by a Proclamation, importing the Reaſons of it to be, in this extraordinary Juncture, to give the People Opportunity of chuſing ſuch Perſons to repreſent them in Parliament, as they ſhould judge moſt likely to bring to effect their juſt and pious Purpoſes; of ſhewing a Reſentment of the Injuſtice and Indignity offer'd by the late Proceedings of the French King; and of expreſſing an Affection to his Majeſty's Perſon and Government; and of doing all things which can be deſir'd from good Engliſhmen and Proteſtants; and therefore to call a New Parliament on Tueſday the 30th of December next. The Elections went on with unhappy, but not unuſual, Conteſts. The City of London and Borough of Southwark having choſen, by great Majority, very Worthy Perſons to be their Repreſentatives, they deliver'd Papers of Inſtructions to them, that deſerve to be remembred. That from the City to their Members ran thus:

New Parliament called.

Inſtructions to Members elected.

Gentlemen,

"WE earneſtly deſire and charge you our " Repreſentatives, That in the approach- " ing Parliament you heartily purſue the Engage- " ments made to his Majeſty in the Addreſs of " this City, and other Loyal Addreſſes from all " Parts of the Kingdom. To this purpoſe we ex- " pect, That, to the utmoſt of your Power, and " without Loſs of Time, you endeavour to put " his Majeſty into a Condition to maintain his " undoubted Right and Title to the Crown, and " to vindicate his and the Nation's Honour. To " enable him in this critical Juncture, to provide " for the Security of his Kingdoms; to appear at " the Head of the Proteſtant Intereſt; to make " good his Alliances, and in Conjunction with his " Allies, ſo to reduce the French King, that it " may be no longer in his Power to diſturb and " oppreſs the reſt of Europe. In order to theſe " good Ends, we deſire you diligently to labour " to preſerve an entire good Correſpondence be- " tween the Two Houſes of Parliament, and hin- " der the purſuing of private Piques and Animo- " ſities; to take care of our Trade, ſupport pub- " lick Credit, make good the Deficiencies, and " to have ſpecial Regard to the Royal Navy. " And ſo God proſper your Undertakings.

That from the Borough of Southwark was drawn by ſo peculiar a Hand, and gives ſo conciſe a Recapitulation of the Affairs of Europe, that 'tis more remarkable than the other.

Gentlemen,

"IT is notorious, That for more than Forty " Years, the French King hath affected Uni- " verſal Monarchy; that he has conſtantly pur- " ſued the ſame by all the Methods of Violence, " Rapine and Injuſtice; and that he has no other- " wiſe regarded his Oaths, Treaties and Religi- " on, than as ſo many ſolemn Cheats to catch and " inſnare all that have depended on him. 1701.

" To enable himſelf to marry the Infanta of " Spain, he, by Oath, renounced any Title to that " Crown for all the Iſſue of that Marriage; yet " he hath made the Invalidity of that Renuncia- " tion, the Ground of every one of his Wars with " the King of Spain.

" By the Pyrenæan Treaty he ſtipulated with " the King, to give no Aſſiſtance to his Enemy " the King of Portugal; yet preſently after diſ- " patch'd ſo many Troops to the Aſſiſtance of " that Prince, as reduced the Spaniſh Monarchy " to a Degree of Weakneſs, from which it hath " never ſince recover'd.

" He lull'd the Spaniard aſleep with repeated " Promiſes of Friendſhip; and then, without " giving him any Time to prepare for his De- " fence, carried his Conqueſts over the greateſt " part of Flanders; and was prevented only by " the Triple Alliance of England, Holland, and " the King of Sweden, from reducing the Re- " mainder of that Province.

" To the everlaſting Diſhonour of the late " King Charles II. he diſengaged that Prince from " ſo neceſſary an Alliance, and preſently after " invaded the Seven United Provinces with all his " Forces; and could give no better Reaſon for a " bloody War, which reduced thoſe flouriſhing " States almoſt to utter Ruin, than that he had " been ill ſatisfied with their Conduct.

" To break a powerful Confederacy againſt " him, he made the Peace of Nimeguen; by " which Conceſſion was made to him of almoſt " all his Conqueſts in that War, and immediately " after, invaded the Empire himſelf, to aſſiſt his " Infidel Confederate.

" The Peace of Reſwick gave an End to that " War, and a Balance to Europe, till the French " King, by Colour of a Will ſurreptitiouſly gain- " ed from the late King of Spain, in Favour of " the Duke of Anjou, has poſſeſs'd himſelf of the " Spaniſh Monarchy, contrary to his own Renun- " ciation, and the Pyrenæan Treaty. Flanders " and Milan he hath inveſted with his own " Troops, while the Duke of Anjou is forced to " govern the reſt of that Monarchy as Vice-Roy " to his Grand-Father, both to obtain his Sup- " port, and for fear of being excluded from a " better Kingdom.

" He has exalted himſelf upon this good Suc- " ceſs, and hath already named a Vice-Roy for " more Countries, by giving the Title of his " Majeſty's Kingdoms to the pretended Prince of " Wales. Our Condition muſt be very miſera- " ble, if we are to be govern'd by the Diſcretion " of a King, who hath deſtroy'd the Proteſtants " of his own Kingdoms by the Sword, Fire and " Gallies; we cannot hope to be us'd with greater " Tenderneſs than his own Subjects.

" Nevertheleſs, we cannot doubt but his re- " peated ill Succeſſes in Italy, the vaſt Debts of " his Crown, increaſed by his prodigious Ex- " pences among his Confederate Princes, will " oblige him to offer a Treaty, that he may ſave " by a Peace a conſiderable Share of the Spaniſh " Monarchy, rather than loſe the whole by a " War. And we had Reaſon to be afraid that " the Diviſion of the Two Houſes of Parliament, " the Animoſities of thoſe Men that have oppo- " ſed the Settlement, the Recognition and Aſſo- " ciation, and the great Authority of others, who " in former Reigns had always given Countenance " for the French Invaſions, might oblige his Ma- " jeſty to hearken to ſuch a Peace as France would " pleaſe to give him.

" But

1701. "But we hope, Gentlemen, that the Diſſolution of the Parliament has put an End to the Diviſion of the Two Houſes; and we have that Aſſurance of your Integrity and Moderation, that you will do nothing to revive the ſame Diviſion. It is indeed very popular, and very juſt, to be ſevere with ſuch Miniſters as have betrayed the Commonwealth: But when the Lords, ſo conſiderable a part of the Legiſlative Power, have eſpouſed the Innocency of any Perſon, we hope you will either give Credit to their Authority, or defer your Reſentments during our Common Danger. We are aſſured, that you will neither join with the Enemies of the King, nor with the Advocates of France, to hang upon the Wheels of the Government.

"We beſeech you, Gentlemen, not to be amuſed with the Offers of any Treaties from the French King, or, for the ſake thereof, to defer any Supplies that ſhall be convenient, before he ſhall have given entire Satisfaction to the Emperor for his Right to the Spaniſh Monarchy, and to his Majeſty for the Affront put upon him and his People, by giving the Title of his Kingdoms to the pretended Prince of Wales. We hope you will be ready upon all Occaſions to addreſs the King, That he will never enter into any Treaty with France, which ſhall not effectually ſecure to his People their Religion and Commerce.

"We beſeech you, Gentlemen, that ſetting aſide all other Buſineſs, you will be ſo early, and ſo liberal in your Supplies to his Majeſty, to ſupport his Great Alliances, that France may have no Hopes, nor her Enemies any Fears of the Neutrality of England: That other Princes, like thoſe of Savoy, Portugal and Cologn, may not make ſeparate Treaties for themſelves with the common Enemy of Europe.

"We beſeech you, Gentlemen, to be careful of the Credit of the Government, and to join your Votes with ſuch as ſhall be for the moſt ſpeedy and moſt eaſie Methods of raiſing Money; that the Blame of buying every thing for the King at exceſſive Prices, may not be caſt upon the Miniſters, which has been moſt juſtly due to the Diſtance or Inſufficiency of thoſe Funds which Parliaments have given.

Above all, Gentlemen, we conjure you to be moſt tender of the Perſon of his Majeſty, to endeavour that no Indignity may be offered to a Prince, born for the Good of Europe; to diſtinguiſh between one that ſits upon his Throne, and ſends Generals Abroad to make Slaughters and Deſolation among his Neighbours, and a King who has ſo liberally and ſo generouſly expoſed his Life for the Liberty of his Country againſt this common Enemy.

Honours and Preferments.

Since the Receſs of the laſt Parliament ſome few Titles and Places had been thus diſpoſed. On September 1ſt, His Majeſty was pleaſed to confer the Dignity of a Baronet upon John Thornicroft of Milcomb, in the County of Oxon, Eſq; On November 22. His Majeſty was pleaſed to grant to the Earl of Radnor, the Office of Steward of the Dutchy of Cornwall, and of Warden and Steward of the Stannaries, and of Rider and Maſter of his Majeſty's Foreſts and Chaces of Dartmore, in the Room of John Earl of Bath, deceaſed; and to appoint the Earl of Rivers to be Lord Lieutenant of the County of Lancaſter, in the Room of Charles Earl of Macclesfield, deceaſed; who ſoon after his Return from an Embaſſy to the Court of Hanover, died on November 5. ordering by Will all his juſt Debts to be ſatisfied; and leaving moſt part of his perſonal Eſtate to his Kinſman the Lord Mohun, thinking his Hereditary Eſtate and Honours to be ſufficient for his Brother Fitſon Gerrard. On 27 December, His Majeſty was pleaſed to conſtitute Charles Earl of Carliſle Firſt Lord Commiſſioner of his Majeſty's Treaſury. And at the beginning of the Parliament, the more wiſely to balance the publick Counſels and Intereſts, on January 1ſt. the Earl of Radnor was ſworn of the Privy Council; on January 4th. the Earl of Mancheſter was conſtituted one of his Majeſty's principal Secretaries of State; on January 8th. the Earl of Burlington was admitted into the Privy Council; and to complete the Choice of able Miniſters, the King, with an admirable Sagacity, on January 18. appointed the Earl of Pembroke to be Lord High Admiral of England and Ireland, and the Dominions thereunto belonging; while the Duke of Somerſet ſucceeded him as Lord Preſident of the Privy Council.

Meeting of the New Parliament. On the appointed Day, 30th December, the Parliament met, and the King came to the Houſe of Peers, and ſent for the Commons; to whom the Lord Keeper ſignified his Majeſty's Pleaſure, that they ſhould forthwith proceed to the Choice of a Speaker, and preſent him next Morning: The Competition was between Mr. Harley and Sir Thomas Littleton, to which latter the King and Court inclin'd; but the former was elected by a Majority of Fourteen Votes; who being the next Day preſented and approved, His Majeſty made this memorable Speech to both Houſes.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

King's Speech. "I Promiſe my Self you are met together full of the juſt Senſe of our common Danger of Europe, and that Reſentment of the late Proceeding of the French King, which has been ſo fully and univerſally expreſs'd in the Loyal and Seaſonable Addreſſes of my People.

"The Owning and Setting up the pretended Prince of Wales (a) for King of England, is not only the higheſt Indignity offered to Me and the whole Nation, but does ſo nearly concern every Man, who has a Regard for the Proteſtant Religion, or the preſent and future Quiet and Happineſs of your Country, that I need not preſs you to lay it ſeriouſly to Heart, and to conſider what further effectual Means may be uſed for ſecuring the Succeſſion of the Crown in the Proteſtant Line, and extinguiſhing the Hopes of all Pretenders, and their open or ſecret Abettors.

"By the French King's placing his Grandſon on the Throne of Spain, he is in a Condition to oppreſs the reſt of Europe, unleſs ſpeedy and effectual Meaſures be taken. Under this Pretence, he is become the real Maſter of the whole Spaniſh Monarchy; he has made it to be 1701. "entirely depending on France, and diſpoſes of it as of his own Dominions, and by that means he has ſurrounded his Neighbours in ſuch a manner, that tho' the Name of Peace may be ſaid to continue, yet they are put to the Expence and Inconveniencies of War.

(a) A good Writer has thus expreſs'd himſelf: "Could any thing be more contrary to his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's ſolemn Engagements at the Treaty of Reſwick, than his quickly after promiſing the late King James upon his Death-Bed, never to abandon the Pretender; but always to acknowledge and entertain him as King of England, and declaring, that he hop'd to ſee him treated after the ſame manner by the whole World? Yet, what Papiſt is there, who does not cry up this publick Violation of his Faith, as one of the moſt Heroical and Glorious Actions of his Life? And the Pope, in a Speech made in a full Conſiſtory, ſays, That it is truly the moſt Chriſtian King's Zeal and Greatneſs of Soul ſhines in a wonderful manner.—— The French King afterward gave the Pretender a French Sword, with this remarkable Expreſſion: Remember, if you prove ſucceſsful, that it is a French Sword.

"entirely

" This muſt affect England in the neareſt and moſt ſenſible manner, in reſpect to our Trade, which will ſoon become precarious in all the valuable Branches of it; in reſpect to our Peace and Safety at Home, which we cannot hope ſhould long continue; and in reſpect to that part which England ought to take in the Preſervation of the Liberty of Europe.

" In order to obviate the general Calamity with which the reſt of Chriſtendom is threatned by this exorbitant Power of France, I have concluded ſeveral Alliances, according to the Encouragement given me by both Houſes of Parliament; which I will direct ſhall be laid before you, and which I do not doubt you will enable me to make good.

" There are ſome other Treaties ſtill depending, that ſhall be likewiſe communicated to you as ſoon as they are perfected.

" It is fit I ſhould tell you, The Eyes of all Europe are upon this Parliament; all Matters are at a Stand till your Reſolutions are known, and therefore no Time ought to be loſt.

" You have yet an Opportunity, by God's Bleſſing, to ſecure to you and your Poſterity the quiet Enjoyment of your Religion and Liberties, if you are not wanting to your ſelves, but will exert the ancient Vigor of the Engliſh Nation: But I tell you plainly my Opinion is, If you do not lay hold on this Occaſion, you have no Reaſon to hope for another.

" In order to do your part, it will be neceſſary to have a great Strength at Sea, and to provide for the Security of our Ships in Harbour; and alſo, that there be ſuch a Force at Land as is expected in proportion to the Forces of our Allies.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Commons,

" I do recommend theſe Matters to you with that Concern and Earneſtneſs, which their Importance requires: At the ſame Time I cannot but preſs you to take Care of the publick Credit, which cannot be preſerved, but by keeping ſacred that Maxim, That they ſhall never be Loſers, who truſt to a Parliamentary Security.

" It is always with Regret when I do ask Aids of my People; but you will obſerve, that I deſire nothing which relates to any perſonal Expence of mine; I am only preſſing you to do all you can for your own Safety and Honour at ſo Critical and Dangerous a Time; and am willing that what is given ſhall be wholly appropriated to the Purpoſes for which it is intended.

" And ſince I am ſpeaking on this Head, I think it proper to put you in mind, That during the late War I ordered the Accounts to be laid Yearly before the Parliament, and alſo gave my Aſſent to ſeveral Bills for Taking the publick Accounts, that my Subjects might have Satisfaction how the Money given for the War was applied; and I am willing that Matter may be put in any further way of Examination; that it may appear whether there were any Miſapplications and Miſmanagements; or whether the Debt that remains upon us, has really ariſen from the Shortneſs of the Supplies, or the Deficiency of the Funds.

" I have already told you how neceſſary Diſpatch will be for carrying on that great publick Buſineſs, whereon our Safety, and all that is valuable to us depends. I hope, what Time can be ſpared, will be employed about thoſe other very deſirable Things, which I have ſo often recommended from the Throne; I mean, The Forming ſome good Bills for employing the Poor, for encouraging Trade, and the further ſuppreſſing of Vice. 1701.

My Lords and Gentlemen,

" I hope you are come together, determined to avoid all manner of Diſputes and Differences, and reſolved to act with a general and hearty Concurrence, for promoting the Common Cauſe; which alone can make this a happy Seſſion.

" I ſhould think it as great a Bleſſing as could befal England, if I could obſerve you as much inclined to lay aſide thoſe Unhappy Fatal Animoſities, which divide and weaken you, as I am diſpoſed to make all my Subjects ſafe and eaſy, as to any even the higheſt Offences committed againſt Me.

" Let me conjure you to diſappoint the only Hopes of our Enemies, by your Unanimity. I have ſhewn, and will always ſhew, how deſirous I am to be the Common Father of all my People: Do you in like manner lay aſide Parties and Diviſions; Let there be no other Diſtinction heard of among us for the Future, but of thoſe who are for the Proteſtant Religion and the preſent Eſtabliſhment, and of thoſe who mean a Popiſh Prince and a French Government.

" I will only add this, If you do in good earneſt deſire to ſee England hold the Balance of Europe, and to be indeed at the Head of the Proteſtant Intereſt, it will appear by your right improving the preſent Opportunity.

This Wiſe and Affectionate Speech was extremely grateful to both Houſes, and they were very Unanimous in their Thanks for it. The Lords began the New Year with this ſeaſonable Preſent.

Die Jovis 1. Januarii, 1701.

"WE Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, did hear, with all imaginable Satisfaction, Your Majeſty's moſt Gracious Speech to both Your Houſes of Parliament; for which we return Your Majeſty our moſt humble and hearty Thanks. And tho' the ſeveral Particulars which Your Majeſty was pleaſed to recommend to us, are of the higheſt Importance; and that we will loſe no Time in proceeding to the Conſideration of them, with great Duty to Your Majeſty; Yet we cannot defer expreſſing our juſt Reſentments of the Proceedings of the French King, in Owning and Setting up the pretended Prince of Wales for King of England, and other Your Majeſty's Realms and Dominions; which we take to be the higheſt Indignity that can be offered to Your Sacred Majeſty and this Kingdom. And we do aſſure Your Majeſty, we are ſo ſenſible thereof, that we are reſolved to aſſiſt Your Majeſty to the utmoſt of our Power, in defending Your Sacred Perſon and Government from all Attempts whatſoever, that ſhall be made either from Your open or ſecret Enemies. And that no Enemies to our Religion and Country may ever hope to proſper in their Attempts againſt us, when, to our great Unhappineſs, it ſhall pleaſe God to deprive us of Your Majeſty's Protection, we do further declare our Reſolutions to aſſiſt and defend, to the utmoſt of our Power, againſt the pretended Prince of Wales, and all other Pretenders whatſoever, every Perſon and Perſons who have Right to ſucceed to the

Addreſs of the Lords.

1701. "the Crown of theſe Realms, by Virtue of the Two Acts of Parliament, entitled, An Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and ſettling the Succeſſion of the Crown; and, An Act for the further Limitation of the Crown, and better ſecuring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject. And we conclude with our earneſt Prayers to Almighty God, for Your Majeſty's long and happy Reign over us.

To this Addreſs his Majeſty made an agreeable Anſwer.

My Lords,

The King's Anſwer. "I Heartily thank you for your very ſeaſonable Addreſs, and for all your kind Expreſſions of Duty to me in it. I recommend to you to take into your ſpeedy Conſideration the other Matters mentioned in my Speech, and doubt not but that your Reſolutions will be for the Honour and Safety of the Kingdom.

On the 5th of January the Commons preſented their Addreſs in this agreeable Form.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

Addreſs of the Commons. "WE Your Majeſty's moſt Dutiful and Loyal Subjects the Commons of England in Parliament aſſembled, do return our moſt humble and hearty Thanks to Your Majeſty for Your moſt Gracious Speech from the Throne; and humbly crave Leave to aſſure Your Majeſty, That this Houſe will ſupport and defend Your Majeſty's lawful and rightful Title to the Crown of theſe Realms, againſt the pretended Prince of Wales, and all his open and ſecret Abettors and Adherents, and all other Your Majeſty's Enemies whatſoever. And we will enable Your Majeſty to ſhew Your juſt Reſentment of the Affront and Indignity offered to Your Majeſty and this Nation by the French King, in taking upon him to declare the pretended Prince of Wales King of England, Scotland, and Ireland: And we are firmly and unanimouſly Reſolved to maintain and ſupport the Succeſſion to the Imperial Crown of this Realm, and the Dominions and Territories thereunto belonging, in the Proteſtant Line, as the ſame is ſettled by an Act declaring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, and ſettling the Succeſſion of the Crown, and farther provided for by an Act of the laſt Parliament, intituled, An Act for the farther Limitation of the Crown, and better ſecuring the Rights and Liberties of the Subject. And for the better effecting the ſame, we will, to the utmoſt of our Power, enable Your Majeſty to make good all thoſe Alliances Your Majeſty has made, or ſhall make, purſuant to the Addreſſes and Advice of Your moſt Dutiful and Loyal Commons of the laſt Parliament, for the preſerving the Liberties of Europe, and reducing the exorbitant Power of France.

To which his Majeſty gave this grateful Anſwer.

Gentlemen,

King's Anſwer. I Give you my hearty Thanks for this Addreſs, which I look upon as a good Omen for the Seſſion. The Unanimity with which it paſſed, adds greatly to the Satisfaction I receive from it; ſo good a Step at your firſt Entrance upon Buſineſs, cannot but raiſe the Hopes of all who wiſh well to England, and to the Common Cauſe. I can deſire no more of you, than to proceed as you have begun; and I depend upon it: For when I conſider how chearfully and univerſally you concurr'd in this Addreſs, I cannot doubt but every one of you will ſincerely endeavour to make it effectual in all the Parts of it. 1701.

The Lords had taken into ſeaſonable Conſideration the dangerous State of Europe, more eſpecially ariſing from the Duke of Anjou's poſſeſſing the Crown of Spain, which made in effect a Conjunction with France, and ſo muſt inevitably overthrow the Balance of Power, unleſs timely prevented by ſtrong Alliances of other States and Princes: And therefore on January 6. their Lordſhips addreſs'd the King a ſecond Time in theſe clear Words.

"WE Your Majeſty's moſt Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, are highly ſenſible of what we owe to Almighty God, for the great Deliverance he hath wrought for us by Your Majeſty. We are highly ſenſible of his Mercies in preſerving You hitherto, in ſo many publick and private Dangers to which Your Sacred Perſon hath been expoſed; and we hope the ſame Providence will carry Your Majeſty thro' the great Work (which ſeems reſerv'd for you) the reducing the exorbitant Power of France, and maintaining the Balance of Europe. Second Addreſs of the Lords.

"All true Engliſhmen, ſince the Decay of the Spaniſh Monarchy, have ever taken it for granted, that the Security of their Religion, Liberty and Property, that their Honour, their Wealth, and their Trade, depend chiefly upon the proper Meaſures to be taken from Time to Time in Parliament againſt the growing Power of France: But it is their peculiar Bleſſing in Your Majeſty's Reign, to have a Prince upon the Throne, who not only agrees with them in this Opinion, but who, in the frequent Parliaments aſſembled, is ever reminding them of this their greateſt Concern; and who to compleat their Happineſs, is always ready, with the Hazard of his Perſon, to ſupport his Subjects and Allies againſt their Common Enemy.

"And we eſteem it a further good Fortune, in the Time of publick Danger, That the French King has taken thoſe Meaſures, which will make it impoſſible for him to impoſe any more upon the World, by Treaties ſo often violated: Neither can he hope any longer to cover his ambitious Deſigns, or juſtifie his Uſurpations under the ſpecious Pretences of Peace.

"Your Majeſty hath ſo juſtly repreſented the Danger to which Europe is expoſed, by the French King's placing his Grandſon on the Throne of Spain; Your Majeſty is ſo juſtly ſenſible, that under that Pretence he is become abſolute Maſter of the whole Spaniſh Monarchy; and we are all ſo well apprized of the dangerous Conſequence of this bold Attempt, that we think it moſt proper to aſſure Your Majeſty in Your own Words, That we are under the higheſt Impatience, that ſpeedy and effectual Meaſures may be taken againſt the undoubted Ambition of the French King.

"And as the placing his Grandſon upon the Throne of Spain is viſibly to the whole World, the Cauſe of all thoſe Dangers mentioned in Your Majeſty's Speech, and of the Breach of the Balance of Power in Europe, which the People of England are ſo deeply engaged to preſerve; ſo we humbly conceive the Remedy is as apparent as the Diſeaſe; and that Your Majeſty, Your Subjects and Allies, can never be ſafe and ſecure, till the Houſe of Auſtria be reſtored to their Rights, and the In-

1701.

"vader of the Spaniſh Monarchy brought to Reaſon.

"To conclude, Sir, As we humbly addreſs'd to Your Majeſty laſt Parliament to enter into Alliances with the Emperor, the States of Holland, and all other Princes and States, willing to unite againſt the Power of France; ſo we take the Liberty at this Time to aſſure You, we are all willing and zealous to lay hold of this Opportunity, which the Bleſſing of God, and Your Majeſty's Care, have put into our Hands; Reſolving to make our utmoſt Efforts for our own Security, and the Support of our Allies; deſiring of Your Majeſty to reſt aſſured, That no Time ſhall be loſt, nor any thing wanting on our part, which may anſwer the reaſonable Expectation of our Friends Abroad; not doubting but to ſupport the Reputation of the Engliſh Name, when engaged under ſo Great a Prince, in the Glorious Cauſe of maintaining the Liberty of Europe.

His Majeſty return'd this good Anſwer:

My Lords,

Anſwer of His Majeſty.

I Am extremely pleaſed to find the juſt Sentiments you have of the preſent State of Affairs, and your Readineſs to do your Part in this great Conjuncture. I hope your joint Endeavours will be ſucceſsful for reſtoring the Balance of Europe, and eſtabliſhing our Common Security.

State of Europe laid before the Commons

To bring the Houſe of Commons into more effectual Meaſures for eſpouſing and ſupporting the Cauſe of a new War, the King commanded Mr. Secretary Vernon to lay before them the Copies of the Treaties of the Grand Alliance. 1. Treaty between the King of Denmark and the States General, 15 June, 1701. 2. Secret Articles of Treaty with Denmark, 15 June, 1701. 3. Treaty between the Emperor, his Majeſty, and the States General, 7 Sept. 1701. 4. A Convention between the King of England, the King of Sweden, and the States General, 26 September, 1701. 5. Treaty between the King and the States General, 11 November, 1701. All which were ſo well approved, that the Houſe immediately reſolved on the 7th of January, That a Supply be granted to his Majeſty: And that whoſoever ſhall advance or lend into his Majeſty's Exchequer the Sum of Six hundred thouſand Pounds for the Service of the Fleet, ſhall be repaid the ſame with Intereſt at Six per Cent. out of the firſt Aids to be granted this Seſſion. And that whoſoever ſhall advance the further Sum of Fifty thouſand Pounds for the Subſiſtence of the Guards and Garriſons, ſhall be repaid in like manner. Then they took the State of the Navy into Conſideration, and ordered the Commiſſioners of the Admiralty to lay before that Houſe a State of the Fleet, and Condition of each reſpective Ship and Place where they are; with a State of the Debt of the Navy, and an Eſtimate of what is neceſſary for the Extra-Repairs of it. And to encourage the People with the Hopes of making good all former Deficiencies, they ordered an Account of the Debts of the Nation unprovided for, both Principal and Intereſt to be laid before them. And further to juſtifie the Diſpoſal of publick Funds, they ordered the Speaker to write to Two of the Truſtees for the Forfeited Eſtates in Ireland, to attend the Houſe, and lay before them a full Account of their Proceedings in Execution of that Act. And what gave the greateſt Life and Spirit to a War Abroad, and Unity at Home, on Jan. 9th, they reſolved, Nemine Contradicente, That Leave be given to bring in a Bill for a further Security of His Majeſty's Perſon, and the Succeſſion of the Crown in the Proteſtant Line, and extinguiſhing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and all other Pretenders, and their open and ſecret Abettors. And on the next Day they farther Reſolved, "That an humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, that he will be graciouſly pleaſed to take care, that it be an Article in the ſeveral Treaties of Alliance with his Majeſty and other Potentates, That no Peace ſhall be made with France, until his Majeſty and the Nation have Reparation for the great Indignity offered by the French King, in owning and declaring the pretended Prince of Wales King of England, Scotland, and Ireland." To which the King gave a chearful Anſwer, That he would take Care of what they deſired. They agreed at the ſame Time, That the Proportion of Land-Forces to act in Conjunction with the Forces of the Allies, for making good the Alliances, be Forty thouſand Men, and Forty thouſand more for Sea-Service. They proceeded to a Bill for the Attainder of the pretended Prince of Wales. The Lords were intent upon the ſame Meaſures, and paſs'd a Bill for the Security of his Majeſty's Perſon and Government, and for maintaining the Succeſſion of the Crown, according to the Two late Acts of Parliament; which they ſent down to the Commons, who after twice Reading, let it lie upon their Table, as thinking their own depending Bills more effectual. Yet the Chief of thoſe Bills, that for the Security of his Majeſty's Perſon, &c. was likely to have been weakened, by an Inſtruction to the Committee, That they take Care that the Oath in the ſaid Bill mentioned, be Voluntary. But the Queſtion being put upon this Offer, it paſs'd in the Negative. And on Jan. 22. they gave a much better Inſtruction to the ſaid Committee, That they do take Care to make it equally Penal to compaſs or imagine the Death of her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Anne of Denmark, as it is to compaſs and imagine the Death of the King's Eldeſt Son and Heir, by the Statute of 25 Ed. III. The Houſe had a Multiplicity of other Buſineſs before them; as, The Produce of Cuſtoms; The Quakers Bill; The Forfeitures in Ireland; The more effectual puniſhing of Vagrants; The Number, and Charge, and Condition of the Forces to be fill'd up and rais'd for Sea and Land; The Affair of the Abuſes committed in the King's Brew-houſe at St. Catherine's; The Apothecaries Bill; The Care of Regulating Collections; The Examination of Shams and Stories told by William Fuller; and of a Letter ſent to the Speaker from one Dr. Stringer, pretending the Diſcovery of a Plot againſt the Government; with other intervening Affairs, that were enough to retard the more important Buſineſs of the Nation; wherein, notwithſtanding, they proceeded with a very vigorous Application. On Febr. 3. they reſolved, That a Sum not exceeding Three hundred fifty two thouſand Pounds be granted to his Majeſty, for the maintaining of Guards and Garriſons, and for providing for Officers upon Half-pay. And to quicken the Allies, as well as to ſupport the King, they reſolved at the ſame Time, "That an humble Addreſs be preſented to his Majeſty, That he will be graciouſly pleaſed to interpoſe with his Allies, that they may increaſe their Quota's of Land-Forces to be put on Board the Fleet, in proportion to the Numbers his Majeſty ſhall have on Board his Fleet." To which his Majeſty was pleaſed to anſwer, He would do it. When they had ſettled the Sums appropriated to the ſeveral Uſes of the War, on Febr. 7. they agreed on another Addreſs to the King, "That he would be graciouſly pleaſed to provide for the Half-pay Officers in the firſt place, in the Recruits

Reſolutions of the Commons

Happy Proceedings.

"and

1701. "and Levies to be now made". To which he anſwered, That it was always his Intention.

His Majeſty, to encourage the Diſpatch of publick Affairs, came to the Houſe of Peers on Tueſday, Feb. 10. and gave the Royal Aſſent to a Bill which had formerly miſcarried, intituled, An Act for reviving and continuing an Act, intituled, An Act for the appointing Commiſſioners to take, examine and determine the Debts due to the Army, Navy, and the Tranſport-Service; and alſo an Account of Prizes taken during the late War.

Act paſſed.

Commons aſſert their Privileges.

The Commons were diſpoſed to aſſert their own Privileges, as well as to conſult the common Good; and therefore, on the controverted Election at Maidſton, between Thomas Bliſſe and Thomas Colepepper, Eſquires, they reſolved, That the latter had been guilty of Corrupt, Scandalous and Indirect Practices, in endeavouring to procure himſelf to be elected a Burgeſs; and being one of the Inſtruments in promoting and preſenting the ſcandalous, inſolent, and ſeditious Petition, commonly called The Kentiſh Petition, to the laſt Houſe of Commons, was guilty of promoting a ſcandalous, villanous, and groundleſs Reflection upon the ſaid Houſe of Commons, by aſperſing the Members with receiving French Money, or being in the Intereſt of France; for which Offence he ſhould be committed to Newgate, and his Majeſty's Attorney-General ſhould proſecute him for the ſaid Crimes.

Under this Indignation, they reſolved on Febr. 26. That agreeable to the Opinions of a Committee appointed to conſider of the Rights, Liberties and Privileges of the Houſe of Commons, That to aſſert, that the Houſe of Commons is not the only Repreſentative of the Commons of England, tends to the Subverſion of the Rights and Privileges of the Houſe of Commons, and the Fundamental Conſtitution of the Government of this Kingdom. 2. That to aſſert, that the Houſe of Commons have no Power of Commitment, but of their own Members, tends to the Subverſion of the Conſtitution of the Houſe of Commons. 3. That to print or publiſh any Books or Libels reflecting upon the Proceedings of the Houſe of Commons, or any Member thereof, for, or relating to his Service therein, is a high Violation of the Rights and Privileges of the Houſe of Commons. 4. That it is the undoubted Right of the People of England, to petition or addreſs to the King for the Calling, Sitting, or Diſſolving of Parliaments, and for the Redreſſing of Grievances. 5. That it is the undoubted Right of every Subject of England, under any Accuſation, either by Impeachment or otherwiſe, to be brought to a ſpeedy Trial, in order to be acquitted or condemned. And indeed, if every Vote of any Body of Men can create a Privilege to 'em, it is a great Favour to other Bodies and Perſons, that they are but ſhort and modeſt in thoſe Votes and Reſolutions.

His Majeſty was very ſenſible that the Proteſtant Succeſſion would not be ſo eaſily ſettled in Scotland, where it might be retarded on purpoſe for a Claim to an Independence on the Crown of England; and that nothing was more ſeaſonable at this Juncture, than an Union of the Two Kingdoms; to which Effect his Majeſty in a hearty Concern for the Common Good, writes this Letter to the Houſe of Commons, being diſabled from coming to the Houſe of Peers by his late Fall.

William R.

"HIS Majeſty being at preſent hindered, "by an unhappy Accident, from coming "in Perſon to his Parliament, is pleaſed to ſignifie to the Houſe of Commons by Meſſage, "what he deſigned to have ſpoken to both Houſes from the Throne. His Majeſty in the firſt "Year of his Reign did acquaint the Parliament, "That Commiſſioners were authoriz'd in Scotland to treat with ſuch Commiſſioners as ſhould "be appointed in England, of proper Terms for "Uniting the Two Kingdoms, and at the ſame "Time expreſſed his great Deſire of ſuch an "Union: His Majeſty is fully ſatisfied, that no-"thing can more contribute to the preſent and "future Security and Happineſs of England and "Scotland, than a firm and entire Union between "them; and he cannot but hope, that upon a "due Conſideration of our preſent Circumſtan-"ces, there will be found a general Diſpoſition "to this Union. His Majeſty would eſteem it a "peculiar Felicity, if, during his Reign, ſome "happy Expedient for making both Kingdoms "One, might take place; and is therefore ex-"tremely deſirous, that a Treaty for that pur-"poſe might be ſet on Foot; and does, in the "moſt earneſt manner, recommend this Affair "to the Conſideration of the Houſe.

His Majeſty's Misfortune & Indiſpoſition.

The Commons appointed firſt one and then another Day to conſider of this Meſſage; but the Shortneſs of his Majeſty's Life prevented their coming to any Reſolution; for his Majeſty being in a very infirm State of Health, was ſtill willing to continue his uſual Diverſions of Hunting; ſo on February 21. riding out from Kenſington to Hunt near Hampton-Court, as he was putting his Horſe to the Gallop, the Horſe fell, and his Majeſty in the Fall broke his Right Collar-Bone. Upon this fatal Accident, his Majeſty was carried to Hampton-Court, where the Bone was dexterouſly ſet by Monſieur Ronjat, Serjeant-Surgeon to the King, who having felt his Majeſty's Pulſe, told him he was Feveriſh, and that any other Perſon in his Condition would be let Blood; As for that, reply'd the King, I have now and then had a Hand-ake, and ſome ſhivering Fits this Fortnight, and had this very Morning a Pain in my Hand before I went out a Hunting. In the Afternoon, the King finding himſelf eaſie, contrary to Advice, return'd to Kenſington, and ſlept almoſt all the way in his Coach. He came to Kenſington about Nine at Night, with his Right-Arm tied up; and as he enter'd the Great Bed-Chamber he ſaw Dr. Bidloo, to whom he ſpake in this manner: I have got a Hurt in my Arm, pray come and ſee it. Soon after, he continued to this Effect; I was riding in the Park at Noon, and while I endeavour'd to make the Horſe change his Walking into a Gallop, he fell upon his Knees: Upon that I meant to raiſe him with the Bridle, but he fell forwards to one ſide, and ſo I fell with my Right Shoulder upon the Ground. 'Tis a ſtrange thing, for it happen'd upon a ſmooth level Ground. Ronjat (his Majeſty's Surgeon) ſays, There's a little Bone broken; and indeed I feel ſome Pain towards my Back. At the ſame time, he pointed with his Left-hand to the Shoulder-blade, ſaying, There, there. Dr. Bidloo finding his Pulſe in good Order, diſſuaded him from Bleeding, and after viewing the affected part, gave his Majeſty to know, That the Right Channel-Bone was broke obliquely a little below its Juncture with the Shoulder-blade. Then his Majeſty ask'd, If it was well ſet? And the Doctor anſwering, No; he ſaid to Mr. Ronjat, his Surgeon, Juſtify your ſelf, Monſieur Ronjat, Is it well ſet? Mr. Ronjat made Anſwer, That it was well ſet; but that the Jolting of the Coach, and the Looſening of the Bandage had occaſion'd that Disunion. After the Fracture was taken care of, his Majeſty went to Bed, and ſlept the whole Night ſo ſound, that the Gentlemen who ſat up with him, ſaid, they did not hear him complain ſo much as once.

1701.

His Majeſty ſeem'd in a fair way of doing well, till on Sunday, March 1ſt, a Defluxion fell upon his Knee, which was a great Pain and Weakneſs to him, and thought to be a very ill Symptom; He took it as a Warning for the Diſpatch of publick Affairs; and therefore the next Morning this Meſſage was ſent from the Houſe of Peers to the Commons. Mr. Speaker, The King hath granted a Commiſſion under the Great Seal, for paſſing the Royal Aſſent to thoſe Bills, which have been agreed to by both Houſes of Parliament; and the Lords commiſſion'd by the King, do deſire, That this Houſe would preſently come up with their Speaker, to be preſent at the paſſing thereof. Then Mr. Speaker with the Houſe went up; and the Lord Keeper acquainted both Houſes, That his Majeſty by an unhappy Accident had been prevented from coming in Perſon, and had granted a Commiſſion to ſeveral Peers for paſſing the Bills therein mentioned; and that the Royal Aſſent was given by Commiſſion to theſe following Bills: 1. An Act for the Attainder of the pretended Prince of Wales of High Treaſon. 2. An Act for puniſhing Officers and Soldiers who ſhall Mutiny or Deſert in England and Ireland. 3. An Act for continuing an Act, intituled, An Act that the ſolemn Affirmation and Declaration of the People called Quakers, ſhall be accepted inſtead of an Oath in the uſual Form. 4. An Act for Naturalizing Charlelotte, the Wife of Hugh Boſcawen, Eſq;

The King grants a Commiſſion to paſs ſome Bills.

Acts paſſed.

On Wedneſday, March 4. His Majeſty ſeem'd ſo well recover'd of the Lameneſs in his Knee, that he took ſeveral Turns in the Gallery at Kenſington; but at length, finding himſelf tir'd and faint, he ſat down on a Couch, and fell aſleep, which probably occaſion'd that ſhivering Fit which ſoon after ſeiz'd him, and which turn'd to a Fever, accompany'd with Vomiting and a Looſeneſs: Thereupon the King thought fit to ſend for Sir Thomas Millington, who attended him to the laſt Moment, as did alſo Sir Richard Blackmore, Dr. Hutton, Dr. Hanes, Dr. Browne, Dr. Lawrence, Sir Theodore Colladon, Dr. Bidloo, and others of that Faculty. Theſe Learned Phyſicians adminiſtred ſeveral Remedies to his Majeſty, that gave him great Relief, and he continued indifferent well till Friday 6th, when his Vomiting and Looſeneſs return'd ſo violent upon him, that he refus'd to take any Suſtenance till Two of the Clock on Saturday Morning, when he ſupp'd a Cup full of Chocolate, that ſtaid with him; ſoon after they gave him a gentle ſleeping Draught to compoſe him, which had that good Effect, that he reſted for Three Hours after: In the Forenoon he ſupp'd ſome Broth and a Cordial, and found himſelf ſomewhat eaſier, though exceſſive weak. His Mind was ſo fix'd upon the publick Intereſt, that he immediately order'd another Commiſſion, for paſſing thoſe Bills that were ready for his Aſſent; and becauſe he was now ſo weak, that he could not write his own Name, a Stamp was prepar'd, by which he ſign'd the Commiſſion. The Earl of Albemarle arriv'd at Kenſington from Holland about Five a Clock this Saturday Morning, and immediately went to wait on the King; who being willing at that Time to be retired, bid his Lordſhip go and take ſome Reſt, and come to him ſome Hours after. The Earl attending accordingly, the King call'd him to one ſide of the Bed, where his Lordſhip gave him an Account of the Poſture of Affairs in Holland, at which his Majeſty ſeem'd well pleaſed. The King had order'd the Two Houſes to adjourn till Six a Clock this Evening; when being met, the Royal Aſſent was given by Commiſſion to theſe Bills: 1. An Act for granting an Aid to his Majeſty, by laying Duties upon Malt, Mum, Cyder and Perry. 2. An Act for the further Security of his Majeſty's Perſon, and the Succeſſion of the Crown in the Proteſtant Line, and extinguiſhing the Hopes of the pretended Prince of Wales, and all other Pretenders, and their open and ſecret Abettors. 3. An Act for enabling Lionel Earl of Orrery in the Kingdom of Ireland, by Sale of certain Lands and Tenements, to raiſe Money for Payment of his Debts, and ſettle other Lands to the Uſes and Purpoſes in that Act mentioned.

King's laſt Illneſs.

Acts paſſed by Commiſſion.

1701.

On Saturday Night an extraordinary Council was call'd, before whom the Phyſicians appear'd frequently, and at laſt acquainted them by Sir Thomas Millington, That all their Hopes, under God, depended upon the Uſe of thoſe Remedies they had already preſcribed, and upon his Majeſty's taking ſome little Suſtenance. Upon this the Duke of Devonſhire, and ſeveral other Noblemen, deſir'd Dr. Bidloo to preſs his Majeſty to take ſomething: Accordingly, Dr. Bidloo ſpoke to him in Dutch, and his Majeſty made Anſwer, Lift me up, and I'll take as much as I can of what is thought proper. Then he took ſome of Rawley's Cordial, with the Cordial Julep, and ſoon after ſome hot Claret. About the ſame Time he thank'd Bidloo for the great Care he had taken of his Perſon; adding to this Effect, I know you and the other learned Phyſicians have done all that your Art can do for my Relief, but finding all means ineffectual, I ſubmit. About Three a Clock on Sunday Morning he call'd again for Dr. Bidloo, and complain'd to him, That he had had a bad Night, and could not ſleep: Upon that, he ſat up, and lean'd on him, ſaying, I could ſleep in this Poſture; ſit nearer me, and hold me ſo for a little time. In this Poſture he ſlept about half an Hour, and when he awak'd, ſaid, You can bear me up no longer. Then he was held up by Mr. Freeman on the Right Side, and Mr. Sewell on the Left, both of them having Pillows in their Arms. Soon after, the Phyſicians gave notice, They were apprehenſive his Majeſty had not long to live: The Archbiſhop of Canterbury, who attended him in thoſe Extremes with his Prayers and proper Exhortations, adminiſtred the Sacrament to him about Five in the Morning, which his Majeſty received with firm Attention, and very grave Devotion. The Lords of the Privy-Council, with many of the Nobility and Gentry, attended in the adjoining Apartments, and ſeveral of 'em were call'd in at Times, to whom his Majeſty ſpoke a little, and then they withdrew. Amidſt all their Tears, his Majeſty did not betray the leaſt Concern or Fear of Death, but labour'd to ſpeak with Eaſe and Chearfulneſs; and particularly, when he talk'd a little to the Lord Overkirk, he rais'd his Voice in a diſtinguiſhing manner: He took Leave of all of 'em with a great deal of Satisfaction, and deliver'd to the Lord Albemarle the Keys of his Cloſet and Scriptore, telling him, He knew what to do with 'em. After Seven a Clock, He took Bidloo by the Hand, and breathing with great Difficulty, he ask'd him, If this could laſt long? The Doctor anſwering, No; He ask'd again, How long? To which the Doctor reply'd, An Hour, or an Hour and half; tho' you may be ſnatch'd away in the Twinkling of an Eye. After that, while the Doctor was feeling his Pulſe, his Majeſty took him again by the Hand, ſaying, I do not die yet; hold me faſt. Having taken a little of the Cordial Potion, he faintly enquir'd for the Earl of Portland, who immediately came to him, and plac'd his Ear as near as he could to his Majeſty's Mouth; but tho' his Majeſty's Lips were ſeen to move, his Lordſhip was not able to hear any diſtinct articulate Sound. About Eight a Clock, his Majeſty ſitting on his Bed in his Night Gown, and in the Arms of Mr. Sewell, one of the Pages of the Back-Stairs, he lean'd a little backwards towards the Report of the Phyſicians.

The King's laſt Agonies.

Left,

1701. Left, and ſhutting his Eyes, expir'd with two or three ſoft Gaſps. As ſoon as the Breath was out of his Royal Body, the Lords Lexington and Scarborough, who were then in Waiting, order'd Monſieur Ronjat to pull from the King's Left-Arm a Black Ribbon, which tied next to his Skin a Gold Ring with ſome Hair of the late Queen Mary. (a)

The King's Death.

Two Days after, the Royal Body was open'd; and the Phyſicians and Surgeons ſummon'd by the Privy-Council to aſſiſt at, and examine the Diſſection, made this Report.

Report of the Phyſicians upon Diſſection.

1. Upon the viewing the Body before the Diſſection, the following Appearances were remarkable: The Body in general was much emaciated: Both the Legs up to the Knees, and a little higher, as alſo the Right Hand and Arm, as far as the Elbow, were conſiderably ſwell'd: There was likewiſe on the Left Thigh, near the Hip, a Bladder full of Water, as big as a ſmall Pullet's Egg, reſembling a Blain.

2. Upon opening the Belly, the Guts were found of a livid Colour, and the Blood contained in their Veſſels black. The Gut called Ilion had in ſome places the Marks of a ſlight Inflammation. The Stomach, Pancreas, Meſentery, Liver, Gall, Bladder, Spleen, and Kidneys, were all ſound, and without Fault.

3. In the Thorax, or Cheſt, we obſerv'd, That the Right Side of the Lungs adher'd to the Pleura, and the Left much more: From which, upon Separation, there iſſued forth a Quantity of purulent or frothy Serum. The Upper Lobe on the Left Side of the Lungs, and the part of the Pleura next to it, were inflam'd to a Degree of Mortification: And this we look upon as the immediate Cauſe of the King's Death. From the Ventricles of the Heart, and the greater Blood-Veſſels ariſing out of them, were taken ſeveral large, tough, fleſh-like Subſtances, of the kind call'd Polypus. The Heart it ſelf was of the ſmaller Size, but firm and ſtrong.

4. Upon laying bare the Right Collar-Bone, we found it had been broken near the Shoulder, and well ſet. Some extravaſated Blood was lodg'd above and below the Fracture.

5. The Brain was perfectly ſound, and without any ſign of Diſtemper.

6. 'Tis very rare to find a Body with ſo little Blood as was ſeen in this: There being more found in his Lungs, than in all the Parts beſides put together. 1701.

Doctors preſent.	Surgeons preſent.
Sir Richard Blackmore,	Mr. Bernard,
Sir Theodore Colladon,	Mr. Cowper,
Dr. Hanes,	Mr. Gardner,
Dr. Harrel,	Mr. Ronjat, &c.
Dr. How,
Dr. Hutton,
Dr. Lawrence,
Sir Thomas Millington,
Profeſſor Bidloo, &c.

The Royal Body having been embalm'd, and for ſome time lain in State at Kenſington, the private Interment, in a Method adjuſted by the Lords of the Privy-Council, was perform'd on Sunday Night the 12th of April, in a ſolemn Proceſſion from the Palace at Kenſington, to the Collegiate Church of St. Peter's Weſtminſter, where the Royal Corps was laid into a Vault in Henry the VIIth's Chapel: And after the Office of Burial, perform'd by the Dean of Weſtminſter, and an Anthem ſung by the Choir, Clarenceux King of Arms concluded in theſe Words: Thus it hath pleaſed Almighty God to take out of this tranſitory Life to his Divine Mercy, the late moſt High, moſt Excellent, and moſt Mighty Monarch William the Third, by the Grace of God King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, and Sovereign of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter. Let us beſeech Almighty God, to bleſs and preſerve with long Life, Wealth, and Honour, and all Worldly Happineſs, the moſt High, moſt Excellent, and moſt mighty Princeſs, our Sovereign Lady Anne, now by the Grace of God Queen of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, and Sovereign of the moſt Noble Order of the Garter. God ſave Queen Anne. This being done, the ſeveral White-Staff Officers of his late Majeſty's Houſhold broke their White Staffs, and threw them into the Vault or Grave.

Interment of his Royal Body.

Towards the beginning of May, the laſt Will which his Majeſty had made in the Year 1695, and depoſited in the Hands of Monſieur Schuylemberg, was open'd in the Preſence of Mr. Stanhope and

(a) King William was always ready to countenance and promote any good Works of Piety, and Charity, and publick Good. And to inſtance only in this laſt Year of his Reign, there were theſe ſeveral Royal Acts and Deeds of doing Service to Religion and the Church of England: 1. A Charter granted by his Majeſty, upon Application made by the Archbiſhops and Biſhops, for the Erecting a Corporation or ſtanding Society, for the Propagation of the Goſpel in Foreign Parts. Given 16 June, 1701. —2. Letters Patent for a Charitable Collection throughout all England, towards Rebuilding the Ruins, and Repairing the Decayed Part of the Pariſh-Church of Rye in Suſſex. Given 23 June, 1701. —3. Letters Patent for a Charitable Collection throughout England, towards Rebuilding and Repairing the Pariſh-Church of Cheſtow, in the County of Monmouth; the Tower or Steeple whereof was much damaged by the Civil Wars, and the late Fall of it had demoliſh'd a great part of the Church. Given 18. November, 1701. —4. A Letter from his Majeſty to Henry Lord Biſhop of London, ſignifying, That a Brief granted in order to the Redemption of our Engliſh Slaves, under the Dominion of the Emperor of Morocco, doth fall ſhort ſeveral Thouſand Pounds; and therefore thinking fit, that a further Collection be made for this purpoſe, within London and Weſtminſter. Given at Hampton-Court, 20 Nov. 1701. —5. Letters Patent for a Charitable Collection throughout England, towards Rebuilding and Repairing the Pariſh-Church of Lutterworth, in the County of Leiceſter. Given 17 Feb. 1701-2. —6. His Majeſty's ready Care and Conſent for the better ſettling and preſerving the Cotton-Library at Weſtminſter, for the Benefit of the Publick. —7. His Favour to the Corporation for the Widows and Orphans of the Clergy; as acknowledg'd in an Addreſs of the Governors, preſented by Captain Theophilus Blechingdon, at Hampton-Court, Nov. 18. 1701. —8. His ſpecial Protection of the Church and Clergy; as duly acknowledged in the Humble Addreſs of the Archbiſhop, Biſhops, and reſt of the Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, in Convocation aſſembled. Preſented to his Majeſty at Kenſington, on Thurſday 22 Jan. 1701-2. With his Majeſty's Gracious Anſwer. I have heard Archbiſhop Tenniſon ſay, That in one of the laſt Opportunities he had of waiting on his Majeſty, the King was leaning on the Chimney-piece for more convenient Warmth, and ſaid to him, Come, my Lord, if you have any thing to propoſe for the Good of the Church, let me know it quickly; for I find I decay very faſt. — Above all, and without which, all others had been void, was, His wiſe and effectual Care for the Proteſtant Succeſſion, provided for by Two ſeveral Acts of his laſt Year; and One of them, his Bleſſed Dying Legacy, of admirable, and, we hope, perpetual Service to this Church and Nation; and, indeed, to the Proteſtant Intereſt and Balance of all Europe.

See, A Form of Prayers uſed by his Majeſty King William III. when He received the Holy Sacrament. Said to be drawn up at his Requeſt by Archbiſhop Tillotſon; and publiſh'd after his Death by John Biſhop of Norwich, from the Original Papers which his Majeſty conſtantly uſed. With a Preface by the Biſhop of London, 1704. 8°.

The Firſt Sermon preach'd before the Queen upon her Acceſſion to the Throne, at St. James's Chapel in Lent, on the 15th Day of March 1701-2. was by Gilbert Lord Biſhop

1701. and M. Smettau, Envoys from the Queen of Great Britain and the King of Pruſſia, and before the Agents of the Prince of Frieſland, Anhalt, and divers others, with ſeveral Members of the Council of State, and ſome Commiſſioners appointed by the Court of Juſtice in Holland. The Copy of it follows:

His Majeſty's laſt Will and Teſtament.

“WE William by the Grace of God King of Great Britain, Prince of Orange, &c. conſidering the Infirmity and Mortality of Man, the Certainty of Death, and the Uncertainty of the Time and Hour of it, have thought fit and reſolv'd, before we leave this Earthly Vale, to diſpoſe of the Temporal Goods which it hath pleaſed God to give us, as well Feodal as Allodial, by Virtue of a Grant from the States of Holland and Weſt Frieſland, bearing Date, June the 15th, 1673. Recommending firſt our Immortal Soul into the merciful Hands of God, and of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt; and our Mortal Body to the Earth; Revoking, Cancelling, and Annulling by theſe Preſents, all Teſtaments, Codicils, or other Diſpoſals, which we have hitherto made or executed; it being our Deſire that neither they, nor any of them ſhould be valid, or in any wiſe take Effect. But diſpoſing thus anew, we declare, That we have named and appointed, as by theſe Preſents we do name and appoint, our Couſin the Prince Friſon of Naſſaw, eldeſt Son of Prince Caſimir of Naſſaw, at preſent Stadtholder of Frieſland, our ſole and univerſal Heir of all our Eſtates, as well Feodal as Allodial, which we ſhall leave at the Day of our Death, reſerving to our ſelves to appoint him ſuch Guardians as we ſhall hereafter think fit.

“We farther declare, That we reſerve to our Selves the Power of Bequeathing under our Hand and private Sign Manual, ſuch Legacies and Gifts, as we ſhall hereafter think fit; Willing and Deſiring, That whether they be written by Us only, and ſign'd by Us, or written by another, and ſign'd by Us, they may have the ſame Force and Validity, as if they were particularly inſerted and expreſs'd in our Will. We declare all that is above-written, to be our Laſt Will and Teſtament; deſiring, that it may have, and take Effect, either as Teſtament, Codicil, Donation becauſe of Death, or in any other manner that may render it moſt valid and effectual, notwithſtanding any Neglects or Miſtakes that may be committed in it, which we deſire may be rectified and made good in the beſt manner that is poſſible.

“Naming and Appointing for Executors of this our Laſt Will and Teſtament, the States General of the United Provinces; deſiring them to accept of it, and to be pleaſed to execute this our Laſt Will and Teſtament. In Witneſs whereof, We have cauſed theſe Preſents to be written, and have ſigned them with our Hand and Sign Manual, and ſeal'd them with our Seal. At the Hague, October the 18th, 1695.

Sign'd,

William R.

The Seal of his Majeſty was put on the Side of it, impreſſed on Black Wax.

The Subſcription was as follows:

To Day, being the 19*th of* October, 1695. before me Adrian Van Stervelt, Publick Notary with Allow- 1701.

Biſhop of Sarum, and has been ſince publiſh'd by his Lordſhip, with ſome other Occaſional Sermons, 1713. 8°. He thought it proper for her Majeſty to hear this ſhort Character of her Great Predeceſſor: “We have ſeen a Perſon raiſed up, and long ſupported by very ſignal Providences, in a Courſe of Thirty Years, to be the Great Fence both of Liberty and Religion, againſt a Deluge of Conqueſt and Deſtruction, that was breaking in, and carrying All before it; till He, young and unexperienc'd as he was, ſtood in its way, and ſtopp'd its Fury. He reſcued his Country then, when it was almoſt quite ſwallow'd up, and from that Time he ſeem'd to be the Man, whom God had made ſo ſtrong for Himſelf. One Singularity of Providence with reſpect to Him, is very aſtoniſhing; That whereas he was often unſucceſsful in many Steps he made, he was yet ſucceſsful in the whole: An unſhaken Firmneſs remain'd in Himſelf; and a new Turn in Buſineſs made that what was loſt one way, was more than balanc'd by new and unlook'd-for Emergents. After he had recover'd and ſettled his own Country, he was called on to ſave us. I hope thoſe Two Great Years of 72 and 88, are not, and cannot be forgotten. We were at firſt deliver'd, and have been now, for Thirteen Years, preſerv'd by Him in ſo unaccountable a manner, that in the Progreſs of a long devouring War, one of the Greateſt and Longeſt in any Hiſtory, we have liv'd in profound Peace at Home, under a juſt and merciful Adminiſtration. His long Practice in Affairs; His Judgment, that was ſo exact, and of ſuch Penetration; the great Reputation he had gain'd all the World over; and the great Figure the Nation made in his Hands, all others centring in Him, or depending on Him; were too viſible to need any Enlargement.

The Nobleſt Part of the Character of King William, was, That part of Magnanimity in Him, that hated Treachery, and the Offer of any Trick, tho' to the greateſt Uſe and Service. I believe the Writer of the Secret Hiſtory of Europe, was furniſh'd with theſe Inſtances of it by the Lord Biſhop of Sarum, when he thus writes, Part II. p. 278. “How different are the Proceedings of Men truly Great, from ſuch as uſurp that Name. True Glory ſcorns all ſuch ignoble Ways of extending its Empire. That Greatneſs which does not conſiſt in the Title only, is always accompany'd with Virtue, and a virtuous Mind is incapable of conſenting to any Councils, that are not as Pure as they are Safe. Let us give ſome Inſtances of this Character in King William, and of the Return he made for the French King's Horrid Deſigns againſt his Life.

“About the Year 1682. His Majeſty, then Prince of Orange, receiv'd a Letter from an unknown Hand, who yet gave himſelf a Name; in which he offer'd to deliver Europe from all her Fears, by deſtroying the French King: he deſir'd only a Safe Refuge in Holland, and a ſmall Subſiſtence, much leſs than he ſhould leave behind him in France. The Anſwer to this Letter was to be left with the Poſt-maſter's Wife at Paris. And a Week after, he wrote another to the ſame purpoſe. The firſt Letter came to his Highneſs at Night at Loo, when Monſieur Dyckvelt happen'd to be with him. The Prince ſhew'd him the Letter, and deſir'd him to go to the Hague immediately, and deliver it to Monſieur D'Avaux, then the French Ambaſſador to the States. Monſieur Dyckvelt made ſuch haſt, that he was with the Ambaſſador next Morning, and gave him the Letter: Which he receiv'd with great Acknowment of the Prince's Generoſity, and ſent it to Paris; as he did the ſecond Letter alſo.

“I have read of another Tryal of his Majeſty's Generoſity, after he came to be King. An unknown Perſon writ to the Lord Biſhop of S. [Sarum] That he had a Propoſition of great Conſequence to make to his Majeſty, if he ſhould have his Promiſe that he might do it ſafely. This the King allows the Biſhop to do, and his Lordſhip writ to the Man by the ſame Method he had given. When he came to him, he told him, How long he had liv'd and ſerv'd at Verſailles; how well he knew that Court; and at laſt he offer'd to kill the French King. At this the Biſhop ſtarted up immediately, and ſaid, He thought his Majeſty was too well known for any to dare to come with ſuch a Propoſition. He hop'd alſo, he himſelf had been ſo well known, that none ſhould have made it by him; adding, He was ſorry a Promiſe of Safety was given him: And bid him be gone out of his Sight. When my Lord gave an Account of this next Day, the King thought he had carry'd the Matter of Promiſe too far; for no Promiſe was to be underſtood to relate to ſuch Crimes; and therefore he wiſh'd the Biſhop had ſecur'd him; ordering him, to be ſure to do it, if ever he could again ſet Eye on him.

“I will only add one Inſtance more of King William's generous Carriage towards his Enemies, that would have “done

1701. Allowance of the Court of Holland, and reſiding at the Hague, in the Preſence of the undernamed Witneſſes, Appear'd William III. by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain, Prince of Orange, &c. being known to me the ſaid Notary, and being in perfect Health of Body, exhibited to me the ſaid Notary, this preſent Paper, ſeal'd in Four Places with his Majeſty's Seal, and ſew'd with Black Silk, and ſaid, That in it was contain'd the Laſt Will and Teſtament of his Majeſty, and deſir'd, that it ſhould take Effect as ſuch, tho' all the Forms requiſite might not have been obſerved.

This was done and paſſed at the Hague, in the Preſence of William Earl of Portland, and William de Schuylembourg, who were deſir'd to be Witneſſes to it, and who, together with his Majeſty and me the ſaid Notary, ſign'd, theſe Preſents, the Day and Year above-written.

It was ſign'd, William, KING. Portland, William de Schuylembourg. And lower, In the Preſence of me Adrian Van Stervelt, Notary.

It agrees with the Original, ſign'd,

P. Van Aſſendelft.

By a Codicil annex'd to this Will, the Lordſhip of Breevort, and 200000 Gilders were given as a Legacy to the Earl of Albemarle.

His Majeſty's Death was moſt reſpectfully condol'd by the Queen, in this Declaration made at her firſt Sitting in the Privy-Council at St. James's, on March 8.

My Lords,

The Queen condoles the Death of his late Majeſty.

I Am extremely ſenſible of the General Misfortune to theſe Kingdoms, in the unſpeakable Loſs of the King, and of the great Weight and Burden it brings in particular to my Self; which nothing would encourage me to undergo, but the great Concern I have for the Preſervation of our Religion, and the Laws and Liberties of my Country. All theſe being as dear to me, as they can be to any Perſon whatſoever, you may depend upon it, That no Pains nor Diligence ſhall be wanting on my Part to defend and ſupport them; to maintain the Succeſſion in the Proteſtant Line, and the Government in Church and State, as it is by Law Eſtabliſh'd.

I think it proper, upon this Occaſion of my firſt ſpeaking to you, to declare my own Opinion of the Importance of carrying on all the Preparations we are making to oppoſe the Great Power of France: And I ſhall loſe no Time in giving our Allies all Aſſurances, That nothing ſhall be wanting on my Part, to purſue the true Intereſt of England, together with Theirs, for the Support of the Common Cauſe.

In order to theſe Ends, I ſhall always be ready to ask the Advice of my Council, and of both Houſes in Parliament, and deſirous to countenance and employ all those who ſhall heartily concur and join with me in ſupporting and maintaining the preſent Eſtabliſhment and Conſtitution, againſt all Enemies and Oppoſers whatſoever. 1701.

Her Majeſty gave a farther Teſtimony of her grateful Reſpect to the Memory of King William, by this Letter to the States General.

High and mighty Lords, Our very good Friends, Allies and Confederates,

And pays a grateful Reſpect to his Memory.

"IT is not without a ſenſible Grief, that we "find our ſelves obliged to notifie to you, the "afflicting News of the Death of the moſt High "and moſt Mighty Prince William the Third, "King of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, "our deareſt Brother of Glorious Memory. On "Monday laſt he was attack'd with a Fever, "which increas'd ſo much the Days following, "that, notwithſtanding all poſſible Remedies, "He died on Sunday about Eight a Clock in the "Morning. 'Tis certainly a very great Loſs to "all Europe, and particularly to your State, the "Intereſt of which he always maintain'd with "ſo much Valour, Prudence, Zeal and Conduct. "And ſince it hath pleaſed God, That we ſhould "ſucceed him upon the Throne of theſe King-"doms, we ſhall likewiſe ſucceed him in his In-"clinations to entertain a conſtant Union and "Friendſhip with your Lordſhips, and to main-"tain all the Alliances which have been made "with your State, by our ſaid Moſt Dear Brother, "and our other Predeceſſors; and alſo to con-"cur with you in all ſuch Meaſures as ſhall be "neceſſary to preſerve the Common Liberty of "Europe, and to reduce the Power of France "within due Bounds. This is what we would "pray you to reſt aſſured of, and that we ſhall "always look upon the Intereſt of England, and "that of your State, to be inſeparable, as being "united by ſuch Ties that cannot be broke, "without the greateſt Prejudice to both Nati-"ons. So we conclude, praying God, High and "Mighty Lords, our very good Friends, Allies and "Confederates, to take you into his Holy and Worthy "Protection.

Given at our Court at St. James's the Tenth Day of March, 1701. And of our Reign the Firſt.

Your very good Friend,

ANNE R.

And underneath,

J. Vernon.

The

" done any thing, tho' of never ſo wicked a Nature, to have " rid themſelves of Him; they being afraid of nothing ſo " much, as of his Courage, Wiſdom, and Virtue. When " King James was in Ireland, a Propoſition was made by " one, who had ſerv'd him, and lov'd him, which he " thought might put an End to the War: He ſent it to the " King by the ſame Prelate, the Biſhop of S. [Sarum] and " it was this: That a Third Rate Ship, well mann'd, and " well commanded, might be ſent to St. George's Channel, " and that when they ſhould come near Dublin, they ſhould " have Orders to declare for the late King, and ſend him " a Meſſage about it; which he who made the Propoſition, " and was to go along in the Ship, ſaid, he would himſelf " carry; not doubting but upon that Invitation, King " James would preſently come aboard; and then they " ſhould ſail away with him. But he added Two Things; " the one was, That they ſhould have Orders not to bring " him to England, or to make him a Priſoner; but to carry " him to ſome Port of Spain or Italy, and there ſet him " aſhore. The other was, That he ſhould have Ten thou-" ſand Guineas conſign'd in the Ship, to be given him in " the Place where they ſhould land the King, that he might " not be in too naked a Condition. When his Majeſty " heard all this, he ſaid, It look'd very plauſible, and he ve- "rily believ'd it would take; yet, without taking Time to " think of it, he ſaid, He would not meddle with it: He ha- "ted Tricks, and would be in none.

Among the many juſt and grateful Acknowledgments paid to the Memory of King William, none can run more agreeable, than in the good Words of Dr. William Fleetwood (now Biſhop of Ely) in his Sermon at St. Auſtin's in the City of London, in 1701. upon the Death of King William. —— " Though he is now no more capable or ſenſible of any " grateful Honours that may fall upon his Perſon; yet, for " our own ſake, we ſhould glorify his Noble Acts, and " ſhould purſue his Memory with all the Praiſe and Grati-" tude that it deſerves; to ſatisfy the World Abroad, how " much we value our Religion and our Liberties, and how " cloſely we will abide by them, by ſhewing how we va-" lued, lov'd and honour'd Him, Living and Dead, whom " we eſteem'd the Great Preſerver of them both. It ſhould " not,

1701.

His Memory vilified by the French.

The firſt Reflections that were publickly made on the deceaſed King, came from the French Court, who had moſt Reaſon to be angry with him. The Sieur de Bane, whom the French King had lately inveſted with the Title of Reſident in Holland, preſented a Memorial to the States; wherein he was to inſinuate, That by the Death of King William, "they were now to recover their Time of Liberty, and be no longer under Violence and Conſtraint: For now their Republick was reſtored to it ſelf, and their own Spirit was to govern, and their own Intereſts alone to be conſulted." The States, in their Anſwer, paid this profound Veneration to the Memory of their late Friend and Supporter.

Vindicated by the States of Holland.

"Their High and Mighty Lordſhips are very much ſurprized to ſee, that this whole Memorial ſeems founded upon this, That they are now more at Liberty to take ſuch Reſolutions as they think expedient, than formerly. Doubtleſs, this has reference to the Death of his Majeſty the late King of Great Britain, of Immortal Memory: But herein the ſaid Sieur Reſident has extremely deceived himſelf, for want of underſtanding the Conſtitution of their Government. That he ought to know, That their High and Mighty Lordſhips have heretofore had as much Liberty as at preſent, to debate, and to take all ſuch Reſolutions as they judged neceſſary and uſeful for the Good and Preſervation of their State. It is true, they cannot enough deplore their Misfortune, to ſee themſelves deprived of the Direction and Conduct of a Prince, whoſe Wiſdom, Moderation and Valour, will be famed as long as the World endures. A Prince, whoſe Heroick Actions, and whoſe Merits from this Republick will never be forgot: And, in a Word, whoſe Death is lamented in this Country by all Perſons whatſoever, from the Meaneſt to the Higheſt. That the Councils of his ſaid Majeſty having never had any other Aim, both in Deed and in Word, than the Preſervation of their Liberty and Religion; and their High and Mighty Lordſhips being entirely convinced of this Truth, as having found the Benefit thereof, they are reſolved to follow the ſame Principles, and not to depart from the Alliances contracted during the Life of his ſaid Majeſty, but to perſiſt in the Meaſures taken purſuant to thoſe Alliances; and, in ſhort, to make uſe at all Times of the Means God has put into their Hands, for maintaining the Liberty of Europe.

1701.

Slanders and idle Stories.

The little Tools of France were likewiſe working in England, to depreciate the Memory of the late King, by Libels, and Verſes, and Healths, ſo very rude and impudent, that they ſhew'd nothing but ſorry Wit and implacable Malice. But the deepeſt Fetch of Slander, was a confident Story invented by them, That the King had form'd a Plot to exclude her preſent Majeſty from her Succeſſion to the Crown, and that at his Deceaſe, there were Papers found in his Cloſet to that purpoſe. This Sham was ſo induſtriouſly obtruded upon the People, that the Houſe of Lords thought themſelves concern'd to make Enquiry into this Matter, and to vindicate the Honour of their late Royal Sovereign; which they did in this noble Reſolution, May 5th, 1702.

Refuted by the Lords.

"Whereas their Lordſhips have been informed, that there has been a Report ſpread abroad, That among the late King's Papers, ſome Paper or Papers have been found, tending to the Prejudice of her preſent Majeſty, or her Succeſſion to the Crown: And whereas the Lord Preſident, the Lord Steward, the Lord Chamberlain, the Earl of Marlborough, and the Earl of Albemarle, who were the Perſons appointed by her Majeſty to inſpect the ſaid Papers, have, at the Deſire of the Houſe, ſeverally declared, That amongſt the late King's Papers, they did not ſee or find any Paper or Papers in the leaſt tending to the Prejudice of her Majeſty, or her Succeſſion to the Crown, or to her Prejudice in any reſpect whatſoever, or which might give any Ground or Colour for ſuch Report: It is thereupon reſolved, by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, That the ſaid Report is Groundleſs, Falſe, Villainous, and Scandalous, to the Diſhonour of the late King's Memory, and highly tending to the Diſſervice of her preſent Majeſty.

"It is Ordered by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, That the Matter of Fact aforeſaid, and the Reſolution of this Houſe thereupon, be laid before her Majeſty by his Grace the Duke of Bolton, the Earl Marſhal, the Earl of Radnor, the Earl of Stamford, the Earl of Scarborough, and the Lord Ferrers: And that they do humbly deſire her Majeſty from this Houſe, That her Majeſty

---

"not, methinks, be ſaid, That all the World beſides ſhould know how to prize his Life better than we, who had the Uſe of it. Can all the World beſides admire that Probity, that Juſtice, and unblemiſh'd Honour, that adorn'd his Life, and we alone be inſenſible, who reap'd the Fruits of them? I challenge all our Hiſtories to produce a Prince in all reſpects his Equal: I call the differing Humours, Intereſts, and Affections, and Religions of the Rulers of the World, to witneſs, Whether they ever found a Man to centre in, like Him: With whom they could ſo unſuſpiciouſly concert their Meaſures, ſo ſafely truſt their Intereſts, and on whoſe Honour they depended ſo entirely. Could all this Confidence be built, but on the Experience of his great Diſcernment, his mighty Knowledge how to balance Powers, and moſt diſintereſted Integrity and Virtue? Where are the Bargains that he ever ſtruck for his particular Advantage? What Selfiſhneſs has yet appear'd in all his Conduct for more than Thirty Years? He might have rais'd his Seat upon his Native Country's Liberties; his very Enemies would have ſupported him in thoſe Pretences: But he affected no Honours, but what were freely offer'd him, there or elſewhere; And if the Hands that reach'd them, would have pull'd them back, his Ambition, that was only uſeful, knew how to wear, as well as to deſerve them. Can theſe, and other his great Qualities (a few of which ſerve to ennoble other Princes) immortalize his Name Abroad, make him the Standard of True Honour, and all Royal Virtues, and we at Home think meanly of them? No Infamy, I think, could fall upon our Country, equal to this Ingratitude and Blindneſs; nor more diſcourage brave Attempts, either Abroad or at Home, in our Defence, than to forget or ſlight ſuch Virtue. I would not ſeem to preſage Things ſo diſhonourable and unworthy of a ſenſible and brave People; if all Nations did not abound with poor and impotent, with dark, malicious, and malignant Spirits, that feed upon Detraction, Calumny and Lies, and are ſet on Fire of Hell; and our own as much as others, if not diſcountenanc'd by Men of Wiſdom, Virtue and Authority. I will end this Head, when I have wiſhed, That neither We at Home, nor our Allies Abroad, may ever feel this Loſs ſit heavier on us, than it does at preſent.

The ſame excellent Preacher, in a Sermon on the Queen's Acceſſion to the Throne, in 1703. told the People, That the Reign of King William will be as memorable and welcome to Poſterity, as any we have had. —— "Let but a Reign be memorable for true and ſolid Benefits deſign'd and done to a Nation, and it will eat out all the Teeth of Malice, and live in Praiſe, in ſpite of all Oppoſition in the World. This Day put an End to that Great Life, which all the World of Friends and Enemies, knew how to value, except a few poor Engliſh Wretches!

"will

1701. "will give Order to Mr. Attorney General, to "proſecute, with the utmoſt Severity of Law, "the Authors or Publiſhers of the above-men- "tioned, or ſuch like ſcandalous Reports.

In purſuance of this Reſolution and Proceeding, the Duke of Bolton acquainted the Houſe, That he and the other Lords had attended her Majeſty, and had preſented their Lordſhips Reſolution to her. In Anſwer whereunto, her Majeſty was pleaſed to ſay:

I Am very ready to do any thing of this Kind: I will give Directions to Mr. Attorney General, effectually to proſecute the Authors and Publiſhers of ſuch falſe Reports.

Libelous Pamphlet

While their Lordſhips were doing this Juſtice to the Merits of King William, a Complaint was made to them of an inſolent Paſſage in the Preface of a Printed Book, intituled, The Hiſtory of the Laſt Parliament begun at Weſtminſter the 10th Day of February, in the 12th Year of King William, A. D. 1700. The Paſſage was read to the Houſe, as followeth: " And, perhaps, there "was a third Thing in proſpect, of deeper Reach "than all theſe; which was, That ſhould it "have pleaſed God, for our Sins, to have ſnatch'd "from us the King on the ſudden, by Chance of "War, or other fatal Accident, during the Tumult of Arms Abroad, and the Civil Diſorders "they had raiſed amongſt us at Home, and a numerous, corrupt, licentious Party throughout "the Nation, from which the Houſe of Commons was ſometimes not free; they might entertain Hopes, from the Advantage of being at "the Helm, and the Aſſiſtance of their Rabble, "to have put in Practice their own Schemes, and "to have given us a new Model of Government "of their own Projection; and ſo to have procured to themſelves a laſting Impunity, and "to have mounted their own Beaſt the Rabble, "and driven the ſober part of the Nation, like "Cattle, before them.

" That this is no Conjecture, will readily appear to any conſidering Perſons, from the "Treatment her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs of "Denmark, the Heireſs Apparent to the Crown, "met with all along from them and all their "Party. They were not contented to ſhew her "a conſtant Neglect and Slight themſelves, but "their whole Party were inſtructed not only to "treat her with Diſreſpect, but Spight: They "were buſy to traduce her with falſe and ſcandalous Aſperſions; and ſo far they carry'd the "Affront, as to make her at one Time almoſt "the common Subject of the Tittle-Tattle of "almoſt every Coffee-Houſe and Drawing-Room, "which they promoted with as much Zeal, Application and Venom, as if a Bill of Excluſion "had then been on the Anvil, and theſe were the "Introductory Ceremonies.

The Paſſage being thus read, it was thereupon Ordered by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, That Francis Coggan, Robert Gibſon, and Thomas Hodgſon, for whom the ſaid Book was mentioned to be printed, ſhould, and were thereby required to attend that Houſe on the Saturday following, at Eleven a Clock. But their Lordſhips in the mean time being inform'd, That Dr. Drake own'd himſelf to be the Author of the Book, and that he deſired he might be appointed to attend at the ſame time; thereupon it was order'd, That he ſhould attend that Houſe on Saturday the ſame Hour: When, after reading the Order made the 6th, at the Deſire of Dr. Drake, for his Attendance that Day, the Houſe took into their Conſideration the above-mention'd Paragraph. After the Reading whereof, Dr. Drake was call'd in; and the Order being read to him, the Lord Keeper ask'd him, What he had to ſay concerning the ſaid Book? And the Book and the ſaid Paragraph being ſhew'd him, he own'd he writ the Book, and that Paragraph in particular; and he thought he had juſt Reaſon to write it, he having heard her Highneſs talk'd of diſreſpectfully in almoſt every Coffee-Houſe. Then he withdrew, and after ſome Debate, was call'd in again; and the Lord Keeper told him, The Houſe was not ſatisfy'd with what he had ſaid, but thought he trifled; and required him to acquaint the Houſe with the Grounds of his writing that Paragraph. He anſwer'd, He found it mentioned in divers Anonymous Pamphlets publiſh'd at that Time, and hop'd, it was no hurt to anſwer thoſe Pamphlets, and deſired Time to recollect what thoſe Pamphlets were: And then withdrew.

After ſome Time he was called in again, and asked the following Queſtions, viz.

The Author queſtioned.

If he could charge any Perſon or Perſons in the Kingdom, with the Matters aſſerted by him in that Paragraph?

To which he anſwered, That he did not know any ſuch Perſon.

Then he was asked, Whether he had heard any other Perſon ſay, That they could charge any Perſon whatſoever with the Matters contained in that Paragraph?

He ſaid, He did not know of any ſuch Perſon.

Being further ask'd, If he had any other Grounds beſides the Pamphlets? And what theſe Pamphlets were?

He ſaid, He had no other Grounds beſides the Pamphlets; and named the ſeveral Pamphlets following, as his Reaſon for writing the ſaid Paragraph, viz. The Two Legion Letters; The Black Liſt; The Jura Populi Anglicani; and Toland's Reaſons for inviting over the Princeſs of Hanover. And being asked, If in any one of theſe Pamphlets, there was any thing ſaid about ſetting aſide the preſent Queen? he anſwered, He did not remember there was.

Then, he being withdrawn, the ſaid Paragraph was taken into Conſideration, and it was propoſed to paſs a Cenſure thereupon. And after Debate, this Queſtion was put, That a Cenſure ſhould be then put upon the ſaid Paragraph. It was reſolved in the Affirmative.

And cenſured by the Lords.

Then this Queſtion was put, That in the Preface of the Book, intituled, The Hiſtory of the laſt Parliament begun at Weſtminſter the 10th Day of February, in the Twelfth Year of the Reign of King William, Anno Domini 1700. there were ſeveral Expreſſions which were Groundleſs, Falſe, and Scandalous; tending to create Jealouſies in her Majeſty of her People, and to cauſe great Miſunderſtandings, Fears and Diſputes amongſt the Queen's Subjects, and to diſturb the Peace and Quiet of the Kingdom. It was Reſolved in the Affirmative, in theſe Words: " It is Reſolved and Declared, by the Lords Spiritual and "Temporal in Parliament aſſembled, That in "the Preface of a Book, intituled, The Hiſtory "of the laſt Parliament begun at Weſtminſter the "10th Day of February, in the Twelfth Year of the "Reign of King William, Anno Domini 1700. "(written by Dr. Drake, as he owned at the Bar) "there are ſeveral Expreſſions, which are "Groundleſs, Falſe, and Scandalous, tending to "create Jealouſies in her Majeſty of her People, "and to cauſe great Miſunderſtandings, Fears, "and Diſputes amongſt the Queen's Subjects, and "to diſturb the Peace and Quiet of the Kingdom."

 After

1701. After which, they order'd her Majeſty's Attorney General forthwith effectually to proſecute the ſaid Dr. Drake, for having writ the ſaid Paragraph.'

State of Religion. We left the Convocation ſitting, and the Archbiſhop and Biſhops aſſerting and maintaining the ancient Rights and Uſages of the Metropolitan and his Suffragans, in ſuch Provincial Aſſemblies. The Inferior Clergy did not care to proſecute the Argument in Writing, but on Monday the 31ſt of March, firſt in a Committee, and then in a Houſe, they voted their own Right to adjourn themſelves; and then the Prolocutor went up with a Meſſage to the Archbiſhop and Biſhops, That they had conſidered of their Lordſhip's Reply to the Paper brought up by the Lower Houſe, which did not give them the Satiſfaction they deſired; and therefore they pray'd a FREE CONFERENCE with their Lordſhips, upon the Subject Matter in Debate. Then the Prolocutor and the Members with him, withdrew, and being ſoon after called in, the Archbiſhop ſpoke to them as follows: We receiv'd your verbal Meſſage, and took the ſame into Conſideration. And whereas we ſent you Two Queſtions in Writing, to which you anſwered in Writing; and we gave a large and diſtinct Anſwer to the ſame in Writing, in which there were ſeveral Quotations referring to Matters of Fact; We therefore expect an Anſwer in Writing to the ſame, and we ſhall then take the Matter into further Conſideration, and deſire no Time may be loſt. The Prolocutor replying, That their Anſwer would take up about Twenty Sheets; his Grace took Occaſion to declare, That he did not confine them to Length or Breadth, but expected their Anſwer in Writing.

Proceedings in Convocation.

But in ſpite of theſe Admonitions and Canonical Commands, a Majority in the Lower Houſe were reſolved not to join Iſſue in the Merits of the Cauſe, by any Intercourſe in Writing, but to inſiſt on the Parliamentary Practice of a Free Conference; a Word that never appeared in the Acts of any former Convocation. And therefore they would ſend no other written Paper, but of Reaſons for not writing; which they preſented on Saturday the 5th of April.

Reaſons of the Lower-Houſe.

To the Moſt Reverend his Grace the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and to the Right Reverend the Biſhops his Suffragans, of the Upper Houſe of Convocation.

The Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, aſſembled in the Lower Houſe of the ſaid Convocation, in Anſwer to the Papers ſent down by your Grace and your Lordſhips to the Lower Houſe by their Prolocutor, on Saturday the 22d of March laſt paſt, touching Adjournments and Prorogations:

Moſt Humbly Repreſent,

"THAT your Grace and your Lordſhips "having ſent down Two Queſtions to this "Houſe by our Prolocutor, which we did appre-"hend to be of the higheſt Importance to our "Sitting and Acting according to the undoubted "Uſage of former Convocations, we conceive "it became us not to ſuffer too long, by our own "Neglect, either in the Exerciſe of our juſt "Rights, or in the Opinion of your Grace and "your Lordſhips, for want of a ſpeedy Anſwer "to thoſe Queſtions.

"In Conſideration whereof, this Houſe having "agreed to the Report of the Committee, and "thereby made it their own Act, did conceive "that the Prolocutor being ſent up to attend "your Grace and your Lordſhips therewith, "might, verbo tenus, ſupply the Want of any "written Form. And in order to our giving "your Grace and your Lordſhips the moſt ſpee-"dy Satisfaction herein that might be, we thought "this Method more adviſable; than to have de-"ferr'd our Anſwer longer for want of Form; "wherein nevertheleſs we did neither then deſign, "nor do for the future intend, to be wanting to "your Grace and your Lordſhips.

"And we take this Occaſion moſt humbly to "profeſs, That it is far from our Intentions, in "any reſpect, to derogate from thoſe juſt and le-"gal Rights, which belong to your Grace as Pre-"ſident of the Convocation of this Province; be-"ing as unwilling to contribute to any injurious "Diminution thereof, as we are deſirous to con-"tinue in the Poſſeſſion and Uſe of ſuch other "Rights, as we conceive do juſtly belong to us, "who conſtitute the Lower Houſe of Convocati-"on, and which we apprehend to be neceſſary to "the Preſervation of the Fundamental Conſtitu-"tion thereof.

"And as to the Subject Matter of the afore-"ſaid Papers, and the Arguments therein ob-"jected againſt our Report, whereunto the ſaid "Papers do refer; we crave Leave moſt humbly "to acquaint your Grace and your Lordſhips, "that having fully debated, and ſeriouſly conſi-"dered the Weight of the ſame amongſt our "ſelves, we conceive our ſelves upon the whole "Matter, obliged to declare, That we find not "ſufficient Reaſon to recede from our ſaid Re-"port, or any part thereof; but have been in-"duc'd to conclude, That the Lower Houſe of "Convocation has Power to Adjourn it ſelf. "Which Concluſion being the Reſult of mature "Deliberation, and neceſſary (as we conceive) "to be maintained for ſupporting the Funda-"mental Conſtitution of our Engliſh Convoca-"tion; we know not how to juſtifie our ſelves, "either to the Friends or Enemies of that Con-"ſtitution, ſhould we, under the Force of ſuch "Convictions, depart from the ſaid Report, and "not profeſs our ſelves upon this Occaſion, to "be ready, with all Dutifulneſs and Submiſſion, "to give ſuch farther Proof of each part thereof, "in the regular way of a Free Conference, as "may ſhew the Inſufficiency of thoſe Objections, "which have been made againſt it, and put a "ſpeedy End to the preſent Controverſie. We "do therefore now again make our humble Ap-"plication to your Grace, and your Lordſhips, to "appoint a Time for ſuch Free Conference in "order thereunto.

"In which humble Suit we are the more preſ-"ſing, on the Account of the near Approach of "the Feſtival of Eaſter, and that Receſs which "either Houſe may think fit to make during that "Solemnity. And the Arguments and Inſtances "in your Lordſhips Paper are ſo numerous, that "a particular Diſcuſſion thereof in Writing, "would not conſiſt with the joint and earneſt De-"ſire of both Houſes, as we humbly apprehend, "to have a Controverſie of this Nature ſpeedily "determined, in order to their proceeding upon "ſuch other Buſineſs as the World may juſtly "expect from them.

In the mean time, his Grace and the Biſhops were willing to give all poſſible Satisfaction to the Inferior Clergy, upon their Complaint of Mr. Toland's Book: And, to go by Precedent, the ſafeſt Guide, they carefully enquir'd what had been formerly done in ſuch Caſes; and found in the Convocation of 1689, theſe Steps of Proceeding.

Proceedings of the Archbiſhop and Biſhops.

"Firſt,

1701. "Firſt, That there had been brought up a Meſ-" ſage from the Lower Houſe, on December the " 11th, 1689. in theſe Words: " We are commanded by the Houſe humbly to repreſent to your Lordſhips, That there are ſeveral Books of very dangerous Conſequence to the Chriſtian Religion, and in particular to the Church of England; viz. Notes upon Athanaſius's Creed, and Two Letters relating to the preſent Convocation, newly come Abroad; and to deſire your Lordſhips Advice, in what way, and how far ſafely, and without incurring the Penalties of the Stat. of 25 Hen. VIII. the Convocation may proceed towards preventing the Publiſhing the like ſcandalous Books for the future, and for the inflicting the Cenſures of the Church, according to the Canons, upon the Authors of them.

" Secondly, That the Prolocutor was ordered to " bring the Books he complain'd of.

" Thirdly, That Seſſ. 12. after the Preſident and " Biſhops had conſider'd the ſaid Books, they ſent " for the Prolocutor, and declared to him, that " thoſe Books were of pernicious Conſequence; " but they could not yet find what Power they " had to proceed in this Matter.

" Fourthly, That in the laſt Seſſions of that " Convocation, the Preſident acquainted the " Lower Houſe, That he and the Biſhops were ſen-" ſible of the Evil of thoſe Books; but having con-" ſulted the Learned in both the Laws, they under-" ſtood, that the particular Courts had Power to pro-" ceed againſt the Authors of ſuch Books; but that " they (as a Convocation) did not think it proper to " meddle in it: Or to that Effect.

Committee of Biſhops to conſider of Mr. Toland's Book.

After the Report of theſe former Proceedings in a like Caſe, there was a Committee of Biſhops appointed to examine Toland's Book; who accordingly read it, and found therein ſeveral Poſitions, as they conceived, of moſt dangerous Conſequence; and one in particular, which they look'd on as the Foundation of all the reſt; of which the Lower Houſe had not taken notice: And therefore they made this Report.

" UPon Peruſal of the Book that was brought " up from the Lower Houſe, intituled, " Chriſtianity not myſterious, by John Toland (which " ſaid Book was of the Second Edition, printed " in the Year 1696.) we find in the Second " Chapter thereof, which is intitled, Of the Au-" thority of Revelation, theſe following Words, " Page 38, 39.

——Revelation was not a neceſſitating Motive of Aſſent, but a Mean of Information. ——We ſhould not confound the way we came to the Knowledge of a thing, with the Grounds we have to believe it. ——A Man may inform me concerning a thouſand Matters I never heard of before, and of which I ſhould not ſo much as think, if I were not told: Yet I believe nothing purely upon his Word, without Evidence in the Things themſelves. Not the bare Authority of him that ſpeaks, but the clear Conception I form of what he ſays, is the Ground of my Perſuaſion.

" Which Words manifeſtly importing a Denial " of the Authority of Divine Revelation, and " particularly tending to the Subverſion of the " Chriſtian Faith: And the ſame Deſign alſo " appearing in many other Places of the ſaid " Book; ſome of which are remark'd in the Pa-" per affix'd to it by the Lower Houſe of Convo-" cation: It is therefore by the Archbiſhop, with " Conſent of his Brethren, recommended to the " Biſhop in whoſe Dioceſe the Author of that " Book doth or ſhall reſide, to call him to ac-" count for that Book; and as he ſhall ſee Cauſe, " to proceed thereupon, according to the Eccle-" ſiaſtical Laws.

" And it is alſo to be conſidered, what may " further be done for the Prevention of the pub-" liſhing of the like pernicious Books for the " future. 1701.

When this Report of a Committee of Biſhops was made to the Upper-Houſe, they were all unanimouſly of Opinion, to proceed (as far as legally they could) againſt the Book and the Author. But conſidering the Reſult in Convocation 1689, founded on the Opinion of Lawyers; they alſo agreed before they went further, to adviſe with Council Learned in the Law; and to that end drew up the Two following Queries:

Queſtions in Law.

1. Whether the Convocation giving an Opinion concerning a Book, that it is Heretical, Impious, and Immoral, is contrary to any Law? 2. Whether the Words in the affix'd Paper (before-recited) are ſuch an Opinion as is contrary to any Law? When their Lordſhips had received the Judgment of ſome eminent Lawyers hereupon, they then drew up this Anſwer of the Archbiſhop and Biſhops, to the Repreſentation of the Lower Houſe of Convocation, concerning Toland's, and other Books. " Upon " our conſulting with Council Learned in the " Law, concerning Heretical, Impious, and Im-" moral Books, and particularly concerning a " Book of Toland's ſent up to us from the Lower " Houſe; We do not find, how, without a " Licence from the King, which we have not " yet received, we can have ſufficient Authority " to cenſure Judicially any ſuch Books: But, " on the contrary, we are adviſed, That by ſo " doing, both Houſes of Convocation may in-" cur the Penalties of the Statute of 25 Hen-" ry VIII.

Anſwer of the Archbiſhop & Biſhops to a Paper of the Lower Houſe.

On the ſame Day, April the 8th, another Paper was delivered to the Prolocutor and Clergy, intitled, The Anſwer of the Archbiſhop and his Brethren the Biſhops, to the Paper brought up by the Prolocutor from the Lower Houſe, upon Saturday, April the 5*th*, 1701.

" THE Archbiſhop, Preſident of the Convo-" cation of this Province, and his Brethren " the Biſhops, do declare, That they hold them-" ſelves obliged to maintain and preſerve the an-" cient fundamental Conſtitution of the Chriſtian " Church, the Government and Diſcipline of " the Church of England, as now by Law Eſta-" bliſhed, and all the ancient Uſages of Convo-" cation.

" And as they will always have a due Regard " to the juſt Rights of the Lower Houſe in all " Points; ſo they neither ought nor can depart " from thoſe Rights which are veſted in them by " the Conſtitution of the Catholick Church in " general, and of the Church of England in par-" ticular: Which they find by immemorial Cu-" ſtom and Practice, have belong'd to the Arch-" biſhop and Biſhops of this Province, and accor-" dingly have been exerciſed by them in the Up-" per Houſe.

" And therefore the Archbiſhop and Biſhops, " having carefully ſearched the Regiſters, and " followed the regular Methods and Precedents " they found therein, cannot but take notice, " That the Proceedings of the Lower Houſe have " been irregular, and without Precedent in ſundry " Particulars. Such as their appointing Commit-" tees of the whole Houſe, which we do not find " to have been ever done before: And their aſſu-" ming a Power in that Houſe, to give Leave to " their Members to be abſent, which of Right " belongs to the Preſident only.

" But the Inſtances now chiefly to be conſidered, " are thoſe in the laſt Paper brought up by the " Prolocutor.

 " Where-

1701.

“ Whereas the Archbiſhop and Biſhops had given a full and diſtinct Anſwer to every Particular contain'd in a ſhort Paper, brought up by the Prolocutor from the Lower Houſe, concerning Adjournments and Prorogations: They expected, that either they would have acquieſced in that Anſwer, or ſhew'd a Reaſon why they would not, by returning at leaſt ſome kind of Reply to the Arguments and Authorities by which that Anſwer was ſupported and confirmed.

“ The Lower Houſe did neither of theſe, but to our great Surprize, ſent up a Paper, in which they declare, That they are come to Reſolutions and Concluſions; and then ſay, That they conceive thoſe Reſolutions are neceſſary to be maintain'd, and they cannot, under the Force of theſe Convictions, depart from them; and all this without offering any Reaſon on their ſide, or anſwering any of ours.

“ This is a Method altogether new, and ſuch as can never make a fair End of any Controverſie.

“ The Way which they propoſe to put an End to the Matter, is by a Free Conference; which it ſeems ſtrange that they ſhould ask, after their having declared, that they are come to Reſolutions and Concluſions, which they cannot but conceive neceſſary to be maintained by the Force of their Convictions. This Declaration of theirs was very irregular, if the regular way is that of a Free Conference, as they call it in the ſame Paper.

“ But before they had called this the regular way, they ought to have ſhewn ſome Inſtances of it in former Convocations; where, in all the Regiſters, there does not appear ſo much as one Inſtance of any Conference deſired by the Lower Houſe: They have indeed been call'd up ad Colloquium upon Occaſion. And ſome here preſent cannot but remember, that they were ſo called up in the Convocation in the Year One thouſand Six hundred Eighty nine, by the Biſhop of London, being then Preſident in the Vacancy of the See of Canterbury. But the Conſequences of it were ſuch as do by no means encourage the doing of the like at this preſent Time.

“ But the greateſt Attempt of Innovating upon the Conſtitution of the Convocation, appears in the Concluſion of that Paper; wherein it is expreſſed, That either Houſe may make a Receſs during the approaching Feſtival of Eaſter: Which Words imply, That the Lower Houſe, if they think fit, may, by their own Authority, make ſuch a Receſs (as they word it) apart from the Upper Houſe, and without Order from the Preſident. This is a Claim ſo altogether New, that it was never heard of before, and here it ſtands without any Pretence of Law or Uſage to ſupport it. But beſides, this is ſuch a manifeſt Violation of the Preſident's Authority, as cannot be comply'd with, nor ſuffered, without deſtroying the Fundamental Conſtitution of an Engliſh Convocation.

When theſe Two Anſwers of the Archbiſhop and Biſhops had been read by the publick Notary to the Prolocutor and Lower Clergy call'd up to the Jeruſalem Chamber, and Copies of both delivered to them; then the Archbiſhop ſpoke in this manner.

Mr. Prolocutor, and you the reſt of the Clergy,

Speech of his Grace the Preſident.

“ I Have obſerved, on ſeveral Occaſions, a new Method of proceeding in the Lower Houſe, with a deep Senſe of the ill Effects it may have, if it were ſuffered to go on. We have born long with it: But ſince you have declared to us, that you have fix'd on Reſolutions, we think, contrary to that Authority, that by Law and Cuſtom, as well as by our Character, is veſted in us; we muſt now ſpeak more plainly to you.

1701.

“ We have begun no new Practice in this Convocation; but we muſt tell you, We have found you attempting many Innovations. We do earneſtly deſire you to conſider theſe Things more maturely; and not to force us to Proceedings, that will be very uneaſie to our ſelves, as well as to you.

“ We have many Enemies on all Hands, and they wait for nothing more, than to ſee the Union and Order of this Church, which is both its Beauty and its Strength, broken by thoſe who ought to preſerve it.

“ For the maintaining the Epiſcopal Authority is ſo neceſſary to the Preſervation of the Church, that the reſt of the Clergy are no leſs concerned in it, than the Biſhops themſelves.

“ I have thought fit, with the reſt of my Brethren, to prorogue the Convocation for ſome time. It is a Seaſon of Devotion, and I pray God it may have a good Effect on all our Minds.

“ We, on our part, are willing to forget all that is paſt, and to go on with you, at our next Meeting, as well as at all Times, with all Tenderneſs and paternal Affection, in all ſuch Things as ſhall conduce to the Good of this Church. Remember the Sentence that our Bleſſed Saviour has pronounced againſt them by whom Offences come: And conſider ſeriouſly with your ſelves, what an Offence it will give, if you ſhould break the Subordination of Presbyters to their Biſhops, which has been obſerved not only in the primitive Church, but in all the Convocations of this Province, down to the preſent Time. Above all things, remember the great Account we muſt one Day give to the Chief Paſtor and Biſhop of our Souls.

Convocation prorogued.

This Speech being ended, the Archbiſhop continued and prorogued the Convocation to Thurſday, May 8th. But the Prolocutor, with ſeveral of the Lower Houſe, returned to Henry VIIth's Chapel (tho' divers Members refuſed to join with them, as well knowing the whole Convocation was legally prorogued, and all Things were to continue in the ſame State till the next Synodical Day) and ſate there as a Houſe for ſome time, and then adjourn'd themſelves to the next Day. An Affectation of Independence that was unknown to former Convocations, and never before attempted by any Presbyters in any Epiſcopal Church.

The Clergy keep intermediate Seſſions.

For this Irregularity, a calm Reproof was given on the next Synodical Day, 8 May, in theſe Words.

Mr. Prolocutor,

Speech of the Preſident.

“ WE are ſatisfied, that whatſoever has been done in the Lower Houſe, as a Houſe, from the Time that the whole Convocation was prorogued in this Place upon the Eighth of April, to this preſent Eighth of May, is not only Null, as being without Authority, but of very dangerous Conſequence to the Conſtitution of our Church, and to the ſacred Synod of this Province, and particularly to the Lower Clergy, whom that Houſe repreſents. We have all poſſible Tenderneſs for them, and ſhall ever join in any Methods that ſhall appear juſt 1701. "juſt and proper for maintaining their true Rights "and Liberties, and for defending them from all "Difficulties and Dangers.

"And therefore we cannot receive from you, "either by Word of Mouth, or in Writing, any "thing done by the ſaid Houſe, as a Houſe, in "the Interval aforeſaid.

"We hope you will duly conſider theſe Things, "and may God ſo direct you, that you may "never engage in any Proceeding, that may be "prejudicial to our Holy Mother the Church of "England.

Proceedings of the Lower Clergy.

This being done, the Prolocutor holding a Paper in his Hands, ſpoke to this Effect; I am commanded by the Lower Houſe to bring up this Paper, and I do preſent it as the Act of the Houſe this Day: And then he laid upon the Table a very long Paper, as an Anſwer of the Lower Houſe to Two Papers read to them in Jeruſalem Chamber, upon Tueſday, April 8. 1701. and then deliver'd to the Prolocutor. Wherein they tell their Lordſhips, There was no Occaſion to conſult Lawyers in the Caſe of Toland's Book; and had there been Occaſion for a Licence, his Grace might eaſily have obtain'd it from his Majeſty, or elſewhere; and therefore they cannot but repeat their humble Suit, That their Lordſhips would not finally decline giving that Aſſiſtance that had been already deſir'd by the Lower Houſe: Leſt otherwiſe, what was intended for the Service of Religion, ſhould be turn'd to its Diſadvantage, and a very bad Uſe made of their Lordſhips omitting to expreſs any Mark of Diſlike to ſo ill a Book.

Then they proceed to juſtifie their own Proceedings againſt the Objections of their Lordſhips, which (they ſay) had charg'd them with many Irregularities; and conclude with recriminating in a Complaint of ſome Grievances they ſuffer'd from the Upper Houſe.

Reply of the Upper Houſe.

This Paper being left on the Table, was not thought fit to be read; yet a Reply was prepared by a Committee of the Biſhops to this Effect: "That with regard to the Proceedings about "Toland's Book, they thought it not only ſafeſt "for them, but withal moſt for the Intereſt of "the Church and Religion, that in this Matter, "as well as in others of like Importance, they "ſhould govern themſelves by the Precedents "of former Convocations, and maturely conſider "how far their Authority reach'd, before they "made uſe of it: For to attempt to extend their "Power beyond the Limits which the Laws of "the Land, and the Practice of Convocations "have ſet, would be very unſafe and imprudent, "conſidering the Penalties and dangerous Con"ſequences to which ſuch an Attempt might "expoſe them and the whole Clergy. Not"withſtanding, the Archbiſhop and Biſhops be"ing unanimouſly reſolved to do all that was "in their Power againſt Toland's Book, and the "wicked and dangerous Doctrines therein con"tained, had appointed a Committee to exa"mine it, who found ſeveral Poſitions of moſt "dangerous Conſequence; and one in particu"lar, which they look'd upon as the Founda"tion of all the reſt, of which the Lower Houſe "had taken no Notice. As to a Royal Licence, "ſuch have been always granted, ex mero motu; "not upon any Petition of the Clergy for it; "his Majeſty being the propereſt Judge when to "grant it, and when not; though conſidering "the Treatment the Licence his preſent Majeſty "and the late Bleſſed Queen granted to that "Convocation, 1689. met with, it could not "be thought adviſable to deſire another, till a "better Spirit had appear'd in thoſe of the "Lower Houſe, than either then did, or now "doth.—But as the Archbiſhop and Biſhops have "ſeveral times endeavour'd to procure the paſſing "of a Law to regulate the Preſs, and thereby to "prevent the publiſhing ſuch impious Books, "though hitherto without the deſired Succeſs; ſo "they will never be wanting in the like Endea"vours for the future. In the mean Time, the "particular Biſhop in whoſe Dioceſe Toland, or "any ſuch Author lives, is indeed (as the Law "now ſtands) the proper Perſon to proceed "againſt him. And he hath ſufficient Power to "do ſo; and now knowing the Senſe of all his "Brethren in this Matter, it is not to be doubt"ed, but that he will make uſe of it as becomes "him. But if he who hath ſuch Power, does "not make uſe of it, he alone ought to bear the "Blame of it, and not the Upper Houſe of Con"vocation, who, for ought yet appears, have no "ſuch Power. ——Then, as to the Irregularities "charg'd upon the Lower Houſe, their Lord"ſhips take notice, That in their Paper, the "Lower Clergy do ſolemnly profeſs, That they "do not in the leaſt deſire, that his Grace, or their "Lordſhips ſhould depart from any of their juſt "Rights; And the Archbiſhop and Biſhops can"not but wiſh their Actions were agreeable to "this Profeſſion: But thoſe have been quite "contrary, and carried up to higher Degrees of "Diſreſpect, and Invaſion of the Metropolitan "and Epiſcopal Rights (even ſuch Rights as "are ſupported by the Law of the Land, and "the King's Writ) than ever was attempted by "any Lower Houſe of Convocation before this "Time, or perhaps by any Body of Presbyters, "where Epiſcopacy was ſettled, and acknowledg'd "of Divine and Apoſtolical Inſtitution; unleſs "it were by ſuch Presbyters, as deſign'd to de"ſtroy that Inſtitution, which the Archbiſhop "and Biſhops are fully perſuaded the Body of "the Lower Houſe do not, though the Actions "of a part of them manifeſtly tend that way. "——And their Lordſhips give the particular "Inſtances of their exorbitant Claims and Practi"ces, in ſeparate Adjournments; in appointing "Committees of the whole Houſe; in giving "Leave, as a Houſe, to their Members to "be abſent; in not anſwering the Archbiſhop "and Biſhops in Writing, when ſo requir'd; in "demanding a Free Conference; in pretending a "Power of making a diſtinct Receſs, and ſome "other Practices; which, together with ſome "Reports rais'd upon 'em, have given the great"eſt Blow to this Church, that hath been given "it, ſince the Presbyterian Aſſembly that ſat at "Weſtminſter in the late Times of Confuſion. "——God grant theſe Reports and the pre"ſent Conduct of divers in the Lower Houſe, "may not bring on the like again.

Committee of both Houſes appointed by the Preſident.

Amidſt theſe unhappy Diſputes, the Archbiſhop and Biſhops hoped it might be one Method to compoſe them, if a Committee of both Houſes do inſpect the Books and Acts of the preſent Convocation; and therefore, on the ſame 8th of May, a Committee of Five Biſhops was appointed to meet another like Committee of the Lower Houſe (not exceeding Ten) to inſpect all the Acts of each Houſe in this preſent Sacred Synod or Convocation, and to report their Judgments thereupon. But in a new and unprecedented way of Contempt, the Lower Houſe anſwered, That they did not think fit to appoint ſuch a Committee: And when the Schedule of Prorogation was (as uſual) brought down to the Lower Houſe, to be intimated to them by the Prolocutor, he refuſed to intimate the Archbiſhop's Schedule, and adjourn'd the Houſe to the next

Refuſed by the Lower Houſe.

1701. next Day; whereas the Archbiſhop's Prorogation was to Friday 16 May. So when the ſaid Synodical Day came, thoſe Members who had acted in conformity to the regular Precedents, and with due Submiſſion to the Archbiſhop and Biſhops, knew not how to appear any longer in the Lower Houſe, till this Form of Addreſs was preſented in their Name to the Preſident, by the Honourable and Reverend George Verney, D. D. one of the Proctors for the Clergy of the Dioceſe of Lincoln.

May it pleaſe your Grace,

Addreſs of ſome Members. "I AM deſir'd and impower'd by ſeveral Members of the Lower Houſe of Convocation, humbly to preſent an Addreſs to your Grace, that you would be pleas'd not to interpret their Abſence this Day from their Attendance in Hen. VII's Chapel, as any the leaſt diſreſpect of your Grace's Prorogation of the late Convocation, to which we ſhall, as we are by Law and Conſcience bound, always pay due Obedience, and which we do apprehend was to this Day. And the Reaſon upon which we preſume to abſent our ſelves, is, becauſe your Grace's laſt Prorogation was not intimated to the Lower Houſe of Convocation by the Prolocutor: Whereupon we humbly conceive that ſhould we meet this Day, and concur in any Convocational Act, by Virtue of any other Prorogation than what iſſues from your Grace, we ſhould involve our ſelves in a Practice which we utterly diſavow, and which we apprehend would be of dangerous Conſequence to the Church of England, and the Rights of the Convocation of your Grace's Province of Canterbury. And I further humbly beſeech your Grace to permit ſuch of our Members of the Lower Houſe of Convocation as ſhall deſire it, leave to ſubſcribe their Names to this Addreſs; to which in all Humility and Sincerity I do ſubſcribe my own Name this 16th Day of May, 1701.

George Verney,
Proc. Diæceſ. Lincoln.

The ſame Paper was ſoon after ſubſcrib'd with theſe Names, Will. Stanley, Sam. Freeman, C. Trimnell, William Sherlock, William Beverege, Tho. Littel, Jo. Whitefoot, Jo. Jefferys, Giles Pooley, William Hayley, Jo. Evans, Rich. Bowchier.

Proceedings of the Lower Houſe. The Lower Houſe had employ'd themſelves in drawing up a Repreſentation of their Senſe upon the Biſhop of Sarum's Expoſition of the XXXIX Articles of the Church of England, which they brought up to the Lords on May the 30th. when the Archbiſhop read to them a Paper, drawn up by conſent of the Biſhops, and approved by them, as followeth: If you have any Thing to offer, we cannot receive it, till the late Irregularity of refuſing to meet the Committee of Biſhops, to inſpect the Books of this Convocation, be ſet Right. A Copy of this Paper, at the Prolocutor's Deſire, was given to him, and he and his Attendants making a ſhort Step to the Lower Houſe, came back and waited in the Chamber adjoining to Jeruſalem Chamber. Then Humphry Lord Biſhop of Bangor, by direction of the Archbiſhop, and with conſent of the Biſhops, went out to ask the Prolocutor this following Queſtion, Whether the Meſſage he had now to bring in was to ſet the Irregularity complain'd of right? His Lordſhip returning into the Houſe, did acquaint his Grace and the reſt of the Biſhops, that the Prolocutor told him once, That it was ſomething in order to ſet that Irregularity right; then as recollecting ſaid, It was concerning that Irregularity. Upon which the Prolocutor and his Attendants were called in, and his Grace ſpoke thus, If you have any Thing to offer in order to the ſetting right the Irregularity we have complained of, we are ready to receive it. The Prolocutor ſaid, It was ſomething concerning it, and ſo fell to reading a Paper in theſe Words, The Paper that the Lower Houſe order'd the Prolocutor to preſent to your Grace, and your Lordſhips, was their Humble Repreſentation concerning a Book, entituled, An Expoſition of the XXXIX Articles of the Church of England, and hath no Relation to the ſuppoſed Irregularity your Grace and your Lordſhips think fit to complain of; of that we are ready to give your Lordſhips ſatisfaction, when thereunto called. And in the mean time moſt humbly repeat our Requeſt, that your Grace and your Lordſhips will be pleaſed to receive the ſaid Paper. The Archbiſhop and Biſhops were ſurprized at the Prolocutor's way of introducing ſuch a Paper; and the Biſhop of Bangor, who had been very cautious in bringing in the Meſſage from the Prolocutor's Mouth, found it neceſſary to make a Complaint againſt the Prolocutor, in this Writing ſubſcribed by his own Hand. I asked Dr. Hooper whether the Meſſage he had now to bring in was to ſet the Irregularity complained of right? He told me once, it was ſomething in order to ſet that Irregularity right; and then recollecting, ſaid, It was concerning that Irregularity; but that he was to deliver his Meſſage to his Grace, and muſt not drop it at the Door. When he was called in, it appeared that his Meſſage was not to ſet the Irregularity right, but concerning another Matter, which I have reaſon to complain of, that Dr. Hooper has prevaricated in this Matter.

That other Matter was a Paper offered by the Prolocutor, thus entitled, To the moſt Reverend Father in God Thomas Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and to the Right Reverend the Biſhops his Suffragans. The Humble Repreſentation of the Lower Houſe of Convocation.

"WHereas a Book hath been lately publiſhed, entituled, An Expoſition of the XXXIX Articles of the Church of England, by GILBERT Lord Biſhop of SARUM, which the Author declares to have paſſed the Peruſal of both the Archbiſhops, and ſeveral Biſhops and other Learned Divines, and ſuggeſts their Approbation of it: And whereas we think it our Duty, as much as in us lyes, to ſecure the Doctrines contained in thoſe Articles, from any Attempts that may be made againſt them: We moſt humbly offer to your Grace, and your Lordſhips, the Senſe of this Houſe, which is as follows, Repreſentation of the Lower Houſe againſt the Biſhop of Sarum's Expoſition, &c.

I. "That the ſaid Book tends to introduce ſuch a Latitude and Diverſity of Opinions, as the Articles were fram'd to avoid.

II. "That there are many Paſſages in the Expoſition of ſeveral Articles, which appear to us to be contrary to the true meaning of them, and to other receiv'd Doctrines of our Church.

III. "That there are ſome Things in the ſaid Book, which ſeem to us to be of dangerous Conſequence to the Church of England as by Law Eſtabliſhed, and to derogate from the Honour of its Reformation.

"All which Particulars we humbly lay before your Lordſhips, praying your Opinion herein.

After a ſhort Time of Withdrawing, the Prolocutor, and thoſe with him, were again call'd in; and his Grace told them to this effect. "That he and his Brethren could not depart from their Reſolution, Not to receive any Thing from the Lower Houſe, till the late Irregularity complain'd of were ſet right. That he and his Brethren would be always ready to ſhew their Affection and their Zeal for the Good of the "Church;

1701. "Church; and they would have been glad to "have ſhewn it more particularly in the Caſe of "Ireland, but that there had been ſeveral Ob-"ſtructions and Stumbling-Blocks laid in the "way.

Then appear'd the Dean of St. Paul's, and ſeveral other Members of the Lower Houſe, and exhibited a Complaint in Writing, ſubſcribed with their own Hands in the following Form.

To his Grace the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the Reverend Biſhops his Suffragans, May the 30th, 1701.

Proteſtation of ſome Members. "WE whoſe Names are under-written, do "humbly beg leave to repreſent to your "Grace, That whereas we did move in the Lower "Houſe of Convocation, that we might enter "our Proteſtation againſt all Intermediate Seſſi-"ons of the Lower Houſe, betwixt your Grace's "ordinary Prorogations: The Queſtion being "put upon the ſaid Motion, it paſſed againſt us "in the Negative. And a farther Motion being "made, and the Queſtion being put, whether "the ſaid Vote ſhould be Regiſtred, it likewiſe "paſſed againſt us, that it ſhould not be Regi-"ſtred as yet:

"Whereupon we humbly beg Leave, that we "may be admitted to enter our Proteſtations "againſt all ſuch Intermediate Seſſions.

William Sherlock, Dean of St. Paul's.
George Verney, Proc. Diæc. Linc.
J. Wichart, Dean of Winton.
Sa. Freeman, Dean of Peterborough.
Geo. Bull, Archdeacon of Landaffe.
Will. Stanley, Archdeacon of London.
Jo. Jeffery, Archdeacon of Norwich.
Charles Trimnel, Archdeacon of Norfolk.
Richard Bowchier, Archdeacon of Lewes.
John Evans, Proctor for the Dioceſe of Bangor.
John Whitefoot, Proctor for the Dioceſe of Norwich.
Giles Pooley, Proctor for the Dioceſe of Bath and Wells.
Thomas Little, Proctor for the Church of Norwich.

Archbiſhop's Speech. In the next Seſſion, June the 6th, the Archbiſhop ſpoke thus to the Prolocutor, "I muſt "inform you, that till the Irregularity already "complain'd of be ſet right, I cannot, accord-"ing to the Order of this Houſe, receive any "Thing from you. But it appearing from the "Paper you read upon the 30th Day of May laſt, "that you have ſomething to offer relating to "the Lord Biſhop of Sarum's Expoſition of the "XXXIX Articles, which the ſaid Lord Biſhop "of Sarum has earneſtly requeſted may be "brought up to this Houſe; Therefore I and "my Brethren, without prejudice to our former "Order, and at the repeated Requeſt of the Lord "Biſhop of Sarum, are now willing to receive the "ſaid Paper.

To which the Prolocutor anſwered, That the Paper, which he had now to offer, was concerning the Irregularity, and that he had not brought up any Paper relating to the Biſhop of Sarum. Whereupon his Grace order'd him to fetch up that Paper, while he left the other, which at command of the Archbiſhop was read by the Regiſter, and was as follows.

To the moſt Reverend his Grace the Lord Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and the Right Reverend the Biſhops his Suffragans, in the Upper Houſe of Convocation,

The Clergy of the Lower Houſe of the ſaid Convocation, in Anſwer to the Declaration made by your Lordſhips on the 30th paſt, moſt humbly repreſent, 1701.

Repreſentation of the Lower Houſe in Defence of their Proceedings. "THAT we were ſurprized to find, when "we came up that Day with Buſineſs to "your Lordſhips, that your Lordſhips had con-"ceived a Diſpleaſure againſt us for declining to "meet the Committee of Biſhops, appointed by "your Lordſhips on May the 8th, to inſpect the "Acts of both Houſes of this preſent Convocation "to that Time; and that your Lordſhips had "judged this an Irregularity, and thereupon "formed a Reſolution to receive nothing offer'd "by us, till it was ſet right.

"We could have wiſhed that your Lordſhips "had taken the Opportunity of your Seſſion "next enſuing the 8th, and held on May the "16th, to have acquainted us with that your "Diſpleaſure, and that your Lordſhips had been "then pleaſed to have demanded the Reaſons for "our ſo acting, before you had proceeded to any "Determination againſt us.

"Had your Lordſhips thought it convenient to "have taken that Method, we ſhould have offer'd "the following Reaſons, which we now do in our "Juſtification.

"That we of the Lower Houſe, being a di-"ſtinct Houſe, with a Power of Diſſenting from "the Propoſals of the Upper, conceive our "ſelves entirely at Liberty to admit or decline "the Appointment of Committees from time to "time as we ſhall ſee fit. And particularly in "this Caſe, we conceive, that the only regular "way of your Lordſhips knowing the Tranſacti-"ons of our Houſe, is by our voluntary laying "them before you; and if your Lordſhips de-"mand the View of our Journals, as of Right, "we are thereby the more obliged to inſiſt upon "this our Liberty.

"That your Lordſhips having mentioned no "particular Acts deſir'd to be inſpected, nor aſ-"ſign'd any particular Reaſon for ſuch Inſpecti-"on, we could ſee no ground for ſuch a Com-"mittee, nor give any Inſtructions for the Ma-"nagement of the Matter to be conſider'd by it.

"We might alſo have added, that it was not un-"reaſonable in us to expect, that your Lordſhips "ſhould put into our Poſſeſſion the Journals of "the Lower Houſe of Convocation, of the Years "1586, 1588, 1640, 1661, &c. which have "been requeſted by us, and which of Right we "conceive do belong unto us, before your Lord-"ſhips would think fit to require the Inſpection "of our preſent Proceedings.

"That notwithſtanding this, the Reſpect and "Duty we owe your Lordſhips had prevailed "with us to have comply'd with your Lordſhips "Propoſal, had it not been introduc'd by what "was very ſurprizing, and did much diſcourage "us from agreeing to any ſuch Inſpection; name-"ly, your Lordſhips declaring it to be your "Opinion, That whatſoever we had done, as an "Houſe, in any intermediate Seſſion, between "the 8th of April and the ſaid 8th of May, was "of dangerous Conſequence, not only to our "ſelves, but to the Clergy of this Province, "whom we repreſent.

"Theſe are ſome of the Reaſons which, un-"der thoſe Circumſtances, and at that Time, "mov'd us to decline the Appointment of any "ſuch Committee. And theſe Reaſons, we "preſume, had your Lordſhips given us Occa-"ſion to preſent them, had been ſufficient to "have clear'd us in your Opinion from any Irre-"gularity, and to have prevented you from pro-"ceeding immediately to any Sentence againſt 1701. " us, though your Lordſhips had conceived you " had ſuch a Power.

"us,

" But we cannot forbear to repreſent to your " Lordſhips, that had we been duly found Guilty " of any Irregularity in this Matter, yet your " Lordſhips Sentence cutting off all Intercourſe " and Correſpondence between the Two Houſes, " is not only over-ſevere, being paſſed upon ſo " ſmall an Occaſion, but deſtroys for the preſent " the whole Deſign, and the very Being of a Con- " vocation.

We therefore hope that your Lordſhips will be induced by theſe Reaſons, to lay aſide this your Reſolution, and to reſtore the Regular and Cuſtomary Communication between the two Houſes.

After the Reading this Paper, it was referr'd to a Committee of Biſhops to examine it, and report their Judgments of it; who found it to contain a higher Contempt, and repeated Indignities put upon his Grace and his Suffragans: So their Lordſhips drew up the following Anſwer.

The Archbiſhop and Biſhops in Anſwer to a Paper left by the Prolocutor in the Upper Houſe, on Friday June 6*th.*

Anſwer of the Archbiſhop and Biſhops. " THE Clergy of the Lower Houſe ought " rather to have acknowledg'd the Patience and Tenderneſs of the Preſident and Bi- " ſhops towards them, than to ſay, as they do, " They were ſurprized to find that their Lord- " ſhips ſhould at laſt take notice of the great Irre- " gularity, which they of the Lower Houſe were " guilty of, in refuſing to appoint a Committee " to meet with a Number of Biſhops for the in- " ſpecting the Books of both Houſes; as the " Preſident, with the Concurrence of his Suffra- " gans, have requir'd them to do.

" The Preſident and Biſhops did not cenſure " this Irregularity at the next Meeting, in hopes " that they of the Lower Houſe would have con- " ſider'd, and thought better of their Duty in " that Matter, and ſubmitted to the Performance " of it; and not have attempted (as they did) " to thruſt in other Buſineſs upon the Biſhops, " and ſo to fruſtrate that very neceſſary Order " and Appointment for the inſpecting of the " Books.

" And tho' the Preſident and Biſhops, when " they made this Appointment, were ſufficiently " ſatisfied, that what they did therein was agree- " able to the Practice of former Convocations; " yet, when they found that Matter was diſputed " in the Lower Houſe, they would not proceed to " do any thing thereupon, till they had firſt look'd " out Precedents for the Satisfaction of thoſe that " differ'd from them.

" For this End, they took Time to examine " the Regiſters and Proceedings of former Con- " vocations, with regard to the appointing Com- " mittees of both Houſes; there they found, that " it was the common Method in former Con- " vocations, for the Preſident, with the Con- " currence of the Biſhops, to appoint ſuch Com- " mittees, and to require the Clergy of the " Lower Houſe to ſend a certain Number of their " Body to attend them; and that the Lower " Houſe had never before refus'd to comply " with ſuch an Appointment, ſitting the Convo- " cation.

" Upon full Evidence of this, the Preſident " and Biſhops could not but judge, that they of " the Lower Houſe, by their preſent Refuſal, " had departed from the Order and Uſage of " Convocations, diſobey'd the Eſtabliſh'd Au- " thority of the Preſident and Biſhops, and there- " by broke the regular Subordination of the " Clergy to their Metropolitan and Biſhops, and " the Intercourſe between the Two Houſes of " Convocation. 1701.

" This Refuſal of theirs, the Preſident and " Biſhops might juſtly have call'd Diſobedience " and Contempt, and might alſo have proceeded " againſt them for it by Canonical Admonitions " and Cenſures. But they call'd it by the ſofteſt " Name they could, An Irregularity; and to give " them of the Lower Houſe Time to rectify it, " they have hitherto forborn all ſuch Proceedings " againſt them, as the Nature of their Offence " did deſerve, and the Conſequences ſeem'd to " require.

" Only this the Preſident and Biſhops have " done; they have given them of the Lower " Houſe to underſtand, That until they return " to their Duty, and the regular Methods ob- " ſerv'd by all Predeceſſors, they cannot proceed " on Buſineſs with them, nor receive any Thing " from them. But, that whenever they of the " Lower Houſe ſhall rectify theſe Irregularities, " and reſtore thereby that Subordination and In- " tercourſe which they have diſturb'd, the Preſi- " dent and Biſhops ſhall then moſt readily receive, " and duly conſider whatever they have to offer " to them.

" This the Preſident and Biſhops thought to " be the gentleſt Method they could uſe, and " withal the likelieſt way to bring them of the " Lower Houſe to conſider and rectify the Irre- " gularity they were guilty of; which was all " their Lordſhips deſired and intended.

" They of the Lower Houſe do indeed ſeem to " think, they were guilty of no Irregularity at all, " and offer ſome Reaſons for their own Juſtifica- " tion: But thoſe Reaſons are founded upon plain " Miſtakes, both of Right and Fact.

" Firſt, They ſeem to aſſume to themſelves, " to be ſuch an Independent Body, as can Sit " and Act by themſelves, without any Depen- " dance upon, or Conjunction with the Upper " Houſe: But this is certainly a very great Mi- " ſtake.

" For the whole Convocation is but one Body: " They meet together firſt in one Place before " the Archbiſhop as Preſident, ſitting pro Tribunali, as it is always expreſs'd; and tho' after- " ward the Lower Clergy have (by the Appoint- " ment of the Preſident) a particular Place aſ- " ſign'd them to treat and debate in apart; yet, " whenever the Preſident pleaſes, they are obli- " ged to return to the Upper Houſe, where they " firſt aſſembled; and both Houſes are always " continued and prorogued by one Inſtrument or " Act.

" The Subject of their Debates is often ap- " pointed by the Preſident: Matters of Form, " and Methods of Proceeding, are directed by " him, according to the Precedents of former " Convocations. The Preſident acting as the " Head of that one Body, appoints Committees " of both Houſes, as he did in the preſent Caſe: " And as ſuch Appointments were always obey'd " by former Convocations, ſo the Lower Houſe " ought at this Time, ſo far at leaſt to have " comply'd with the Order made by the Preſi- " dent, as to attend the Biſhops in the Com- " mittee appointed by him; though they might " not think themſelves thereby oblig'd to con- " cur in the Reſolutions of ſuch Committee, but " might have agreed or diſagreed, as they ſaw " Occaſion.

" The Preſident and Biſhops, if they had " deſir'd a Sight of the Act-Book of the Lower " Houſe, might have requir'd it of Right, as " they 1701. they find their Predeceſſors have done; but their Intention was to have the Books of both Houſes inſpected together by a joint Committee of both Houſes; not in order to prejudice the Lower Clergy in any Thing, or to bring any Cenſure upon them; but in order to have both Books examin'd, and all the Proceedings and Entries therein regulated in an amicable way, to prevent all Miſtakes, and to take away all Occaſion of Diſputes and Controverſies between the Upper and the Lower Houſe: And thereby not only to prevent the evil Conſequences which any irregular Proceedings or Entries upon either of the Books might bring upon the Church and Clergy hereafter, but alſo to bring all Things to a regular Method, and ſuch fair Intercourſe, as ought to be between the Biſhops and Clergy of this Province; that ſo they might have proceeded together in ſuch Matters as would have been for the Honour and Intereſt of Religion, and the Security of the Church of England, as now by Law Eſtabliſhed.

2. "As to the Complaint in this and the other Papers, for want of their former Journals, as if they had a Right for the keeping of them (if they knew where) the Preſident and Biſhops Anſwer, That this Complaint is very Unreaſonable and Unjuſt.

"For altho' all the Regiſters and Act-Books of Convocation, whether of the Upper or Lower Houſe, do of undoubted Right belong to the Archbiſhop, and are to be kept by his Officer in ſuch Place as he ſhall appoint; to which Place the Members of the Upper and Lower Houſe may have, and always had a free Acceſs, when, and as oft as they pleaſe: This Complaint is ſo much the more Unjuſt, becauſe they cannot but know that the Archbiſhop hath been ſo favourable, as to ſend all the Act-Books mention'd in this Complaint, and alſo the Modern Regiſter-Books of the Upper Houſe, to a Committee of the Lower Houſe, to be freely uſed by them as often as they have deſir'd it; and has given them Notice, that all the ancient Regiſters were in the Library at Lambeth, where they, or any of them, might have free Acceſs to them; and they had Acceſs to them, and the Uſe of them accordingly.

"They of the Lower Houſe cannot be ignorant that the Archbiſhop's Regiſter is of common Right the Regiſter of the Convocation of this Province; and altho' he as ſuch is to attend the Preſident and Biſhops in the Upper Houſe, yet the Clergy of the Lower Houſe pay Fees to him, not only on their firſt Appearance, but at every Prorogation by the King's Writ: And the Actuary, who attends the Lower Houſe, is but the Regiſter's Servant, and acts as ſuch; and the Regiſter may employ one to Day, and another to Morrow, as appears in the Journal of the Lower Houſe, 1588.

3. "The Preſident and Biſhops had juſt Reaſon to hope, That if that Committee had met, not only the Entries in the Books would have been rectify'd, but that the Biſhops appointed by them, would have been able to have ſatiſfy'd thoſe of the Lower Houſe, that their Adjourning themſelves by their own Authority, and Sitting and Acting as a Houſe when the Upper Houſe did not Sit, and indeed, contrary to the Prorogation made by the Preſident in the Upper Houſe, is not only Illegal, but of dangerous Conſequence.

"For the Preſident and Biſhops do upon certain Grounds judge, That all the Proceedings upon ſuch intermediate Days tranſacted by the Lower Clergy, acting as a Houſe of Convocation, are irregular, null, and void, as being done in an Aſſembly of Presbyters, not warranted by Law, and acting not only independently of their Metropolitan and Biſhops, but in Oppoſition to the Authority which the Conſtitution of the Church, and Laws of the Land have veſted in them. 1701.

"The Preſident and Biſhops having given this clear and diſtinct Anſwer to the Reaſons offer'd by them of the Lower Houſe in their own Juſtification, cannot but hope that they will conſider better of the Irregularity they are guilty of, and remove the Obſtructions, which by introducing ſeveral dangerous Innovations they have laid in the way of all Buſineſs in this Convocation, and conform themſelves to the ancient and regular Methods of Proceedings; that ſo both Houſes may go on unanimouſly and vigorouſly in the Proſecution of ſuch Things as may tend to the Glory of God, and the Good of this Church.

Farther Proceedings in Convocation.

To return to the Proceedings on this 6th of June. The Prolocutor at the Motion of his Grace, brought up the Paper of Complaint againſt the Lord Biſhop of Sarum; which being read over and conſider'd by the Archbiſhop and Biſhops, his Grace ſoon after ſpoke to the Prolocutor to this Effect; "Your Paper of Complaint againſt my Lord of Sarum's Book does contain only Generals; and therefore we muſt require you to bring up the Specialties or Particulars of your Charge againſt that Book." The Prolocutor and his Company going back to the Lower Houſe, his Grace thought they were preparing ſuch a particular Charge againſt the Biſhop's Expoſition; and therefore after ſome Time of expecting, the Archbiſhop ſent the proper Meſſenger, Mr. Tillot, to the Lower Houſe, to enquire of the Prolocutor, Whether they had any Thing in Readineſs to preſent to the Archbiſhop and Biſhops, as to any particular Articles againſt the Lord Biſhop of Sarum's Book? And ſoon after, the Meſſenger return'd with this abrupt Anſwer in Writing: This Houſe deſires Mr. Tillot to return their Lordſhips their humble Thanks for their Meſſage, and to tell them, That this Houſe is preparing Buſineſs, but are not yet ready with it. Upon which, the Archbiſhop, with Conſent of his Brethren, prorogued the Convocation to June 13th.

Declaration of a Committee of Biſhops.

In the mean Time, a Committee of Biſhops had come to this Declaration of their Judgment, in reference to the extraordinary Steps taken by the Lower Houſe.

Firſt, "In Relation to the Complaint and Cenſure of the Biſhop of Sarum's Expoſition of the XXXIX Articles, made by the Lower Houſe, and preſented to the Archbiſhop and Biſhops on May 30th, 1701.

I. "It is our Opinion, That the Lower Houſe of Convocation has no manner of Power judicially to Cenſure any Book.

II. "That the Lower Houſe of Convocation ought not to have entred upon the Examination of a Book of any Biſhop of this Church, without firſt acquainting the Preſident and Biſhops with it.

III. "That the Lower Houſe of Convocation's Cenſuring the Book of the Biſhop of Sarum in general Terms, without mentioning the particular Paſſages on which the Cenſure is grounded, is Defamatory and Scandalous.

IV. "That the Biſhop of Sarum, by his Excellent Hiſtory of the Reformation, approved by 1701.

"both Houſes of Parliament, and other Wri-
"tings, hath done great Service to the Church
"of England, and juſtly deſerves the Thanks of "this Houſe.

V. "That tho' private Perſons may Expound
"the Articles of the Church, yet it cannot be "proper for the Convocation at this Time to "approve, and much leſs to condemn ſuch pri"vate Expoſitions.

Secondly, "In relation to the Prolocutor's Com"plaint againſt the Biſhop of Bangor, and his Be"haviour on that and the like Occaſions in the "Upper Houſe.

I. "We are of Opinion, That the Biſhop of "Bangor made a true and juſt Report in the "Upper Houſe, of the Anſwer made by the "Prolocutor, to a Queſtion propos'd unto him
"on the 30th of May, at the Door of this "Houſe.

II. "We are further confirm'd in this Opinion,
"becauſe the Prolocutor gave the ſame Anſwer
"in Effect to his Grace, after he had been call'd
"in to the Houſe.

III. "We are of Opinion, That the Paper
"read by the Prolocutor after he was call'd in,
"was not concerning the Irregularity which
"this Houſe complain'd of, but principally to "introduce a Complaint againſt the Biſhop of "Sarum, which had no relation at all to that "Irregularity.

IV. "It plainly appears, by comparing the "Paper which the Prolocutor read after he "was called in, with his Anſwer to the Que-
"ſtion propoſed by him, as well by his Grace as
"by the Biſhop of Bangor, that the ſaid Prolo-
"cutor's Anſwer was ſuch as by no means ought "to have been given by him to his Grace, or to "any Member of that Houſe.

Thirdly, "In relation to Dr. Verney, and other "Members of the Lower Houſe, who had diſ-
"ſented from the Majority, and had proteſted
"againſt their Irregular Proceedings; their Lord-
"ſhips in a Committee were of Opinion;

I. "That Dr. Verney, and others of the Lower
"Houſe, who comply'd with the Prorogations
"made by the Preſident in the Upper Houſe,
"and declined to Act on the intermediate Days,
"have behaved themſelves as of Right and Duty
"they ought to do.

II. "That they have thereby maintain'd the "juſt Rights of Convocation, and the Legal "Authority of the Preſident and Biſhops, and "have acted as became true Sons of the Church
"of England.

III. "That they deſerve the Protection of the "Upper Houſe for their dutiful and worthy Be"haviour.

IV. "That the Prolocutor, and ſome others
"of the Lower Houſe, have violated the Me"thods of Proceedings in Convocation, and "attempted to introduce divers Innovations and "Irregularities, deſtructive of the Metropolitan
"and Epiſcopal Authority of the Archbiſhop
"and Biſhops of this Province, and thereby
"endangered the Conſtitution of this Church,
"and given great Advantages to the Enemies
"thereof.

1701.

V. "That by not ſubmitting to the Proro-
"gations made by the Preſident, with Concur-
"rence of his Suffragans, and pretending to "an Authority to adjourn themſelves, and Sit"ting and Acting as a Houſe, after ſuch Pro-
"rogation by the Preſident, and on Days when
"the Upper Houſe did not Sit, the Prolocutor
"and thoſe joining with him in ſuch Practices,
"are guilty of manifeſt Diſobedience and Con-
"tempt.

VI. "That by refuſing to nominate a Com"mittee of their Houſe, to meet with a Com"mittee of the Biſhops as the Preſident had ap"pointed, they are likewiſe guilty of a great
"Contempt and Diſobedience.

In the next Seſſion, June the 20th. when the Archbiſhops and Biſhops had ended their Prayers, the Prolocutor appear'd, with the greateſt part of the Lower Houſe attending him, holding in his Hands Two ſeveral Papers, and offering to deliver both of them: To whom the Preſident ſpoke to this Effect, That he could receive no Paper from him, but that containing the Particularities of the General Charge againſt the Biſhop of Sarum's Expoſition of the XXXIX Articles, which at the Requeſt of the ſaid Biſhop, he was now ready to receive: To which the Prolocutor replied, "That he had Two Papers in his Hand, ready "to preſent to his Grace, and the reſt of the "Biſhops then preſent, if his Grace would "pleaſe to receive them: But without Direction "of the Lower Houſe, he could not preſent "the One without the other. That therefore "he would return, and take the Opinion of the "Houſe thereupon." But he never came back with that Opinion, till the Convocation by Royal Writ directed to the Archbiſhop, was prorogued to Auguſt the 7th, thence to September the 18th, and ſo on, till the Parliament being diſſolved, the Convocation of each Province by Writs directed to the reſpective Archbiſhops were accordingly diſſolved (a).

Convocation diſſolved.

A new Convocation of the Province of Canterbury being ſummon'd to meet in Concurrence with the new Parliament, was open'd in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, London, with ſolemn Prayers, and an Excellent Latin Sermon, preached by Dr. William Sherlock, Dean of that Church, on Epiſt. Jude, v. 3. In the Choice of a Prolocutor, the Competition was between the Learned Dr. Beveridge, Archdeacon of Colcheſter, and Dr. Woodward Dean of Sarum, a Civilian grown Popular by oppoſing his Dioceſan, to whom he ow'd his Preferments. He was by a Majority elected, and confirm'd by the Archbiſhop. The Firſt Synodical Act was an Addreſs to the King, preſented by the Archbiſhop, at the Head of the Biſhops and Clergy, to His Majeſty at Kenſington, on January the 22d.

New Convocation.

Moſt Gracious Sovereign,

"WE humbly beg leave to lay before Your "Majeſty, now we are aſſembled in "Convocation, the deep Reſentment that every Addreſs of both Houſes.

(a) See, 1. "A Narrative of the Proceedings of the "Lower Houſe of Convocation, relating to Prorogations "and Adjournments, from Monday Feb. 10. 1700. to Wedneſday June 25. 1701." ſaid to be drawn up By Order of the Houſe. London, for Tho. Bennet, 1701. 4to. in Defence of the Claims, and Acts of the Majority of the Lower Houſe. In Anſwer to it there was a Vindication of the Rights of the Archbiſhop and Biſhops, in a fuller Account, entitled, "The Hiſtory of the Convocation of the Prelates, and Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, ſummoned to meet at "the Cathedral Church of St Paul, London, on Feb. 6. 1700. "faithfully drawn from the Journal of the Upper, and from "the Narrative and Minutes of the Lower Houſe." London, for A. and J. Churchill, 1701. 4to.

"One

1701.

"One of us had, at our firſt hearing of the great "Indignity which the French King offered to "Your Majeſty and Your People, in declaring "the pretended Prince of Wales to be King of "Your Majeſty's Realms and Dominions.

"We do hereupon take Occaſion to renew "our ſincere Proteſtations, of a firm and un-"ſhaken Allegiance to Your Majeſty, humbly "aſſuring Your Majeſty; That we will do our "utmoſt Endeavours, by God's Aſſiſtance, in "our reſpective Places and Stations, to defend "Your Sacred Perſon, and to maintain Your "Majeſty's Rightful Title to the Imperial "Crown of theſe Realms, and the Succeſſion "thereof in the Proteſtant Line, as now by "Law Eſtabliſhed, againſt the ſaid pretended "Prince, and all other Your Majeſty's open and "ſecret Enemies.

"We will always, according to our eſpecial "Duty, make it our earneſt Prayer to God, "That he will long continue Your Majeſty's "Happy Reign over us, that You may perfect "all thoſe great Works, in which he hath "hitherto wonderfully conducted You with ſo "much Glory and Succeſs, for the Peace and "Welfare of theſe Kingdoms, and the Support "of Your Allies, the Safety and Tranquility of "Europe, and the preſerving the Proteſtant Re-"ligion, both here in this Church of England "by Law Eſtabliſh'd, and in all other Proteſtant "Churches.

His Majeſty ſeem'd to be very well pleaſed with this venerable Appearance, and made this Gracious Anſwer.

King's Anſwer.

My Lords, and the reſt of the Clergy,

I Cannot but be very much pleaſed with theſe Expreſſions of your Affection to me, and your Concern for the Honour of the Nation; for Maintaining the Succeſſion to the Crown in the Proteſtant Line; and for the Preſervation of the Proteſtant Churches. And I am glad of this Opportunity to give you freſh Aſſurances of my firm Reſolution, in an eſpecial manner, to Protect and Support the Church of England, as by Law Eſtabliſh'd.

On Wedneſday January the 28th, an unhappy Occaſion began of widening the Difference between thoſe Members who believed the Archbiſhop of this Province had the Right, and conſtant Practice of Continuing and Proroguing the whole Convocation, and thoſe others who thought the Lower Houſe might have a Power to Adjourn it ſelf. This difference of Opinion led into ſome Diſputes in every Seſſions; which yet were manag'd conſiſtently with Peace and Order: For whatever Notions of Independency were advanc'd by a few particular Members, the Houſe in general had hitherto ſo ordered their Entries in the Journal, that All unanimouſly met upon the Synodical Days and Hours, appointed by the Archbiſhop in his Schedules of Prorogation. But on this Day a Member unhappily mov'd to change the Form of Entry in the Minutes, and to aſſume the Phraſe of Dominus Prolocutor Continuavit & Prorogavit quoad hanc Domum, which was accordingly entred inſtead of the uſual Form, Prolocutor intimavit hanc Convocationem eſſe continuatam, &c.

Unhappy Diſputes.

In the next Seſſion, Tueſday, February the 3d, this new Phraſe in the Entry of the Minutes was excepted againſt by ſeveral Members; but there was a Majority to Reſolve, that the Words in the Entry ſhall ſtand as they are; and that This Matter ſhall not be now further Debated. When the Schedule of Prorogation came down, it was laid aſide upon the Table, while the Houſe was proceeding to other Buſineſs. Upon which a Member moved, that "He had obſerved ſome "Meſſage from above had been deliver'd to the "Prolocutor; and he thought it the Right of "this Houſe to have it communicated to 'em, "before they entred upon new Buſineſs." But this was oppoſed by the Majority, and they went on to appoint a Committee of Grievances, &c. After which the Prolocutor adjourn'd as by Authority of the Houſe; while the Members on the other ſide declared, "That this Houſe "had no Pretence of Right to Adjourn it ſelf, "when the Schedule interpoſes to Prorogue the "whole Convocation; and that therefore they "did verbally proteſt againſt ſuch an irregular "way of Adjourning." And before the next Meeting, they put their verbal Proteſtation into Writing to this effect.

1701.

Proteſtation of ſeveral Members.

"THAT whereas in the Lower Houſe, the "laſt Seſſion, February the 3d, the Pro-"locutor refuſed to read the Schedule of Proro-"gation ſent down by the Archbiſhop, when it "was called for by ſeveral Members; the Majo-"rity of the Houſe at the ſame Time interpoſing "to hinder it: And that whereas after Notice "given by the Prolocutor, of the Schedule's be-"ing received, the Majority of the Houſe made "an Order to proceed upon New Buſineſs, and "at the end of that would not ſuffer them-"ſelves to be prorogued by the Schedule, but "adjourned by their own Act, upon a Que-"ſtion propoſed to the Houſe, which was ver-"bally declared againſt by ſeveral Members "then preſent: Therefore the Parties whoſe "Names were ſubſcribed, believing it to be "the Right of the Archbiſhop to Continue "and Prorogue the whole Convocation of Pre-"lates and Clergy by Schedule; and to ſend "down ſuch other Meſſages to be communica-"ted to the Lower Houſe, as his Grace ſhall "think fit; and believing it alſo to be the Right "of every Member of the Lower Houſe to "have the Archbiſhop's Meſſages intimated, "and his juſt Orders obſerved, as they conceive "it to be the Duty of the Prolocutor to Intimate "and Obſerve them: They do hereby proteſt "againſt the forementioned Acts, as contrary to "theſe Rights.

On Monday February the 9th, the Dean of Peterborough in a very proper Speech moved, That the foreſaid Proteſtation might be admitted, and entred in Writing, as a ſtanding Evidence of their aſſerting the juſt Rights and Authority of their Metropolitan and Preſident, to Prorogue the whole Convocation or Synod, the Lower as well as the Upper Houſe, by Schedule; and of their diſowning any inherent Right or Power, this Houſe is ſaid to have in it ſelf to prorogue, or as the new Word lately taken up is, to adjourn it ſelf.

This Motion being warmly oppoſed by the Majority, drew out the Houſe into a long Debate, till for Peace ſake, Dr. Beveridge put this Queſtion in Writing, Whether upon Suppoſition that the Houſe may ſit upon Synodical Buſineſs, after the coming down of the Schedule, till they think their Buſineſs over; the Houſe will agree, that the Schedule ſhall be then executed, and the Houſe prorogued to the Day and Hour there ſpecified, by virtue of the ſaid Schedule, and in Obedience to the Authority whereby the whole Convocation is prorogued? This Queſtion was dropt by the Majority, and to evade the Anſwering of it, it was at laſt agreed, "That a Committee ſhould be appointed to "conſider of ſuch an Expedient about the Pro-

Committee appointed.

1701. " rogation of this Houſe, as may tend to the " compoſing all Diſputes in this Matter." Which Committee ſhould conſiſt of the Number of Sixteen, Eight on each ſide of the Controverſy.

Dr. Hooper.	Dr. Beveridge.
Dr. Jane.	Dr. Hayley.
Dr. Aldrich.	Dr. Willis.
Dr. Atterbury.	Dr. Kennet.
Dr. Binckes.	Dr. Trimnel.
Mr. Needham.	Dr. Prideaux.
Mr. Moor.	Dr. Green.
Dr. Wynne.	Mr. Lloyd.

Their Agreement. This Committee met on Tueſday, February the 30th, and by Degrees fell into theſe Three Heads of Agreement.

" I. Agreed, That in order to an Accommo-" dation, no Forms of Prorogation ſhall be uſed " by the Prolocutor hereafter, that were not " uſed by the Prolocutor before the laſt Convo-" cation.

" II. That the Forms of Prorogation uſed by " the Prolocutor in the Convocation of 1586, " and 1588, ſhall hereafter be uſed by the Pro-" locutor, in the Order they lye in the Books, " beginning with the Firſt, till they are all gone " through.

" III. That theſe Forms ſhall be pronounc'd " by the Prolocutor, when the Houſe agrees that " their Buſineſs is over.

It ſoon appear'd, that the Majority would interpret the Peace to be a Victory; and therefore, within few Hours after the Committee was up, ſome forward Perſons were boaſting of the Advantages gain'd on the ſide of the Lower Houſe; and that the Archbiſhop's Friends had given up his Cauſe, and had now excluded the Schedule from any concern in the Adjournment. This Story was ſo induſtriouſly ſpread, that the Members of the Committee (who knew they had receded from no Principles of Truth and Right) found themſelves inſulted by ſome, and almoſt ſuſpected by others. They deſpiſed the Rumour, and choſe rather to have been cenſur'd for going in too far, than for ſtanding too much off. But the Whiſpers had however this Effect upon ſome very conſiderable Members, who had not been preſent at the Committee, that they reſolved in the next Seſſion, to take ſome Opportunity to renounce that invidious Senſe which ſome People had thus put upon the Third Article of Agreement. And after mature Deliberation, the Reſult was to ſubſcribe a Declaratory Form to be offered to the Houſe in their next meeting, to this Effect.

That whereas by Report made from a late Committee, they found the Third Particular to be in theſe Words, That theſe Forms (meaning the Forms of Prorogation uſed in the Convocations of 1586, and 1588.) ſhall be pronounc'd by the Prolocutor, when the Houſe agrees that the Buſineſs of the Houſe is over: " They declare, That " the Meaning is underſtood by them, with an " Exception to any Caſe, when the Preſident " ſhall ſee Cauſe to ſend an Order with the " Schedule, ſignifying the expreſs Time of inti-" mating the Prorogation upon that Day: other-" wiſe, if it were pretended to mean, That the " Authority of the Archbiſhop, or any Order " ſent from the Upper Houſe, was thereby " excluded or diminiſhed; they then ſolemnly " proteſt againſt any ſuch Meaning, or pretended " Meaning.

This Paper was ſubſcribed by ſeveral of the moſt conſiderable Members, and was brought by one of them to be offered to the Houſe on Thurſday, February the 12th. The other Eight Members who had been of the Committee, hearing daily of many falſe Conſtructions put upon the Agreement they had made with their Brethren, met together, and unanimouſly reſolved to make a plain Declaration of their own Senſe in thoſe Three Particulars, which they did to this Effect. 1701.

" That ſome Miſrepreſentations having been " made concerning the Three Articles, agreed to " in a Committee of the Lower Houſe of Convo-" cation, February the 10th, 1701, they take " this Occaſion to declare, Declaration of ſome Members.

" That they came with a ſincere Deſire of Peace; " and when they came, finding that the Diſ-" pute of the Right on either ſide was not like to " end in Peace, but rather to continue the Divi-" ſion; they therefore endeavour'd to find out an " Expedient for the preſent Practice, that ſhould " not determine the Merits of the Queſtion be-" tween 'em.

" That, in order to this, they thought proper " to go by the Methods of the ancient Convo-" cations, in which theſe Controverſies had not " been moved; which was the Ground of the " Firſt Propoſition.

" That they could not eaſily pitch upon any " ſingle Form of Prorogation, which was not " thought to favour the Pretenſions of one ſide " or the other, though they propoſed to have " that Form that ſhould appear to be moſt uſually " upon the Books. That therefore, both ſides " agreeing, That the Books of 1586, and 1588, " were the moſt authentick Acts remaining of the " Lower Houſe, they agreed to take all the " Forms in order as they lay in thoſe Books, ac-" cording to the Second Propoſition.

" As to the Third Propoſition, they declare, That " tho' it be their Opinion, that the whole Convo-" cation of Prelates and Clergy is prorogued by " the Authority of the Archbiſhop, according to " the Tenor of a Schedule ſign'd by him to that " End; yet preſuming, that the Archbiſhop did " not expect the immediate intimating of his " Continuation, unleſs he ſent particular Order " to that purpoſe; they therefore agree to that " Third Propoſition.

" And as an Argument, that this was their " Senſe in that Agreement, they refuſed an Al-" teration that was offered upon the Third Arti-" cle, viz. That the Form ſhould not be pronounced " by the Prolocutor, till the Houſe agree that their " Buſineſs was over.

" This they affirm to have refus'd for this Rea-" ſon (which was then expreſs'd) becauſe tho' " they might generally preſume upon the Arch-" biſhop's Conſent for their ſitting to diſpatch all " proper Buſineſs; yet they could not agree to " any thing, that ſhould preclude the Archbi-" ſhop's Right to prorogue 'em immediately, if " he found it expedient.

" That they think it alſo proper to add, That " they uſed the Words Pronounced by the Prolocutor, " in order to prevent the putting any Queſtion to " the Houſe about Adjourning themſelves. And " that the Prorogation might be always to the " Time and Place appointed by the Schedule.

On Thurſday, February 12. the Prolocutor being indiſpos'd, did aſſign the Dean of Chriſt Church as his Deputy to act for him. The Members who diſavow'd the common Proceedings of the Majority, were content to accept of a Deputy ſo appointed by the Prolocutor, provided that Application was duly made to the Preſident to approve

and

1701. and confirm him. To this, the Majority ſeem'd to agree, and one of the Leading Members ſaid, That there was no Deſign of making a common Referendary between the Two Houſes, without conſulting his Grace. But it being reſolved, that no ſuch proper Application ſhould be made, his Grace ſent for the Clergy to Jeruſalem Chamber, and ſpoke thus; My Brethren of the Clergy, There has happened an Incident of great moment, which I and my Brethren muſt take Time to conſider of between this and Saturday next; to which I have thought fit to prorogue the Convocation. I order you, Mr. Tyllot, to read the Schedule.

Death of the Prolocutor.

On Friday, February 13. Dr. Woodward the Prolocutor, died in his Lodgings at Weſtminſter, in very unhappy Circumſtances. On the next Day, Saturday, February 14. his Grace on this Occaſion thus addreſs'd himſelf to the Inferior Clergy: Brethren of the Clergy, I hear the Prolocutor is dead, and we are very much ſurprized at the News of it. We muſt conſider what is proper to be done on this Occaſion. The Dean and Chapter of Weſtminſter (as my Lord of Rocheſter tells us) will make uſe of this Place on Monday and Tueſday next: Wedneſday is a Day of ſolemn Devotion, being Aſhwedneſday; therefore, I have ordered the Prorogation to be till Thurſday. Mr. Tyllot, do you read the Schedule.

We muſt obſerve, That juſt before the laſt Sickneſs of the Prolocutor, he had endeavour'd to recommend himſelf to a great Party, by complaining of his beſt Friend, his own Biſhop: The Grounds of the Complaint was only this; His Lordſhip held his Triennial Viſitations conſtantly in Perſon, and the Parochial Clergy, as in Duty bound, paid their Attendance, in a regular and reſpectful manner. But the Dean of Sarum, as Rector of Peuſy, declin'd his Appearance at the Time and Place of Viſitation, without making any reaſonable Excuſe; but rather aggravating his Abſence by ſuch Signs of Contempt, as made it evidently an ill Example, and oblig'd his Lordſhip to order a Citation, as in a uſual Method, before any Privilege of Convocation did obtain, or was pretended: When the Time of Privilege did afterwards commence, his Lordſhip ordered his Chancellor to put a Stet upon the Cauſe, and there was no farther Proceeding in it. This ſlight Matter was to be improv'd into a Grievance, and a Remonſtrance upon it. So on February 9th, this Form of Complaint was preſented to the Archbiſhop and Biſhops.

Complaint of Breach of Privilege.

“WHereas it is the ancient undoubted Right of every Perſon ſummon'd to the Convocation of this Province by his Majeſty's Writ, and your Grace's Mandate thereupon, to be privileged from all Suits, except for Breach of the Peace, during the Time of its Aſſembling. And whereas it appears to us, That the Reverend Dr. Robert Woodward, Dean of Sarum, a known Member of this Houſe, and alſo Prolocutor of it, is at this Time (or has lately been) proſecuted, by the Order of the Right Reverend Gilbert Lord Biſhop of Sarum, in a certain Cauſe of pretended Contempt and Diſobedience; and that George Frome, lately the Proctor of the ſaid Dean in this Cauſe, was on Tueſday the 27th, or Wedneſday the 28th of January laſt, admoniſh'd in the ſaid Lord Biſhop's Conſiſtory, to appear and anſwer in it on the Tueſday following; which Days are within the Time of the Sitting of this preſent Convocation: We the Clergy of the Lower Houſe of Convocation, being aggrieved in this Fact, not only by the unlawful Moleſtation of a Member of our Houſe, but by the Injury offer'd to the whole Body of the Convocation, in the Perſon of the Referendary between the Two Houſes of it, do humbly beſeech your Grace and your Lordſhips, ſo effectually to deal with the Right Reverend the Lord Biſhop of Sarum, that the ſaid Prolocutor may be freed from this unlawful Viſitation; and that the Rights of the particular Members of Convocation, and the Honour of the whole Body, ſo publickly violated by ſo eminent a Member of it, may not ſuffer by the ill Example, but may have ſome proper Reparation made; ſuch as your Lordſhips in your Wiſdom and Juſtice ſhall think fit.

This Complaint, however ſingular, was not rejected by his Grace and the Biſhops; they received it, and conſidered it, and return'd this Anſwer to it.

Anſwer of the Archbiſhop & Biſhops.

“THE Archbiſhop, as Preſident of the Convocation, together with his Brethren and Suffragans, will always take care to maintain the juſt Rights of the Lower Houſe, and particularly their Privilege of Exemption from Suits.

“And therefore having upon Occaſion of this Addreſs, inquired into the Matter of Complaint againſt the Lord Biſhop of Sarum contained therein, they have received this Account of the Matter of Fact, from the ſaid Biſhop of Sarum: That the Proceedings againſt Dr. Woodward, as Rector of Peuſy (now the Referendary of the Lower Houſe) were begun at a Time when there was no Privilege: And that upon the Opening of this preſent Convocation, his Lordſhip did order his Chancellor to put a Stet upon the Cauſe; by whom he is aſſured, That notwithſtanding no Privilege was pleaded, nor ſo much as any Motion made to ſuſpend further Proceedings, he did nevertheleſs put a Stet upon it. Nor was there any Citation or Proceſs decreed againſt the ſaid Doctor, ſince the Opening of this Convocation. This being the State of the Caſe;

“The Archbiſhop and his Brethren cannot ſee what Ground there was for Complaint; and think you had done well to have been better aſſured, that the Matter was ſuch as it was repreſented to you; before you had charged it with the hard Terms of an unlawful Moleſtation and Vexation, and demanded Reparation upon it. Whereas by this Miſrepreſentation of the Biſhop's Proceedings in this Caſe, it plainly appears to whom Reparation ought to be made.

There was, indeed, ſo much of Partiality and Prejudice in the beginning and proſecuting of this Complaint, that had the Author of it liv'd, many good Chriſtians did hope he would have repented of it. In the mean time, this unhappy Subject may conclude with what is modeſtly ſaid by the Writer of the Preſent State of this Convocation, correcting the Miſtakes and Slanders of the pretended Faithful Accounts, 4to. p. 40.

“It would be too large a Story to give you the Riſe and Proſecution of this warm Complaint, and the ſeveral Debates upon it in the Lower Houſe. I am the more tender in the Matter, becauſe the plaineſt Relation of it would affect the Veracity of a Perſon now deceaſed, who has thereby a Title to have many Parts of this Cauſe to be kept in Silence.

After the Prolocutor's Death, there being no Buſineſs depending, and nothing in Debate but the Clergy's Pretenſions of Exemption from the 1701. Synodical Authority and Rights of the Archbiſhop and Biſhops; his Grace, with Advice of his Brethren, on Thurſday, Feb. 19th, diſmiſs'd the Clergy with this tender Speech.

Brethren of the Clergy,

The Speech of the Preſident.

" WHen you brought up your laſt Addreſs, " complaining of a Breach of Privilege " by the Biſhop of Saliſbury, we readily received " it, and no one of us was more ready to do it, " than the Biſhop himſelf. We then promiſed " you ſhould have an Anſwer to it on the next " Day of our Meeting. The Anſwer was ac- " cordingly prepared, being founded upon the " Acts of the Biſhop's Court at Saliſbury, and " the Account given by the Judge of that " Court; which Anſwer you may ſee enter'd in " our Journal.

" The late Prolocutor's Illneſs, and an Incident " that happen'd upon it, were the Cauſe that " this Anſwer was not communicated that Day. " We hope, when you have read that Anſwer, " you will not ſuffer your ſelves for the future " to be ſurpriz'd into Complaints of this Na- " ture, but will ſtay till you are fully aſſur'd " that they are well grounded both in Fact and " Right; I ſay Right, as well as Fact. For your " Aſſertion, That we are privileg'd from all " Suits, except for Breach of the Peace, was not " well conſider'd; ſince there are Matters of a " higher Nature, wherein Privilege cannot be " pleaded. I might add, That if I miſtake not " the Senſe of the late Act, it ſuffers the Cauſe " to go on, provided that the Perſon remains " unmoleſted. But of this enough, eſpecially " conſidering that the Perſon particularly con- " cerned, is lately dead.

" By his Death the Prolocutor's Chair becoming " void, you may juſtly expect I ſhould ſay ſome- " thing concerning the filling of it. That is a " Matter, which as the State of our Affairs at " preſent ſtands, needs much Deliberation: I " have had many Thoughts upon that Subject, " and I will freely communicate ſuch of them as " I judge to be proper at this Time.

" The Choice of a Prolocutor, or Referendary, " is equally the Right and Concern of the " whole Lower Houſe. Many of the Members " (ſeveral of which deſired earneſtly to be diſ- " miſs'd) are now abſent in the Country, and " divers of them at a great diſtance from Lon- " don. They are (I believe) gone down, as for " other Reaſons, ſo chiefly that they may attend " their reſpective Cures in this ſolemn Time of " Lent, and beſtow a conſiderable part of it in " Catechiſing, and preparing Perſons for the Bleſ- " ſed Sacrament at Eaſter.

" It will not, I think, be fair to exclude them " from a ſhare in a new Election: And to ſend " for them up, when they are ſo well employ'd, " meerly for the Choice of a Prolocutor, without " other neceſſary Buſineſs here, will be a Hardſhip " to them, and a Prejudice to their Cures. No " Synodical Buſineſs is yet, by Royal Authority, " laid before the Convocation. If there were, " yet till the Formulary be better ſettled, the Bu- " ſineſs would, at every turn, be interrupted by " Debates about Methods of Proceeding.

" During a Receſs, good Progreſs may, I " hope, be made in that matter. Many Mate- " rials are brought together in order to the " preparing of a Draught for compoſing a Mo- " dus tenendi Convocationem. I have communica- " ted one Authentick Book, which came lately to " my hands, and am in hopes of recovering ano- " ther, together with ſeveral Papers which " may be uſeful to this purpoſe. And I doubt " not but the Members of both Houſes will contri- " bute their Endeavours towards the ſame good " Work. 1701.

" For the abovesaid Reaſons, as alſo becauſe " a War ſeems to be breaking out, which will " in ſome Meaſure divert Men's Thoughts from " Buſineſs of this Nature; and there are like- " wiſe Appearances of a ſpeedy winding up of " publick Affairs, I purpoſe further to deliberate " about appointing the Choice of a Prolocutor, " and at preſent to proceed to a Prorogation: But " I ſhall do it by ſuch Intervals, during this Seſ- " ſions of Parliament, as may upon any emergent " Occaſions, leave room for the Choice of a Pro- " locutor, and the Sitting of the Convocation. " And for thoſe who look upon Me, or any of " my Suffragans, as deſigning to bring Convoca- " tions and the Prolocutors thereof into diſuſe, or " to put any unreaſonable Reſtraints upon the Lower " Houſe, they are greatly miſtaken; and I hope " a little time will ſhew them their Error, and " put an end to all ſuch groundleſs Suſpicions, " as well as allay the Heats which they have " occaſion'd. Such Heats have given great " Scandal and Offence, even to thoſe who un- " derſtand not the Nature of the Controverſy, " but are much concern'd, that there ſhould be " any Differences among Men, who are by Pro- " feſſion the Miniſters of the Goſpel of Peace. " And I am ſorry to find, that in a Paper which " came to my Hands laſt Night, mark'd Num- " ber 1. (ſhewing a Deſign of the Continuance " of it, in caſe the Convocation ſhould alſo " continue to ſit) a ſtrange Method is laid for " giving publick Intelligence from Time to Time, " of any Differences that might hereafter ariſe. " The Title of it is, A faithful Account of ſome " Tranſactions in the Three laſt Seſſions of the preſent " Convocation. But, as I am told this Morning, " it will ſpeedily be ſhewn in ſeveral Particulars, " how far it is from anſwering that Title, eſpe- " cially in the Relation of what paſs'd in a late " Committee. When the Explications then di- " rectly inſiſted on ſhall be more publickly under- " ſtood, the Partiality of the Writer of this Paper " will be no leſs publick.

" I beſeech you, Brethren, to look forward to " the Things that make for Peace, and whereby we " may edify one another, and the Eſtabliſhed " Church, of which, by the ſingular Goodneſs " of God, we are Members: That ſo thoſe " Differences which have continued too long al- " ready, may be ſpeedily and happily compos'd. " To which end, I heartily commend my ſelf " and you, to the God of Peace and Unity, through " Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

Proceedings of the Lower Clergy.

A great part of the Clergy were entirely ſatiſ- fied with theſe Reaſons; and thought it a ſeaſon- able Juncture to have the Liberty of returning to their Churches and Families; and there to expect a Call upon ſuch emergent Occaſion, as ſhould re- quire the Choice of a Prolocutor, and the Sitting of the Convocation. But what is much to be pity'd, other Some took up the Pretence of greater Diſcontent, and would meet in Henry's VII's Cha- pel Two Days after, and would reſolve them- ſelves into a ſort of Aſſembly, and choſe a Mode- rator or Chair-Man to that purpoſe. And when the Day came, to which the Archbiſhop had pro- rogued the Convocation, they came up as a Houſe, without a Prolocutor, to the Chamber adjoining to the Jeruſalem Chamber, and there meeting the Biſhop of Lincoln, who as his Grace's Commiſſary had now prorogued the Convoca- tion to a further Day, they deſired his Lordſhip to carry a Meſſage to his Grace, of their de- ſire to proceed to the Choice of a Prolocutor. His Lordſhip with great Kindneſs told them, 1701. That he was unwilling to carry any Meſſage by Word of Mouth, for fear he might miſtake in the Delivery of it: but if they pleaſed to dictate to him, he would take their Senſe in Writing, and ſo lay it before his Grace: Upon which they began to expreſs themſelves to this Effect; That it was the unanimous Deſire of the Lower Houſe of Convocation, &c. Upon which another Member of different Opinion, who had that Morning waited on his Lordſhip, and was his ordinary Chaplain, did modeſtly interpoſe, and ſay, "That he hop'd "no ſuch Meſſage would be worded in the Name "of the whole Lower Houſe: For as they were "not a Houſe, and did not act in that Capacity, "without a Prolocutor; ſo, many of the Mem- "bers (of which himſelf was one) had not aſ- "ſented to any ſuch Meſſage; and therefore, "he preſum'd, it would be more true and pro- "per, to let the Meſſage run in the Name of "Several Members of the Lower Houſe:" And the Biſhop, in his writing down their Senſe, did ſo accordingly expreſs it. But this raiſed a new Clamour, and thoſe who aſſumed the Name of a Houſe (eſpecially Dr. F——ch) fell ſeverely on the Member who propoſed the Alteration of their Phraſe, as a Betrayer of their Rights and Liberties; tho' no one had taken more pains to underſtand, or had better Reſolutions to aſſert, all manner of Rights and Powers, that were agreeable to the Practice of former Convocations, and to the Eſtabliſhed Conſtitution of this Church and State.

That

Queſtion, Whether the Convocation was diſſolved with the King's Death.

Within a Day or two after, the King's Death, which ſhould have put an End to theſe Diſputes, did raiſe another Queſtion, Whether the Convocation did expire with him? His Grace and the Biſhops were rightly ſenſible, that the Convocation being aſſembled by the Archbiſhop's Mandate, in Obedience to the King's Writ, could no longer ſubſiſt, than while that Royal Writ remain'd in Force and Virtue: And therefore the Writ of Summons abating by the King's Death, the Convocation was virtually diſſolved. But on the other Hand, that part of the Lower Houſe who had entred upon new Claims, were taught to call themſelves a Parliamentary Body, and at leaſt to attend upon the Parliament, by virtue of the Præmunientes Clauſe, which they had lately got executed in ſeveral Dioceſes. And therefore, there having been a late Act to continue this Parliament after the Demiſe of the King, theſe Members would imagine, that the Convocation was ſuch a part of the Parliament, as could not be ſeparated from it. And therefore, if they were no longer a provincial Synod, they were, however, a part of the National Clergy, ſummon'd by the Præmunientes Clauſe, to meet in Parliament. And, indeed, had their Parliamentary Notions been true, this had been a juſt Inference from them. But when they came to conſult with Men learned in the Laws, they ſoon found, that the Act for continuing the Parliament, did by no means include the Convocation; which being called by a different Writ, had a different Conſtitution, and muſt needs determine with the King's Death. When they were under this Diſappointment, they ſollicited ſome Friends in the Houſe of Lords, to bring in an extraordinary Clauſe, to revive the dead Convocation, and to declare it to be ſtill in Being, notwithſtanding that it was otherwiſe by the King's Death actually diſſolved. This Clauſe of giving Reſurrection, was thought ſo extraordinary, that the greater Number of Peers could not be reconciled to it, and the Attorney-General declaring it was againſt the Queen's Eccleſiaſtical Supremacy, it was at laſt dropt. And happy had it been, if all other Diſputes of this Nature could have dropt with it.

FINIS.

AN

AN INDEX

To the THIRD VOLUME of the Compleat Hiſtory of ENGLAND.

[N. B. The Letter (N) refers to the Notes added in this Edition.]

A.

Abbeville, Marquis of, King James's Ambaſſador in Holland; his Falſhood, Page 491. His fruitleſs Negotiation to get the States to ſend home the 6 Engliſh Regiments, 497. His Memorial to the States, diſowning King James II. having any private Alliance with the French King, 519.

Abbot, Dr. John, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Sequeſtred, 40. Recall'd to Court, 49. His Lenity and Character, 53. His Honeſty and Suſpenſion, 54. His Death and Character, 69.

Abhorrence, a Teſt of, Paſt, 332.

Abhorrers, Addreſſers againſt Petitioning the King, ſo call'd, 370. Proceeded againſt by the Parliament, 377. Cambridge Univerſity Addreſſes, an Abhorrence of the Aſſociation and altering the Succeſſion, 393.

Abington, Earl of, goes to the Prince of Orange at Exeter, 528.

Abjuration Oath, that paſt by the Rump againſt King Charles IId. 234. Refus'd by many of the Members, ibid.

Acton, Sir William, Sheriff of London, Committed to the Tower about Tunnage and Poundage, 51.

Adda, Ferdinando D', the Pope's Nuncio, his publick Entry, 494. A Favourite of Queen Mary's, ibid. What Intrigues he troubled himſelf moſt with, ibid. Deſires to be recall'd, ibid.

Addreſſes to Charles II. ſuſpected to be ſet on by the Court, 391. Ridiculous ones to King James from the Oxfordſhire Diſſenters, and the County of Hereford, 495.

Aeth Beſieged by Three Mareſchals of France, 736. And taken, ibid.

Aghrim, Battel of, 619, 620, 621.

Aix La Chapelle, Treaty of, 294.

Albemarle, George Monk, made Duke of, 241. His Care of the Cities of London and Weſtminſter in the Plague-time, 277. Worſted by the Dutch Fleet, 281. He gains a Victory over them, 282. Made firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, 288. His Death and Pompous Funeral, 297.

Albemarle, Chriſtopher Monk Duke of, ſent Governour to Jamaica, 496.

Albemarle, Mr. Keppel made Earl of, 754. In great Favour with King William, ibid. Made Knight of the Garter, 783. His Attendance on the King in his laſt Sickneſs, 836. The King's Legacy to him, 839.

Algerines, reduc'd to Terms by the Lord Sandwich, 259.

Allen, Sir Thomas, ſent with a Squadron of Men of War to the Streights, by Charles II. 295. Forces the Algerines to conclude a Treaty of Peace, ibid.

Ambaſſador, Daniſh, his Memorial to King William for a Peace with France, 657.

Ambaſſadors, French and Spaniſh, Quarrel for Precedence on Tower-Hill, 241.

Ambrun in Dauphine taken by the Duke of Savoy, 645.

Angus, Earl of, kill'd at Steinkirk, 644.

Anjou, Philip Duke of, declar'd King of Spain, by his Grandfather the French King, 792.

Anabaptiſts turn'd out of the Army by Monk, 233. They firſt Addreſs King James, upon his Declaration for Liberty of Conſcience, 489.

Anne, Princeſs, goes to viſit her Father the Duke of York in Scotland, 391. Marry'd to Prince George of Denmark, 407. She retires from London, and leaves a Letter for King James's Queen, 531. Deſires the Succeſſion might be ſettled in the Proteſtant Line, 565. Debates about the Revenue to be ſettled upon Her, 585. Her kind Letter to King William, on the Death of her Royal Siſter Queen Mary, 668. She is happily reconcil'd to his Majeſty, ibid. An Act to make it Treaſon to Conſpire againſt Her, 834. She Succeeds King William in the Throne, 839.

Anne, Queen of England. Her Speech to the Council on her Acceſſion to the Throne, 839. Her Letter to the States of Holland, to Condole the Death of King William, ibid. A falſe Report of Deſigns againſt Her by King William, 840. Refuted by the Lords, ibid.

Apprentices of London; King Charles gives them Two Bucks for a Feaſt, and why, 391. Duke of Grafton one of their Stewards, ibid. Fin'd and Pillory'd for keeping the 5th of November, 398.

Archdale, a Quaker, choſen a Member of Parliament, 765. Not admitted into the Houſe, ibid.

Argyle, Earl of, made a Marquis by Charles I. 120. Hated by Montroſe, 195. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid. Raiſes a Faction in Oppoſition to Duke Hamilton, to the prejudice of King Charles IId's Intereſt, 198.

Argyle, Earl of, moves for Security againſt a Popiſh Succeſſor, 391. Found guilty of High Treaſon, and ſaves himſelf by flight, ibid. Lands in Scotland, 425. His Declarations, 426. The Scots tho' provok'd don't join him, ibid. He is Defeated, Betray'd, Taken and Beheaded, 427. His Death one of the Scots Conventions charges againſt King James, 574.

Argyle, Earl of, his Son: Sent by the Scots Convention to take King William and Queen Mary's Coronation-Oath, 575.

Arlington, Earl of, one of the Cabal that adviſ'd the Shutting up of the Exchequer, 309. Sent Ambaſſador to the French King in Holland, with the Duke of Bucks and the Lord Halifax, 315. Queries of his Conduct, ibid. Diſlik'd by the Prince of Orange, 330.

Arminianiſm, Complain'd of in the Houſe of Commons, 5. Thoſe who favour'd it hated as a Civil Faction, 32. Favour'd by the King, and the ill Conſequence of it, 34. Remonſtrated againſt, 46. Encouraged by Dr. Laud, Biſhop of London, 51. The Parliament proteſt againſt it, ibid. The Lord Clarendon's Character of them, 57. Proceedings in Parliament upon it, 54, to 58. Factions in Oxford about it, 66. It makes more Noiſe, 71.

Armſtrong, Sir Thomas, accus'd of the Phanatick Plot, a Proclamation againſt him, 410. Taken and Executed, 414. Debates about reverſing his Attainder, 586.

Army, Parliament, refuſe to be Diſbanded, 168. They remonſtrate and engage in an Aſſociation, ibid. They Impeach 11 Members, ibid. The Parliament againſt them, ibid. They are too ſtrong for them, 169. They break off the Iſle of Wight's Treaty, and require that the King be brought to Juſtice, 177. They come to London without Conſent of Parliament, and exclude ſeveral Members the Houſe, 179, 180.

Arran, Earl of, Committed to the Tower for plotting to reſtore King James, 551. Oppoſes King William's Intereſt at the Meeting of the Scots Lords and Gentlemen in London, 555.

Articles, the 39. The Proteſtation of the Commons upon the Senſe of them, 58. They are laid aſide to make room for the Aſſembly of Divines Confeſſion of Faith, 174.

Arundel, Earl of, Impriſon'd in Time of Parliament without Cauſe aſſign'd, 21. Releaſed on the Complaints of the Houſe of Peers, 22. Confin'd again, 27. Sent Ambaſſador to the Emperor, returns without taking Leave, 86. Made General in the firſt Expedition againſt the Scots, 98.

Arundel, Henry, Lord of Wardour, Committed to the Tower for Treaſon, 356. Made a Privy Counſellor, 449. And Lord Privy Seal, 451.

Aſcham, Mr. the Rump's Agent in Spain Aſſaſſinated, 197.

Aſhburnham, Mr. flies with the King from Hampton-Court, 170. Delivers him to Colonel Hammond, Governor of the Iſle of Wight, ibid.

Aſhenden, Mr. Thomas, a Miniſter in Northampton, his Errors and Recantation, 392.

Aſhly, Anthony Aſhly Cooper, Lord, made one of the Lords of the Treaſury by Charles II. 288. One of the Lords that adviſ'd the ſhutting up of the Exchequer, 309. Created Earl of Shaftsbury, 314. See Shaftsbury, Earl of.

Aſton, Sir Arthur, Governor of Drogheda, put to the Sword with his whole Garriſon by Cromwell, 192.

Aſhton, Mr. Condemn'd for a Jacobite Plot, and hang'd, 614.

Aſſembly of Divines meet by Order of Parliament, 145. Their Acts, 146. Whitlock's Character of them, ibid. Archbiſhop Laud's, 147. Earl of Clarendon's, 145, 147. Scots admitted admitted amongſt them, 140. Their further Acts, 156, 161, 164, 165, 173, 174. They publiſh their Catechiſm, ibid. And Confeſſion of Faith, ibid and 189.

Aſſizes, the Bloody, in the Weſt, 433.

Aſſociation Bill againſt the Duke of York and Papiſts, 378.

Aſſociation to ſtand by King William, Sign'd by all the Members of Parliament, preſented to the King by the Lords and Commons, and all the Corporations in England, 706. Depoſited in the Tower, 709.

Aſtly, Lord, Commands the laſt Army in the Field for the King, 159. Is defeated by Sir William Brereton, ibid.

Athlone, Siege of, 618. Taken by General Ginkle, 619.

Atkins, one of the Yorkſhire Conſpirators againſt Charles II. His Inſolence, 267. He is hang'd, ibid.

Attainder, Act of, the cruel and general one paſt by King James in Ireland, 501.

Avaux, Count de, the French Ambaſſador at the Hague, diſcovers the Prince of Orange's Deſign to the French King, and the French King to King James, 518. His Memorial to the States upon it, ibid. The French King's Ambaſſador to King James at Dublin, Sworn of that King's Privy Council, 576. His Intrigues at the Hague about the Spaniſh Succeſſion, 803, 804. His Memorial when he left Holland, 826, 827.

Aylesbury, Earl of, in a Plot to bring in the French, 703.

Aylmer, Captain, Convoys home a rich Turkey Fleet, 622. Made Rear Admiral of the Red, 653. Vice Admiral, 721.

Ayloff, Colonel, taken with the Earl of Argyle, 427. Endeavours to kill himſelf, ibid. Hang'd, ibid. N.

Ayloff, Mr. John, hang'd at Temple-Bar in King James's Reign, 438.

Ayſcue, Sir George, taken by the Dutch, 281.

B.

Baden, Prince Lewis of, his Actions in Germany. Comes into England, and is magnificently Treated, 661. Other Actions of his in Germany, 715.

Baker, Major, choſen Joint Governor of Londonderry, with Mr. Walker the Miniſter, 577. His Death, 579.

Balfour, Sir William, ſent to raiſe Forces in the Low-Countries, 40. It gives Diſcontent, 41. Remov'd from being Conſtable of the Tower, 122.

Balmerino, Lord, he and his Father Try'd, Condemn'd and Pardon'd, 77.

Bamfield, Mr. Choſen Speaker of Richard Cromwell's Parliament, 230. The Third Speaker before they diſpatch'd any Buſineſs, ibid.

Bampfield, Mr. a Diſſenting Miniſter dies in Newgate, 422.

Bank, Land, its deficiency, 723.

Bantry Bay, the Sea Fight there between the Engliſh and French, 564.

Barbadoes, Iſland of, attack'd by De Ruyter, 277. Beat him off, ibid. Ralph Grey, Eſq; made Governor of, 734.

Barcelona taken by the French, 737.

Barclay, Sir George, one of the Chief Managers of the horrid Aſſaſſination Plot to Murder King William, 703. Brings King James's Commiſſion to Attack and Sieze the Prince of Orange in his Winter Quarters, into England, ibid.

Barillon, Monſieur, the French Ambaſſador, Converſant with Court Intrigues in Charles II's Reign, 389. His Propoſal to King James to aſſiſt him againſt the Prince of Orange, 519. Adviſes him to ſend away his Queen, and the pretended Prince of Wales, 532. He endeavours to ſow Diviſions among the Lords after King James's departure, 542. He is order'd to be gone in 24 Hours by the Prince of Orange, ibid.

Barnard, Mr. Nathaniel, Proſecuted for Preaching againſt Arminianiſm, 71.

Barnardiſton, Sir Samuel, his Troubles in King Charles II. Reign, 405, 413.

Bart, Captain Du, deſtroys a Fleet of Dutch Men of War and Merchantmen, 720.

Baſtwick, Dr. John, his Caſe and Sufferings, 85.

Bateman, Mr. Charles, hang'd in King James's Reign, 439.

Battel of Luttern between the Danes and Germans, 28. Of Leipzick between the Swedes and Germans, 64. Of Lutzen, 68. Of Norlinguen, between the ſame, 77. Of Edgehill, in the Civil Wars in England, 127. Of Lanſdown, 138. Of Marſton Moor, 149. Of Cheriton Down, 150. Firſt and Second of Newbury, 139, 151. Of Naſeby, 157. Of Langport, 158. Of Preſton, 162. Of Dunbar, 195. Of Worceſter, 199. Naval one of Sole-Bay, 314. Of Seneff, 330. Of Sedgemore, 431. Of the Boyne, 598. Naval one of Beachy, 602. Of Aghrim, 619, 620, 621. Of Stenkirk, 643. Landen, 654. Of Marſaglia, 656.

Bates, Dr. takes the Oath of Allegiance with a very odd Diſtinction, 280. His Speech to King William, 558. And to Queen Mary, ibid.

Bavaria, Maximilian Emanuel Duke of, made Governor of the Netherlands by King William's Means, 642. One of his Servants betrays King William's Councils, 644. His Actions at the Siege of Namur, 688, 689. His Wife the Electoreſs Miſcarries at the Bombardment of Bruſſells, 690. His Bravery at Namur, 692. Viſits King William to thank him for his Care of him in the Partition Treaty, 756.

Baxter, Mr. Richard, the Diſſenting Miniſter, Courts Richard Cromwell, 230. His Diſingenuity at the Savoy Conference, 253, 254. His Speech to the King about tolerating Papiſts and Socinians, 259. His Opinion of an Indulgence, 268. His Conference with the Lord Keeper Bridgman about a Comprehenſion Bill, 295. He is Impriſon'd for keeping a Conventicle, 301. Who help'd and protected him, ibid. His Correſpondence with the Duke of Lauderdale about a Comprehenſion, 306. Offer'd a Biſhoprick in Scotland, ibid. Propoſals drawn up by him for a Union, at the deſire of ſeveral Perſons of Quality, 326. Has a Conference with Dr. Tillotſon and Dr. Stillingfleet for a Union, in which they agreed, 331. How it came to nothing, 332. His Sufferings, 428. His Trial at large, 443. Pardon'd by the Lord Powis's Mediation, 463.

Beachy, Naval Fight, 602.

Beaufort, Henry Somerſet, Duke of, made Preſident of Wales, by James II. 421.

Beaumont, Colonel, refuſes to admit Iriſhmen into his Company, 516. Impriſon'd for it by King James, 517.

Bedford, Earl of, proſecuted in the Star-Chamber, for ſpreading a Libel, 5. Deſerts the Parliament, and goes to the King, 139. Deſerts the King, ibid. One of the Aſſembly of Divines, 134.

Bedford, William Ruſſell Earl of, made Duke, 670.

Bedloe, Mr. William, diſcovers Sir Edmund Bury Godfrey's Murder, 364.

Beecher, Sir William, his Speech to the Rochellers, 38.

Bellamont, Earl of, ſeizes Captain Kid in New England, 774.

Bellaſis, John Lord, made Governor of Tangier, by Charles II. 285. Captain of the Band of Penſioners, 293. Committed to the Tower for Treaſon, 356. Excuſes himſelf from being Deputy of Ireland, 447. Made a Privy Councellor, 449.

Bellaſis, Colonel, Governor of York for the King; defeated at Selby by the Lord Fairfax and his Son Sir Thomas, 149.

Bembow, Captain, Bombards Havre de Grace, 665. And Granville, 690. And Calais, 713.

Bennet, Sir Harry, one of King Charles's Followers in his Exile, Is for his turning Papiſt, and joining in a League againſt the Proteſtant Intereſt, 238. The Lord Culpeper's brave Saying to him Abroad, ibid. His fear of the Conſequence of it, ibid. Made Secretary of State, 264. Lord Clarendon's Reflection upon it, ibid.

Bentink, Mr. the Prince of Orange's Favourite, ſent into England to Negotiate the Match with the Princeſs Mary, 344. Sent to the Duke of Monmouth to warn him of his Danger, 428. His Meſſage to King James from the Prince about the Duke, 431. Arreſts the Earl of Feverſham by the Prince of Orange's Order, 536. Made a Privy Councellor and Groom of the Stole by King William, 550. Created Earl of Portland, 560. See Portland, Earl of.

Berkley, John Lord, made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 304 His Reception by the Univerſity of Dublin, ibid. Reſigns the ſame to the Earl of Eſſex, 313.

Berkley, Lord Admiral of the Blue; his Actions at Camaret Bay, 664, 665. He Bombards the Coaſts of France, ibid. Again 690. And again, 720.

Berkley, Sir Robert, a Judge, his Arbitrary Judgment about Ship-Money, 84. Impeach'd by Parliament, 119.

Berkly, Sir John, thought to betray Charles I. to Colonel Hammond Governor of the Iſle of Wight, 170.

Berkly, Sir William, kill'd in the Dutch Wars, 281.

Berry hang'd for Sir Edmundbury Godfrey's Murder, 351.

Berkſhire, Earl of, His great Age and Death, 297.

Berwick, James Fitz Roy, one of King James's Natural Sons, ſent to Hungary, 496. Flies from Ireland to France with King James, 567. Taken Priſoner at Landen by Brigadier Churchill, 655.

Beveridge, Dr. William, will not accept of the Biſhoprick of Bath and Wells, 633.

Biddle, John, his Heretical Notions, 173.

Bidloo, Dr. his Care of King William in his laſt Sickneſs, 835.

Bierly, Coll. carries up the Articles of Impeachment againſt the Earl of Orford to the Lords, 809.

Biron, Sir John, removed from the Lieutenancy of the Tower by the Parliament, 123. Strikes the firſt Stroke againſt them, 127.

Biſhops, the Court, too buſie in the Loan, 30. Iriſh Biſhops Proteſt and Preach againſt Tolerating Popery, 37. Several made, 71. Decline Voting in the Lord Strafford's Caſe, 116. The Lord Clarendon's Opinion of it, ibid. The Clamour of the Mob againſt them, 122. Voted by the Lords to ſit in Parliament, 124. By the Commons to be Impeach'd, ibid. 125. Of them Impeach'd, ibid. They proteſt againſt their being Outed by Parliament, ibid. Twelve of them Charg'd with Treaſon, and Ten ſent to the Tower, 115. Reflections upon their Proteſtations, by the Author of the Hiſt. of the Rebellion, ibid. Carry'd in the Houſe of the Lords, that they ſhould have no Votes in Parliament, ibid. Their Flight and Impriſonment, 130. They are reſtor'd to their Honours and Power, 247. Several made by King Charles II. ibid. Reſtor'd to their Votes in the Houſe of Lords, 250. Debates about their Sitting in Tryals for Blood, 252. Their Compliance at the Savoy Conference, 253. Their Charity in Redeeming Chriſtian Slaves, 259. Several made, 267, Several Scots Biſhops Conſecrated at London, 273. Several made, 332, 338. Reſolution of the Lords and Commons about their Votes in Capital Caſes, 365. Fourteen againſt the Bill of Excluſion, 377. Scots Biſhops, their Teſtimonials in favour of the Duke of York, 398. Several made by James II. 422, 485. Who they were that were moſt in his Favour, 442. One of them attends the Pope's Nuntio at his Entrance, 494. Refuſe to Read King James's Declaration of Liberty of Conſcience, 511.

Biſhops, the Seven, their Petition to the King againſt the Diſpenſing Power, 511. They are ſent to the Tower, 512. The People for them, ibid. Their Tryal. The Council for and againſt them, and the Noble Appearance for them in Court, 513, 514. Clear'd, and great Shoutings upon it, 515. King James invites them to aſſiſt him with their Council, when the Prince of Orange was coming, 520. Their Anſwer, ibid. Scots Biſhops, their Letter to King James againſt the Prince of Orange, 554. How they behav'd themſelves upon King James's publiſhing his Declaration for Liberty of Conſcience, 556. Several New One's Conſecrated, 589. Several made in Ireland, 612. The Nonjuring, 552, 590. A Party in the Convocation favour them, 594. They will not Comply, 633. Their Places fill'd by others, ibid. Several Choſen and Conſecrated, 633, 634. More made, 653, 676, 731. Their Diſputes with the Lower Houſe of Convocation, 842 to 855.

Blaire, Sir Adam, Impriſon'd for publiſhing King James's firſt Declaration, 569.

Blaire, Capt. his Evidence about Parker's Plot againſt K. William, 628.

Blake, General, his brave Defence of Taunton, 157. His Actions at Sea, 204, 208. His Succeſs in the Streights, 213. His Bravery at St. Cruz, 221. His Death, 222. His Character, ibid. Another by the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Blanquefort Lewis, de Duras Marquis of, Created Lord Duras, 316. His Services, ibid. See Lord Duras.

Blood, Mr. Aſſaults the Duke of Ormond, and attempts to ſteal the Crown, 305. The manner of his Attempting to ſteal the Crown, 308.

Bohemia, Elizabeth Queen of, Viſits her Nephew, Charles II. 250. Dies in England, ibid.

Bolton, Charles Pawlet, Marquis of Wincheſter, Created Duke of, 560.

Bombay, Iſle of, in the Eaſt-Indies, part of Queen Katharine's Portion, 255.

Bon taken by the Prince of Orange, 326.

Bookſellers and Printers puniſh'd for dealing in Seditious Books, 267.

Booth, Sir George, riſes for K. Charles, 232. Enters Cheſter, ibid. Routed by Lambert, ibid. Taken at Newport-Pagnell, ibid.

Borotski a Polander, Hanged in Chains for the Murder of Mr. Thynne, 392.

Boufflers, Mareſchal de, throws himſelf into Namur, Beſieg'd by King William, 688. Wou'd fain get out again, but can't, 690. He is Arreſted by King William when Namur was Surrendred, 693. His Diſcourſe with Monſieur Dyckvelt, and Releaſement, ibid. His Conference with the Lord Portland when the Treaty of Reſwick was concluded 737.

Bourdeaux Fleet, Dutch, Surpriz'd by the Engliſh before a Declaration of War, 271.

Bourdieu, Mr. a French Proteſtant Miniſter, attends the Duke of Schomberg, when he Invaded Dauphine, 645. What he did there, ibid.

Bourk, Coll. Ulick, Surrenders Ballymore at Diſcretion, 618.

Bowles, Mr. a Miniſter at York, very Inſtrumental in General Monk's Succeſs in England, 234.

Boyle, Henry, Eſq; made Chancellor of the Exchequer, 825. Sworn of King William's Privy-Council, ibid.

Boyne, Battle of, 598, 599.

Braddon, Mr. Lawrence, his Sufferings for enquiring into the Earl of Eſſex's Death, 413.

Bradford, Francis, Viſcount Newport, made Earl of, 663.

Brandon, Lord, his Condemnation, 438. Pardon, 439.

Bradſhaw, Serjeant, made Preſident of the High Court of Juſtice to Try the King, 181. His Inſolent Speeches, ibid. 182, 183, 184, 185. His Steel Hat at the Tryal of Charles I. 181. N.

Brandenburgh, Elector of, aſſumes the Title of King of Pruſſia, 799. King William's Letter to him upon it, ibid.

Bray, Dr. Thomas, ſent to the Weſt-Indies to propogate the Goſpel, 747.

Breda, Treaty of, 286.

Brentford, the Action there between the Parliament and the King's Forces, 128.

Brereton, Sir William, defeats and ſlays the Earl of Northampton, Commander of the King's Forces near Stafford, 129. Routs the Lord Aſtley, and the laſt Army in the Field for the King, 159.

Bribes, the King of France's Method of, 296, 297. N.

Brideoak, Dr. his Conference with the Speaker Lenthall on his Death-bed, about his Share in the late Troubles, 260.

Bridgman, Sir Orlando, made Lord Keeper, 288. Is for a Comprehenſion Bill for Diſſenters, 295. Reſigns the Seal to the Earl of Shafisbury, 316.

Bridgwater, John Earl of, made one of the Lords Juſtices of England by King William, 769. Prorogues the Parliament by the King's Command, 782. Again one of the Lords Juſtices, 784.

Bridgwater taken by General Fairfax, 158. Seiz'd by the Duke of Monmouth, 431.

Briort, Count de, the French Ambaſſador at the Hague, his Diſcourſe with Mr. Stanhope the Engliſh Ambaſſador, on the King of Spain's Death, 792. His Speech to the States upon it, ibid.

Briſtol, John Digby Earl of, perſecuted by the Duke of Bucks, 15. Has no Writ of Summons to Parliament, ibid. Proceedings thereupon, ibid. The Quarrel between the Duke of Bucks and him, raiſes Diſturbances in the Houſe of Peers, 23. Is charg'd with High Treaſon at the Lords Bar, ibid. His Anſwer, and Charge againſt the Duke of Bucks, ibid. The Lords incline rather to him than Bucks, ibid. He is Impriſon'd, 27.

Briſtol, Earl of, his Son turns Papiſt, while he was in Exile with King Charles, 238. His Charge afterwards againſt the Lord Chancellor Hyde, about the Portugal Match, 255. And the Sale of Dunkirk, 259, 265. Diſappointed in his Deſign of Ruining the Earl of Clarendon, 266.

Briſtol City taken from the Parliament by Prince Rupert, 139. Retaken by General Fairfax, 158.

Briſtol, Sir Jonathan Trelawny Biſhop of, one of the Seven Biſhops that petition'd, and were impriſon'd, 511.

Broghill, Lord, a Creature of Cromwell's, is for making him King, 218, 219.

Brook, Lord, refuſes to proteſt that he did not Correſpond with the Scots Malecontents, 99. His Study and Papers ſearch'd, 104. Takes Litchfield for the Parliament by Storm, 129. But is killed, ibid. His Character by the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Bruges, Mr. carries up the Articles of Impeachment againſt the Lord Hallifax to the Lords, 818.

Bruſſels Bombarded by the French, 690.

Buckingham, George Villiers Duke of, ſent to fetch over the Princeſs Henrietta Maria, Wife to Charles I. 4. Is for aſſiſting the French King againſt the Rochellers, 6. Hated for it, ibid. And for the King's Favour, 10. He excuſes himſelf at a Conference of both Houſes, ibid. Revenges himſelf on thoſe Members that were againſt him, 13. A Reſtraint put on ſeveral Lords and Commoners by his means, 15. Fallen upon by the Houſe of Commons, 18. Excuſes the King's ſevere Speech, and Addreſſes himſelf to both Houſes, 20. Charg'd with High Treaſon by the Lord Briſtol, 22. The Articles, ibid. The King interpoſes in his Behalf, ibid. Impeach'd by the Commons, 23. His Anſwer to their Articles againſt him, 24, 25. He claims the Benefit of the King's Pardon, ibid. Provokes the Commons by defying them, ibid. For a War with France, out of Hatred to Richlieu, 28. He is ſent with an Army to aſſiſt the Rochellers, 37. Lands at the Iſle of Rhè, contrary to Advice, 38. His ill Conduct, ibid. Takes the Town of St. Martyn, ibid. Is out-witted by Toiras the French Commander, 39. Is weary, and makes a dangerous Retreat, ibid. For which he is the more hated, ibid. Is nam'd by Secretary Cooke with the King, 43. Voted to be the Cauſe of all Evils to the Kingdom, 46. His Creature Dr. Lamb, kill'd by the Mob, 48. He is terrify'd, ibid. Kill'd by Felton, ibid. His Character, 49.

Buckingham, George Villiers Duke of, his Son, a Proclamation to Apprehend him, and why, 285. His Jeſt upon the Lord Clarendon's Petition and Defence, 292. Succeeds him in the Miniſtry, 293. Favours Diſſenters, ibid. Sent with a private Meſſage to the French King, 304. One of the Cabal that adviſ'd the ſhutting up of the Exchequer, 309. Sent Ambaſſador to the French King in Holland, with the Lords Arlington and Halifax, 315. Private Queries of his Conduct, ibid. Speaks for the Diſſenters in Parliament, 338. Committed for queſtioning the Legality of the Long Parliament, 339. Dies poor in Yorkſhire, 456.

Bull, Mr. Thomas, picks up a Bundle of Letters, directed to Mr. Coleman, 309. N.

Bullingbrook, Oliver, Earl of, made one of the Commiſſioners for the Great Seal by the Parliament, 143.

Burley, Capt. Hang'd, Drawn, and Quarter'd at Wincheſter, for endeavouring to Carry off the King from the Iſle of Wight, 172.

Burnet, Dr. Gilbert, accus'd of High Treaſon by the Papiſts, flies to the Prince of Orange, 517. Solicites him to come for England, ibid. Reads his Declaration in Exeter-Cathedral, 527. Made Biſhop of Saliſbury by King William, 559. Conſecrated by a Commiſſion from Archbiſhop Sancroft, ibid. Made Chancellor of the Garter, ibid. What gave Offence in his Paſtoral Letter, 587. His Paſtoral Letter Burnt, 650. His Character of Archbiſhop Tillotſon, 673, 674, 675. Made Preceptor to the Duke of Glouceſter, 755. A Vote to remove him rejected, 779. Proceedings of the Convocation againſt his Expoſition of the XXXIX Articles, 846. Repreſentation of the Lower Houſe of Convocation againſt it, 847. Vindicated by the Upper Houſe, 849. Dr. Woodward his Dean's Ingratitude to him, and Complaint againſt him, 850, 853. He is Vindicated by the Biſhops, ibid.

Burroughs, Sir John, his Actions and Death at the Iſle of Rhè, 38.

Burton, Henry, B. D. his Caſe and Sufferings, 90.

Butler, Mr. of Northamptonſhire, his Troubles for preſenting an Addreſs to the Knights of the Shire, 415.

C.

CAbal, who they were that were ſo called, 309.

Calais Bombarded by the Engliſh, 690.

Calamy, Mr. firſt breaks the Act of Uniformity, 262. Impriſon'd and Diſcharg'd by King Charles's expreſs Order, ibid. Proceedings of the Parliament upon it, ibid. His Conference with Cromwell about being King, 204. N.

Calliere, Monſieur, comes to Holland to Negotiate a Peace between King William, &c. and the French King, 715.

Calviniſts, the Lord Clarendon's Character of them, 57.

Cambridge Univerſity Addreſs Charles II. with an Abhorrence of the Aſſociation and Excluſion Bill, 393. They chuſe the Duke of Albemarle their Chancellor, in the room of the Duke of Monmouth, 394. They burn the Duke of Monmouth's Picture, ibid. They Compliment the Duke of York, and Addreſs him, ibid. Their Troubles about Alban Francis, a Monk, in King James's Time, 501.

Cambridge, Duke of, his Birth and Death, 347.

Cameret Bay, the Unfortunate Action there, 664, 665.

Canon, Preſident, his Negotiation at the Hague for his Maſter the Duke of Lorrain, 715.

Canon, Col. joins Dundee in Scotland, and protracts the War, 575.

Capell, Lord, Condemn'd by a High Court of Juſtice, and Beheaded, 191. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Capell, Sir Henry, deſires to be excus'd his Attendance at the Council-Board, 386. His Speech againſt Popiſh Councils, 371. Made a Baron by King William, 652. And Lord Deputy of Ireland, 687.

Campbel, Capt. Marries Mrs. Wharton againſt her Will, 608. The Marriage made Null by Parliament, ibid.

Carewell alias Quenovaille, Madam, a French Woman, comes to Dover with the Dutcheſs of Orleans, 303. Is left behind with King Charles, ibid. Made Dutcheſs of Portſmouth, ibid.

Carleton, Lord, ſent Ambaſſador into France, and is refus'd Audience, 29.

Carliſle, Charles Howard, Earl of, made firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury by King William, 831.

Carlowitz, Treaty of, 757.

Carmarthen, Thomas Earl of Danby, made Marquis of, by King William, 571.

Carmarthen, Marquis of, his Son; his Bravery at Cameret Bay, 664, 665.

Caernarvon, Earl of, Fights Sir William Waller's Forces at Lanſdown, 138. Kill'd on the King's ſide at the firſt Battle of Newbury, 139.

Carrickfergus, a Mutiny of the Soldiers in Garriſon there in Charles IId's Reign, 285. Suppreſt by the Duke of Ormond, ibid. The Town taken by Duke Schombergh, 580.

Carter, Admiral, kill'd in Admiral Ruſſel's Sea-Fight with the French, 641.

Carteret, Sir George, receives King Charles into Jerſey, 193.

Caryl, one of King James's Servants at St. Germains, contrives with Parker the horririd

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

rid Aſſaſſination Plot, 703.

Caſtle-Haven, Earl of, Try'd and Executed, 64.

Caſtlemain, Roger Earl of, taken up for the Popiſh Plot, 357. His Ambaſſay to Rome, and cold Reception there, 483, 484. Made a Privy Councellor, 496.

Catinat, Mareſchal, gains the Battle of Marſaglia, 656. Makes Peace with the Duke of Savoy, 715. Beſieges and takes Aeth, 736.

Cavendiſh, Lord, leaves the Council-Board, 368.

Cawdron, Mr. George, the Earl of Clare's Steward, Fin'd for ſpeaking a Seditious Word againſt Charles II. 413.

Challoner, Mr. Hang'd by the Parliament for Mr. Waller's Plot, 139.

Chambers, Mr. a Merchant, Impriſon'd for not paying Tonnage and Poundage, 49. Refuſes to pay Ship-Money, and is Impriſon'd for it, 84. An Arbitrary Judgment given againſt him, ibid.

Chandois, Lord, Countenances the petitioning for Parliaments, 380. Abhors it, and begs Pardon, ibid. Is ſent Ambaſſador to Turkey, ibid.

Chapman, Sir John, Lord Mayor, falls into a Fit of an Apoplexy, while he was Examining the Chancellor Jefferies, 535.

CHARLES I. his Birth, 1. His Succeſſion foretold, ibid. His Education, Learning and Diſpoſition, 2. Feats of Chivalry, 3. He ſucceeds his Father James I. and is Chief Mourner at his Funeral, ibid. Raiſes Forces for the Recovery of the Palatinate. 4. Marries the Princeſs Henrietta Maria, ibid. His Speech to his firſt Parliament, 5. To them at Oxford, 7. Diſguſts between Him and them about Dr. Mountague, 30. In the Subjects, for the Rudeneſs of the Soldiery, the Match with France, protecting Dr. Mountague, and aſſiſting the French King, 4, 5, 6. His Anſwer to the Parliament's Petition of Grievances, 7, 8. Diſſolves them abruptly, raiſes Money by Loan, 11, 12. How the People became generally Diſcontented, ibid. He is Crown'd, and Solemnly takes the Coronation-Oath, 14. Holds his Second Parliament, but does not ſpeak to them in Perſon, 15. His Meſſages and Letter to them, and their Anſwer, 17. Makes a ſevere Speech to the Houſe of Commons, 19. Is diſguſted with the Houſe of Peers, 19, 20. Defends the Duke of Bucks, whom the Commons had Impeach'd, 25. Writes a Letter to the Speaker, which is not well receiv'd by the Houſe, 26. He diſſolves the Parliament, and raiſes Money by Unparliamentary Methods, 27, 28. His Declaration of Reaſons for diſſolving the Two Parliaments, 27. He aſſiſts the King of Denmark againſt the Emperor, 28. Sends away the Queen's French Servants, ibid. Declares War with France, 29. His Proclamation againſt Innovations in the Doctrine or Diſcipline of the Church, 34. Great Diſcontents at the Government, 40. The King's Methods to ſatisfy them unſucceſsful, ibid. Calls his Third Parliament, and makes a Speech to them, 41. Remarks upon it, ibid. A ſecond Speech, and ſeveral Meſſages, 42, 43. Sends a Meſſage to the Houſe not to be anſwer'd, 44. Paſſes the Bill called the Petition of Right, 46. Speaks with Reſentment, 47. Bears the Duke of Bucks Death with great Preſence of Mind, 49. Makes a Wiſe and Tender Speech to the Parliament, 50. Is offended, and diſſolves them, 51. Publiſhes a Declaration of the Cauſes of it, 52. Peace made by him with France, 53. Prevents a Son of his being Baptiz'd by Popiſh Prieſts, ibid. His Proteſtation about Religion, 59. His Juſtice, 62. He aſſiſts Guſtavus Adolphus, 63. Commands the Nobility and Gentry to reſide in their Countries, 67. Has the Small Pox, 68. Aſſiſts the Muſcovites, ibid. He goes to Scotland, and is Crown'd, 69. Ill Effects of his Journey, ibid. Concerns himſelf in Matters of Church Diſcipline, 73. His Care of the Fleet, 84 Forces the Dutch to buy a Permiſſion to Fiſh, ibid. Has the Opinion of the Judges for Ship-Money, 85. He is averſe to Popery, 94. Raiſes an Army, his March againſt the Scots, 98. Suppos'd to be a Mock-War, 99. Publiſhes a Declaration of the Cauſes of it, 101. Calls a Parliament, ibid. 102. His Speech to them, ibid. He diſſolves it, and takes ſome ill Steps, 103, 104. Lord Clarendon's Opinion of it, ibid. Marches a ſecond time againſt the Scots, ibid. His Speech to an Aſſembly of Lords at York, 105. Comes to a Treaty with the Scots, ibid. Calls his Fifth and Laſt Parliament, ibid. His Speech to them, ibid. His Healing Speech, 107. Comes too late, 108. Paſſes the Triennial Bill, ibid. Paſſes the Lord Strafford's Bill of Attainder, 117. His Speech and Letter to the Parliament in his Favour, ibid. Paſſes the Bill for the Continuance of the Parliament, 118. And other grateful Bills, ibid. He goes to Scotland, and holds a Parliament there, 120. Confers Honours on the diſaffected Lords, ibid. And gives away the Kingdom there in effect, ibid. His Deſires to ſuppreſs the Iriſh Rebellion, 121. Returns from Scotland, ibid. His Conduct with reſpect to the Parliaments Guards, ibid. Orders Sir Ed. Herbert to preſent Articles of Treaſon againſt 5 Members, 122. Enters the Houſe of Commons to demand them, ibid. He repents of it, 123. He leaves the Parliament and goes Northward, ibid. His pathetic Speech to the Commons at New-Market, ibid. Is for Conformity, but in vain, 124. Is driven from Parliament, 125. Shut out of Hull by Sir John Hotham, 126. He propoſes to raiſe an Army, ibid. His Anſwer to the Parliament's Declaration againſt it, ibid. He ſets up his Standard at Nottingham, ibid. Remarks and Reflections upon it by the Lord Clarendon, 127. Propoſes a Peace, ibid. Fights the Battle of Edgehill, ibid. Marches towards London, and Engages the Parliament's Forces at Brentford, 128. A falſe Step, ibid. His Anſwer to the Londoners Petition to him to Return, 129. To the Parliament's Declaration about Religion, 131. Refutes the Slanders of Popery, 132. His laſt Anſwer at the Treaty of Oxford, 135. Attempts the Relief of Reading, 136. Beſieges Glouceſter in vain, and loſes the firſt Battle of Newbury, 139. Holds a Parliament at Oxford, 144. His Speech to them, ibid. His Proteſtation againſt Popery, as he was about to Receive the Sacrament, 147. His Speech when he diſmiſs'd the Oxford Parliament, 149. Retreats from Eſſex and Waller, 150, 151. Forces the Earl of Eſſex to run from his Army, and his Soldiers to lay down their Arms, 151. His Offers of Peace deſpiſed, ibid. He is Defeated at the ſecond Battle of Newbury, ibid. Offers Battle again, ibid. Takes Leiceſter, 157. His Courage and Conduct at Naſeby, 158. Loſes that Fatal Battle, ibid. And retires into Wales, ibid. Raiſes another Army, and is Routed by Poyntz at Routon-Heath near Cheſter, 159. Raiſes another Army, ibid. His Affairs decline every where, ibid. Retires to Oxford, ibid. He writes to Prince Charles againſt Popery and Presbytery, 161. He reſolves to Truſt the Scots, 162. Goes to their Camp before Newark in Diſguiſe, ibid. He writes to the City of London, ibid. He is Sold by the Scots, and carry'd to Holmby, 164. He diſputes with Mr. Henderſon the Scots Divine, and is too hard for him, 165. The Lord Clarendon's Account of it, ibid. His Uſage at Holmby, 166. He is taken thence by Cornet Joice, and us'd better, 167. Invited by a Civil Meſſage from the Parliament to Treat, 169. The Army prevents it, ibid. Sends the Houſe an Anſwer, with which they are diſſatisfied, ibid. Makes his Eſcape from Hampton-Court in Diſguiſe, 170. Betray'd to Colonel Hammond, Governor of the Iſle of Wight, ibid. Writes to the Parliament, ibid. How he ſpent his Time there, 171, 172. A Vindication of Eikon Baſilike, ibid. His Reception of the Parliament's ſecond Commiſſioners for a Treaty there, 175. His Conceſſions at the Iſle of Wight Treaty, 177. His Conference with Colonel Cocke about his propos'd Eſcape before the Treaty was broken off, 178. He is Seiz'd by the Army, and ſent to Hurſt Caſtle, ibid. Several Excellent Sayings of his in his Troubles, 179. His Letter to Prince Charles about the Iſle of Wight Treaty, 180. He is brought to Windſor, ibid. And to his Tryal, 181, 182, 183, 184. He is Condemn'd by the pretended High Court of Juſtice. His Preparation for Death, 185. His Laſt Speech, 186. He is Beheaded, 187. Why no Monument rais'd over him after the Reſtoration, 188. The Lord Clarendon's admirable Character of him, ibid. 189. Mr. Henderſon's Character of him, tho' his Adverſary, 190.

Charles, Prince, his Son, born, 62. Heads a Body of his Father's Troops in Cornwall, 159. Forc'd thence by Fairfax, he retires to Scilly, ibid. His Father's Letter to him againſt Popery and Presbytery, 161. Retires to France, 162. An Act to Exclude him, 190. But he is Proclaim'd in England, and invited to Scotland, 193. Is own'd King of England, by Foreign Miniſters, ibid. See Charles II.

CHARLES II. Retires to Jerſey, 193. Forc'd to leave that Iſle, ibid. Foreign Princes afraid to aſſiſt him, ibid. Lands in Scotland, 195. Takes the Covenant, ibid. Ill us'd by the Scots, ibid. Wou'd make his Eſcape, 156. Crown'd, ibid. His Ambaſſadors ſent out of Spain, ibid. His Proceedings in Scotland, 198. Marches into England, ibid. Defeated at Worceſter by Cromwell, 199. His ſtrange Eſcape after it, 200. How he was entertain'd in France, 205. His Temptations to turn Papiſt, ibid. 206. Unhappy in his Exile, 208. His Progreſs to ſeveral Courts, 212. His Conference with Cardinal de Rets, 213. Reſides at Cologn, 215. Viſits Queen Chriſtina of Sweden, ibid. His Exerciſes and Diverſions in his Exile, ibid. The King's Hopes, 222. Diſappointed, 225, 226. New One's by Cromwell's Death, 226. His Friends Hopes on it, 232. Riſings for him, ibid. Suppreſt, ibid. Abandon'd by Foreign Princes, 236. Goes to the Pyrenean Treaty to deſire Aſſiſtance of Spain and France, ibid. Slights put upon him there, ibid. Refus'd the Command of the Spaniſh Army, ibid. Sends Sir John Granville to General Monk, and is favourably anſwer'd, 236. Great Endeavours to have him turn Papiſt, 237. Whether there was any ſuch private Treaty concluded by him at the Pyrenees, ibid. Great Cauſe to ſuſpect it, ibid. Goes to Maſs, 238. His Followers incline to turn Papiſts, ibid. Every thing tends to his Reſtoration in England, ibid. His Letters to the Houſe of Lords and Houſe of Commons, and Declaration to the People of England, 239, 240. Is proclaim'd in England, 241. Lands at Dover, ibid. His Reception of General Monk there, and his Proceſſion to Canterbury, ibid. His Reception at London, ibid. Conſtitutes his Privy-Council, and Creates ſeveral Noblemen, ibid. His remarkable Declaration about Religion, 242 to 246. He is Crown'd, 247. His Speech at the Opening his Second Parliament, about his Match with a Daughter of Portugal, 248. His Letter to them to confirm the Act of Indemnity paſs'd in his Firſt Parliament, 249. Orders a Conference at the Savoy between the Epiſcopal and Preſbyterian Divines, 253. He Marries his Queen Katharine, 254. The Portion he had with her, 255. Reflected on by a Waterman about Chimney-Money, ibid. His Wants, 256. Kinder to Diſſenters than the Parliament, 257. Why he was ſo Indulgent to them, 258. Sells Dunkirk, 259. Diſpenſes with the Uniformity-Act, 262. His Speech in Anſwer to the Parliament's Addreſs againſt Papiſts, 264. The Court more Popiſh, ibid. His Progreſs, 267. His Speech to the Parliament againſt Rebels, and the Triennial Bill, 269, 270. Another, ibid. His Speech on the Dutch War, 271. His Declaration of War, 272. Leaves London in the Plague-time, 277. His Speech to the Parliament at Oxford againſt the Dutch, 278. Charges the War upon the Dutch, ibid. Loth to have a War with France, 278. But his Subjects are eager for it, 279. Favours the Diſſenters and Foreign Proteſtants, 280. His Miniſters incline to Popery, 286. He Acts againſt it, ibid. Takes falſe Steps in the Treaty of Breda with the Dutch, 287. The Court in great Conſternation on the Dutch coming up the Thames, ibid. His Two Speeches to the Parliament at their Meeting after the Peace, 288. Concludes a Defenſive League with the Dutch againſt France, 293. His Speech to the Parliament upon it, ibid. Recommends Union among his Proteſtant Subjects, 294. His Speech to his Parliament in England, 297. And Letter to that in Scotland, 298. Viſits his Siſter the Dutcheſs of Orleans at Dover, 302. Takes the Dutcheſs of Portſmouth into Favour, ibid. Enters into an Alliance with the French King, 304. Grows Jealous of the People upon it, ibid. By whom drawn away to promote the Grandeur of France, 308. Afraid of the Parliament, ibid. Shuts up the Exchequer, 309. and is drawn into another War with the Dutch by the French King, 310. His Declaration of Indulgence to Diſſenters and Recuſants, 313. Exerciſes a Diſpenſing Power, 314. His Subjects diſcontented at the French King's Succeſſes in Holland, 315. He ſends Ambaſſadors to Holland to Treat of Peace, but they do nothing, 316. Declares himſelf unable to pay his Debts, and ſtops Payment, 317. His Speech to the Parliament about the Diſpenſing Power, 318. His Letter to the Duke of York, commanding him not to turn Papiſt, 320. Labours to quiet the Fears of Popery, 325. Concludes a Peace with the Dutch, 326. Condeſcends to be made a Freeman of London, 329. Puts out a ſevere Proclamation againſt Papiſts, 331. His Speech for Money, 333. His Saying to Sir William Temple againſt a War with France, ibid. Is willing to be Neuter, 335. Angry with the Commons for Addreſſing for a War with France, 342. Commands the Houſes to Adjourn, 343. His Saying of the Prince of Orange, when he gave him his Neice the Princeſs Mary, 345. His Conſultation with the Prince of Orange about a Peace with France, ibid. Reſolves to enter into a League with the Dutch, ibid. His Speech to the Parliament on his Marrying his Neice to the Prince of Orange, 346. His angry Meſſage to them on their ſecond Addreſs for a War with France, ibid. Puts out a Proclamation againſt the Author of a Book call'd the Growth of Popery, 347. Not much inclin'd to the French War, 349. Inclin'd to a War when the Peace of Nimeguen was near concluded, 350. Does not give much Credit to the Popiſh Plot, 351. His Speech to the Parliament about it, 352. And the Excluſion-Bill, 353. Weary of the Proceedings of Parliament againſt Papiſts, ibid. Rejects a Militia-Bill, and his Meſſage about it, 354. Diſſolves the Parliament, 356. Why he diſſolv'd it, ibid. His Letter to the Duke of York to be gone, ibid. Pardons the Earl of Danby, in oppoſition to the Parliament, 361. Makes a Popular Privy-Council, 362. His Anſwer to the Commons about deferring the Execution of Popiſh Plotters, 363. His, and the Lord Chancellor's Speeches about limiting a Popiſh Succeſſor, 363, 364. Diſſolves his Parliament held at Weſtminſter, 365. Falls Sick, ibid. His Declarations, denying his Marriage to the Duke of Monmouth's Mother, 366. Diſcountenances Petitioning, ibid. Profeſſes a Zeal for the Church of England, 368. And proſecutes the Popiſh Plot vigorouſly, 369. Yet believ'd to be a Papiſt, ibid. Forbids Duelling, 370. Very much embarreſt by the Parliament's Addreſſes, and Remonſtrances of the Growth of Popery, 383, 384. Preſent at the Reading the Bill of Excluſion in the Lords Houſe, to encourage them to throw it out, 377. His Meſſage to the Commons on the Lords rejecting the Excluſion-Bill, 379. He favours the Duke's Friends, 380. Oblig'd to declare againſt Popery, 381. Offended at the Earl of Eſſex and other Lords Petition and Advice, 384. How receiv'd at Oxford, when he met the Parliament there, ibid. His Speech at the Opening it, 385. Diſſolves the Oxford Parliament, and haſtens to London, 387. Puts out a Declaration to excuſe it, 388, 389. His re[illegible] Saying of Mr. Pilkington and Mr. Sh[illegible] Sheriffs, 391. Hates the Diſſente[illegible] loves the Church, not for their R[illegible] 392. Proſecutes Diſſenters ſeverely, 393. Sets up Quo Warranto's againſt London, and other Corporations, 395. Exerciſes his Supremacy on a trivial Occaſion, 397. His Declaration about the Fanatick Plot, 408 to 410. And againſt the Diſſenters, ibid. Nothing but Proſecutions and Penalties, 413, 414. Lets the Duke Govern all, 415. Inclines to Recall the Duke of Monmouth, 416. But fatally prevented, ibid. He is taken Ill, an Account of his Sickneſs and Death, 416. The Opinions for and againſt his having foul Play, ibid. 417. His Character, ibid. 418. Why thought to die a Papiſt, ibid. His obſcure Funeral, 421. Dies a Papiſt, 422. His Papers found in the ſtrong Box to prove it, ibid. He was the firſt King that ever aim'd at Diſpenſing Power, 487. Inſtances of his doing it, ibid. He ſeem'd convinc'd of his Error, ibid.

an

Charles XI. King of Sweden, Mediator of the Treaty of Reſwick, dies as the Treaty was beginning, 735. And is ſucceeded by his Son, Charles XII. King of Sweden at 15 Years of Age, 735. Fallen upon on all ſides, 786. Aſſiſted by the Engliſh and Dutch, ibid. Lands in Denmark, and forces that King to conclude a Peace, ibid.

Charles, Prince Elector, Son to the King of Bohemia, comes into England, 81. Returns into Germany and is defeated by the Imperialiſts, 85. Taken Priſoner in a Diſguiſe in France, 97.

Charlton, Sir Job, choſen Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, 317. Is weary of the Chair, and deſires leave to reſign it, 318.

Charnock, Robert, a Papiſt, Fellow of Magdalen College, his proceeding in the Election of that Preſident, 502, 503, 507. One of the Chief of the horrid Aſſaſſination Plot, and that to bring in the French, 703. Is Condemn'd, Hang'd and Quarter'd, 711. The Paper he deliver'd to the Sheriffs, ibid.

Charters, London, and other Towns taken away by Quo Warranto, 395 Reſtor'd by King James in a Fright, 522.

Chelſea College, 416. N.

Cheſter, Dr. Thomas Cartwright, Biſhop of, made one of the High Commiſſion Court by King James, 455. A Tool of Popery and Arbitrary Power, 486. His Speech to the Fellows of Magdalen College, 505. His Proceedings there as King James's Viſitor, ibid. 506. Another Speech to the Fellows, 507. Gets his Clergy to Addreſs King James, thanking him for his Declaration of Liberty of Conſcience, 556.

Cheſter, delivered to Sir George Booth at his Riſing, 232.

Cheſterfield, Earl of, loſes Litchfield to the Lord Brook, 129.

Chevreux, Duke of, Marries the Princeſs Henrietta Maria in the Name of Charles I. 4.

Chicheſter, Dr. Lake, Biſhop of, one of the Seven Biſhops that petition'd King James, and was Impriſon'd, 511.

Chillingworth, Mr. his hard Uſage and Death, 156. The Lord Clarendon's Account of him, ibid.

Chimney Money, an odious Tax, 255. Parted with by King William, 552. Taken away by Act of Parliament, ibid.

Cholmly, Sir Hugh, Governour of Scarborough for the Parliament, Deſerts to the King, 138.

Cholmondly, Francis, a Member of the Houſe of Commons, ſent to the Tower for refuſing to take the Oaths to King William, 585.

Church of England, its Conſtitution alter'd by Parliament, 124. The Revenues taken away, ibid. No Face of an Eſtabliſh'd Church here, 130. Petitions from ſeveral Places to re-eſtabliſh it, ibid. Rejected by the Parliament, ibid. To be utterly diſſolv'd, 133. How the Members of it that follow'd King Charles into France were dealt with there, 202. Reſtor'd by King Charles II. 243. Their Opinions confirm'd by thoſe of Foreign Proteſtants, 382. Their Behaviour to King James, on publiſhing his Declaration of Liberty of Conſcience, 490. A Memorial preſented to the Prince of Orange in the name of it, 517. Church High and Low, the firſt diſtinction of it, 779. Churches, French and Dutch are proceeded againſt by Archbiſhop Laud, 78. They put in a Declaration againſt his Authority, ibid.

Churchill, Coll. John, made Lord Churchill, 397, 439. Sent againſt the Duke of Monmouth, 441. Suſpected by the Lord Feverſham, General of King James's Forces at Saliſbury, 529. He is in danger of being Seiz'd, ibid. He goes to the Prince of Orange, ibid. His Letter to the King on that Occaſion, 530. Sent by the Prince to London, to re-aſſemble his Troop of Guards, 535. Made a Privy Councellor and Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber by King William, ibid. Made Earl of Marlborough, 560. See Marlborough, Earl of, Churchill, Brigadier, takes the Duke of Berwick at Landen Fight, 655.

Chute, Mr. Challoner, choſen Speaker of Richard Cromwell's Parliament, 230. Laid by, and another Choſen, ibid. His Death, ibid.

Cirenceſter, Taken by Prince Rupert for the King, and the Garriſon put to the Sword, 129.

Clare, Earl of, Proſecuted in the Star-Chamber for ſpreading a Libel, 62. Deſerts the Parliament, 139. Deſerts the King, ibid.

Clarendon, Edward Hyde, Earl of, Charg'd with adviſing the Sale of Dunkirk, 255. Articles of High Treaſon and other Miſdemeanors Exhibited in Parliament againſt him about it, ibid. Out of Favour, 265. The Articles againſt him, ibid. Thought to be a Perſonal and Popiſh Deſign, 266. He is honourably Acquitted, ibid. His Speech to the Parliament at Oxford, againſt the Dutch, 273. A great Promoter of the Corporation-Act againſt Diſſenters, 279. His Fall, 288. Seal taken from him, ibid. The Parliament thank the King for diſplacing him, 289. Charg'd by Mr. Edward Seymour, viva voce, with many great Crimes, 290. The Articles againſt him carried up to the Lords, ibid. The Lords differ with the Commons about it, ibid. He withdraws and leaves a Paper of his in Vindication of all his Miniſtry, 290, 291. The publick Account of his Withdrawing, ibid. The Parliament deſire the Ports may be ſtopt to prevent his Eſcape, 292. His Paper jeſted upon by the Duke of Bucks, ibid. Burnt by the Hands of the Common Hangman, ibid. Baniſh'd by Act of Parliament, ibid. Very ſorry for his Daughter the Dutcheſs of York's turning Papiſt, 321. Where buried, 330. See Sir Edward Hyde.

Clarendon, Henry Hyde, Earl of, addreſt againſt by Parliament, 379. Made Lord Privy Seal by James II. 421. And Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 440. The Earl of Tyrconnel put over him, 447. He is careful of the Proteſtant Intereſt, and complains of Tyrconnel, ibid. Remov'd, 448. His Speech when he deliver'd Tyrconnel the Sword, ibid. Turn'd out from being Lord Privy Seal, 451. Goes to the Prince of Orange, 532.

Clarges, Mr. Thomas, his Inſtructions to Mr. Monk, who was ſent to engage his Brother General Monk in the King's Intereſt, 233. His Negotiations for General Monk with the Rump, 234. Goes into Scotland and has a Conference with him, ibid. Sent by him to the Lord Fairfax, ibid. Meets General Monk at Nottingham, and informs him which way he might beſt ſerve his Country, ibid. How to avoid taking the Abjuration Oath, ibid.

Cleeland, Lieutenant Col. his and the Regiment of Angus, their Bravery, 575.

Clergy, ſome of them too buſy in the Loan, 30. Complaints againſt them for favouring Arbitrary Power, 55. Many of them diſaffected to the Court, 60. Queſtions about their Liberties and Exemptions, 67. Very Liberal in their Contributions towards the Scots War, 98. Miſerably us'd in the Civil Wars, 145. Severity againſt them, 174. Their Charity in redeeming Chriſtian Slaves, 259. Their better Maintenance conſider'd, 262. Firſt Tax'd by the Houſe of Commons, 274. Poorer ſort a Bill for their Relief, 347. Diviſions among them, 370. Some of them reckon'd Popiſhly affected, and who, 381. The reſt for Peace and Union, 382. Speeches againſt the other in Parliament, 383. They read King Charles's Declaration to excuſe his diſſolving the Parliament, 388. Of Ireland, how us'd by King James, 501. How they behav'd themſelves upon King James's publiſhing his Declaration of Liberty of Conſcience, 509. Some refuſe to take the Oaths to King William, 552. The Nonjurors are terribly expos'd in a Pamphlet, 614, 615. The Biſhops that refus'd the Oaths vindicate themſelves, 616. Oppoſe a Union with the Diſſenters, 799. The Nonjurors and others often foment Diviſions in the Convocation, ibid.

Clifford, Sir Thomas, made Comptroller of the Houſhold, by King Charles II. 285. Sworn of the Privy-Council, ibid. Favours the Popiſh Intereſt, 286. Made one of the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, 288. Treaſurer of the Houſhold, 294. One of the Cabal that adviſ'd the ſhutting up of the Exchequer, 309. Created Lord Clifford, 314. Made Lord High Treaſurer, 316. Lays down his Places on the paſſing of the Teſt-Act, 322.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

Clotworthy, Sir John, one of the 11 Members impeach'd by the Army, 168.
Coachman, the Proteſtant one, the Story of him, 494.
Cockle, Lieutenant, his Bravery at Namur, 692.
Cockran, Sir John, betrays the Earl of Argyle, 426.
Coga, Dr. Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, his Latin Speech to the Duke of York, 394.
Cohorn, General, burns the Magazine at Givet, 713.
Coke, Sir Edward, made Sheriff of the County of Bucks, after he had been Lord Chief Juſtice, 13. His Exception againſt the Sheriff's Oath, ibid. Speaks ſmartly about Grievances, 42, 43, 44. His Speech againſt the Duke of Bucks, 46. His Death, 77. His Papers ſearch'd, ibid. His Will loſt, ibid.
Coke, Mr. Clement, his Son, a bold Saying of his in the Houſe of Commons, 17.
Coin of England regulated, 686, 699. Speeches for and againſt regulating it in Parliament, ibid. The Houſe proceeds upon it again, 723.
Colbert, Monſieur, Ambaſſador from France, his publick Entry, 294.
Colcheſter, taken by the Lord Fairfax, 176.
Colcheſter, Lord, joins the Prince of Orange, 528. His Bravery at Cork, 611.
Coleman, Edward, his Letter to the French King's Confeſſor, 327, 328. Secretary to the Dutcheſs of York, taken up for the Popiſh Plot, 352. His Treaſonable Letters, ibid. Hang'd, 357. His laſt Words, ibid.
College, Mr. Stephen, call'd the Proteſtant Joyner, committed to Priſon, 388. His Caſe, 389. His good Defence, 390. He is Executed, ibid.
Collyer, Cook, and Snat, Three Nonjuring Divines, pronounce Abſolution to Sir John Friend, and to Sir William Perkins, the latter one of the Aſſaſſination Plotters, at the Gallows, 712. That Action condemn'd by the Biſhops, 713. Preſented by the Grand Jury, ibid. Collyer writes to juſtify himſelf, ibid.
Commiſſioners of the High Commiſſion Court Su'd by Mr. Huntley a Miniſter, 63.
Commonwealth Government eſtabliſh'd by the Rump, 190.
Comprehenſion Bill, drawn up by Judge Hale, 295. Brought into the Houſe of Commons, 382.
Con, Seignior, ſent by the Pope to be his Nuncio in England, 86.
Conference between the Arminian Divines and their Opponents, 32. Of the Epiſcopal and Diſſenting Party in Charles I. Time, 113. At the Savoy between the Epiſcopal and Preſbyterian Divines, 253. Ill Succeſs of it, 254. Between Proteſtants and Papiſts in preſence of King James, 451. One between the Lords and Commons about the word Abdicate, 544. Another between the Lords and Commons about the Act to regulate Tryals in caſe of High Treaſon, 625 to 630. Another about the Impeachment and Tryal of the Lords Portland, Somers, Orford and Halifax, 814.
Congreſs at the Hague, 612. The Princes and Lords there, ibid.
Conningsby, Thomas, Eſq; made one of the Lords Juſtices of Ireland, 605. Made a Privy Councellor, 658. Accus'd by the Earl of Bellamont and others, for what he did in Ireland, ibid. Clear'd by Parliament, 660.
Conningſmark, Count, Try'd for the Murder of Mr. Thynne, 392.
Conti, Prince of, his comical Interview with Richard Cromwell, 232.
Conti, Prince, his Saying of King William's Valour and Merit, 656. Set up for the Crown of Poland by Lewis XIV. 736. He endeavours to get the Dutchy of Neufchaſtel, 769. Oppos'd by King William and others, ibid.
Contraſt betwen Charles I. and Cromwell at Hampton-Court, 170. N.
Conventicles, an Act againſt them, 280. The Parliament thanks the King for ſuppreſſing them, 298. Another Act to ſuppreſs them, 306.
Convocations, one at London, and another at Oxford, 30. Their Acts, ibid. 31. Their Debates, 34. They take no notice of Mr. Muntague's Caſe, 35. Another call'd to do nothing but give their Money, 56. Another, and their Acts, 108, 109. They impoſe an Oath and publiſh Canons, 110, 111. Condemn'd by Parliament, 112. Another fits, 113. Comes to nothing, 114. The Members fin'd by Parliament, 123. They all retire, 145.
Convocation, not call'd with the Parliament upon the Reſtoration, and why, 250. Dr. Heylin's Letter concerning it, 251. One called, ibid. Their Acts, 252, 253, 260, 261, 268, 269.
Convocation, King William's firſt, againſt an Accommodation with Diſſenters, 591. The King's Commiſſion to them, 592, 593. Diſcontents and Diviſions in it, 593. Their Addreſſes to the King, ibid. Why they were angry with the Preſbyterians, 595.
Convocation, another, oppoſe the Union with Diſſenters, 799. Treat the Biſhop of London unworthily, ibid. They oppoſe the Archbiſhop's Prorogation, and ſet up for an Independence on the Upper Houſe, 800. Their Addreſs to King William, 801. Their Proceedings againſt a Book call'd Chriſtianity not Myſterious, 802. The Upper Houſe's Proceedings againſt another Book call-ed The Ballance of Power, ibid. The difference between the Biſhops and their Inferior Clergy, 842 to 846. Several Members proteſt againſt the Lower Houſe's Proceedings, 847. Their Defence of them, ibid. The Biſhops Anſwer, 848, 849.
Convocation, a new one, continue the Diſputes about their Independency on the Upper Houſe, 850 to 851. Diſſolv'd by the King's Death, 855.
Cooper, Sir Anthony Aſhly, made one of King Charles's Privy Council at the Reſtoration, 241. See Lord Aſhly.
Conway, Secretary, his Orders to Captain Penington, to joyn with the French King's Forces againſt the Rochellers, 6. Vindicates the Duke of Bucks in the Houſe of Lords, 20. The Lord Briſtol's Charge againſt him, 22. Made General of the Horſe in the Second Expedition againſt the Scots, 102.
Cony, Mr. a Merchant proſecuted by Cromwell for not paying Cuſtom, 227. Pleads his own Cauſe, ibid.
Cook, Sir John, Secretary of State, the chief Advocate for the Prerogative in the Houſe of Commons, 79. Brings Propoſitions from the King to the Houſe, ibid. Brings ſeveral Meſſages to them, 80, 81. His Character, 100.
Cook, Colonel Edward, would perſwade the King to Eſcape from the Iſle of Wight, at the ſecond Treaty, 178. His Reaſon for it, ibid.
Cook, Sir Thomas, ſent to the Tower by the Houſe of Commons, and why, 679, 680. And a Bill brought in againſt him, ibid. He appears before the Parliament, ibid. 681. He delivers in his Account, ibid. Impriſon'd by Act of Parliament, 686.
Cook, Peter, one of the Aſſaſſination-Plot, 709. Condemn'd, 713. Baniſh'd only, ibid.
Coply, Sir Godfrey, his Speech againſt Sir John Fenwick's Bill, 728.
Cork taken by the Earl of Marlborough, 751.
Cornbury, Lord, deſerts to the Prince of Orange, 528. King James's Conſternation upon it, ibid.
Corniſh, Henry, Eſq; Alderman of London, Fin'd for a Riot, 398. Unjuſtly Condemn'd and Executed, 438. His Attainder revers'd, 531.
Corporation-Act, a ſevere one againſt the Diſſenters ſo call'd, 280.
Corryton, Mr. William, proſecuted for his Speeches and Actions, as a Member of Parliament, 51.
Coſin, Dr. John, his Innovations in the Cathedral Church of Durham in King Charles the Firſt's Reign, 58. N. Proſecuted for it, 61. N.
Cotterell, Lieutenant Colonel, diſſolves the Kirk Aſſembly, 209.
Cottington, Lord, King Charles II's Ambaſſador in Spain, turns Papiſt and dies there, 136. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.
Cotton, Sir Robert, the Antiquary, his wiſe Advice to the King, 40. Proſecuted in the Star-Chamber for ſpreading a Libel, 62.
Cotton, one of the Yorkſhire Conſpirators againſt King Charles II. His Impudence, 267. Hang'd, ibid.
Covenant, Solemn League and, when firſt made, 95. The Miſchiefs of it, ibid. 139. Taken by the Parliament of England, ibid. The Parliament require the King to take it, 152. Burnt by the Hands of the Common Hangman after the Reſtoration, 249. Abrogated in Scotland, 274.
Coventry, Lord Thomas, Lord Keeper, his Death and Character, 97.
Coventry, Sir John, attack'd and wounded by Ruffians, 305.
Coventry, Henry, Eſq; Charles II. Plenipotentiary at the Treaty of Breda with the Dutch, 286. Sent to Sweden to engage that King againſt the Dutch, 309. Highly rewarded for it, ibid. Made Secretary of State, 316.
Council, Privy, their Orders on the Death of King James I. 3. Adviſe Charles I. to raiſe Money by a Loan, 29. Many of them ſuſpected to be Papiſts, 76.
Council, Privy, a Liſt of a popular one made by Charles II. 362.
Court, the High Commiſſion, that was made by James II. 452, 453, 454. The Illegality of it, 455. Firſt fall upon the Biſhop of London, ibid. They Suſpend Dr. Peachey, Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, for not admitting a Monk to a Maſter's Degree, by a Mandate, 501. Their Proceedings againſt Magdalen College, 502.
Chouſey, Governor, ſent by the French King with a Letter to General Lambert Priſoner in Guernſey, to tempt him to betray the Iſland to him, 281. Hang'd for a Spy, 282.
Cowley, Mr. Abraham, his Death and publick Burial, 293.
Cox, Mr. Dean, one of the King's Officers at Edge-Hill Fight, now living, 127. N.
Cramborn, one of the Aſſaſſination Plotters hang'd, 713.
Creation of Noblemen, 241, 314, 324, 367, 368, 380, 391, 396, 407, 415, 439, 496, 560, 564, 571, 587, 596, 610, 632, 633, 653, 663, 687, 706, 714, 734, 740, 755.
Crequi, Duke and Mareſchal of, ſent Ambaſſador to Cromwell, 225.
Crew, Sir Thomas, choſen Speaker of King Charles I. Firſt Parliament, 5.
Crew, Sir Randolph, remov'd from being Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench, for ſhewing his Diſſatisfaction to the Loan, 29.
Crew, John, Eſq; Impriſon'd for giving Offence in Parliament, 104.
Cromwell, Oliver, concerns himſelf with the Feuds in Religion, between the Arminians and the Orthodox, 58. His Saying concerning the Remonſtrance paſt by the Commons upon the Iriſh Rebellion, 121. Lieutenant General of the Parliament-Army at Marſton Moor, 149. Gains the Victory by his Bravery, ibid. Continu'd in Command notwithſtanding the ſelf-denying Ordinance, 157. His Succeſs, ibid. Made Lieutenant General of the Horſe, ibid. Gains the Battle of Naſeby by his Valour, ibid. Heads the Independent Party in the Houſe of Commons, 166. Orders Joice to take the King and bring him to the Army, 167. Routs Duke Hamilton, 176. Advances the Remonſtrance againſt the King, and to have him brought to Juſtice, 177. He governs all by the Army, 180. Made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 192. He Aſcends, ibid. His Succeſſes in Ireland, ibid. He deſires to be recall'd; and returns, 194. Made Captain General of the Rump's Forces, 195. Marches into Scotland, and beats the Scots at Dunbar, ibid. 196. H[illegible] there, 198. Leaves Monk to Com[illegible] and purſues King Charles II. i[illegible] 199. Gains the Battle of [illegible] His Triumph upon it, 200. He purpoſes to Reign, 201. His Conference with ſeveral Members of the Rump and others about a Government, ibid. Weary of the Parliament, ibid. His Policy, 204. His Conference with Whitlock about his aſſuming the Sovereignty, ibid. Diſſolves the Parliament by Force, 207. His Declaration upon it, ibid. He Summons a Pack'd Convention, ibid. Made Lord Protector, 208. His Grandeur at Home and Abroad, ibid. Forces the Dutch to accept of his Terms of Peace, 210. Has a Univerſal Parliament, of England, Scotland, and Ireland, ibid. His Grandeur Abroad, ibid. Packs his Parliament, and goes to it in Pomp, ibid. Diſſolves it, 211. Eſcapes all Dangers, Dangers, 212. Sends Venables and Pen to the Weſt-Indies, ibid. 213. Falls out of his Coach-box, ibid. Cajoles the City, ibid. Turns out the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal that did not pleaſe him, 214. Increaſes his Standing Army, ibid. Sets up Major Generals, and looks into Charters, 216. Calls his Second Parliament, ibid. Syndercomb's Plot againſt him, 217. He refuſes the Title of King, 220, 221. His Speech on that Occaſion, ibid. And at paſſing of Bills, ibid. His ſolemn Inauguration as Lord Protector, ibid. Makes a Houſe of Lords and diſſolves the Parliament in a Heat, 222, 223. Helps the French againſt the Spaniards, ibid. Diſcovers a Conſpiracy of the Fifth Monarchiſts and the Cavaliers againſt him, 223. Proceeds ſeverely againſt the latter, 224. Gets Dunkirk, 225. Glories over the French Perfidiouſneſs, and the French Monarchy, ibid. A remarkable Inſtance of it, ibid. He dies; Ludlow's Account of his Death, ibid. 226. His Prayer a little before his Death, ibid. Where buried, 229. He is loth to declare his Succeſſor, ibid. Sir Philip Warwick's Account of his Death, ibid. Rejoicing at his Death, ibid. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid. 227. The extravagant Expence of his Funeral, 229.

Cromwell, Richard, Eldeſt Son to Oliver, Declar'd his Succeſſor, and Lord Protector of England, &c. 229. His Proceedings upon it, ibid. His Advancement in his Father's Time, ibid. He is a mean Man, ibid. His extravagant Expence on his Father's Funeral, ibid. Favours the Presbyterians in Oppoſition to the Independents, 230. No Bigot to any Religion, ibid. A prophane Saying of his gives Offence to thoſe that call themſelves the Godly, ibid. The Army force him to Diſſolve his Parliament, 231. And turn him out of his Protectorate, ibid. They petition the Rump to provide for him, but they neglect it, ibid. A Story told by the Lord Clarendon of a Comical Interview between the Prince of Conti and him in France, ibid.

Cromwell, Henry, Second Son to Oliver, ſent Deputy into Ireland, 208. Recall'd by the Rump, 231. He is popular in Ireland, but does not oppoſe the Parliament, ibid.

Culpeper, Lord, his brave Saying to Sir Harry Bennet, on his waiting on Charles II. to Maſs, when in his Exile, 238.

Culpeper, Sir John, his Speech againſt the Convocation, 112. Joins with the King, 127.

Culpeper, William, Eſq; one of the Kentiſh Petitioners, 808.

Culpeper, Thomas, Eſq; one of the Kentiſh Petitioners, 808. How proceeded againſt by the Houſe of Commons, when he ſtood for [illegible]ember [illegible] Maidſtone, 835.

[illegible]erland, George, Prince of Denmark, Created Duke of, 560.

Curtis, Langley, his Troubles for printing a Paper call'd The Lord Ruſſel's Ghoſt, 413.

Cuts, Colonel John, made Baron of Gowram, 610. Governor of the Iſle of Wight, 658. His Actions at Cameret Bay, 664. His brave Actions at Namur, 688, 689, 690. And again, 691, 692.

D.

D*Anby, Thomas Osburn*, Earl of, Impeach'd by the Co[illegible] 355. Proceedings of the Lords ag[illegible] him, 361. And Commons, ibid. An Act for Baniſhing him, and Diſab[illegible]m, &c. paſt by the Lords; and to [illegible]im, paſt by the Commons, ibid. [illegible] by the King, ibid. Bill of Attain[illegible] both Houſes, 362. He Surrenders [illegible] and makes Excuſes at the Bar, ibid. Impriſon'd, ibid. Appears at the Lords Bar again, 363. Commons will not allow his Pardon, 364. Bail'd, 405. Speaks warmly for the Vacancy of the Throne, and ſupplying it by the Prince and Princeſs of Orange, 547. Made Preſident of the Council by King William, 550. Marquis of Carmarthen, 571. And Duke of Leeds, 663. See Leeds, Duke of.

Dangerfeild, Thomas, the Cruel Sentence againſt him, and for what, 438. Kill'd by Francis, ibid.

Darby, Mr. John, a Printer, his Sufferings for printing the Lord Ruſſel's Speech, 405.

Darien, the Scots Settlement there Addreſt againſt by the Lords, 775. The Scots forc'd to deſert it, 787. Their Reſentment of it, ibid. 788.

Dartmouth, Lord, lets the Prince of Orange Sail by him, when he was King James's Admiral, 527. Whether Voluntarily or not, ibid.

Dauphin, Son of Lewis XIV. Commands the French Army in Germany and Flanders, 656, 665. His mean Character as a General, ibid. Is againſt owning the pretended Prince of Wales, to be King of England, 829.

Dean, Admiral, kill'd in the Dutch Wars, 209.

Deering, Sir Edward, his Speech in the Houſe of Commons againſt Archbiſhop Laud, 106. And againſt Epiſcopacy, ibid. Acknowledging the King's Goodneſs, and againſt the Remonſtrance about the Iriſh Maſſacre and Rebellion, 121. For the Biſhops, 124.

Delamere, Henry Booth, Lord, the unjuſt Proceedings againſt him, 437. He is Try'd and Acquitted, ibid. Made Earl of Warrington by King William, 596.

Delaval, Sir Ralph, his Letter concerning Admiral Ruſſel's Victory over Tourville, 641. Made Admiral by King William, 653.

Denbigh, Earl of, ſent with a Fleet to aſſiſt the Rochellers, 29. His Expedition comes to nothing, ibid. Makes another inglorious Expedition to aſſiſt them, 48. One of the Parliaments Commiſſioners ſent to the King at Oxford, 151. His bold Speech to the King, ibid. He lays down his Commiſſion on paſſing the Self-denying Ordinance, 157.

Denham, one of the Yorkſhire Conſpirators againſt King Charles II. hang'd, 267.

Denmark, King of, Beaten by Count Tilly, 28.

Denmark, King of, falls upon the Duke of Holſtein, 786. Forc'd to Conclude a Peace, ibid.

Denmark, George Prince of, comes to ſee the Engliſh Court, 296. Returns to Denmark, ibid. Comes again to England and is Marry'd to the Princeſs Anne, 407. Made a Privy Councellor by King James, 421. Goes to the Prince of Orange, 530. His Letter to King James on that Occaſion, ibid. King William declares his Intentions of making him a Duke to the Parliament, 559. The Parliament thanks him for it, ibid. Naturaliz'd by Act of Parliament, 560. Created Duke of Cumberland, ibid. Accompanies King William to Ireland, 598.

Derby, Earl of, raiſes 1500 Men for King Charles II. 199. Defeated by Colonel Lilburn, Taken and Beheaded, 201. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Derby, Earl of, riſes with Sir George Booth for King Charles II. 232. Taken Priſoner, ibid.

Derby, Counteſs of, Beſieg'd in Latham-Houſe by Sir Thomas Fairfax, defends herſelf bravely, 149. Reliev'd by Prince Rupert, ibid.

Desborough, Col. Cromwell's Brother-in-Law, in a Confederacy againſt him, 227. Turn'd out by the Rump, 232. Commanded to return to England by Proclamation, in Charles II. Reign, 279.

Deſigns of uniting the Church of England and Church of Rome, 82. N.

Devonſhire, William Cavendiſh, Earl of, ſtrikes Col. Culpeper in King James's Court, 517. Fin'd 30000 l. ibid. Zealouſly diſpoſed to Invite over the Prince of Orange, ibid. Guards the Princeſs Anne from Nottingham to Oxford, 531. Made Steward of the Houſhold by King William, 550. Knight of the Garter, 560. His Caſe with Culpeper, for which he was Committed to the King's Bench, redreſt by the Houſe of Lords, 565. Made Duke, 663. One of the Lord Juſtices of England, 687. And again, 714. Again, 734. Again, 755. And Again, 769. Again, 784. Again, 825.

Diep, Bombarded by the Engliſh, 664.

Digby, Lord, his Speech againſt Ship-Money, 106. For frequent Parliaments, 107. Againſt the Convocation, 112. His Treachery to the King about the Five Members, 123. He deſerts him and goes to Holland, ibid. Takes Marlborough from the Parliament, 129. Prevails with Sir John Hotham and his Son to deſert the King, 138. He endeavours in vain to Join the Lord Montroſe, 159. Flies to Ireland, ibid. His Letters taken and publiſh'd by the Parliament, ibid.

Diggs, Sir Dudley, his Speech at the Lords Bar, when he Impeach'd the Duke of Bucks, 22. He is Impriſon'd, 25. Releas'd, ibid. Made Maſter of the Rolls, 53.

Directory of Worſhip, publiſh'd by Parliament, 156, 160.

Diſcontents, general, and why, 4, 6, 11, 13, 29, 40, 41, 47, 52. At Ship-Money, 75, 76. About the Plantations, 90. Burton and Baſtwick. ibid. In Scotland about the Book of Canons and Common Prayer, 91.

Diſney, William Eſq; Hang'd for printing the Duke of Monmouth's Declaration, 438.

Diſpenſing Power exercis'd by King Charles the Second, 387. And highly by King James II. ibid.

Diſſenters, The Lord Chancellor Hyde's Speech againſt their Teachers, 247. Addreſs to the King to be reliev'd againſt the Uniformity Act, 257. The Parliament Addreſs againſt repealing or diſpenſing with that Act, ibid. They are more favour'd by the King than by the Parliament, 258. Their Diſpoſition after the paſſing the Uniformity Act, 268. Are againſt the Dutch War, 279. The Government Angry with them, ibid. The Corporation Act paſt againſt them, 279. Several Miniſters take the Oath of Allegiance with a very odd Diſtinction, ibid. Favour'd by the King, ibid. 280. A ſtate of their Caſe after the Fire, 286. They are pleas'd with the Lord Clarendon's Fall, and Buckingham's Riſe, 293. A Proclamation againſt them, 294. For a Comprehenſion, 295. Indulg'd, 300. Perſecuted, 301. Are Formidable, ibid. Perſecuted, 306. King Charles's Declaration of Indulgence, 313. A Bill in favour of 'em paſt by the Commons, thrown out by the Lords, 319. Their Caſe, 331. Indulg'd a little, 342. Their Behaviour on the diſcovery of the Popiſh Plot, 380. The beſt Clergy moderate towards 'em, 382. Their Separation blam'd by Foreign Proteſtants, ibid. Favour'd by the Houſe of Commons, ibid. A Bill to revoke what relates to 'em in the Act of 35 Eliz. paſs'd, 383. Loſt in the Lords Houſe by Stealth, ibid. Complaint of the Loſs of it in the Oxford Parliament, 386. Everard and Fitzharris's Plot to deſtroy them, ibid. 387. Why hated by King Charles II. 392. A Court Trick to proſecute them, and why, 393. The Laws againſt Papiſts turn'd againſt them, ibid. Mark'd out for Hatred and Proſecution by the Government, 410. Complain of their Sufferings, 421. Yet are ſorry for Charles II. Death, 422. Their Caſe in King James's Reign, 443. Severe Acts againſt them in Scotland, 444. Liberty of Conſcience firſt granted by King James there, 445. Further Proſecutions againſt them in England, 486. Fond of King James's Declaration of Liberty of Conſcience, 489. They Addreſs him upon it, ibid. They perceive the Treachery of it, ibid. The Apology for 'em, ibid. They ſuſpect King James's Favours will not laſt when the Papiſts are ſettled, 508. King William's Speech for Tenderneſs to them, 553. Several Attempts in Parliament in their Favour, rejected, ibid. What Lords proteſted againſt it, 554. Their Reaſons, ibid. Some of their Miniſters attend the Biſhop of London, when he went up with the Clergy to Addreſs King William, 557. Their particular Addreſs to him, ibid. The King's Anſwer, ibid. Act for Tolerating them paſt, 566. Proceedings in Parliament in their favour comes to nothing, 589. A Project of Accommodation broken, and by whom, 592, 593.

Doriſlaus, Dr. the Rump's Agent in Holland Aſſaſſinated, 192.

Dorſet, Charles Earl of, Conveys the Princeſs Anne from London to Nottingham, 531. Made Lord Chamberlain by King William, 550. Made one of the Lords Juſtices of England, 683. And again, 714. Again, 734. Again, 755.

Dover, Lord, receiv'd into Protection by King William, 604.

Dowglaſs, Sir Robert, Kill'd at Stenkirk, 644.

Downing, Sir George, King Charles IId's Ambaſſador at the Hague, puts in a Memorial to the States before the firſt Rupture, 271. His Paper-War with them, 273. Sent to the Tower, 309.

Drake,

Drake, Dr. Queſtion'd by the Lords for his Hiſtory of the Laſt Parliament, 841. Order'd to be proſecuted, 842.

Dublin, Univerſity of, how us'd by King James, 501, 578.

Duckenfield, Col. inſults the Speaker Lenthall by Lambert's Order, 232.

Dudley, Sir Robert, reſiding at Florence, Author of a Letter call'd, A Propoſition to His Majeſty to Bridle the Impertinency of Parliaments, 62.

Duelling, Charles IId's Declaration againſt it, 370. A Bill order'd to be brought in againſt it in Parliament, 777.

Duffey, John, a Scots Papiſt, made Rector of Ratle in Eſſex, 398. Forc'd to Fly, ibid.

Dunbar, Battle of, 195. Lord Clarendon's Account of it, 196.

Duncomb, Mr. Charles, ſent to the Tower for Unlawful Practices about Exchequer-Bills, 742. A Bill againſt him loſt by One Voice, 743. How 'twas thought he got off, ibid.

Dundee, Viſcount, retires from the Scots Convention, 573. Rebels againſt K. William, 575. Fights and forces General Mackay to retreat, ibid. He is ſlain, ibid.

Dunkirk, how got by Cromwell, 225. Sold to the French by Charles IId. 259.

Duras, Lord, ſent Ambaſſador from King Charles to the French King, to Treat of a Peace between him and Holland, 345. Does not ſucceed, ibid.

Durham, Dr. Nathaniel Crew, Biſhop of, moſt in Favour with King James II. and why, 442. One of the High Commiſſion Court, 452. Made one of the Commiſſioners to exerciſe Eccleſiaſtical Juriſdiction in the Dioceſe of London, when the Biſhop was Suſpended, 483. Order'd to draw up a Thankſgiving for Queen Mary's being with Child, 496. Leaves King James's Intereſt, 527. Excepted out of King William's Act of Indemnity, 597.

Dutch, their League with the French againſt the Spaniards, 83. Their Fiſhers diſpers'd, ibid. 84. Buy a Permiſſion to Fiſh, ibid. They are Neuters in the Diſpute between Charles I. and the Parliament, 130. Their Ambaſſadors Interpoſe between King and Parliament, 152. Their War with the Rump, 204. Beaten by Cromwell's Admirals, 209. Murmurs againſt them in Charles IId's Reign, encourag'd by the French Court, 270. King Charles's Declaration of War with them, 272. Puſh'd on by French and Popiſh Intereſts, 270, 271, 272, 273. Their Paper-War with Sir George Downing, King Charles IId's Ambaſſador, 273. They apply to the French King, but are little help'd by him, ibid. Not willing to have a War, 275. Beaten at Sole-Bay, 276. Murmurs amongſt them upon it, 277. Their Ambaſſador recall'd, 278. Charg'd by King Charles to be the Authors of the War, ibid. Hard preſt by the Biſhop of Munſter, and faintly aſſiſted by the French, 279. Gain an Advantage of the Engliſh, 281. Betray'd by the French, ibid. Beaten by the Engliſh, ibid. Murmurs at their ill Succeſs, 282. Their Fleet comes up the River of Thames, and burns ſeveral Ships, 287. Other Attempts upon the Ports and Coaſts of England, ibid. They conclude a Peace with Charles II. 288. And a Defenſive League, 293. Their Anſwer to King Charles IId's Declaration of War, 310. England and France at War with them, 314. Their Country over-run by the French, 315. They are in a dreadful Conſternation, ibid. Send Deputies to King Charles to deſire a Peace, ibid. King Charles concludes a Peace with them, 325. The French driven out of their Country by the Prince of Orange, 326. They highly Honour him, ibid. Incline to a Separate Peace, 349. And Sign it, 364. They refuſe to ſend home King James's 6 Regiments, knowing him to be in the French Intereſt, 497. Their Preparations to aſſiſt the Prince of Orange, 518. Their bold Anſwer to K. James's Envoy, ibid. The French King's Ambaſſador's Memorial to them upon it, 519. A Bill paſs'd in England to pay the Debt ariſing by the Revolution, 570. Entirely in King William's Intereſt, 715. The States Anſwer to that King's Speech on the Alteration in Europe by the Duke of Anjou's Uſurping the Spaniſh Monarchy, 826. To the Count D'Avaux the French Ambaſſador's Memorial, when he was recall'd, 827. Queen Anne's Letter to them to Condole the Death of King William, 839. They vindicate his Memory vilify'd by the French, 840.

Duttoncolt, John, Eſq; Fin'd 100000 l. Damage to the Duke of York, and for what, 414.

Dyer, an impudent News-Writer, brought before the Parliament, 666. Writes for the Jacobites, and Bread, ibid.

E.

Earthquake, one in England, 646.

Eaſt-India Company, Old, their Caſe laid before the Parliament, 623. The Parliament Addreſs that they may be Diſſolv'd, 648. A long State of their Caſe before the Parliament in Sir Thomas Cook's Affair, 670, 671, 672. Further Proceedings in the Caſe, 679, 680, 681, 682, 683, 684. Their Hearing before the Parliament againſt the New Company, 748, 749. Reaſons againſt their Charter, ibid. They petition the Parliament to be Reliev'd againſt the New Company, 761. Do not ſucceed, ibid.

Eaſt-India Company, New, their firſt Eſtabliſhment, 748. Their Hearing before the Parliament againſt the Old, ibid. 749. Vaſt Sums quickly ſubſcrib'd by them, 750. Their Proceedings, 761.

Eaſt-India Company, Scots, Addreſs'd againſt by the Engliſh Parliament, 700. King William's Anſwer, ibid. Diſputes about it in Scotland, 762, 763. They apply to the King in England, 774, 775, 776. Further Diſputes about it in Scotland, 785.

Eccleſiaſtical Courts, their Juriſdiction queſtion'd, 92. Confirmed by Charles I. ibid. Put down, 124.

Edenburgh, Biſhop of, prays for the Reſtoration of King James before the Scots Convention, 572.

Edge-Hill, Battle of, 127.

Elizabeth, Princeſs, Daughter to King Charles I. Born, 81. Her Treatment by Cromwell, 205. Her Death, ibid.

Ellenburgh, Major-General, baſely delivers up Dixmuyde, and the Garriſon there, to the French, 690.

Elliot, Sir John, his Speech at the Concluſion of the Duke of Bucks Impeachment, 25. He is Impriſon'd, ibid. Releas'd, 26. Confin'd in the Gate-Houſe, 40. Speaks againſt the Duke's being nam'd with the King, 43. Is forbidden by the Speaker, Sir John Finch, to ſpeak in the Houſe, 46. His Speech on a Declaration before the XXXIX Articles, 50. Impriſon'd in the Tower, 51. Fin'd 2000 l. 52. A Speech of his about Armenianiſm and Popery, 57.

Ely, Dr. Turner, Biſhop of, one of the Seven Biſhops that Petition'd, and were Impriſon'd, 511. Suſpended for refuſing to take the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary, 590. A Proclamation to Apprehend him for Plotting, 614.

Epiſcopacy Condemn'd in Scotland, 101. Defended by Biſhop Hall, ibid. Petitions againſt it, 109, 114. Aboliſh'd, 124. The King will not conſent to it even at the laſt, 177. Cromwell inclines to it. 223. Reſtor'd by King Charles II. 247. Reſtor'd in Scotland, 273.

Erle, Coll. his Bravery at the Battle of Aghrim, 620. Twice Taken and Retaken then, ibid. Gets off, ibid.

Eſſex, Robert Devereux, Earl of, made Vice-Admiral to the Lord Wimbleton, in the Expedition to Cales, 12. Vice-Admiral to the Earl of Lindſey, 85. Made Lieutenant General of the Army, in the firſt Expedition againſt the Scots, 98. In Diſgrace, 100. Made General of the Parliament Army, and proclaim'd Traytor by the King, 127. Marches againſt the King, ibid. And Fights the Battle of Edge-Hill, ibid. Beſieges and Takes Reading, 136. Gains the Battle of Newbury, 139. Purſues the King, 150. Marches into the Weſt, ibid. Leaves his Army, 151. Reſigns his Commiſſion, 157. His Death, and the Lord Clarendon's Character of him, 164.

Eſſex, Arthur Capel, Earl of, made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 316. Reſigns his Place in the Treaſury, 367. His Speech when he delivered the Petition againſt the Parliament's Sitting at Oxford, 383. Accus'd of the Phanatick Plot, 400. Found dead in the Tower with his Throat cut, ibid. Suſpected to be Murdered, ibid. And on what Circumſtances, ibid. The King's Saying on his Death, ibid.

Eſſex, Algernoon Capell, Earl of, attends King William into Flanders, 617.

Eſtree, Count de, Commander of the French Fleet; His Cowardice or Treachery, 323, 324.

Evans, John, a Popiſh Prieſt, hang'd at Cardiffe, 369.

Everard, his Plot to ruin the Diſſenters, 386, 387.

Every, Henry, the Pirate, a Proclamation againſt him, 721.

Eugene of Savoy, Prince, takes Gap in Dauphine, 645. Leads the main Body at the Battle of Marſaglia, 656.

Exchequer, Barons of, their Arbitrary Proceedings about Tonnage and Poundage, 49, 51.

Exchequer ſhut up by King Charles II. 309.

Exchequer-Bills firſt invented, and by whom, 725. Abus'd, and how, 742, 743. Renew'd, 797.

Excluſion Bill firſt thought of, 374. The King's Speech upon it, 379. Brought into the Houſe, 365, 375. Paſſes the Houſe of Commons, Rejected by the Lords, 377.

Exeter, See of, its Revenues enlarged, 301.

Eyles, Sir John, appointed Lord Mayor by King James, 516.

F.

Fagell, Mr. Penſionary of Holland, his Letter to Mr. Stewart, containing the Prince and Princeſs of Orange's Opinion about Liberty of Conſcience and the Teſt, 492, 493. To the Marquis of Abbeville in Defence of it, ibid.

Fairborn, Sir Palmes, kill'd at Tangier, 381.

Fairfax, Lord, made General of the North for the Parliament, to oppoſe the Earl of Newcaſtle, 129. Joins the Scots, 149. His Death, 172.

Fairfax, Sir Thomas, Beſieges Latham-Houſe, 149. Draws off and defeats Colonel Bellaſis, ibid. Joins the Scots Army, ibid. Is diſtreſt in the Battle of Marſton Moor, but reliev'd by Cromwell, ibid. Made General of the Parliament's Army, and Models it, 157. Marches to reduce the Weſt, ibid. But is Countermanded, ibid. Fights the King at Naſeby, ibid. Retakes Leiceſter, 158. Beats Colonel Goreing, and takes Bridgewater, &c. ibid. Takes Briſtol, ibid. Takes Dartmouth by Storm, beats the Lord Hopton, forces the Prince to retire into Sally, and reduces all the Weſt, [illegible] 160. Takes Oxford, 162. Heads the Presbyterian Party in the Houſe, 165. Waits on the King when he was brought to the Army, 167. Leads the Army to London, and is made Conſtable of the Tower, 169. Sends the King his Chaplains, and is thank'd by him for it, 171. Succeeds his Father the Lord Fairfax in his Honours and Poſts, 172. Takes Colcheſter, 176. Againſt the Murder of the King; reſolves to prevent it, but is deceiv'd by Cromwell, 187. Continued General of the Army by the Rump, 192. Why Cromwell was put [illegible] Head, 193, 195. His Conference with a Committee of Parliament about the Scots War, ibid. He lays down his Commiſſion, ibid. Pro[illegible]to Join with General Monk, 234.

Fairfax, Lady, interrupts the [illegible] High Court of Juſtice at the King[illegible], 181.

Fairfax, Dr. his bold Speech to the High Commiſſion Court upon the buſineſs of Magdalen College, 504. Rudely treated by Jefferies, ibid. Stands boldly by Dr. Hough the Preſident, and is unjuſtly expell'd the College, 506.

Falkland, Lord, Deputy of Ireland, oppoſes the Papiſts there buying a Toleration, 37. Appoints Deputies to carry Grievances to Court, 53. His Son makes a vehement Speech againſt Ship-Money, 106. And is killed on the King's ſide at the Battle of Newbury, 139. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid. 140, 141, 142.

Falkland, Lady, goes in Pilgrimage to Holy-well a-foot, 89. Her Character from the Lord Clarendon, 140.

Falmouth, Earl of, and Two Gentlemen more, kill'd by one Shot at Solebay Fight, 276.

Fame, Common, Voted by the Houſe of Commons to be a good Ground of their Proceeding, either by Enquiry or Complaint, 18.

Farmer, Anthony, made Preſident of Magdalen College on his Promiſe to turn Papiſt, 502. The Fellows Exceptions againſt him as to his Religion and Morals, 504.

Faſt, a publick one order'd, 16. One appointed by King Charles at the opening of the Dutch War, 275. Another on the breaking out of the Plague, 277. A General one, 349. Another, 361. Another, 357.

Favourites at Court odious to the Engliſh People, 10.

Featly, Dr. His hard Uſage, 7. N. Leaves the Aſſembly of Divines, 147. Puniſh'd for it, ibid.

Fielding, Colonel, Governor of Reading for the King, Surrenders it to the Earl of Eſſex, 136. Sentenced to die, ibid. Is Repriev'd, ibid.

Felton, John, Lieutenant, kills the Duke of Bucks, 48. His Motive, ibid.

Fenwick, Sir John, in a Plot to bring in the French, 703. Taken, his Letter to his Wife, 725. Spirits away Goodman the Evidence by his Agents, 726. Would do the ſame by Porter, but cannot, ibid. Prevaricates with the King and Parliament, ibid. A Bill brought in to Attaint him: It cauſes great Debates and many Speeches, ibid. to 729. It paſſes Both Houſes, 729. The proteſting Lords Reaſons againſt it, ibid. He is Beheaded, ibid. The Paper he deliver'd to the Sheriffs, 730.

Fenwick, John, a Jeſuit hang'd for the Popiſh Plot, 368.

Ferdinando d' Adda, the Pope's Nuncio to King James, now living, and Archbiſhop of Milan, 494. His Kindneſs for the Biſhop of Durham, ibid. N.

Ferguſon, Robert, a Phanatick Teacher, Accus'd of the Phanatick Plot, 399. Always thought a Traytor, ibid. A Proclamation againſt him, with a Deſcription of him, 403. Charges Lord Grey with Cowardice, 431. N. Call'd a Bloody Villain by the Duke of Monmouth on the Scaffold, 433.

Feverſham, Lewis de Duras, Earl of, Addreſt againſt by Parliament, 379. Commands King James II's Forces againſt the Duke of Monmouth, 431. And againſt the Prince of Orange, 528. Adviſes King James to ſecure the Lord Churchill, ibid. King James's Letter to him to Diſband, 532. He Diſbands the Army, 534. He is cenſur'd for it: His Letter to the Prince upon it, ibid. Arreſted for it by the Prince's Order, 536. Releas'd by the Queen Dowager's Interceſſion, 540.

Fiennes, Colonel Nathaniel, Governor of Briſtol for the Parliament; ſurrenders it to Prince Rupert, 139.

Fife, Battle of, 198.

Finch, Sir Heneage, choſen Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, 16. His Speech to the King, ibid.

Finch, Sir John, choſen Speaker of Charles I's. Third Parliament, 41. His Speech to the King to juſtify their Proceedings, ibid. Forbids a Member to ſpeak, and deſires leave to go out of the Houſe, 46. Goes to the King privately and brings a Meſſage from him, ibid. Held down in his Chair while the Houſe publiſh'd their Proteſtations, 51. Made Lord Chief Juſtice, 76. Suppoſed to be inſtrumental in the Ship-Money Tax, ibid. His Character, ibid. Made Lord Keeper, 102. A ridiculous Speech of his at the opening of the Parliament, ibid. Voted a Traytor, 107. He flies, ibid. The Cenſure paſt upon him by the Author of the Hiſtory of the Rebellion, ibid.

Finch, Sir Heneage, Nephew to Sir John Finch, made Lord Keeper by Charles II. 324.

Fire, the great one at London, 283. The Account of it inſcrib'd on the Monument, 284. Conjectures how it began, ibid. An Annual Faſt order'd to be kept for it, ibid.

Firebrace, Sir Baſil, one of the Sheriffs of London, receives the Pope's Nuncio at Temple-Bar, 494. Proceeded againſt in Parliament, and why, 681, 682, to 684. He is Impriſon'd by Act of Parliament, 684.

Fitton, Sir Alexander, lying in Goal for Perjury, is taken out and made Lord Chancellor of Ireland by King James, 500. His Saying againſt the Proteſtants, ibid.

Fitzharris, an Account of him and his Libel, 386. His Contrivance to Father it upon the Diſſenters, 387. Impeach'd by the Parliament, the Lords fling out the Impeachment, ibid. Commons Vote that No-body ſhall Try him, ibid. He is Try'd, Condemn'd, and Hang'd, ibid.

Five-mile Act, by whom oppoſed, 280. N.

Flags at Sea, a Proclamation concerning them, 74.

Fleetwood, General, made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland by Cromwell's Means, 203. Oppoſes the Parliaments making Cromwell King, 220. In a Conſpiracy againſt him, ibid. 227. Very inſtrumental in turning out his Brother-in-Law Richard Cromwell, 231. Forces him to diſſolve his Parliament, ibid. The Army Petition the Rump to make him General of their Forces, ibid. The Rump addreſs to him for Protection againſt Lambert, 232. General Monk writes angrily to him on the turning out of the Rump, 233. Reſtores the Rump again, 234.

Foley, Paul, Eſq; choſen Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, 672. And again, 697.

Fowler, Dr. Edward, ſigns a Paper againſt reading King James's Declaration for Liberty of Conſcience, 510. N.

Foulis, Sir David, proſecuted for Oppoſing the Project of Knighthood, 70.

Foulks, Mr. Robert, Miniſter in Shropſhire, hang'd for killing a Baſtard Child, 359.

Francis Alban, a Monk, has his Degree of M. A. refus'd him by the Vice Chancellor of Cambridge, contrary to the King's Mandate, 501.

Francis, Robert, kills Dangerfield, and is hang'd, 438.

Friend, Sir John, in a Plot to bring in the French, 709. Found Guilty of High Treaſon; his Confeſſion before a Committee of Parliament, 712. Hang'd, Drawn and Quarter'd, ibid. The Paper he deliver'd to the Sheriffs, ibid.

French Refugees, why favour'd by K. James, 499. N.

French, their Perfidiouſneſs, 225. Their Cruelty, 656.

Frewen, Arch-Biſhop, dies, 274. N.

Fuller, William, a notorious Cheat, amuſes the Houſe of Commons with falſe Evidence, 630. Their Declaration againſt him, 631. He is pillory'd, ibid. His further Villany, 834.

G.

Galloway, Surrender'd to the Engliſh by Dillon the Governor, 621.

Galloway, Lord Viſcount, ſent General to Savoy, 661. His endeavours to find out the Duke of Savoy's Separate Treaty with France, 715. Made one of the Lord Juſtices of Ireland, 731. Made Earl of Galloway, 734.

Gaming, a Bill, order'd to be brought in againſt it by the Houſe of Commons, 777.

Gap, in Dauphine, taken by Prince Eugene of Savoy, 645.

Gaven, alias Gawen, John, a Jeſuit, hang'd, 368.

Germaine, Mr. try'd upon an Action of Adultery with the Dutcheſs of Norfolk, 661.

Gerrard, Sir Gilbert, ill receiv'd by Charles II. when he deliver'd a Petition for the Sitting of the Parliaments, 367.

Ghent taken by the French, 346.

Ginkle, Baron de, Suppreſſes the Rebellion of Two Scots Regiments who revolted from King William, 553. His Bravery and Danger at the Boyne, 600. Takes Ballymore, 618. And Athlone, 619. His good Conduct, ibid. Gains the Battle of Aghrim, 620, 621. Takes Galloway, ibid. His bold Saying to Sarsfield at Limerick Camp, ibid. Takes that Town and ends the Iriſh War, 622. Has the Thanks of the Houſe of Commons, 631. His modeſt Reception of it, ibid. Treated by the Lord Mayor, ibid. Created Earl of Athlone, ibid.

Glanvill, Serjeant, choſen Speaker of Charles I. Fourth Parliament, 103.

Glemham, Sir Thomas, Surrenders York to the Parliament, 150. And Oxford, 162.

Glenco Buſineſs, King William's Honour in that matter Vindicated by the Parliament of Scotland, 696.

Glouceſter Beſieg'd by Charles I. in vain, 139.

Glouceſter, Henry Duke of, taken out of the Jeſuits College, where his Mother had put him, and carry'd to his Brother King Charles II. in Germany, 212. How he was Treated by Oliver, 215. And by his Mother, ibid. He will not be perverted to Popery, ibid. and 216. Returns with his Brother King Charles to England, 241. His Death and Character, ibid.

Glouceſter, William Henry Duke of, Son to Her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Anne, Born, 566. Inſtall'd Knight of the Garter, 721. King William fond of him, 785. His Governor, Preceptor, and other Officers, ibid. Dies, 786.

Glouceſter, Dr Frampton, Biſhop of, ſuſpended for not taking the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary, 590.

Glynne, John, Eſq; Charges Twelve Biſhops with High Treaſon at the Lords Bar, 125. One of the 11 Members Impeach'd by the Army, 168. Made Lord Chief Juſtice of the Upper Bench by Cromwell, 214. His Declaration of Treaſon in favour of Oliver, 217. For making Cromwell King, 218. His Houſe Seiz'd and Garriſon'd by Colonel Whitby for King Charles II. 232. Made Eldeſt Serjeant to Charles II. 662.

Godfrey, Colonel, goes over to the Prince of Orange, 528.

Godfrey, Sir Edmund-Bury, Murder'd, 351. His Murder diſcover'd, ibid. His Murderers hang'd, 357.

Godfrey, Mr. his Brother, a Merchant of London, kill'd at the Siege of Namur, 689.

Godolphin, William, Eſq; Knighted, and ſent Ambaſſador to Spain, 294. Accus'd of High Treaſon, 353. The Commons Addreſs to have him recall'd, ibid.

Godolphin, Sydney, Eſq; made one of the Lords of the Treaſury by Charles II. 357. Made Secretary of State, 415. Made a Baron, ibid. And Chamberlain to the Queen, 421. And one of the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, 451. One of the Lords appointed to Treat with the Prince of Orange, 531. Firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, and one of the Lords Juſtices of England by King William, 663, 687. And again, 714. Firſt Commiſſioner again, 793. Again one of the Lords Juſtices, 825.

Goodman, Dr. Biſhop of Glouceſter, aſſerts the Real Preſence of Chriſt in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, in a Sermon before King Charles I. 34. Turns Papiſt, ibid. 215. His Poverty, ibid.

Goodman, a Player, one of the horrid Aſſaſſination Plot to Murder K. William, and bring in the French, 703. Spirited away by Sir John Fenwick's means to prevent his Witneſſing againſt him, 726.

Goodwin, Mr. Thomas, Cromwell's Chaplain, his bold Expoſtulations with Heaven in his Behalf, 226.

Gorge, Sir Ferdinando, refuſes to join the French, and brings off his Ship contrary to Order, 6.

Goring, Colonel, Governor of Portſmouth for the Parliament, deſerts to the King, 138. Routed at Langport by General Fairfax, 158. Condemn'd by the High Court of Juſtice, and ſav'd by the Speaker's Vote, 191.

Gordon, Duke of, refuſes to Surrender Edinburgh Caſtle to the Scots Convention, 572, 573. Reduc'd to great Streights, and Surrenders at Diſcretion, 575.

Gorſtelo, a famous Tory in Ireland, takes the Caſtle of Cornet Ormsby in Charles II's Reign, 285.

Gower, Dr. Vice Chancellor of Cambridge, his fine Speech with the Univerſity's Addreſs of Abhorrence of the Aſſociation and Excluſion Bill, 393. King Charles II. Anſwer, ibid.

Grafton, Henry Fitz Roy, Duke of, Steward of the City Apprentices Feaſt, 391. Made Vice Admiral, 397. Goes againſt the Duke of Monmouth, and is in Danger, 431. Conducts the Pope's Nuncio in his Audience, 494. Goes over to the Prince of Orange, 529.

Order'd by him to take Poſſeſſion of Tilbury-Fort, 535. Kill'd at Cork, 611.

Granard, Earl of, made Lord Juſtice of Ireland, 446. He pretends to be Zealous for the Proteſtant Intereſt, ibid.

Grand Jury, an Indictment preſented to them againſt King James, and by whom, 374. N.

Grants, King William's, to ſeveral Lords and others, 772. Reſum'd, ibid.

Granvail, Sieur de, Plots to Aſſaſſinate King William, 617, 618. He is taken and confeſſes, 644. He is hang'd, ibid. Put upon it by an Archbiſhop and a Crown'd Head, 645.

Granville, Sir Bevill, his Death and Character from the Lord Clarendon, 138.

Granville, Sir John, ſent to General Monk by King Charles, 236. Very warily receiv'd, ibid. Carries the King's Letters to General Monk and the Parliament, 239.

Granville, Sir Bevill, his Bravery at Stenkirk, 644.

Gray, Ford Lord, Fin'd for a Riot in the City, 398. Accus'd of the Phanatick Plot, a Proclamation againſt him, 399. Lands with the Duke of Monmouth, 428. Is pardon'd and ſuſpected, 433. Made Earl of Tankerville by King William, 687. Vide Earl of Tankerville.

Gray, Ralph, Eſq; made Governor of Barbadoes, 734.

Green hang'd for Sir Edmund Bury Godfrey's Murther, 357.

Greenville, Dr. Dean of Durham, refuſes the Oath to K. William and Q. Mary, 633.

Gregory, Serjeant, choſen Speaker of the Houſe of Commons by the Lord Ruſſel's Recommendation, 360.

Grahme, Mr. Fergus, diſmiſs'd by K. James at St. Germains, for being a Church-man, 739. N.

Grievances, drawn up by Charles I's Second Parliament, 17. Forbidden to be enquired into, 18. Complain'd of by the Houſe of Lords, 21, 22. More 40. Complain'd of by Charles I's Third Parliament, 43. Voted in general Particulars, 45. As to Tunnage and Poundage, 49. In Religion, 50, 58. From Ireland, 53. About the Plantations, 90. Complain'd of by Charles I. Fourth Parliament, 103. Many Complain'd of by his Fifth Parliament, call'd the Long Parliament, 106. By Charles II. Parliament about the Growth of Popery, 376.

Griffin, Lord, Proceedings againſt him, 583.

Grimſtone Harbottle, Eſq; his Speech in Parliament on the Diſeaſes of the State, 103. His ſevere Speech againſt Archbiſhop Laud, 107. Againſt the Convocation, 112. Another warm one of his againſt Archbiſhop Laud, 115. Choſen Speaker of the Parliament, that was call'd by Monk and the Long Parliament, and call'd in the King, 238.

Grotius, Hugo, writes againſt the Dominion of the Engliſh at Sea, in a Book ſtil'd Mare Liberum, 74.

Grove, Mr. Thomas, ſeverely perſecuted by Dr. Ward Biſhop of Saliſbury, for Non-conformity, 311.

Grove, John, hang'd for the Popiſh Plot, 357.

Grove, Dr. Robert, Biſhop of Chicheſter, dies, 731. N.

Guiſcard, Count, ſurrenders Namur to King William, 692.

Guy, Mr. Henry, ſent to the Tower for taking a Bribe of Two Hundred Pounds, 669.

Gwyn, Francis, made Clerk of the Council, 368. His Evidence at the Lord Shaftsbury's Trial, 390. Order'd by the Lords on King James's Abdication to ſign their Orders, 537.

Gwyn, Sir Rowland, turn'd out of his Places for reflecting on the Lord Sidney, 637.

H.

HAcker, Coll. Francis, very buſy at the Murder of the King, 186.

Hacket, Dr. his Obſervation on the Earls of Holland and Norwich, 191. N.

Haretico Comburendo, the Writ ſo call'd, aboliſh'd by Act of Parliament, 348.

Hague, Congreſs of, 612.

Hale, Sir Matthew, draws up a Comprehenſion Bill for Diſſenters, 295.

Hall, Dr. Biſhop of Exeter, his Vindication of Epiſcopacy, 101.

Hall, Mr. Timothy, a ſorry Divine, made Biſhop of Oxford by King James, 522.

Hallifax, George Savil Viſcount, ſworn of Charles IId's Privy.Council, 313. Sent Ambaſſador to the French King then in Holland, 315. Not well us'd by the Duke of Bucks, his Fellow-Ambaſſador, ibid. Addreſs'd againſt by Parliament, 379. Leaves the Duke of Monmouth and Lord Shaftsbury, 396. Falls in with the Duke of York, and is made a Marquis, ibid. Preſident of the Council, 421. His Ironical Saying on King James in the Houſe of Lords, 436. One of the Lords appointed to treat with the Prince of Orange, 531. Oppoſes the Regency, and is for the Vacancy of the Throne, 544. Speaks warmly for the Vacancy, and puts the Queſtion, Whether the Prince and Princeſs of Orange ſhall be declared King and Queen, 547. Tenders the Crown to the Prince and Princeſs of Orange, in the Name of the Parliament, 549. Made Lord Privy-Seal by King William, 550. A Motion againſt him in Parliament, 570.

Hallifax, Charles Mountague created Lord, 793. Impeach'd by the Houſe of Commons for the Partition Treaty, 805. The Articles of Impeachment againſt him carried up to the Lords by Mr. Bridges, 818. The Impeachment diſmiſs'd by the Lords, 823.

Hamburgh Fleet taken by the Dutch, 275.

Hamilton, Marquis, made General of Charles Iſt's Troops, ſent to the Aſſiſtance of Guſtavus Adolphus, 63. Accus'd of Treaſon, but ſtill truſted, ibid. How he loſt the Honour of being at the Battle of Leipſick, 64. Sent Commiſſioner into Scotland upon the breaking-out of the Covenant, 95. Unſucceſsful with the Fleet againſt the Scots, 99. Suſpected by all Parties, 100. Advances with an Army into England, to releaſe the King, 175. Defeated by Cromwell, 176. Condemn'd by a High Court of Juſtice, and Beheaded, 190. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, 191.

Hamilton, Duke of, oppoſes the Earl of Argyle's Faction, 198. Kill'd at Worceſter, 200. Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Hamilton, Duke of, ſuppreſſes a Rebellion in Scotland againſt Charles II. 285. Preſident of the Meeting of the Nobility of Scotland in London to Addreſs the Prince of Orange, 555.

Hamilton, Sir William, ſent Agent to Rome in the Reign of Charles I. 86.

Hamilton, Col. Richard, ſent by King William with a Letter to Tyrconnel, to require his Submiſſion, 556. Joins with Tyrconnel againſt the King, ibid. Made Lieutenant-General by King James, 576. Routs the Proteſtants, ibid. The Garriſon of London-derry reproach him with his Treachery, 579. Taken Priſoner at the Battle of the Boyne, 600. The gentle Rebuke given him by the King, ibid.

Hamilton, Guſtavus, Eſq; Governor of Inniſkilling, routs General Maccarty, and takes him Priſoner, 579.

Hammond, Col. Governor of the Iſle of Wight, fetches King Charles I. from Titchfield-Houſe, and carries him to that Iſland, 170. The King's Diſcourſe with him, 172.

Hampden, John, Eſq; His Caſe about Ship-Money, 91. One of the Parliament-Spies on the King in Scotland, 120. One of the Five Members demanded by the King, 122. He engages Prince Rupert, and is kill'd, 137. The L. Clarendon's Character of him, 137, 138.

Hampden, Richard, Eſq; Inſtrumental in the Revolution, 517. His Speech at the Conference with the Lords about the Word Abdicate, 545. He is made a Privy Counſellor by King William, 568. He makes an ill Step in Parliament, ibid. Made Chancellor of the Exchequer, and one of the Lords of the Treaſury, 587.

Hampden, John, Eſq; his Trial and Fine, 405. Condemn'd to die, but pardon'd, 439. Inſtrumental in the Revolution, 517. Examin'd by a Committee of Lords in King William's Reign about the Proceedings againſt the Lord Ruſſel, &c. 585. His Vanity, ibid. His Speech againſt ſome of King William's Miniſters, ibid. Very buſy in Parliament againſt them, ibid.

Hanover, Electreſs of, viſits King William at the Hague, 786. The Proteſtant Succeſſion thought to be there firſt concerted, ibid.

Harbord, Mr. ſent by Queen Mary to the States, to conſult Meaſures with them on the Defeat of their Fleet, 603.

Harcourt, Marquis de, his Negotiations in Spain againſt the Houſe of Auſtria, 757.

Harcourt, William, a Jeſuit, Rector of London, hang'd, 368.

Harcourt, Mr. impeaches the Lord Somers at the Bar of the Houſe of Lords, 805. Carries up the Articles of Impeachment againſt him, 810. Manages the Conference about his Tryal, 817, 819.

Harley, Edward, Eſq; One of the 11 Members impeach'd by the Army, 168.

Harley, Robert, Eſq; choſen Speaker of the H. of Commons, 793. His Speech to the King at the breaking up of the Seſſion, 824. Choſen Speaker again, 831.

Harman, Sir John, his Bravery in the Dutch Wars, 281.

Harriſon, Coll. his Inſolence when Cromwell Diſſolv'd the Rump, 207. Head of the Fifth Monarchiſts, 223.

Harvey, Mr. Frederick, his Reflections upon Charles II. 394. Committed to Newgate for Treaſon, ibid.

Haſlerig, Sir Arthur, one of the 5 Members of Parliament demanded by the King, 122. Wou'd perſuade Monk to take the Government on himſelf, 235.

Haſtings, Col. Kill'd in Admiral Ruſſel's Fight with Tourville, 642.

Haſtings, Col. Caſhier'd for Undue Practices in the Army, 670.

Haverſham, John Lord, his Speech at a Conference about the Impeach'd Lords, 817. Gives Offence to the Commons, ibid. 818. His Anſwer to their Complaint, 821. Clear'd by the Lords, 823.

Havre de Grace Bombarded by Captain Bembow, 665.

Hawkins, Mr. Robert, his Account of his Sufferings, 293. N.

Hayman, Sir Peter, ſent to the Wars in Germany for refuſing to comply with the Loan, 40. Proſecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Parliament-Man, 52.

Heath, Sir Robert, turn'd out from being Lord Chief Juſtice, without Reaſon, 76.

Hedges, Sir Charles, made Secretary of State by King William, 793.

Heidelbergh Taken by the Duke de Lorge, 656. The horrid Cruelties the French committed there, ibid.

Henderſon, Mr. a Scots Divine, his Diſpute with Charles I. about Presbytery, 165. His Repentance at his Death, 190.

Henrietta Maria, Queen of England, marry'd to Charles I. 4. The Match with her cenſur'd, ibid. Suſpected to do ill Offices between England and France, 28. Made to Walk to Tyburn a-foot for Penance, ibid. She is enrag'd at the ſending away her French Servants, 29. Importunes the King to favour Papiſts, 76. Promotes Popery, 93. Diſguſts the Earl of Strafford, 100. Solicits Supplies in Holland for the King, 130. Lands in Yorkſhire with them, ibid. Impeach'd of High Treaſon, 136. Leaves the Kingdom, 150. Her bad Advice to her Son, Charles II. 193. Her endeavours to get Charles II. profeſs her own Religion, 205. Puts her youngeſt Son, the Duke of Glouceſter, into the Jeſuits College, 212. And wou'd pervert him to Popery, 216. Comes into England after the Reſtoration, 242. Suppos'd with an Intention to perſuade her Son King Charles to Surrender Dunkirk, ibid. Her Death, 297.

Henrietta, Princeſs, Daughter to Charles I. Born at Exeter, 150.

Henry, Prince, his Jeſt on his Brother King Charles I. for his Learning, 2.

Herbert, Lord, Son to the Marquis of Worceſter, Routed by Sir William Waller, 135.

Herbert, Lord, of Cherbury, goes over to the Prince of Orange, 518.

Herbert, Col. Murder'd by the Iriſh, 620.

Herbert, Sir Edward, Attorney-General, Charges the 5 Members with High Treaſon, 122.

Herbert, Sir Edward, Lord Chief Juſtice, one of K. James's High Commiſſion Court, 453.

Herbert, Admiral, goes over to the Prince of Orange in Holland, 518. Fights the French Fleet at Bantry Bay, 564. Created Earl of Torrington, 571. See Torrington, Earl of.

Hereſies increaſe in England, 194, 218, 223, 707.

Hern, Sir Nathaniel, Sheriff of London, his Saying to the Biſhops, diſcourſing him about perſecuting Diſſenters, 338.

Heſſe Darmſtadt, Prince of, his Actions in Catalonia againſt the Duke of Verdoſme, 715.

Hewit, Dr. Try'd for a Conſpiracy againſt Cromwell, 224. He is Condemn'd and Beheaded, ibid. His Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Heylin, Dr. A Letter of his on King Charles IId's not Calling a Convocation with his Second Parliament, 251.

Higgens, Three Brothers, Sons of Sir Thomas Higgens, Charg'd with the Aſſaſſination-Plot againſt King William, 705.

Hill, Hang'd for Sir Edmundbury Godfrey's Murder, 357.

Hide, Sir Nicholas, made Lord Chief Juſtice of the King's Bench upon the Removal of Sir Randolph Crew, who was diſſatisfied with the Loan, 29. His Death and Character, 64.

Hide, Mr. Edward, an Aſſiſtant for the reading of the Articles of Impeachment againſt the Lord Keeper Finch, 107. Has the Thanks of the Houſe of Commons for it, ibid. Knighted.

Hide, Sir Edward, Agent for King Charles II. in Flanders, 156. Parties againſt him in that King's Court abroad, 213. His Speech when Lord Chancellor, about King Charles's Declaration of Indulgence in Religion, 246. Accus'd by the Earl of Briſtol about the Portugal Match, 255. Vindicated as to that and the Surrender of Dunkirk, ibid. His Speech againſt Diſſenting Teachers, ibid. His good Service to the Parliamentary Conſtitution, 256. See Clarendon, Earl of.

Hide, Mr. Lawrence, order'd by K. Charles IId's Long Parliament to thank the Univerſity of Oxford for their Loyalty to King Charles I. 278. His Negotiation with the Prince of Orange about a French War, 350. Made one of the Commiſſioners of the Treaſury, 357. The Parliament Addreſs to remove him from all Places, and from the King's Preſence and Council for ever, 379. Made Viſcount, 391. And Earl of Rocheſter, 415. See Earl of Rocheſter.

Hobert, Sir Miles, proſecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Parliament-Man, 52, 63.

Holland, Earl of, made General of the Horſe in the firſt Expedition againſt the Scots, 98. He is inglorious, ibid. Challeng'd by the Earl of Newcaſtle, 100. Sent to disband the Royal Army in the North, 118. Deſerts and Betrays the King, 120. Deſerts the Parliament, 139. Deſerts the King again, ibid. Condemn'd by the High Court of Juſtice, and Voted to die by the Speaker's Single Voice, 191. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Hollis, Mr. Denzil, proceeded againſt for his Speeches and Actions as a Member of Parliament, 51, 52. Glories in his Sufferings, ibid. Fin'd a 1000 Marks, 53. Carries up the Charge of High Treaſon againſt Archbiſhop Laud to the Houſe of Lords, 107. One of the Five Members demanded by the King, 122. One of the Eleven Impeach'd by the Army, 168. See Lord Hollis.

Hollis, Denzil Lord, ſent Ambaſſador to France by King Charles II. 279. And Plenipotentiary to Treat of a Peace with the Dutch, 286.

Holloway, Mr. James, hang'd for the Phanatick Plot, 413.

Holms, Sir Robert, burns and deſtroys the Iſle of Uly, 283. Lies in wait for the Dutch Smirna Fleet, 310.

Holt, Sir John, of Grays-Inn, Knighted by King James, 440. Made Recorder of London, ibid. Made King James's Serjeant, 449. Turn'd out of all, and why, 493. His Speech at the Conference for the Word Abdicate, 546. Made Lord Chief Juſtice of England, 564.

Hone, Mr. William, hang'd for the Phanatick Plot, 399.

Hooper, Dr. George, Miniſter of Lambeth, made Dean of Canterbury by Queen Mary, 633.

Hopton, Sir Ralph, reads the Long Parliament's Remonſtrance about Ireland and the Rebels there, to the King, 121. Made Lord Hopton, and Commands the King's Forces at Cheriton Down, 150. Beaten by Sir William Waller, ibid. His Forces routed by General Fairfax, 159. He disbands, ibid. His Death abroad, 205.

Hotham, Sir John, Impriſon'd for giving Offence in Parliament, 104. His Speech to moderate things, 106. Seizes Hull, and refuſes to let the King into the Town, 126. That, the firſt Act of Hoſtility in the Civil-War, ibid. Proclaim'd a Traitor by the King, defended by the Parliament, ibid. Betrays the Parliament, and is beheaded with his Son, 138. His Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Hough, Dr. Choſen Preſident of Magdalen-College, in oppoſition to King James's Mandate, 503. Depriv'd by King James's Viſitors, 506. His bold Carriage, ibid. Turn'd out, 508. Recall'd by King James in a Fright, 522.

Hounſlow Heath, King James's Camp there, 451.

Houſell, Mr. Zachary, his Recantation for publiſhing a pernicious Book, 745. N.

How, John, Eſq; made Vice-Chamberlain to the Queen by King William, 550. Moves in Parliament to Addreſs the King againſt Evil Counſellors, 568.

Howard, Lord of Eſcrick, Sits in the Houſe of Commons, tho' a Peer, as a Burgeſs for Carliſle, 192.

Howard, Lord, ſent Ambaſſador to Morocco, 297.

Howard, Lord of Eſcrick, committed to the Tower for writing Fitzharris's Libel, 400. Reconcil'd to the Court by the Dutcheſs of Portſmouth, to go thro' the drudgery of Swearing, ibid. A thorowpac'd Evidence in the Phanatick Plot, ibid.

Hubert, Robert, a Frenchman, Hang'd for the Fire of London, 284. His haſty Execution, why ſo order'd, ibid.

Huddleſton, Father, excepted in King Charles II's Declaration againſt Papiſts, 331. Attends King Charles as his Prieſt at his Death, 423, 418, N.

Hungerford, Mr. John, expell'd the Houſe of Commons for taking 20 Guineas indirectly, 679.

I.

Jacobites, the Faction againſt King William, ſo call'd, 602. Their Plot againſt Queen Mary and the Government, ibid. Proclamations to Seize the Chief of 'em for Conſpiring againſt the Goverment, 603. A Plot of theirs diſcover'd, 614. They reſolve to Treat with the French King, ibid. The Plotters taken up, ibid. Their Plots charg'd on the Nonjuring Clergy, ibid. Their Memorials to the French King, 616. Maintain a conſtant Correſpondence with the French King, 617. Conſpire to Aſſaſſinate King William, ibid. And again, 637. Deceive the French King with falſe News, and are the Occaſion of the Loſs of his Fleet, 639. Induſtrious and implacable in their Plots, 665. Their News-Writer, Dyer, reprimanded by the Parliament, 666. Mortify'd at the Loſs of Namur, 693. Their horrid Aſſaſſination Plot, 703. Fully detected, 704, 705. Enrag'd at the French King for Abandoning King James by the Treaty of Reſwick, 738. An Addreſs againſt them by the Parliament, 761. Their reſtleſs Endeavours againſt the Government, 796.

Jamaica Taken by the Engliſh, 210.

Jamaica, Duke of Albemarle made Governor of it, 496. Colonel Beeſton made Governor of it, 652.

James I. King, his Saying of K Charles I's Knowledge in Divinity, 3. A Saying of his at his Death, ibid. His Burial, 4.

James II. King of England, Succeeds his Brother King Charles II. 420. His firſt Speech to the Council, ibid. Publiſhes the Strong-Box Papers, to prove that King Charles II. died a Papiſt, 423. He is Crown'd, 424. His Speech to his Parliament, 425. Rejects the Prince of Orange's Offer to joyn againſt the Duke of Monmouth, 431. His Behaviour to the Duke after he was Taken, 433. Makes an ill Uſe of his Succeſs againſt him, 434. His Pardon ridiculouſly Cruel, ibid. His Speech at the meeting of his Parliament after it, ibid. He treats them very roughly, ibid. 436. Protects Popiſh Officers againſt the Parliament, ibid. Cruel Sentences paſt on ſeveral, 437, 438. Bloody Executions, 433, 438, 439. His profeſſing himſelf a Papiſt ſurprizes the People, 440. Endeavours to introduce Popery, againſt the Advice of the Pope and Spaniſh Ambaſſador, ibid. Declares he will diſpence with the Teſt-Act, and keep in his Popiſh Officers, 442. His Endeavours to repeal the Teſt in Scotland, 445. Gives Liberty of Conſcience firſt there, 446. He prevaricates with the Earl of Clarendon about the Lieutenancy of Ireland, 448. Makes Tyrconnell Deputy, ibid. He attempts to bring in Popery and Arbitrary Power in England, 449. Turns out thoſe Judges that will not own his Diſpenſing Power, ibid. Makes Popiſh Judges, ibid. 493. And Popiſh Lords Privy Councellors, ibid. More Cruel Sentences, 449. Will not ſuffer the Clergy to Preach againſt Popery, 452. Sets up a High Commiſſion Court, ibid. His Letter to the Biſhop of London againſt Dr. Sharpe, 455. Receives a Nuncio from Rome, and ſends an Ambaſſador thither, 483, 494. Neglected at Rome before and after he was King, 484, 485. Reſolves to repeal the Penal Laws and Teſt, and to diſpence with taking any Oaths, 486. His Speech to the Council after Liberty of Conſcience, 487. His Declaration, ibid. Cloſets Gentlemen to get their Conſent for the Repeal of the Teſt, 491. Endeavours to get the Prince and Princeſs of Orange to conſent to it, ibid. Revives Martial Laws, 493. Is adviſ'd to Reign by his Judges and Standing Army, without a Parliament, 495. His Progreſs, ibid. He declares his Reſolution to have the Teſt and Penal Laws repeal'd, ibid. His Arts to influence Elections of Parliament-Men, ibid. He declares his Queen is with Child, 496. Not believ'd, 497. The People begin to look towards the Prince and Princeſs of Orange, and the Princeſs of Denmark, and he is Afraid of of them, ibid. He ſends for the Six Engliſh Regiments from Holland, ibid. He is in the French Intereſt, 498. Will not ſuffer the French King's Uſage of his Proteſtant Subjects to be complain'd of, ibid. Yet is Generous to them, 499. Ireland almoſt Ruin'd by his Governors, ibid. His Arbitrary Proceedings with the Vice-Chancellor of Cambridge, 502. And Magdalen College, 503, 504. Goes in Perſon to Oxford about it, ibid. His rough Speech to the Fellows of Magdalen College, ib. Turns them out Arbitrarily, 508. Puts out a New Declaration for Liberty of Conſcience, ibid. Seven Biſhops petition againſt Reading his Declaration of Liberty of Conſcience, 511. He uſes 'em roughly, and impriſons 'em, 512. Turns out the Judges that were for Clearing 'em, 515. Turns out his Proteſtant Officers, and puts in Papiſts, 516. Neglects the Information he receiv'd of the P. of Orange's intended Invaſion, 517. Diſowns the French Ambaſſador's Memorial to the States of Holland in his Favour, 518. Believes the Invaſion, and endeavours to ſoften Matters, 519. He gives Notice of the Invaſion, and that he had refus'd Foreign Help, ibid. Pretended Offers of Service to him, 520. Invites the Biſhops to Aſſiſt him with their Council, ibid. Promiſes to do as they would have him, 522. Reſtores Charters, Magdalen College, &c. ibid. Repents of it, ibid. Is Impolitick, ibid. Examines the Biſhops about their Inviting the Prince, 526. Receives an unſatisfactory Anſwer, ibid. Depends on his Strength, and acts accordingly when the Prince Landed, 527. He is in a great Conſternation on the Lord Cornbury's deſerting him, 528. Several Lords petition the King to call a Free Parliament, 529. His Anſwer not lik'd, ibid. His Speech to his Officers when he was going to Saliſbury, ibid. Leaves the Adminiſtration with Perſons, moſt of whom were very Exceptionable, ibid. Left by the Duke of Grafton, the Lord Churchill and others, ibid. By the Prince of Denmark, 530. He leaves Saliſbury with Precipitation, ibid. Calls a Parliament, 531. Advice given him by ſeveral Lords Spiritual and Temporal, ibid. Appoints ſeveral Lords to Treat with the P. of Orange, ibid. Skirmiſhes Between his and the Prince's Forces, 532. His Deſpair, ibid. His Letter to the Lord Feverſham, to disband his Army, ibid. He retires, and the Lords Spiritual and Temporal declare for the Prince, 533. Seiz'd, Affronted, and Robb'd at Feverſham, 535. Returns to Whitehall, and invites the Prince to London, 536. Deſir'd by the Prince to remove to Ham in Surrey, ibid. His Laſt Order in Council, and Act of Government in England, ibid. His Conference with the Lords ſent by the Prince to deſire him to leave

leave St. James's, 537. He returns to Rocheſter, ibid. Reſolves to go to France, 538. Leaves a Paper containing his Reaſons for it, ibid. His Letter from St. Germains to the Privy-Council, 543. Another to the Parliament, which they refuſe to open, ibid. Voted to have broken the Original Contract, 544. The Parliament's Declaration of the Reaſons why he Vacated the Throne, 547. He lands in Ireland, 552. Scots Biſhops Letter to him againſt the Prince of Orange, 554. His firſt Declaration publiſh'd in England, 568. Calls a Parliament in Ireland, 576. Marches againſt London-Derry, and is warmly receiv'd by the Garriſon, 577. His Speech to the Parliament he held at Dublin, ibid. Repeals the Act of Settlement, 578. And gives his Aſſent to the black Act of Attainder, ibid. Goes to meet King William on his Landing in Ireland to give him Battle, 598. He loſes the Battle of the Boyne and flies to Dublin, 601. His Speech to the Citizens of Dublin before he left that City to go to France, ibid. He returns to France, ibid. His Letter to Sheldon, his Lieutenant General, when he Landed in France from Ireland, from whence he was driven by General Ginkle, 622. Writes to ſeveral Engliſh Lords and Gentlemen to come to St. Germains and ſee his Queen deliver'd of a Daughter, 638. He prepares to Invade England, ibid. Publiſhes his Declaration, ibid. The Names of Perſons he excepted in his Pardon, 639. His Letter to the French King, on his Fleet's being beaten by Admiral Ruſſell, 642. The French will not truſt him with the Knowledge of their Deſigns upon England, 703. He has an Army provided to Invade England, ibid. Grants a Commiſſion to Sir George Barclay and others to Attack and Sieze the Prince of Orange in his Winter-Quarters, ibid. Comes Poſt to Calais to be in a readineſs to Invade England, 705. Is abandon'd by the French King, 728. Makes a vain Attempt to have ſome Relief by the Treaty at Reſwyck, ibid. His Retirement and Deſpair, 753. How he behav'd himſelf while the Lord Portland was Ambaſſador in France, ibid. His Death after a Second 12 Years Exile, 828, 829.

James, Dr. Thomas, a Noble Deſign of his, 6. N.

Jane, Dr. oppoſes the Accommodation with Diſſenters, 590, 591. Choſen Prolocutor of King William's firſt Convocation, ibid.

Jefferies, Sir George, Addreſs'd againſt by Parliament, 377. Made a Judge by King Charles II. 380. Is rude to Coll. Sidney at his Tryal, 404. Made Lord Chief Juſtice, 407. His Triumph over Charters, 415. His Bloody Aſſizes, 433. His horrid Cruelty, and brutal Avarice, ibid. Made Lord Chancellor, 434, 440. His Inſolence at Baxter's Tryal, 443, 444. One of the High Commiſſion Court, 452. His rude impertinent Diſcourſe to Dr. Fairfax of Magdalen-College, 504. And to the 7 Biſhops, 511. Taken at Wapping in a Seamen's Diſguiſe, 535. In danger of being torn to pieces by the Mob, ibid. Dies miſerably in the Tower, ibid. A Bill to take away his Eſtate and Honour brought into the Houſe of Commons, 582. Excepted out of King William's Act of Indemnity, 597.

Jenkins, Sir Leoline, made Plenipotentiary for the Treaty of Nimeguen, 336. Secretary of State, 380. Speaks againſt the Excluſion-Bill, 386. Offends the Houſe of Commons, and begs Pardon, 387. Reſigns his Place, 415.

Jenkins, Mr. a Diſſenting Miniſter, dies in Newgate, 422.

Jenner, Sir Thomas, his Pun when he viſited Magdalen-College, 506. Excepted out of King William's Act of Indemnity, 597.

Jephſon, Col. William, firſt moves in Parliament to make Cromwell King, 217.

Jermyn, Lord, earneſt with Charles II. to go to the Hugonots Church at Charenton, when he was in France, 205.

Jerſey, Edward Lord Viſcount Villiers, made Earl of, 740. And Ambaſſador in Holland, ibid. Ambaſſador in France, 755. Secretary of State, 768. One of the Lords Juſtices of England, 769. King William's Plenipotentiary for the Second Treaty of Partition, 783. Made Lord Chamberlain, 784. Again one of the Lords Juſtices, 825.

Jeſuits taken and impriſon'd, 56. A Conſultation between the Engliſh and French, about the Papiſts Behaviour in the Troubles of England, 194. An Addreſs againſt them by K. Charles II. ſecond Parliament, 263. A Declaration and Proclamation againſt them by another, 264. Baniſh'd by another Proclamation, 284, 307. Their Treaſonable Practices complain'd of by Charles II. 352. One hang'd for Treaſon, 357. Several hang'd, 368. How they flatter'd the Earl of Caſtlemain, King James IId's Ambaſſador, at Rome, 484. Their Reports of Queen Mary's Conception, 496.

Jews encourag'd by Cromwell, 215.

Inchiquin, Earl of, forc'd by Cromwell to deſert his Army, 192.

Indemnity Act, who were Voted to be left out of it by King William's Firſt Parliament, 586 Act paſſes, 597. The Names of thoſe excepted out of it, ibid.

Independant Party in Parliament ſet up againſt the Presbyterian, 164. The Army ſo, 194. Too hard for the Presbyterians, ibid. They are the prevailing Party, 230. They hold an Aſſembly, and publiſh their Faith and Diſcipline, ibid. Richard Cromwell not favourable to them, ibid. Their Cauſe goes down, 237. They are more oppoſite to Kingly Government than the Presbyterians, ibid.

Independants, their Addreſs of Thanks to King James for Liberty of Conſcience, 489.

Ingoldsby, Colonel. Suppreſſes General Lambert's Inſurrection againſt Monk, and takes him Priſoner, 238

Johnſon, Mr. Samuel, a Miniſter, Fin'd for writing Julian the Apoſtate 405. His Addreſs to the Army, and the cruel Sentence paſt upon him for it, 450. The Omiſſion in in his Degradation, ibid. N.

Jones, Colonel, his Service at Routon-Heath on the Parliament ſide, 159. Routs the Marquis of Ormond, 1 2.

Jones Sir William, reſigns his Attorney-General's Place, 367 His Speech upon the Loſs of the Diſſenters Bill, 386. Writes a Vindication of the Weſtminſter and Oxford Parliaments, 389.

Joyce, Cornet, his Impudence towards the King when he took him from Holmby, 167.

Ireland, Papiſts very inſolent there, 37, 53. Too much conniv'd at there, 68. State of that Kingdom, 70, 77. Affairs there, 101. The Rebellion there, 120. The Rebels pretend a Commiſſion from the Court, 121. Affairs there, 143, 152, 192, 203, 208. Sends Members to the Engliſh Parliament, 210. Affairs there after the Reſtoration, 250. A Mutiny at Carrick-Fergus, 285. Affairs there, 296, 304, 316. Papiſts encourag'd there, 373. Lord Clarendon made Lord Lieutenant, 440. Duke of Ormond remov'd, and why, 446. The Papiſts grow bold, ibid. Proteſtants diſarm'd, 447. Tyrconnel made Deputy, ibid. The State of it under his Arbitrary Government, 499. Affairs there after the Revolution, 556. The Parliament complains of Miſmanagement of Affairs there, 567, 570. The ſtate of it under King James and Tyrconnel, 575, 576, 577, 578. The War there continu'd to, 611. The Civil Government ſettled by King William, ibid. Ballymore and Athlone taken, 618, 619. The Iriſh beaten at Aghrim, 620, 621. Other Affairs there, 632, 685, 694, 720. The Parliament there ſign the Aſſociation, ibid. Molyneux's Book for the Independency of that Kingdom, anſwer'd, 751. Another Parliament there, 764. Grants of Forfeited Eſtates there reſum'd, 771, 772.

Ireland, William, a Jeſuit, hang'd for the Popiſh Plot, 357.

Ireton, General, his Death, 192. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, 203.

Iriſh Evidence, how manag'd at the Lord Shaftsbury's Trial, 390.

Judges, their Opinion about Ship-Money, 85. Cenſur'd for it, and for their Reſolutions in the Caſe of Burton and Baſtwick, ibid. The ſame Judges Opinion of Eccleſiaſtical Courts, 92. Of the Diſſolution of the Convocation, 110. They are Impeach'd by Parliament, 119.

Judges, the King's, a Liſt of them who conſented to his Murder, 185. Several of them Try'd and Executed, 242. More taken in Holland, brought over and Executed, 256.

Judges made by the Rump, 192.

Judges, Charles II. their Anſwer to the Juſtices of Peace Queries about executing Penal Laws againſt Papiſts, 358. Voted Unjuſt, 377. Their Account of Papiſts in their Circuits, 381. Pick'd to take away Charters, 356. Several turn'd out by King James, for being againſt his Diſpenſing Power, 449. Others made that were more complying, ibid. Popiſh ones made, ibid. Who for, and who againſt the Biſhops, 514, 515. King James's Queſtioned by the Houſe of Lords for their unwarrantable Proceedings, 565. Several made in Ireland, 612.

Jure Divino, pretended to be by the Presbyterians, 156, 164.

Juries, Reſolutions of Parliament againſt diſcharging them by the Judges, 377.

Juſtice, the pretended High Court of, to Try the King, and their Acts, 181, to 185. Another to Try the Lords Hamilton, Holland, &c. 190. Another ſet up by Oliver to Try Sir Henry Slingsby, &c. 224.

Juſtices of Peace, their Queries about Laws againſt Papiſts, 358. Anſwer'd by the Judges, ibid. Ill ones made by King James, 487.

Juſtices, Lords, of England, made by King William, 687.

Juxon, Dr. Dean of Worceſter, made Clerk of the Cloſet, by Biſhop Laud's Recommendation, 71. Made Biſhop of London, and Lord High Treaſurer, 82. His Attendance on King Charles I. at his Death, 186, 187. Made Biſhop of Canterbury, 247. His Death, 267.

K.

Katharine, Princeſs of Portugal, Marry'd by Proxy to Charles II. at Liſbon, 254. Refuſes to be Marry'd by a Proteſtant Miniſter, ibid. Arrives at Whitehall, 255.

Keeling makes a long and confus'd Diſcovery of the Fanatick Plot, 399.

Kenn, Dr. Thomas, made Biſhop of Bath and Wells, 422. Not allow'd to attend King Charles at his Death, ibid. One of the Biſhops that petitioned King James and were impriſon'd, 511. Refuſes to take the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary; and is Suſpended, 590.

Kent, Ruthen, Earl of, made one of the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal by Parliament, 142.

Kentiſh Petitioners Committed to Priſon, 808.

Keppel, Mr. his Riſe, 754. Supplants the Lord Portland in King William's Favour, ibid. Made Earl of Albemarle, ibid. Vide Earl of Albemarle.

Kettlewell, Mr. his Opinion of Lay-Deprivations, 634. N.

Keys, one of the Aſſaſſination Plotters hang'd, 711.

Kid, Captain, the Pirate, ſeiz'd in New England, 774. Hang'd at Execution-Dock, 825.

Killegrew, Thomas, his Saying to King Charles about the Popiſh Plot, 356.

Killegrew, Henry, Eſq; made Admiral by King William, 653.

Killigrew, Sir Peter, was the firſt who acquainted King Charles of his intended Tryal, 177. N.

Kimbolton, Lord, one of the 5 Members of Parliament demanded by King Charles I. 122.

King, one of the Aſſaſſination Plotters, hang'd, 711.

Kirk of Scotland, how contemptible, 209.

Kirk, Colonel, his monſtrous Cruelty in the Weſt, 434. Sent to relieve London-Derry, but cannot enter the Place, 579.

Knighthood impos'd upon all Perſons of 40 Pound a Year, 13, 62.

Knightly, Mr. an Aſſaſſination Plotter, pardon'd, 713.

L.

Lairmont, a Taylor, raiſes a Rebellion againſt Charles II. in Scotland, 285. Routed by Duke Hamilton, ibid.

Lamb, Dr. kill'd by the Mob, 48. His bad Character, ibid.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

Lambert, Major-General, order'd to March towards Scotland, when the Scots began to Murmur, 169. Offended with Cromwell at the Loſs of the Government of Ireland, 203. Preſents the Petition of the Army to the Rump, when reſtor'd, 231. His Speech to them on that Occaſion, ibid. Routs Sir George Booth, 232. Grows proud upon it, and turns the Rump out of their Houſe again, ibid. General Monk writes angrily to him upon it, 233. Sent againſt Monk, 234. Runs away from Monk's Army, ibid. Order'd by the Rump to Disband his Forces upon their ſecond Reſtoration, ibid Riſes againſt Monk, is ſuppreſt and taken, 238. Excepted out of King Charles II. Act for a general Pardon, 241. He is Try'd, Condemn'd and Repriev'd, 256. Baniſh'd to Guernſey, and lives 30 Years a Priſoner, 257. Tempted by the French King to betray the Iſland to him, 281.

Lancaſhire Plotters againſt King William condemn'd by Parliament, 668, 669.

Landen, Battle of, 654. 655.

Langdale, Sir Marmaduke, Commands the Left Wing of the King's Army at Naſeby, 157. His Defeat by Cromwell occaſions the Loſs of the Battle, ibid. He endeavours in vain to join the Lord Montroſs, and flies to Ireland, 159.

Langhorn, Richard, a Lawyer, hang'd for the Popiſh Plot, 368.

Langport, Battle of, 158.

Lanier, Sir John, has Edinburgh Caſtle ſurrender'd to him by the Duke of Gordon, 575. Kill'd at Stenkirk, 644.

Lanſdown, Battle of, 138.

Laud, Dr. Biſhop of St. David's, order'd to ſupply the Biſhop of Lincoln's Place at the Coronation of Charles I. 14. What Prayer he uſed at the Coronation of Charles I. 15. N. He is a hearty Friend of Mr. Mountague, proſecuted by the Houſe of Commons, 32. Lies under the Odium of Arminianiſm, and being Popiſhly Affected, 35. Made Biſhop of Bath and Wells, ibid. The Inſtruction he drew up for the King to give the Archbiſhops how to behave themſelves about the Loan, 35, 36. Made Dean of the Chapel, 37. Reforms Abuſes, ibid. Made Biſhop of London, 48. Libels againſt him, and why, 52. Accus'd of Arminianiſm by the Parliament, 56. Is heartily for diſſolving Charles Iſt's Third Parliament, 58. Preſents Conſiderations for Settling Church Diſcipline to the King, 59. Makes Inſtructions to the Archbiſhops, and is Zealous to have 'em Executed, 60. His Great Deſigns, 65. His Character, 66. His Action give Offence, ibid. Is the occaſion of puniſhing Mr. Prynne for his Hiſtrio-Matrix, 67. Brought under greater Odiums by recommending Sir Francis Windebank to be Secretary, ibid. He is made Archbiſhop of Canterbury 69. A Continuation of his Character, 70. Diſguſts the Scots by a Sermon he preach'd at Edinburgh, when Biſhop of London, ibid. How he promoted the Book of Sports, 71. For Scots Uniformity in Religion, 72. His Proceedings with the French and Dutch Churches, 78. And Factories, ibid. His Accont of the Viſitation of the Dioceſes in his Province, with the King's Notes upon it, 79, 80. Further Rigorous Proceedings of his, 82. Another Account of the Viſitation of the Dioceſes in his Province, 83, 84. Offends the Scots more, 82. He demands the Viſitation of the Univerſities, and has it, 87. Another Acount of the Viſitation of the Dioceſes of his Province, with the King's Notes upon it, 87, 88, 89. His Juſtification of himſelf, as to Innovations, 92, 93. An utter Enemy to Popery, 93. Another Account of the Viſitation of the Dioceſes in his Province, 94. His Wiſdom, 97. Another Account of the Viſitation of the Dioceſes in his Province, 98. His Zeal for Epiſcopacy, 101. His State of his Church, 102. One of the firſt Movers to the calling a Parliament, ibid. Fall'n upon in the Houſe of Commons, 107. Voted a Traytor, ibid. His Defence of the Book of Canons, 113. The Fury of the Mob againſt him, 114. A Charge of High Treaſon brought againſt him, 115. His Speech in his Defence, ibid. Sent to the Tower, ibid. Reſigns his Chancellorſhip of Oxford, and is Sequeſtred from Archiepiſcopal Juriſdiction, 125. His Sufferings, 133, 145. His Speech to the Lords, ibid. His Tryal, Condemnation, Laſt Speech, and Execution, 153, 154, 155.

Lauderdale, Lord, Impriſon'd By Cromwell, Releas'd at the Interceſſion of the King of Sweden, 215. His Speech to the Parliament in Scotland when he was made Duke, and Lord High Commiſſioner there, 298. One of the Cabal that adviſ'd the Shutting up of the Exchequer, 309. Gets the King's Diſpenſing Power paſs'd into a Law in Scotland, 319. Petition'd againſt by Parliament, 364. His Death and Character, 396.

Lauzun, Count de, his Advice to King James at the Battle of the Boyne, 600. The Duke of Ormond's Houſe at Kilkenny preſerv'd by him, 604. Returns to France, 611.

Law Martial Executed in Time of Peace, 4. Voted a Grievance, 44.

Laws Penal againſt Papiſts diſpens'd with, 28.

Laws of England, a Project for Altering them, 197.

Laws made in Charles I. Firſt Parliament, 11. In his Third Parliament, 47. In his Fifth, 109, 119.

Laws made in the Reign of Charles II. 242, 255, 270, 280, 285, 294, 302, 305, 306, 322, 335, 342, 347, 348, 365. In the Reign of James II. 427, 430. In the Reign of K. William III. 551, 553, 560, 561, 565, 566, 567, 569, 583, 585, 586, 596, 609, 623, 624, 632, 650, 651, 652, 659, 660, 663, 666, 680, 636, 701, 705, 707, 710, 711, 723, 729, 731, 732, 741, 744, 747, 750, 751, 752, 759, 761, 767, 768, 773, 782, 797, 815, 824, 836.

Lawſon, Admiral, declares againſt the Government of the Committee of Safety, 234. For General Monk, 238. Deſerted by De Ruyter in the Streights, 273. Dies of the Wound he receiv'd at Sole-Bay Fight, 276.

League between the French and Dutch againſt Spain, 81.

Leeds, Thomas Osborn, Marquis of Carmarthen, made Duke of, by King William, 663. Upon what Occaſion he was Impeach'd by the Commons, 683, 684, 685. His Speech in the Houſe of Lords, and Houſe of Commons to defend himſelf, 683, 684. Another in the Lords Houſe, ibid. Upon his being Impeach'd, 685. Other Speeches of his about it. ibid His ſingle Vote flings out the Bill againſt Mr. Duncomb, 743. The Impeachment againſt him diſmiſs'd by the Lords, 823.

Legat, Mr. the Meſſenger, his Account of Robert Ferguſon's Treachery from the beginning, 400.

Leiceſter Taken by the King, 157. Retaken by General Fairfax, ibid.

Leighton, Dr. his Caſe and Sufferings, 65.

Leighton, Sir Ellis, his Corruption and Treachery, 338.

Leimſter, Duke of. Embarks with a Body of Troops aboard the Fleet, 642. Lands them again, ibid.

Lenthall, William, Eſq; Choſen Speaker of Charles Iſt's Fifth Parliament, call'd the Long Parliament, 105. His Character, ibid. Runs away from the Parliament, 168. Brought back again by the Army, 169. His ſingle Voice ſaves the Lord Goreing, and condemns the Earl of Holland, 191. Thruſt out of the Chair by Colonel Harriſon, 207 Choſen Speaker of Cromwell's Firſt Parliament, 210. Lord Clarendon's Reaſons for it, 211. His Anſwer to the Army's Petition, when the Rump was reſtor'd, 231. Inſulted by Col. Duckenfeild, 232. Fleetwood writes to him to return to his Chair again, 234. His Death and Repentance, 259.

Leſley, General, his Policy, 99. Created Earl of Leven, 120. Marches into England to aſſiſt the Parliament, 149. Joins the Engliſh Army, Beſieges York, and Beats the King's Forces at Marſton-Moor, 149, 150. Takes Newcaſtle by Storm, ibid. He Beſieges Newark, 159. His Letter to the Parliament upon the King's coming to his Camp, 162. He carries him to Newcaſtle, ibid. Surpriz'd by Monk, 200.

L'Eſtrange, Sir Roger, Knighted by King James, 439. Picks Matter out of Mr. Baxter's Paraphraſe on the New Teſtament for his Tryal, 446. Excepted out of King William's Act of Indemnity, 597.

Letters, Charles I, for a Loan, 11. To the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons about Grievances, 17. His Second to the Speaker, in favour of the Duke of Bucks, 18. Another of his to the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons 26 Of Three Biſhops to the Duke of Bucks, in favour of Mr. Richard Mountague the Divine, complain'd of by Parliament, 31. Of the Papiſts to their Rector at Bruſſels, 54. Archbiſhop Laud's to the Archbiſhop of St. Andrew's, 82. The Lord Strafford's Letter to the King, and the King's to the Parliament, 117. The Aſſembly of Divines to Foreign Churches, 146. Charles I. to the Lord Colepeper, and another to Prince Charles againſt Popery and Presbytery, 161. General Leſley's Hypocritical one to the Parliament upon the King's coming to the Scots Camp, 162. The King's to the City of London, ibid. From the Kirk of Scotland to the Parliament, Lord-Mayor, and Aſſembly of Divines, in favour of Presbytery, 165. King Charles I. to the Parliament, from the Iſle of Wight, 170 Another, 175. Others, 176 To the Prince about the Iſle of Wight Treaty, 180. Cromwell's to the Rump, to be Recall'd from Ireland, 194. One of Charles IId's to the City, Burnt by the Hands of the Common Hangman, 199. Cromwell's to the Rump, on his Victory at Worceſter, ibid Mazarine's to Cromwell, 225. King Charles II. to General Monk, the Houſe of Lords and Houſe of Commons, 239, 240. To the Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, to paſs the Indemnity-Act, 249. Dr. Heylin's on King Charles II. not Calling a Convocation with his Second Parliament, 251. Earl of Marlborough to Sir Hugh Pollard, a little before he was kill'd at Sole-Bay Fight, 276. K. Charles to the Parliament in Scotland, 298. The Scots Parliament's Anſwer, 300. King Charles I. to the Duke of York, commanding him not to turn Papiſt, 320. Archbiſhop Sheldon's againſt private Schools, 322. Coleman's to the French King's Confeſſor, 327, 328. Charles II. to his Brother the Duke of York, to be gone, 356. King James II. to the Parliament of Scotland, to Repeal the Teſt and Penal Laws againſt Papiſts, 445. Mr. Fagell's to Mr. Stewart and the Marquiſs of Abbeville, about the Teſt and Penal Laws, 492, 493. The Iriſh Papiſts to King James in favour of Tyrconnel, 499. Pen's to Dr. Baily, one of the Fellows of Magdalen, to perſuade them to ſubmit to King James's Mandate, 505. The Fellows Anſwer, ibid. The Prince of Orange's to the Engliſh Army, 525. Lord Churchill's to King James, when he went to the Prince of Orange, 530. The Prince of Denmark's to him on the ſame Occaſion, ibid. The Princeſs Anne's to King James's Queen, when her Royal Highneſs left London, and went Northward, 531. K. James's to the Lord Feverſham, to Disband his Army, 532. The Lord Feverſham to the Prince upon it, 534. King James from St. Germain's to the Privy-Council and Parliament, 543. King William's to the Scots Convention, 572. King James to his General Sheldon, who was driv'n out of Ireland, 622. Admiral Ruſſel's, and Sir Ralph Delavall's on the Victory over the French Fleet, 641. King James to the French King on that Occaſion, 642. Her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Anne to King William, on the Death of Queen Mary her Siſter, 668. King William's to Prince Vaudemont, on his admirable Retreat, 688. The Mareſchal de Villeroy's to the Governor of Bruſſels before he Bombarded it, and the Governor's Anſwer, 690. King William's to the Elector of Brandenburgh, on the Taking of Namur, 692. And to the Parliament of Scotland, 695. Q. Mary's to the Juſtices for Reformation of Manners, 635. Archbiſhop Tenniſon's Circular Letter to the Biſhops, for the Peace and Honour of the Church, 708, 709. Sir John Fenwick's to his Wife, after he was Taken, 725. King William's to the Lord Somers about the Partition-Treaty, 756. Another of K. William's to the Scots Parliament, 762. Archbiſhop Tenniſon's to the Biſhops for promoting Peace and Piety, 777. Another of King William's to his Scots Parliament, 787. Another, 784. The Earl of Melfort's to the Earl of Perth, 794, 795. King William's to the Elector of Brandenburgh, on his taking on him the Title of King of Pruſſia, 799. To the Duke of Anjou, owning him to be King of Spain, 804.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

To the Lord Somers about the Partition Treaty, 803. The Lord Somers's to the King in Anſwer. ibid. 806. The Lord Mancheſter, King William's Ambaſſador to the French King, his Letter to Monſieur de Torcy, Secretary of State in France, on his being recall'd, 829. Monſieur de Torcy's Letter to the Lord Mancheſter, ibid. Queen Anne's to the States, to Condole the Death of King William, 839.

Lewis Sir William, one of the 11 Members Impeach'd by the Army, 168.

Levellers for King Charles II. 193.

Leving, Sir Richard, ſent to the Tower by Parliament, and why, 772.

Lewis XIII. the French King, aſſiſted by Charles I. againſt the Rochellers, 6. Seizes the Engliſh Ships in France, 29.

Lewis XIV. not allow'd to be King of France by Cromwell, 225. Writes his Name after the Protector's, ibid. Pretends to aſſiſt the Dutch, but does it faintly, 279. Declares War with Charles II. ibid. Betrays the Dutch, 281. His Invaſion of Flanders, and Succeſſes, 293. Comes to Dunkirk to meet the Dutcheſs of Orleans at her Return from England, 302. Enters into an Alliance againſt the Dutch, 304. A cloſe One with King Charles, ibid. His Intrigues with King Charles's Miniſters, 309. Declares War with Holland, 313. He over-runs Holland, 315. His Imperiouſneſs upon it, ibid. Further Succeſſes in Flanders, 344, 346. Perſecutes his Proteſtant Subjects, 498. Offers King James 30000 Men, 518. King William's Declaration of War with him, upon the Parliament's Addreſs for it, 562. The Grand Alliance form'd by King William againſt him at the Congreſs of the Hague, 612. The Terms the Princes reſolv'd to bring him to, 613. Mons deliver'd to him by the Burghers, ibid. Takes Namur in Perſon, 643. His Diſdainful Saying of Admiral Ruſſel's Victory over Tourville, ibid. His Deſigns upon Brabant broken by K. William, 654. Weary of the War, tho' Fortunate, 657. Why diſpos'd to a Peace, 714. He ſends his Miniſter to propoſe it firſt, ibid. Makes Peace with Sword in Hand, 736. Endeavours to ſet the Prince of Conti on the Throne of Poland, ibid. Makes the Partition-Treaty, and at the ſame time Intrigues with Spain againſt it, 756. Prepares for War, 757. His Force and Fraud, 792. His Intrigues to ſecure the Spaniſh Monarchy for his Grandſon the Duke of Anjou, 805. His Letter to the States, when he Recall'd his Ambaſſador, 826. Abhorr'd by the Engliſh for Owning the pretended Prince of Wales, 829. He owns him as King of England, Scotland, and Ireland, ibid. The Grand Alliance concluded againſt him by King William and his Confederates, 829.

Libels publiſh'd againſt Archbiſhop Laud, and others, 52. Another reflecting on the Government, 62. Againſt Oliver and his Government, 212, 214, 222. Proclamation againſt them by Queen Mary, 646.

Liberty and Property, Reſolutions of the Commons about them, 46, 47. Conference with the Lords on the ſame Subject, ibid

Liberty of Conſcience, put forth in a Declaration by Cromwell, 209. By King James II. in Scotland firſt, 445. How receiv'd there, 486. King's Declaration for it in England, ibid. 487. A New Declaration for it, 508. What mov'd him to grant it, 312. N. Who of Clergy ſign'd an Inſtrument againſt it, 510. N. Why read in Weſtminſter-Abbey, 515.

Lilburn, Col. defeats the Earl of Derby, who was to join Charles II. 199.

Limerick, beſieg'd by King William, 605. Beſieg'd by General Ginkle, 621. Takes the Town, ibid.

Lincoln, John Williams, Lord Biſhop of, preaches King James Iſt's Funeral Sermon, 3. Reprov'd by the Duke of Buck, and his Anſwer, 14. He is in Diſgrace, ibid. Is forbidden to attend the King's Coronation, ibid. Has no Writ of Summons to Parliament, 15. Proceedings upon it, ibid. Proſecuted in the Star-Chamber, for ſpeaking againſt the Loan, 29. Is popular, and hardly us'd by the Court, 40. Suſpended, Fin'd, and Impriſon'd, 91. Adviſes the Biſhops, when they were outed by Parliament, to proteſt, and draw up their Proteſtation, 124. Made Archbiſhop of York, ibid. See York, Archbiſhop of.

Lincoln, Biſhop of, his poor Endeavours to get his Clergy Addreſs to King James, 556.

Lincolns-Inn, Benchers, reprimanded by the Privy Council, for oppoſing the Loan, 29.

Lindſey, Earl of, Sails to the Relief of Rochell, but cannot do any thing to purpoſe 49. Sent with a Squadron of Ships to ſcour the Seas, 81. General of the King's Forces at Edge-Hill, 127. Is kill'd there, 128. His Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Liſle, Sir George, Shot to death at Colcheſter by Order of the Parliament, 176. Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Liſle, Mr. made Commiſſioner of the Great Seal by Parliament, 192.

Liſle, Mrs Alicia, his Wife, beheaded, 433. Her Attainder revers'd, 566.

Liſt of Churchmen, Diſſenters, and Romans deliver'd to James II. 509. Of King James's Court at St. James's, 601. N.

Litchfield, Taken by the Lord Brook by Storm from the King's Forces, 129.

Litchfield, Bertue Stuart Earl of, kill'd at Routon in the King's Army, 159.

Litchfield, Edward Henry Lee Earl of, His Regiment refuſe to conſent to the Taking off the Penal Laws and Teſt, 516. King James's Saying to them, ibid.

Littleton, Sir Edward, made Lord Keeper in the room of Sir John Finch, who fled beyond Sea, 107. Retires with the Great Seal to the King at York, 126.

Littleton, Sir Thomas, choſen Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, 758.

Liturgy, a Vote to review it, paſs'd in the Negative, 588. Commiſſioners appointed by King William for that purpoſe, 590.

Lloyd, William, a Popiſh Prieſt, hang'd at Cardiffe, 369.

Loan, Money rais'd by it by Charles I. 12. An ill Project, ibid. Requir'd again, 28. A new Declaration for it, and Inſtructions to the Commiſſioners that were to raiſe it, 29. The Methods taken to levy it, render it the more odious, ibid. Promoted by the Papiſts, 30. The Court Biſhops and ſome of the Clergy too buſy in it, ibid. A large voluntary one to Charles I. 104.

Loftus, Lord, Lord Chancellor of Ireland, his Quarrel with the Earl of Strafford, 101.

London, Lord Mayor and Aldermen fin'd 6000 l for the Mob's killing Dr. Lamb, 48, 67. City of, Petition againſt Ship-Money, 75. Will not yield to it, 84. Their dutiful Reception of King Charles at his Return from Scotland, 121, 122. They Petition the King to return to the Parliament, 129. They join with the Parliament, ibid. With the Army and Rump, 192. Againſt the Aboliſhing Tithes, 209. They are for Oliver, 212, 222. They offend the Rump, and are chaſtiz'd by Monk, 235. They join with Monk to reſtore the ſecluded Members, ibid. Lend King Charles II. Money, and are thank'd for it by Parliament, 271. Plague in the City, 277. The Great Fire, 283. Diſturbances at the Election of Sheriffs there, 395. The Charter taken away, ibid. Citizens Condemn'd for a Riot, 398. The Lord-Mayor gives up their Charter by Conſent of the Common Council, 399. The Charter reſtor'd by King James in a Fright, 522. Lend the Prince of Orange 200000 l. 540. Their good Addreſs to him when King, 568. Their Loyal and Brave Addreſs to Queen Mary after the Miſcarriage at Sea under the Earl of Torrington, 603. Their Loyal Addreſs to King William, on the French King's owning the pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, 829. Their Inſtructions to the Members they choſe for King William's Laſt Parliament, 830.

London, Dr. Henry Compton Biſhop of, His Prudence in Charles II's Reign, 382. Writes to Foreign Proteſtant Divines about the Church of England, ibid. King James's Letter to him againſt Dr. Sharp, 455. His Anſwer to the Secretary, 480. Cited to appear before the High Commiſſion-Court, ibid. His Tryal and Suſpenſion, 480, 481, 482, 483. Ill us'd by the Commiſſioners, ibid. Conveys the Princeſs Anne to Nottingham, 531. Zealous for the Revolution, 557. His Speech to King William at the Head of his Clergy, 557. Choſen by King William to Crown him and his Queen, 560. Ill treated by the Convocation, 591.

Londonderry, like to be betray'd to King James by Lundee the Governor, 576. The Inhabitants chuſe Mr. Walker, a Miniſter, to be their Governor, 577. The ill Condition of the City for Defence, ibid. The great Streights to which the Garriſon was reduc'd, 579. Their undaunted Reſolution, ibid. Reliev'd when they were at the laſt Extremity, ibid. The Siege rais'd, ibid.

Lonſdale, John Lowther Lord Viſcount, made Lord Privy Seal, and one of the Lords Juſtices of England, 769. Again, 784.

Long, Walter, Eſq; proſecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Parliament-Man, 52. Glories in his Sufferings, ibid. One of the 11 Members impeach'd by the Army, 168.

Long, Sir Lillibone, choſen Speaker of Richard Cromwell's Parliament, 230. Dies ſoon after, ibid

Lord's-Day, Diſputes about the Obſervation of it, 67. Book of Sports upon it publiſh'd, 72. The ill Effects of it, ibid. Burnt by Order of Parliament by the Hands of the Common Hangman, 193. An Act for the Religious obſerving that Day, 347.

Lorge, Duke De, takes Heidelbergh, and oppoſes Prince Lewis of Baden on the Rhine, 656.

Love, Mr. Chriſtopher, preaches a Seditious Sermon at the Treaty of Uxbridge, 152. His Plot againſt the Rump, 201. He is Beheaded, 202. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Lovelace, Lord, taken Priſoner as he was going to the Prince of Orange, 528. Made Captain of the Band of Penſioners by King William, 550.

Lowick, Major, one of the Aſſaſſination Plotters, hang'd, 713.

Lucas, Sir Charles, Lieutenant General to the Earl of Newcaſtle, taken Priſoner at the Battle of Marſton-Moor, 149. Shot to Death at Colcheſter, 176. The King weeps for him, ibid. Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Lucas, Lord, made Governor of the Tower by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal who declar'd for the Prince of Orange, 523.

Ludlow, Colonel, one of King Charles's Judges, comes into England, 582. A Proclamation againſt him when he had made his Eſcape, ibid. He retires unto Swiſſerland, and writes his Memoirs, ibid.

Lundee, Colonel, Governor of Londonderry, Addreſt againſt by the Parliament, 570. His ill Conduct, 576. Flies from Ireland in Diſguiſe, 577. Taken in Scotland, and ſent to London, ibid.

Lunsford, Colonel, made Lieutenant of the Tower, 122. Oppos'd by the Houſe of Commons, ibid. And the Populace, ibid.

Lunt, his Negotiations between King James and the Jacobites, 637.

Lutterell, Governor of Dublin, his ſevere Order againſt the Proteſtants, 501 [illegible].

Luxemburgh, Duke of, loſes Narden while he lay with an Army to relieve it, 3[illegible]. The Prince of Orange again too hard for him, 336. His Bravado at the Siege of Mons, 63[illegible]. Avoids coming to a Battle with King William, 617. Attacks the Rear of the Confederate Army, ibid. Covers the Siege of Namur while the French King took it, 6[illegible]. Repulſes the Confederates at Stenkirk, [illegible]4. Takes Huy, and gains the Battle of Landen, 654, 655.

Luzancy, Mr. forc'd by Father St. Germaine to renounce the Proteſtant Religion to which he had been Converted in England, 337.

M.

M*Accarty*, General, routed and taken Priſoner by Colonel Hamilton Governor of Inniskilling, 579.

Mackay, General, ſent by King William with Forces into Scotland, 573. Made General by the Scots Convention, ibid. Fights Dundee and is forc'd to Retreat, 575. Compleats the Reduction of the Highlands, 618. His Bravery at Athlone, ibid. His Advice and Courage at the Battle of Aghrim, 619, 620. Takes Fort Ireton at Limrick, and gives his Name to it, 621. Kill'd at Stenkirk, 643.

Macklain, Sir John, ſurrenders the Iſle of Mull to King William and Queen Mary, 652.

Mackpher

Mackberſon, Sir Æneas, made Governor of the Leward Iſlands, 516.

Mackworth, Sir Humphrey, Knighted for his Loyal Speech to Charles II. when Treaſurer of the Temple, 397. His Speech to King James II. to thank him for taking the Cuſtoms without ſtaying for an Act of Parliament, 420.

Maclesfield, Earl of, Retires to Holland to the Prince of Orange, 517.

Maclesfield, Lady, her Irregular Life, 743. Divorc'd from the Earl by Act of Parliament, ibid.

Maeſtricht, Siege of, rais'd by the Prince of Orange, 340.

Maffey, Count de, Ambaſſador from Savoy, his Memorial about the Dutcheſs of Savoy's Succeſſion, 797.

Magdalen College, an Account of the Troubles there in King James's Reign, 502 to 508. Reſtor'd by him in a Fright, 522.

Maintenon, Madam de, her Authority in the French Court, 794.

Mancheſter, Earl of, joins the Scots Army, 149. Commands the Left Wing of the Parliament's Army at Marſton-Moor, ibid. Takes ſeveral Caſtles from the King, 150. Very Inſtrumental in gaining the Battle of Newbury, 151. Lays down his Commiſſion, 157. Runs away from the Parliament, when he was Speaker of the Houſe of Lords, 168. Brought back by the Army, 169.

Mancheſter, Earl of, attends King William to Ireland, 598. The King's Ambaſſador in France, his Audience of the French King on the Death of the King of Spain, 791. His Letter to Monſieur de Torcy, on his being Recall'd, when the French King Own'd the pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, &c. 829. Made Secretary of State, 831.

Manning, Mr. a Follower of Charles IId's Court in his Exile, betrays his Councils, 212.

Manton, Dr. Impriſon'd in the Gate-Houſe for Preaching, 306.

Manwaring, Dr. Roger, preaches two Sermons, to ſhew that the King's Will to Impoſe Taxes without Conſent of Parliament, obliges the People on pain of Damnation, 30. He is cenſur'd in Parliament, but preferr'd, ibid. Declaration of the Lords and Commons againſt him, 55. His diſſembling Submiſſion, ibid. Proclamation againſt his Sermons, 56. Made Biſhop of St. David's, 82.

Marchmont, Patrick, Earl of, holds a Parliament in Scotland for King William, 761, 787.

Marlborough taken from the Parliament by the Lord Digby, 129.

Marlborough, James, Earl of, kill'd at Sole-Bay Fight, 276. His Letter to Sir Hugh Pollard juſt before the Battle, ibid.

Marlborough, John Lord Churchill, made Earl of, by King William, 560. Sent General to Reduce Cork, &c. 610. His Diſpute with the Duke of Wirtemberg, 611. His Succeſſes, ibid. King William's Saying of him, ibid. Sent to Flanders by the King, 617. Made Governor to the Duke of Glouceſter, and Privy-Councellor, 755. One of the Lords Juſtices, ibid. And again, 769. And again, 784. Made General of the Foot, and Commander in Chief of the Engliſh Forces in Holland by King William, 825. His Ambaſſador Extraordinary, and Plenipotentiary at the Hague, ibid.

Marriage, a remarkable Caſe concerning it, 345. N.

Marſaglia, Battle of, 656.

Marvel, Mr. his Repreſentation of the Behaviour of the Deprived Biſhops, 662, 678. N.

Marſton-Moor, Battle of, 149.

Martyn, Sir Henry, Judge of the Admiralty, his Complaint againſt the Judges of the King's-Bench, 63.

Marvel, Mr. Andrew, his Book of the Growth of Popery, 348.

Mary de Medicis, Queen-Mother of France, Viſits the Court of England, but is not Welcome to the Engliſh, 97.

Mary, Princeſs of Modena, Wife to James Duke of York, the Parliament againſt his Marrying her, 224. Crown'd, 424. Her furious Councils for Popery, 447. The Pope's Nuncio a Favourite of hers, 494. The Report of her being with Child not much Credited, 496. She makes Preparations for a Prince of Wales, 512. The Truth of her being with Child reaſonably Suſpected, ibid. She pretends to be Deliver'd, ibid. She flies to France in a Diſguiſe, 532. Is ſaid to be Deliver'd of a Daughter, 633.

Mary, Princeſs, Daughter to the Duke of York, Marry'd to the Prince of Orange, 345. Proclaim'd Queen, 549. Made Regent in King William's Abſence 597. Her Wiſe Adminiſtration, 602. Puts out a Proclamation againſt Papiſts and Jacobites, 616. Her Letter to the Middleſex Juſtices about the Reformation of Manners, 635. She encourages that Society, ibid. Her prudent Care againſt King James's Intended Invaſion, 639, 640. Her Vigilance, 665. Falls Sick of the Small-Pox, 666. Archbiſhop Tenniſon's large Account of her Death, ibid. 667. Her magnificent Funeral, 676. Archbiſhop Tenniſon's Character of her in her Funeral-Sermon, 677, 678.

Maſon, Mr. John, his Deluſion about the Coming of Chriſt, 664. N.

Maſque, one made by the Inns of Court, to Entertain the King and Queen, 70.

Maſſey, Major General one of the Eleven Members Impeach'd by the Army, 168. Joins with Charles II. 198.

Maurice, Prince, with the King's Forces fights the Parliament's under Sir William Waller at Lanſtown, 138. Retires to France, 162.

Maynard, Sir John, one of the 11 Members Impeach'd by the Army, 168. Impriſon'd for pleading a Cauſe againſt Cromwell, 214. Made one of the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal by King William, 550.

Mazarine, Cardinal, againſt the Reſtoration of Charles II. 193, 212. Writes a flattering Letter to Cromwell, 225. His final Anſwer to the Marquis of Ormond about Aſſiſting King Charles 236. Uſes that King ill at the Pyrenean Treaty, ibid. His Compliments to Mr. Lockart the Engliſh Ambaſſador there from the Rump, ibid. Adviſes the Spaniards not to Aſſiſt King Charles, 237.

Meath, Biſhop of, ſpeaks in King James's Parliament in Ireland againſt Repealing the Act of Settlement, 578. Intercedes with King James for the Proteſtants in the North, 579.

Melfort, Earl of, his Letter to the Lord Perth about King James's Affairs, 794. Deſpis'd by the Parliament, 796.

Memorial of the Church of England preſented to the Prince of Orange in Holland, 517.

Meſſages from the King to the Parliament, after he was driven from London. One when he Rejected the Militia-Bill, 125. And from the Parliament to the King, ibid. 126, 127, 128. They grow Rare and Sharp, ibid. About a Treaty, 129. The King's to renew a Treaty, 136. Rejected by the Houſe, ibid. 151. The King's to the Parliament after he was in the Scots Camp, 162. The Parliaments Civil Ones to the King, 169.

Methwen, John, Eſq; his Speech in Parliament for Sir John Fenwick's Bill, 726, 727, 728. Made Lord Chancellor of Ireland, 731.

Middleſex Juſtices pray King James to Exerciſe his Diſpenſing Power, 487.

Middleton, Earl, Zealous for the Reſtoration of Epiſcopacy in Scotland, 274. Made a Privy Councellor and Secretary of State in England by Charles II. 415. Out-law'd in Scotland, 696.

Middleton, Major-General, Commander of Charles IId's Forces in Scotland, Defeated by General Monk, 212.

Mildmay, Sir Henry, his Eſtate Confiſcated, and himſelf drawn with a Halter about his Neck from the Tower to Tyburn, and why, 250.

Militia Seiz'd by the Parliament, 123. The King offers to put it into certain Perſons Hands, 159. The ſole Right declar'd to be in the King, 256.

Millevoix, Le Chevalier de, a Domeſtick of the Duke of Bavaria, betrays King William's Councils, 644. Hang'd on a Tree in the Camp, ibid.

Mimms, Sir Chriſtopher, Vice-Admiral of the Blue, ſcours the Channel, 278. The Compliment paid him by General Wrangle, when he lay off the Elbe, 279.

Miremont, Marquis of, an Officer in King James's Army, Declares for the Prince of Orange, 523.

Mobb, or Rabble encourag'd by the Long Parliament, 114. Their Fury againſt Archbiſhop Laud, ibid. They ſide with the Parliament againſt Colonel Lunsford, Lieutenant of the Tower, 122. Their Clamour againſt the Biſhops, ibid.

Mohun, Charles Lord, try'd for the Murder of Mountford the Player, 653. Acquitted by a great Majority, ibid. Try'd for that of Richard Coot, Eſq; 768. Acquitted with Honour, ibid. The Earl of Macclesfield's Legacy to him, 831.

Molineux, William, Eſq; His Book call'd The Caſe of Ireland, &c. cenſur'd by Parliament, 751.

Monarchiſts, Fifth, Their Riſe and Plot againſt Cromwell, 223.

Monarchy Aboliſh'd by the Rump, 190. Thoſe very Men plead for it in the Caſe of Cromwell afterwards, 219.

Monk, Mr. Nicholas, a Miniſter, ſent to engage his Brother General Monk in the King's Intereſt, 233. Perſuades him to march into England, ibid. Sent by the General to animate the Rump againſt the Officers of the Army, ibid.

Monk, General, Commands the Rump's Army in Scotland againſt King Charles II. 199. His Actions there, 200. Admiral in the firſt Dutch Wars, 208. Defeats Major-General Middleton and King Charles IId's Forces, 212. Writes to Fleetwood and Lambert about their turning out the Rump, 233. Addreſſes the Parliament for a Commonwealth, ibid. The Officers in England afraid of him, 234. Eſcapes a Plot to Seize him in Scotland, ibid. Seizes Berwick and models his Army, ibid. His Speech to them to defend the Rump, ibid. What he ſaid of his Deſigns to Mr. Clarges, ibid. The Lord Fairfax ſends to him, ibid. Receives Inſtructions and Promiſes of Aſſiſtance from Ireland and the Fleet, ibid. Thanked by the Rump when reſtor'd again, ibid. Enters England, ibid. Met by the Parliament and City Commiſſioners, ibid. Several Counties addreſs him, ibid. Sir Philip Warwick's Character of him, ibid. Writes to the Rump to order all the Soldiers out of London, to make room for his, 235. Comes to Town, Goes to the Houſe and ſpeaks to the Rump; ibid. Chaſtiſes the City, and ſends to the Rump to riſe, ibid. Is offended that he is not of the Quorum of Perſons nam'd by them to govern the Army, ibid. Reſtores the Secluded Members, ibid. Endeavours us'd to perſuade him to take the Government on himſelf, 236. The French Ambaſſador tempts him to do it, ibid. His Anſwer to all that motion'd it to him, ibid. His wary Reception of Sir John Granville, ſent to him by the King, ibid. His Anſwer to the King's Meſſage, ibid. Made Captain-General of all the King's Forces, 239. Waits upon the King at his Landing at Dover, and how receiv'd by him, 241. Made one of his Privy-Council, and Duke of Albermarle, ibid. See Albermarle, George Duke of.

Monmouth, James Duke of, made Captain of King Charles II's Life-Guard of Horſe, 304. His Birth and Breeding, ibid. In great Favour with King Charles, his Father, ibid. Marries the Earl of Buccleugh's Daughter, ibid. Sent General of the Forces in the French King's Service, and his Reception abroad, ibid. Choſen Chancellor of Cambridge, 316. His Bravery at Mons, 350. Suppreſſes the Scots Conventiclers, 366. Grows extreamly popular, ibid. A Report that the King was married to his Mother, ibid. Publickly denied by his Father, Charles II. ibid. His Mother an ill Woman, ibid. N. Retires to Holland, ibid. Returns and is joyfully receiv'd, ibid. Is diſgrac'd, 394. His Character, ibid. Ill us'd by the Univerſity of Cambridge, ibid. Accus'd of the Phanatick Plot, and a Proclamation againſt him, 399. His Troubles before, ibid. He ſurrenders himſelf. 406. His own Account of his private Correſpondence with the King, ibid. Falls under his Diſpleaſure again, and why, 407. King Charles inclin'd to recall him, but fatally prevented, 433. Againſt invading England, 428. Puſh'd on by others, ibid. Lands at Lime, and publiſhes his his Declaration, ibid. Receiv'd at Taunton with Joy, 430. Is proclaim'd King, and loſes his Intereſt by it, 431. His falſe Step, ibid. Is defeated and taken. His Conference with the King, 433. He is beheaded, ibid.

Monmouth, Charles Viſcount Mordant created Earl of, 560. Is Colonel of the Royal Regiment rais'd by the City, 580.

Monopoly, one of Soap-making in the Reign of Charles I. 64.

Mons deliver'd to the French King by the Burghers, 614.

Montgomery, Lord, in a Plot to bring in the French, 703.

Montjoy, Lord, his Cowardice at the Iſle of Rhe, 39.

Montjoy, Lord, ſent to France by Tyrconnel, to invite King James to Ireland, 576. Impriſon'd in the Baſtile, being a Proteſtant, ibid.

Montroſs, Earl of, leads the Van of the Scots Army into England againſt the King, 104. Said to be the Occaſion of breaking off the Uxbridge Treaty, 152. Hated and perſecuted by the Scots, 194. Is betray'd to them, ib. His bold Defence, ibid. He is barbarouſly Executed, 195. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid. His Death reſented by Charles II. ibid.

Mordaunt, John, Eſq; Try'd for a Conſpiracy againſt Cromwell, and acquitted, 224.

Mordaunt, Charles Viſcount, goes over to the Prince of Orange, 518. Sworn of King William's Privy-Council, 550. Made Gentleman of the Bed-Chamber, and one of the Lords of the Treaſury, ibid. Created Earl of Monmouth, 560.

Moreton, Biſhop, ſent to the Tower for Chriſtening a Child after the Church of England Way, 160.

Morgan, General, joins General Monk in Scotland, and declares he will follow his Fortunes, 234.

Morgan, Sir Charles, ſent with a Body of Troops to join the King of Denmark againſt the Emperor, 28. Surrenders Stoadt on the Elbe to the Imperialiſts, 48.

Moreland, Sir Samuel, tries his Water-Engine before Charles II. 391. Highly rewarded by him, ibid, Morley, Dr. Biſhop of Wincheſter, his Correſpondence with Mr. Baxter for a Union, 326, 327. Not ſincere, ibid. Dies, 422.

Morris, Mr. William, introduces Sir John Granville to General Monk, 236.

Moulin, Dr. Lewis de, his Aſſertion concerning the Long Parliament, 129. N.

Mountague, Ralph Lord, Created Earl of, 560.

Mountague, Mr. Richard, a Divine complain'd of by Parliament, for favouring and promoting Arminianiſm, 32. The King's Meſſage to the Houſe in his Defence, ibid. Three Biſhops write a Letter to the Duke of Bucks in his Favour, 31. His Proſecution, and the Articles Exhibited by the Commons againſt him, 33. Many Anſwers to his Book, ibid. He is preferr'd to the See of Chicheſter, 57. A Mock Condemnation of his Book Appello Cæſarem, ibid.

Mountague, Admiral, gains the Fleet over to Monk's Party, 238. Convoys King Charles II. over at the Reſtoration, 241. Made Earl of Sandwich, ibid. See Sandwich, Earl of.

Mountague, Mr. Ralph, ſent Ambaſſador to France, 296. Delivers two Letters of the Lord Danby's to the Commons, upon which that Lord is Impeach'd, 355. Created Earl of Mountague, 560.

Mountague, Charles, Eſq; his Argument at a Conference with the Lords upon the Bill of Trials of High Treaſon, 625. Made one of the Lords of the Treaſury, 633. Chancellor of the Exchequer, 663. His Speech about the Coin, 699. Very inſtrumental in regulating it, 700. His Service towards retrieving Credit, 723, 724, 725. Voted by the Houſe of Commons to deſerve his Majeſty's Favour, 743. Protects the New Eaſt-India Company, 748. Made one of the Lords Juſtices of England, 755. Again, 793. Made Lord Hallifax, 793. The Preamble of his Patent, ibid. See Hallifax, Lord.

Mountford the Player kill'd, 653.

Mulgrave, Edmund Sheffeild Earl of, is one of Oliver's Houſe of Lords, 221.

Mulgrave, John Earl of, elected Knight of the Garter, 329. Made Governor of Hull by Charles II. 368. Commands the Forces that go to Tangier, 380. Made Lord Chamberlain by King James, 440. Sent from King James with a Compliment to the Prince of Orange, 537. A long Speech of his upon the Bill for Free and Impartial Proceedings in Parliament, 648, 649. Made Marquis of Normanby by King William, 663.

Munday, Black, what Day ſo call'd, and why, 357.

Mundy, Captain, retakes the Iſland of St. Helena from the Dutch, 324. Knighted by King Charles, ibid.

Munſon, William Lord, Degraded, his Eſtate Confiſcated, and himſelf drawn in a Sledge, with a Halter about his Neck, from the Tower to Tyburn, for being concern'd in the Death of Charles I. 250.

Munſter, Biſhop of, hir'd by Charles II. falls upon the Dutch, 279. Takes ſeveral Towns, ibid. Makes Peace with them, and deſerts King Charles, 280.

Murray, Earl of, King James's Commiſſioner in Scotland, his Speech to the Parliament to repeal the Teſt and Penal Laws, 445.

Murray, Mr. Thomas, King Charles I. Tutor, inclin'd to Presbytery, 2.

Muſcovy, Czar of, Comes into England to ſee King William, 739.

N.

NAmur Taken by the French, 643. The Siege of it by K. William, 688. The numerous Garriſon, Condition of the Place, and Progreſs of the Siege, ibid. 689. The Town ſurrender'd, ibid. The Siege of the Caſtle continu'd, 690, 691. A Parley, but comes to nothing, ibid. A general Aſſault, ibid. 692. Great Loſs, ibid. The Treaty, and Surrender of the Garriſon, ibid. 693.

Narborough, Sir John, his Actions againſt the Pirates of Tripoli, 335. Forces them to a Peace, ibid.

Narden Taken by the Prince of Orange in ſight of Luxemburgh's Army, 326.

Naſeby, Battle of, 157.

Naylor, James, the Quaker, his Blaſphemies and Puniſhment, 218.

Needham, Mr. Officiates to Archbiſhop Sancroft as his Chaplain, even after the Revolution, 662. N.

Neufchaſtel, Diſputes about that Dutchy, 769.

Newark, beſieg'd by the Scots, 147. Surrender'd by the Lord Bellaſis, when the King came to the Scots Camp, 162.

Newburgh, Prince of, viſits King Charles II. 300. Made Doctor of Laws at Oxford, ibid.

Newbury, firſt Battle of, 139. Second, 151.

Newcaſtle, William Cavendiſh Earl of, challenges the Earl of Holland, 99. Is diſguſted, ibid. Made Governor of Hull by the King, but is not admitted by Sir John Hotham, 126. His Loyalty, 129. Made General in the North for the King, ibid. His Actions, ibid. His Endeavours to hinder the Scots Army joining the Parliament's, 149. He leaves the Kingdom after the Defeat at Marſton-Moor, 150.

Newcaſtle, Town, taken by ſtorm by the Parliament Army, 149. The King carry'd thither by General Leſley and the Scots, 162.

Newcaſtle, John Earl of Clare made Duke of, 663.

New England, how the People there came to caſt off their Subjection to the Church of Old England, 80. Sir Edmund Andros made Governor, 633.

Newport, Lord, impriſon'd by Cromwell for High Treaſon, 215. Made Earl of Bradford, 663.

Nicholl, Anthony, Eſq; one of the 11 Members impeach'd by the Army, 168.

Nimeguen, Treaty of, begins, 349. Slow Progreſs of it, 350. In Suſpence, 344. Manag'd with Artifice and Inſolence by the French, 349.

Noblemen created, 241, 314, 324, 362, 367, 380, 391, 396, 407, 415, 439, 456, 560, 564, 571, 587, 596, 610, 631, 632, 652, 653, 663, 687, 706, 714, 734, 740, 755, 768.

Norfolk, County of, thanks King Charles II. for recalling the Duke of York from Flanders, 371.

Norfolk, Duke of, his Tryal about his Dutcheſs's Adultery, 661. His Caſe, and Arguments for paſſing the Bill of Divorce, 779, 780.

Normanby, John Earl of Mulgrave made Marquis of, by King William, 663. Sworn of his Majeſty's Privy-Council, ibid.

Norris, William, Eſq; ſent Ambaſſador to the Great Mogul by King William, 761.

North, Sir Francis, made Lord Keeper, 397. An unjuſt Decree of his, 421.

North, Mr. Dudley, made Sheriff in oppoſition to Mr. Papillion and Dubois, 395. Made a Baron, 407.

Northampton, Earl of, defeated and ſlain near Stafford, 129 His Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Northumberland, Algernon Piercy Earl of, ſent with a Fleet to ſcour the Sea, 84. Diſperſes the Dutch Fiſhers, ibid. Made General of the Army in the Second Expedition againſt the Scots, 102.

Northumberland, Duke of, declares for the Prince of Orange, 533.

Norwich, Dr. Lloyd Biſhop of, ſuſpended for refuſing to take the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary, 590.

Nottingham, Earl of, one of the Lords whom King James appointed to treat with the Prince of Orange, 532. Is for a Regency, at the Debate of the Vacancy of the Throne, 544. His Speech at the Conference againſt the Word Abdicate, 545. Made a Privy-Councellor and Secretary of State by King William, 550. His Difference with Admiral Ruſſel, 648. The Parliament ſeem to make a Vote upon it, ibid.

Noy, Mr. projects Ship-Money, 74. His Death and Character, 76.

Nugent, Son of an Iriſh Rebel, made Lord Chief Juſtice there by King James, 500. Brings in a Bill in King James's Parliament in Ireland, to repeal the Act of Settlement, 578.

O.

OAts, Dr. Titus, diſcovers the Popiſh Plot, 351. Complains of Judge Scroggs, 368. Intrigues to invalidate his Evidence, 380. N. Fin'd in 100000 l. Damages to the Duke of York, and why, 414. His Servants convicted, ibid. The cruel Sentence paſs'd upon him in K. James's Reign, 437. Debates in the Houſe of Lords about reverſing the Judgment againſt him, 566. A Conference about him occaſions great Heats, ibid. He is pardon'd by King William, and has a Penſion, ibid.

Obedience, Paſſive, high Notions of it gave great Advantage to the Papiſts, 370. Carried higher than Law or Reaſon by ſome Churchmen, 410, 505.

O Farrell, Col. delivers up Deynſe and the Garriſon to the French, without firing a Gun, 690.

Opdam, Admiral of the Dutch Fleet, blown up at Sole-bay Fight, 276.

Oquendo, Don Antonio de, Admiral of the Spaniſh Fleet, beaten in the Downs by the Dutch, 101. His Deſign ſuppos'd to be to aſſiſt the Papiſts in England, ibid.

Orange, William Henry Prince of, depriv'd of his Offices in Holland by Cromwell's Means, 212. Viſits King Charles II. 303. His Reception at Court, at London, and the Univerſities, ibid. His Return to Holland, 304. Made General, Admiral, and Stadtholder of Holland, 311. Is tempted by England and France to aſſume the Sovereignty of the Provinces, ibid. His Noble Anſwer to thoſe that tempted him, ibid. The only Protector of the Liberties of Europe, 319. His brave Anſwer to the Duke of Bucks, tempting him to aſſume the Sovereignty of the United Provinces, ibid. His firſt Actions in War, ibid. Takes Narden in ſight of the Duke of Luxemburgh, 326. Takes Bon, ibid. Drives the French out of Holland, ibid. Highly honour'd by the States, ibid. His great Actions at the Battle of Seneff, 330. The Prince of Conde's and General Zouch's Characters of him, ibid. His Conference with Sir William Temple about a Peace, ibid. His Averſion to the Lord Arlington, and King Charles's Miniſters, ibid. 336. Other Actions of his, ibid. Forc'd by Mareſchal Schombergh to raiſe the Siege of Maeſtricht, 340. Againſt a ſeparate Peace with France, ibid.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

ibid. His Conference with Sir William Temple about Marrying, 344. Deſir'd by the Malecontents in England to head them, ibid. What he deſir'd in a Wife, ibid. Sends Mr. Benincke to Negotiate the Affair, ibid. Comes into England, ibid His Saying on the King and Duke's requiring hard Terms on the Marriage, ibid. On the News of their Conſent, 345. Marries the Princeſs Mary, ibid. Conſultations between the King, the Duke, and him, about the Peace, ibid. His Bravery at the Siege of Mons, 350. His Danger, ibid. Drives Luxemburgh from before it, ibid. A Saying of a French Officer on this Action, ibid. He retires upon the Peace, ibid. His Diſcourſe with Sir William Temple, on King Charles's being for a War after the Peace was concluded, 351. Viſits the Court of England again, 392. His reſpectful Offer to King James, and generous one to the Duke of Monmouth, 428. His Second Offer to the King, to join againſt the D. of Monmouth, 431. Rejected, ibid. His and the Princeſs's Opinion of Liberty of Conſcience, and Repealing the Teſt, 491, 492. The People of England begin to look towards them, 497. Memorial of the Church of England preſented him, 517. Several Perſons of Quality go over to him, 518. He deſires the States to aſſiſt him, ibid. Prepares to invade England, 523. His Declaration, ibid. Vain Endeavours to ſuppreſs it, 525. His Letter to the Engliſh Army, ibid. His Speech to the States, when he took his Leave of them, ibid. He weeps, 526. He embarks: His Attendance, ibid. Is put back by a Storm, ibid. Lands, and goes to Exeter, 527. His Speech to the Gentlemen that join'd him, 528. Several Perſons of Note come in to him, ibid. He advances to Salisbury on King James's leaving it, 530. Several Perſons of Quality join him, 531, 532. Avoids a Treaty, ibid. Skirmiſhes between his and the King's Forces, ibid. The Officers of the Army, and the Lords Spiritual and Temporal in London, declare for him, 533. And the Lieutenancy, 534. His Anſwer to King James's Commiſſioners for a Treaty, and their Propoſals, ibid. His Declaration about King James, and the Disbanded Soldiers, 535. He deſires that King James ſhould remove from London to Ham, 537. Encourages King James's Deſign of Leaving England, ibid. Comes to St. James's, and is Congratulated by the City, 536. He conſults with the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, ibid. Their Advice to him, Reſolutions and Proceedings, ibid. He Summons the Parliament-Men, that had ſerv'd in former Parliaments, to meet, 538. The Lords Opinion about chuſing a Convention, ibid. His Anſwer to their Addreſs, 539. Viſits the Queen Dowager, and what paſt there, 540. Summons the Convention to meet, and borrows 200000 l. of the City, ibid. His Speech to the Convention, 541. The Princeſs arrives in England, 547. He and his Conſort the Princeſs Mary, declar'd King and Queen, 549. His Speech when he accepted the Crown, ibid. See William III. and Mary II.

Orange, Princeſs of, viſits her Brother King Charles II. on the Reſtoration, 241. Her Death, 242.

Orford, Edward Ruſſell made Earl of, 734. And one of the Lords Juſtices, 755. Impeach'd by the Houſe of Commons about the Partition-Treaty, 805. The Articles exhibited againſt him by the Commons, 809. Carry'd up to the Lords by Col. Bierly, ibid. The Earl's Defence, ibid. Tryal, and honourable Diſcharge, 823.

Orkney, Counteſs of, her Grant from King William, 772.

Orleans, Dutcheſs of, viſits her Brother Charles II at Dover, 302. Leaves the Dutcheſs of Portſmouth behind her, ibid. Her ſudden Death, 303.

Ormond, Marquis, K. Charles I. when Prince, had that Title conferr'd upon him, 1.

Ormond, Marquis of, treats with the Iriſh Papiſts, 143. Routed by Col. Jones, 192. Forc'd to fly to France by Cromwell, ibid. Takes the Duke of Glouceſter out of a Jeſuits College, and carries him to Germany, 212. Comes into England to act for K. Charles II. 222. His Eſcape, ibid. His Conference with Mazarine at the Pyrenean Treaty, 236. Made Duke and Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 250, 278. Holds a Parliament there, ibid. Suppreſſes a Mutiny in the Garriſon of Carrickfergus, 285. Recall'd, and is choſen Chancellor of Oxford, 296. Seiz'd by Blood and others, 305. Made a Duke in England, 396. Why turn'd out of the Lieutenancy of Ireland, 446. Is ill receiv'd by King James, ibid. Fears what will become of Ireland, ibid. And dies, 516. His Character, ibid.

Ormond, James Butler, Duke of, intercedes in vain for Magdalen College, 503. Goes to the Prince of Orange, 530. Made Knight of the Garter by King William, 560. Attends the King to Ireland, 598. Entertains him at Kilkenny, 604. Attends the King into Flanders, 617 and 653. Taken Priſoner at Landen, 655.

Oſſory, Thomas Butler Earl of, ſworn of the Privy-Council, 285. Commands in Ireland, 296. Made Rear-Admiral of the Blue, 323. His Bravery at Mons, 350. His Death, 380.

Osburn, Sir Thomas, appointed one of the Commiſſioners of Accounts by Charles II. 286. Recommended to King Charles by the Duke of Buckingham, 324. Made Viſcount Dunblaine in Scotland, and Lord Treaſurer, ibid. See Danby, Earl of.

Overkirk, Henry de Naſſau Lord of, ſaves the Prince of Orange's Life at Mons, 350. Made Maſter of the Horſe to King William, 550. Naturaliz'd by Act of Parliament, 565. His Bravery in the Action near Beaumont, 617.

Owen, Sir John, condemn'd by a High Court of Juſtice, but repriev'd by the Rump, 190.

Owen, Dr. John, turn'd out from being Dean of Chriſt-Church, 237.

Oxford, a Parliament adjourn'd thither by Charles I. 6. Factions in the Univerſity there, 66. The King's Quarters in the Civil Wars, 128, 129. A Parliament held there, in oppoſition to that at Weſtminſter, 144. Sir Thomas Glemham ſurrenders it to the Parliament, 162. The Univerſity viſited by Order of Parliament, 189.

Oxford, the Long Parliament adjourn'd thither by Charles II. The Univerſity thank'd by them for their Loyalty, ibid. Term kept there, 278. Theatre there open'd, 296. The Famous Parliament held there, 322. Diſſolv'd in haſte, 326.

Oxford Univerſity, their ſolemn Declaration for Paſſive Obedience, 411, 412, 413. What was done with it after the Revolution, ibid.

Oxford City, its Priviledges declar'd to be diſſolv'd, 495. King James diſſatiſfy'd with it, ibid. King William viſits the Univerſity, but does not Eat with them, 697.

Oxford, Earl of, attends King William to Ireland, 598.

P.

PAck, Alderman, moves in Parliament to make Cromwell King, 218.

Palatinate, Forces Rais'd for its Recovery by Charles I. 3. Further Endeavours to recover it, 63, 68. Others in vain, 86. King Charles I. Care of their Exil'd Miniſters, 63. N.

Palatine, Prince Elector or Palſgrave, his Death, 68.

Papillion, Thomas, Eſq; Fin'd 10000 l. to Sir William Pritchard, and others, 414.

Papiſts Complain'd of by the Parliament, 7. A Proclamation againſt them, 12. The Compounding their Forfeitures ſuſpected to be a Toleration of Popery, 28. They are forward to pay the Loan, 30. Their Religion too much Tolerated, 34. The Iriſh Treat for a Toleration, 37. Iriſh Biſhops draw up a Proteſtation againſt it, ibid. Petition'd againſt by the Parliament, 42. Remonſtrated againſt, 45. Their Religion proteſted againſt by the Houſe of Commons, 51. The Inſolence of their Prieſts, 53. Their Violence, ibid. The Danger of their Growth, 54, 55, to 60. They commit a Riot in Dublin, 61. Favour'd and advanc'd at the Queen's Importunity, 76. Fears of their Growth, 86. Inſolent in their Numbers, 93. A Proclamation againſt them, 94. Their ſecret Intrigues againſt the Proteſtants in the Reign of Charles I. 98, 100, 104, 106, N. They encourage the Murder of the King, 181, N. Spaniards come to their Aſſiſtance, 101. A Remonſtrance againſt them by the Long Parliament, 108. Make their Advantage of the Troubles in England, 194. Their Intereſt and Policy in Charles IId's Reign, 259. The Parliament Addreſs the King againſt them, 263. Endeavour to divide the Church and Diſſenters more and more, and ſet them againſt the Government, 267. Addreſs'd againſt by Parliament, 284. Dangers of them, 286. Another Addreſs againſt them, ibid. 294. The Dangers of them, 307. Great Fears of them, 321, 324. Orders againſt them, ibid. An Addreſs againſt them, 325. A Proclamation, 327. Their Plot begins, ibid. Another ſeverer Proclamation againſt them, 331. Their Inſolence, 337. Dangers of them, 341. Their Plot againſt the King diſcover'd by Oats, 351. Forbid to come within 10 Miles of London, 352. They are Encourag'd, 356. Checkt by a Proclamation, ibid. Excluded Sitting in Parliament, 357. Proceeded againſt Vigorouſly in Parliament, 363, 364, 365. And by the King, 369. Encourag'd by him, 374. Promote the Perſecution of Diſſenters, 381. Charles IId's Miniſtry partial to them, 393. They grow inſolent, 394. Their Inſolence and Hypocriſy, 398. Zeal againſt 'em made Criminal, ibid. Advanc'd and protected againſt the Parliament by James II. 436. The Teſt againſt them diſpens'd with by him, 442. And in Scotland 445. Made Privy-Councellors, 449. Their Addreſs of Thanks to King James for Liberty of Conſcience, 489. They give out Queen Mary is with Child, and that it will be a Son, 496. Ruin all in Ireland, 499. Their Recommendatory Letter to King James in favour of Tyrconnel, ibid. Declar'd incapable of the Succeſſion to the Crown of England, 544. King William's Clemency to them, 568. Their Inſolence in Ireland, when King James was there, 578. A Proclamation againſt them by Queen Mary, 616. And an Addreſs againſt them by the Parliament, 761.

Parker, Samuel, his Troubles for a Libel againſt the Government in Charles IId's Reign, 414. N.

Parker, Dr. Samuel, made Biſhop of Oxford, 486. A Tool of Popery and Arbitrary Power, ibid. Has a Mandate to be a Preſident of Magdalen-College, but the Fellows will not chuſe him, 504. Forcibly made Preſident ~~by Proxy, 507. — Charnock the~~ Aſſaſſinator, his Vice-Preſident, 508.

Parker, Col. Plots to Aſſaſſinate K. William, 626. Lands in England on that Deſign, 637. His Proceedings here, 638. Taken, and Eſcapes out of the Tower, 665. In Charnock's Aſſaſſination-Plot too, 711.

Parliament, the Firſt, held by Charles I. 4. Joy at their Sitting, 5. Their Debates, ibid. And Acts, ibid. They are Adjourn'd to Oxford, and Sit in Chriſt-Church-Hall, 6. Are diſpleas'd on ſeveral Accounts, 5, 6. Their Petition upon it, 7, 8. Their Debates about the King's Anſwer, and the Duke of Buckingham's Plea, 10. Their Declaration, 11. And abrupt Diſſolution, ibid.

Parliament, the Second, held by Charles I. meet in an ill Humour through the Duke of Bucks Management of himſelf to the Members, 15. Put off the Supply and go upon Grievances, 17. Their Anſwer to the King's Meſſages and Letters, 17, 18. Fall upon the Duke of Bucks, 19. They remonſtrate, 20. They impeach the Duke of Bucks, 23. Their Articles againſt him, 23, 24. Their Proceedings upon Sir John Elliot and Sir Dudley Diggs Impriſonment, 25. Offended at a Letter of the King's, 26. Their Anſwers to it and Remonſtrance, ibid. The Lords Addreſs againſt a Diſſolution, ibid. The Parliament diſſolv'd, 27.

Parliament, the Third, held by Charles I. 41. Their Votes about Liberty and Property, 42. They Petition againſt Recuſants, ibid. Conference with the Lords on Liberty and Property, 43. The Queſtion put, who ſhould Truſt King or People, 44. Are ſurpriz'd with a Prorogation, 47. Their Second Seſſion, 49. And various Proceedings about Tonnage and Poundage, &c. 50, 51. They are diſſolv'd, 52.

Parliament, the Fourth, held by Charles I. 102. They enter upon Grievances, and delay the Supply, 103. They are diſſolv'd, 104.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

Powle, Mr. deſires to be excus'd Attendance at the Council-Board, 368. Choſen Chairman of the Aſſembly of Parliament-Men call'd by the Prince of Orange before the Convention, 539. Speaker of the Convention, 541. His Speech to Congratulate King William and Queen Mary on their Coronation, in the Name of the Houſe of Commons, 561. Another on his preſenting the Money-Bill to the King, 562. Another, 567. An artful one of his to the King, on preſenting the Bill to pay the Dutch, 571. Another, 583. His Death, 652.

Poyntz, Col. routs the King at Routon-Heath, near Cheſter, 129.

Prance, Miles, diſcovers Sir Edmundbury Godfrey's Murder, 352. Recants it in King James's Reign, 449.

Prayer, Common, when firſt read in Scotland, 91. The Conſequence of it, ibid. Taken away in England by the Houſe of Commons, 124. Debates about it at the Iſle of Wight Treaty, 177. Charles II's Letters for reviewing it, 252. Alterations in it, ibid. Things charg'd by the Presbyterians to be Unlawful in it, 253. Unreaſonableneſs of the Charge, ibid. Order'd to be tranſlated into Latin, and by whom, 261. Into Welſh, and by whom, 262. A Vote to review it, paſs'd in the Negative, 588. Several Lords diſſent, and give their Reaſons for it, ibid.

Prayers, for the Fifth of November, Thirtieth of January, and Twenty Ninth of May, made by the Convocation, 261.

Prerogative, highly advanc'd by Charles II. his Second Parliament, 256.

Presbytery, declar'd for by the Parliament, 124, 130. Said to be Jure Divino by the Aſſembly of Divines, 156. Settled by Parliament, 161.

Presbyterian Divines, aſſiſt the Parliament, and draw up their Inſtruments, 132. Two Canting Declarations drawn up by them, ibid. They quarrel with the Independants, 161. The Parliament weary of them, 164. An Ordinance for ſettling their Diſcipline, 190. Their Divines remonſtrate againſt the Death of the King, ibid. Their Diſcipline eſtabliſh'd, 193. The Independant Army too hard for them, 194. Againſt the Rump's War with the Scots, who had call'd in King Charles II. 195. The Spirit of them, from the Lord Clarendon, 198. Out-witted by the Independants, 201. Their Plot to aſſiſt Charles II. 202. Their Intereſt declines, 206. Humbled by Oliver, 207. Richard inclines to them, 230. They Court him, and prevail in his Parliament, ibid. Are beſt diſpos'd to the King, 237. Their Party is uppermoſt, ibid. Miniſters wait upon the King at Breda, 247. Their Conference with the Epiſcopal Divines at the Savoy, 253. Not to be ſatisfy'd, ibid. They are perſecuted in Scotland, 273. And are troubleſome there, 285.

Presbyterians, their Addreſs of Thanks to King James for Liberty of Conſcience, 489.

Preſton, Lord, queſtion'd for taking a Patent of Honour from King James, when he was in France, 585. Condemn'd for Treaſon, 614.

Preſton, Battle of, 176.

Price, Mr. Robert, a Remarkable Speech of his in King William's Parliament, 701.

Pritchard, Sir William, Lord-Mayor of London, arreſted, 398. Has 10000 l. Damages of Mr. Papillion, 399.

Privateers, French, their Inſolence in King Charles II's Reign, 338. The Parliament addreſs the King about it, 339. The King's Anſwer, ibid.

Privileg'd Places, the Grievance of them, 732.

Privileges of Parliament, determin'd by the Judges, 52. Members proſecuted at Law for inſiſting on them, ibid.

Project to raiſe Money, 61. Another, ibid. Another, 62. More Projects, ibid. More, 81, 86.

Protections, granted by Members of Parliament, regulated, 586.

Proteſtants, Foreign, their Diſpoſition towards the Church of England, at the breaking out of the Civil Wars, 133. King Charles's Defence of himſelf to 'em, 155.

Proteſtants, French, reliev'd by Charles II. 393. Perſecuted by their King, 498. Reliev'd by King James, ibid. Are abandon'd by the Reſwyck Treaty, 739. Vain Efforts of King William to relieve 'em, 740.

Proteſtation of the Parliament againſt Popery, Arminianiſm, and Tonnage and Poundage, 52. Of the Biſhops, when they were deny'd ſitting in Parliament, 124. Againſt the Murder of the King, 181. N.

Prynne, Mr. William, writes his Hiſtrio-Maſtix againſt Plays, and is puniſh'd for it, 70. His further Sufferings with Burton and Baſtwick, 90. The Lord Clarendon's Opinion of it, ibid. Sent by Order of Parliament to ſeize Archbiſhop Laud's Papers, 133.

Puritans in England encourag'd by the Scots, 102.

Pym, Mr. his Speech about Arminianiſm and Popery, 57. About Grievances, 103, 106. Carries up a Charge of High Treaſon againſt the Earl of Strafford, ibid. One of the Five Members demanded by the King, 122. Carries up a Charge of High Treaſon againſt the Queen to the Lords, 136. His Death, and the Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Pyrenees, Treaty of, 236.

Q.

QUakers, their Madneſs, 218. Their Addreſs of Thanks to King James for Liberty of Conſcience, 489. Their Boldneſs in Elections, &c. 765. An Act of Parliament in their Favour, 836.

Quo Warranto's brought againſt London, and other Towns, 395. Reflections on them, ibid. Brought againſt moſt of the Towns in England, by King James, 495. Againſt the Corporations in Ireland, 500. That againſt London Revers'd, 597.

R.

RAinbow, Dr. Edward, dies, 422. N.

Rapparees, Robbers in Ireland ſo call'd, do Miſchief, 618.

Rathbone, John, hang'd for a Plot againſt King Charles II. 284. To Fire London, part of it, ibid.

Reading Surrender'd to the Parliament, 136. A Skirmiſh there between the Prince of Orange and King James's Forces, 532.

Reformation of Manners, the uſe of that Society, 635. They were commended to Queen Mary by Dr. Stillingfleet, Biſhop of Worceſter, ibid. The Queen encourages em, ibid. A Scheme of their Deſign, ibid. Call'd the beſt Friends of the Church of England by Archbiſhop Tillotſon, 637. Proclamation for it by the King, 745. A State of the Societies for it, 746.

Regiment, Royal, rais'd in the City in King William's Reign, 586.

Religion, the State of it in the beginning of Charles Iſt's Reign, 30. Two Parties in it, ibid. A further State of it, before and after the Diſſolution of his Third Parliament, 54, 55, to 60. A further State of it, 64 to 67. A further State of it, 71, 72. People Jealous of Alterations in it, 73. Cure of Ordination, 74 A State of Religion, 77 to 81, and 81, 82, 86, to 90, and 92, 93, 94, and 97, 101. A further State of it, 109. A Committee of Lords and another of Commons ſit about it, 114 Sad Confuſions in it, 130 to 134. A further State of it, 153, 155, 173, 174, 177, 193, 197, 201, 202. The ſad State of it, 206, 209, 218, 223, 224. State of it in the Uſurpation of Richard Cromwell, 230 In the Rump's Time, 237. State of it after the Reſtoration, 250, 260, 279, 295, 300, 305, 319, 326, 330, 337. A further State of it, 347, 357 368, 381, 392, 397, 408. A State of it in King James's Reign, 440, 452, 501. A State of it in the Reign of King William, 556, 587, 633, 673, 707, 731, 744, 765. A further State of it, 776, 799, 842.

Remonſtrance, one drawn up by Parliament, 20. Another, 27. A Proclamation againſt it, ibid. Another preſented to the King, 46. Another intended, 47. One againſt the Papiſts by the Long Parliament, 108. One upon the Iriſh Rebellion, 121. Another about the Five Members, 123. Of the Army, 168. Of the Scots Repenting that they Sold the King, 169. Another of the Army againſt the King, 178. Of the Presbyterian Divines againſt the King's Murder, 191. By Charles IId's Second Parliament againſt the Growth of Popery, &c. 376.

Reſwyck, Treaty of, begun 735, 736 to 739.

Retz, Cardinal de, his plain Advice to Charles II. about Popery, 213.

Reynolds, Col. his Bravery in Flanders, and Death 221.

Richardſon, Judge, in his Circuit in Somerſetſhire, ſuppreſſes Feaſts at the Dedication of Churches, 67, 71. Biſhop Laud complains of him to the King, and he is reprov'd, ibid. 72.

Richlieu, Cardinal, in ill Terms with the Duke of Bucks, and why, 28. Sends an Agent into Scotland, 100.

Rice, a Gameſter in Ireland, made Lord Chief Baron by King James, 500. His Acts, ibid.

Riot, one in London, 62. Of the Silk-Weavers againſt the Parliament, 570.

Roberts, Lord, made Lieutenant of Ireland, 297.

Rochellers, Charles I. aſſiſts the French againſt them, 6. Lord Denbigh ſent with a Fleet to their Relief, 29. Do 'em no Service, ibid. Jealous of the Duke of Buckingham's Sincerity, when he came to their Aſſiſtance, 37. They at laſt declare for the Engliſh, 38. Are Beſieg'd, and reduc'd to great Streights, ibid. Send to King Charles for Aſſiſtance, ibid. A ſecond Expedition to help them, Unfortunate, thro' the Lord Denbigh's ill Conduct, 48. A Third Unſucceſsful, ibid. Their Diſtreſs and Surrender, 49.

Rocheſter, Lawrence Hyde, Earl of, made Preſident of the Council by Charles II. 415. Lord Treaſurer by James II. 421. Endeavours to prevent Tyrconnel's being Deputy of Ireland, 448. Preſs'd by King James to turn Papiſt, 451. Deſires to hear a Conference between Proteſtant and Popiſh Divines, and to ſide with the Conquerors, ibid. Declares for the Proteſtants, and is turn'd out of the Treaſury, ibid. The Jeſuits Curſe him, ibid. He has a Penſion, ibid. One of the High Commiſſion Court, 453. Sworn of the Privy-Council to King William, 633. Made Lord Lieutenant of Ireland by him, 793.

Rolls, Serjeant, one of Cromwell's Judges, deſires his Quietus, and why, 214.

Romney, Henry Lord Viſcount Sidney, made Earl of, 663. And one of the Lords Juſtices, 734. And again, 755.

Ronquillo, Don Pedro de, Ambaſſador from Spain to King James, his Advice to him againſt introducing Popery, 440. Perſuades K. James not to accept of the 30000 Men offer'd him by the French King againſt the Prince of Orange, 518. His Death, 633.

Rook, Sir George, ſurpriz'd with the Turky Fleet by the French, 657. The Parliament enquiring into that Miſcarriage, ibid. The Fault laid on the Three Admirals, ibid. Order'd to intercept the Thoulon Fleet, 720. Made Admiral of the Fleet by King William, 825.

Rookwood, one of the Aſſaſſination-Plotters, Hang'd, 713.

Roſe, a Frenchman, Commands the Iriſh Army before London-Derry, 579. His Cruelty condemn'd by King James, ibid.

Roſwell, Mr. Thomas, a Diſſenting Miniſter, found guilty of Treaſon, 414. His ſhameful Innuendo Tryal, 422. King Charles orders an Evaſion to be found out for him, ibid.

Rous, Mr. his Speech in Parliament againſt Dr. Manwaring's Arbitrary Principles, 55. His Speech about Arminianiſm and Popery, 57. One of the Aſſembly of Divines, 145. Choſen Speaker of Cromwell's Packt Convention, 208. Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Rous, Mr. Committed to Priſon for Treaſon againſt Charles II. 387. Hang'd for the Phanatick Plot, 400.

Royal-Oak, 200. N.

Rudyard, Sir Benjamin, Moderator between King and People, 151. His Speech about the Diſcontinuance of Parliaments, 103.

Rue,

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

Rue, Mr. de la, diſcovers the horrid Aſſaſſination-Plot againſt King William to the Lord Portland, 704.

Rumbold, Mr. the Malſter, Executed in Scotland, 427.

Rump Parliament, Vide Parliament.

Rumſey, John, accus'd of the Phanatick Plot, ſurrenders himſelf, 399. A looſe and wicked Evidence, 438.

Ruſſel, William, Lord, makes Serjeant Gregory Speaker of the Houſe of Commons by his Recommendation, 360. Carries up their Votes againſt the Duke of York to the Lords, 363. Brings a Meſſage from the King to the Lords, 364. Withdraws from the Council, 368. His Speech againſt the Growth of Popery, 371. Carries up the Bill of Excluſion to the Houſe of Lords, 377. Beheaded for the Phanatick Plot, 400. His Speech and Paper to the Sheriffs, ibid. 402, 403. His Attainder revers'd, 553.

Ruſſel, Edward, Eſq; goes over to the Prince of Orange, 518. Made Admiral of the Blue, 602. Endeavours to bring the French to an Engagement at Sea, but cannot come at them, 622. Beats Count Tourville and the French Fleet, 640, 641. His Letter upon it, 641. Has the Thanks of the Houſe of Commons, 647. Laid aſide, 653. Made Admiral again, 657. Is Maſter of the Mediterranean, 665. His diligence to fit out the Fleet to prevent K. James's Landing from Calais, 705. Made Earl of Orford, and one of the Lords Juſtices of England, 734. See Earl of Orford.

Rupert, Prince, Son of the King of Bohemia, comes into England, 81. Returns into Germany, and is taken Priſoner by the Imperialiſts, 92. He and Sir John Byron ſtrike the firſt Stroke in the Civil War, 127. Takes Cirenceſter, and puts the Earl of Stamford's Regiment there to the Sword, 129. Takes Briſtol, 139. Takes Longford in Shropſhire, Stepworth in Cheſhire, Bolton and Leverpool in Lancaſhire, and Marches to Relieve the Earl of Newcaſtle in York, 149. Entirely defeated at Marſton-Moor, ibid. Surrenders Briſtol to the Parliament's Forces, 159. Retires to France, 162. Made Admiral againſt the Dutch by Charles II. 271. He Surprizes their Bourdeaux Fleet, ibid. Commands the Fleet in Conjunction with the Duke of Albemarle, 280. Obtains a Victory over the Dutch, 282. Commands in Chief at Sea again, 323. Fights the Dutch, and pretends to the Victory, ibid. 324. Proves a faithful Counſellor in his late Years, 396. And therefore neglected by the Court, ibid. His Death, ibid.

Ruvigny, Marquis de, his Bravery at Athlone, 618. And at the Battle of Aghrim, 620. Highly inſtrumental in gaining the Battle, 621. See Galloway, Lord.

Ruyter, Admiral de, deſerts Sir John Lawſon in the Streights, and falls upon the Engliſh in Guinea and the Weſt-Indies, 273. He attacks Barbadoes, and is beaten off, 277. Quarrels with Van Tromp, 283. Fights Prince Rupert, and pretends to the Victory, 323, 324.

S.

SA, Don Ponteleon de, Brother to the Portugal Ambaſſador, Beheaded for a Riot, 209.

Safety, Committee of, ſet up by the Army to govern inſtead of the Rump, 233. Their Declaration, ibid.

St. Albans, Duke of, ſent to France by King William, to Compliment the King and the Dauphin on the Marriage of the Duke of Burgundy, 744.

St. Andrews, Dr. Sharp Archbiſhop of, murder'd by Scots Conventiclers, 366.

St. Aſaph, Dr. Lloyd Biſhop of, one of the Seven Biſhops that petition'd King James, and were impriſon'd, 511. Prevails with Queen Mary to relieve the Vaudois, 645. Tranſlated to Coventry and Litchfield, 653.

St. Germain, Father, with other Papiſts, forces Monſieur Luzancy, a Miniſter, who was a Convert to the Proteſtant Religion, to renounce it, 337. Charles II's Proclamation againſt him, ibid.

St. Helena, Iſland of, taken by the Dutch, 324. Retaken by the Engliſh, ibid.

St. John, Mr. proſecuted in the Star-Chamber for ſpreading a Libel, 62. Made one of the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal by Parliament, 143. One of the Council of State by the Rump, 197.

St. Maloes Bombarded by the Engliſh, 690.

St. Martyns Bombarded by the Engliſh, 720.

St. Paul's Church, an Act to rebuild it, 731.

St. Ruth, omits to ſuccour Athlone, 619. His Speech and cruel Orders to the Iriſh, before the Battle of Aghrim, ibid.

Sacheverell, William, Eſq; and other Gentlemen of Nottingham, their Troubles for ſtanding by the Liberties of the Borough, 413.

Saliſbury, Earl of, ſits in the Rump Parliament as a Commoner, 192.

Saliſbury, James Cecil Earl of, Voted to be impeach'd of High Treaſon for turning Papiſt, 581.

Saliſbury, See of, the Chancellorſhip of the Garter annex'd to it, 302.

Salmon, a Heretick, his wicked Tenents, 194.

Sancroft, Dr. William, made Archbiſhop of Canterbury, 348. His Directions about Letters Teſtimonial, 359. Nam'd to be one of the High Commiſſion Court, 452. Refuſes to Act, 455. Chief of the Biſhops that Petition'd K. James, and were impriſon'd, 511 His Anſwer to King James, about inviting over the Prince of Orange, 527. Refuſes to own the Government, on King William and Queen Mary's Acceſſion to the Throne, 552 Refuſes to Conſecrate Dr. Burnet Biſhop of Saliſbury, but grants a Commiſſion to others to do it, 559. Depriv'd for refuſing to take the Oaths to King William and Queen Mary, 633. He dies in Retirement, 662. An Account of his Behaviour after his Deprivation, ibid. N. His Conference with Mr. Needham, on Receiving the Sacrament, ibid. N. Another with the ſame Perſon in his Sickneſs, ibid. N.

Sanders, William, hang'd for a Plot againſt King Charles II. 284.

Sanderſon, Dr. Robert Biſhop of Lincoln, his Death, 263. His Account of his Faith and Perſwaſion in Matters of Religion, ſet down in his Will, ibid.

Sanderſon, Col. Thomas, ſent with 2000 Men to aſſiſt the Czar of Muſcovy againſt the Poles, 68. Kill'd by Col. Leſley, a Scot, ibid.

Sanderſon, Mr. expell'd the Houſe of Commons in Ireland, for not ſigning the Aſſociation, 721.

Sandwich, Edward Mountague made Earl of, 241. Goes againſt the Algerines, but does nothing, 250. Is King Charles's Proxy for the Marriage of Queen Katharine at Liſbon, 254. Obliges the Pyrates of Tunis, Tripoly, and Algiers, to treat of a Peace, 259. Commands the Fleet againſt the Dutch under the Duke of York, 276. His Actions and the Prizes he took, 277. Sent Ambaſſador to Spain, 280.

Sandys, Sir Thomas, and other Ruffians aſſault and barbarouſly wound Sir John Coventry, 305.

Sandys, Col. the firſt that ſtruck a Stroke on the Parliament's ſide in the Civil Wars, 127. Is kill'd in that Action, ibid.

Sandys, Capt. his Bravery at Athlone, 618.

Sarsfield, Col. his fortunate Attempt on King William's Train of Artillery in Ireland, 605. He quarrels with St. Ruth about Athlone, 618. Treats with General Ginkle for the Surrender of Limerick, 621. Has high Words with him, ibid.

Savoy, Duke of, invades Dauphine, and takes ſeveral Towns, 645. Falls ſick and retreats, ibid. His Actions the next Campaign, 656. Loſes the Battle of Marſaglia, ibid. Concludes a ſeparate Treaty with France, 715. The Reaſons of it, ibid.

Savoy, Dutcheſs of, proteſts againſt Settling the Succeſſion on the Princeſs Sophia, 797.

Savoy, Conference of, between the Epiſcopal and Presbyterian Divines, 253. Ill Succeſs of it, 254.

Sawyer, Sir Robert, expell'd the Houſe of Commons for being concern'd in the Death of Sir T. Armſtrong, 586.

Say, Lord, refuſes to proteſt that he did not Correſpond with the Scots, 99.

Saxony, Auguſtus Elector of, obtains the Crown of Poland from the Prince of Conti, 736.

Scarborough, Mayor of, toſs'd in a Blanket by an Officer in the Army, 517. King James does not puniſh him, ibid.

Schombergh, Mareſchal of, Commands 6000 Engliſh deſign'd for a Deſcent upon Holland in the Dutch War, 324. Commands the French Army in Flanders, 340. Forces the P. of Orange to raiſe the Siege of Maeſtrich, 341. Comes to England with him at the Revolution, 526. His Stratagem to try the Affections of the People, 535. Frights the City of London and the whole Kingdom, ibid. Made Maſter of the Ordnance by King William, 550. Knight of the Garter, and is Naturaliz'd, 560. Made Duke of Schombergh, 571. Sent General to Ireland, his Actions there, 580. Diſcovers a Plot in his Army, carry'd on by French Papiſts, ibid. His Army deſtroy'd by Sickneſs, ibid. His Saying to the French Proteſtants whom he led to the Charge at the Boyne, 600. He is kill'd there, ibid. His Character and great Actions, ibid. 601.

Schombergh, Duke of, his Actions in Dauphine with the Duke of Savoy, 645. His Bravery at the Battle of Marſaglia, 656. He is ſlain there, 657.

Scot, Mr. a Member of the Rump, zealous for the Abjuration-Oath againſt King Charles II. 234. Sent to Congratulate General Monk on his coming into England, ibid. Would perſuade him to take the Government on himſelf, 236. Try'd and Executed for the Death of the King, 242.

Scotland, King Charles I's Progreſs there, 69. State of Religion there, 72. Seditions there, 77. Conquer'd by the Rump, and United to England, 203. A Project to Unite it in Charles II's Reign ineffectual, 302.

Scots, diſguſted firſt with Charles I. and why, 69. The Liturgy not lik'd there, 82. They mutiny upon Reading the Common-Prayer, 90. Diſtractions amongſt them, 94. They ſet up the Tables, and frame the Covenant, 95. And take Arms, 96. They are too hard for the King's Forces, 99. A Treaty and Pacification with them, ibid. Their Inſolence and Proceedings at home, 100. Their Letter to the French King, ibid. A Second War with them, 102. Ends in a Treaty, 105. The Parliament reſents that they are call'd Rebels, and the King excuſes it, 106. They correſpond with, and influence the Parliament of England, 108. Are ſupply'd by them, ibid. They aſſociate with them in Religion, 132. They enter into an Alliance with the Parliament of England, 139. Their Miniſters admitted into the Engliſh Aſſembly of Divines, 146. Their Army marches into England, joins the Lord Fairfax, and beſieges York, 149. They beſiege Newark, 159. They ſell the King, and return home, 163. They repent that they ſold him, 169. Are aw'd by the Army, ibid. Proteſt againſt the hard Terms impos'd on the King by the firſt Meſſage ſent to him to the Iſle of Wight, 171. They invade England to releaſe the King, 175. Routed by Cromwell at Preſton, 176. Invite Charles II. to Scotland, but upon inſolent Terms, 192. Routed at Dunbar, 196. Beaten at Fife, 198. They pray for a Union, 203. Their Zeal and Folly, 206. Their Kirk diſſolv'd by an Engliſh Officer, 209. Epiſcopacy reſtor'd there, 273. The Preſbyterians mutinous againſt King Charles II. 285. Diſturbances by Field-Conventiclers, 366. Duke of York governs there, 391, 392, 393, 395. Argyle lands there, and is ſuppreſs'd, 425, 427. The Lords and Gentlemen of that Kingdom addreſs to the Prince of Orange, 555, 556. Their Convention to make him King, 572, 573. A Scots Parliament held by the Marquis of Tweedale for King William, and their Acts, 695, 696. The Affair of their Eaſt-India Company, 700. Other Affairs, 713, 720. Their Parliament, ſign the Aſſociation in Defence of King Wil- liam, ibid. Another Parliament held by the Earl of Marchmont, 761. Their Acts about their Eaſt-India Company, 762, 763, 784, 785.

Scroggs, Judge, complain'd of by the Evidence in the Popiſh Plot, 368. Commons reſolve to Impeach him, 379. He is Impeach'd, ibid.

Sea, its Dominion aſſerted by the Engliſh, 74. A Proclamation concerning Sea-Affairs, ibid.

Seamen, Engliſh, their Bravery, and Hatred of the French, 6. Diſguſted with the Government in the Reign of King Charles I. 13. They clamour at Whitehall for their Pay, 40.

Sea-Ports, the Inhabitants leave 'em, to avoid paying Ship-Money, 28.

Sedgemore, Battle of, 431. A new Account of it by a Captain in the Horſe-Guards, now living, 432. N.

Seditions in Scotland, 77.

Selden, Mr. John, proſecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Member of Parliament, 52. Proſecuted in the Star-Chamber for ſpreading a Libel, 62. Further proſecuted for his firſt Offence, 63. Anſwers Hugo Grotius's Book ſtil'd Mare Liberum, written againſt the Engliſh Dominion at Sea, 74. His Book highly valu'd by the King, 84. One of the Aſſembly of Divines, 145. Banters them, 147.

Seneff, Battle of, 330.

Serjeants at Law, a Call of them by King Charles II. 380. Partially call'd, ibid. Another Call by King Charles, 407. Their Servile Motto, 408. A Call by James II. 449. Another, 516. A Call by King William, 564. Their good Motto, ibid.

Sermon, William, of Briſtol, the Cure he work'd upon the Duke of Albemarle, 297.

Settlement, Act of, repeal'd in Ireland by King James's pretended Parliament, 578.

Seymour, Mr. Edward, charges the Earl of Clarendon, Lord Chancellor, vivâ voce, with many great Crimes, 289. His Speech when he carry'd up the Articles againſt him to the Lords, 290. Choſen Speaker of King Charles IId's Long Parliament, 318. See Pag. 342, 343. Choſen Speaker of Charles IId's Third Parliament, rejected by the King, 360. Impeach'd by the Commons, 377. A Motion for an Addreſs to remove him from the King's Preſence and Council for ever, ibid. Made a Privy-Counſellor by King William, 633. And one of the Lords of the Treaſury, ibid.

Shadwel Church, Conſecrated, 307.

Shaftsbury, Anthony Aſhley Cooper Earl of, made Lord Chancellor, 316. His remarkable Speech to Baron Thurland, 324. He is in Diſgrace, and has the Seals taken from him, ibid. Is the Head of the diſcontented Party, ibid. Committed for Queſtioning the Legality of the Long Parliament, 339. Is us'd hardly, 340. Submits, and is diſcharg'd, ibid. Made Preſident of the Council, 362. His Zeal againſt Popery, 367. Why turn'd out of being Preſident of the Council, ibid. His Speech againſt Popery, ibid. His Tryal, 390. The Bill found Ignoramus, ibid. Great Rejoicings upon it, ibid.

Shaftsbury, Anthony Earl of, his Grandſon, his Surprize in Parliament, 698.

Shales, Mr. John, His ill Practices, when Commiſſary of the Army in Ireland, 582.

Shapcot, Robert, Eſq; expell'd the Houſe of Commons in Ireland, for Diſloyalty to Charles II. 279.

Sharp, Dr. John, his Offence againſt King James, by preaching againſt Popery, 455. Hath a Guard ſet upon him, 483. N. He is ſuſpended, but reſtor'd, ibid. Made Archbiſhop of York by King William, 634.

Sheerneſs, Fort, taken by the Dutch, 287.

Sheldon, Dr. Gilbert, made Biſhop of London, 247. Archbiſhop of Canterbury, 267. The main Inſtrument of the ſevere Act call'd the Corporation-Act againſt the Diſſenters, 280. Perſecutes the Non-Conformiſts, 301. Charged with ſaying, There are many Things in the Church of Rome that ſhould have been kept, 320. He denies the Words, ibid. His Letter againſt private Schools, 322. Retires to Croydon, 348. Dies there, ibid.

Sheldon, Mr. taken up for the Popiſh Plot, and releas'd upon Bail, 357.

Sheldon, Lieutenant General for King James in Ireland, driven out of Ireland by General Ginkle, 622.

Shepherd, Mr. ſets the New Eaſt-India Company on Foot, 748.

Sherfeild, Henry, Eſq; Proſecuted for taking down the Painted Glaſs out of a Church in Sarum, 71.

Sherlock, Dr. William, reconcil'd to King William's Government, 633. Is made Dean of St. Paul's, ibid. His Diſpute with Dr. South, 707.

Sheriffs, Contentions about Electing them in London, 395.

Ship-Money, laid upon the Ports and Maritime Counties by the King's Authority, 28. Several Petitions againſt it, ibid. The Inhabitants of the Ports leave 'em to avoid paying it, ibid. Projected by Mr. Noy, 74. The Writ for it, ibid. The demand of it enlarg'd, 81. Grows more Odious, ibid. More Murmurs about it, 84. The Judges give their Opinion about it, 85. Lord Clarendon's Opinion of it, ibid. Voted Illegal by Parliament, 106.

Shorter, Sir John, Lord-Mayor of London, Compliments the Pope's Nuncio, 494.

Shovell, Sir Cloudſley, Knighted on the Action at Bantry Bay, 564. Made Admiral by King William, 653.

Shrewsbury, Charles Talbot Earl of, quits a Regiment of Horſe in K. James's Service, 518. Mortgages his Eſtate for 40000 l. and goes over to the Prince of Orange, ibid. Made Secretary of State, 662. Duke, 663. One of the Lords Juſtices of England, 687. Again, 714. And again, 734. Reſigns his Secretary's Place to Travel, 768. Made Lord Chamberlain, 770.

Shute, Samuel, Eſq; Choſen one of the Sheriffs of London, in Oppoſition to the Court Party, 391. Sent to the Tower, and why, 395. Fin'd for a Riot, 398.

Sibthorp, Dr. Preaches a Sermon to juſtify the King's impoſing publick Taxes without Conſent of Parliament, 54. His Advancement and Character, ibid.

Sidney, Algernoon, Eſq; his Trial, unjuſt Sentence and Death, 403. His laſt Speech, 404, 405. His Attainder annull'd and made void, 565.

Sidney, Henry, Eſq; his Brother, made Gentleman of the Bed-chamber by King William, 550. Created Viſcount, 560. One of the Lords Juſtices of Ireland, 605. Secretary of State, 610. Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, 633. His Quarrel with Sir Rowland Gwyn, 637. The Lord Chancellor of Ireland's Speech to him, 652. Made Maſter of the Ordnance, and Colonel of the firſt Regiment of Guards, 661. And Earl of Rumney, 653. See Rumney, Earl of.

Skelton, Sir Bevill, King James's Ambaſſador in Holland, his fruitleſs Endeavours to ſeize the Duke of Monmouth, 428. He diſcovers the Deſign of the Prince of Orange's Landing, 518. Committed to the Tower, and then made Governor of it, 519. Turn'd out by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, 533.

Skeyne, Laird of, his Juſtification of the Conventiclers Deſigns in Scotland againſt Charles II, 381.

Sedley, Sir Charles, his Speech againſt large Salaries and Penſions from the Crown, 596.

Slaves Redeem'd, 323.

Slingsby, Sir Henry, Condemn'd by Cromwell's High Court of Juſtice, 224. His Death and Character from the Lord Clarendon, ibid.

Smart, Mr. Peter, proſecuted for oppoſing Innovations in the Church, 58. N.

Smith, Mr. Alexander, a depos'd Miniſter in Scotland, his bold Behaviour and Puniſhment, 279.

Smith, Mr. Francis, a Bookſeller, his Troubles for printing the Paper call'd Raree-ſhow, 414.

Smith, Mr. Aaron, order'd to be taken into Cuſtody of the Serjeant at Arms, for ſpeaking againſt the Being of Charles II's Long Parliament, 343.

Sobrize, Duke of, adviſes the Duke of Bucks to attack Oleran, 38. His Advice not follow'd, ibid.

Socinianiſm firſt broach'd in England, 189. Spreads, 707.

Sole-bay, Naval Battle of, 314.

Solmes, Count of, advances with the Prince of Orange's Guards to St. James's, 537. Finds the King's Guards at their Poſts, ibid. The Loſs of the Battle of Stenkirk owing to him, 644. In Diſgrace with King William, ibid.

Somers, John, Eſq; Council for the Biſhops, 513. His Argument for them, 514. His Speech at the Conference for the Word Abdicate, 545. Is ſaid to have drawn up King William's Declaration of War with France, 563. Made Sollicitor-General by him, 564. Made Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, 653. And one of the Lords Juſtices of England, 687. Again, 714. Made Lord Chancellor, and Baron Somers, 734.

Somers, John Lord, made Lord High Chancellor, 734. One of the Lords Juſtices again, ibid. And again, 755. The King's Letter to him about the Treaty of Partition, 756. Again one of the Lords Juſtices, 769. A Motion againſt him rejected, 782. The Seals taken from him, 783. Many People diſpleas'd at it, ibid. Vindicates himſelf in the Houſe of Commons, as to the Partition-Treaty, 805. A Letter of King William's to him, ibid. His Letter to the King, 806. Impeach'd by Mr. Harcourt in the Name of the Commons, ibid. Their Addreſs againſt him, and the Lords for him, ibid. 807. The Articles of Impeachment againſt him carried up by Mr. Harcourt to the Lords, 810. The Lord Somers's Anſwer, ibid. Conteſts between the Lords and Commons about his Tryal, 814, 815, 816. He is Try'd, and Honourably Acquitted, 820. The Commons Remonſtrate upon it, ibid.

Somerſet, Earl of, proſecuted in the Star-Chamber for ſpreading a Libel, 62.

Somerſet, Charles Seymour, Duke of, refuſes to attend the Pope's Nuncio at his Entrance, 494. Sworn of the Privy-Council to King William, and appointed one of the Lord's Juſtices, 825. Made Preſident of the Council, 831.

Somerſet, County of, Loyal to Charles I. 151.

Sophia, Princeſs, Dutcheſs Dowager of Hanover, firſt mention'd to Succeed to the Crown of England, 565. Declar'd next in Succeſſion to the Crown of England, 797. The Crown ſettled on her, 815.

South, Dr. his Diſpute with Dr. Sherlock, 707.

Southampton, Wriotheſly Earl of, impos'd upon by a Court-Party to Act againſt our Parliamentary Conſtitution, 255. Vehemently oppoſes the Corporation Act againſt the Diſſenters, 280. His Death, 288.

Southwark, Borough of, their Inſtructions to the Members they Choſe for King William's Laſt Parliament, 830.

Spain, Charles II. King of, his Death, 791. His Will, ibid.

Speakers, Three choſen in one Parliament, before any Buſineſs was diſpatch'd, 230.

Speeches, ſevere ones to the Parliament from the Throne, of ill Conſequences, 19.

Speeches, King Charles Iſt's to his Firſt Parliament, 4. Lord Keeper's to them, 5. King Charles's to them at Oxford, 7. The Lord Treaſurer's about the King's Debts, ibid. Lord Keeper's to King Charles's Second Parliament, 15. Sir Heneage Finch, Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, to the King, 16. Several in Parliament, 19. The King's, and the Lord Keeper's to the Houſe, ibid. A ſevere one of the King's, ibid. Sir Dudly Diggs's Speech at the Lords Bar, when he Impeach'd the Duke of Bucks, 23. Sir John Elliot's at the Concluſion of it, 25. The King's in his Defence, ibid. To the Queen's French Servants when he diſmiſs'd them, 28. Sir William Beecher's to the Rochellers, ibid. The King's and the Lord Keeper's to the Third Parliament, 41, 42. One without Doors, a Letter ſo call'd, 41. Several in Parliament about Grievances, 42. Another of the King's, in Anſwer to the Parliament's Petition againſt Recuſants, ibid. More Speeches in Parliament, ibid. 43. Lord Keeper's to urge the Diſpatch of Money-Bills, 44. Two Speeches, Speeches more of the King's at paſſing the Petition of Right, 45. Several in Parliament, 45, 46. An angry Speech of the King's, 47. The Speaker's to the Lords at Delivery of the Money Bill, ibid. The King's at the Opening of a Second Seſſion, 50. At the Diſſolution of that Parliament, 51. Several in Parliament, 50, 51, 52. Mr. Rous's againſt Dr. Manwaring, 55. Archbiſhop Laud's at the Cenſure of Burton, Baſtwick, and Prynne, 92. King Charles I. to his Fourth Parliament, 102. A Ridiculous one of the Lord Keeper Finch, ibid. Several in Parliament, 103. The King's at the Diſſolution of this Parliament, ibid. To the Lords at York, 105. His Speech to his Fifth and Laſt Parliament, ibid. Several Speeches by Members of it, 105, 106. Charles I's Healing Speech, 107. Another at paſſing the Triennial Bill, 108. Several Speeches againſt the Convocation, 112. Several in Parliament, 115. Archbiſhop Laud's when he was charg'd with High Treaſon, ibid. The King's in favour of the Lord Strafford, 116. The Lord Strafford's Laſt Speech, 117. The King's Two Speeches about the Supply, and Tonnage and Poundage, 119. Another, ibid. To his Scots Parliament, 120. Two Speeches of the King's after his Return from Scotland, 121. His Speech when he demanded the Five Members, 123. His pathetical Speech at New-Market, ibid. Sir Edward Deering's for the Biſhops, 124. The King's to the Gentlemen at York, when he propos'd to raiſe an Army, 126. To a Parliament he held at Oxford, 144. To the ſame when he diſmiſs'd them, 149. Archbiſhop Laud's at his Tryal, 153. Another at his Execution, 154, King Charles's ſeveral Speeches at his Tryal, 181 to 185. His Laſt Speech, 186. Cromwell's to the Rump, when he diſſolv'd them by Force, 207. To his Firſt Parliament, 210. And when he diſſolv'd them, 211. Several to Cromwell, to perſuade him to be King, 219. Cromwell's Self-denying Speech, 220. Major-General Lambert's to the Rump, when they were reſtor'd, 231. General Monk's to the Rump, when he came from Scotland, 235. Lord Chancellor Hyde's about King Charles's Declaration of Indulgence in Religion, 246. King Charles's and the Lord Chancellor Hyde's about the Match with the Infanta of Portugal, 248, 249. The Chancellor Hyde's againſt Diſſenting Teachers, 255. King Charles's in Anſwer to the Parliament's Addreſs againſt Papiſts, 264. Another againſt Rebels, and the Triennial Bill, 269, 270. Another, 270. King Charles and the Lord Chancellor Hyde's to the Long Parliament adjourn'd to Oxford, againſt the Dutch, 278. King Charles and the Lord Keeper Bridgman's to them, after Peace with the Dutch, 288. Mr. Edward Seymour's when he carry'd up the Articles againſt the Lord Clarendon to the Lords, 290. King Charles's on his concluding a Defenſive League with the Dutch againſt France, 293. Another of his to the Parliament, 298. Duke of Lauderdale's to the Scots Parliament, 298, 299. King Charles IId's about the Diſpenſing Power, 318. Lord Chancellor Shaftsbury's remarkable One to Baron Thurland, 324. King Charles's and the Lord Keeper's for Money, 333, 334. King Charles IId's on Marrying his Niece to the Prince of Orange, 346. Charles IId's about the Popiſh Plot, 352. About the Bill of Excluſion, 353. And a Supply, 354. The King's and Lord Chancellor's at the Opening of his Parliament at Weſtminſter, 36[illegible]. The King's to them on making a Popular Privy-Council, 362. King's and Lord Chancellor's about Limiting a Popiſh Succeſſor, 363. Duke of York to the Privy-Council in Scotland, 366. Lord Shaftsbury's againſt Popery, 367. Lord Ruſſell and Sir H. Capell's againſt Popery, and Popiſh Succeſſors, 371, 372, 373, 374. Sir Leoline Jenkins's againſt the Excluſion-Bill, 374. A very bold One againſt the Duke of York, 375. Several againſt a Popiſh affected Clergy, 382. One in favour of the Diſſenters, 383. Earl of Eſſex's when he deliver'd the Petition and Advice, 383, 384. King Charles IId's to the Oxford Parliament, 384. The Speaker Williams's to the King, 385. The Lord Chancellor's Anſwer, 386. Sir William Jones's on the Loſs of the Diſſenters Bill, ibid. Dr. Gower's and Dr. Cogar's, Vice-Chancellors of Cambridge, to the King and Duke of York, 393, 394. The Lord Ruſſell's Laſt Speech, 400. Algernoon Sidney's, 404, 405. James IId's Firſt Speech to the Council, 420. And to the Parliament, 425. The Lord Keeper's, ibid. The Speaker's to the King, and another of the King's to the Parliament on paſſing the Tonnage and Poundage Bill, 427. King James's to his Parliament after the Duke of Monmouth's Defeat, 434. Several againſt his Standing Army, 435. King James's rough One to the Fellows of Magdalen College, 504. The Biſhop of Cheſter's to them, 505. Another, 507. King James's to the Officers of the Army, when he was going to Salisbury, 529. Sir George Treby's to the Prince of Orange, when he came to St. James's, 537. The Prince of Orange's to the Parliament that met before the Convention, 539. To the Convention, 541. Several at a Conference between the Lords and Commons, for and againſt the Word Abdicate, 544, 545, 546. The Prince of Orange's when he accepted the Crown, 549. His Firſt Speech to the Parliament, 550. His Speech to them about Tenderneſs to Diſſenters, 553. To the Scots Lords and Gentlemen in London, 555. Biſhop of London's at the Head of his Clergy to King William, 557. Dr. Bates's to King William, 558. And to Queen Mary, ibid. Mr. Powle's, Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, to Congratulate King William and Queen Mary upon their Coronation, 561. On preſenting the Money-Bill to the King, 562. Another of his on a like Occaſion, 567. King William's to them to quicken their Diſpatch of Buſineſs, 569. An artful One of Mr. Speaker Powle's, on paying the Debt to the Dutch, 571. A remarkable One of King William's before he went to the Congreſs, 581. Another, ibid. Another Speech of Mr. Speaker Powle's to King William, 583. Mr. Hampden's Jun. againſt ſome of King William's Miniſters, 585. The King's at the Opening of his Second Parliament, 595. Sir Charles Sidley's againſt Large Penſions and Salaries from the Crown, 596. King William's on his going for Ireland, 597. To the Parliament at his Return, 606. About the Civil Liſt, 608. Two other Speeches of his, 609. Count De la Tour, the Savoy Ambaſſador's, to King William, 610. King William's Speech to the Princes at the Congreſs, 613. St. Ruth's to the Iriſh before the Battle of Aghrim, 619. King William's when the Parliament met again, 622. Another, 625. Another remarkable one when they met again, 647. A long one of the Earl of Mulgrave's, 648, 649, 650. King William's when the Parliament broke up, 652. Lord Chancellor of Ireland's to the Lord Sidney Deputy, ibid. King William's to the Parliament when it met, 658. Another, 661. Another, 663. His Speech to the Parliament when they met again, 666. Another, 680. Several in Parliament about the Duke of Leeds on his Impeachment, 682. The Duke's Speech in the Houſe of Lords in his own Defence, 683. And in the Houſe of Commons, 684. Other Speeches in Parliament for his Impeachment, 685. Others of the Duke's in his Defence, ibid. King William's when the Parliament broke up, 686. The Lord Capell's to the Parliament in Ireland, 694. And the Lord Tweedale's to that in Scotland, 695. King William's to his Parliament at their firſt Opening, 697. Speeches about altering the Coin, 699. Mr. Price's Speech againſt the Lord Portland's Grant of Denbigh, 701. And King William's at the breaking up of the Parliament, 711. Another at their Sitting again, 722. Mr. Methwen's for Sir John Fenwick's Bill, 726, 727, 728. Sir Godfrey Coply's againſt it, ibid. Who ſpoke for and againſt it, 729. King William's at the breaking up of the Parliament, 733. And at their next Meeting, 740. At their breaking up, 753. At the Meeting of his Parliament, 758. Another on paſſing the Diſbanding-Bill, 759. Of the Lords Juſtices to the Parliament in Ireland, 764. King William's when the Parliament broke up, 768. And when they met again, 770. At their next Meeting, 787. The French Ambaſſador's to the States on the Duke of Anjou's being declar'd King of Spain, 792. King William's about the Liberty of Europe, 793. Lord Haverſham's Offenſive to the Commons, 817. Mr. Speaker Harley's to the King, 824. The King's at the breaking up of the Seſſion, ibid. To the States on the Alterations in Europe, and their Anſwer, 825. His memorable Speech to his laſt Parliament, when they met, 831. Dr. Tenniſon's, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, to the Lower Houſe of Convocation, on their Difference with the Upper, 824. Another Tender Speech of his to them when he diſmiſs'd them, 854.

Speke, Mr. Hugh, cauſeth a Pannick Fear to be ſtruck all over England to try the Affections of the People, before commonly attributed to Duke Schombergh, 535, N. Adviſes King James to withdraw from Rocheſter, 538. N.

Sprague, Sir Edward, defends Sheerneſs Fort againſt the Dutch, 287. Engages the Dutch in the Thames, ibid. Sent Envoy to the Conſtable of Caſtile, Governor of the Netherlands, 294. His Bravery and Death, 323, 324.

Sprat, Dr. Thomas, a great Favourite, made Biſhop of Rocheſter, by James IId, 422. One of the Prelates moſt in Favour with him, 442. One of the High Commiſſion Court, 453. Excuſes himſelf for accepting it, ibid. N. Order'd to draw up a Thankſgiving for Queen Mary's being with Child, 496. Denies his aſſenting to the Sentence of the High Commiſſion Court againſt the Biſhop of London, 482, 507. N. Abdicates his Place in the Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſion, 513. N. His Apology for permitting King James's Declaration for Liberty of Conſcience to be read in Weſtminſter-Abbey, 515. N. His Reaſons for quitting the Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſion, ibid. N. Taken up for Young's Sham-Plot, and diſcharged, 646.

Stafford, Lord, Committed to the Tower for Treaſon, 356. Condemn'd and Executed, 377. An Act to repeal his Attainder paſs'd in the Houſe of Lords in King James's Reign, 441. Dropt by the Commons, 442.

Stage, its Liberty very ſcandalous, 765.

Stamford, Earl of, his Regiment in the Parliament's Service put to the Sword by the King's Forces at Cirenceſter, 129.

Stamford, Thomas Gray Earl of, the unjuſt Proceedings againſt him in King James's Reign, 437.

Stanhope, Mr. Ambaſſador at the Hague, his Diſcourſe with the French Ambaſſador there, on the Death of the King of Spain, 792. His Memorial on the French King's breaking the Partition Treaty, 803.

Staples, Alexander, Eſq; expell'd the Parliament in Ireland for Diſloyalty to Charles IId, 279.

Stapleton, Sir Philip, one of the Eleven Members impeach'd by the Army, 168.

Star Chamber-Court Cenſur'd, 71. Favour the Papiſts, but ſeverely proſecute the Puritans, ibid. N. Put down, 119.

Staylers, William, a Papiſt, hang'd for Treaſon againſt Charles IId, 357.

Stayner, Captain, takes Two Millions of Silver from the Spaniards, 217.

Stenkirk, Battle of, 643.

Stephens, Mr. William, his Sermon before the Houſe of Commons, 779. His Character, ibid.

Stern, John, hang'd for Murdering Mr. Thynne, 392.

Sterry, Mr. a Miniſter, a prophane Saying of his on Cromwell's Death, 226

Stewarts, Mr. James, his Negotiation with Mr. Fagell, to get the Prince and Princeſs of Orange's Conſent to repeal the Teſt and Penal Laws, ineffectual, 492, 493.

Stewart, Archibald, his Juſtification of the Scots Conventiclers Proceedings againſt King Charles IId, 381.

Stillingfleet, Dr. Edward, choſen Prolocutor of the Convocation, 348. His Sermon on Separation, 382. Againſt reading K. James's Declaration for Liberty of Conſcience, 510, N. But refuſes to ſign a Paper againſt it, ibid. N. His Death and Place of Burial, 777. N.

Stock-Jobbing, the Grievance of it, 753.

Strafford, Thomas Wentworth Earl of, hates Sir Henry Vane, 100. His Quarrel with the Lord Chancellor Loftus, 101. His Favour, ibid. One of the firſt Movers to the Calling a Parliament, 102. Made Lieutenant-General in the Second Expedition againſt the Scots, ibid. A Charge of High Treaſon brought againſt him by the Commons, 106. He is taken into Cuſtody, ibid. His ill Conduct, 116. His Tryal and good Defence, ibid. Attainted in Parliament, ibid. His Letter to the King, 117. He is Beheaded, ibid. His Laſt Speech, ibid. 118.

Stretton, Mr. Richard, refuſes to Addreſs James IId, upon his Declaration for Liberty of Conſcience, 490. N.

Strickland, Walter, Eſq; ſent by the Parliament to be their Agent in Holland, 130.

Stringer, Dr. pretends to diſcover a Plot againſt King William, 834.

Stroud, Mr. William, a Member of Parliament, proceeded againſt for his Actions in the Houſe, 51. A Proclamation againſt him, ibid. 52. N. One of the Five Members demanded by the King, 122.

Succeſſion in the Proteſtant Line firſt debated in Parliament, 565. All Papiſts diſabled, 585.

Succeſſion in the Proteſtant Line to the Crown of England ſettled, 756. The Limitations of it, ibid. The Act paſt, 815. N.

Sunderland, Earl of, ſlain on the King's ſide at the Battle of Newbury, 139. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Sunderland, Robert Spencer Earl of, made Secretary of State by Charles II. 356. And Preſident of the Council by James II. 440. What is ſaid of his being reconcil'd to the Church of Rome, 451. One of the High-Commiſſion Court, 452. His Evidence at the Biſhops Tryal, 514. Inſtrumental in King James's refuſing the 30000 Men offer'd him by the French King againſt the Prince of Orange, 518. Turn'd out of his Offices by King James, 523. Accuſed of High Treaſon, ibid. N. Excepted out of King William's Act of Indemnity, 597. Made Lord Chamberlain by King William, and grows great in Favour, 734. Made one of the Lords Juſtices of England, ibid. Reſigns his Lord Chamberlain's Place, and why, 744.

Sunderland, Counteſs of, Inſtrumental in the Revolution, 518.

Suſpenſion, near Two Hundred Miniſters in the County of Durham underwent it, for refuſing to read King James IId's Declaration for diſpenſing with our Laws, 509. N.

Suſpicions, Reaſons for, concerning the Birth of the pretended Prince of Wales, 512. N.

Sweeden, Guſtavus Adolphus King of, his Expedition into Germany, 63. Beats Count Tilly at Leipſick, 64. His Death, 68.

Syndercomb, Miles, his Plot againſt Cromwell, 217. His ſudden Death, ibid.

Synods, Scots, the Form of 'em, 274.

T.

Tabernacles, Meeting-Houſes turn'd into, 306. Whoſe Meeting-Houſes were ſo uſed, ibid. N.

Tallard, Count de, Lands at Greenwich, Ambaſſador from Lewis XIV. to William III. 744. His ordinary Entrance, 754. Has his Audience of Leave on the King of Spain's Death, 792.

Talmaſh, Colonel, his Bravery at Athlone, 620. And at the Battle of Aghrim, ibid. His Saying to General Bourk before Galloway, 621. For taking the Town by Storm, ibid. His fine Retreat at Landen, 655. Kill'd at Cameret-Bay, 664. Suppoſed to be ſent a Sacrifice to Envy or ſomething worſe, ibid.

Tangier in Africa, part of Queen Katharine's Portion, 255. Made a Free Port, 259. The Conveniency of its Situation, ibid. The Expence of keeping it, ibid. Debates of the Conveniencies and Inconveniencies of it, 376. Demoliſh'd, 408.

Tankerville, Ford Lord Grey made Earl of, 687. Firſt Commiſſioner of the Treaſury, and one of the Lords Juſtices of England, 784. Made Lord Privy Seal, 793. His Death, 825.

Taunton, Reliev'd by the Parliament Forces, 157.

Temple, Sir William, Reſident for Charles II. at Bruſſels, concludes a Defenſive League with the Dutch, on the French King's invading Flanders, 293. King Charles's Plenipotentiary at Aix la Chapelle to mediate a Peace between France and Spain, 294. Sent Ambaſſador to the States, ibid. Ill uſed by Charles II. 325. Negotiates a Peace with the Dutch, ibid. His Conference with the Prince of Orange about a Peace, 330. About King Charles's Miniſters, 336, 337. Plenipotentiary for the Treaty at Nimeguen, ibid. The Conference with the Prince of Orange about a Seperate Peace, 341. His Conference with the Prince of Orange, about the Prince's Match with the Princeſs Mary, 344. His Concern in that Match, ibid. 345. His laſt Negotiation with the Prince of Orange about the War, 349. His Diſcourſe with him on King Charles IId's being for a War after the Peace was ſign'd by the Dutch, 350. Diſappointed of being Secretary, 357.

Temple, Mr. his Son, drowns himſelf for, recommending Colonel Hamilton, a Traytor to King William, 556.

Tenniſon, Dr. Thomas, his Enquiry about the Executioner of King Charles Iſt, 187. N. His Opinion of the Eccleſiaſtical Commiſſion in 1689, 252. N. His Conference with the D. of Monmouth at his Execution, 433. N. His vain Endeavours to obtain Liberty of Preaching for Dr. Sharp, 483. N. His Account of King James's Endeavour to pervert his Daughter the Princeſs of Orange to the Romiſh Communion, 492. N. Founder of a Grammar-School in the Pariſh of St. Martin's, 508. Made Biſhop of Lincoln, 634. His good Character, ibid. His Account of Queen Mary's Death, 666, 667. Very Inſtrumental in reconciling her Royal Highneſs the Princeſs Anne to King William, 668. Made Archbiſhop of Canterbury, 676. His Character of Queen Mary in her Funeral-Sermon, 677. Procures Injunctions to be put forth by King William to reſtore Church Diſcipline, 678. Made one of the Lords Juſtices of England, 687. His Circular Letter to the Biſhops for the Peace and Honour of the Eſtabliſh'd Church, 708. Is made one of the Lords Juſtices, 714. And again, 734. Again, 755. His Circular Letter to the Biſhops for promoting Peace and Piety, 777. Again one of the Lords Juſtices, 784. And again, 825. His Speech to the Lower Houſe of Convocation on their Diviſions with the Upper, 844. Another Tender Speech of his when he diſmiſs'd them, 854.

Term kept at Oxford in the Plague-time, 278.

Teſt-Act paſſed, 322. Teſt of Abhorrence, 332. A Liſt of the Lords who proteſted againſt it, ibid. N. Teſt-Act and Penal Laws diſpens'd with by King Charles II. and the Reaſons that mov'd him to it, 312. N. And by James II. 442. He endeavours to have them repeal'd in Scotland, 445. And in England, 491. Puts forth a Declaration to ſuſpend it, ibid. N Gives the Commiſſion of Peace to ſome rigid Diſſenters to countenance Papiſts, ibid. N.

Teſtimonial, Letters, Archbiſhop Sancroft's Directions about them, 359.

Theatre at Oxford open'd, 296.

Thomas, Dr. William, made Biſhop of St. David's, 348.

Thompſon, Richard, a Parſon of Briſtol, called to Account by Parliament for oppoſing Petitioning, &c. 381. Made Dean by King Charles, ibid.

Thurlo, Mr. Oliver's Secretary, his Vigilance, 223. Leader of the Court-Party in Richard's Parliament, 230.

Thynne, Thomas, Eſq; ſent into Holland to conclude a League with the Dutch, 345. Aſſaſſinated by Conningſmark's Ruffians, 392.

Tillotſon, Dr. John, has a Conference with Mr. Baxter for an Accommodation, 331, 332. Made Archbiſhop of Canterbury, and ſworn of the Council, 633. His Conſecration, ibid. His Death, 673. The Lord Biſhop of Sarum's Character of him, ibid. The Reſpect paid him by the Town of Halifax, ibid. N Character of him by another Divine, 675, N. King William's Saying of him, 676.

Tilly, Count, beats the King of Denmark at the Battle of Luttern, 28. Beaten by Guſtavus Adolphus at Leipſick, 64.

Titus, Colonel, writes, Killing no Murder, a Libel againſt Cromwell, 222. Sworn Privy-Councellor to King James, 556.

Tiviot, Earl of, made Governor of Tangier, 259.

Tobago Iſland, taken from the Dutch by Sir Toby Bridges, 324.

Toiras, Count, the French General, outwits the Duke of Bucks at the Iſle of Rhe, 39.

Toland, Mr. a ſcandalous Book of his cenſur'd by the Convocation, 842, 843.

Toleration, what was meant by it in King James's Reign, 490. N. Act paſs'd in favour of Diſſenters, 566. Heads of it, 589.

Tomkins, Mr. hang'd by the Parliament for Mr. Waller's Plot, 139.

Tonnage and Poundage, a Remonſtrance about it, 47. It cauſes Diſputes, 49. A Bill paſt for it, 119.

Torcy, Monſieur de, Secretary of State to the French King, his Letter to the Earl of Mancheſter when he was recall'd from his Ambaſſy in France, 829.

Torrington, Arthur Herbert, Admiral, created Earl of, 571.

Tory, when that Party was firſt ſo called, 370.

Tories troubleſome in Ireland in the Reign of King Charles IId, 285.

Tour, Count De la, Ambaſſador from the Duke of Savoy to King William, his Speech, 610.

Tourville, Count, Admiral of the French Fleet, beaten by Admiral Ruſſel, 640, 641.

Trade, Abuſes in, regulated, 70.

Travendale, Treaty of, 786.

Treaty and Pacification with the Scots, 99.

Treaties between Charles I. and the Parliament,

1. At Brentford, comes to nothing; but is remov'd to,
2. Oxford, 130, 131. Continued there, and in what manner, 134, 135. Broke off, ibid.
3. Of Uxbridge, 152.
4. At the Iſle of Wight, 175. Preliminaries to it, 177. It opens, ibid. The Army breaks it off, ibid.

Treaty between the Engliſh Parliament and the Scots, 139.

Treaty, Pyrenean, between France and Spain, 236. Of Breda with the Dutch, 286, 287. Of Aix la Chappelle, between France and Spain, 294. Between the Engliſh and the Algerines, 295.

Treaty of Peace between King William and his Confederates begins, 714. Preliminaries of it, 734. The Allies Demands, 735. Firſt Conference, ibid. Goes on ſlowly, 736. Sign'd, 737, 738.

Treaty of Partition, 755. How manag'd, 756, 757. Second Treaty of Partition, and the Articles of it, 788 to 791. Between France and Sweden, 757.

Treaty of Carlowitz, between the Emperor and the Turks, 757. Of Travendall, between the Swedes and Danes, 786.

Treby, George, Eſq; Knighted, and made Recorder of London, 381. His Speech to congratulate the Prince of Orange on his coming to St James's, 537. Made Attorney-General by King William, 564.

Tredagh, or Drogheda, taken by Storm by Cromwell, 192. Surrender'd to K. William, 604.

Trevor, Sir John, Secretary of State, private Queries of his, alias Secretary Coventry's, relating to the Conduct of the Duke of Bucks, and others, Ambaſſadors in France, 315. His Death, 316.

Trevor, Sir John, Choſen Speaker of the Houſe of Commons, held by James II. nominated firſt by the Lord Middleton, 424. Choſen Speaker by King William's Second Parliament, 595. Made one of the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, 598. Made Maſter of the Rolls, 652. Is charged with Corruption and expell'd the Houſe, when Speaker, 672.

Trump, Van, Admiral, with the Dutch Fleet, falls upon the Spaniſh Fleet in the Downs, 101. His Death, 209.

Trump, Van, his Son, quarrels with De Ruyter, 283. Turn'd out of Commiſſion for it by the States, 283. Reſtor'd to his Command, 323.

Tryals in Caſes of High-Treaſon; Conferences and Debates in Parliament about them, 625.

Turkey.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

[illegible]ey-Fleet Surpriz'd by the French, 657.

Turner, Sir Edward, choſen Speaker of Charles II's Second Parliament, 249. Made Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, 317.

Turner, Dr. his Queries in Parliament, 19. Explains and Juſtifies himſelf, ibid.

Turner, Anthony, a Jeſuit, hang'd, 369.

Tuſcany, Prince of, comes into England, 295. Viſits the Univerſity of Cambridge, ibid. His Reception there, ibid. At Oxford, 296. And at London, ibid.

Tweedale, Marquis of, King William's High Commiſſioner in Scotland, holds a Parliament there, 695.

Twiſden, Serjeant, impriſon'd for Pleading a Cauſe againſt Cromwell, 214.

Twiſs, Dr. Prolocutor of the Aſſembly of Divines, 146.

Tyddeman, Sir Thomas, attacks the Dutch Merchant-Ships at Bergen in Norway, but takes none; Refuſes to Engage the Dutch, and why, 281.

Tyrconnel, Col. Talbot Earl of, his Riſe, 447. Accuſed by Oats of the Popiſh Plot, ibid. He models the Iriſh Army, ibid. His Speech in Anſwer to the Lord Clarendon, when he receiv'd the Sword of him as Deputy, 448. Made a Privy-Counſellor in England, 449. Anſwers the Expectations of the Papiſts, who recommended him to be their Governor in Ireland, 499 King William writes to him to ſubmit, 556. Secures Ireland for King James, 575. Made a Duke, 576. Flies to France, 611. He dies of Grief, 621.

Tythes, aboliſh'd by the Rump, 206. The City of London againſt it, 209.

U.

V*Alentine*, Mr. Benjamin, proſecuted for his Speeches and Actions as a Member of Parliament, 52. Fin'd 500 l. 53. Remov'd to the Gate-houſe, 63.

Vane, Sir Henry, his Ambaſſy to the King of Sweeden in Germany, 64. His Negotiations there, 68. Made Secretary of State, 100. Carries two Meſſages from the King to the Houſe of Commons, 103. His Evidence againſt the Earl of Strafford, 116.

Vane, Sir Henry, Jun. brings up a Charge of High-Treaſon againſt Archbiſhop Laud to the Lords, 115. Oppoſes the recognizing of Richard in Parliament, 230. Is a Republican, ibid. Excepted out of King Charles IId's Act of General Pardon, 241. He is Try'd, 256. His troubleſome Behaviour at his Tryal and Execution, ibid.

Vaudemont, Prince of, his admirable Retreat, and King William's Letter to him upon it, 688.

Vaudois, reliev'd and aſſiſted by King William, 645.

Vendoſme, Duke of, his Actions in Catalonia, againſt the Prince of Heſſe Darmſtadt, 515.

Venables, ſent with Pen to the Weſt-Indies, is unfortunate and impriſon'd by Cromwell, 213.

Venner, Thomas, the Fifth Monarchiſt, conſpires againſt Cromwell, 223. Raiſes an Inſurrection againſt King Charles II. 242. The Madneſs of his Followers, ibid. His own Brutal Courage, ibid. Wounded, Taken, and Executed, ibid.

Vienna Beſieged by the Turks, 408.

Villeroy, Mareſchal de, Commands the French Army on the Death of the Duke of Luxemburgh, 687. Will not exchange the Garriſons of Dixmuyde and Deynſe, according to the Cartel, 690. Bombards Bruſſels, ibid. Makes a vain Attempt to raiſe the Siege of Namur, 691. He retires, ibid.

Villiers, Edward Lord Viſcount, made Plenipotentiary at the Treaty of Reſwyck by King William, 731. One of the Lords Juſtices of Ireland, 734. And Earl of Jerſey, 740.

Vincent, Shadrach, Eſq; his Loyal Addreſſes to Queen Mary, from the Tinners of Cornwall, 603.

Uniformity-Act paſſes, 255. Proceedings of the Parliament about it, 260. The chief Matters contain'd in it, 261. The Wiſdom and Moderation of it, 262. By whom firſt broken, ibid.

Vratz, Capt. a German, hang'd for Murdering Mr. Thynne, 392.

Uſher, Dr. James, Archbiſhop of Armagh, proteſts againſt Tolerating Popery, 37. Voted out of the Aſſembly of Divines, 147. Goes to the King at Oxford, ibid. Allowed to Preach by the Parliament, 174.

Uxbridge, Treaty of, 152, 156.

W.

W*Ake*, Dr. William, Archbiſhop of Canterbury, his Account of ſome Accommodation projected in the laſt Year of King James's Reign, 557. N.

Walcot, Capt. Thomas, hang'd for the Phanatick Plot, 400.

Waldeck, Prince, Commands the Confederate Army in Flanders, 617. His Rear attack'd, ibid.

Wales, pretended Prince of, ſaid to be Born, 512. The manner of his Baptiſm impolitick, 522. Believ'd to be an Impoſture, ibid. Reaſons for ſuch Belief, ibid. N. K James's vain Attempt to remove Suſpicion, 523. Carry'd off to France by Advice of the French Ambaſſador, 532. Own'd King of England, Scotland and Ireland, by Lewis XIV. 828. No Peace to be made with France, till Satisfaction be given by the French King, for the Affront he put upon the Nation in it, 834. He is Attainted by Parliament, 836.

Walker, Mr. a Miniſter in Ireland, raiſes a Regiment for the Defence of the Proteſtants, 577. Choſen Governor of London-derry, ibid. Preacher to the Garriſon in its Extremity, 579. Thank'd for his good Services by the Houſe of Commons, 582. Kill'd at the Boyne, 600.

Wallace, a Scots Covenanter, raiſes a Rebellion againſt King Charles II. 285. Defeated by Duke Hamilton, ibid.

Wallenſtein, his Treaſon and Death, 68.

Waller, Edmund, Eſq; his bold Speech in Parliament, 103. His Plot to ſeize ſome Leading Men of the Parliament, 139. His Puniſhment and Character, ibid.

Waller, Mr. his Son, a Member of Parliament, turns Quaker, 765.

Waller, Sir William, takes Farnham-Caſtle and Wincheſter for the Parliament, 129. Takes Malmesbury, Chepſtow, Monmouth, and Hereford, 135. Defeats Col. Herbert, and is himſelf defeated, ibid. Fights Prince Maurice and the Earl of Carnarven at Lanſdown, 138. Beats the Lord Hopton at Cheriton-Down, 150. Purſues the King, ibid. Very inſtrumental in gaining the Battle of Newbury, 151. One of the Eleven Members impeach'd by the Army, 168.

Waller, Sir William, his Son, diſcovers Fitzharris's Plot, 387.

Wallingford-Houſe, the General Council of Officers there meet, and turn out Richard Cromwell, 231. Their Addreſs to the Rump, about the Form of Government they would have ſettled, ibid. They turn out the Rump, and ſettle a Council of Officers in the Government, 232. Set up a Committee of Safety to Govern, 233. They are afraid of Monk, 234. They ſend Lambert againſt him, ibid. Their Government put an end to by Fleetwood, ibid.

Wallop, Robert, Eſq; drawn from the Tower to Tyburn, with an Halter about his Neck, &c. 250.

Warwick, Earl of, made Admiral by the Parliament, 125.

Warwick, Robert Rich Earl of, is one of Oliver's Houſe of Lords, 221.

Warwick, Sir Philip, his Account of Cromwell's Death, 226. His Character of General Monk, 234. His Account of General Monk's being tempted by the French Ambaſſador to take the Government on himſelf, 236. Of the Faction and Violence of the Independant Preachers, 237.

Warwick, Edward Rich Earl of, Try'd for the Murder of Richard Coot, Eſq; 768. Found Guilty of Manſlaughter, ibid.

Weavers, Tumultuous, and why, 570.

Wellwood, Dr. taken up for meddling with the Parliament in his Obſervators, 624.

Wentworth, Sir Thomas, made Sheriff of Yorkſhire, to prevent his being Choſen a Member of Parliament, 15. Speaks ſmartly about Grievances, 43, 44, 45. Made a Baron, and brought over to the Court, 48. Made Deputy of Ireland, 68. His Actions there, 70. Promotes Arminianiſm in Ireland, 77. His Advice to the King about the Scots War, 98. Made Earl of Strafford, 100. The Queen offended with him, and why, ibid. See Strafford, Earl of.

Wentworth, Sir Peter, hector'd by Cromwell out of a Cauſe at Law, 214.

Werdt, John de, beats the Swedes at Norlinguen, 77

Weſt, Robert, an Evidence in the Phanatick Plot, 399.

Weſton, Sir Richard, his high Meſſage to the Commons from King Charles I. 17. His Second about Mr. Cook's Saying, and Dr. Turner's Queries, 18. Made Lord Treaſurer, and why, 48. Againſt a pompous Funeral for the Duke of Bucks, 49. Dies a Papiſt, 76. His Character, ibid.

Wharton, Philip Lord, Committed for queſtioning the Legality of King Charles II's Long Parliament, 339. His Journey to Germany a Feint to ſee the Prince of Orange, 517.

Wharton, Thomas, Eſq; ſuppoſed to draw up the Invitation to the Prince of Orange, 523. Joins the Prince of Orange, 528.

Wharton, Mrs. forcibly Married to Capt. Campbel, 608. The Marriage made Void by Parliament, ibid.

Whig, when that Party was firſt ſo called, 370.

Whitaker, Mr. Edward, his Troubles in King James's Reign, 449, 450.

Whitebread, Thomas, Provincial of the Jeſuits, hang'd, 368, 369.

Whitlock, Bulſtrode, Eſq; made Commiſſioner of the Great Seal by the Rump, 192. His Speech to Cromwell, to perſuade him to be King, 219.

Whitley, Col. Roger, his Meſſage from King Charles to Sir George Booth, 232. Garriſons Harding-Caſtle for the King, ibid.

Wich, Sir Peter, ſent Ambaſſador to Muſcovy, 296.

Widdrington, Lord, kill'd at the Battle of Worceſter, 199. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

Widdrington, Sir Thomas, Impeaches Dr. Wren, Biſhop of Ely, at the Lords Bar, 124. Choſen Speaker of Cromwell's Second Parliament, 217.

Wild, Serjeant, Impeaches 13 Biſhops at the Lords Bar, 124. Made one of the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal by Parliament, 143. His Speech in Anſwer to Mr. Herne's Defence of Archbiſhop Laud, 153. N.

Wildman, Major, excluded the Parliament-Houſe by Cromwell, 211. Seiz'd for penning a Libel againſt him, ibid. The Lord Clarendon's Character of him, ibid.

WILLIAM III. (and MARY II.) King of England, who were concern'd in inviting him to England, 517, 518. N. A curious Remark on ſome Tranſactions, much to his Advantage againſt King James, 525. N. Proclaim'd, 549. The King conſtitutes his Privy-Council, 550. His Firſt Speech to the Parliament, ibid. He parts with Chimney-Money, 551. His Anſwer to the Parliament's Addreſs on King James's Landing in Ireland, 552. Two Scots Regiments revolt from him, and are ſuppreſs'd, 553. His Speech about Tenderneſs to Diſſenters, ibid. His Two Speeches to the Scots Lords and Gentlemen, whom he ſummon'd to a Conſultation in London, 555. His Anſwer to the Biſhop of London's, and the Diſſenting Miniſters Addreſs, 557. His and his Queen's Coronation, and the Manner of it, 560, 561. His Anſwer to the Parliament's Addreſs for a War with France, 562. His Declaration of War, 563. Deſires the Parliament to ſettle the Succeſſion in the Proteſtant Line, 565. A good Addreſs of the City of London to him, 568. His Clemency even to Papiſts, ibid. His Speech to the Parliament to quicken their Diſpatch of Buſineſs, 569. The Lords Addreſs to him about paying the Debt to the Dutch, 570. His Letter to the Scots Convention, 572. He and Queen Mary declar'd King and Queen of Scotland, 573. His Objection to the Scots Coronation-Oath, 575. A remarkable Speech of his to the Parliament, before he went to the Congreſs, 581. He and the Royal Family treated by the Lord Mayor, 586. His Picture in Guild-Hall abus'd, 587. His Speech to his Second Parliament, 595. When he went for Ireland, 597. He Lands in that Kingdom, 598. Obtains the glorious Victory of the Boyne, 599, 600. The Queen's Behaviour on the Defeat of the Fleet, 603. He goes to Dublin, 604. Beſieges Limerick, ibid. He returns to England, and makes a Speech to the Parliament, 606. The Lords Addreſs of Congratulation to him, ibid. And Commons, 607. His Speech to 'em, and about the Civil Liſt, 608. Two other Speeches of his, 609. Goes to the Congreſs at the Hague, and is in Danger at Sea, 612. His Speech to the Princes aſſembled there, ibid. 613. Paſſes over to England, returns immediately to Holland, Commands the Confederate Army, and takes the Field, 617. Endeavours to draw Luxemburgh to a Battle in Flanders, ibid. Leaves the Army, ibid. And returns to Kenſington, 618. His Speech when the Parliament met, 622. Other Speeches of his, 569, 632. Makes ſeveral Biſhops and Deans in the room of the Nonjurors, 633, 634. His Care for Reformation of Manners, 634. Goes for Holland, 637. Endeavours to relieve Namur, 643. He attacks Luxemburgh at Stenkirk unſucceſsfully, 643. His Concern for the Engliſh there, 644. Brings the Duke of Savoy into the Confederacy, and aſſiſts him, 645. Leaves the Army and returns to England, 646. Dines at Guild-Hall, ibid. His Speech to the Parliament when they met, 647. Another when they broke up, 652. Goes for Holland and Flanders, ſeizes Park Camp, and breaks the French King's Deſigns, 654. Makes large Detachments to force the French Lines, and relieve Liege, ibid. Attack'd at Landen by Luxemburgh, 654. And is forc'd to retire, ibid. His Piety, Courage and Conduct in that Action, ibid. His Danger, 655. Prais'd by the French, 656. Peace offer'd to him, 657. He returns from Holland, 658. His Speech to the Parliament when they met, ibid. He twice refuſes the Bill for free and impartial Proceedings in Parliament, 659. Two Speeches more of his to the Parliament, 661, 663. Goes for Holland, ibid. And Flanders, 664. His Fleet triumphant in the Mediterranean, 665. His Actions in Flanders, ibid. Takes Huy, ibid. He returns to England, 666. His Speech to the Parliament when they met again, ibid. How he bore the Loſs of his Queen, ibid. Regulates the Coin, 686, 699, 700. His Speech when the Parliament broke up, 686, 687. Goes for Holland and Flanders, ibid. His Marches, ibid. He beſieges Namur, 688. His Letter to Prince Vaudemont on his admirable Retreat, ibid. His Saying of the Engliſh at Namur, 689. His Marches to prevent Villeroy's raiſing the Siege, 691. Takes the Place glorioully, 693. He returns to England, 697. His Progreſs, ibid. What happen'd at Oxford in it, ibid. He diſſolves the Parliament and calls another, ibid. His Speech to them, ibid. Two Affairs in Parliament that nearly concern'd him, 701, 702. His Anſwer to the Commons about my Lord Portland, 702. Examines Mr. Pendergraſs and Mr. De la Rue about the Aſſaſſination-Plot, 704. His Speech to the Parliament upon it, 705. His Preparations to oppoſe King James's Invaſion from Calais, ibid. Puts out Injunctions for Unity in the Church, 707, 708. Denies the Royal Aſſent to the Bill for regulating Elections, 711. His Speech at the breaking up of the Seſſion, ibid. Paſſes over to Holland, 714. Acts defenſively in Flanders, ibid. Viſits the Court of Brandenburgh at Cleves, 721. Returns to England, ibid. His Speech at the meeting of the Parliament, 722. And at their breaking up, 733, 734. Goes for Holland again, ibid. His Indiſpoſition hinders him from relieving Aeth, 736. The Peace owing to him, 737. Orders an Anſwer to be writ to King James's intended Memorial, to be deliver'd at Reſwick, 738. Cannot prevail for any Relief for the French Proteſtants, ibid. Viſited by the Czar of Muſcovy, 739. His Speech at the Meeting of the Parliament after the Peace, 740. His mentioning Standing Forces does not pleaſe, 741. He disbands great part of the Army, 741. Puts out a Proclamation againſt Prophaneneſs and Immorality, 745. His Speech at the Parliament's breaking up, 753. Fond of the Duke of Glouceſter, 755. Goes for Holland, ibid. His Letter to the Lord Chancellor Somers about the Partition-Treaty, 756. He concludes it, ibid. Viſits the Duke of Zell, ibid. His Influence on the Affairs of Europe, 757. He returns to England, 758. His Speech at the Opening of his Parliament, ibid. Is for Standing-Forces, and why, 759. The Parliament againſt it, ibid. Another gracious Speech oppoſing the Disbanding Bill, ibid. Deſires his Dutch Guards might ſtay, but cannot prevail with the Parliament to admit of it, ibid. His Speech at breaking up the Seſſion of Parliament, 768. Goes for Holland, 769. His Diverſions and Affairs abroad, ibid. Claims the Dutchy of Neufchaſtel, ibid. Returns to England, 770. His Speech when the Parliament met again, ibid. Uneaſy at their reſuming his Grant, 772. Goes for Holland, 784. Viſited by ſeveral Princes, 786. By the Princeſs Sophia, Electreſs of Hanover, ibid. Aſſiſts the King of Sweden, ibid. Returns to England, 787. His Speech when the Parliament met again, 793. He forms a new Confederacy againſt the French, 797. His Letter to the Elector of Brandenburgh, at his taking the Title of King of Pruſſia, 799. His Anſwer to the Convocation's Addreſs, 801. His Demands of the French King to prevent a New War, 803. His Meſſage to the Commons on the French Ambaſſador's Anſwer, ibid. His Letter to the Duke of Anjou, acknowledging him King of Spain, 804. What occaſion'd his acknowledging him, ibid. His Anſwer to the Commons Addreſs againſt the Lords Portland, Somers, Orford, and Halifax, 807. His Meſſage to the Parliament about the Danger of Holland, ibid. Their Addreſs in Anſwer, 808. His Speech to the Parliament about the Liberty of Europe, 815, 816. His Speech at the breaking up of the Seſſion, 824. He declines in Health, and gives the Command of his Forces to the Earl of Marlborough, 825. Goes for Holland, ibid. His Speech to the States on the Alterations in Europe, and the States Anſwer, 825. Addreſſes to him by the City of London, and other Cities and Towns, on the French King's owning the pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, 829. Concludes the Grand Alliance againſt France, ibid. Is detain'd in Holland by Sickneſs, ibid. He believes he ſhall die in a little Time, 830. Calls his Laſt Parliament, ibid. His MEMORABLE SPEECH to that Parliament, 831, 832. Two Addreſſes of the Lords, and One of the Commons to him, on the French King's owning the pretended Prince of Wales to be King of England, 833. And ſeizing the Spaniſh Monarchy, ibid. The King's Anſwer, 834. Acts for the ſecuring of his Perſon, ibid. Falls from his Horſe, and breaks his Collar-bone, 835. His Diſcourſe with the Surgeon and Doctor, ibid. Grants a Commiſſion to paſs Bills in Parliament, 836. His laſt Agonies and Death, ibid. His Love for his Queen, 837. Always ready to promote Piety, &c. ibid. N. Report of the Phyſicians on Diſſecting him, ibid. His Will, ibid. 838. Several remarkable Inſtances of his Magnanimity, 838. N. His Character by the Biſhop of Ely, 839, 840, N. His Memory villify'd by the French, 840. Vindicated by the States, ibid. Slanders and idle Stories on him, ibid. Refuted by the Lords, ibid.

Williams, William, Eſq; Speaker of the Weſtminſter Parliament, 371. Choſen Speaker of the Oxford, 385. His Speeches to the King, ibid. Sollicitor-General at the Biſhops Tryal, 514. Moves that thoſe who ſhouted when they were Clear'd, ſhould be Impriſon'd, 515.

Williamſon, Sir Joſeph, made Secretary of State by Charles II. 329. Sent to the Tower for ſigning Warrants for Papiſts to be in Commiſſion, 354. Sells his Secretary's Place, 357. Made a Privy-Councellor by King William, 731. And Plenipotentiary for the Treaty of Reſwick, ibid.

Willis, Sir Richard, betrays Charles II's Counſels to Cromwell, 222.

Willmore, Mr. undone, for not finding the Bill againſt Stephen College, 389.

Willoughby of Parham, Lord, choſen Speaker of the Houſe of Peers, when the Lord Mancheſter ran away, 168. Sent to the Tower by Cromwell, 215. Caſt away in the Weſt-Indies, 285.

Wiltſhire, Charles Pawlet, Earl of, goes over to the Prince of Orange, 518. N.

Wimbleton, Lord Viſcount, Sir Edward Cecill ſo created, 12. Made Commander of the Forces ſent againſt Cales, ibid. His Character, ibid. He's unfortunate, ibid.

Wincanton, a Skirmiſh there between the Prince of Orange and King James's Men, 530.

Wincheſter, Taken by Sir William Waller for the Parliament, 129. N. Privileges declar'd to be diſſolv'd by King James's Judges, 495.

Wincheſter, Charles Pawlet Marquis of, attends King William into Flanders, 617. Made one of the Lords Juſtices of Ireland, 734.

Wind, a Proteſtant one, 522. N.

Windebank, Sir Francis, a Reputed Papiſt, made Secretary of State, 67. He flies beyond Sea, 106. His Character from Andrew ab Habernfield, ibid. N. His Guilt, 107.

Windham, Mr. Wadham, impriſon'd for pleading a Cauſe againſt Cromwell, 214.

Windham, Coll. his Bravery at Landen, 655.

Wintour, Capt. of Glouceſterſhire, a Proclamation, againſt him for Clipping, 721.

Wirtembergh, Duke of, his Actions at the Siege of Limerick, 605. His Diſpute with the Earl of Marlborough at Cork, 611. His Bravery at Athlone, 618. At Stenkirk, 644. Forces the French Lines in Flanders, 654. His Care and Zeal in King William's Service, when King James was preparing to invade England, 705.

Wood, Anthony a, Author of Athenæ Oxonienſes, expell'd the Univerſity, and why, 662. His Bitterneſs and immoderate Zeal, ibid.

Woodward, Dr. Dean of Saliſbury, his Ingratitude to the Biſhop, 850. The Diſpute he rais'd in the Convocation, when he was Prolocutor of it, 853. His Death, ibid.

Worceſter, Battle of, 199.

Worceſter, Dr. Hicks Dean of, his Conference with a Serjeant at Law about Church-Communion, 614. N. A warm Aſſerter of Paſſive Obedience, 633. N. Refuſes to reſign his Deanery, ibid. N.

Worceſter, Marquis of, comes into England to promote Charles II's Intereſt, 205. Taken and Impriſon'd, ibid. Addreſt againſt by Parliament, 379. Made Duke of Beaufort, 396. Vide Duke of Beaufort.

Wren, Dr. Biſhop of Ely, Impeach'd by the Houſe of Commons, 124. Seiz'd at his Palace, 130. His Long Impriſonment, ibid.

Wright, Alderman of Oxford, proſecuted for ſtanding by the Liberties of the City, 413.

Wright, Sir Robert, Chief Juſtice, threatens the Fellows of Magdalen-College with the Military Power, 506. Threatens them again, 507. His rude Language, ibid. For Diſpenſing Power, and againſt the Biſhops, 514. Sent to Newgate, and queſtion'd by the Lords, 565. His Defence, ibid.

Wright, Sir Nathan, made Lord Keeper by King William, 783. And one of the Lords Juſtices, 784. Again one of the Lords Juſtices, 825.

Wycherly and Dryden, the Poets, by what Arts they were drawn over to Popery, 451. N.

Wyke, a Heretick, his blaſphemous Tenets, 194.

Wythers, Sir Francis, Knighted, for preſenting an Addreſs of Abhorrence of Petitions, 370. Reprov'd and expell'd by the Houſe of Commons, 374. His falſe Judgment, when a Judge, againſt the Charter of London, 395. Excepted out of King William's Act of Indemnity, 597.

An INDEX to the Third Volume.

Y.

YOrk, Dr. John Williams Archbiſhop of, carries the Biſhops Proteſtation when they were Outed, to the King, 124. Impriſon'd in the Tower by Parliament, 125.

York City, Seiz'd by the Earl of Newcaſtle for the King, 129. Beſieg'd by the Engliſh and Scots Army, 149. Reliev'd by Prince Rupert, ibid. Surrender'd after the Defeat of Marſton-Moor by Sir Thomas Glemham, 150.

York, James Duke of, brought up at St. James's by the Parliament, 162. Serves in the French Army under the Viſcount Turenne, 205. Commended by him, ibid. Returns to England with his Brother King Charles, 241. Goes aboard the Fleet, to Command it againſt the Dutch, 275. Inſults the Coaſts of Holland, ibid. Returns, and the Dutch take the Hamburgh Fleet, 376. Beats the Dutch Fleet at Sole-Bay, ibid. King Charles's Letter to him, Commanding him not to turn Papiſt, 320, 321. How many Crimes he committed by not obeying thoſe Commands, 321. Lays down his Places on paſſing the Teſt-Act, 322. Is about Marrying Mary, Princeſs of Modena, 324. The Parliament againſt the Match, ibid. His Saying when he gave his Conſent that the Prince of Orange ſhould Marry his Daughter, 345. A Bill of Excluſion talk'd of againſt him, 356. He is order'd to be gone by his Brother, ibid. Retires to Bruſſels, ibid. Votes of the Commons againſt him, 363. His Return, 366. Gives Offence to the People, ibid. Goes to Scotland, ibid. Prevails with the King to turn the Duke of Monmouth out of his Places, ibid. Returns to England, and lays down his Place of Lord Admiral, 367. Goes to Scotland again, 374. A Bill of Excluſion brought in againſt him, ibid. A bold Speech againſt him, 375, 376. Voted againſt by Parliament, 379. Has an Obſequious Parliament in Scotland, 391. Returns, and is receiv'd at Norwich with ſeeming great Joy, 392. His Picture in Guild-Hall defac'd, ibid. Complimented by the Univerſity of Cambridge, 394. Endeavours againſt his own Genius to be Popular, ibid. Goes again to Scotland, and is in Danger at Sea, 395. Returns with Teſtimonials from the Scots Biſhops, 398. Favours the High Clergy under the Name of the Laudean Church-of-England-Men, 410. N. Has 100000 l. Fine of Mr. Duttoncolt, and 100000 l. of Dr. Oats, 414. Governs all, and is reſtor'd to all his Places, 415. Endeavours to pervert his Daughter the Princeſs of Orange to the Romiſh Communion, 492. N. See James II.

York, Dutcheſs of, her Death and Iſſue, 307. She dies a Papiſt, 319. The Reaſons ſhe left behind her for her pretended Converſion, ibid. 320. Her Father the Lord Clarendon very ſorry for it, 321. He writes a Letter to her Husband the Duke about it, and another to her ſelf, ibid. N.

Young, Robert, his Sham-Plot againſt the Biſhop of Rocheſter, and others, 646.

Z.

ZEll, Duke of, comes to Viſit K. William in Holland, 721. The great Reſpect the King paid him, ibid.

Zuyleſtein, Monſieur, ſent by the Prince of Orange to King James, to deſire him to ſtay at Rocheſter, 536. Made Maſter of the Robes by King William, 550.

F I N I S.

00035262

Digitized with financial assistance from Government of Maharashtra

on 01 February, 2020